Chicago's Perennial Peepshows And Burden of Licensing Reels; 'Voyeurs' Pay 25c Per Minute

By MORRY ROTH

Chicago, April 14.

Chicago's South State St. peep shows got a reprieve from last week when the city's corporation counsel overruled a police department request for a perusal of the films. The one-eye flesharamas charge 25c for a one minute glom of posturing nekkid nymphs.

Police Capt. James D. Riordan, First District commander, said films shown in the arcades were under titles for which permits had been issued many years ago. He said he believed that the operators changed the films, but retained the old titles.

"However," Riordan said, "we have been unable to review these movies because there was an injunction issued in 1951 which prohibits policemen from even entering one of the places to check on any titles already permitted." The injunction (based on police "harassment") raised some legal eyebrows when it was issued because it was considered to have interposed a court decree between the police and their duties. It has never been tested in a higher court, a task that would come under the jurisdiction of the corporation counsel.

The police now want the arcade operators to submit all films each year for inspection, but city corporation counsel John C. Melaniphy said that this would "place an undue burden on the exhibitors and the city."

The city's censorship code (Chapt. 155 of the Municipal Code of Chicago) casts some doubt on Melaniphy's appraisal of the situation. It specifically includes ("so-called") penny arcades, and states: "The permit herein required shall be obtained for each and every picture or series of pictures exhibited . . ." The chapter makes no mention of titles or names of the motion pictures, only of the films themselves. Paragraph 4 of Chapt. 155 states: "Such permit shall be granted only after the motion picture film for which said permit is requested has been produced at the office of the commissioner of police for examination or censorship . . ."

Basic to the standoff is a growing belief on the part of the police that the arcades are contributing to the coffers of an organized crime syndicate. Just as the cops have cracked down the strip joints for the same reason, they'd now like to get their hands on the peep shows.

However, there is within the city administration a group which feels that cutie-per-quarter galleries are publicly harmless if semi-pornographic. This school feels that the nudie nickleodeons are the last vestige of the "live" town that once attracted tourists and conventioneers and should be left alone.

HETZEL ON BOARD; MPAA'S CAST STANDS

Ralph Hetzel, acting president of the Motion Picture Assn. of America, was elected to the board of directors last week (7) as board unanimously reelected all officers and all board members.

Officers, in addition to Hetzel, are Kenneth Clark and Charles Boren, exec v.p.'s; Geoffrey Shurlock, William H. Fineshriber Jr., Manning Clagett, Edward Cooper, v.p.'s; Sidney Schreiber, secretary; Stanley R. Weber, treasurer; Thomas J. McNamara, asst. treasurer; Robert T. Watkins, asst. treasurer-asst. secretary.

Board members, besides Hetzel, are Barney Balaban, president, George Weltner, exec v.p., Paramount Pictures; Steve Broidy, president, Edward Morey, v.p., Allied Artists; Abe Schneider, president, Leo Jaffe, exec v.p., Columbia Pictures; Pandro S. Berman, producer, Metro; Benjamin Kalmenson, exec v.p., Howard Levinson, asst. secretary, Warner Bros.; Arthur Krim, president, Eugene Picker, v.p., United Artists; Walter M. Mirisch, v.p., Mirisch Co.; Robert H. O'Brien, president, Benjamin Melniker, general counsel, Metro; Milton R. Rackmil, president, Adolph Schimel, v.p.-general counsel, Universal; William Perlberg, Perlberg-Seaton Prods.; Spyros P. Skouras.

Hand-Picked, Big Market, Playoff For 'Olympics' Stops With Tokyo Gun

Times Film's releasing of the Italian-made "Grand Olympics" of 1960 is admittedly to take advantage of public interest in the games in Tokyo next Fall.

Distribution of "Grand Olympics" will be limited to this summer and no prints will be available after the Tokyo games begin in October. Quote, "We don't expect to make a profit from 'Grand Olympics.' There will be only a limited number of prints, possibly ten or twelve, so exhibition must be restricted to larger cities. We hope to find, in each one, a small house able to play it right up until its withdrawal in September."

Irving Sochin, Times' sales chief, asked about his successful selling of "Mondo Cane," reported that it has racked up well over $1,000,000 in film rentals to date and, as of July 1, should reach the $2,000,000 mark. "We spent more money on prints of this picture," he said, "than on all other films we've released since 1946." Times Films is currently fighting a $3,500,000 damage suit, an "invasion of privacy" claim based on one of the sequences taking place in a West Coast Vic Tanny reducing parlor.

Sochin believes that "Mondo Cane" is the highest grossing foreign film handled by any independent distributor since "And God Created Woman."

So Old It's New; 20th Scores With 'Come Home' Copy

Unless they kill the goose with over exposure, 20th-Fox may reap some golden eggs of unexpected publicity from a stunt pulled by its publicity department—a stunt so old in the annals of promotion that it could almost be accused of "flackery-quackery."

The studio's full page ad in the April 8 edition of the N.Y. Times, reading "John Goldfarb, please come home!" and signed "Shirley" invited him (and any innocent readers) to write Box X7969. Innocent readers, being notoriously impatient, didn't wait to write but deluged the Times with more than 600 telephone calls by the next day (9), wanting to know if John had returned. Several Goldfarbs seemed genuinely concerned.

The aftermath may (and threatens to be) unexpected. First on the bandwagon was Kinney Rent-A-Car with a full page ad offering "John" one of their vehicles.

The more patient among the l.r.'s, those who actually write in to Box X7969, will find themselves on a 20th-Fox mailing list for a series of plugs for a motion picture (named "John Goldfarb, Please Come Home"—what else?) starring an actress named "Shirley" (MacLaine—who else?).

Linguistic Sharif

New York.

Editor, VARIETY:

In your review of "The Fall of The Roman Empire," co-star Omar Sharif is referred to as a bit player in American films because of imperfect English. The statement is untrue and must be challenged.

Omar Sharif, who speaks impeccable English, has appeared in three American films. In "Lawrence of Arabia" and "The Fall of The Roman Empire," he received costar billing and for his efforts in the former, an Academy Award nomination as well. In Fred Zinnemann's upcoming "Behold A Pale Horse," he is starred with Gregory Peck and Anthony Quinn.

Sincerely,
Richard Kahn
(Columbia Pictures)

Just Like Politics

New Haven, April 14.

Recent UPI dispatch on a gag review of "Cleopatra," panning the pic brutally, which appeared in Harvard's humor publication Lampoon, was read in a prime time WELI newscast.

So many listeners, thinking the review was genuine commented to Franklin Ferguson, manager of Whalley Theatre where film had just extended to its 20th week, that he wangled from the station "equal time" on same period next day to explain gag nature of the dispatch and give a fast rundown of the picture's success.

Crafts' Opinions

Continued from page 3

never eliminate foreign subsidies," he said. "The only way we are going to compete is by having our own subsidy. We should have had it three years ago. But better now than never."

"I've been arguing for it for five years," asserted Cartoonists IATSE Local 839 rep Larry Kilty "I started when subsidies were a dirty word. It is ironic to see the producers come to the conclusion that subsidies are the answer. I would call it rather late foresight."

Electrical Workers IATSE Local 40 rep Vince Murphy declared, "a subsidy of any kind would be welcomed. It would help spur production of pictures here rather than out of the country."

One of those expressing a "qualifiedly enthusiastic" view was Walter Mirisch, who felt plan would be fine as long as the government didn't get involved. "I'm always leery of government interference and the possibility of hamstringing the production of pictures." He feels, however, chances are the proposed subsidy would turn out a "major stimulation to production."

Among those who declined to get too strongly on record until precise dimensions of the subsidy plan are made known were Costumers IATSE Local 705 rep Bill Howard and producer William Perlberg. Both averred that from what they knew of the proposed plan that it was okay, but reserved additional comment to a time when they knew more about it.

Howard also stated that he would like stipulation included which would insist subsidies be extended to only those pix made in the Hollywood area," but in an afterthought commented, "But as a member of IATSE I suppose I shouldn't say that."

Director Mark Robson cited success of Britain's Eady Plan as indicative of help a subsidy of this type could tender the U. S. film industry," . . . so we can live to make another film, another day."

Director Jean Negulesco also cited the Eady Plan as an example of what might be realized here.

"Banks there [England] have become more willing to take chances with young talent. They don't have to extend so much capital, they don't have to take so many chances."

He opined that this method of "guaranteed financing" might make the industry less dependent on stars, observing there might be more of a willingness to go along with "a good story and the right actor" instead of looking always to above-the-title bait.

Plan was outlined last Wednesday at a meeting of studio execs, labor and talent reps, at the offices of the AMPTP. Proposal had previously been taken up with toppers of exhib organizations, Theatre Owners of America and the Allied States Association of Motion Picture Exhibitors, for without their willingness to cooperate the plan couldn't get off the ground.

Theatre Owners of America is stalling on any reaction to the proposed "American Eady" propósal to subsidize U.S. features through a surtax on tickets. Unlike the British scheme, which is official, this one would be in-trade. An important date is May 5 when TOA will stage a meeting of minds in Manhattan, after which a position may be adopted. Exhibitor cooperation is, naturally, of the essence.

Amusement Stock Quotations

Week Ended Tues. (14)

N. Y. Stock Exchange

1964 High	1964 Low		*Weekly Vol. in 100s	Weekly High	Weekly Low	Tues. Close	Net Change for wk.
15¼	13	ABC Vending	723	16⅞	14¾	16⅝	+1½
40⅛	28½	Am Br-Par Th	388	37¾	35¾	35¾	—1½
18⅛	14⅝	Ampex	708	17¾	16¾	17¼	+ ⅛
46⅜	36½	CBS	831	46⅞	44¼	46⅝	+2⅜
18½	12⅜	Chris Craft	580	18½	17¼	17⅝	+ ⅜
24⅝	21⅛	Col Pix	131	23⅛	21½	22¼	+ ⅜
46¼	45⅛	Decca	3	46	45¾	45¾	— ¼
46¼	38⅜	Disney	560	49½	44	48¼	+2¾
131¾	114⅝	Eastman Kdk.	240	128	126	127⅜	+1⅜
6⅞	5⅜	EMI	1136	7¼	6¾	6⅞	+ ⅝
28¼	21⅜	General Tire	689	27½	25½	25⅝	—1⅞
14⅝	12⅝	Glen Alden	219	14⅛	13⅝	14	+ ⅜
79⅝	64	Litton Ind.	887	72⅞	69¼	70½	..
24¾	17½	Loew's Th.	116	22⅞	21⅝	22¼	— ⅛
60⅝	52¾	MCA Inc.	24	55½	54⅜	55	+ ⅝
34⅛	27½	Metromedia	139	33¾	32¼	33½	+ ¼
34	28¾	MGM	387	35½	33	34¼	+1⅛
10⅛	8¾	Nat G'l Corp.	172	9⅛	8¾	8¾	— ¼
22⅞	20⅛	Outlet	930	21⅜	21	21⅜	+ ⅜
62⅝	54⅛	Paramount	146	61½	59⅜	60	—1
183½	145¼	Polaroid	595	172½	160⅝	165¾	+5⅛
39¼	33¼	RCA	3108	36⅜	35⅛	35⅜	—1⅛
9	7¾	Republic	141	9⅛	8¼	8¾	+ ⅜
15½	14⅞	Rep., pfd.	11	15¼	15	15⅛	+ ⅛
29½	24½	Stanley War.	106	29⅛	28¼	28½	— ⅜
44½	38	Storer	73	43½	42¼	43½	+1¾
29¾	22⅝	Taft Bdcst.	58	29¾	27½	27½	—1⅞
27¼	21⅝	20th-Fox	166	24	22⅝	23	— ⅛
28⅝	18½	United Artists	514	29	26½	27¼	+ ⅛
14⅞	11¾	Warner Bros.	1446	15¼	12⅞	14⅝	+1⅞
87⅛	73⅛	Zenith	437	84⅛	82	82	—1⅛

American Stock Exchange

3	2¼	Allied Artists	36	2½	2¼	2½	+ ⅛
12¼	9⅜	BalM'nt GAC	37	10⅞	10⅜	10¾	+ ⅜
8	6¾	Cam-Parkway	26	7	6⅜	6⅜	— ⅝
27⅜	20	Cap. Cit. Bdc.	91	26⅞	25⅝	26½	+ ⅝
13½	10	Cinerama Inc.	689	11¼	10⅛	10½	— ¾
8	6⅝	Desilu Prods.	45	7⅝	7¼	7¼	— ⅜
9⅛	7½	Filmways	14	8½	8	8⅜	..
11¾	9⅛	Movie Lab.	7	9¾	9⅜	9⅜	— ⅛
12¾	9¾	MPO Vid.	39	10⅜	9⅞	10⅜	..
3	2⅝	Reeves Bdcst.	15	3	2⅞	2⅞	..
4½	2⅜	Reeves Ind.	479	4¼	3⅞	4⅜	+ ¼
17	14¼	Rollins Bdcst.	37	17	16⅛	16½	— ⅜
23	18½	Screen Gems	9	20¼	19	20¼	+1⅛
20¾	17⅝	Technicolor	373	19⅛	17⅝	17¾	+ ⅛
7¼	4¾	Teleprm'ter	72	6⅞	6½	6½	— ¼
1	11/16	Tele-Indus.	31	¾	¾	11/16	—1/16
14½	10½	Trans-Lux	5	13¼	12¾	12¾	— ½

* Week Ended Mon. (13).
† Actual Volume.
‡ Ex-dividend.

(Courtesy of Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith, Inc.)

Over-the-Counter Securities

	Bid	Ask
Commonwealth Theatres of Puerto Rico	5⅛	5⅞	— ¼
Four Star Television	4¼	5¼	— ¼
Gen. Aniline & Film	325	347	+5
General Artists Corp.	7	7½	— ⅛
General Drive-in	10⅝	11⅜	— ⅛
Magna Pictures	1⅞	2¼	— ⅛
Medallion Pictures	16	17¼	..
Pickwick International	4⅝	5¼	+ ⅜
Premier Albums	6	6⅞	—1⅜
Rust Craft Greeting Cards	13½	14⅝	— ¼
Seven Arts Productions	13¼	14⅜	+2⅛
Transcontinent Television	21⅜	23	+ ⅜
U.A. Theatres	8½	9¾	..
Universal Pictures	66	70	..
Walter Reade-Sterling Inc.	2⅜	2¾	..
Wometco Enterprises	34	36⅜	— ½
Wrather Corp.	3½	4⅛	..

(Source: National Assn. of Securities Dealers Inc.)

Art & The Argentinos

Continued from page 7

rector . . . Another top Argentine director, Fernando Ayala, held a special screening for fest delegates of his latest pic, "Primero Yo" (Me First), which will rep Argentina at Cannes next month. Title song looks to have Stateside disk possibilities . . . Among the local U.S. Embassy people on hand at the various fest functions was information officer Nicholas Ruggieri, no fest neophyte having been broken in at Venice during his tour of duty in Italy.

At his reception for the foreign delegations Friday (10), the Russian ambassador served no caviar, but there was lots of Coke on hand, poured from those large, family-sized bottles . . . One of the few North American distributors to attend the fest was Guy Labrecque, veep of Cineart Films of Montreal. In the course of his visit, he picked up Canadian theatrical and tv rights to two local productions "Primero Yo" and "Los Evitados," which just goes to show that bringing distribs into this festival can be good business.

About half way through the fest, one ailing member of the Yank delegation, seeking advice from one of the pretty young Argentine interpreters, asked: "Tell me, Adrianna, have you ever had hives?" Adrianna, cheerfully: "Oh, no! What do they taste like?" After 10 days, everybody had had their fill of hors d'oeurves . . Yank delegation gifted their chief interpreter, Jean Gonzalez, an island of sanity and humor in what often appeared to be a sea of confusion, with an alligator handbag.

Catherine Deneuve, Jacques Demy and Michel Legrand, the star, director and composer, respectively, of the French "Parapluies de Cherbourg," which closed the fest at an out-of-camp screening Saturday night, stopped off for a Rio visit en route home . . . Also off to Brazil was the MPEA's veep Bob Corkery, to size up Yank film situation, post revolution.

MURRAY "THE K" (OF RADIO STATION WINS)

IS

IT'S WHAT'S HAPPENED BABY!

KING!

YOUR IN-PERSON EASTER SHOW FOR THE BROOKLYN FOX PULLED

50% GREATER THAN LAST YEAR!

YOU EVEN CLOBBERED THE N.Y. PARAMOUNT'S FIRST STAGE-SHOW IN YEARS!..."K" REALLY STANDS FOR KOLOSSAL!

Edward L. Fabian

VICE-PRESIDENT FABIAN THEATRES CORP.

Importers Decline to Share Exhibs' Peeve at School-Church 16m Films

Independent Film Importers & Distributors of America has issued a statement via its exec director Michael F. Mayer rejecting the contentions made with growing force lately by exhibitors and exhib organizations to the effect that the licensing of 16m films for showing to colleges and religious organizations is harmful and constitutes, in many cases, unfair competition.

Mayer starts out by saying that IFIDA is not unsympathetic with the problems of exhibition since theatremen are "valued customers." Also, he notes, some IFIDA members themselves have theatre holdings, thus sharing the problems of exhibition. "We are obligated, however, to reject the contention that 16m showings of any and all films should be barred," he states.

It is IFIDA's position that foreign films generally cater to a different type of audience than U.S. features and that their release in 16m "long after initial release" is not truly competitive. Also, the organization claims that there are many situations where 16m revenues exceed those of 35m and that this should be considered by exhibition because it is essential to the theatre business that distribution exists in a healthy and profitable state.

The IFIDA statement says the organization "resents" the actions of exhibs who, "while they never play a foreign film themselves, nonetheless violently object to any school, church or fraternal organization having the privilege of playing our product" in 16m. "These exhibitors might well play some foreign films before complaining so bitterly." The organization also asserts that "selective" 16m showings in educational and religious institutions often develop interest in pictures and that future theatre patrons may come from this source.

IFIDA suggests that exhibition concentrate on others and leave them alone. "Exhibitors should better turn their attention to such matters as the current showing of American films on television in direct competition with them, rather than shouting abuse at the alleged 16m menace." Of course, one of exhibition's biggest battles in recent years has been in this very area — the showing of recent-vintage pix on tv.

In closing, IFIDA states: "We do not intend to relinquish the distribution of our films on 16m. We are, however, agreeable to responsible clearance between theatrical and non-theatrical showings and for our reasonable friends in exhibition that should prove quite sufficient." There is no mention made of what such a "reasonable" clearance would be, however.

Doing Their Fighting?

Jean Goldwurm asserts that Times Films will continue to fight film censorship.

"We have fought more censorship fights than all the major companies put together. Luckily for the entire industry most of them have been successful."

'Hallelujah Train', But It's Oater

Hollywood, April 14.

Producer-director John Sturges has been handed a $4,500,000 budget on "Hallelujah Train," comedy western he will rein for the Mirisches, as United Artist release. Film launches July 6 with Burt Lancaster set to fill one of pic's six star slots.

Budget is one of the highest price tags ever put on an oater, though considerably shy of such recent mammoths as Metro's "How the West Was Won" and Warner Bros.' "Cheyenne Autumn." Shrugs Sturges, "That's what it costs to make a top action film these days." Pic has a 76 day shooting sked with lensing sites now being scouted in a variety of areas including some in New Mexico, Colorado and Utah.

In addition to star roles, there will be some 20 feature parts in film. Sturges sees an average day's location call at about 200, including both extras and featured players. Director calls it "a big, complicated picture," citing "trains, indians and horses" among complicating physical considerations. He estimates that budget breaks down to roughly 50% for above the line (cast, script, etc.) and 50% for below the line costs.

Director is not nervous about lining up needed stars by blast off date, feeling that there will be no problem in inking most of the "first choice" thesps. He notes, however, that Shirley MacLaine was sought as female lead in pic but was unable to accept assignment because of another commitment.

Comerford Chain (Coyne) Leases 1,000-Seater At Gateway Shops Center

Scranton, April 14.

Ground has been broken for the first new conventional theatre to be constructed in the economically-distressed Northeastern Pensylvania area in the last decade.

The playhouse, the 1,000-seat Gateway Cinema, also will be the first in this area to be constructed at a shopping centre in Edwardsville, a village between this city and Wilkes-Barre.

Leasing the one-story structure is Comerford Theatres Inc., which expects to have the house in operation by fall. It is being built by Henry Fein and Edward Eyerman Jr., co-owners of the shopping centre.

Comerford, which operates some 45 theatres in Northeastern Pennsylvania and Southern New York State, has meanwhile named one of its vicepresidents, R. Willard Matthews, to succeed William Yurasko as head film buyer. Matthews, formerly head of advertising and publicity, took over the new duties April 1 after Yurasko resigned to take another job.

Now handling the ad-pub job is Edward McGovern.

Comerford chain changed hands last fall in a multimillion dollar transaction which marked the exit of the Comerford family from the business founded by the late Michael E. Comerford. Attorney Thomas Friday, son-in-law of the exhibition pioneer, disposed of his interests.

Stock of the companies linked as Comerford Enterprises was acquired by John E. Coyne Jr., now the firm's president. His father, John E. Coyne Sr., is executive v.p. and g.m

U.S. 'Eady Plan'

Continued from page 3

years ago in an interview declared himself in favor of a Government subsidy for the American picture industry. He was present at last week's meeting here as was Ralph Hertzel, acting prexy of the Motion Picture Assn. of America, who assumed his new position after the death last August of Eric Johnston.

As part of the subsidy plan, and a feature which would make it attractive to exhibitors, is a condition that no picture made for theatres would become available to pay-tv, when and if it becomes a commercial factor, until at least one year after the theatrical run.

The industry's refusal to forego production subsidies offered by foreign countries, and which created to a large extent the so-called "runaway" problems for Hollywood workers, led recently to the break-up of the joint labor-management committee which had been trying for a couple of years to resolve this situation.

Invites to several top union representatives to yesterday's meeting at the AMPTP offices was viewed as a step toward healing the breach. Among those at sessions were John Lehners, Film Editors Local 776, H. O'Neil Shanks, Screen Extras Guild, Joseph Youngerman, Directors Guild of America, Kenneth Thompson, Screen Actors Guild and Charles Boren, exec veepee, and Alfred P. Chamie, secretary-treasurer, of the producers organization.

GEORGIA UNEMPLOYMENT

But In General State Does Well As To Jobs

Atlanta, April 14.

More than 67,000 Georgians were unemployed in February, the first official estimate of total statewide unemployment ever revealed.

This was the lowest February jobless level in at least five years, per Georgia Dept. of Labor.

On top of that, Georgia's nonfarm employment in February registered its strongest year-to-year gain in 13 months.

Department reported 1,145,800 Georgians held nonfarm jobs in that month, 41,800 more than ever before in February and 6,900 more than in January.

Nationally, unemployment edged slightly lower in February, but remained at a much higher rate than in Georgia. The U.S. idle rate was 6.2% in February, 6.4% in January and 6.9% a year ago.

Metropolitan Atlanta employment totalled 478,350 in February, up 1,800 from a year ago. Unemployment in the five-county area totalled 15,500 or 3.1 per cent in February, down 150 from January, but up 100 from a year ago.

Roadshowing In Wake of Switch On 'Cleopatra'

Denver, April 14.

The opening of "Cleopatra" in a pop price run almost immediately (about 17 days) following its 39-week top hard ticket showing at $3 has left a bad taste in the mouths of some patrons and exhibitors.

The fact that the spec didn't do too well during its road show run and is apparently faring well at the lower tab tends to accentuate the argument that if the public is going to be tapped for road show prices, the identical merchandise shouldn't be offered a few days later as regular film fare. Of course the pop run is 33mm instead of 70 and its a grind showing instead of reserved seat operation.

With both Sam Bronston's "Fall of the Roman Empire," and Hal Wallis' "Becket" from Paramount opening here this month at road show prices with the inference that if one wishes to see the films anywhere near soon he must pay the deluxe scale, what effect will the "Cleo" opening at pop prices on the heels of its road show engagement, have on them? Such is the speculation in film trade circles here.

East Coast Council

Continued from page 3

organization. Also elected were Jim Gartland, business agent of studio mechanics Local 52 as v.p. and Tommy O'Donnell, of Theatrical Teamsters Local 817 as secretary-treasurer.

Additionally, new unit will seek to avoid work stoppages and strikes through collective cooperation and action.

Participating in the Council are: cameramen Local 644, assistant directors of the Directors Guild of America, Screen Actors Guild, projectionists Local 306, mechanics Local 52, Washington, D.C. mechanics local 22, makeup artists Local 798, wardrobe Local 764, scenic artists Local 829 of the Painters, Paperhangers and Designers International Brotherhood, script supervisors Local 161, Theatrical Teamsters Local 817 and editors Local 771. Although the editors exec board hasn't yet ratified the plan, it is expected that it will doso shortly.

The organization will meet next Monday (20) and bi-weekly thereafter to establish a more concrete plan of action. This move by eastern labor is the first time in Atlantic coast pix history that this diverse group of unions have gotten together in harmony to discuss their mutual problems. Formation of the organization is seen as a recognition by labor of the potential of eastern filmmaking and it is hoped that some constructive developments on the eastern labor scene will be forthcoming.

Film's Tariff-Softening Goal

U.S. Dept. of Agriculture's 70m film, "Bounty Without Boundaries," produced by the Fred A. Niles Communications Centers, was screened yesterday (Tues.) at 20th-Fox Theatre for William Morris Agency ad and marketing execs. One of first Government films aimed specifically at softening tariff stands by other countries, Morris men feel techniques used in film may have applications for future films to be made for other purposes.

Group were also shown Niles' 35m Technicolor, Cinemascope pic made for Greyhound's N.Y. World's Fair exhibit.

New York Soundtrack

Continued from page 15

Surf" is henceforth professionally Anthony Hayes. (Film historians take note.)

John W. (Jack) Finn, Universal salesman in Boston since 1958, promoted to Denver branch manager effective immediately. He replaces Murray Gerson . . . Steve Lawrence of "What Makes Sammy Run?" gets N.Y. Cinema Lodge of B'nai B'rith's "outstanding new performer on Broadway" plaque at a Hotel Astor luncheon on April 16.

Cinema Distributors of America western div sales manager Pat McGee to Frisco, Seattle and Portland for multi-openings of CDA's "Common Law Wife". . . Cocoanut Grove, night spot in L.A.'s Ambassador Hotel, got a citation from L.A. City Council Friday (3) commemorating its 37th anni which makes it oldest continuing supper-club-restaurant in U.S. according to new general manager Fred Hayman.

Macy-loves-Gimbels arrangement has been inaugurated by The Goodman Organization, L.A. ad agency, and the Jerry Rose Organization, Hollywood pub relations firm. They'll service each other's clients "as the occasion demands," while remaining individual companies . . ."The Flesh Eaters," CDA release, into 60-house multi run in Chicago with May 22 opening.

Industry Film Producers Assn. has picked Disneyland Hotel, Anaheim, as site of its 1964 national conference. General Joseph J. Cody Jr., Vice Commander, Air Force Space Systems Div., will address the June 4-6 conference. Other speakers include title art expert Saul Bass and Mt. Everest expedition leader Norman Dyhrenfurth.

Diko Dimitroff has formed Diko Productions in Athens to produce "The Loves of the Greek Gods," beginning in January with interiors in Greece and Spain and exteriors in Greece. Planned pic had been offered to Spyros Skouras and Samuel Bronston but neither was interested . . . 20th-Fox is releasing "South Pacific" in 21 new domestic engagements this week . . . Metro can't stop crowing about the success of "How the West Was Won" in its 35m release. So far it has set 13 U.S. house records and is reportedly topping "Ben-Hur," the company's all-time champ, in engagements both in the U.S. and abroad.

Universal's "Brass Bottle" magic carpet, brought into Gotham for two days advance promotion got rained out on some events but managed to make CBS and ABC news shows . . . Jerry Silverstein, WNDT "Places in the News" producer-host, has recorded English narration for USIA's "Crossroaders in Africa." Gordon Hitchens directed the half-hour color documentary. Latter's Film Comment, observing its first anni with establishment of Anniversary Awards, five grants to aid filmmakers with specified projects . . . Vivien Leigh signed for role of Mary Treadwell in Stanley Kramer's "Ship of Fools." Columbia release starts shooting June 22 in Hollywood . . . Charlie Cooper, London clerk who won $630,000 in a soccer pool, turned down role in William Wyler's "The Collector."

British actor Trevor Howard has acquired film rights to a novel "Kilo Forty" in the mystery and suspense category. He will put it before the cameras in Egypt, starring himself. The book has already been published in England and French, Dutch and German publications are in prospect. It will be published in U.S. by Holt, Rinehart and Winston in May. The author is Miles Tripp.

Italian film player Marcello Mastroianni reportedly wants to buy the rights of Arthur Miller's "After the Fall" for Italian staging by Franco Zeffirelli, possibly with Vittorio Gassmann in the lead. The play has been scheduled for next season in Germany, Switzerland, Austria, Holland, Israel, Belgium, Denmark, Norway, Finland and Ireland.

Suellen Hutner, of Screen Gems, who is the daughter of United Artists' N.Y. Publicity manager Mike Hutner, has become engaged to Bob Gelman, a Pittsburgh non-pro.

Irving Sochin, general sales manager of Times Films, now is a vice president of the company.

Keenan Wynn signed for AIP's "Bikini Beach". . . MPAA supplementing "World of Henry Orient" promotion locally with a pluggy mailer . . . Syra, nitery dancer, signed for part in Albert Zugsmith-Artur Brauner's German-filmed "Fanny Hill."

"Father Goose," now before Universal's color cameras, gives studio three current shooters . . . Columbia's tie-in with Coppertone on Robert Cohn's "New Interns" will use pic's Michael Callan and Barbara Eden in ad campaign encompassing five magazines, 100 newspapers and 2,000 radio spots . . . Photo-Cine-Optics v.p.-general manager Dom Capano attending Society of Engineers convention in L.A. . . . Western office manager Irv Turvey also taking in meet . . . Paul Henreid heads for Ireland today (Wed.) to direct Alsa Prod.'s "Light Out of Darkness" at Ardmore Studios, near Dublin. Miguel Salkind production has 10-week shooting sked starting May 23.

George Weltner, Paramount exec v.p., spending the week vacationing in Florida . . . City College of New York (CCNY) planning to discontinue its Film Institute next year after 23 years of operation, a decision which is causing debate among students and alumni.

Producer Sam Katzman, director Gene Nelson, musical director Fred Karger and MGM recording supervisor Frank Milton all in Nashville, Tenn., taping music for Metro's forthcoming Hank Williams biopic "Your Cheatin' Heart" . . . Western Publishing is distributing a cartoon book version of Samuel Bronston's "Fall of the Roman Empire."

Leonard Lightstone, Embassy exec v.p., getting ready for his annual Cannes Film Fest trek . . . producer Lawrence Weingarten back on the Coast after conferring in Gotham with Metro execs on home stretch plans for the "Molly Brown" opening . . . Joe Levine and Paramount's "Zulu" is slaying 'em in London, grossing $278,436 during its first week in 29 ABC theatres . . . Glenn Ford back from a three-week exploitation tour in Hawaii for Metro's "Advance To the Rear," prepping for the company's "The Rounders" which rolls in May.

William Bernstein appointed exec assistant to Herbert T. Schottenfeld, UA legal veep . . . Anthony Perkins winding a special Brazilian "goodwill mission" sponsored by the U.S. State Department . . . Lawrence Turman back on the Coast following the Gotham opening of "Best Man" which he produced with Stuart Millar . . . Metro's "Viva Las Vegas" spotlighted in the May issue of Seventeen mag . . . Lee Tracy in New York on a holiday . . . Ann Sothern, also a "Best Man" player, in town too.

Robert H. O'Brien, Metro prez, and company execs Maurice J. Silverstein, Robert M. Weitman, Benjamin Melniker and Frank Rosenfelt back from a joint London studio visit . . . Bob Hope set to topline in "I'll Take Sweden," for which Tuesday Weld is being dickered as a possible costar, due to roll for United Artists in July with locations in Sweden and interiors in Hollywood. Edward Small is producer-director and Nat Perrin scripted . . . the reissue of "Beat the Devil" continues to pile up hefty biz in openings around the country, most recently compiling a record first five days at the Cinema Theatre, L.A., with a $4,895 gross in the 250-seater.

Connecticut Allied Shakes Self Alert

New Haven, April 14.

After several years inactivity, Connecticut theatre owners reorganized and reactivated Allied Theatres of Connecticut at a meeting here last week. The 31 Connecticut houses became members of both Allied Theatres of Connecticut and National Allied.

Robert C. Spodick, who with Leonard E. Sampson and Norman Bialek, operates the Nutmeg Theatre Circuit, was elected interim president and a National Allied director. ATC h.q. will be located here. Election of directors and other officers deferred until organizational meeting to be held in near future.

Repping National Allied at meet were President Jack Armstrong, exec director Milton H. London, exec committee member Wilbur Snaper and NA director Irving Dollinger.

PARIS & N.Y. OPENINGS FOR 'THE COOL WORLD'

World preem for Shirley Clarke's "The Cool World" will be today (Wed.) at the Pagode Theatre in Paris. Pic, which was shot entirely in Harlem, is concerned with the world of a 15-year-old growing up there and presents two non-pro teenagers, Hampton Clanton and Yolanda Rodriguez.

Fred Wiseman production, which was shown at last year's Venice Film Fest, will have its N.Y. opening on April 20 at Cinema II, following the run of current tenant "Tom Jones."

'Common Law Wife' Dates

Los Angeles, April 14.

"Common Law Wife," Cinema Distributors of America release, grossed $223,900 in first week of multi-date first run in the Greater L.A. area, according to M. Ripps, CDA president. Pic, booked into 32 drive-in and hardtop situations, is being held over for second week in most situations.

Western division sales manager Pat McGee has secured multiple-situations openings for "Wife" in the Frisco, Seattle and Portland areas.

Hear . Hollywood Commentator

DICK STROUT

ON Over 800 STATIONS IN AMERICA

New York's largest specialists in motion picture & TV insurance

(cast, film, weather, liability, cameras, props, plagiarism...)

WINKLER ASSOCIATES, LTD.
120 W. 57 St., New York 19, Circle 7-3366

JAKE TRUSSELL'S AFTER HOURS POETRY:

Written from a background of experiences as a combination amusements columnist, jazz disc jockey, sportswriter, radio commentator-sportscaster, managing editor, band leader, and Associated Press correspondent. Nothing else in the world like it. For your copy send $1.00 to Jake Trussell, P. O. Box 951, Kingsville, Texas.

New York Theatres

RADIO CITY MUSIC HALL
Rockefeller Center • PL 7-3100
PETER SELLERS
Paula PRENTISS • Angela LANSBURY
in "THE WORLD OF HENRY ORIENT"
A Pan Arts Company Picture from United Artists in Color
ON GREAT STAGE "Glory of Easter" "ALICE IN EASTERLAND" Last 5 Days

'Jones' Ties Winnipeg Top, 'Glenn Miller Story', '54 See 6-8 Weeks Certain

Winnipeg, April 14.

"Tom Jones" (United Artists-Lopert) tied a house record in its first week at the 1,088-seat Odeon. Gross was $17,100, same as that of Universal's 1954 production, "The Glenn Miller Story."

The third playing day, a Saturday, set a new daily record, with gross at $3,177, breaking previous record, also held by "The Glen Miller Story." Heavy business that day, had some 800 to 1,000 patrons turned away.

Odeon, operated by Odeon-Morton Theatres Ltd., local partner with Rank's Canadian subsidiary, with its sock business, helped make the week the biggest, by 20%, in Odeon-Morton's history. The locally-based chain operates four theatres here, and one in Saskatoon, Saskatchewan.

Odeon executive, Paul G. Morton, estimated that "Tom Jones" would gross close to $15,000 in its second week, and was banking on the Academy Awards to help maintain pace. He thought the picture would run six to eight weeks at the Odeon, and then possibly have a further run at the Kings, the chain's suburban first run house.

Not one of the half dozen Canadian situations in which the picture is booked has completed its run. In fact the Toronto playdate recently broke a daily record on its fifth Saturday. Run here is so strong that Odeon executives describe it as "incredible," with some of the longest lineups of ticket buyers in local hardtop history prompted, even on weekdays.

"Tom Jones" continues to show boxoffice spunk with a $201,469 showing in its first five days of a 15-theatre multiple break in New York. While the United Artists pic was compiling this strong performance, it also racked up $30,039 in its 27th week at Cinema I and eighth week in Cinema II.

'Premiere' & 'Perimeter,' Both for U's 'Newman'

First 12 days of "Premiere Showcase" and "Perimeter" dates for Universal's "Captain Newman" in the greater N.Y. area rolled up $737,800.

Pic drew $248,269 in first five days of second week in 24 "Premiere Showcase" situations, after drawing $287,521 in the first week (with two less theatres). "Perimeter" theatres (nine on first week, 25 on second) recorded $66,082 for first, $135,928 for first five days of second.

"Newman" is booked for four-week dates in "Premiere" houses, with current receipts comparing favorably with same company's "Charade" which did three weeks on "Premiere."

NAMED FOR PHARMACIST

Branche, 1,000 Seats, Due To Operate April 30

Albany, April 14.

The 1,000-seat theatre under construction since last August in Latham — several miles from Albany and from Troy—will be called The Branche, Scheduled to open "about April 30," it would like to have the opportunity of playing first-run and second-run product.

So John G. Wilhelm, buyer-booker for Altros Development Corp. the theatre owner, notified Albany Film Row. House has 35 mm. Simplex equipment.

James H. Branche, who operates a pharmacy on the Watervliet-Shaker Road, about two miles west of the theatre, has been active in promoting the theatre's construction. Location is 1500 feet west of the intersection of Routes 9 and 155—where a shopping center is operated.

Prospectors' Films Due

Milwaukee, April 14.

With ultimate goal of filming documentaries on mining and oil development, exploration and processing, the Anthony F. Lucas Museum Institute Inc. filed articles of incorporation in Madison.

New group, which named itself after Yugoslav mining engineer Lucas, also intends to collect, preserve and exhibit items related to mining and oil industries.

LATEST ON DECENCY

'B' For 'Bondage' And 'C' For 'Wayward Love'

Metro's "Of Human Bondage" has been given a Class B rating by the National Legion of Decency with the U.S. Roman Catholic group's objection that "this film tends to compensate for its weakness in credible character motivation by exaggerating the sensational aspects of its story development."

Pathe's Italian import, "Of Wayward Love" received the Class C (Condemned) label with the objection that it was "an amoral trilogy, whose subject matter includes marital infidelity, seduction and illicit sex, in its treatment is grossly suggestive and pornographic."

Universal's "Bullet for a Badman" was rated Class A (II)—morally unobjectionable for adults and adolescents.

PLAN-THE-PUSH PANEL FOR 'DR. STRANGELOVE'

Final meeting in an intensive series of merchandising planning sessions was held last week (7) at Columbia Pictures h.o. for 38 exhibitors repping "showcase" theatres in metropolitan area playing Stanley Kubrick's "Dr. Strangelove." Confab outlined full range of promotional ammunition currently available of "Strangelove."

Robert S. Ferguson, ad-pub veep, reminded group that, despite tremendous business film is doing, it still needed personal touch of each exhibitor. "No film is a guaranteed absolute success in all situations," he told them, and an intensive local campaign should not be overlooked even with exceptional past performances.

Three Columbia field men have been assigned exclusively to "Dr. Strangelove" showcase engagements in the N.Y. area. One will work with colleges and universities in the area.

Tie-ins have already been made with 26 Barracini candy stores (second Columbia pact with sweets company in four months) and second printing of Bantam's paperback goes into distribution this week. Record stores are pushing three Colpix recordings of music from pic, including an album.

Exhibitors at meetings were Ted Arnow, David Weitzner, Robert Diem, Klenert, Loew's Theatres; Murray Alper, Erwin Gold, Sidney Friedman, Randforce; Harry Padva, Stuart Kolbert, Interboro; Al Shapiro, Sam Greenberg, Robert Honahan, I. Rosen, Ivan Eggleston, Associated Independent Theatres; Emanual Adams, Nick Patrick, Adams Theatre, Newark; Merl Burdett, Menlo Park Cinema; Gus Birnbaum, James Alliegro, Scarsdale Plaza; Albert Lowey, Ben Gladstone, Ruth Waskawic, Town and Country; Martin H. Newman, Harold H. Newman, Charles W. Call, Sylvan Schein, Hy Landerer, Jim Murray, Arthur Felton, B. Hansen, J. R. Weinstein J. Jackson, I. Sherlip, B. Tauritz, Ray Marshall, B. Seifried, L. Letter, Century Circuit.

Columbia reps were Ira Tulipan, aide to Robert S. Ferguson, Richard Kahn, national ad-pub coordinator, Bud Rosenthal, pub manager.

Knoxville Production Studio Contracting Up

Knoxville, April 14.

Bids for construction of a $175,000 sound motion picture and tv studio are being processed by the Knoxville purchasing department. The studio will be located on city property in a suburban western area.

The new studio will be augmented by the Chilhowee Park Administration Building, which has served as a site for two previous productions. Susskind's "All the Way Home," and Landau's "The Fool Killer." Mayor John Duncan said the new studio will be of the most modern design and will be available early in June at nominal rental.

Construction of the facility is part of the Knoxville program to attract major motion picture and tv producers to use the East Tennessee area for future film productions.

Pix Biz Better, Berger to Contrary, North Central Allied Only a Bit Like Its Former Waspish Self

By LES REES

Minneapolis, April 14.

Bearing in mind the previous regime of North Central Allied and its tendency to use verbal bullwhips upon the hides of the film distributors, their terms, their attitudes, their manners, their alleged heartlessness to small town exhibitors, the latest convention of the regional unit was remarkable for not whipping the old villains. Only a minimal amount of time and energy was devoted this spring to the classic foe.

The substitute heavy was tollvision, as testing in Hartford, Connecticut, and Toronto, Ontario, and as pending in California and elsewhere. In this respect the theatremen of North Central's zone (Minnesota, both Dakotas, western Wisconsin) see nothing but threat to the boxoffice of their operations if a boxoffice charge is installed in the homes and apartments of American citizens.

Despite tollvision, and with advertising-supported television hardly mentioned any longer as a threat, the exhibitors tended to sound optimistic notes. Improved grosses were reported. That, of course, is the nub of the case for either glee or grievance with small community theatremen, as indeed showmen of any size.

Not only was the previous bombardment of the film companies missing. Contrarily, there was even some kind words expressed. Nothing gushy, mind you, but kind. Also general acknowledgment that product is averaging out better.

The fact was stressed that the biggest "evil" confronting exhibition's existence is "the big bad wolf" of pay-see, not trade practices or advertising's own video.

However two dissenters and one pessimist made themselves heard briefly. Bennie Berger, former NCA president and now board chairman, continued in his usual role of film company hater. He declared that by not selling films to the smaller exhibitors on an "ability to pay" basis distributors are putting the "little fellows" out of business right and left.

Berger lambasted the distribs for demanding percentage up to 60% and higher for the better boxoffice pictures in the smaller and lesser grossing situations. Later bidding for pictures, especially the no-see sort, came under the fire of Jack Armstrong, national Allied president, one of the speakers.

Undoubtedly at Berger's insistence, a resolution was presented hitting the film companies for what was called their present sales policy of charging the small independent exhibitors "exorbitant" film rentals and especially assailing percentage in such situations. Adopted unanimously, the resolution asserts that in consequence of this sales policy the public in many small communities is being deprived of the chance to see the top pictures.

The resolution calls upon the NCA parent body, national Allied, to condemn this sales policy strongly and to exert every effort to have it eliminated "so that all theatres will be able to buy top motion pictures at prices their boxoffice justifies and which will enable them to continue to live."

However, another resolution lauded NCA President Ray Vonderhaar, who was re-elected, because under his one-year leadership NCA has become a foremost national Allied unit, has increased its membership considerably and has done much to help the area's exhibs in many ways.

Opening the meeting, Vonderhaar called upon exhibitors to go all out in improving their showmanship and public relations and prophesied good times ahead.

Armstrong and Milton London, the latter national Allied executive director from Detroit while finding fault with competitive blind bidding for pictures and emphasizing how much of a threat toll could be, also pointed out that for the first time in a long while theatre business is very much on the upgrade and the future once more looks bright again.

The public is coming back to the theatres, asserted Armstrong who also said national Allied now has its most units, 15, and largest membership ever. He pointed out, too, the many new four-wall movie theatres being built once more.

Arnold Childhouse, California Crusade for a Free TV chairman, one of the speakers, appealed to those present for financial support in his state's current fight against Pay TV. A number of contribution pledges followed his talk.

Vonderhaar joined Armstrong and London in calling on all of this territory's exhibitors to leave no stones unturned in their efforts to knock out community antennas as well as toll.

Hollywood-at-Fair

Continued from page 5

forthcoming. It is well documented that Hollywood originally wasn't even to be represented at the Fair.

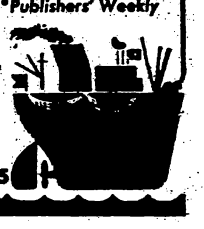
One feature of the Hollywood Pavilion which ties in with all of this is the fact that the various exhibits contained therein will be changed as the Fair runs, particularly between the first six months and second year. Thus some space will be in revolving availability so to speak for appropriate setups.

Some changes have already been made. A section of the "Seven Days In May" set has been added, bringing the total to seven pix and two tv shows repped. The original plan to have a section where the filming of a pix was to be simulated has been scrapped because of a space shortage. There is now the chance of an exhibit of "Molly Brown" costumes and props etc. which wasn't in the original plan. Also, the Pavilion has made a deal with Dino De Laurentiis to display articles from "The Bible" in a future exhibit and the Tara set from "Gone With the Wind," now in Atlanta, may be transported to the Pavilion and put on permanent display.

Exhibits for the opening will include "Cleopatra," "South Pacific," "West Side Story," "King & I," "Fall of the Roman Empire," "Molly," "Seven Days" and tv's "Dr. Kildare" and "Gunsmoke," plus the Cecil B. DeMille Museum. The Bounty, anchored at the Fair Marina, is also being plugged at the Pavilion, where the tariff is $1.25 for adults and 50c for kids over 12.

"Wacky hilarious journeys on board the fictional s.s. Flying Wind..."*

There You Are, But Where Are You?



A Novel by ROBERT F. MIRVISH

"MIRVISH IS WONDERFUL!"

at concocting funny episodes that get even funnier as they develop. He is a master of the running gag. Very entertaining. *Publishers' Weekly

"...Down to Earth Pleasure!" —Bert Lahr Star of "Foxy"

DUTTON $3.95

SPECIAL OFFER
TELEPHONE ANSWERING SERVICE
$2 PER WEEK
Mon. thru Fri.
JU 2-6730
minimum four weeks
ALFA TELEPHONE ANSWERING SERVICE

Film Reviews

Continued from page 6

Panic Button

comedy and winds up as a wild, slapstick farce which strains credulity. When it is catching glimpse of Rome and the canals of Venice, this manages to hold interest. But in between are sandwiched some banal comedy, stilted acting and absurd story development.

Yarn is concerned with a syndicate (Pagano Enterprises) which finds it must pay heavy income taxes unless it can lose $500,000 in a month's time. Idea has been used, in various forms, previously on the screen. But here it's manhandled on scripting and thespian efforts. Syndicate decides the production of a tele pilot film in Rome is the best and fastest way to drop that kind of coin.

Even the charm of Chevalier's singing two standards fails to save this tale as it is unfolded with one after another stilted performance, and indifferent direction. Plot has the dramatic pilot short winning the prize at the Venice Film Fest as the most original comedy shown at this show.

Chevalier, cast as a washed-up actor, does well enough when given half a chance. But in this production he is not the Chevalier of "Fanny," for instance. Statuesque Jayne Mansfield is the amateur thespian enlisted to co-star with Chevalier in the tele short. In her few love scenes with Michael Connors she does surprisingly well, and, of course, looks her usual self in a bikini.

The camera is flattering to neither Miss Mansfield nor Chevalier. Connors makes an okay production chief working on the tv pilot. Akim Tamiroff is an eccentric drama instructor, recruited as the pilot's director, but not up to his usual standard. Often rated one of medium's neglected talents Eleanor Parker walks through her role of Chevalier's ex-wife. Italo comic Carlo Croccolo makes something of a minor role.

George Sherman has directed much better pix, but perhaps he should not be faulted in view of the material given him. It looks as if several cameramen worked on this but none is listed nor is the film's editor. Where the title was dug up is anybody's guess. Wear.

Parliamo Di Donne
(Let's Talk About Women)
(ITALO-FRENCH)

Rome, April 7.

Cineriz release of Fairfilm (Marlo Cecchi Gori-Concordia Film (Paris) coproduction. Stars Vittorio Gassmann; features Sylva Koscina, Antonella Lualdi, Walter Chiari, Eleonora Rossi Drago, Giovanna Ralli, Jeanine Valerie. Directed by Ettore Scola. Screenplay, Scola and Ruggero Maccari; camera, Sandro D'Eva; editor, Marcello Malvestiti; music, Armando Trovajoli. At Metropolitan, Rome. Running time, 110 MINS.

Fairfilm producer Mario Cecchi Gori continues to ring the bell with slick, fast-paced comedies, and his latest is no exception. "Parliamo," apart from apt direction and writing, has Vittorio ("Easy Life") Gassmann for an additional b.o. boost. This should give it notable projection both in this country and abroad. Theme being the female of the species, and man's involvment therewith, thus also has fewer limitingly local aspects to brake foreign audience interest.

As patterned in Gassmann's previous "I Mostri," film is series of vignettes, all featuring Gassmann but in various roles. And all wind with O. Henry-styled blackouts. Some are lightweight, a few telegraph their solutions, but most are frankly outspoken in terms of language and situation, though never vulgar.

Most statements are risible throughout while the fadeout one is given an ironic dimension not known to protagonist. Variously involved with Gassmann are such attractive and able partners as Sylva Koscina, as the girl who waits too long to be seduced by him; Antonella Lualdi, who has a last fling with him before rushing off to get married to another man; Eleonora Rossi Drago, Giovanna Ralli and others.

The star here truly deserves his rank. Gassmann is on screen throughout, in various guises, and does an outstanding job in the several characterizations, obviously relishing every bit of it. The audience is with him all the time. Walter Chiari is also good in a segmentary role, while Umberto D'Orsi and others provide okay backdrop action.

Lensing by Sandro D'Eva is classy, and the settings also raise this notches above the usual routine Italo comedy. Ettore Scola's direction (his first feature pic chore after longtime writing stints) is spirited and fast-paced.

Added to the production's gloss is an apt musical backdrop by Armanda Trovajoli, replete with current hit tunes and one future one, the title song sung by Michele. Hawk.

Frenesia D'Estate
(Summer Frenzy)
(ITALO-FRENCH)

Rome, April 7.

Cineriz release of a Gesi-Cisa- Federiz-Les Films Agiman co-production. Features Vittorio Gassman, Philipe Leroy, Michele Mercier, Sandra Milo, Umberto D'Orsi, Graziella Granata, Gabriella Giorgielli, Amedeo Narrari, Leo Padovanni. Directed by Luigi Zampa. Screenplay, Age, Scarpelli, Benvenuti, DeBernardi, Mario Monicelli; camera, Marcello Gatti; editor, Eraldo da Roma; music, Gianni Ferrio. At Arlecchino, Rome. Running time, 110 MINS.

Lightweight comedy of summer doings at an Italian Riviera resort. This is uneven, alternating okay moments being thrust by tedious ones. Chances are offy, both in Italy and abroad, though names will help carry it here.

Several plot lines are intertwined, not always too clearly, in contributions by five scripters assembled for this item. Strangely, for a director of Luigi Zampa's stature, few of characters come off with any depth. The exception, and it's the episode which takes up the most footage, involves Michele Mercier and Vittorio Gassmann. He's an army officer, she's appearing in a visiting French transvestite show which he sees on a weekend furlough.

Though 100% woman, she can't convince him she's only subbing as a female impersonator for a defecting colleague. Gassmann is good, and Miss Mercier is easy on eyes, and the sequence brings forth the pic's main laughs. Others appear in minor capacity. Sandra Milo is wasted as a pastry vendor. Philipe Leroy, as a vocal operator, and others are relegated to minor appearances. In another good segment, Amedeo Nazzari almost steals picture as an elderly male model posing as a rich nobleman and trying hard to act athletically young in order to impress Gabriella Giorgielli, a local femme, and thus make his longtime mate, Lea Padovani, jealous.

Zampa's direction, as noted, is haphazard and obviously burdened by too many plot skeins. Technical credits good. Breezy musical track by Gianni Ferrio helps this. Hawk.

Amore in 4 Dimensioni
(Love in 4 Dimensions)
(ITALO-FRENCH)

Titanus release of an Adelphia Comp. Cinematografica (Rome)-France Cinema Productions (Paris) coproduction. Features Cylva Koscina, Franca Rame, Gastone Moschin, Franca Polesello, Carlo Bagno, Isa Crescenzi, Carlo Giuffre, Philipe LeRoy, Lena von Martens, Fabrizio Capucci, Michele Mercier, Alberto Lionello. Directed by Massimo Mida, Jacques Romain, Gianni Puccini, Mino Guerrini. Camera, Dario Di Palma, Carlo di Palma, Tonino delli Colli; editor, Franco Fraticelli; music, Franco Mannino. At Corso Cinema, Reme. Running time, 105 MINS.

Four-episoder in the currently popular comedy vein, with polish and piquant aspects to indicate a lively "fifth" dimension, namely b.o. prowess in most situations both here and in the foreign market. Format and exploitable aspects naturally assist in making film saleable.

First bit, "Love and the Alphabet" shows the primary urge overcoming lingual obstacles in tale of Sicilian country yokel being won over by old-maidenish northern gal. It's ably acted out by Franca Rame, as the woman, and by Carlo Giuffre, as the illiterate country boy.

Second segment is "Love and Life," in which Sylva Koscina sets up another woman to seduce her husband so she can be free for her own lover, only to have latter falling for the very gal she's hired to do the job. Sylva Koscina is the wife, Gastone Moschin the husband, and Franca Polsello, the saucy third element.

Number three is "Love and Art," perhaps the subtlest of quartet. Here, a noted but lazy scripter weekly closes an eye when an assistant scripter (whose contributions, he realizes, are very vital to his fading career) falls for his wife. Philipe Leroy is the writer, Lena Von Martens is a looker as his wife, and Fabrizio Capucci sketches a neat cameo as the assistant.

Fourth item outlines a new highscaled pickup gimmick devised by a call girl, Michele Mercier. She poses as a recent widow prone to fainting spells in the city cemetery, where well-to-do widowers pick her up, later to be conned via the usual racket. Miss Mercier performs ably and is most easy to look at, but it's Alberto Lionello who displays a fresh comic personality (and a startling resemblance — physical and artistic) to Peter Sellers. He should go places in local pix.

Direction by four different people is on even, pro level. They milk situation for whatever they are worth. All segments have slick patina and savvy pace and mountings, assisted by lensing by three cameramen and single musical scorer, Franco Mannino. The pic is skillfully put together technically. Hawk.

Tomorrow's Yesterday
(ISRAEL)

Tel Aviv, April 14.

Geva Films release of the Baruch Agadati Itzhak Agadati production. Written, directed and photographed by Baruch Agadati, edited by Nellie Bogor, commentary written by Gavriel Zifroni and Aharon Amir, narrated by Zalman Levyoush, Ya'acov Ben Hertzel and Rivka Michaeli. Music written, arranged and conducted by Noam Sherif. Black and white. Reviewed at the Yaron cinema, Tel Aviv. Running time, 90 MINS.
Members of young Collective settlement: Meir Teomi, Avraham Ne'eman, Rephael Klatchkin, Moshe Churgel.

Combining actual documentary material shot in Israel during the last 53 years and excerpts from his 1932 first Hebrew-speaking feature-film shot in the then-called Palestine, Baruch Agadati, dancer-painter-artist-film showman assembeled a variety of scenes, historic occasions and everyday scenes depicting the life of the Pioneers, grandparents and fathers of what became 16 years ago the State of Israel.

Being himself one of the youngsters sent by his parents in Tzarist Russia to study in the first Hebrew Highschool, Hertziya, in the then just founded city of Tel Aviv, back in 1909, Agadati proves in this semi-documentary feature, his love of the subject, his poetic skill and his searching eye. The result is a sometimes moving, sometimes entertaining panorama of people and ways of living, of historic vignettes and ancient newsreels.

The narration (and the excerpts from the 1932 "This is the Land") aims at projecting the naive, idealistic past, with a grain of contemporary "salt." "They looked funny, our elders — but they meant it," kind of benignantly approving. It works, most of the time and evokes the mood that adds a sentimental thrill to the healthy curiosity. Apart from the many informative scenes, there is a rhythm to this film, and a synthesis of folklore and popular music, extremely fascinating most of the time, by Noam Sherif.

To audiences abroad, Jewish and non-Jewish, there should be enough appeal in this fare, in spite of the local nature of many scenes. Adequate English narration would suffice. Apart from the beauty of many shots, there are candid shots of such international figures as Albert Einstein (in the 1930s visiting Weitzmann), Winston Churchill (in the 1920s present at the wedding of Lord Samuel, among exotic Shieks and the late King Abdalla of Jordan), Lord Balfour and General Allenby.

Framing the picture are shots of Baruch Agadati, among his watercolor-on-silk-with-oil-effect paintings (an original device of his), in his forty-five year old wooden hut, a living contrast to the now-building 33-stories Shalom skyscraper, just two blocks away. The picture does well bridging the 50 years between these two. Port.

Replace Gutted Fiesta

Casper, Wyo., April 14.

Commonwealth Theatres' exec, Richard O'Rear stated here that his company is going to build a new theatre in Gillette, Wyo., construction to start right away.

The new house, which promises to be one of the niftiest in this part of the state, is being erected to replace the Fiesta which was destroyed by fire recently.

At Argentina Festival

Continued from page 6

Placeres Conyugales

attempts of a wife and her would-be lover to murder her appealing, nitwit of a spouse. The wife, played with amusingly bland sweetness by Ana-Maria Campoy, reasons that since she cannot bear the idea of committing adultry, there is nothing to do but dispatch her husband, which she forthwith attempts to do via arsenic and homemade bombs. A large portion of the B.A. population is eradicated, but her husband lives on and, in a twist finish, he survives to marry a girl he'd had his eye on all the time.

In the key role of the husband, Luis Sandrini is wonderfully foolish and total sincere. Subsidiary performances are in the same vein. Luis Saslavsky's direction has an appropriately airy bounce, nicely complemented by the handsome period sets and costumes. In this case, color photography would have been a definitely plus, but the black-and-white lensing is quite okay, as are all technical credits. Anby.

Young Sanchez
(SPANISH)

Buenos Aires, April 14.

I. F. I. Espana, S.A. production. Stars Julian Mateos, with Carlos Otero, Ermanno Bonetti, Luis Ciges, Consuelo de Nieva, Luis Del Pueblo, Juan Torres, Manuel Bronchud, Miguel Graneri, Luis Romero, Manuel Ruiz, Sanchez Merayo. Directed by Mario Camus. Story and screenplay, Ignacio Aldecoa and Camus; camera, Victor Monreal; music, Enrique Escobar; editor, Juan Luis Oliver. At Buenos Aires Film Fest, April 5, '64. Running time, 106 MINS.

Exposes of some of the evils which surround professional boxing unfortunately are rather old cinema hat. Otherwise, "Young Sanchez" might be expected to cause a much greater stir in the international market than now seems indicated. This official Spanish entry at the Buenos Aires festival is nicely acted, directed and photographed, but none of these virtues can disguise the fact that it's basically a cliche. John Garfield, Robert Taylor, Tyrone Power, et. al., did the same story back in the 1930s and 1940s.

For overseas audiences the picture has a certain uniqueness in its contemporary Spanish locale. But the same things happen in these gyms and arenas as used to happen in those just off Broadway. In the title role, Julian Mateos gives an excellent performance as a young boxer who, disillusioned by early doublecrosses, sets out to make as much dough as he can, either clean or dirty. In appearance Mateos looks something like a husky Alain Delon and overall the film recalls the Delon-Visconti "Rocco and His Brothers." But "Young Sanchez" has none of that earlier film's social and psychological complexities. Anby.

Les Tontons Flingueurs
(FRENCH)

Buenos Aires, April 14.

Gaumont (Paris), Corona Filmproduktion (Munich), Ultra Film (Rome) coproduction. Features Lino Ventura, Bernard Blier, Francis Blanche, Claude Rich, Sabine, Sinjen, Horst Frank, Charles Regnier. Directed by Georges Lautner. Adapted by Albert Simonin from his novel "Grisbi or Not Grisbi"; dialogue, Michel Audiard; music, George Delerue. At Buenos Aires Film Fest, April 5, '64. Running time, 97 MINS.

An uneven film, marred by a far too slow beginning, turns into a slapstick farce once it gets into stride. Though not consistently good, this has amusing situations and some first-rate gags.

Fernand (Lino Ventura), owner of a small tractor factory, gets himself involved with gamblers and gangsters when asked to take care of a dying friend's daughter. The friend headed the syndicate, whose members are far from enthusiastic at the idea of a takeover by an outsider. And trouble soon brews, to the tune of mayhem with all kinds of weapons. Fernand, after a great deal of ammunition has been spent, proves himself the boss and everyone who hasn't been killed in the process feels quite happy.

Ventura plays his usual tough, but in a light vein while Bernard Blier turns out to be an amusing heavy.

"Les Tontons" may become successful in specialized situations particularly in Latin America, but from an artistic point of view, it's only real asset is Michel Audiard's sophisticated and ingenious dialogue. Should be good in the home market. Stateside chances are slim. Chile.

Nadeje
(The Hope)
(CZECHOSLOVAK)

Buenos Aires, April 14.

A Barrandov Film Studio production. Stars Hana Hegorova, Rudolf Hrusinsky; features, Frantisek Peterka, Otta Simanok, Vaclav Neuzil, Frantisek Vicena, Jaroslav Nikolny, Josef Barta. Directed by Warel Kachyna. Screenplay, Jan Prochaszka, Karel Kachyna; camera, Josef Vanis; music, Jan Novak; editor, Jan Chaloupek. At Buenos Aires Film Fest, April 8, '64. Running time, 92 MINS.

A slow, heavy pace prevents this pic from being attractive from the point of view of conventional entertainment, limiting its possibilities even in selected arty situations. But this does not prevent it from being a piece of serious and honest filmmaking.

Story concerns Lucin, a laborer on a construction job, who has swapped his self-respect for alcohol. When the pic begins, he is well on his way to becoming a Bowery-type character. His fellow workers despise and dislike him, except Magdalena. She has an uncertain reputation of her own and gives him her help and love, desperately trying to return him to the straight and narrow.

The relationship between these two characters is beautifully developed, without at any moment indulging in romantic overtones. In fact, the honesty of their presentation leads to the film's limitations as entertainment. Director Kachyna does not idealize his characters or try to make them personally attractive. Instead, he views them with sympathy and understanding for their plight, suggesting a great deal more about their lives and problems than is actually said. He is greatly helped by two good performances, of which Hana Hegorova's is outstanding.

Story is told in a straightforward manner, without unnecessary embroidery. Lensing and other technical credits are good. The film's ending only implies hope of regeneration, instead of forcing a definitive happy end. In toto, it is an interesting and positive approach to the theme of an individual unable to adopt to society. Chile.

Zerwany Most
(The Lost Bridge
(POLISH)

Buenos Aires, April 14.

Film Polski release of a Iluzjon Studio production (Warsaw). Features Tadeusz Lomnicki, Elzbieta Kepinska, Lidia Korsakowna, Wojciech Siemian, Mieczyslaw Voit. Directed by Jerzy Passendorfer. Screenplay, Roman Bratny; camera, Antoni Nurzynski; music, Tadeausz Baird. At Buenos Aires Film Fest, April 3, '64. Running time, 85 MINS.

The postwar struggle between Ukranian fascists and the Polish army is a somewhat local matter. And it evokes no emotional echo with foreign patrons. Hence the film, however competently and honestly made, does not succeed in bringing out universal issues.

Photography and acting are good but the historical background is taken too much for granted. If the pic had been more explicit regarding this, its foreign chances would have been much improved. As it stands, they are very limited. The story concerns a Polish officer who, disguised as a Ukrainian infiltrates the enemy, killing their leader and afterwards finds it a hard job to prove that he is actually Polish. Chile.

Episcopalians Map 30-Min. Religioso Show

Atlanta, April 14.

Episcopal Church is preparing to enter a bid for primetime on television with a series of half hour programs putting Hollywood talent into religious roles. Episcopal Radio-TV Foundation Inc., with headquarters here, started the ball rolling several months ago.

Two of the first series of 13 programs have been completed and the premiere of one starring Lynn Bari will be shown here April 27 at the Community Playhouse. The series will be known as "One Reach One."

Atlanta premiere of Lynn Bari show, titled "The Late Liz," based on the story of Gert Behanna, whose autobiographic novel of the same title had nationwide distribution in paperback form, is scheduled for April 27 at 800-seat Community Playhouse. It was scripted for the program by Stephen Lord.

Cold Easter Booms West End Trade; 'Empire' Wow $25,000, 'Becket' Same, 2d; 'Garden' Lush 12½G, 'Trumpet' 19G

London, April 7.

The coldest Easter holiday weekend in more than 40 years, coupled with the arrival of two new major blockbusters, gave a powerful spurt to West End firstruns. With only a couple of exceptions results were beyond hopes.

Dominating the scene are "Fall of the Roman Empire" at the Astoria, and "Becket" at the Plaza. Former notched a record $27,500 opening frame and is heading for a mighty $25,000 in the second round. The first week of "Becket" hit great $26,000, and the second round is running almost neck-and-neck. Both films have done capacity at every evening performance, with the advance building day by day.

"A Distant Trumpet" got off to a good start at the Warner with a stout $19,300 in opening stanza. "The Chalk Garden" is heading for a sturdy $12,500 in its first session at the Leicester Square Theatre.

Among the longrunners, "How West Was Won" chalked up a whopping $24,100 in its 74th week at the Casino while "It's a Mad World" looks smash $22,000 in its 18th Coliseum week. "Cleopatra" was over $29,000 in its 35th Dominion week and "Tom Jones" hit $14,000 in its 40th frame at the London Pavilion. "Lawrence of Arabia" was a whopping $16,800 in 60th round at the Metropole.

Estimates for Last Week

Astoria (CMA) (1,474; $1.20-$1.75) — "Fall of Roman Empire" (Rank) (8th wk). Heading for great $25,000 or better after record-breaking $27,500 opening round.

Carlton (20th) (1,128; 70-$1.75)—"Irma La Douce" (UA) (8th wk). Lively $9,000 or over. Seventh week, $11,000. "Seven Days In May" (Par) follows April 16.

Casino (Indie) (1,155; $1.20-$2.15)—"How West Was Won" (Robin-MGM) (74th wk). Fancy $24,000 or near.

Columbia (Col) (740; $1.05-$2.50)—"Dr. Strangelove" (BLC) (10th wk). Sturdy $10,900. Ninth week, $13,100.

Coliseum (MG) (1,795; $1.20-$2.46)—"It's a Mad World" (UA) (18th wk). Smash $22,000 or close.

Dominion (CMA) (1,712; $1.45-

(Continued on page 25)

Dangerous-To-Bait, But Danish Film Critics Go for 'Strangelove'

Copenhagen, April 14.

Advance promotion of Columbia's "Dr. Strangelove" here was heaviest for an American film in long time, a dangerous process as Danish film critics are notoriously savage. Too much advance buildup tends to make them extra suspicious. Engagement of the Stanley Kubrick at Carl Th. Dreyer's Dagmar Theatre grossed 25,753 kroner ($3,848) in first three days, following sucess pattern established in London, Amsterdam and Milan.

"Strangelove" copped more newspaper space in fortnight before the opening than any previous film, coverage usually reserved for the Denmark-Sweden soccer match or a wedding in the Royal family. A series of previews for Danish intellectual groups, political and science editors of newspapers and tv, clergymen and even "Ban-the-Bomb" groups helped create advance comment. Columbia also staged a "white-tie" opening night to rival those at the Royal Theatre.

Critical reception to the pic was in nature of "raves," with toughest reviewer—Kris on the afternoon "BT"—calling Kubrick "one of the four greatest filmmakers in the world—not just a man with a message to humanity, but also the man in whose hands lies a new future for American film art."

The public? Tickets are sold out a week in advance.

Meanwhile In Italy

Milan, April 14.

"Dr. Strangelove" grossed, in first three days at the Cavour Theatre here, 7,400,000 lire ($11,840).

Geisha School Seizure In '46 Costs Japan $360,000

Tokyo, April 7.

A 14-year-old legal wrangle ended when the Japanese government agreed to pay $360,000 to a geisha community for damages incurred with the 1946 takeover of the Nyokoba Cion geisha training school and converting it into a cabaret for U.S. military forces personnel.

The building was released to its owner in March, 1949. He appealed to the Tokyo District Court for compensation, claiming this had been promised by the prefectural governor of that time. The court ruled that the government should pay $777,000, but the government refused to accept that figure and lodged repeated appeals.

Final settlement was reached out of court.

Down-Trending Of India's Features

Washington, April 7.

Film production in India continued easing downward with studios hampered by rising costs and a lack of capital, the U.S. Commerce Dept. reported. In 1963 there were 298 feature films produced, a slump from the 312 in 1962 and the record 320 in 1960. Despite the decline there is continued demand for color films.

Production costs jumped about 20% last year and are expected to go higher in 1964 with fees for top stars rising and a general wage-material price increase.

Revenue from film exports was around $2,500,000 for the first three quarters of 1963 compared with $3,000,000 for all of 1962.

U.S. films acounted for 65 of the total 136 imports. Following were the U.S.S.R. with 19, United Kingdom with 15 and Italy with 14.

A 165% tax increase in film imports, imposed last March, was cited as the cause for the drastic decline in imports from 221 in 1962 to the 1963 figure.

A later 37% reduction of the tax helped spur imports toward the end of last year.

Expiration in March of a 55% import quota worked out by the Motion Picture Export Assn. of America and the Indian government tends to cloud predictions of the future market.

Swiss Build Submarine: But for Tourists Only

Lausanne, April 14.

A submarine for tourists, called "Mesoscaphe," will be a come-on of the upcoming Swiss National Exhibition starting April 30 for a six-month period. This exhibition takes place every 25 years in a different Swiss city, last one having been in Zurich in 1939, and offers a panorama of Switzerland embracing all aspects of industry, culture, farming, tourism, arts et al.

Submarine, designed by Swiss scientist, Jacques Piccard, and named after his father, the 1962-deceased famous physicist and explorer of the stratosphere and the deep seas, Auguste Piccard, will provide visitors with the unique opportunity of a dive into Lake of Geneva, if only to a "depth" of about 1,000 ft. It is planned, however, to use the submarine for deep-sea research purposes down to 4,000 ft. after the Expo has ended. It is pointed out with pride here that this is the first Swiss-built submarine. The "Swiss Navy" has always been a global gag. A less gratifying aspect, however, seems to be the fact that cost of construction has snowballed from a blueprinted $350,000 to an estimated final budget of five times that amount, or $1,750,000. Fee for a dive in the Mesoscaphe will be $9.30 per person.

Shochiku Would Cut Kyoto Studios' Staff

Tokyo, April 7.

In view of Japan's declining film fortunes and a movement toward fewer productions, Shochiku disclosed plans to slash its Kyoto Studios staff from 335 to 187. Studio made 15 films last year and is expected to lens only eight, mainly samurai action fare, during 1964 at these studios. The Kyoto studio will come under supervision of Shochiku's main studios at Ofuna, near Yokohama.

President Shiro Kido of Shochiku, one of Japan's five majors, said he would not take the expected action before consulting with union officials. He added that the displaced personnel would be given other assignments within Shochiku's vast organization.

'8½' Captures Most of Italo Crix Awards

Rome, April 7.

Federico Fellini's "8½" last night swept the Italian Film Critics Assn. awards. Film walked off with six kudos thus breaking alltime record—six prizes for one pic—set many years back by Vittorio DeSica's "Bicycle Thief." "8½" copped traditional Silver "best film" award is voted as it's felt that best direction implies best pic), production, story, screenplay, supporting actress, camerawork and music.

These went respectively to Fellini, Angelo Rizzoli whose Cineriz produced the pic, Fellini and Ennio Flajano for original story, duo plus Brunello Rondi and Tullio Finelli for script, Sandra Milo for supporting female performance, and Gianni di Venanzo for his lensing and Nino Rota for his music.

Other prizes went to Ugo Tognazzi, best actor for his role in "L'Ape Regina" (Conjugal Bed), and Silvana Mangano for "Processo di Verona" (Verona Trial). Male supporting performance deemed best was that by Folco Lulli for "I Compagni" (The Strikers). Giuseppe Rotunno won one of three prizes captured by "The Leopard" for his color lensing. Others went to Piero Tosi for his costumes and Mario Garbuglia for sets and decor.

"Lawrence of Arabia" walked off with "best foreign film" ribbon at same event. Entire proceedings, which was followed by a ball in honor of winners, was picked up by RAIITV, Italy's telelent.

Windup speech was the much-expected first public one by Italy's new Minister for Entertainment, Achille Gorona. If industries had hoped for any concrete word of support for the ailing film big economy here, they were disappointed. Minister confined his talk to noting that current problems were being discussed.

'Zulu' New Record In 29 Brit. Spots

London, April 14.

After its nine week pre-release run at the Plaza Theatre, the Paramount showcase in Piccadilly Circus, where it grossed a hefty $155,000, "Zulu" wound its first week on general release on the Associated-British circuit by establishing a new alltime high.

In 29 ABC suburban situations, it grossed a total $242,118. Its nearest rival for the same number of houses was the Cliff Richard musical, "Summer Holiday," which grossed slightly less than $200,000.

"Zulu," a Joseph E. Levine-Paramount coproduction produced by Cy Endfield and Stanley Baker, also broke house records in 28 out of the 29 situations.

It started its second leg of London release south of the Thames last week, where it was continuing its record-breaking spree. Opening day was around $4,300 better than "Summer Holiday."

Question of Britain Boosting Film Quota for 1965 Again Brought Up, With Two Producer Groups Split

By HAROLD MYERS

London, April 14.

Should there be a change in the British Film Quota for 1965? This is currently a hot local topic which has once again split the two organizations representing British film producers. On one side, the British Film Producers Assn. has come out in favor of maintaining the status quo with an official Quota of 30%, provided there are adequate guarantees from the two major circuits. On the other hand, the Federation of British Film Makers, which does not include the two majors in membership, again has advocated an increase in the percentage.

Both organizations were in executive session last week. At the BFPA, the council had a detailed analysis of British production prospects for the 1965 Quota year, with a estimate that not less than 70, and probably more, British first features would be available for exhibition, against 74 which were registered in 1963. Taking into account a number of varying factors and possible repercussions overseas, the BFPA Council decided against campaigning for an increase in the Quota.

Instead, it decided to ask the Board of Trade to seek assurances from the two major circuits—as was given in the current year—that they would play at least 45% British first features. If such undertakings are not forthcoming, the BFPA will have a second look at the problem before the expiry date for recommendations next June 30, and may possibly make revised recommendations.

Federation Plans Under Wraps

The Federation, however, is keeping its proposals under wraps, though during the peak of the recent British production crisis at the tail end of last year, it advocated an immediate increase of the Quota for 1964 of up to 50%. And in this regard, it had the support of all the studio unions.

At its meet..g last week, the Federation stood by its policy for a higher Quota, though has been reluctant to indicate whether it has asked for the percentage to be increased from 30% to 50% or whether it favors a compromise figure. The trade viewpoint is that it is probably standing pat on its 50% figure, notwithstanding the fact that at that time the amendment was made, such a drastic increase was mainly regarded as a stimulant to maintain a reasonable level of production in a period of acute crisis.

Before the president of the Board of Trade makes a final decision, he will take into account the views of the Films Council, which is expected to make recommendation to the Minister by the Middle of May. At the time of crisis, the

(Continued on page 25)

Many Sideline Events For Milan Film Fair

Rome, April 7.

Various sideline events are skedded for the upcoming (April 15-25) Milan Film and TV-Film Trade Fair (MIFED), for the entire duration of the event, now in ninth semi-annual installment.

MIFED leads off with a three-day presentation of the Hungarian film, in tandem with Unitalia and participation of Hungaro pix toppers. Also on the agenda is a meeting of the International Producers Federation (FIAPF), of the International Exhibitors Union (U.I.E.C.), and of the International Cinema Bureau (B.I.C.), the all-industry summit organization headed by Eitel Monaco.

Committee assigning the "Trophy of Five Continents," award going each year to top b.o. winner of each of five world areas, is another MIFED date. At same meeting, trophy for Latin America (which was not assigned last year until final data could be assembled) will be announced and awarded.

Paris Firstruns Drawing Better

Paris, April 14.

Ninteen pix have drawn more than 75,000 admissions in their Paris firstruns since January, which is three more than last year. With Paris usually setting the pace for later gross results, it is felt that film attendance is finally taking some strides forward.

It is also noted that entertainment, action and suspense items are the thing, with a few dramas doing well when having players. Cold weather and the holidays helped, but it is thought that people are going out more and have a yen for lighter film fare. However, the weightier "The Silence" is doing good biz in three small arty houses.

Of the top pix, 11 are French or French majority coproductions, six are American, one British and one Italian. Leader is madcap actioner "That Man from Rio" (UA), a French item taken by UA for world distrib, followed by "La Bonne Soupe," which 20th-Fox has. Then comes the swashbuckler "Black Tulip." In four weeks, "Rio" had 288,563 patrons, "Soupe," 177,318; and "Tulip," 175,951.

Yank western "Rampage" (WB) came next followed by "From Russia With Love" (UA), with the latter attracting 151,897 in only two weeks. "Francoise," part of two pix called "La Vie Conjugale," showed next best, with "Diary of Chambermaid," "The Victors" (Col), "McLintock!" (UA) and the other part of the two-pic "Conjugal," "Jean-Marc," following in that order.

Brigitte Bardot opus "A Ravishing Idiot," costarring Anthony Perkins, was next. Also showing were "Johnny Cool" (UA), "Pink Panther" (UA); French comedy "Rob the Bank" and "Seven Days in May" (Par). Last named did a sock first week of 79,717 patrons in eight houses.

Top German Comedian Pacted by Columbia

Frankfurt, April 7.

Top German comic Heinz Ruehmann has signed a Hollywood contract with Columbia Films. He will play the role of Lowenthal in "Ship of Fools," based on the click novel by Katherine Ann Porter. Stanley Kramer is set to produce this pic, with other top roles set for Simone Signoret, Jose Ferrer, Elizabeth Ashley and German actress Sabine Sinjin.

Ruehmann flies to Hollywood in June with shooting due to start on June 15. It is his first role in an American film, though for several decades he has been a leading German comedy star.

Spoleto 1964 Fest Of Two World's Program Now Nearly 100% Set

Rome, April 7.

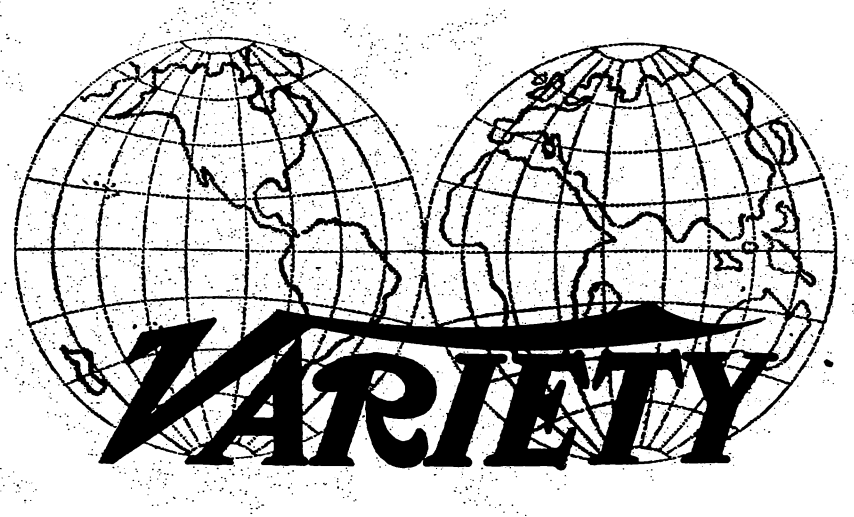
Strauss' "Rosenkavalier," directed by Thomas Schippers, will open this year's Spoleto Festival of Two Worlds. Opera will be sung in German, with French nouvelle vague director Louis Malls handling direction chores for gala opener.

Dates for this year's fest are June 19 to July 19. Remainder of program also largely has been set. Paul Taylor Dance Company will perform a world preem, "The Red Room," with "Aureole," "Party Mix" and "Piece Period" completing the terps slate.

Princeton University Choir is booked for three concerts with the Trieste Philharmonic Orchestra, London Ballet is slated to appear in July, with Margot Fonteyn and Rudolph Nurev toplining.

There'll also be traditional concerts in Spoleto Cathedral Square, chamber music sessions at the Caio Melisso Theatre. Two Italian presentations are a still unnamed Italian company will give a special legit performance at Spoleto. There also will be a series of programs dedicated to Italo folk singers.

CANNES FOR YOUR (POCKETBOOK'S) HEALTH; OR, BUSINESS COMES BEFORE BIKINIS



Film Buyers and Sellers, Talent Scouts and Showmen, Students of Box Office From All Over the World of Cinema will soon converge upon Cannes, France.

This is the first big event of the summer series of big film festivals. As before, it is commemorated by a distraction-proof, money-minded, market-serving, market-detailing special edition. It goes by jet direct to the festival.

Ideal For Your Advertisement

Reserve Space. Prepare Copy. Act Now. Usual Rates Apply.

7th ANNUAL INTERNATIONAL FILM EDITION OF

NEW YORK 10036	LONDON S.W.1	PARIS	ROME 3	TOKYO	BERLIN	MADRID 16
154 West 46th St.	49 St. James's St. Piccadilly	80 Ave. de Neuilly Neuilly-sur-Seine	Via Sardegna 43	Press Club	Enzian Strasse 1 Lichterfelde, West Germany	Avda. de la Habana 86

International Sound Track

London

Producer Ronald Kinnoch and director Wolf Rilla completing plans for filming John Wyndham's "The Chrysalids." He is the author of "Village of the Damned," which the same team made for Metro. New one is being made independently, and they are aiming at a major distribution deal . . . Carl Foreman's "The Victors" returns to the West End April 23 for a hardticket run at the Odeon, Haymarket. The pic originally played 10 weeks at the Leicester Square Theatre . . . Entries for the Council of Europe prizes, which will be handed out at the Locarno Film Festival, have to be submitted to the U.K. selection panel by April 23. There are awards in two categories, for features and newsreels . . . The Rank Organization distribution in Denmark is now in the hands of Gloria-Film. Previous deal with Eagle-Lion Film terminated on March 30 . . . Contemporary Films has acquired distribution rights to three shorts following the first preview by Derek Hill's Short Film Service. A new program, including two American and two British shorts, has been set for next Monday (20) . . . Extraordinary general meeting of Rank stockholders okayed necessary resolution for a new scrip issue. Allotment letters will be going out to stockholders this week . . . More than $350,000 of the $2,000,000 budget for "Goldfinger" is being spent on sets and backgrounds. These include a reproduction of Fort Knox, a Miami Beach resort hotel, a Kentucky stud farm and Goldfinger's mountain stronghold in the Swiss Alps. Albert R. Broccoli and Harry Saltzman are filming this James Bond yarn for United Artists release . . . Delmore Film Productions, which have completed "Just For You," a color musical, at Shepperton, are prepping a remake of "Clochemerle," under the title "The Scandal of Cockmagee." The company is also prepping a production of "Merrie England."

Paris

Episodic feature pic of a few years ago "The French Woman and Love" will have a followup which will concern the sex education of children, adolescents, teenagers and couples . . . Pix pacing the b.o. these days are mainly escapist fare via the French actioners "The Man From Rio" and "The Black Tulip," "To Russia With Love" (UA), the all-singing "Umbrellas of Cherbourg" plus Luis Bunuel's sharp look at 1920s mores and morals in his French made pic "The Diary of a Chambermaid". . . Longtime Yank resident Alex Zion made a two-reel French short on a drug addict "Flash" two years ago with U.S. actor Garry Goodrow and jazzman Zoot Sims. It has been forbidden since then as being conducive to taking drugs or condoning the practice. Some, however, feel it's an objective look at an addict one lonely night in Paris, and takes no sides. Zion would like to distribute it and get some money back and go on to a feature he is planning . . . Robert Dhery vexed at 20th-Fox for a scene in "Move Over Darling" which shows Doris Day caught in a car that goes through a cleaning setup. Dhery feels it is too much, shots and angles and all, like a similar scene in his "La Belle Americaine". . . George Cukor looking for books or plays for a company he has formed. Like others, he now wants to own his future directorial projects. He has not found anything definite as yet . . . French director Rene Clair is finishing a script "Fetes Galantes". . . Pathe Marconi investing in film fan mag Cinemonde and it will henceforth give even more space to young singing idols . . . Michel Andre will do the French sketch of a four episode pic, with others from Russia, U.S. and Japan. Russian bit is finished by director Elen Krimov, Japanese one is being done by Kaneto Shindo who did "The Island," and indie Yank filmmaker Morris Engel does the Yank seg. Called "All the Children of the World" it deals in moppet themes . . . Roger Vadim winding "La Ronde," based on the Arthur Schniztler play, which he claims is not a remake of the Max Ophuls version of 1950. This one takes place in Paris just before World War I and not in Vienna. Also, this is the first time Vadim has accepted a script he has not worked on; playwright Jean Anouilh did it.

Rome

Massimo Franciosa-Festa Campanile directorial partnership splits after their current "Voci Bianche" pic for Franca Film, their joint company; Franciosa directs "Il Pigro," Campanile "La Costanza della Ragione". . ."Seven Days in May" in successful Rome English-language bow at special MPEA screening for Embassy pic, and Yank colonies in Rome . . . Folco Lulli turns director after acting in 80 Italo pix . . . George Cukor here for vacation . . . Rossano Brazzi and Pietro Notarianni have set up Archimede Film and started first production: "La Ragazza in Prestito" (A Girl for Hire), with Brazzi and Annie Girardot costarring . . Sandra Milo, Anna Karina, and Jacqueline Sassard reportedly set for Valerio Zurlini's next pic, "Le Soldatesse" (Some Girls for the Army), lensing in Yugoslavia in May.

Claudia Cardinale back from Far East swing, busy dubbing "Bebo's Girl" (Vides) into French . . . Yank execs in town: Dave Lewis, Metro, and Ilya Lopert, Eric Pleskow, Norbert Auerbach, UA . . ."Marriage, Italian Style" gunned in Naples last week, Sophia Loren and Marcello Mastroianni in new pic version of Eduardo DeFilippo play, "Filumena Marturano," which Carlo Ponti and Joseph Levine are coproducing . . . Favre LeBret, Cannes Fest topper, ogling current and choice Italo items for upcoming Riviera event . . . Federico Fellini awarded Gold Chaplin statuette for "8½". . . Ingmar Bergman's "Silence" gets Rome release this month . . . Rossano Brazzi into "Tutti Compromessi," directed by Mino Guerrini, which Franco Cancellieri produces. "Whatever Happened to Toto Baby?" is title of latest spoof being prepped by Italo comedian . . Newspaper teaser ads asking people to phone a certain number are catching on: response has been strong to two recent ones, one boasting pre-recorded pitch for latest pic by Alberto Sordi, other by Italo voice posing as Paul Newman and asking people to see "The Prize". . Mario Monicelli now rumored set to direct "Casanova," project originally slated for Mauro Bolognini, who in turn is slated for "La Suora Giovane" (The Young Nun).

Britain Boosting Film Quota?

Continued from page 23

Films Council was split almost 50-50 on the Quota issue, with only a narrow margin in favor of maintaining the present 30% quota.

Reason For Standing Pat on 30%

One of the reasons advanced by the BFPA for its decision to stand by the 30% was the belief that this would help the current agitation against the move for a "global European Quota" for all the countries involved in the Common Market. The present proposal among the EEC nations—that a film from any of the Six should automatically qualify for Quota in all the other community nations—could have serious consequences to all film exporting nations, particularly the Yanks and the British. And it is the British who fear they may be on the worst end of the receiving line.

There is one possible factor that could upset all calculations. If there is a June General Election, and if a Labor Government is returned to power before the June 30 expiry date, drastic policy switch, so far as film Quotas are concerned, is not be be overruled.

This would involve a snap decision, but there is a growing belief that a Labor administration (particularly one helmed by Harold Wilson, who had firsthand experience in the film industry as Board of Trade president) would be prepared to take a gamble—even at such an early stage in its career.

Taxi Driver As Adviser

London, April 14.

A London cabdriver with a genuine cockney accent has been signed by Norman Panama to act as technical adviser on Panama & Frank's now-filming "Strange Bedfellows," in which Gina Lollobrigida, Rock Hudson and Gig Young star. He will be flying out to the Coast at the end of this month.

A London taxi has been specially imported for the production, and the driver, Harold Richardson, will coach Arthur Haynes for two weeks.

Franco-Israeli Co-Prod. With Eichmann Trial As Dramatic Key Situation

Tel Aviv, April 14.

"The Glass Cage" Franco-Israeli coproduction concerning six people whose lives reach their climax and turning point with the Eichmann Trial in Jerusalem, went before the cameras on April 8 in Jerusalem. Actual scenes from the trial of the Nazi arch-murderer, sentenced to death in Israel more than two years ago, would be incorporated in this Israel A.A.A. Films production, to be distributed locally by Chen and in France by Tenouji Films.

Starring in this story of people, Jewish and non-Jewish, whose lives have been influenced by the Nazi holocaust and who find in the trial a sense of rebirth and a feeling of relief, France's Francoise Prevost, Michel Auclair, Jean Negroni and Maurice Poli. Also starred would be two Israeli actresses, Gila Almagor and Batya Lancet.

"The Glass Cage" happens to be also the title of a book by Israeli poet Chaim Gouri, who reported daily scenes from the Eichmann Trial, and which had been acclaimed, both in Israel and in France, where a French translation had been published, as most stirring and impressive. The author had been notified of the coinciding title but doesn't object to it, in view of the serious treatment of the subject shown in the script (which had been made available to him by writer-director Philippe Arthuys).

Director of photography is Georges Pessis, who already shot three colorful documentaries in Israel.

London Grosses

Continued from page 23

$4.20) — "Cleopatra" (20th) (35th wk). Sock $29,000.

Empire (MG) (1,330; $1.70-$2.15) —"The Charge Is Murder" (MGM) (2d wk). Fair $7,200. First week, $10,900. "Children of Damned" (MGM) follows April 8.

Leicester Square Theatre (CMA) (1,375; $1.05-$2.80)—"Chalk Garden" (Rank-U). Heading for sturdy $12,500.

London Pavilion (UA) (1,217; 70-$1.75)—"Tom Jones" (UA) (40th wk). Great $14,000.

Metropole (CMA) (1,394; 70-$1.75) — "Lawrence of Arabia" (BLC) (60th wk). Whopping $16,800.

Odeon, Haymarket (CMA) (600; $1.05-$2.80)—"Charade" (U) (m.o.). Brisk $9,000 or better.

Odeon, Leicester Square (CMA) (2,200) (70-$1.75) — "Captain Newman" (Rank-U) (3d wk). Likely $12,000 or close. Second was $15,600. "Stolen Hours" (UA) bows April 9.

Plaza (Par) (1,889; 91-$2.81) — "Becket" (Par) (2d wk). Likely to top wow $25,000 for 14 performances after $26,000 opening frame.

Rialto (20th) (529; 70-$1.20) — "Ring of Spies" (BLC) (3d wk) and "State Secret" (BLC) (3d wk). Moderate $3,000. Second was $4,000. "Irma La Douce" moves over from Carlton on April 16.

Ritz (MG) (430; 70-$1.05) — "Zulu" (Par) (m.o.) (2d wk). Smash $6,500. Opener was $7,000.

Royalty (Indie) (862; 70-$2.50) — "Best of Cinerama" (Robin) (2d wk). Brisk $11,200.

Studio One (Indie) (556; 50-$1.20)—"Incredible Journey" (BV) (8th wk) and "Waltz King" (BV) (8th wk). Brisk $6,500. Seventh was $7,000.

Warner (WB) (1,785; 70-$1.75)—"Distant Trumpet" (WB) (2d wk). Okay $11,000 or near. First week, $19,300. "Anatolian Smile" (WB) preems on April 9.

Italo Tourist Assn. Triples Budget In Drive to Regain Lost German Biz

Bonn, April 7.

"Operation Italy" has been kicked off in West Germany, with the Italian Tourist Assn. having tripled its budget, up to an all-time high of $500,000 to lure the jaded German tourist back to Italy.

Last year, the tremendous drop-off in German tourists, who had been the biggest spenders along the warm Italian beaches, was attributed to the crop of anti-German films. Also to the Communist-inspired uprisings and demonstrations against the Germans in the beach areas, and to the general feeling of unfriendliness in that usually charming country.

Now, the Italians are anxious to get that hard German currency back in their cash registers because the Germans have been turning to beaches in Spain, Yugoslavia and North Africa.

Italian Tourist Assn. ENIT held a special meeting of its directors in Duesseldorf, scheduled a press confab here, is sending special color brochures printed in German to the large and small German cities and offering films showing the beauties of Italy. Even the Italian Minister of Tourism cropped up in Germany to show his goodwill and that of his nation.

Show Bleak Side of Italy

Meanwhile, though, the German papers are heavily larded with the bleak side of the Italian tourism picture. Prices for Italian food have gone up about 12% in the last year, it was noted, and even for the frugal German campers who are in search of a low-priced vacation, the cost of a slice of Italian bread covered with salami or cheese costs 30% to 40% more at the camp cafes than it did a year ago. A cheese sandwich is now priced at 20c, salami on bread is 30c, and ham sandwich is from 50c to 75c, it was claimed.

Inflation has hit the gas tanks, too, with the price for a liter of gas (less than a third gallon) now pegged at 18c although foreigners who buy gas coupons from a controlled center can get a slight reduction.

Meals in most leading restaurants have gone up from 5 to 10% in Italy, it was reported. And most of the coastal hotels have jacked up their prices. Even prices for souvenirs and picture postals are on the increase, so the Germans who do show up had better bring more money, these stories warned.

Medico Named as New Irish Film Censor

Dublin, April 14.

Irish Government has appointed a doctor to be film censor in succession to late Liam O'Hora, who was a barrister.

Dr. Christopher A. Macken 63 who has a medical practice in here, is the appointee. He has been long active in public affairs. A member of the Dublin City Council, he's on the hospital board and the board of the National Organization for Rehabilitation.

Cancel 'Flaming' As Entry in Stockholm's 'New American' Series

Stockholm, April 7.

The Modern Museum here decided at the last minute to cancel a showing of "Flaming Creatures," a 25-minute experimental film by Jack Smith. The film was to be shown as a part of a series of "New American Cinema," which is being run in conjunction with an exhibition of U.S. pop art.

A week ago an item appeared in the Stockholm-Tidningen, a daily newspaper, in which it was claimed that "Creatures" was a pornographic film. On Saturday (March 21) K. G. Hulten, Curator of the Modern Museum, phoned the Stockholm police to ask whether action could be taken against the showing of this pic. The police answered, yes.

Hulten said officials of the Modern Museum decided not to show the film as they did not want to get involved in legal proceedings. "Creatures" was going to be seen by members of the Modern Museum's film studio. Tickets are not sold to single films but only to the whole series. "The New American Cinema" series includes films by Gregory Markopoulos, Stan Vanderbeek, Adolfas Mekas, George Landow, Richard Leacock, Stan Brakhage and Jack Smith, among others.

About 350 members, among them Erik Skoglund, chairman of the board of film censors, turned up for the film's showing to hear that Smith's "Creatures" would not be shown and was being replaced by Andy Warhol's "The Sleep." Within 155 minutes a large part of the audience had left the theatre

Hulten felt that the Museum could not take the chance of showing the film and stimulating a new debate about censorship. The debate about "491" was sufficient for the present.

Japan Becomes Aussie Number One Customer

Sydney, April 7.

According to the Aussie overseas revenue department, Japan has now become Aussie's best customer ousting England and the U. S.

Japan's main purchases from this country are wool, wheat and coal. A Japanese trade mission recently completed deals worth millions of dollars and a major boost to the Aussie economy over a lengthy term. Japan in return is now seeking local deals covering the commercial field, such as automobiles, toys, fabrics, etc.

Japan has been selling projection-room equipment for some time here and is now reported seeking carbon sales on a major basis.

Understood that Jap film producers are anxious to get more product into the art cinemas here. Currently, the Japanese Trade Centre in this territory is telecasting a series titled "Japan Today" over commercial stations with good results.

In the stageshow field, Harry Wren, indie producer, has cleaned up in New Zealand with Japanese revues. Wren will bring the shows to Aussie later this year. Tibor Rudas is another indie revue producer in the field with Japanese talent. Rudas is dickering presently with cinema operators here for a house takeover to play his revues coast-to-coast.

New Nippon Film Co. Would Export, Import Fare; Also Make Pix

Tokyo, April 7.

A new motion picture import-export and production outfit called World Film Co., Ltd. has been launched here with exec staff composed of veterans in film circles.

Company is topped by Atsuyuki Meyoshi, president, formerly in the Shochiku sales division. Veepee is Hisai Ise, with Paramount publicity here for over 30 years and more recently operating as an indie providing various motion picture services. Business manager is Masami Fujita, who was with Paramount in Japan for 25 years. President of World Films' export arm, Indepro International, is Goro Uzaki, who had long service in Toho's Los Angeles and N.Y. offices.

World Films' major kickoff project will be overseas selling of "Suna-no Onna" (Woman in the Dunes), a smash artie hit in Japan and a late Cannes Films Fest entry. Meyoshi and Ise are expected to survey markets in Europe and the U.S. Company also has Overseas sales rights to "Kashi to Kodomo" (Swamp Terror), the first pic directed by Hiroshi Teshigawara, who did "Woman in the Dunes."

Execs of the new outfit point out that while there is plenty of clamor here over anticipated flood of imports with expected freeing of market from July 1, theirs is only company setting up for exports. They claim that in addition to handling indie product, they are also being approached by Japan majors to try for Overseas sales on certain films.

'Fairness,' CATV, Pay-TV Spark FCC Q & A Session As NAB Wrapups

Chicago, April 14.

Matters of wired pay-tv and CATV, and of the Federal Communications Commission's "fairness doctrine," especially as it concerns editorializing and political broadcasting, were among the principal concerns of broadcasters in their q.-and-a. session with the seven commissioners at the wrapup of last week's National Assn. of Broadcasters convention. The FCC boys, per usual, gave the customers their money's worth, and it might be said that NAB delegates this year learned more of value from the final event than from all the rest of the wordy meetings.

In passing, three of the commissioners gave their blessings to the mobile audience measurement machine (Tanner Electronic Survey Tabulation) which was exhibited to the trade for the first time at the conclave. Commissioner Frederick Ford rated the machine as having "interesting possibilities," Robert Bartley said he hoped Nielsen would look into it, and Lee Loevinger opined that if it proves economically practical "it will be a better rating system than any available."

A question on the possibility of modifying the fairness doctrine brought the response from Commissioner Ford that the basic principles and policies of the FCC still stand and that the basic document would remain unchanged, but he did indicate that the commission would soon issue a "primer" on editorializing and political broadcasting that would be a collection of factual situations on which the FCC has ruled. He said, however, that broadcasters would have to bear in mind that "what is fair in one situation may not be fair in another."

Ford and Loevinger fell into a debate over the fairness of networks broadcasting election results from the east coast at times of day when the West Coast polls are still open. Ford's view was that "it may be an interference by broadcasting in voting procedures" and he advised the broadcasting industry to review the problem so as to be above criticism. Loevinger, however, argued that it was not the duty of the commission to see that all processes of democracy be instrumented and added, "I don't think we can ban it on radio and tv. We can't suppress the news and shouldn't try." Ford's position was that the western voter might be influenced by the reports to go with the drift in the east, while Loevinger allowed that the early tallies from the east could have just the opposite effect. "The voter in the west might be so outraged by the trend in the east that he'd cast his vote the other way."

CATV Inroads

To a question on the inroads being made by community antenna systems into commercial television, Commissioner Kenneth Cox indicated that the FCC was concerned about it and that it had already issued rule making proposals anent some form of regulation.

But Loevinger inserted that an industry has to expect moments of crises and he told the NAB delegates (who had heard their prexy, Gov. LeRoy Collins, wage war on the pay systems only two days before) that "it will not do to say 'this is a challenge and therefore we must oppose it'. If this is the approach by broadcasters to problems of your industry you'll live to regret it, because if you want regulation for your competitors you'll get it for yourself as well."

Loevinger admonished broadcasters to adopt "consistent principles" that would be as applicable to themselves as to their competitors. He said further, "I don't know the answer to the pay tv problem, and I don't think that anyone else on the commission does either."

UHF Stockpiling

Commissioner Robert E. Lee answered a broadcaster who alleged that television set manufacturers were stockpiling VHF sets, and that this was slowing the development of UHF, thus: "From our experience, there is no significant stockpiling of VHF sets at the manufacturers' level. It doesn't make good sense to them. There seems to be some at the retail level, in some cases about six

(Continued on page 45)

ABC's Werner Tribute

ABC-TV's "Wide World of Sports" stanza Saturday (18) will pay brief tribute to ace Yank skier Buddy Werner, who was killed in that snow avalanche at St. Moritz. Seg will replace Olympic trial basketball.

Show's tribute is expected to feature Bob Beattie, coach of the U.S. Olympic ski team, who claimed Werner's body for return to the States.

ABC Happy Over 'O'Toole' Nielsens

ABC-TV is jumping with joy over what appears to be a long delayed Nielsen hit. The situation comedy "Ensign O'Toole," which made an unimpressive rating score on NBC-TV, is knocking over tough competition in its current rerun on ABC.

The first 30-market Nielsen available since "O'Toole's" debut on ABC (for the last two weeks of March) in the Thursday night 9 to 9:30 slot, find it topping both "Dr. Kildare" on NBC and "Perry Mason" on CBS by a good margin. In its half hour against the hour shows, "O'Toole" pulled a 21 rating for a 31 share of audience against an 18.6 rating and 27.4 share for "Mason" and an 18.8 and 27.8 share for "Kildare."

If the record holds, there's a chance that ABC and Four Star will get together on a revival of first runs for the coming season. Meanwhile, Four Star Distribution, the syndication wing of the production company, has the "O'Toole" reruns off NBC on the market for a fall start with top markets already sold.

FSD topper Len Firestone several weeks ago was predicting that "O'Toole" would take off in its ABC summer rerun, reasoning that the show on NBC early Sunday night had little chance against "Lassie" on CBS because it has little appeal for kid audiences. Although Firestone could be accused of a special interest in his new off-web syndication package, it appears his crystal ball was none-the-less unclouded.

Boom Is On for Govt. ETV Appropriations

Washington, April 14.

The boom is on for Federal educational television money, the government's etv expert told a House Appropriations subcommittee.

John Bystrom, etv topper in the Dept. of Health, Education and Welfare, told the House Appropriations subcommittee that next year will mark the peak of demand for teach-vee Federal grants.

Bystrom was justifying the Department's budget request of $15,300,000—compared to $6,500,000 last year—with assertions it will tie in with the new demand for all-channel tv sets which is hitting a new peak.

If the request is granted by Congress, total Federal etv expenditures would reach $22,700,000, he added. But even this amount won't be able to fund all the applications coming in for Federal coin, Bystrom predicted.

When asked by subcommittee chairman John Fogarty (D-R.I.) why only $934,000 has been issued to stations so far, Bystrom replied the program is going through the usual bureaucratic growing pains facing any new operation and will soon be going full tilt.

In response to Rep. John Lesinski (D-Mich.) who wanted to know what kind of ratings etv programs were getting, Bystrom estimated the few studies on this estimated an average one out of six adult viewers for a regular evening.

Storer Divvy

Miami Beach, April 14.

Directors of Storer Broadcasting declared a regular quarterly dividend of 45c. per share on common stock.

It's payable June 9 to holders of record May 21.

German TV Industry Readying for Color, Hope for '66 Teeoff

Frankfurt, April 14.

The West German television set makers are getting ready for color television. According to a rep of the Philips company, the German set makers are prepared to adapt their color reception sets to any one of the three methods, American, German or French, which are now available. They are waiting only for word from the European Radio and Television Union as to which of the three methods will be adopted for European transmission.

The Philips spokesman intimated that by 1965, the final European system would be accepted, and probably by the beginning of 1966, the first color shows would be transmitted from England to Eurovision viewers.

It is also expected that by 1970, from 10 to 15% of the sets in Europe will be able to receive color shows. Currently, about 8,500,000 new television sets, black and white of course, are purchased annually in Europe. Price for the color sets would be about three times that of the black-white receivers.

Britain's ABC-TV Sells Rediffusion 'Big Night' Show

London, April 14.

In an unprecedented move, Rediffusion, the London weekday major commercial station helmed by John McMillan, has bought 11 "Big Night Out Shows" from ABC-TV, the weekend-only major which operates in the North and Midlands. Significance of the buy is that ABC-TV shows are now being seen in the capital on weekdays as well as weekends and that for the first time, ABC-TV has effected local program sales to another major commercial contractor on a financial, not exchange, basis.

Rediffusion's decision to buy from ABC-TV has now opened up an across-the-board market for ABC-TV which, of all the Indies, probably has the most difficult franchise to operate, carrying as it does the full weight of production and studio overheads of a major station while having only two days on the air.

But now that ABC can get shows in London on weekdays, as well as at weekends (when Associated Television takes over from Rediffusion), the smallest of the majors can at least get national, seven days a week exposure for its programming notwithstanding the fact it is only a Saturday-Sunday outlet. The nabe stations incidentally, are entitled to take what shows they want when they want.

First effect of the screening of "Big Night Out" in London was to accelerate ABC-TV's trust in the 20 toprated shows, an achievement which may be duplicated now that ABC-TV shows can be calculated on a full network basis as is the other three major's product.

SAG WORKING ON NEW TELEFILM DEMANDS

Hollywood, April 14.

Improvements in regulations governing actors appearing in vidpix pilots and tighter restrictions on exclusivity in telefilms are among proposals currently being hammered out by Screen Actors Guild, in preparation for upcoming negotiations with producers.

SAG's current vidpix pact expires Jan. 30, and it's anticipated that new negotiations will probably get under way in May. Meanwhile, Guild execs have been holding meetings here and in N.Y. Working on new damands to be made when they meet with producers.

Robert Moses On the Mount

N.Y. World's Fair impresario Robert Moses had some trenchant observations to make in his luncheon address to the International Radio and TV Society at the Waldorf-Astoria.

"We shall exploit every faculty and branch of human knowledge and look to you to broadcast what we show . . .

"If I may be permitted a broad generalization, and assuming your audience to be a third young, a third middle-aged and a third elderly, I would say that your (broadcasting's) influence on the first group has as yet been negligible, on the second improving, and on the third admirable. If this be treason—well, you hardly expect a Niagara of molasses from one moving closer to the Pool of Bethesda. I hear tales, perhaps apochryphal, but with the ring of truth, of programming based on haphazard night telephone calls by rating services, sample sausage machine ballots, applause meters, noiseless Univacs, all accepted substitutes for good judgment and courage. No doubt the most conscientious juries of the Nobel and other prizes also make occasional mistakes, but they are at least aiming at excellence without artificial aids. A ribald friend of mine bet that he could buy Phi Beta Kappa keys at pawnshops on the Bowery. He picked up 18 in an hour and had the same success with foreign decorations. Picking winners seems always to have been a difficult business . . .

"The critics have an easy time broadcasting from their small Ivory Towers, amplifying catcalls and Bronx cheers with exubertant spite, or muttering in their beards and damning with faint praise. They build nothing. They are the jeering section at the great games, the eunuchs of our battered caravanserai. They go with the wind. As the quaint phrase goes, pay them no mind."

Amend Code to Split Piggybanks, 'Viewer Impression Is Important'

Chicago, April 14.

A new amendment to the Television Code, effective Sept. 1, will not ban "piggyback" commercials but instead will treat them as two separate blurbs. This by way of trimming down "the appearance of over-commercialization," which Code Authority director Howard H. Bell sees as one of the more serious aspects of television's current problem with commercial practices.

Said Bell, during the annual pitch for the Code at last week's National Assn. of Broadcasters convention, "The television screen is a goldfish bowl. There is no place to hide what goes on . . . The appearance of over-commercialization is no less important than the fact of over-commercialization. If three loosely integrated multiple product announcements impress the viewer as six commercials, then the viewer has seen six commercials." The essential test of any broadcast practice, he said, is public benefit.

Bell had nothing tangible to offer on the question of cigaret commercials and completely ducked their moral relationship to the question of hard liquor advertising which the Code prohibits. He did state, however, that he hoped that any problems arising in the "sensitive area" of cigaret advertising would be called to the attention of the Code Authority at any early stage so that difficulties can be resolved before they get out of hand."

(A few days earlier, the Radio Code Review Board proposed amendments for tobacco advertising, specifying that the copy should not state or imply claims regarding health nor suggest that the use of tobacco contributes to individual achievement or personal acceptance.)

As to the new Television Code ruling on piggybacks, Bell said, "We are merely calling a spade a spade—and two spades, two spades." He stated that the rule is designed to encourage the production of integrated product commercials which will be accepted by the viewer as single announcements. The matter will be brought to the attention of advertising agencies, he said and added that the Code Authority was going to break new ground with agencies to let them know what the Code stands for.

Similarly, he reported that the Code Authority was launching a new campaign this year to tell the tory of the Code Seal to the public so that they will know that "someone other than the FCC—the industry itself—is concerned about television problems" and is working towards their improvement. Public understanding of the Code would give more status to the stations displaying the Seal. Bell called the Television Code "the conscience of the industry . . . our Hippocratic Oath."

He reported that Jonah Gitlitz had joined the Code Authority staff as his assistant and as a public information specialist to instrument the publicity campaign. Bell indicated that there was a possibility of a professionally-produced film on the Code and self-regulation for us by subscribing stations.

New Wolper Division For 'Live' TV Shows

Hollywood, April 14.

In line with further diversification of corporate activities, a new "live" television division has been originated by David L. Wolper Productions. New game, quiz and panel shows will be developed and produced under this wing in association with United Artists-TV for the '65-'66 season.

First half-hour program planned is "Stop the Camera," cocreated by Harry Salter and Nat Ligerman, slated to originate from Hollywood. Salter, originator of radio's successful "Stop the Music" program, has been signed by Wolper as consultant and will work on the new tv project.

Desilu-Thomas Merger Now Cold

Hollywood, April 14.

Those negotiations for a merger of Desilu Studios and the Danny Thomas-Sheldon Leanord comedy combine have ended.

Desilu prexy Lucille Ball has decided she is not interested in any such marriage, and as a result the months-long talks involving Thomas, Leonard, Miss Ball, and the William Morris Agency as reps of Thomas and Leonard, and Mickey Rudin, as Miss Ball's rep are over.

Overtures originally had been made by WM on behalf of Thomas and Leonard.

ESQUIRE SELLS ITS GEORGIA AM OUTLET

Atlanta, April 14.

Esquire, Inc., sold its only radio station, WQXI, Atlanta, to Jupiter Broadcasting of Georgia, Inc., a property of Fox, Wells, and Rogers, a Stamford, Conn., investing firm, for $1,300,000. Sale is subject to approval of Federal Comunications Commission.

Transaction marks end of Esquire's entry into broadcasting. Publishers of the magazine bought the Atlanta indie from Rounsaville web in 1960 for $1,600,000.

A. L. Blinder, president of Esquire, said station was sold because his company felt it was not getting sufficient return from it and wanted to put their capital to work in other fields.

Anderton Exits NBC

NBC News correspondent Piers Anderton, who's been in New Delhi for the network, has ankled with reports that he may join the ABC news operation.

Anderton joined NBC News in '57 as a writer for Chet Huntley and David Brinkley. In May '61, he was assigned to Bonn, and was assigned to New Delhi about a year ago in a routine shuffle of correspondents.

ECONOMICS: KEY TO TV FUTURE

Sponsors Race to 'Peyton Place'

"Peyton Place," the nighttime two-a-week (Tuesday and Thursday, 9:30-10 p.m.) soaper on ABC-TV next season, should make SRO status well before the September gong at the rate sponsors are signing up. As of last week, in fact, only two minutes were awaiting commitment.

Re client ardor, a relevant factor is the feeling (hope, at least) that "Peyton's" novelty could duplicate here the wham audience thrall in England for "Coronation Street," likewise a twice-weekly primetime entry, the click of which inspired the "Peyton" concept as a Yank innovation.

Advertisers already set include Brown & Williamson for alternate Thursdays; Clairol, for alternating Tuesday and Thursday minutes; Contac, alternating Thursdays; Dodge, riding with the Tuesday outing straight through; and Speidel, with alternating half-minutes in the Thursday segs.

"12 O'Clock High," another freshman ABC entry, and also from the 20th-Fox lot, has sponsor allegiance to date from Brown & Williamson (alternate half-hours), and half-minutes from Contac, Bristol-Myers and All-State Insurance. This one goes in the 9:30 to 10:30 p.m. Friday slot.

Dorso Resigns From UA to Become V.P.-Partner at Ashley-Steiner

By SYD SILVERMAN

In a development that is bound to have far reaching consequences, Dick Dorso has resigned as exec v.p. of United Artists Television to become a v.p. and partner in the Ashley-Steiner-Famous Artists shop. Dorso, who made a network program splash for UA-TV, becomes one of six partner-stockholders in the organization headed up by Ted Ashley and Ira Steiner. The switchover will be effective in a week or 10 days.

The acquisition of Dorso, who was responsible for such current shows as "Outer Limits," "Patty Duke," "The Fugitive," and next season's CBS entry "Gilligan's Island," makes A-S a real contender in the network programming sweepstakes. Via its independent producers like Herb Brodkin, Norman Felton, the David Susskind-Dan Melnick Talent Associates, and of course Desilu, the agency has resources in depth that transcend a mere sales role.

In fact, there are some in the industry who liken the new A-S status to that of the old Revue operation prior to the spinoff of the MCA talent agency. They contend that A-S will be able to provide many of the creative services, again via the indie producers, that marked the former Revue "package" concept. It's this ability to deliver the complete "package" and all it entails that has many a network programming exec sensitized to see how A-S follows up its manpower coup.

Colgate's ABC-TV Confidence Vote

Further as to Colgate's switch of primary allegiance from NBC to ABC-TV next season, it's now calculated that something like 75% of the advertiser's nighttime network coin has been placed in Tom Moore's lineup. It translates into a nearly $8,000,000 vote of confidence for the new-new ABC.

As it now shapes, the dentifrice-maker will be hiding with "Ozzie & Harriet" (alternate half-hour), plus minutes in "Combat," "Burke's Law" (alternate week), "12 O'Clock High" (alternate week) and "Sunday Night Movie" (alternate week).

Rivalling the Colgate '64-'65 splurge on the net will be Consolidated Cigar, which likewise is in for nearly $8,000,000.

On top of previous buys, the stogie maker last week widened its commitment to include minutes on "The Hollywood Palace" and "The Lawrence Welk Show." It previously had spoken for "Broadside" and "Wendy and Me," latter opus restoring George Burns to regular coaxial exposure.

Son of 'Great Debate'

The Mike Dann-Joe Levine debate at the National Assn. of Broadcasters convention didn't end in Chicago. The tv and motion picture impresarios happened to be booked on the same plane from Chicago.

Weather being what it was last week, they spent nearly 18 hours together before they parted ways in N.Y., still arguing the merits of their respective positions on entertainment. Like other conventioneers, they were bumped from one flight to another, spent hours in the air, hovering outside N.Y., landed in Philadelphia, and wound up taking a car to fog-bound N.Y.

WGA Proposes To Eliminate Agents' 10% Off the Top

Hollywood, April 14.

Unanimous approval for council recommendations of demands against agents in upcoming negotiations was voted Thursday (9) night by about 200 members of Writers Guild of America West.

Key proposals in the demands are a WGA plan to eliminate the agents' current practice of getting 10% off the top of a television package, writers feeling this big bite acts as a deterrent to sales. Writers' other key demands is against agents' receiving 10% of residuals or royalties, the scripters arguing that since it was the guild which on two occasions went on strike to achieve these gains and agents had nothing to do with them, they are not entitled to the cut.

Another proposal is that agents' pacts be trimmed to one year for services, and six months for material. Present maximum term of pact is four years, but a writer by giving notice after two-and-one-half years can get out of his pact in three years.

Interestingly, the first member of the guild to go on record in behalf of the agent demands was also an agent—Dick Irving Hyland. Hyland said he wanted it known he was the first to vote for the demands against the percenters. Cornel Wilde, actor-writer, spoke against the agents' practice of raking in 10% off the top of a tv package, arguing that if an agent packages a picture, he is entitled to 10% of the person he reps, not 10% of the entire film, and he didn't see why the same shouldn't prevail in tv.

WGA's pact with the agents expires June 15. Negotiations will be conducted with Artists Managers Guild here and Society of Authors Representatives, agent group in the east.

Morgan Cox reported on progress of the guild's royalty plan in vidpix, and said more coin was coming in from this than had been expected.

PAY-TV, UHF CAN UPSET INDUSTRY

By MURRAY HOROWITZ

The only two developments which may rock the tv establishment, entrenched as never before, are pay-tv and the growth of UHF. Those looking for new programming horizons on the tv screen can't see anything less than an economic revolution to change the established programming patterns—an economic revolution of size and scope that altered Hollywood production patterns.

Educational tv to date, instead of offering a true alternative service, is beaming what many believe to be a subsidiary service. Educational tv in the U.S. is likened to a Harpers versus a Life; a BBC, with ample monies and a tradition for winning a popular following, it ain't.

It was television's economic impact that made Hollywood change its ways, killed the market for the "B's," and altered the production goals of every major studio. It incepted a revolution, echoed throughout the world, reverberations of which are still shaking the film capitals from Hollywood to London to Paris.

The upstart medium which shook the fashions of entertainment, news and advertising, deep into its second decade, rich and affluent, now looks with deep suspicion on a possible alternative service. With the exception of a few mavericks, notably RKO General, broadcasters are united under the manners of National Assn. of Broadcasters to wage war with over-the-air pay-tv, as well as wired pay-tv systems. A long, fight is in the making, and the pay-tv entrepreneurs had better be well-heeled financially for the struggle.

UHF, 5-Years Away

UHF, as a consequential force in broadcasting in the U.S., isn't expected for another five years, when it's estimated that there will be sufficient all-purpose tv sets in circulation to make programming for UHF economically feasible. Neworks, which have been burned trying to operate UHF stations in the past, have adopted a wait and see attitude on UHF. Again it looks like the less affluent will have to do the pioneering, this time, though, aided by the all-purpose tv sets, legislated into existence by Congress, a piece of legislation which won the support of the webs. Only when and if, UHF stations grow in number will they become a really competitive force to the current tv establishment.

The more immediate battle revolves around pay-tv, with NAB

(Continued on page 46)

CBS News' Unique Election Returns Sale to N.Y. Times

New York Times, recognizing the unique election returns service rendered by CBS News, has made a deal for the Nov. 3 election, whereby the newspaper has the rights to use CBS News Vote Profile Analysis (VPA).

Milestone deal, which marks the purchase of a broadcast news service by a newspaper, is said to represent a substantial sum of money, in the five figure area. Deal also dramatizes the clear edge broadcasters have assumed in rendering election returns and predicting winners. CBS News' VPA describes the body of voting information and analysis that gives extensive information on voting performance among ethnic, religious, and other social groups. VPA also permits early and accurate determination of the outcome of races on a state-wide basis throughout the country.

GM-NAACP in Continuing Dialog Over That 'Bonanza' Seg; Dispute Widens to Include All 'Relations'

By BILL GREELEY

One thing is for certain in the aftermath of the VARIETY report that General Motors recently sought to shelve an NBC-TV "Bonanza" hour featuring Negro actress Ena Hartman—communications between the car company and the National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People are in sorry shape.

As reported in this paper last week, NAACP head Roy Wilkins sent off a scorching wire to GM, demanding to know if the facts set forth in the VARIETY story were true, and what steps GM was taking to "eliminate racial discrimination in its sponsored programs, advertising, employment and dealer contracts."

As late as last Friday, a NAACP spokesman was saying that the wire, addressed to GM board chairman Frederic Donner, had not been answered. The same day, however, a GM spokesman reported that a wire from GM to NAACP had been sent Thursday (2), the day the Wilkins wire had been received.

A copy of the wire reportedly sent by GM, bearing as signature the initials LGS, was forwarded to VARIETY. It states the company tv policy of avoiding "anything of a controversial nature concerning national or regional issues" in its tv shows, and contends that the company asked NBC to review the show for possible controversial material (which is in essence the statement handed to daily newspapers following up the VARIETY story, which pointed out that GM tv and agency officials were making every effort to get NBC brass to replace the stanza.

The GM telegram also took sharp issue with "the implication in your telegram that General Motors practices . . . racial discrimination in its sponsored programs, advertising, employment and dealer contracts," declaring the charge "without foundation."

Whether or not the NAACP did or did not receive the wire (or it got lost in administrative channels), the civil rights organization obviously does not believe the implications in the wire were without foundation. An NAACP regional meeting was slated for last weekend at Indianapolis to specifically study and discuss the General Motors deficiencies in hiring practices (in the broader aspects beyond show biz angles). A spokesman told VARIETY that GM "is the worst of the Big Three" car companies (while making it plain that

(Continued on page 42)

NAACP's Closed-Circuit

The National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People will underwrite a nationwide closed-circuit telecast May 14 to raise $1,000,000 for civil rights.

Show will originate in New York at Madison Square Garden and Los Angeles at the Sports Arena and be piped to halls in from 45 to 50 cities.

The "Freedom Spectacular," a two-hour show, will observe the 10th anniversary of the Supreme Court's decision outlawing segregated schools. NAACP prexy Roy Wilkins said funds raised from the show would help meet the rising costs of bail bonds for civil rights demonstrators arrested in the south.

Cooper Checks In At Screen Gems, But Unofficially

Hollywood, April 14.

Jackie Cooper has checked into Screen Gems, even though it isn't yet official that he's to be the telefilmery's new Coast chief.

Actually, Cooper's taking over can't be official until he is free of legal commitments with UA-TV and CBS-TV. The commitment consists of a pilot, "Calhoun," which he made in partnership with UA-TV and CBS-TV. Show is not on the web sked for next season, but CBS has until June 1 to change its mind.

ETV Group Says FCC 'Papers the Country' With Unused Channels

Columbus, O., April 14.

The Federal Communications Commission has been "saturating the country with large numbers of paper commercial assignments, majority of which stand little chance of being activated," charged the Midwest Program of Airborne Television Inc., which telecasts to schools in six Midwest states.

MPATI claims this policy of the FCC has prevented the educational net from expanding. The net currently operates two UHF channels and wants six to expand its service. FCC in October released assignments and included none for MPATI. The educational net, in a report to FCC, said that its studies show only 35 of 235 UHF channels set aside for commercial use in its six-state region are on the air and only 12 of 59 channels reserved for educational tv have been put into use. Setting aside channels for commercial stations that cannot reasonably be expected to come into being, while preventing expansion of its program which reaches 600,000 students in 10,600 classrooms would be "a waste of the UHF spectrum," MPATI charges.

MPATI represents a $20,000,000 investment and is owned by member schools. Since its beginning in 1959 it has envisioned a six-channel operation to meet the demands of variety sources for education.

Desilu to A-S

Hollywood, April 14.

Desilu Productions has signed Ashley-Steiner-Famous Artists as its exclusive agent for television.

Switch away from GAC was made by Oscar Katz, newly-appointed exec v.p. in charge of production for Desilu.

ABC May Set Up Havana Bureau

Correspondent Lisa Howard's apparent rapport with Fidel Castro may pave the way for ABC News to establish a bureau in Havana, where none of the three nets has permanent repesentation as of now.

At any rate, ABC has been invited to set up shop in Castroland, and the web has replied it would be willing, but——Meaning free of restrictive conditions, including the right to ship out film sans looksee by Cuban bureaucrats. As yet there's been no word either way from Havana.

Yank news media representation in Cuba is minimal, but may be encouraged by the recent return there of the N.Y. Times in the person of Juan de Onis. Except for sometime limited visits for specials, etc.), the webs have been absent from the scene, which is only partially explained by censorship, since other lands where network newsmen regularly roam also impose news-gathering limitations in varying degrees.

AB-PT Calls Annual Meet May 19, Special Confab on Cumulative Vote

Stockholders in American Broadcasting-Paramount Theatres this week were receiving notice of the anni meet May 19 at corporate h.q. in Manhattan, and with it notice of the special meeting on same date wherein the company hopes to repeal the cumulative voting by-law.

This last is considered key effort by present management to thwart financial community maneuvers to land a man or two on the AB-PT board.

Special meeting is called for 10 a.m., and the regular powwow gets the gavelled start an hour later—barring timetable upset.

Prexy statement discloses that amount of outstanding common stock of the ABC parent at close of biz April 6 was 4,586,205 shares.

After special meet disposes one way or other the cumulative voting issue, regular meeting will vote on extending Price Waterhouse as independent auditors, and two proposals from noisy dissidents, one of which would put a $200,000 ceiling on AB-PT execs, the other intended to eliminate extra compensation and fees to company directors. Management of course opposes both.

AB-PT Remuneration

As disclosed in the company's statement of the May 19 annual meet, top-paid exec with the company is prexy Leonard Goldenson whose "aggregate" recompense last year was $125,000. (This excludes monies the corporation's key employees incentive compensation plan.) Simon Siegel, exec v.p., was paid $78,000. Ev Erlick, veep-general counsel, received $52,500; James Riddell, viceprez of the ABC division, $67,500; and David B. Wallerstein, AB-PT director and head of the Balaban & Katz theatres subsid in Chicago, $60,200 (inclusive of $100 weekly expense fee). These were only salaries listed.

Under the incentive plan, Goldenson pulled down an additional $35,000 in fiscal '63, and Siegel rated $29,500. Directors and officers as a group collected total of $73,500.

Amounts available under plan pivot on corporate profits.

RCA's Record $21-Mil. Quarter

RCA reports the best first quarter in the company's 45-year history with profits up for the 12th straight quarter during the first three months of this year.

Profits after taxes rose 25% to $21,000,000 compared with $17,300,000 in the first three months of 1963, the best previous first quarter in company history.

Sales of products and services were up 6% to a new high of $461,400,000 compared with the previous record of $436,000,000 for the first quarter of 1963.

RCA chairman Gen. David Sarnoff and prexy Dr. Elmer E. Engstrom said that among contributions to the first-quarter sales records were tv receiver dollar sales, up 18%; a doubling of RCA color tv picture tube sales and the best first quarter yet for NBC with profits up 25% over the comparable 1963 period.

SIGN 14 SCRIPTERS FOR METRO'S 'SOLO'

Hollywood, April 14.

MGM-TV producer Sam Rolfe has signed 14 scripters for his "Solo" series on NBC-TV next season, and has also set George Lehr as his assistant. Lehr was assistant to producer Gene Roddenberry on the studio's "The Lieutenant" series this season, last season was assistant on "The Eleventh Hour," also at Metro.

Scripters set by Rolfe are Frank and Tom Waldman, Arthur Aley, John Booch, Meyer Dolinsky, Alvin Sapinsley, Archie Tagland, Robert Towne, Gustave Field, Alan Caillou, Harold Jack Bloom, Dick Nelson, Clyde Ware and Doug Morrow.

Hour-long series, which stars Robert Vaughn, goes into production June 1.

NBC's Coverage Plan For Texas Primary

Fort Worth, April 14.

NBC News will cover the Texas primary Saturday, May 2, with special programming, part of "The Campaign and the Candidate" series.

The vote-gather-abulating system which has proved so effective in other primaries, will be used in the Texas primary.

NBC News will staff each of Texas's 254 counties with reporters who will telephone the returns to a tabulating center at WBAP, the NBC affiliated television station in Fort Worth.

The tabulation center will consist of 25 operators receiving calls from Texas counties as soon as the results are available, as well as 30 adding machine operators, messengers and supervisors. WBAP-TV's "Blue Room" has been set up for this expansive and detailed operation.

Frank McGee, broadcasting from WBAP's studio, will be anchorman of the television coverage, which will be produced by Chet Hagan. The coverage will include bulletins and "flashcaster" reports.

Leonard to Profs, 'Help Improve TV'

Television producer Sheldon Leonard last week, speaking at his alma mater, Syracuse U., asked the academic world for an assist in improving tv.

Leonard called on universities via their theatrical facilities to compile the "mass of material waiting to be identified, correlated and organized into a body of knowledge from which valid generalizations may be evolved. The study of this material is the clear responsibility of the theatre arts departments in our leading universities."

Leonard, whose company produces the Danny Thomas, Dick Van Dyke and Andy Griffith shows, had a lot of questions for study by qualified students of the theatre:

"Why has tv developed such a preponderance of male stars when most sponsors would prefer to reach women, who do the marketing, with their message?"

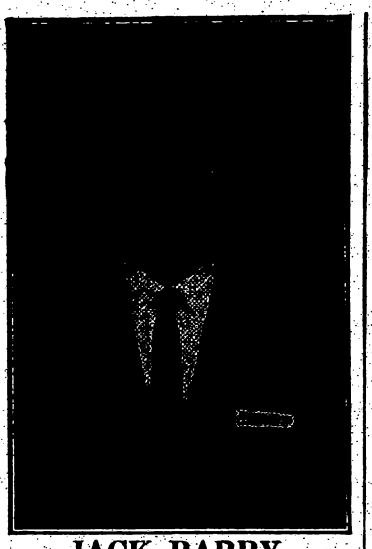
"Is there an emerging form for the half hour or hour teleplays comparable to the structure of the short story or the one act Play?"

"Why do anthologies, of whatever quality, have less acceptance than inferior shows with continuing character?"

And, "I would greatly appreciate a study in depth of the controversial laugh track."

NO TINT FOR 20TH'S 'BOTTOM OF THE SEA'

"Voyage to the Bottom of the Sea," from the 20th-Fox lot, will be black-and-white on ABC-TV next season in the Monday night 7:30-8:30 p.m. slot, thus washing out original plan to film the series in color. 20th's theatrical release some years back, from whence the skein derives, was a tint job in consideration of story values, and same thinking figured in early plans for the teleseries.



For tv, color processing would have added another $20,000 cost per seg, and about $600,000 over the season. Simply not enough color sets cross-country to warrant the expense.

As of now, only Coca Cola has made a commitment to the series.

Liston-Clay K.O. ARB

The Liston-Clay title fight film packed a punch for ABC via Saturday's (11) "Wide World of Sports," gaining the hands-down decision for the 5-6 p.m. period in the overnight Arbitron.

The bout pic helped "Wide World" to a 12.8 average rating for the hour, while the Masters Golf match on CBS nailed a 6.9 and NBC's "Sports Special" pulled 3.0.

JACK BARRY

Now producing five pilots for CBS-TV—Paramount TV Production Development program

Le Grove, Scot TV Topper, To O.O. U.S. Properties & Show Off 2 of His Own

London, April 14.

Gerry Le Grove, Scottish-TV's program topper, is scheduled to plane out for New York on April 19 on a week-long trip, prime object of which will be to o.o. the new U.S. shows. Exec points out that requirements of Scottish-TV from the point of view of program acquistions is often different from the rest of the U.K. For instance, STV was the only British station to run the Yank golf championships series.

On a previous trip, Le Grove found that American distributors were loath to sell the "really big series" to a British regional station, unless that station bought the full U.K. rights. He claims he showed interest in both "The Defenders" and "Dr. Kildare" way back in 1961 but could not effect a buy. Both shows were subsequently sold to the BBC network.

This year, he says, his station may take a chance and buy the full U.K. rights to a major U.S. skein if, in his opinion, the property is hot enough.

Accompanying Le Grove will be two cans of STV film—one a print of the station post graduate medicine series, the second of its documentaries on Scotland's regiments, "The Fighting Scot."

Brit. Prod. Harry Fine Maps 'Tom Jones' Series

London, April 14.

Producer Harry Fine, responsible in the past 18 months for 33 vidfilms including the "Man of the World" and "Sentimental Agent" skeins, is readying another telefilm series, "The Further Adventures of Tom Jones." Show will be made by Fine's Fantale Films production unit at either Shepperton or Pinewood this summer.

Budget for 13 one-hour segments has reportedly been set at almost $1,000,000 and writers such as Tudor Gates, John Hopkins, Jack Whittington, Jesse Laskie Jr. and Peter Lamda are being mentioned in connection with the show. Ian Stuart Black, associated with many ITC vidfilms, is set as story editor.

WARREN EXITS DESILU

Hollywood, April 14.

Producer Charles Marquis Warren has exited Desilu Studios, where he developed a vidproject which he had created.

Warren series for Desilu was "The Green Horns," a 60-min. oater.

ABC's $6-Mil for Politics

Further indication of ABC's challenge in the three-network news sweeps is the web's coin commitment for this year's political fireworks. It's between $5,000,000 and $6,000,000, with upward of another $350,000 allocated for promotion. That's a four-fold or so jump from the 1960 budget.

An ABC exec acknowledges the current budget is still considerably under CBS and NBC outlays, but stresses that in terms of basic on-air performance, "You don't have to match dollar for dollar."

Mahalia Jackson's 78G Suit Vs. TV Enterprises

Hollywood, April 14.

Mahalia Jackson and an Illinois-based firm—Songs For Praise Inc.—of which the Columbia Records artist is president, filed a breach of contract suit in Superior Court, L.A., Friday (10) against Television Enterprises Corp. and prexy Harold Goldman.

Miss Jackson, repped by law firm of Ely, Kadison & Quinn, charges the defendants' breach of a distribution deal on the Mahalia Jackson Television Show (80 five-minute segs) caused damages amounting to $78,348.

Suit further alleges that Goldman, also a shareholder in the plaintiff corp., breached his fiduciary duties to Songs For Praise by virtue of the manner in which he operated the defendant firm, Television Enterprises.

Complaint also charges Goldman and the defendant corporation have garnered additional monies from distribution of the Mahalia Jackson Show, which have not been paid to the plaintiffs. Latter seek a new accounting.

'Impressions' May Switch to ABC-TV

Producer Monty Hall is understood to be holding confabs with ABC-TV exploring the possibility of "Your First Impressions" switching from NBC-TV to ABC-TV. Daytimer "YFI" has enjoyed a two-and-a-half year ride on NBC-TV and is up for renewal at the end of June.

Also involved in the ABC-TV talks is a new Hall game show, "Three of a Kind." ABC-TV acquired "Price Is Right" and "Missing Links" from NBC-TV in the past.

4 HAWAIIAN STATIONS SOLD TO U.S. GROUP

Honolulu, April 14.

Owners of Honolulu Star-Bulletin have agreed to sell KGMB-TV and KGMB radio, Honolulu, and KHBC-TV and KHBC radio, Hilo, to the Glasmann-Hatch-Heftel interests of Utah, Arizona and Idaho.

Sale of the CBS affiliates is for an undisclosed price and subject, of course, to FCC approval.

Cecil Heftel, of Phoenix, said the new owners plan to retain Joseph Herold as general manager of the Honolulu facilities, Wayne Killmer as station manager of KGMB radio, and Harold Marques as KHBC station supervisor.

Mainland group owns radio and/or tv outlets in Salt Lake City and Ogden, Utah, and Twin Falls and Boise, Idaho. KGMB-TV was Hawaii's first television station, beginning operation in 1952. KGMB Radio dates back to 1930.

Irna Phillips Pacted As ABC-TV Consultant

Irna Phillips, the radio-tv scripter who's been known as "queen of the soapers," has signed on with ABC-TV as consultant for nighttime dramatic programs. This is possibly a precedential post, for one thing, and for another gives Miss Phillips association with all three webs. She currently scripts "As The World Turns" for CBS daytime, and will author "Another World" bowing on NBC next month.

Among the next-season programs she'll be concerned with is the two-a-week "Peyton Place" series, which ABC is frankly touting as primetime's "first serial drama."

Miss Phillips has long been Chicago-based and presumably will do the commuting bit to the 20th-Fox lot where "Peyton" shoots.

Program Directors Form Own Org, First Meeting Set for May in N.Y.

Chicago, April 14.

A new industry organization, the National Assn. of Television Program Executives, which already has signed up 50 member stations, has its first meet May 11-12 at the New York Hilton. Stan Cohen, director of program planning and promotion for WDSU-TV, New Orleans, is chairing the interim board until permanent members are elected.

Agenda for the initial conclave includes a session titled "TV Station Programming: Art or Business?" in which Bennett Korn of Metromedia and Mike Shapiro of WFAA-TV, Dallas, will take part, and one on "The Network's Relationship to Local Programming" whose panel will consist of ABC's Julie Barnathan, CBS's Mike Dann and NBC's Grant Tinker.

Lew Klein, of WFIL-TV, Philadelphia, and Roy Smith of WLAC-TV, Nashville, Tenn., will speak on "Successful Formats for Handling Politicians and Political Issues"; and the topic, "How Does a Station Seek Out Community Needs?" will be discussed by Wes Harris of WNBC-TV, New York, and Tom Jones of the Triangle group. "Where Do You Find Talent?" has been assigned to Bob Guy of the Storer stations and Chuck Hinds of WBBM-TV, Chicago.

FCC commissioner Robert E. Lee and Washington attorney Ted Pierson will address themselves to the subject of "Government's Influence on Programming"; and Sid Cohen of Film Service Corp. and Joe Kotler of Warner Bros. will speak on "Present and Future Trends in Film Programming: Features & Series."

ABC Sports' Hot Sales Pacing

Fact that NBC and CBS have been the sports page headliners of late (with NCAA, AFL, NFL and kindred razzle-dazzle) has tended to obscure ABC's very-much-with-it status in the sports rivalry. In range of programming, including bluechip events, ABC is actually a formidable contender for image honors. Sales execs at the web chip in the additional point that ABC's sports sked this semester is almost SRO.

Backtracking to the Winter Olympics package (with full sponsorship billings of $5,400,000), but exeluding the every-Saturday "Wide World of Sports" spex, the net will be spacing nearly a score of athletic events this year.

Apart from the windup season of 18 AFL games, the net has lined up a clutch of bowl and "classic" grid contests, including: the 'Gator, Bluebonnet, North-South, Liberty, Coaches' All-American, and the college allstar-NFL champs tilt.

Golf offerings include the Arnie Palmer-Gary Player challenge tourney, Buick Open, Thunderbird Open, and the American Golf Classic. More Olympics coverage is on tap per the U.S. trials in July for the summer Tokyo games. And also upcoming is the Yank-Soviet track meet.

Sales nabobs at the web are also rah-rah over the 90% sellout status of the weekly "Wide World" series.

TIME-LIFE B'CAST CORP.'S SWITCHEROO

Washington, April 14.

A Time-Life Broadcast corporate switcheroo was okayed by FCC's Broadcast Bureau.

The exchange, sans coin, puts the Time-Life stations under a new Michigan subsidiary of the parent Time-Life corporation. The old Minnesota corporation and the new Michigan entity have the same monicker — Time-Life Broadcast Inc.

Under the switch WTCN-AM-TV, Minneapolis, which was previously wholly owned by the parent corporation, comes under the domain of the new Michigan organization. Falling into the same corporate parentage are WOOD-AM-FM-TV, Grand Rapids, Mich. and WFBM-AM-FM-TV, Indianapolis.

CBS O & O'S—MUSIC HALLS OF AIR

A Man in Quest of An Image

Chicago, April 14.

Superintendent of Chicago Public Schools Benjamin Willis, a man with a public image to improve, has turned to the medium that he spurned, television. Always an unwilling interviewee, and especially when he was at the centre of controversy, Willis has impressed televiewers as arrogant, feisty and evasive.

Whether under political advice, or out of his own realization that the school system and he personally are in need of better public relations, Willis has suddenly arranged for a raft of exposure on the local airwaves. He'll take part in a new Saturday afternoon series on WBBM-TV called "The Growing Years," which will attempt to show what's being done to upgrade teaching methods in the Chicago schools; and he will submit to a 10-week series of appearances with his advisory staff on another half-hour program that is to be shared on an alternate week basis by WGN-TV and WBKB. As yet, there's nothing set for WNBQ, probably because of commentator Len O'Connor's continuing snipes at Willis and a documentary that advocated a survey that Willis opposed.

The school superintendent is regarded variously by the public as a symbol of de facto segregation in public schools, as a petulant autocrat who quits when he does not get his way with the School Board, and as a greedy operator who took a side job with the public school system in Massachusetts although he was already one of the highest paid public officials in the nation. Presumably, the new television series are intended to give a better personal account of him.

CBS-TV in Policy Statement About Xerox-UN 6 'Drama' Specials

CBS-TV, in a statement of policy, spelled out why it rejected carrying any of the six Xerox drama specials on the United Nations. The six specials, now slated for ABC-TV and NBC-TV starting next January, are designed to dramatize the full scope of UN activities.

"We cannot fairly or properly permit such a series because we agree with its purpose—and then play God by rejecting another similarly arranged series designed to propagandize for some less popular objective," said Dick Salant, v.p. and assistant to CBS prexy Frank Stanton, in a policy memorandum.

"Acceptance of this series," the memorandum continued, "cannot be ad hoc; it would establish a vital precedential principle. And so, the John Birch Society could demand that we broadcast a series of documentaries and dramas, produced by it, designed to establish its virtues. Or the Get the UN Out of the U.S. Committee could make a similar demand.

"The question, then, is not whether the UN is good or bad; or whether those who propose these programs are benevolent and worthy. The question is whether this is good, responsible broadcasting and journalism. Clearly, it is not."

The heart of the CBS-TV objection is that the series content would be propagandistic in nature and outside the control of the network. When first proposed last fall the 90-minute specials, which have

(Continued on page 45)

From Tokyo With Love

Frankfurt, April 14.

On April 16 Europeans will be able to watch international television history in the making, as the first direct transmission from Telstar II will bring a program direct from Japan to Europe.

The French station at Plumeurbodou is scheduled to pick up a 15 to 20-minute show in which Minister President Ikeda and Post Minister Koike send greetings from the Japanese people in Tokyo to Europe.

The direct transmission will be shown throughout Europe on Eurovision. Street scenes of Tokyo, pictures of temples and the Kaiser's palace, will also be presented. Aim of the program is to stir up added interest for the Olympic Games which start October 10 in Tokyo.

UAW Bids FCC Reject M'media Sale of KOVR-TV

Washington, April 14.

The United Auto Workers, AFL-CIO, revealed its plant to hit Metromedia with a double whammy protest over cancellation of a union - sponsored program on WCBM-AM, Baltimore.

UAW petitioned FCC to reject Metromedia's bid to sell its KOVR-TV, Sacramento to the McClatchey Newspapers. Pointing to the company's prediction it would be going after another California outlet, UAW said it would oppose any attempt by Metromedia to increase its holdings.

The Union averred Metromedia was "not a fit applicant" for new broadcast properties. The UAW hassle arose when WCBM failed to renew the contract of the union program "Eye Opener."

Tornado Warning

Wichita Falls, Tex., April 14.

KAUZ-TV was indirectly credited with saving a number of lives when a tornado struck the city. Thousands watched on television as the S shaped funnel weaved across a residential area and across Sheppard Air Force Base.

Two nights prior to the tornado the outlet had televised a 15-minute program on what to do if a tornado strikes. One thing mentioned was to go in a hall and lie down if there were no storm cellar. Some of the survivors of the tornado mentioned lying down in their halls.

Tugend to Helm 6 Hope Specials

Hollywood, April 14.

Producer Harry Tugend has been signed by Bob Hope's Hopics company to produce all six of the hour-long films made under the Hopics aegis in the Hope-Chrysler anthology series on NBC-TV next season. Tugend produced five of Hopics' six telefilms this season. Other pix in the anthology are produced by Revue, with Dick Berg as exec producer.

New deal, which gives Tugend a pay hike, also calls for additional duties on his part. Where this past season, the Revue-made projects were scanned by Hope's agent, James Saphier, for approval on behalf of the star-host, Tugend next semester will okay the Revue projects for the series.

Hope will star in two of the six films, as he did this season. Tugend is currently negotiating for properties for the 1964-65 semester.

Tugend's original comedy, "The Wayward Stork," goes into rehearsal in N.Y. June 15, with Philip Langner and Joel Schenker producing the legiter. United Artists is bankrolling the venture.

LACK OF PRODUCT & SEX WORRIES

Five CBS-TV o&o's, which in their feature booking operation, could be compared to N.Y.'s Radio City Music Hall, have a sufficient backlog of "A" pix for another five to seven years.

What concerns the pix programmers of these gold antenna stations is not only the diminuition of the cinematic product pool, but the adult nature of current motion pictures.

"Look at this year's Academy Award nominees," says Merle Jones, prexy of CBS Television Stations. Being more specific was Hal Hough, v.p. of program services for the CBS o&o's. "We wouldn't play 'Tom Jones,' 'Room at the Top,' 'Yesterday, Today, Tomorrow,'" he said, by way of illustration.

The magnitude of the golden antennas of the CBS o&o's can be gleaned by the grossing performance of WCBS-TV, N.Y. The flagship station in N.Y. currently is grossing around $40,000,000 annually, the top money maker in the nation and the world. (N.Y. Radio City Music Hall pulls in close to $7,500,000 annually at the box-office, according to estimates).

The $40,000,000 poured into the till of WCBS-TV by advertisers is an estimated figure, derived from sources other than Jones and Hough, who declined to address themselves to o&o grosses. That features play a significant role in that $40,000,000 payoff isn't any secret, for ever since pix made their mark in tv, the CBS-TV o&o's have been giving them prominent display on their non-network schedule, buying heavily into the libraries of Metro, Columbia, Universal, et al.

Features' Future

What of the future? CBS o&o v.p. Hough said standards change. What was chancy and iffy 10 years ago now is being played on tv, he said. Judicious editing can make some pix playable, he went on. Other pix, though, if the CBS o&o retains its policy of trying to be the Music Hall of the air, are not, he stated. In this connection, he mentioned some titles which he considered unplayable by CBS o&o's. Other stations with different standards — not necessarily better ——can choose to play those pix, he acknowledged. ("Room at the Top," distributed by Walter Reade-Sterling, has had wide tv exposure, and in many instances, to good rating results.)

Hough, who said that the CBS-TV o&o's would retain their Music Hall status despite the growing shortage of pix, said the problem of violence and blatant sex cannot be solved by relegating such pix to telecasting in the late evening. Teenagers compose a signficant slice of late night audiences, he said. Sex in a comedy situation, Hough stated, is much more acceptable.

Hough said he personally enjoyed "Tom Jones" and "Yesterday, Today, Tomorrow" in the theatre. It's one thing, though, he maintained to be a paying patron of a theatre, choosing the film to see, and another thing to telecast a movie in the home, which can be viewed without conscious choice and without regard to age.

CBS Television Stations prexy Jones had no ready answer to the problem, other than saying the o&o's will continue to be avid bidders for pix the stations consider acceptable.

Shuffle-Off to Chi

Ron Cochran's staff at ABC News continues to suffer erosion.

His associate producer on the evening news strip, Ev Aspinwall, moved to Chicago in January as bureau chief in the Windy City. Now Cochran's secretary, Valerie Reichman, is also heading for Chi —to become Mrs. Aspinwall. Date is April 18.

N.Y. Papers Recognizing TV-Radio 'Newsmaker Shows', Crediting Now Common; T'aint So in Other Cities

By JACK PITMAN

In New York, coyness and old enmities have been going out of fashion. Broadcasters have begun acknowledging one another, and the newspapers have been acknowledging the broadcasters.

Monday's editions, especially the morning gazettes famished for news, are not only zealous about covering the Sunday "newsmaker" programs, but have become almost scrupulous about the station identification. This new (or reverse) militancy on the part of city editors over the past year or so has not been lost on the broadcasters.

For one thing, some of the town's stations no longer fear audience defections if they, too, should credit the other fellow's interview stanza. As yet this is a very limited courtesy, to be sure, but there is every reason to think the contagion may spread, given enough time.

For another consequence of the citydesk turnabout, the griddle format cooks on all burners come Sunday in Gotham. It lends a certain tone to the logs when they're shipped down to the FCC; and if you can land with credit on page one of Monday's paper, what better way to burnish the image for community service?

With these inducements, there's hardly a major licensee in town who hasn't found room for the format in his Sunday schedule. Even the "rock" stations are with it, and the resultant clamor for politicos and other controversialists sometimes has the choicer ones on the bicycle.

Distinction

Another facet to this is the grim rivalry in the nation's top market for news and pubaffairs distinction. Some of the operators don't take chances in the image race. At one station, the on-air promo for a Sabbath newsmaker session calls attention to "the panel program that makes news in Monday's papers." And there's WNBC-TV's attempt to cover the whole ground with "Your community-minded station" at the identification breaks. (No room for any others under the toga.)

As for the newspaper's generosity with credits, there's a theory that by their example the blatts hope to persuade station news editors to uniformly perform likewise. As it stands, some do, others don't.

However that may be, the more cogent reason, expressed on both

(Continued on page 43)

Bloom At the Top

According to the CBS proxy statement, issued for today's (Wed.) annual stockholders meeting in Chicago, CBS chairman William S. Paley and CBS prexy Frank Stanton had salaries of $150,000 each in '63.

James Aubrey's salary was listed at $124,904 as prexy of CBS-TV; and Merle S. Jones, prexy of CBS Television Stations, had a '63 salary of $114,942. CBS Radio prexy Arthur Hull Hayes' salary was put at $65,000, Goddard Liebarson, Columbia Records prez, $60,000; and Richard S. Salant, $60,000.

Number of shares of stock owned by William S. Paley and associates is 2,130,478, according to the proxy statement. As an individual Paley was listed as holding 1,749,956 shares; Stanton 300,528 and Aubrey was reported to own close to 25,000 shares.

In addition to their respective salaries, Aubrey received $100,000 as paid out additional compensation, Paley and Stanton, each $161,875 paid out as additional compensation.

What's Up at G-T? Sit Down & Just Play the Game

It should come as no surprise to anybody in the tv business what goes on in the conference room at Goodson-Todman. They sit around and play games—their own.

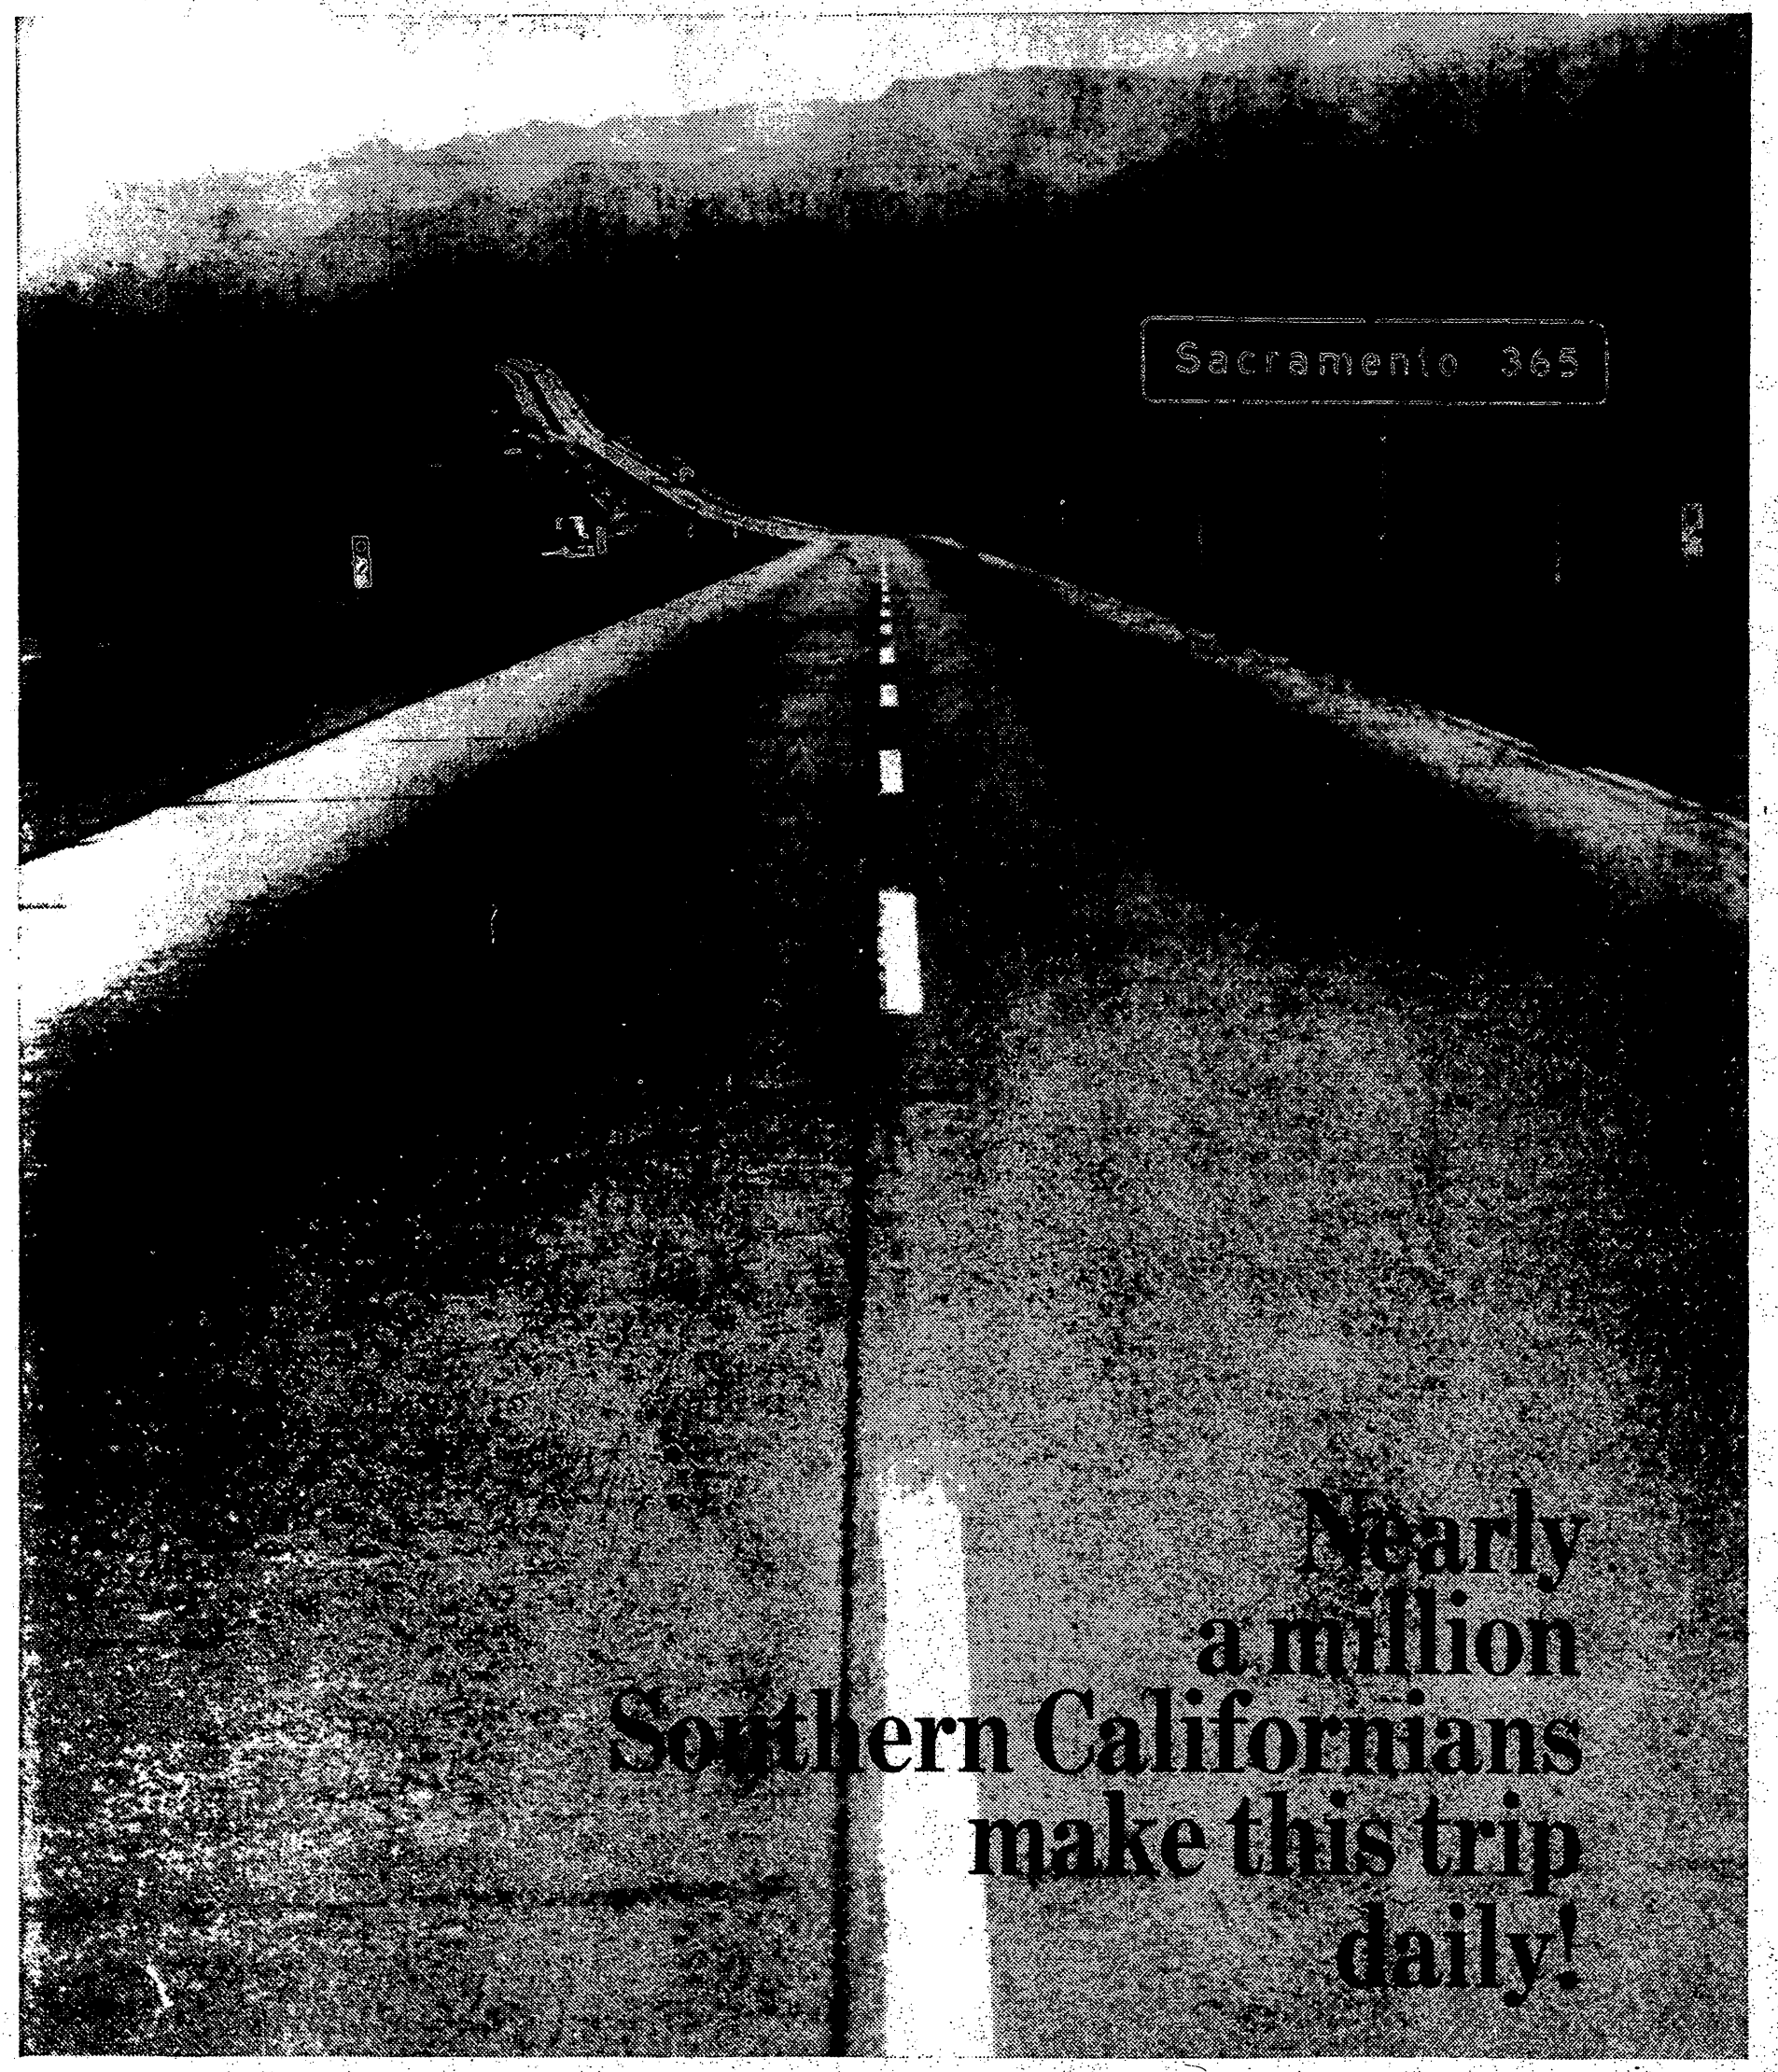
At least that's what they do every other Friday afternoon. This frivolity, however, is not just a warmup for weekend festivities. It's a hard search for celeb panel talents to fill the needs of the score of games the company puts on the networks each week. Last year (G-T had to fill 640 celeb spots on their shows.

These fortnightly auditions are conducted by Bob Bach, associate producer of Goodson-Todman's "What's My Line?," who started the whole thing last September and who keeps a large chart in his office on the guest tryouts. Roster of hopefuls is a diverse cross-section of show biz and related fields. It has included Brian O'Doherty, N.Y. Times art critic and WNBC-TV discussion-panel host; Blanche Thebom, Bert Bacharach, Dagmar, Rita Gam, Ted Steele, Gloria Okon, Long John Nebel, Les Crane, Robert Earle, Johnny Desmond, Barbara Baxley, Corbett Monica, Bob Haymes, Anita Louise, Robert Clary, Larry Storch, Forrest Tucker, Nancy Berg, Joya Sherill, Bernice Massi and numerous others.

System has turned up a number of new panelists, including Joey Forman for "Missing Links"; Daryl Hickman, for "The Match Game"; Joel Gray, "Price Is Right"; Jane Harvey, "Password"; Nancy Dussault, "To Tell the Truth."

Last Friday's (10) session had Tom O'Malley, formerly with "Candid Camera," Marty Ingels of "I'm Dickens, He's Fenster," and Dudley Moore of "Beyond the Fringe" playing "Password" and "What's My Line?." Two femme guests were unable to make it.

The conference room contests demonstrate a couple of things for an observer: those old pro panelists on "Line" have learned a lot in their 14 years on the air (the hopefuls took a half-hour to sight in on a single segment), and the games off the air can be gamier.



Froug's New Post At CBS H'wood

Hollywood, April 14.

William Froug has been named as exec producer of dramatic programs of CBS-TV in Hollywood by coast program veepee Hunt Stromberg Jr., in the latest of a series of top echelon moves made by Stromberg since his appointment last month as top program man for the network here. Sol Saks was recently appointed by Stromberg as exec producer in the area of comedy programming, as part of the new policy of strengthening program operations in Hollywood.

Froug, in his new spot, will be in charge of general supervision of all CBS-TV's dramatic series originating from the coast, and his new assignment will also include substantial involvement with program development.

Froug produced "Twilight Zone" the past season, and prior to that was producer of "Mr. Novak" for MGM-TV. He began as a producer-director with the Columbia Radio Workshop, and was named program veepee for CBS Radio in Hollywood in 1956, moving into tv the next year.

Nearly a million Southern Californians make this trip daily!

At KNXT, good news travels fast and far. It has to... to keep Southern Californians up-to-the-minute on what's happening throughout their booming, multi-faceted state, the nation's largest.

Latest example: Channel 2's recently-established Sacramento News Bureau, the first and only news bureau established by a Los Angeles station in the state capital (365 miles away!). And the only television news bureau located right in the Capitol building. Each weeknight, on "The Big News" (which reaches more homes per quarter hour than all competing local news broadcasts combined*), viewers are taken to the Capitol via special filmed reports. For the first time, audiences are in close touch with the Governor, members of the State Assembly (50% of whom are from the KNXT coverage area) and other state officials for immediate word on matters of vital concern to themselves and their community.

KNXT's Sacramento News Bureau typifies local television that ranges far and wide to hit home. Thus, Southern Californians seeking a clear picture of important events—world, national and local—need travel only as far as Channel 2 on the dial. That's one reason they make that trip so often.

CBS Owned • Channel 2, Los Angeles • Represented by CBS Television Stations National Sales ◉KNXT

*Latest ARB estimates, subject to qualifications which KNXT will supply on request.

DANNY A-OKAY ON O'SEAS TV

London's Hot Rating Sweepstakes

London, April 14.

Rediffusion, London weekday major commercial tv station, is hitting a hot stride in its race for ratings with BBC-TV in the plum London area. For example, the skilled deployment of programming on the Monday-to-Friday run, yielded the big indie nine places in the London area's Top 20 shows for the week ended March 29.

Rediffusion's figure compares with BBC's lesser performance of five shows in the Top 20 (though all BBC's shows are in the Top 11) while Associated TeleVision, which works the London area at weekends, has four shows in the same list. Granada's networked "Coronation Street" (Mondays and Wednesdays) gives the Northern major the remaining two places in the top score shows.

Rediffusion's big pull in the capital on the week in question also accelerates the station's participation in the network Top 20 listings where, with seven shows installed therein, it is far and away the most successful program station of the week. In the network chart, BBC-TV has four shows, ditto ATV. Granada has three and ABC-TV has two.

Looks Like the Indies Will Lead Majors, 37 to 23, for '64 Season

Hollywood, April 14.

Indie telefilmeries, which gained dominance over the major studio vidpix subsids only recently, increase that edge for the 1964-65 season, with 37 shows on the networks, as compared to 23 for the majors. Additionally, the indie shows represent 25 hours of programming in prime time a week, as compared to 18 hours a week from the majors.

Total score for next semester isn't in yet, as there are still a few decisions to be made, principally at ABC-TV, but obviously the remaining deals won't reverse the indie edge over the majors.

Factors for the indies' boom in importance are diverse, but probably the leading reason is the penchant of CBS-TV for indies. Virtually all of its product next season will be from the smaller companies, in line with prexy James T. Aubrey Jr.'s preference for the indies and his belief more tailor-made product comes from these sources.

For example, Revue studios, No. 1 in the industry volume-wise, has only one series, "The Munsters," on CBS-TV next season. Aubrey has let it be known he has no yen for the majors, principally because when they present a series idea to the web, they cannot usually tell him what creator will be involved in the follow-through on that idea. Aubrey believes strongly in the manpower involved in any series the web buys.

Still another, and obvious, reason for the flourishing of the indies is their success. They have delivered most of tv's hits overs the years, coming up with series such as "Ben Casey," "The Lucy Show," "The Danny Thomas Show," "The Defenders," "The Beverly Hillbillies," "The Dick Van Dyke Show," and in earlier years, "Dragnet" and "I Love Lucy."

Steve Allison's 'Advise & Dissent' Comments On Pacifica Brouhaha

Washington, April 14.

He may not be a station owner but WWDC's Steve Allison has been anything but silent during the Pacifica brouhaha.

The reason FCC Chairman E. William Henry might not have mentioned Allison in his Chicago critique of Pacifica vis a vis commercials was that Allison also registered his objections to FCC's proposed blurb curbs on his nightly talk show

Like almost everything else Allison talks about, his Pacifica jibes at FCC did not go without listener opposition.

Among those heatedly urging a closer look at Pacifica's controversial programming was an American Legion topper.

Since Henry let the secret out in Chicago, Allison brought back the Pacifica topic for review in his "advise and dissent" style nightly colloquy.

Son of White Horse

Have a flash: Whatever else replays at next year's NAB powwow (in Washington), the Triangle stations are planning to reprise their White Horse Inn, one of the big hospitality suite clicks at the Chicago meet.

This time, though, all windows will be shut before the mock pub is locked in place.

Chi Stations Use Pundits to Hypo Ill. Primary News

Chicago, April 14.

WBBM-TV attempted to glamorize its coverage of the Illinois primary returns today (Tues.) by latching onto former Gov. William G. Stratton as its political expert, a la ABC-TV with former President Eisenhower in upcoming events.

WBKB, in a similar competitive bid for audience, made local use of network commentators Edward P. Morgan and Howard K. Smith who had come in to cover the Presidential primaries for ABC. The network felt the additional local exposure given to its new one-two punch would help to establish them better here.

CBS had sent in Walter Cronkite and NBC Frank McGee and Sander Vanocur, but they cofined their service to the network reports.

Jones Questions 'Farm Team' Talent Theory

Proposals that local broadcasters act as the "farm team" for network talent were met with some skepticism by Merle Jones, CBS Television Stations prexy.

Jones said he agreed in theory with the proposals. He also pointed out that the five CBS-TV o&o's have the "Repertory Workshop" project, designed to utilize and showcase local talent, a project which occasionally has graduated its participants to bigger things. In practice, though, he said station managers have advised him that in the cities of St. Louis, Chicago and Philadelphia, there just isn't enough local talent to support a richly financed, prime time local series in the dramatic and musical vein. (St. Louis, Chicago and Philadelphia are the markets other than N.Y. and Los Angeles, in which CBS-TV has o&o's.)

The "farm team" talent proposals for local TV broadcasters were made at the recent National Assn. of Broadcasters convention by Mike Dann, CBS-TV programming V.P., and Dick Pack of Westinghouse.

HOT EUROPEAN SALES PACING

London, April 14.

A rich new vein of European program sales gold has been opened up—a strike of such significance, and of such a rich yield, that it could substantially increase not only the take from program sales in Europe, but could also increase America's world vidfilm sales total.

If the vein does not run out after the first pickings, offshore Yank prospectors who toil in the rock-hard European markets stand to make more from their localized centre of activity than is currently being made globally. If, at the moment, an American hour skein can be expected to make aything from $24,000 per segment (in practice) to $40,000 (in theory) from round-the-globe sales, then from here on in U.S. distribs can look for a figure well in excess of the latter from Europe alone, a market which at present yields around $26,000 per hour (if the U.K. is included).

Mining the first of this new, brighter sales gold is Danny Kaye. His vidtape hour show, being sold internationally by Ashley-Steiner, is reportedly fetching 300% more than the going rate.

Sold to BBC-TV and eight continental markets, the Kaye show has thus far racked up sales coin in excess of $43,000 per show, which compares with the more normal $16,500 sales gross for an hour telefilm sold in identical markets. If current dickers with such nations as Spain, Portugal, Austria and Switzerland materialize into solid sales, it is estimated that the Kaye shows will take $50,000 per hour out of Europe and the U.K.

Unprecedented vigor of the Kaye sales — which reportedly earned $15,000 per episode (for 26 episodes) from BBC, a web which previously balked at figures beyond $7,000 per hour—have laid bare the fact that, as savvy distribs have always suspected, the

(Continued on page 43)

CBS-TV o&o's 4th Int'l Pgm. Swap

The CBS o&o tv stations will conduct their fourth annual international program exchange with eight broadcasters from other countries beginning in May.

"International Hour: Music from Hollywood," produced at the Hollywood Bowl by KNXT, Los Angeles, in cooperation with the Composers and Lyricists Guild of America, will be the CBS o&o contribution to the exchange. Actor Ray Milland will host the program which will present motion picture scores and songs performed by leading composers conducting the Hollywood Bowl Symphony.

Following the American broadcast of the Hollywood program on the network's o&o's, it will be seen on the facilities of overseas broadcasters participating in the exchange. As in the past, each broadcaster will contribute a one-hour program to the exchange for showing in all participating countries.

The following broadcasters will participate in the '64 exchange: PROARTEL (Argentina); Australian Broadcasting Commission; Canadian Broadcasting Corp.; Radiodiffusion Television Francaise (France); RAI, Italy; Tokyo Broadcasting System, (Japan); Norddeutscher Rundfunk (West Germany); and Yugoslave Radiotelevision (Yugoslavia) France has entered the project for the first time.

England isn't represented because BBC and the commercial broadcasters there are of the opinion that the U.S. market should be sold, as opposed to a program contribution to the "International Hour" project, aimed at granting a showcase for programs from foreign sources and increasing international understanding.

'Zero Minus Six and Counting' As BBC-2 Prepares For Launching; Set Makers Push New UHF Net

London, April 14.

Countdown on BBC-2, the Corporation's $112,000,000 UHF TV network, which costs around $22,000,000 a year to keep on the airwaves, has begun. The new project on the launch pad and heating up for its mammoth thrust off on April 29, has been readied in last-minute haste, with no time to test-prove certain vital program components. It is now being actively ignited for the first major pioneer TV launch this country has seen in almost a decade.

BBC-2's spiral upwards into steller audience figures, with its rich payload comprising a 30-hour, multi-million dollar entertainment and enlightenment schedule, is destined to be a slow and laborious climb—assuming it doesn't blow apart at the off. But the great weight of having to entice an audience to convert receivers or buy new ones (in order to get BBC-2's UHF transmissions) is, ominously, matched by the problem of cutting through the entrenched ratings which have piled up around certain stellar shows on the existing video outlets.

For instance, experts agree that the 20,000,000 audience figure of Granada's Monday and Wednesday show "Coronation Street" is likely to prove impenetrable if BBC-2 loses any of its initial boost —provided by the curiosity value —which, with luck, will send the new station straightaway into between 250-500,000 London homes. It's calculated that the might of BBC-2's key Monday night component, "The Danny Kaye Show," running back-to-back with "The Virginian," will indeed have to be superhuman to cut into a show that all other BBC productions have failed to penetrate.

Throughout the week, the scattered high raters on the commercial web present formidable hazards to the existing BBC network, and shows like Associated Television's "Sunday Night At The London Palladium," Rediffusion's "Take Your Pick," "Double Your Money," ABC-TV's "The Avengers" have withstood every onslaught that BBC-1 has hurled at them and still remain supreme in the top rated positions.

On the Path

But, significantly, not only does BBC-2 have to overcome such hazards thrown up by commercial TV in the push towards its ultimate goal of rating supremacy, but while in some cases the new web will be aided by the existing BBC outlet (promos, etc.), in other cases, such as the competition offered up by a "Z Cars," a "Step-

(Continued on page 46)

Chimp's Champ

Chicago, April 14.

The chimpanzee which frolicked at the hospitality suite of Desilu Sales at the recent Television Film Exhibit here made such a hit with Desilu midwest sales manager Bob Neece that he went out and bought a chimp for himself.

Neece plans to use the chimp on sales calls, the chimp travelling with him in his station wagon, along with negatives of the "Greatest Show on Earth." "It will open doors," he says, referring to the chimp.

4 Star Reports First-Half Loss, Future Brighter

Los Angeles, April 14.

Four Star Television said today (Tues.) that it is "looking forward with optimism" to the fiscal year beginning June 28, 1964, despite the fact it recorded a net operating loss for the first half of the current fiscal year.

In an interim report to stockholders, Thomas J. McDermott, president, and George A. Elber, exec v.p., said the company will have a greater number of films and live shows on tv during the 1964-65 season and added they are anticipating "continuing advances also within our other divisions and subsidiaries."

Four Star reported that for the 26 weeks ending Dec. 28, 1963, the first half of the company's current fiscal year, gross income totaled $5,762,459, compared to $11,718,963 for the same period last year. Net loss for the period was $339,754 as opposed to a net profit for the same period last year of $187,117.

The report cited two "special reasons" as contributing to the loss. The first was that Four Star had only one show on network tv. The report said the second reason stemmed from the production and subsequent cancellation of the "New Robert Taylor Show."

At the same time, however, the company reported it had sold "The Rogues," a new hour show starring David Niven, Gig Young and Charles Boyer, to NBC-TV for the 1964-65 season and that the high-rated "Burke's Law," starring Gene Barry, had been renewed by ABC-TV.

Shareholders also were informed that reruns of "Ensign O'Toole," originally shown on NBC-TV, had been sold to ABC-TV for weekly broadcasting this spring and that "Celebrity Game," a new panel show with Carl Reiner as host, had been purchased by CBS-TV. It's being shown Sunday evenings.

In addition, Four Star reported it had completed production of its first full-length motion picture,

(Continued on page 43)

Limit BBC-2; 30 Hours Programming Per Wk.

London, April 14.

Postmaster-General, minister in charge of broadcasting, has limited the time BBC-2 can stay on the airwaves to 30 hours a week (not including outside broadcasts).

BBC-2, the UHF, 625-line service which the Corporation launches on Monday (20) has been temporarily curbed, it's said, because to grant it further scope might well necessitate an increase in the $11.20 license fee before the general election. Such a move's considered to be a major vote loser.

Taft Switches K.C. & Cincy Personnel In Exec Reassignments

Cincinnati, April 14.

Taft Broadcasting has been quick to do some exec juggling in the wake of its acquisition of Transcontinent stations in three markets.

Realignments, as of last week, involve Cincy's WKRC and newly-acquired WDAF in Kansas City. William A. Bates, veep and g.m. at the Kaycee properties, has been switched to the chain's h.q. here and given what's described as a "general executive capacity." Robert Wormington has been promoted from manager to g.m. of WDAF-TV; and Nick Bolton, who has been g.m. of WKRC-AM, moves over to WDAF-AM in same capacity.

Replacing Bolton at WKRC is Jack Remington, vet on-air personality here, and latterly the station's program director since '62. To complete the musical chairs bit, his p.d. berth has been handed to Ted McKay, chief announcer at the station.

THE SAMUEL GOLDWYN LIBRARY OF FILMS IS NOW AVAILABLE FOR TELEVISION!

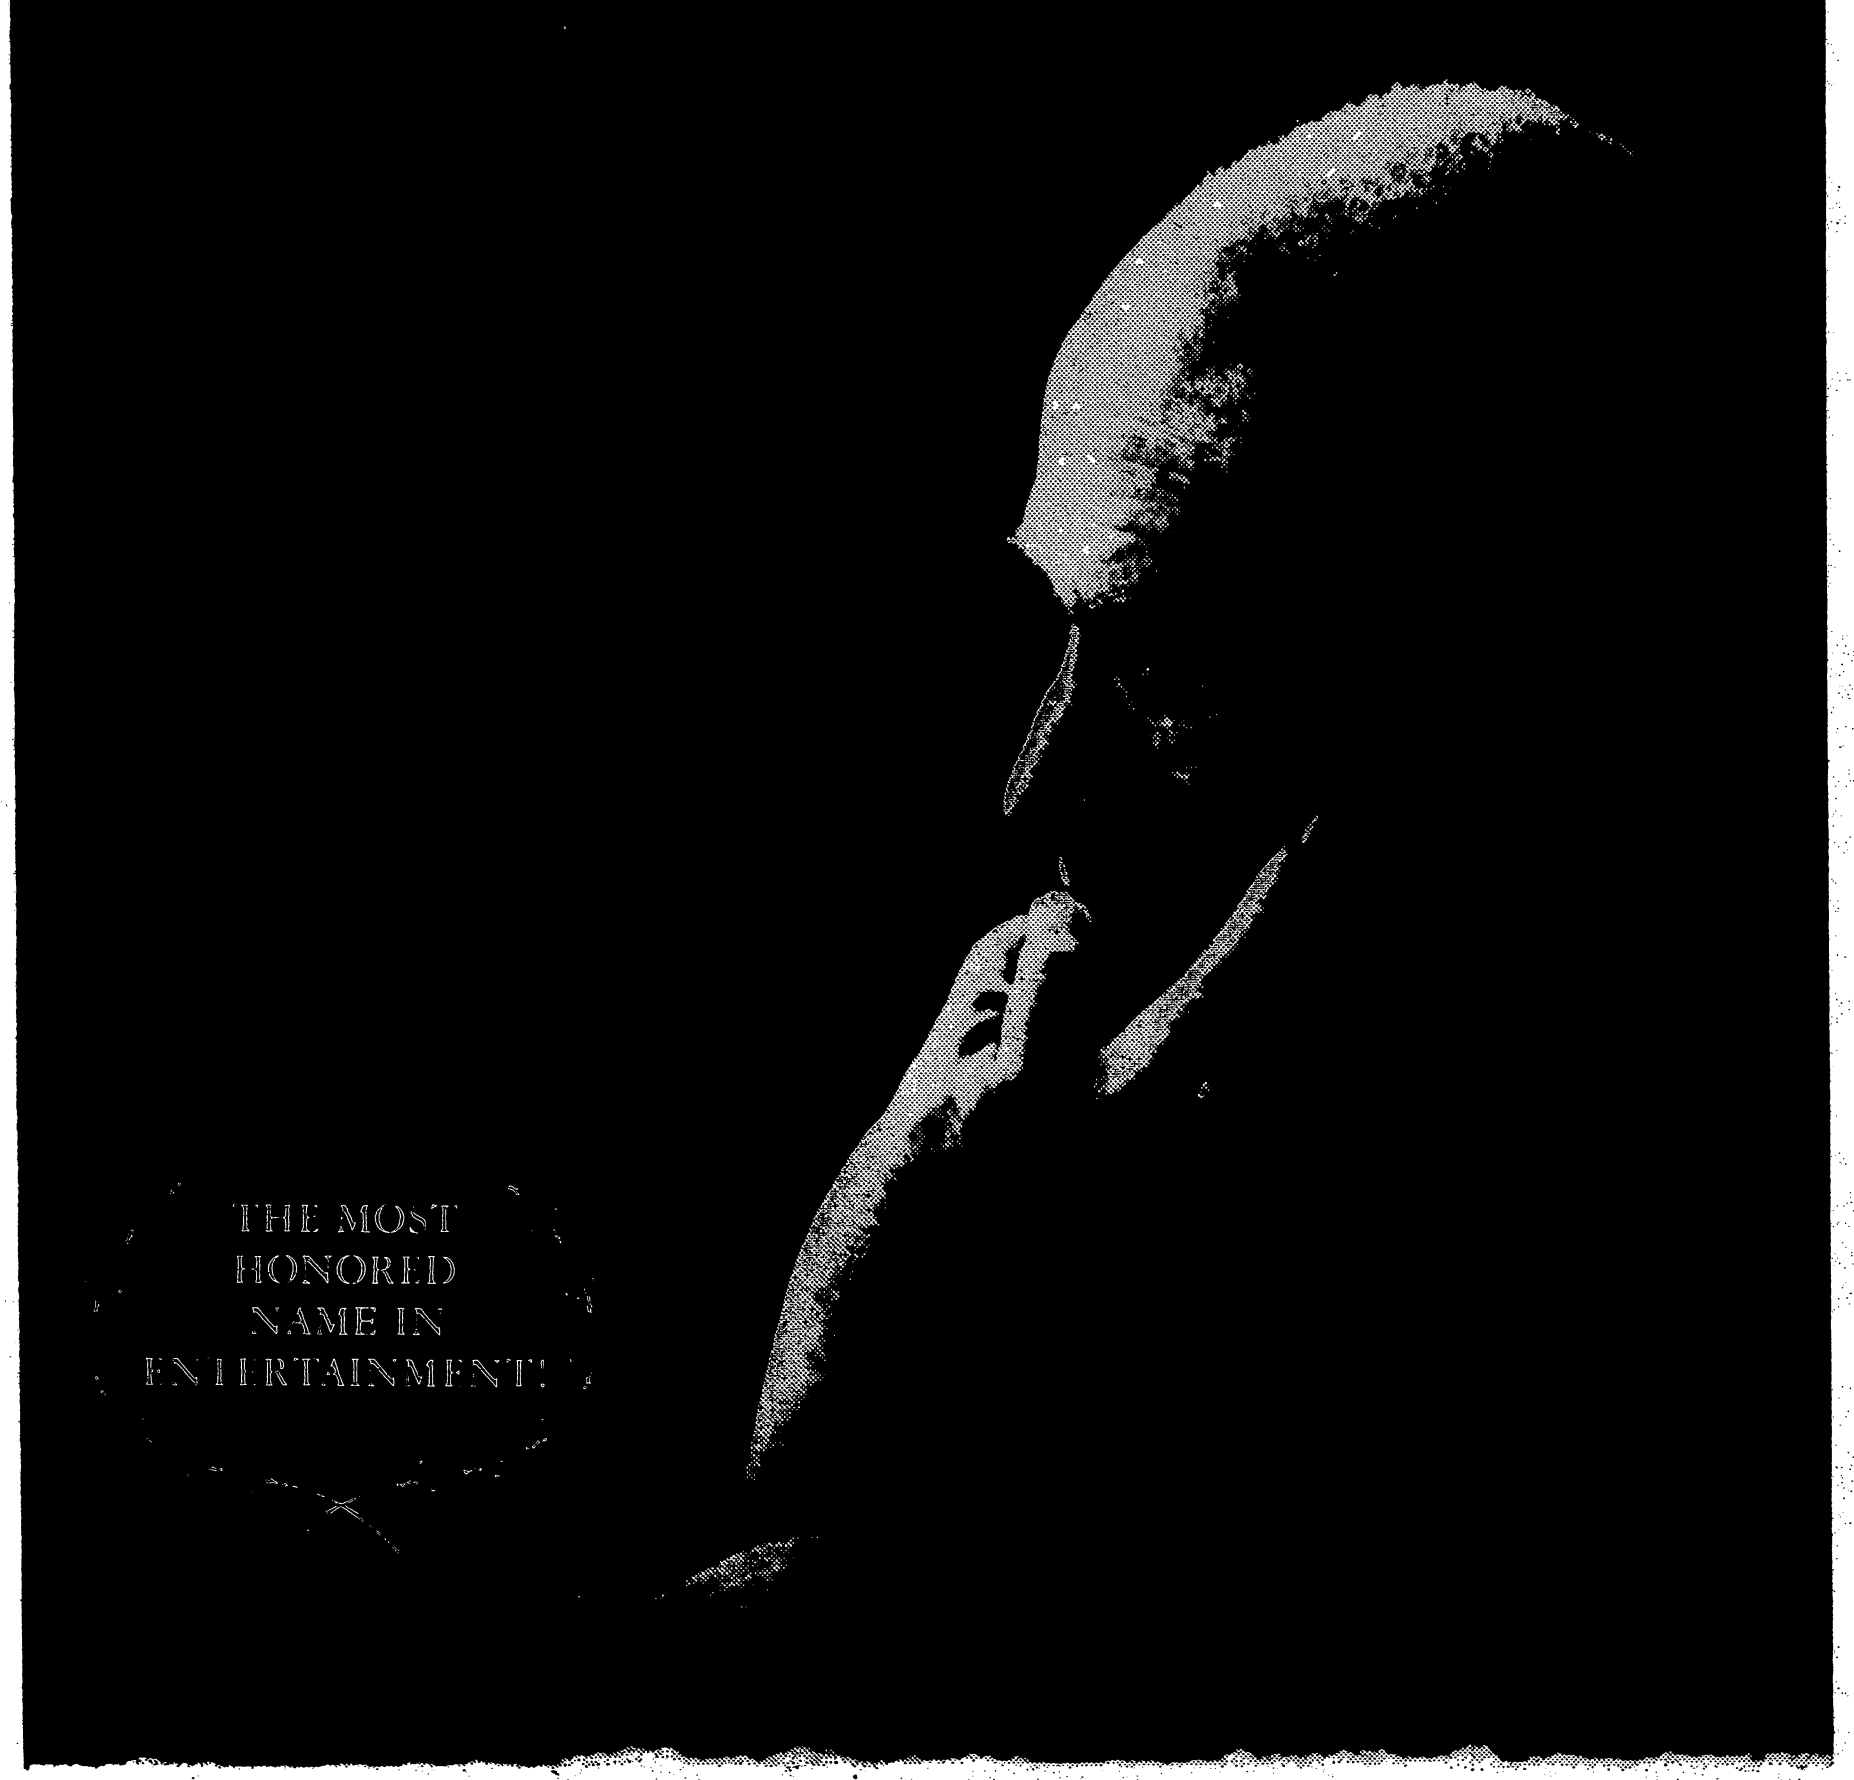


PHOTO BY GABY

SAMUEL GOLDWYN STUDIOS, HOLLYWOOD, CALIFORNIA

TV-Radio Production Centres

IN NEW YORK . . .

Don Garrett, Screen Gems pubrel topper, winding up jury duty and will be back at his desk Monday (20) . . ."Table tennis-iflados" is the coinage of a WNEW-TV pubber apropos the station's just-concluded junior table tennis tourney promotion with 600-odd youngsters. Odd coinage, too.

ABC prez Tom Moore has a Monday (20) lunch date before the Hollywood Ad Club to speak on "A New Era for Sports Through Television" . . . Anna May Franklin has joined Plautus Productions as assistant to the general manager, Arthur Joel Katz. Miss Franklin was business manager for the Theatre Guild before joining Plautus.

Sam Weisbord, Coast topper of the William Morris Agency tele dept., arrived in New York last night (Tues.) to confer with Wally Jordan, N.Y. agency's tele head, on programming development for next season.

NBC News chieftain Bill McAndrews leaves today (15) for annual tour of o'seas offices. He'll visit London, Paris, Berlin and Rome, returning to New York May 4.

Guy Lombardo will strike up his band for the Mets Shea Stadium opener April 17 via WOR-TV and WHN radio . . . Richard Goldstone signed on at 20th-Fox to produce ABC-TV's "Peyton Place". . . Bill Seamans and Bob Sammon of ABC News are westward ho, scouting Oregon and California primary coverage sites ABC-TV repeats its "Making of the President 1960" report on June 11 . . . Paul Anka makes his 14th Ed Sullivan guester May 17 . . . ABC News' "The Soviet Woman" nabbed an Overseas Press Club citation for "best television reporting from aboard". . . Ted Koppel, who fronts "Flair Reports" on ABC Radio, resumed after a two week holiday abroad . . . ABC's "Queen For a Day" notches its 20th anni the week of April 27.

Nancy Sureck, who as Nancy Hamburger was with the NBC Press Dept. a few years ago, has come out of retirement to handle public relations for the Telesun Foundation which is producing a series on the United Nations.

NBC board chairman Robert Sarnoff presented the first Electronics Merit Badge of the Boy Scouts at a Waldorf-Astoria luncheon. Yesterday he addressed the annual RCA Controllers meeting in L.A. . . . NBC prexy Robert Kintner announces the engagement of his daughter, Susan Kintner, a senior at Middlebury College, to Thomas Oliver, a senior at Bowdoin College. Couple hopes to join the Peace Corps following nuptials.

Morey Amsterdam back to the Coast and his "Dick Van Dyke" filming. He also is writing a new book, a comedy bio, "I Remember Me." . . . Herbert Anderson, who played the harassed father in "Dennis, The Menace," set for two serious dramatic stints in CBS-TV's "Rawhide" and "Gunsmoke" . . . Charles Steinberg, CBS-TV v.p. of public information, on Coast . . . Dennis Feeney, thesping son of CBS-TV associate press info director Harry Feeney, starring in Marist College, N.Y. production of "A Hatful of Rain" next weekend . . . Joe Curl, CBS-TV v.p. of daytime sales, back from Chicago business trip . . . Joseph Wershba has joined "CBS Reports" as a producer . . . Arthur Godfrey makes his legit play debut this summer at the Bucks County Playhouse, New Hope, Pa., as the stage manager in Thornton Wilder's "Our Town." Chris Schenkel has been named National Sportscaster of the Year by the Salisbury (Md.) Chamber of Commerce . . . Eliot Tozer, CBS Radio pubaffairs flack, teaching a course in English composition at CCNY . . . Richard D. Heffner, former program manager of WNDT, N.Y., will be host of the National Education Television's new 21-week pubaffairs series, "Of People and Politics." . . . Rudy Vallee signed as host of the new summer variety series featuring young performers, to be telecast by CBS-TV for the vacationing "Danny Kaye Show." Irving Mansfield produces . . . George Schlatter signed as producer of the three Texaco Meredith Wilson specials on CBS-TV . . . Desilu's Dick Dinsmore and Peter Carey to Europe on a sales trip.

Mimi Benzell this week started her interview show for WNBC from the Cafe Francais in Rockefeller Plaza . . . Donald McGuinn joins Doyle-Dane-Bernbach as radio-tv department administrator, a newly-created post. He was with Geyer, Morey, Ballard, Inc. . . . Joe Franklin's WOR-TV "Memory Lane" strip guests Roque Cruz Gomez, prexy of the Institute of Culture of the Americas, today (15) . . . ABC newsman Art Van Horn commuting to Hollywood for negotiations on his projected tv series . . . Alvin Mifelom takes over as director of "Goodson-Todman's "Missing Links" with Mike Gargiulo moving to G-T's new "Get the Message".

Bob Curran joined NBC Press as a sports publicist . . . NBC International's Marvin Goodman representing web at Montreux Film Festival, Switzerland, starting Friday (17). He will visit NBC-I's London office before returning to N.Y. . . . author James Baldwin talks about his new play on NBC-TV's "Today" show tomorrow (16) . . . "TW3" regular Sandy Baron penning a musical comedy . . . NBC News producer Fred Freed filming in Boston for a June Dupont spec . . . Richard Schickel, book editor on NBC's "Sunday," in England filming at Shakespeare exhibit . . . NBC News pub. affairs director Ed Stanley speaks to NAFBRAT group May 26 in Columbus . . . Sigma Delta Chi and Women's League for Israel honored NBC's civil rights special with pubservice awards . . . Bill Dana back from stint at Nugget Club in Sparks, Nev. . . . Carl George of WGAR, Cleveland, named to NBC Radio's exec committee of affiliates . . . Bette Davis on Jack Paar's show April 24 . . . NBC News' "Sunday" will cover dedication of Michelangelo's "Pieta" Sunday (19) at the World's Fair . . . Cyril Ritchard guests on "Dr. Kildare" May 7 . . . NBC Sports veepee Carl Lindemann Jr. headed a seven-man contingent to Japan last week for final Olympics plans . . . Johnny Carson will star at the Sahara Hotel in Vegas for month beginning July 7 . . . "Today" show talent coordinator Dick Arlette in Bimini the Bahamas with the U.S. fishing team for the White Marlin tournament, which will be filmed and seen on "Today" April 20.

IN HOLLYWOOD . . .

Herschel Burke Gilbert moved over from Four Star to CBS-TV as music director in Hollywood. He succeeds Lud Gluskin, who reached compulsory retirement age . . . Perry Cross, producer of the expunged Jerry Lewis Show, is NBC-TV's choice to produce the six Jonathan Winters specials next season . . . KHJ-TV stored up 21 old films from Walter Reade/Sterling for $185,000 to bolster its claim as the largest stocked library in television . . . NBC's Walter Scott, Mort Werner and David Tebet inspecting the new product for a year hence or maybe for year-end fallouts. While here they ordered two more filmed two-hour shows from Revue for its Project 120 series. The sneak preview, which worked successfully for "That Was the Week That Was," will be utilized next season in prime time to test the strength of pilots . . . Tom Greenhow, who recently departed as coast tv head of McCann-Erickson, joins his oldboss, Pat Weaver, at Subscription TV . . . NBC-TV didn't have too much luck selling "Kentucky's Kid" so they changed the title to "Kentucky Jones." Mebbe putting the gimpy leg back on Dennis Weaver might help, too . . . Says a press release on Bing Crosby's new situation comedy on ABC-TV, "this engineer was once a band leader and will help rationalize a casually integrated song by Bing." Like at the drop of a signal . . . Stan Brady, packager of "Teen Age Trials" and "Weekend Parents," hospitalized for fatigue . . . "Bonanza"

(Continued on page 44)

NBC International In Big Overseas Sale

NBC International last week peddled packages totalling 133 hours of programming to foreign broadcasters.

Federal Nigerian Television Service in Lagos bought 15 including five shows from NBC's Project 20 and specials on Britain, Shakespeare, Spain, Greece, "The City and the World," "Ernest Hemingway" and "Opening Night."

"The World of Billy Graham" was ordered by Dederlandse Televisie Strichting in Holland, and Sierre Leone Television bought 34 more episodes of "Dr. Kildare." Broadcast Corp. of Northern Nigeria also bought 34 more "Kildares," and Arabian-American Oil Co. ordered 26 of the Medico dramas for its base at Dharan.

French Canadian Broadcasting Corp. bought seven NBC telementaries, and Mainichi Broadcasting of Osaka, Japan, ordered 21 half hours of the "Wild Kingdom" series.

Irish Television bought 13 stanzas of the half-hour off-web comedy, "Car 54, Where Are You?"

BBC-TV in Slight Rating Increase

London, April 14.

According to Television Audience Measurement Ltd., BBC-TV is beginning to pull back some of the leeway between itself and the commercial web. Ratings organization reports that the indies' share of the network viewing audience for the four weeks of March fell one percent to 61%, following a 62% share for the previous two months. BBC's share of audience for the month was thus 39%, a point up on the preceding two months.

In most areas throughout the country where BBC is in competition with the commercial channel, the Corporation showed a slight gain, though in no case does BBC-TV beat a commercial station, if TAM figures are taken as a guide. Nearest BBC gets to a 50-50 share with the indies is in the Southwest where Westward-TV, the commercial web affiliate, holds down a 51% slice of the audience to BBC-TV's 49%.

In the nation's three main markets, London, Midlands and the North, the indies score 59%, 59% and 64% respectively leaving BBC trailing 41%, 41% and 36% in the same markets.

Over the first quarter, BBC gains 2% on the previous quarter to snatch a 39% share of the national audience, against the contractors' 61%.

Raymond Gram Swing: 'Radio News Now Like TV, Need Background'

Raymond Gram Swing, vet newscaster who has been making news himself of late—he has just published a book, "Good Evening"—recently took a swing at the medium (radio) that nurtured him on CBS Radio's "The World Tonight." In response to a question by CBS News correspondent Ned Calmer, Swing said: "I think it's a great loss that giving the background of news, giving news in depth, has been pretty well abandoned by television and radio.

"It was really the function of radio, because radio doesn't appeal to the eye, it appeals to the mind, and I think that radio, when it found itself in strong competition with television, adopted the techniques of television and began giving headline news and brief news.

"I don't think we can live on just headlines and brief news. We have to understand. If we're going to have a world of safety, it's a world based upon understanding, not agreement, but understanding."

Swing, 77, said that when "we get Telstars and other means of international communication, this is going to become even more formidable a task for television and radio because we're going to have to know intimately about things in other countries. It'll be a noisy, raucous, disputatious world," he concluded.

U.S. Shows Getting 95% of Aussie TV Audience, Advertising Revenues At $30,000,000 for Com'l Stations

Sydney, April 14.

Next to the United States Australia is the most American-minded country in the world. This fact is borne out by trade information centres here, plus the wide range of U.S.-made goods available to eager buyers—from autos to cigarettes.

In the field of entertainment, television product is a major revenue-getter for the American producers with this year seen as a real topper for the U.S. teevee distribution.

Tv Down Under has spread its wings and is now geared into all country centres, with commercial station operators able to offer sponsors a blanket coverage via 24 stations. Key commercial outlets here are TCN 9 and ATN 7. Both keyers are backed by powerful newspaper groups with associations coast-to-coast. The Australian Broadcasting Commission, government controlled, operates 12 non-commercial stations but only garners a minority of Aussie viewers, who prefer the top American shows televised by the commercials. General opinion here points to a 95% U. S. product coverage.

Top Shows

U. S. shows in popular demand here are: "Red Skelton Hour," "Jack Benny Show," "Lucy Show," "Ben Casey," "Greatest Show on Earth," "New Breed," "Leave It to Beaver," "Beverly Hillbillies," "Academy Theatre," "George Burns Show," "McHale's Navy," "Nurses," "All Star Theatre," "Flintstones," "Travels of Jamie McPheeters," "The Fugitive," "Jackie Gleason Show," "Combat," "Alfred Hitchcock Presents," "Perry Mason," "The Lieutenant," "Arrest and Trial," "Grindl," "Wide Country," "Lawless Years" and "Disneyland."

Sponsorship Solid

Aussie sponsors are spending approximately $30,000,000 yearly with the commercial station. This figure is expected to increase to $50,000,000 by 1965. Right now commercial operators are hard-pressed to find additional time slots for sponsors and are presently forced to use anything from eight to 12 spot ads in an hour's show.

Sponsors, finger-pulsing viewers, will only back the U. S. product, knowing that the Aussie viewers give this product first preference.

Currently there is little activity in the local production field, mainly because of high production costs, restrictions by Aussie Actors' Equity and the refusal of the government to give any financial aid to the homebrew producer.

Tv and Pix Mix

The Aussie cinema has learned to live with teevee after fighting the "enemy" for a lengthy span. Key pic circuits are plugging top pix via commercials and finding a good payoff in increased interest. Distributors, likewise, are backing the loops in major teevee selling campaigns.

This winter, package shows featuring local tv talent will go into suburban and country cinemas in association with pix. First in is Brian Henderson and his "Bandstand Revue," with other local talent shows being geared to follow.

Understood also that the Hoyts' pic loop, with a wide suburban and country coverage, will play package shows in a bid to win back lost teenage and family biz. Other loops are tipped as ready to follow the Hoyts' play.

WJBK's Tiger Baseball

Detroit, April 14.

Tiger baseball telecasts will beam via WJBK-TV for the 12th consecutive season, starting with Saturday's (18) opener here versus Los Angeles.

Station will carry 41 games over the season, including nine at home and 15 night contests. Ernie Harwell will be back for the play-by-play, alternating with ex-Tiger manager Bob Scheffing.

Morgan, Doney Repeat Winners at Cleveland Press Club Awards

Cleveland, April 14.

Harv Morgan, KYW's "Program PM" and Jim Doney, WJW-TV's "Adventure Road" were repeat winners as the Press Club of Cleveland held its third annual awards luncheon to honor the best in newspaper, radio and tv.

For Morgan it was his third win; this time for his "Nine Children and the World of Great Art," an on-the-spot recording of their tour of the Art Museum. For Doney, it was award number two.

Other broadcasters who were winners at the luncheon in which Bill Veeck, one-time owner of the Cleveland Indians, was featured speaker were: radio—Bob Miller, WERE, for his almost three-hour taped excerpts from 50 old-time radio shows; Jeff Baxter and Jack Riley for their afternoon WERE disk stanza; television—Mike Douglas of the syndicated Westinghouse "Mike Douglas Show," and Dennis McGuire, former KYW-TV, for a three hour Good Friday telecast.

Newspaper winners were Tom Brady, Louis Clifford and Bob Modic, Press; Wes Lawrence and Mrs. Josephine Robertson, Plain Dealer.

CHANNEL 17 BOUND FOR JACKSONVILLE?

Washington, April 14.

FCC proposed switching channel 17 to Jacksonville, Fla., to help a station there nab a network affiliation.

Commission asked comments on proposed rule making to assign channel 17 now reserved for Palatka to Jacksonville which would shift its channel 36 to Palatka for educational use.

Rust Craft Broadcasting Co. which holds a construction permit for WRSK in Jacksonville said the lower assignment would aid its quest for web affiliation. Company promised to proceed immediately with construction if it received the assignment.

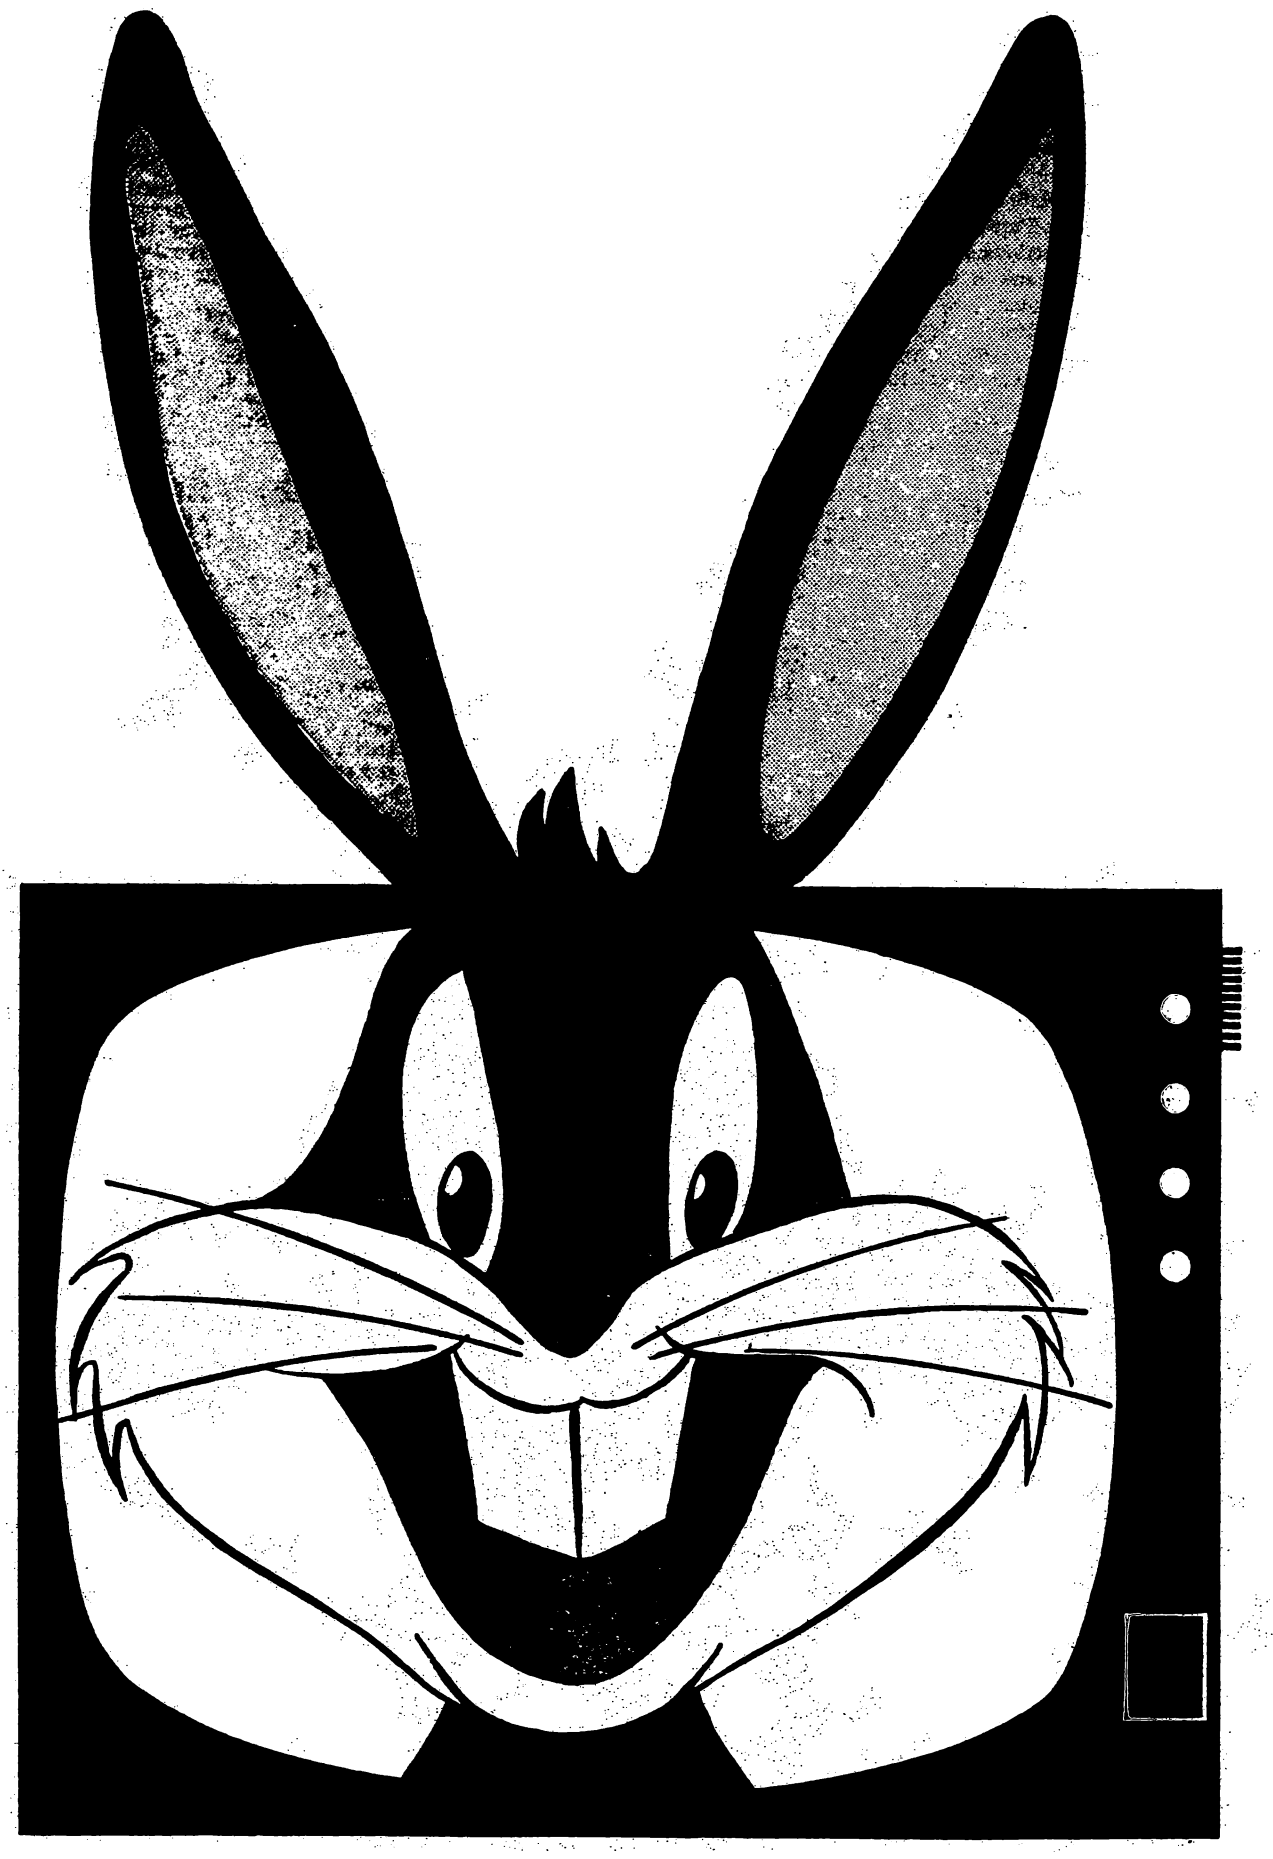
Commissioner Kenneth Cox dissented. Favoring the proposed rules were Chairman E. William Henry and Commissioners Robert E. Lee, Frederick Ford and Lee Loevinger.

WCKY's 'Jamboree' Calls It Quits After 19 Yrs.

Cincinnati, April 14.

WCKY's 19-year-old country music program, "Jamboree," was benched over the week-end to make room for airings of Cincy Reds baseball, outletted to the 84-station Burger Beer network.

The 50,000 watter, which claims the second largest nighttime audience in the nation, gave the library of 10,000 records and albums to Jimmy Longsdon, jockey of the show for the past two years. He is launching his own mail order business.



"Jamboree" has been a big money maker for years with its mail order catalog of the air, embracing Bibles, tombstones and you name it items. Small stations, notably in the south, cut into it with their own similar programs.

Earlier jockeys were Uncle Tom Jones, Nelson King, Martie Roberts, Don Davis and Wayne Rayney.

TRIANGLE SERIES HAS REAL CHIRPS

Triangle Stations will produce in color for fall preem a show on the bird kingdom, "The Wonder of Birds."

The 65 slated stanzas will be seen on Triangle stations and will also be up for syndication. Series will be shot at Boehm Aviaries in Washington Crossing, N. J., with Edward Marshall Boehm, ornithologist and porcelain artist, as technical director.

"E-h-h-h, What's up, Doc?"

One hundred of the most lavishly produced cartoons ever created by Warner Bros. for theatrical distribution are now available to television stations. These fully-animated post-'47 productions have never traveled the rabbit-ears of a TV set before. They star Bugs Bunny, Daffy Duck, Elmer Fudd, Foghorn Leghorn, Road Runner, Speedy Gonzales and other world-renowned Warner Bros. personalities. Running 6 to 6½ minutes each, these 100 new-to-television cartoons are available in black-and-white or color—for Fall start. An-n-n-d... that's what's up, Bugs!

Warner Bros. Cartoons–Series '64

WARNER BROS. TELEVISION DIVISION 666 Fifth Avenue, New York 19, N.Y., Circle 6-1000

CARNY
With Sally Rand, Ed Newman, others Producer: Chet Hagan
Director: Hagan
Writer: Hagan
60 Mins., Sun., 10 p.m.
ESSO
NBC-TV (film)

(McCann-Erickson)

Sally Rand, who has been a thin-clad midway attraction since the World's Fair of 1933, set aside her plumes and balloons long enough to do a loving narrative for the NBC-TV special on the "insulated world" of the carnival.

Buttressed with the statistics that the American carnival is a billion-dollar business that plays to more people than pro baseball, basketball and footabll combined, Miss Rand toured viewers from the carny winter quarters in Tampa, Fla., around the nation's carnival circuit, with concentrated stops at such locations as Calgary, Alberta, and St. Charles, Minn.

With script, direction and production by NBC's Chet Hagan, the show's most reportorial sequences concerned the inside angles on the midway games and hoked-up sideshow attractions and the relative economic status of carny owners—from ultra-affluence to break-even. At either extreme, the show provided the carnival folks with a boast about their good works for crippled children, and the network with a chance to air some pretty hot scenes from a midway skin show. All in all, it was a good chance for the "mark" to see how the carny views him. NBC newscaster Ed Newman gave Miss Rand an assist on the narration. Bill.

DAVID ALLAN SHOW
With Paul Mann
Executive Producer: Stan Porter
Producer-Director: Jim Coursen
30 Mins., Mon.-Fri., 12 p.m.
WNAC-TV Boston (live)

Hub's tv gift to show biz personalities in legit tryouts, touring companies and niteries is certainly the "David Allan Show," WNAC-TV's live entry with a live studio audience. On stanza caught, his guests were Alan Mowbray and ingenue Freda Holloway of "Enter Laughing" playing at the Wilbur. Appropriately enough the majority of the studio audience in the Camelot Room of the St. George Hotel, where the sesh is held, that day were from the Falmouth Theatre Guild cast of "Arsenic and Old Lace," in makeup and costume.

Young, personable host David Allan conducts warm, friendly interviews with guests in which he brings out facts about the personalities that he as a sincere appearing fan would want to know. For instance he found out that Alan Mowbray had appeared in 301 films, has a nightclub act as a standup comic, and a tv series, "Sheriff From Piccadilly," which he's trying to sell. He then gave Mowbray over to the studio audience of amateur thespians for press confab questions. Looker Freda Holloway, a Lowell, Mass., native, came across warmly in chat about her role, visits with her mother, and her tv run as "Jill Malone" in tv's "Young Doctor Malone" and how it affected her public recog in supermarkets, dept. stores and subways.

Allan puts on a fun and games audience participation seg and this one was song remembrances in which pianist Paul Mann played evergreens. If participants guessed the name of the song within two years, they won a prize. If not, a consolation prize. This framework gave host a chance to plug his own song, "The Language of Love" in a running gag with Mann.

Show is a lively, entertaining showcase for incoming stage, screen and nitery talent exposure. Guy.

KMOX AWARD

St. Louis, April 14.

KMOX-TV's "Repertoire Workshop" production "The Pawn" has won two awards, the latest being the BMI-American Assn. for State and Local History Award which includes a cash prize of $500.

Previous award was the Freedom Foundation's "George Washington Honor Medals." "The Pawn," played on all CBS o&o's, presented the story of Sam Blow, —a Missouri slave nicknamed "Dred Scott," whose lawsuit for freedom in 1846 contributed greatly to the cleavage between North and South.

POVERTY IS PEOPLE With Edwin Newman
Producer-Writer: Dick Ellison
Director: Don Luftig
30 Mins.; Sat., 6 p.m.
WNBC-TV, N.Y.

"Poverty Is People, produced by NBC's flagship station as part of a series on New York, was a conscience-stirring documentary about poverty in New York. According to the statistics cited, one person out of five can be classified as suffering from poverty.

The human meaning of this cold statistic was turned into a powerful documentary which deserves a wide audience, particularly among the decision-makers for the city.

With Ed Newman as narrator and interviewer, the show focussed on the so-called "triangle" in East Harlem, a 35-acre concentration of Negroes and Puerto Ricans who are hemmed in by ignorance and discriminations as effectively as if there was a literal wall around this ghetto.

The story of this area was told in searing frankness through interviews with families in this area as well as some community leaders. The rats, the garbage, the despair and the sparks of revolt were conveyed in a journalistic style that did not at all gloss over the ugliness of the situation. The viewer felt, in fact almost smelled, that this was the bitter truth. Herm.

THE MINNEAPOLIS STORY
With Jim MacDougal, others Producer: Bill McGivern
Director: John Degen
Writer: McGivern
30 Mins., Sun. 1 p.m.
KSTP-TV, Mpls.-St. Paul (tape)

This program neatly achieved its avowed purpose of being a salute to one of the Twin Cities where KSTP-TV holds forth. The Stan Hubbard NBC affiliate properly felt that such an airlane tribute was due Minneapolis since it's one of 11 cities to be honored by the National Municipal League and Look magazine with 1963 "All-American City" awards.

At the outset the program had Minneapolis Mayor Arthur Naftalin before the camera expressing his great pride over the city's gains which resulted in the award. Among the accomplishments pointed out by him were the transformation of what had been a blighted downtown area into one that now boasts many new, impressive structures, represting expenditures of millions of dollars.

What made for program appeal generally was the festooning of all the talk with action shots comprising photographs, drawings etc. depicting the city's early and present days and much live camera work. Viewers were taken from the city's very beginning, step by step, to the present day.

Upon Robert G. Gerny, a prominent Minneapolis architect who, with his associates, has been playing a leading role in making Minneapolis a leading city, there devolved much of the task of telling the story of this municipal progress and what further improvement the future likely holds. He did this ably. Rees.

THE QUIET REVOLUTION
With Adam Lynch, narrator
Producer: George Burlbaugh
Director: Jack Elias Writer: Burlbaugh
30 Mins., Sun., 6:30 p.m.
WIIC, Pittsburgh

This interesting, thought provoking tv adventure caught the spirit and drive of a group of Pittsburghers known as "The Trendmakers." They are all successful professional and business men and in this show the general discussion stayed around the present social revolution in the life of the American Negro.

"It's a quiet revolution," narrator Lynch said, "and the weapons are words, thoughts, ambitions and dreams. The enemy is bigotry and the old order. The purpose is a new identity."

The group, all of whom are Negroes, discussed the ways to approach a new image and found themselves arguing with themselves as time ran out. The absolute lack of artificiality made this seg a standout. One man said he quit a job in a bank because "we were'nt ready for each other." Others talked freely on problems and were interrupted by others who wanted to get their two cents worth in. There could be a lot of soul searching as a result of this show. NBC's affil here, WIIC, put all their top hands on this one and came out a big winner. Lit.

BASEBALL: MORE THAN A GAME
With Joe Garagiola, Jeffrey Price, others
Prod.-Dir.: Walter Kravets
90-Minutes, Sat., 4:30 p.m.
NBC-TV from N. Y.

NBC-TV, which is striving for sports supremacy in the three network chase, made such a condescending bow to professional baseball that this intended 90-minute telementary turned into an hour and a half blurb for the so called "national pastime," and a very dull one at that.

Apparently the show was slanted at a kid audience, as the format had Joe Garagiola, an NBC sportscaster, formated with a young kid, Jeffrey Price of Newark, N. J., who played Bobby Smith, a sandlotter fulfilling his dream of talking with all the baseball greats. It's unlikely that any kid other than the mythical Bobby Smith could be conned into believing baseball is as much more than a game as was purported here.

Blooming among the hearts and flowers spread by baseball commissioner Ford Frick, former manager Joe McCarthy, Roy Campanella and others, were Casey Stengel, in full-throttle on the glories of the new Shea Stadium for his New York Mets, and the colorful umpire Jocko Conlan. There was a load of archives film fillers on old stars and World Series games.

Web did much better a year ago with a bright, sardonic season's opener helmed by Joe Garagiola talking to adults. Bill.

PANORAMA
With Louis Lomax, Malcom X, Theodore J. Berry, Diane Budan, Rev. Gordon Blasius, Bud Dancy, and Pat Murray
Exec.-producer: Jack Reilly
Producer-Director: Roger Ailes
60 Mins., Sat. 4 p.m.
KYW-TV, Cleveland

This was a welcome respite to the usual bland Saturday afternoon television diet. In bringing to the studio key guests, controversial and/or enlightening, the program provided an informative public affairs chapter for the cosmopolitan viewer.

On stanza caught, Bud Dancy of the station's news department, teamed with Louis Lomax, noted Negro author working on a KYW-TV assignment, to interview Malcolm X, the controversial racist. The dialog was both provocative and revealing, and although this carried the bulk of the time in comparison to other segments, it seemed this could have been given an even greater exposure in light of events that had been crystalizing in the community badly-torn by school integration. Malcom X again showed his glib capability and projected with the feeling that has made him a tube personality. Lomax's probing on the religion issue and Malcolm's views on the "Black God" were revealing as was Dancy's efforts to pinpoint the guest's newsmaking opinions.

In the other segments, Pat Murray carried the ball and his deft and friendly questioning made for an ease and conversationability that provided the necessary contrast to the volatile Malcolm X segment.

Nice use of Visuals also helped in the discussion with Dr. Theodore J. Berry, noted expert on hands. Miss Dian Budan, Miss Cleveland, 1964, needed no additional visuals, and showed herself a capable young lady. Rev. Gordon Blasius of the Presbyterian radio-television office lent an added fillip in his comments on the use of Stan Freberg's funny religious commercials. Production and direction were both professional. Mark.

DOSS IS PEOPLES' PREZ

Worthington, O., April 14.

Bowman Doss, who has been elected president of Nationwide Insurance Companies, Columbus O., has also been elected general chairman of the board of Peoples Broadcasting Co. He succeeds Murray D. Lincoln, who resigned both posts but continues as a member of the board of directors.

All other officers, headed by Herbert Evans, president of the radio-tv firm, were reelected. Ferris Owen, Newark, O., and James Lewis, Hamilton, O., were named to the Peoples Broadcasting Co. executive committee. The company has radiostations in Worthington and Cleveland, O., and Yankton, S.D., and a tv station in Sioux City, Ia.

Academy Show Goes Off Smoothly, Albeit Little or No Excitement

ACADEMY AWARDS
Emcee: Jack Lemmon
Producer: George Sidney
Network producer-director: Richard Dunlap
Music director: John Green
Writers: George Axelrod, Richard Breen, Mort Lachman, Stanley Roberts, Melville Shavelson
Two hours, Monday (13), 10 p.m.
PROCTER & GAMBLE, AMERICAN HONDA MOTOR CO.
ABC-TV, from Santa Monica

(Benton & Bowles; Grey Advertising)

The 36th annual Academy Award presentations on ABC-TV Monday (13) were notable for the presence of restraint, dignity, excellent timing — and the absence of excitement (with a couple of exceptions). They decided to play it straight this year and were just a bit too successful.

This was the year that was—a year when the first major trophy went to a Negro thespian; a year when films made in Hollywood took only one less than films made elsewhere; a year when the French dominated the short subject field; when 17 of the individual winners were not Academy members.

Jack Lemmon, taking over the emcee spot for the first time, appeared at times to be on the point of saying something irreverent, but managed to maintain a dignified approach to his duties. His few lines about smoking were uninspired. All concerned with production activities are to be commended for the fast handling of the awards and getting the recipients on and off the stage quickly. Unlike former years, there was no lengthy acceptance speech, possibly due to the fact that not many winners were physically present.

If anything could be called a "show stopper" it would have been the fast and funny recovery by Sammy Davis Jr. when, making the music awards he opened the wrong envelope and read the name of the winner in a second category—"They gave me the wrong envelope. Wait until the NAACP hears about this." The delightful Davis was also the program's musical highlight with a superb rendition of some "almost" Oscar winners, including "It's Magic," "Change Partners," "Man That Got Away," "Pennies From Heaven," "It Seems I've Heard That Song Before," "Love Letters" and a rousing "Blues in the Night." His introductory bit with fast takeoffs on James Stewart, Edward G. Robinson and Jerry Lewis indicated a possible solution to future ceremonies. Let all the stars and singers stay home and let Davis play everyone. It could be cheaper, faster and immeasurably more entertaining.

Emotional peak was reached with Sidney Poitier's close-to-tears acceptance of his best acting trophy, and the audience's reaction to the news — a first in Oscar history — the first major award won by a Negro member of motion pictures. Only previous winner was the late Hattie McDaniels for a supporting role in "Gone With the Wind."

Although "Tom Jones" took only four awards, the importance of those awards (best film, director, screenplay from another medium, original score) more than outweighed the four given 20th-Fox's "Cleopatra." Biggest surprise was the fact that "The Cardinal" won nothing despite its six nominations.

The presentation of nominated songs by Harve Presnell, James Darren, Katyna Ranieri and Andy Williams (who did two of the tunes) was generally unexciting with the exception of Miss Ranieri who sang her husband's "More" with beaucoup feeling.

Flip remarks were kept to a minimum indicating that presenters had been rehearsed with a firm hand. This might explain Shirley MacLaine's "Hello—that's all I'm allowed to say tonight" (which possibly stems from a somewhat longer speech made at another awards ceremony last month). Ed Begley also commented "I'm not allowed to ad lib—last year, whew!"

Added use of film clips this year made for a more dramatic program. Formerly restricted to the "best film" presentation, clips were used this year to illustrate such awards as costumes, special effects and the acting categories.

John Green's handling of the musical portions of the program varied from a delightful potpourri of Arthur Freed pop tunes to open the show, to the tricky musical adlibbing necessary to support nominated and winning films, through all the music inserts.

Sol Siegel accepted his Irving Thalberg trophy with dignity and sincerity, presented by Academy prexy Arthur Freed.

Presenters, as usual, sounded like a cross-section of Hollywood "stars" with both longtimers and new faces on hand, including Steve McQueen, Tuesday Weld, Angie Dickinson, Shirley MacLaine, Sidney Poitier, Ed Begley, Debbie Reynolds, Donna Reed, Julie Andrews, Shirley Jones, James Stewart, Anne Baxter, Fred MacMurray, Sammy Davis Jr., Edward G. Robinson, Rita Hayworth, Anne Bancroft, Gregory Peck and Frank Sinatra.

Although there didn't appear to be as many commercials this year they did seem longer and duller. Alice Faye and June Lockhart may not be the best saleswomen in the world but they could be the longest winded. Procter & Gamble and American Honda Motor Co. shared the sponsorship and proved that motorcycles are more interesting than home permanents. Robe.

TOWN MEETING
With Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, Ven Marshall
Director: Eugene Holowchak
30 Mins., Mon., 7 p.m.
WWJ-TV, Detroit

Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, on the basis of this exposure, is an affable, articulate Republican candidate for President who lacks fire, flare and fight. His tv presence is almost not present, being notably flat and without magneticism.

His opening statement was a graceful thanks for inviting him to appear. Then he indicated he wanted to talk about foreign policy, but his following words indicated he didn't have anything of substance to say. He merely indicated he was in disagreement with President Johnson's foreign policies, without spelling out what his own were.

Moderator Ven Marshall called for questions from the studio audience, liberally sprinkled with high school and college students. Rockefeller undramatically made the following replies: He doesn't know what to do in Vietnam because the Administration has kept the facts from the American people; he disagrees with Sen. Goldwater's opinion about former Ford President Robert McNamara who now is Defense Secretary; he doesn't want to be vice president—"I was never any good as standby equipment"; he is opposed to Red China's admission into the UN, but if Red China is admitted the U.S. should stay in the UN.

Rockefeller's answers were well-phrased and delivered in a friendly manner, but the point is that they lacked point and immediacy. Since he obviously was not excited, he lulled his tv audience into a ho-hum attitude toward the candidate, but certainly not toward the issues confronting the nation.

The production values of this show were excellent. Marshall, a vet newsman, was an unobtrusive but firm moderator. Director Eugene Holowchak and technical director Charles Michaels deserve credit for excellent sound pickup from the studio so that questions came through loud and clear without need of aisle mikes. Tew.

'COFFEE WITH CONNALLY'

San Antonio, April 14.

Texas Gov. John Connally will hit the television campaign trail at 8 a.m. Monday in the first of a series of three-day-a-week "Coffee with Connally" telecasts.

The governor's Austin campaign headquarters said the programs will be telecast at 8 a.m. each Monday, Wednesday and Friday through May 1 over KONO-TV here.

CRAIG STEVENS

TV'S "PETER GUNN," star of the Broadway smash musical,
"HERE'S LOVE" and the upcoming CBS-TV network series, "MR. BROADWAY," stars in

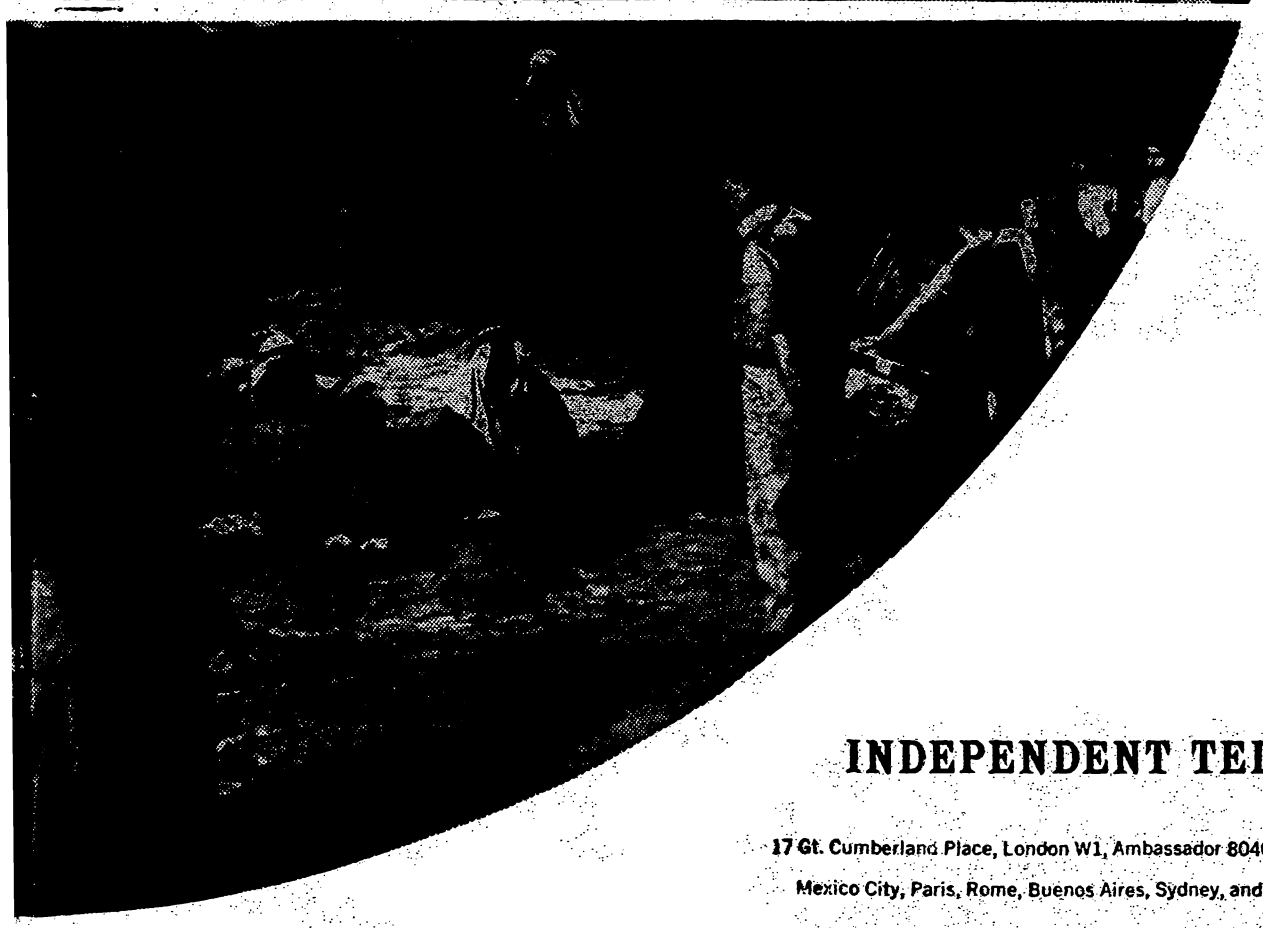
MAN of the World



BRAND-NEW SERIES
OF
ONE-HOUR ADVENTURES
FOR MARKET-BY-MARKET SALE

FIRST RUN!

Original music by

HENRY MANCINI

award-winning composer of "Peter Gunn" score, winner of three Oscars . . .

1962 Best Score Breakfast at Tiffany's
1962 Best Song Moon River
1963 Best Song Days of Wine and Roses and just nominated for his fourth Oscar. . .
1964 Best Song Charade

Exciting hero

Michael Strait, free lance photographer-correspondent, whose assignments take him to the news and action centers of the world. Paris, Rome, Berlin, Africa, Vietnam, India . . . he'll go anywhere, anytime to cover a story — or uncover one.

Intriguing stories

as varied as the locales in which they take place . . .

- OAS adventures in North Africa •
- International intrigue in Vietnam •
- Plastic bombings in Paris •
- CIA drama in Berlin •
- a kidnapping plot in Greece •

. . . and more of this kind of action!

Authentic production that captures the drama and excitement of the places and the people . . . with backgrounds actually filmed on the scene of the action.

INDEPENDENT TELEVISION CORPORATION

555 Madison Ave., New York 22, N. Y., PLaza 5-2100
17 Gt. Cumberland Place, London W1, Ambassador 8040. • 100 University Ave., Toronto 1, Ontario, Empire 2-1166
Mexico City, Paris, Rome, Buenos Aires, Sydney, and offices in principal cities in 45 countries around the world.

I T C

VARIETY - ARB SYNDICATION CHART

VARIETY's weekly tabulation based on ratings furnished by American Research Bureau, highlights the top 10 network shows on a local level and offers a rating study of the top 10 syndicated shows in the same particular markets. This week six different markets are covered.

Both the network and syndication study features the total area homes reached and the metro area ratings on each show. The total area homes reached reflects the audiences on the basis of the total market area examined. The metro area ratings are based on the metropolitan markets within the total area examined. Top 10 shows, both network and syndicated, are listed on the basis of their showing in the total area homes barometer.

Various branches of the industry, ranging from media buyers to local stations to syndicators will find the charts valuable.

Over the course of a year, ARB will tabulate a minimum of 247 markets. The results of that tabulation will be found weekly in VARIETY Coupled with the rating performance of the top 10 network shows, on the local level, the VARIETY-ARB charts are designed to reflect the rating tastes of virtually every market in the U.S.

BOSTON

STATIONS: WBZ, WHDH, WNAC. SURVEY PERIOD: FBERUARY 1-28, 1964.

RK.	Top Network Shows	Sta.	Total Area Homes Reached	Metro Area Rtg.
1.	Ed Sullivan	WHDH	694,300	47
2.	Bonanza	WBZ	603,200	38
3.	Jackie Gleason	WHDH	539,000	40
4.	Beverly Hillbillies	WHDH	475,900	29
5.	Lassie	WHDH	444,400	31
6.	Candid Camera	WHDH	443,100	31
7.	Dr. Kildare	WBZ	437,900	33
8.	Dick Van Dyke	WHDH	429,400	26
9.	Jack Paar	WBZ	427,400	28
10.	Perry Mason	WHDH	425,200	31

RK.	Top Syndicated Shows Day & Time	Sta.	Dist.	Tot. Area Homes Reached	Met. Met. Rtg.
1.	Leave It To Beaver (Sat. 7:00)	WBZ	MCA-TV	353,500	23
2.	Fractured Flickers (Thurs. 7:00)	WNAC	Desilu	329,700	24
3.	Dobie Gillis; Olympics (M-Sat. 6:30)	WNAC	20 Fox TV	308,500	24
4.	Littlest Hobo; LBJ (Wed. 7:00)	WNAC	Storer	266,800	20
5.	One Step Beyond (Mon. 7:00)	WNAC	ABC Films	260,200	21
6.	Phil Silvers (Tues. 7:00)	WNAC	CBS Films	254,300	19
7.	Death Valley Days (Sat. 6:00)	WBZ	U.S. Borax	196,800	11
8.	Checkmate (Sat. 4:30)	WBZ	MCA-TV	193,100	11
9.	Battle Line (Sun. 7:00)	WBZ	Official	184,100	14
10.	Wyatt Earp; Jr. Bowl. (Sun. 5:30)	WBZ	ABC Films	157,200	9

Top Competition	Sta.	Total Homes
Lee Marvin	WHDH	151,100
Huntley-Brinkley	WBZ	337,100
Eyewitness News; Wea...	WBZ	295,900
Huntley-Brinkley	WBZ	342,200
Huntley-Brinkley	WBZ	384,800
Huntley-Brinkley	WBZ	370,100
Wide World Sports	WNAC	170,200
Olympics; Bowlers Tour..	WNAC	178,200
Wide World Sports	WNAC	200,400
Lassie	WHDH	444,400
Wide World Sports	WNAC	196,200

PITTSBURGH

STATIONS: KDKA, WTAE, WIIC. SURVEY PERIOD: FBERUARY 1-28, 1964.

1.	Beverly Hillbillies	KDKA	484,200	45	1.	Sea Hunt (Mon.-Fri. 6:30)	WTAE	UA-TV	276,700	22	CBS News	KDKA	193,400
2.	Dick Van Dyke	KDKA	465,700	44	2.	Rifleman (Sat. 6:30)	KDKA	Four Star	206,600	17	Studio Wrestling	WIIC	200,200
3.	Ed Sullivan	KDKA	443,800	46	3.	Death Valley Days (Tues. 7:30)	KDKA	U.S. Borax	190,700	15	Combat	WTAE	290,100
4.	Andy Griffith	KDKA	383,200	37	4.	Zane Grey Theatre (Sat. 6:00)	KDKA	Four Star	174,300	15	Studio Wrestling	WIIC	193,700
5.	Jackie Gleason	KDKA	368,300	38	5.	Stoney Burke (Sun. 6:30)	WTAE	UA-TV	173,900	15	Lassie	KDKA	354,300
6.	Olympics; Burke's Law..	WTAE	361,700	34	6.	Leave Beaver; Olympics (Sat. 6:30)	WTAE	MCA-TV	166,900	13	News; 20th Century	KDKA	187,900
7.	Donna Reed	WTAE	354,800	33	7.	Champion Bowling (Sat. 5:00)	WTAE	Schwimmer	147,300	13	Studio Wrestling	WIIC	200,200
8.	Nurses	KDKA	354,300	34	8.	Battle Line; Stump Stars (Sat. 10:30)	WTAE	Official	129,000	11	Plm. Springs Golf; Thea	WIIC	198,100
8.	Lassie	KDKA	354,300	33	9.	Target Corrupters (Thurs. 10:00)	WTAE	Four Star	123,400	12	Golf; Thea; Music; Spts.	WIIC	107,000
9.	My 3 Sons	WTAE	352,600	32	10.	Yogi Bear (Thurs. 7:00)	WIIC	Screen Gems	121,400	13	Gunsmoke	KDKA	359,900
											Nurses	KDKA	354,300
											World Tonight News	KDKA	231,300

ST. LOUIS

STATIONS: KTVI, KMOX, KSD, KPLR. SURVEY PERIOD: FBERUARY 1-28, 1964.

1.	Bonanza	KSD	400,200	52	1.	Death Valley Days (Sat. 6:00)	KSD	U.S. Borax	121,700	15	Big 4; Editorial	KMOX	162,700
2.	Beverly Hillbillies	KMOX	377,900	49	2.	Rifleman (Mon.-Fri. 6:00)	KTVI	Four Star	110,700	13	6:00 News; Wea; Spts	KMOX	120,700
3.	Dick Van Dyke	KMOX	353,800	46	3.	S.S. Popeye (Mon.-Fri. 5:00) (Sat. 4:00)	KMOX	UAA, KING	84,700	11	Maverick	KSD	78,800
4.	Andy Griffith	KMOX	303,000	42	4.	Trails West (Sun. 5:30)	KSD	Robeck	80,500	8	Wide World Sports	KTVI	76,800
5.	Ed Sullivan	KMOX	296,100	42	5.	Woody Woodpecker (Tues. 5:30)	KPLR	MCA-TV	79,900	11	Mr. Ed; 20th Century	KMOX	157,400
6.	Danny Kaye	KMOX	274,800	37	6.	Naked City (Sun. 9:00)	KTVI	Screen Gems	76,300	10	Huntley-Brinkley	KSD	113,300
7.	Candid Camera	KMOX	260,300	34	7.	Maverick (Mon.-Fri. 4:30)	KSD	Warner Bros.	74,600	10	Candid Camera	KMOX	260,300
8.	Petticoat Junction	KMOX	251,200	31	8.	Yogi Bear (Thurs. 5:30)	KPLR	Screen Gems	71,800	10	What's My Line	KMOX	248,300
9.	What's My Line	KMOX	248,300	32	9.	Huckleberry Hound (Mon. 5:30)	KPLR	Screen Gems	71,700	10	Three Stooges	KPLR	74,200
10.	Lawrence Welk	KTVI	242,000	29	10.	Wrestling (Sat. 5:00)	KSD	20 Fox TV	71,100	9	S.S. Popeye	KMOX	88,600
											Huntley-Brinkley	KSD	119,000
											Huntley-Brinkley	KSD	121,200
											Early Show	KMOX	108,400

SAN FRANCISCO

STATIONS: KTVU, KRON, KPIX, KGO. SURVEY PERIOD: FBERUARY 1-28, 1964.

1.	Ed Sullivan Show	KPIX	457,400	40	1.	San Francisco Beat (Sat. 7:00)	KPIX	CBS Films	214,200	16	Great Movies	KRON	143,600
2.	Bonanza	KRON	410,400	33	2.	M Squad (Tues. 7:00)	KPIX	MCA-TV	205,800	17	Bachelor Father	KRON	136,700
3.	Jackie Gleason	KPIX	353,900	29	3.	One Step Beyond (Wed. 7:00)	KPIX	ABC Films	185,000	16	Battle Line	KRON	144,800
4.	Beverly Hillbillies	KPIX	325,600	25	4.	Rifleman (Thurs. 7:00)	KPIX	Four Star	180,100	13	Detectives	KRON	165,000
5.	Lucy Show	KPIX	322,400	26	5.	Have Gun; Jazz Steve (Mon. 7:00)	KPIX	CBS Films	167,200	13	Flying Doctor	KTVU	132,900
6.	Defenders; B. Crosby	KPIX	319,800	26	6.	Detectives (Thurs. 7:00)	KRON	Four Star	165,000	13	Rifleman	KPIX	180,100
7.	Dick Van Dyke	KPIX	319,600	26	7.	Battle Line (Wed. 7:00)	KRON	Official	144,800	11	One Step Beyond	KPIX	185,000
8.	JFK Awards; P. Mason	KPIX	305,100	25	8.	You Asked For It (Thurs. 7:00)	KTVU	Medallion	140,700	10	Rifleman	KPIX	180,100
9.	Password	KPIX	304,600	25	9.	Bachelor Father (Tues. 7:00)	KRON	MCA-TV	136,700	10	M Squad	KPIX	105,800
10.	Dr. Kildare	KRON	297,300	25	10.	Ripcord (Fri. 7:00)	KPIX	UA-TV	133,600	10	Lawbreaker	KRON	120,000

SAN DIEGO

STATIONS: KFMB, KOGO, XETV. SURVEY PERIOD: JANUARY 4-31, 1964.

1.	Beverly Hillbillies	KFMB	128,500	39	1.	Death Valley Days (Wed. 7:00)	KOGO	U.S. Borax	91,700	28	Rifleman; Jack Ruby	KFMB	33,600
2.	Mr. Ed; Wizard Oz	KFMB	114,700	35	2.	Fractured Flickers (Sat. 7:00)	KFMB	Desilu	80,800	25	Int'l Showtime	KOGO	60,700
3.	Dick Van Dyke	KFMB	114,000	35	3.	Biography (Thurs. 7:00)	KOGO	Official	79,000	24	Sea Hunt	KFMB	58,900
4.	Bonanza	KOGO	108,300	33	4.	Zoorama (Fri. 7:00)	KFMB	Trans Lux	72,600	22	Premiere Movietime	KOGO	71,300
5.	Lassie; Wizard Oz	KFMB	105,300	32	5.	Across The 7 Seas (Mon. 7:00)	KOGO	Crosby Prod.	70,400	22	Outer Limits	XETV	60,800
6.	Disney's World	KOGO	99,900	31	6.	Manhunt (Tues. 7:00)	KFMB	Screen Gems	69,000	21	Battle Line	KOGO	55,400
7.	Candid Camera	KFMB	98,700	30	7.	M Squad (Sat. 6:30)	KFMB	MCA-TV	65,000	20	Int'l Showtime	KOGO	61,700
8.	Perry Mason	KFMB	97,400	30	8.	Stafford; Ozzie; Duke (Wed. 7:30)	XETV	ITC	59,100	18	Virginian	KOGO	92,400
9.	Jackie Gleason	KFMB	94,200	29	9.	Sea Hunt (Thurs. 7:00)	KFMB	UA-TV	58,900	18	Biography	KOGO	79,000
10.	Virginian	KOGO	92,600	28	10.	Battle Line (Tues. 7:00)	KOGO	Official	55,400	17	Manhunt	KFMB	69,000

COLUMBUS O.

STATIONS: WLWC, WTVN, WBNS. SURVEY PERIOD: JANUARY 4-31, 1964.

1.	Beverly Hillbillies	WBNS	173,200	38	1.	Maverick (Mon.-Fri. 6:30)	WTVN WBNS	Warner Bros.	100,100	22	CBS News	WBNS	68,400
2.	Flintstones	WTVN	163,700	37							Look Long; Spts; Fea	WBNS	75,700
3.	Bonanza	WLWC	161,100	41	2.	Biography; Wizard Oz (Sun. 6:30)	WBNS	Official	86,600	26	AFL FB; Showboat; Str.	WTVN	88,900
4.	Donna Reed	WTVN	159,300	42	3.	Rifleman; Wea; Mr. Ed (Tu, Th, F 6)	WBNS	Four Star	72,600	17	Home Edition	WLWC	49,200
5.	Patty Duke	WTVN	150,800	35	4.	Death Valley; Password (Sat. 6:30)		U.S. Borax	70,000	18	Midwestern Hayride	WLWC	90,200
6.	My 3 Sons	WTVN	148,900	34	5.	Gun Will Travel (Sun. 7:00)	WLWC	CBS Films	69,800	16	Lassie; Wizard Oz	WBNS	115,400
7.	Combat	WTVN	144,200	33	6.	M Squad; Hitchcock (Fri. 10:30)	WBNS	MCA-TV	63,200	18	Jack Paar	WLWC	96,000
8.	McHale's Navy	WTVN	143,700	33	7.	One Step Beyond (Sun. 10:00)	WTVN	ABC Films	61,600	14	Candid Camera	WBNS	141,200
9.	Jimmy Dean	WTVN	142,900	26	8.	Shannon (Sun. 10:30)	WTVN	Screen Gems	58,700	13	What's My Line	WBNS	111,500
10.	Dick Van Dyke	WBNS	141,600	34	9.	Bachelor Father (Thurs. 7:30)	WBNS	MCA-TV	56,300	13	Flintstones	WTVN	163,700
					10.	Pinbusters (Sat. 1:00)	WTVN	Romper Room	56,100	12	CBS News	WBNS	21,400
											Popeye; One of Kind	WBNS	26,300

FOSTERS' AGENCY LIMITED

proudly announce their exclusive representation of the following Television Series:—

THE DICKIE HENDERSON SHOW

with

Dickie Henderson

June Laverick

Lionel Murton

Danny Grover

etc., etc.

Directed by Bill Hitchcock
Written by Jimmy Grafton & Associates on Associated-Rediffusion & Network
Now in Its Fourth Year

Provided by Foster T.V. Productions Ltd.

HATTIE JACQUES
in
"MISS ADVENTURE"

A Thriller Serial
with

John Arnatt
Tony Britton
Jameson Clark
George Coulouris
Jennifer Jayne
Maurice Kaufmann
Bill Kerr
Yvonne Romaine
John Stone
etc., etc.

Produced by Ernest Maxin
Written by Peter & Marjorie Yeldham
For A.B.C. Television

Provided by Foster Television Ltd.

THE DICK VAN DYKE SHOW

with

Dick Van Dyke

Mary Tyler Moore

Morey Amsterdam

Rose Marie

Produced by Sheldon Leonard
Created by Carl Reiner for Calvada Productions on B.B.C. Teleevision every Friday at 7:35

"MY FAVOURITE MARTIAN"

with

Ray Walston

Pamela Britton

Bill Bixby

Ann Marshall

Producea by Jack Chertok Television Inc.
Created by John L. Greene on Associated-Rediffusion and Granada Television

Pinky and Perky's "Melodymaster"

Presented by Jan & Vlasta Dalibor on B.B.C. Television every Sunday at 4:45

Pinky and Perky's "Pop In"

Presented by Jan & Vlasta Dalibor
for B.B.C. Television

Currently on Avro Television, Holland

PICCADILLY HOUSE
PICCADILLY CIRCUS
LONDON S.W.1

U. S. Associates:
WILLIAM MORRIS AGENCY

REGENT 5367/8/9 (11 lines)
GRAMS:
CONFIRMATION LONDON S.W.1

Foreign TV Reviews

I MISERABILI (Les Miserables)
With: Gastone Moschin, Giulia Lazzarini, Tino Carraro, Elsa Albani, Aldo Silvani, Antonio Battistella, Cesarina Gheraldi, Achille Millo, Mila Vannucci, Angela Cardile, Roberto Bisacco, Dina Sassoli, Roldano Lupi, Loretta Goggi, others.
Adaptation, screenplay, and dialogues by Dante Guardamagna
Based on work by Victor Hugo
Director: Sandro Bolchi
70 Mins.; Sun., 9 p.m.
RAI-TV, from Rome (tape)

Probably the most ambitious venture of its kind ever attempted by RAI-TV, if not other nets, this new version of Victor Hugo's marathon classic, "Les Miserables," is slated to run for 10 weeks and a total of 11 hours and 20 minutes. On the strength of the first episode, it looks like another major achievement in RAI's popular string of serials, with excellent ratings envisioned. It should also win critical plaudits.

The Hugo tome—or tomes—furnish almost ideal material for a popular serial destined to charm the general public to which the video medium plays while not offending the taste of the more highbrow viewers. The problem of course, and despite this item's over-eleven-hour running time, is adaptation. Again at an early glance, Dante Guardamagna appears to have done a standout job in this sector. It's a literate script, which sets the scene rapidly, clearly, yet immediately hints at depth of thought and theme in things to come. Sandro Bolchi's direction is likewise eminently suited to the medium; direct, functional, and effective. He has not cluttered the scene with an infinity of characters and plot lines, nor has he over-simplified. His story shortcuts are adroit, the concentration is on the essential, yet the backdrop flavor with which Hugo enriched his tale is not lost. Sets (Maurizio Mammi') and costumes (Maurizio Monteverde) are in the no-expense-be-spared RAI-TV tradition, and they ring true. Production gloss is evident.

The acting is excellent. With this effort, Gastone Moschin, who has built a steady career through character roles, becomes a major star and fully deserving of handle. His legit backdrop shows in his easy dominance of his key Jean Valjean role, richly modulated and physically well suited. Giulia Lazzarini, as Fantina, is already well known to Italo televiewers, despite her youth. She registers solidly. Tino Carraro has another solid characterization to add to his long list in Javert, the grim persecutor. Aldo Silvani lends assurance and makes some important early plot points as the priest who first reinstills confidence in Valjean, the freed but ostracized jailbird. He is one of the most consistently satisfying yet performers in the local medium. Remaining cast seen so far measures up.

First segment already hints at various major themes to come in the course of lengthy tale, which assumes epic proportions in the original. Within the limitations of the video medium, and if current indications hold, this RAI production promises to be a most satisfactory visualization of Monsieur Hugo's epic tale. Hawk.

SUPERSONIC
With Michael Flanders, narrator
Producer: Richard Cawston
70 Mins., Tues., 9:25 p.m.
BBC-TV, from London

What makes Richard Cawston so outstanding a producer of documentaries—his programs on the world influence of tv and the life of airline pilots have copped him awards internationally—is that he brings a strong narrative and visual flair to subjects that might easily get bogged down in technicalities. Even those only languidly interested in the Anglo-French collaboration over the Concord passenger aircraft could not fail to be intrigued by this lucid exposition of its background and problems.

The Concord project, which may result in the first supersonic commercial airplane, is the result of pooling of resources by British and French government departments, factories, and technicians. It was Cawston's brief to outline this cooperation in all its manifestations, and he pulled it off triumphantly. His script, clearly spoken by Michael Flanders, took in on-the-spot film of work in progress, as well as statements and observations from the chief personalities involved.

There was a wealth of fascinating detail. On the human level, the experts were shown learning each other's language so that they could communicate and working without friction towards the common goal. On the technical plane, the program neatly disclosed the considerations governing, for instance, the choice of metal structure for a plane that would fly at twice the speed of sound. It pulled no punches about the difficulties, and allowed chief objector, the Swedish Bo Lundberg, to state his case against the aircraft's concept. He feared the lack of control by the pilot, the inconvenience to passengers of being strapped in for hour-long periods, the danger of cosmic rays at such high altitudes. Some of these questions were laconically answered by those involved, including Sir George Edwards of the British Aircraft Corp.

Final part of the program, which enthralled throughout its generous 70-minute running-time was an examination of the hazards to nerves and health caused by the supersonic boom that will necessarily accompany the introduction of the planes on commercial routes. This aspect was less reassuring, except that everyone seemed conscious of the problem, without any firm solution for it.

The American project, so far less precise in formulation, loomed as a threat to the Concord, and there was more speculation about it than firm fact. The American point of view was put by Najeeb Halaby, of the Federal Aviation Administration, which has already received orders for a plane that is not yet in production or the speed limits not fixed.

It was, in fact, a comprehensive account of a vital and fascinating subject, and another feather in Cawston's much-plumed hat. Otta.

THE MORECAMBE & WISE SHOW
With Eric Morecambe, Ernie Wise, Eddie Calvert and the C Men, The Raindrops, Jack Farnell Orch.
Producer: Colin Clews.
Writers: S. C. Green, R. M. Hills.
35 mins.: 8:25 p.m.
Associated TeleVision, from London.

Past masters at the standup gaggery trade, Morecambe & Wise are assured a regular place high in the ratings, for like their previous shows, this one followed in the funnyman-straightman routine which has made them household names locally.

If some of their routines, milked of every possible yock-making possibility, tend to be stretched to the breaking point, they are fortified by facial expressions and superb timing that defy all resistence to laughter. At this point, M&W are without equal in their handling of golden corn as devized by Sid Green and Dick Hills.

Punctuating their incessant stream of banter this time out was "the man with the golden trumpet" Eddie Calvert, who, with the aid of his C Men, polished off a honeysweet version of "Crying Trumpet." Show was unobtrusively brought in by producer Colin Clews whose deft handling of the knockabout sketches underlined the comedy and kept the show moving electrically. Watt.

PUTTING ON THE DONEGAN
With Lonnie Donegan, Clark Brothers, Raindrops, Jackie Lee, Peter Reeves, others Producer: Frances Essex
Writer: Dick Vosburgh
30 mins.; Friday, 10:05 p.m.
Associated Television, from London.

Dapper Lonnie Donegan, an experienced performer and singer who has been riding the crest of the pop music wave for a number of years has also firmly implanted himself in the ranks of local all-round family entertainers. He is as successful now without a guitar as he is behind one, a factor which justifies the change in pace of his retread ATV show, out for a further prime time spin on the indie network.

In the segment caught, he shed his jazz-flavored c&w yodelling and exchanged his beat group for a team of singers and hoofers in a successful shfitover that adds beef and stature to his image as an all-rounder.

Sans guitar—save for one number—he scored as a freewheeling personality whose lyrical wit and inborn showmanship easily sustained a lightweight half hour. His dabble at dancing was a neat first time click, largely aided and abetted by the expert Clark Brothers plus the mounting of firstrate production numbers by Leo Khraribian.

Emphasis of the show was on uptempoed, amusing numbers with simple, but well conceived and effective, routines geared to Donegan's particular ability. Backing the star, whose agile larynx and musical finesse lent excitement to the half dozen numbers involved, were the able Raindrops with pert thrush Jackie Lee.

Leading light entertainment producer Francis Essex applied his skills enthusiastically, tight-knitting a worthwhile candy floss half-hour. Watt.

LYRICS BY SHAKESPEARE
With Cleo Laine
Narrator: Tony Britton
Director: Robert Fleming
Music: Johnny Dankworth
20 mins.; Mon., 9:10 p.m.
REDIFFUSION, from London

Lack of jazz on the video airwaves has always been a marked failing of British tv, jazz lovers assert, but the reason this music form seldom reaches prime time was plainly outlined by this show.

It had everything going in its favor—the top jazz MD in the country, Johnny Dankworth; the leading jazz singer, Cleo Laine. The concept was good, the execution immaculate. The result? Too far out for mass audience consumption, and probably some of the buffs.

For the most sophisticated jazz ear, however, the flute-like pipes of Miss Laine cavorted nimbly through Dankworth's complex modern arrangements — firmly based on Shakespearean characters and happenings—with such ease and style that, for a few at least, the show will go down as a golden interlude.

Dankworth's own genius was also in full evidence with a versatile and colorful scare, which could well be developed for a full album. Watt.

THE LONG JOURNEY
Producer: Philip Donnellan
Writer: Donnellan
45 mins.; Tues., 9:25 p.m.
BBC-TV, from London

Joining a lengthening line of video productions that have presented the "inside stuff" on erring teenagers, this documentary added little to what has already been said, but went over the same ground with a different "cast."

Shunning any form of commentary, producer-writer-director Philip Donnellan shuffled together a collection of teenage viewpoints as shared among the "runaways" and the beatniks. Clip, as a collection of conversations with lost and lonely souls, were individually okay, but as a show they missed out. Primarily because they were in no way linked to a theme, made no point for or against anything and lead to confusion.

However, photography by Peter Bartlett was sharp and editing by Edward le Lorrain made considerable impact at times. And there were some neat background touches, such as the specially written folk music which seemed exactly to fit the pathos in the unhinged and wild life these often misguided youngsters indulge in. Watt.

Foreign TV Followup

Festival

James Hanley's "Say Nothing" made a notable segment of BBC-TV's unpredictable "Festival" drama skein five weeks back, and, although his "The Inner World of Miss Vaughan" was less successful, it made an unusual offbeat entry, well suited to the intention of the series, which is to explore unfamiliar avenues of legit and tv drama.

Miss Vaughan (Annette Crosbie), lodger in a seedy Welsh boarding-house, was a secretive spinister, allergic to human contact, living in a private world of her own devising. A local minister had a fruitless passion for her, which he vented in plaintive adoration outside her door. As an earthy complement to this odd affair, Mr. Jones (Kenneth

(Continued on page 42)

Tele Follow-Up Comment

CBS Reports

Once again, Walter Lippmann returned to "CBS Reports" last Wednesday night (8) to air his views in a stimulating one-hour discussion with network commentator Eric Sevareid. Lippmann's reputation as America's most distinguished political columnist can only be enhanced by these annual tv outings in which he demonstrates his sure command of contemporary history and its underlying trends.

Lippmann's impact on tv stems from his lucid formulations and the total absence of punditry. Behind his quietly unassuming style, Lippmann succeeds in introducing ideas that question and undermine all the fundamental assumptions of American foreign policy.

Since Sen. William Fulbright recently has begun calling for a reexaminaton of the American mythology of omnipotence, Lippmann's point of view has been greatly reenforced, though still not popularly accepted. Sevareid skillfully elicited Lippmann's opinions about Russia, China, Cuba, the status of the cold war, the possibilities for a solution in Vietnam, etc. Lippmann, of course, did not flinch from reiterating his estimate of Charles DeGaulle as a genius of a statesman who was the first to recognize that the postwar epoch ended about five years ago.

On the domestic scene, Lippmann also made incisive comments about the upcoming Presidential elections and the various Republican contenders. His chief forte, however, lies in the international arena where careful listening to Lippmann's ideas would give this stanza the status of a real shocker. Herm.

The Hollywood Palace

With Donald O'Connor fronting as emcee and performing some sparking song - and - dance bits, ABC-TV's "Hollywood Palace" came with a crackerjack stanza last Saturday night (11). Particularly since every turn on this bill, up to and including Jimmy Durante's intro for the following week's show, contributed the sharpness and the pacing needed for a top-grade variety show.

O'Connor is, of course, far more than a walk-on emcee. He opened the show with a solid production of "Let's Face the Music" and then pitched up nifty bits at other points with his "Tea For Two" number, prefaced by his comedy hat-trick routine, and some byplay.

Jerry Van Dyke's brand of low-key comedy, delivered while attempting to strum a banjo, hit the mark after a fast curtain-raiser by the bicycle act, The Frielanies. Van Dyke's rooty-toot-toot banjo version of "Hello Dolly" got him off strong.

Rick Little, a Canadian impersonator, was one of the show's top highlights. Little's routine, in which he mimicks James Mason teaching a group of Hollywoodites to recite Shakespeare, constituted a very witty gallery of impersonations that mark this youngster for the big time.

The Four Little Angels, a quartet of Negro moppets from the same family, were wholly winning with their opening rundown of nursery rhythms, followed by a rocking version of "Thou Swell," with O'Connor in the lead.

Tarzan & His Lions was another socko visual turn in which the animal trainer, draped according to character with a tiger loin skin, handled his cats with bravado and showmanship. When he put his head into the lion's mouth (the teeth looked real), Tarzan was obviously prepared to do anything to get a hand, which he richly deserved.

Fran Jeffries was another impact turn with her two songs. First was an undulating bossa nova that framed her physical assets most effectively, and second was a ballad, "Nobody's Baby," in which she demonstrates that she could really sing just in case nobody was listening during her first number.

Jack E. Leonard, in a spoof of his dieting expertize with O'Connor, was particularly sharp for this session. Leonard tossed off his iconoclastic humor at lighting speed, and did not spare the White House occupants from his peppery remarks.

The Wellington Singers, a folk combo, had a very brief bit before O'Connor brought the show to close with a "Sing You Sinners" production number. Herm.

Ed Sullivan Show

Ed Sullivan, on his CBS-TVer Sunday (12) caught the spirit of the Moscow State Circus which recently toured the U.S. By use of excerpts and full acts, he relayed the flavor of the Russo troupe, which incidentally, seemed like one of the best assemblies of circus acts ever under one tent.

Sullivan had much to work with, lots of sequences to select from, and a wealth of details to provide grand effects. There is some quarrel though, with the acts that were glossed over with brief sequences. For example, the Khodzhbaev troupe of fierce Cossack riders might have been given more time. Violetta & Alexander's Kiss' risley torch spinning was another spectacular turn which might have been shown at greater length.

However, there was the thrilling work of the Vladimir Dovyenko troupe of teeterboardists and tumblers. One of the most spectacular tricks of all-time was the complete somersault of a man on high stilts. Filatov's Bears, the hand-to-handing by Kaseev & Manasaryan, the midair spinning by Sinkovskaya & Lisin, and Olkhovokova's Dogs were among the excellent turns viewed on this layout.

This is the second Moscow State Circus presentation by Sullivan this season. This show was caught during its Minneapolis run under the auspices of impresario Morris Chalfen. The previous presentation was taped in London, and brought CBS-TV a lot of grief since Chalfen protested that he lost considerable business because it was presented during the run and many presumed that it comprised his present collection of acts. Jose.

Defenders

Milton Berle, the actor, held the center of the vidstage in Saturday's (11) "Defenders" episode and came off effectively. He had in outline a tailor-made script in the "Die Laughing" outing, written by Roger Hill Lewis, dealing with a big-time comic who finds that he's stricken with cancer, and tries suicide.

Berle, though in his thesping transcended the outline, brought conviction to his role, catching the nuances and the depths. The performance, really, was better than the Lewis script. The teleplay managed to retain interest, despite the morbidity of the situation. Where it failed was that it touched on many subjects—that of a man's right to commit suicide, the morality involved in mercy deaths, the law and the vagaries of psychiatry—but it did not face up squarely to any of these big issues. In the last few minutes, it took the easy way out, making E. G. Marshall the hero, lawyer Marshall proving that his client Berle didn't want to commit suicide and therefore should not be institutionalized in a mental hospital. Against the bigger issues raised—and the prospect of the principal's death—the solution was more of an artifact than a dramatic solution.

Marsha Hunt as Berle's wife seemed out of key; she looked more like a society matron than a big-time comic's wife. Lynn Loring, as the daughter, was understandingly distraught. Others in the cast were competent. Stuart Rosenberg's direction was tempered and fine. Horo.

Perry Como Show

For his sixth special of the season, Perry Como travelled to the U. of Minnesota and delivered an entertaining hour Thursday (9) night on NBC-TV.

The vidvaude layout for "Como's Kraft Music Hall" was well paced and guestars Bob Newhart, Peter Nero and Keely Smith worked well singly and in combo with the star. Only jarring note, which had nothing to do with the show, was NBC-TV's news pickup from Washington of President Johnson's announcement of a 15-day truce in the rail dispute. It ruined a Newhart comedy routine.

Como, playing before the col-

(Continued on page 41)

Inside Stuff—Radio-TV

Macfadden-Bartell, the publishing-broadcasting umbrella, has acquired a pair of trade publications, Super Market Merchandising and The Discount Merchandiser. Super Market Publishing Co., publisher of the two books, will operate as a wholly-owned subsidiary of Macfadden-Bartell.

Those frisky young fillies frolicking in the meadow with a cigaret between their fingers will have to trun elsewhere for their tv residuals. The order has come down to all commercial producers, according to David Commons, director of commercials for De Patie Freleng Enterprises, to demand a signed affidavit from each subject that they are more than 30 years old. This is in line with the ciggie manufacturers campaign to direct sales appeal away from youths.

Natalie Wood, Joey Bishop, Lucille Ball, Bob Hope, Sandra Dee, Sammy Davis Jr., Milton Berle, Robert Goulet and Raymond Burr have been lined up thus far to participate in a taped radio show to be aired for U.S. servicemen in South Viet Nam April 28. Coast production supervisor for the USO affair is Jack Kalcheim, arranging the talent with Abe Lastfogel, head of the William Morris Agency.

Storer's WITI-TV has gone award happy in Milwaukee this season, taking top honors in three of the principal local competitions. Last week it won both tv awards made by the Milwaukee Press Club, one for its news coverage of the Northwestern Railroad train-truck crash, the other for community service with its special documentary, "A Day With the Braves." Two weeks earlier it hauled in seven trophies from the Milwaukee Radio-TV Council, more than any other tv station; and in February it took the "Newsfilm Station of the Year" award made annually by the Wisconsin Press Photographers Assn.

WXEX-TV, Richmond, Va., responded quickly to the tragic earthquake that struck Alaska. Five days after the quake, station undertook a concerted pubservice drive to raise funds for the Alaska disaster victims. Spearheaded by news director John D. O'Connell, the drive had netted $2,000 after just four air pleas. When he was news director for WXEX-TV's sister radio station WLEE, O'Connell collected $5,000 in a week for families of storm-battered Chincoteague Island off the coast of Virginia. Salvation Army has forwarded funds received in the Alaskan drive to its hq in Alaska.

Reporting the calendar 1963 net of Canada's Selkirk Holdings, VARIETY (April 1) erratumed by switching the company's h.q. from Edmonton, Alberta, to Winnipeg. Edmonton it is.

TV Followup Comment

Continued from page 40

lege crowd at Northrop Auditorium, appeared to be enjoying his audience. He came on winningly with "Hello Dolly" and halfway through did a melodious songalog in fine style. Keely Smith, an artist who can do wonders with an old tune, had some fun with "Let Me Call You Sweetheart, among other numbers. Pianist Peter Nero showed his virtuosity by combining Beethoven and Cole Porter, a mixed blessing for the pop lovers and the long-hairs, albeit an interesting exercise. Newhart's key comedy routine was killed by the rail strike announcement.

U. of Minnesota glee club and all-girl cheering squad also did their bit. Horo.

Bell Telephone Hour

Nostalgia seemed to be the prime aim of the "Bell Telephone Hour" Tuesday (7) with Ginger Rogers dancing and vocalizing the memorable numbers from her motion picture hits, and big-band singer Helen O'Connell in a medley of her hits of the late '30s and early '40s backed by Red Nichols group.

Miss Rogers, who also hosted the hour, looked great and danced with much the form of old if her singing voice has faded to a noticable degree. Miss O'Connell's pipes loud, clear and swinging in a rundown of the clicks she had, mostly while with the Jimmy Dorsey band.

For more memory-lane stuff, composer Hoagy Carmichael narrated his suite, "Johnny Appleseed," while the show chorus worked out the narrative in ballet. It was not nearly as much fun as the old schmaltzy animated version done originally by Carmichael and Walt Disney, but the composer's music and narration made for pleasant sounds.

Opera stars Robert Merrill and James McCracken made an impressive first appearance on the hour with selections from Verdi's "Otello." Donald Voorhees conducted the BT orch. Bill.

Open End

David Susskind was a lamb on his Sunday (12) WPIX, N.Y., gabfest with a clutch of New York City's top cops. Had he seemed the least bit sheepish his performance might have been mitigated somewhat, but instead he was an indomitable cheerleader for—in his words—"New York's finest."

It proved a two-hour commercial for the local constabulary, with timeouts for commercials. The spirit of Comm. Murphy musta been hovering at Susskind's shoulder. The force is much-maligned, he told the brass on deck. And wouldn't you know he'd align himself against "molly-coddling" of delinquents, oblivious to the irony of his own partisanship?

There were other moments when a viewer could really drop his jaw. Quoth Susskind: "There's no wanton persecution (by the cops) of minority groups, is there? Isn't it largely propaganda?" And more cruel than embarassing was his poser to a Negro captain: what could be done to convince the Negro and Puerto Rican populace "that there is no white man's supremacy, that law and order are being upheld . . .?"

The session otherwise was pronounced for anecdotes, deployment of troops, various techniques for coping with citizen anarchy, and sundry kindred peeks at police performance. There was some attention, with platitudes, to the issue of police handling of civil rights demonstrations, but nary a word from the pivot re "top cop" attitudes and/or directives about the state's new and controversial "stop-and-frisk" law.

At his boldest, Susskind raised the issue of alleged police brutality. And at his boldest, one of the brasshats replied, "Well, actually it is nothing that is taking place during my time in the department." (sic) Pit.

Greensboro, N. C., Jim Gray, news director for WPAQ, has been named v.p. for radio of the U.P.I. Broadcasters Association of N. C. The association represents some 80 radio and television stations in the state.

Kern's 35 'Sons'

Hollywood, April 14.

James V. Kern, who directed "The Joey Bishop Show" this season, has been signed by Don Fedderson Productions to direct 35 segs in the "My Three Sons" series, starring Fred McMurray, next semester on ABC-TV.

It's a reunion for Kern and Fedderson, the director having worked on Fedderson's "Date With the Angels" series in 1957, and also "The Millionaire." Kern has also directed series such as "I Love Lucy," "Ann Sothern Show" and "Pete & Gladys."

Series resumes production at Desilu Gower May 11. Fedderson is exec producer, Fred Henry associate producer, Ed Hartman producer.

Penn.'s $125,000 Grant To Phillips' WHYY-TV

Philadelphia, April 14.

Gov. William W. Scranton presented $125,000 in state funds to William Goldman, president of educational station WHYY-TV. The sum represents a capital grant of $100,000 to assist in the purchase of new studio equipment, plus a $25,000 operating grant to assist in improvement of WHYY's in-school programming.

In accepting, Goldman noted that the gift came "at a most opportune time." WHYY stations moved over the weekend into WFIL's old studios in West Philadelphia. "We are in the big leagues now. The kind action of Triangle Publications (owners of the WFIL property) and this grant from the state make this a very auspicious occasion," Goldman said.

WTAR Network Feed For MacArthur Rites

Norfolk-Newport News, April 14.

Tidewater's WTAR-TV won the designation as the network pool station for the funeral procession and services for General Douglas MacArthur. The Continental Army Command Headquarters made the designation.

For all tv and radio aspects of the network pool, Joel Carlson, manager of pubaffairs and news department of WTAR, was named producer. Pool coordinator for WAVY-TV was Dick Paul; L.W. (Duff) Kliewer was in charge of the arrangments for WVEC-TV. In addition to the Tidewater stations, WXEX-TV, the NBC affil in Richmond, and the Fort Eustis Army Mobile unit were assigned to the operation.

FCC's 'Blackboard Jungle' Scheme Draws Beefs on ETV Allocations

Washington, April 14.

FCC premiered its own "Blackboard Jungle" as nearly 100 contesting broadcast interests prepared for the rumble over allocating educational television channels.

The first prelude in the spectrum scramble came as the diverging parties filed comments on propos.'s of the Commission and the National Assn. of Educational Broadcasters for divvying up Ultra High Frequencies. Comments were also in on a proposals for an airborne etv system.

The overall consensus from the comments was that very few parties are happy with the FCC proposals, charging either far too much or far too little has been proffered for educational needs.

On the airborne proposals, nearly everyone was trying to shoot them down before the launching.

The first of the sky-vee proposals was offered by Midwest Program Airborne Television Instruction Inc. to put its six-state experimental plan in orbit using channels 72, 74, 76, 78, 80 and 82. The fixed services goes from airplanes to schools. Flying higher, Westinghouse Electric Corp. suggested a national airborne system using channels 66 through 83.

Most of the comments coming in on FCC's and NAEB's allocation plans were from state or local etv organizations trying to manuever particular channels into their area for educational use.

ABC accused NAEB of trying to reserve the better U channels for non-commercial use. The web said NAEB's table was "too highly saturated" with non-commercial allocations.

Among the filers backing UHF expansion was Embassy Pictures Corp. which expressed a desire to build an ultra high station on Long Island.

Maximum Telecasters Assn. backed the more limited FCC proposal, based largely on state plans, over the more grandiose computer-prepared NAEB table.

Critical of the Commission were NAEB, the Joint Council on Educational Broadcasting and the National Education Assn. All charged the Commission with being short sighted and chintzy with its educational allotment. In comparison the airborne ideas drew almost unanimous objection except for a few nostrums of support from Midwestern educational interests.

NBC charged a nationwide airborne system would "seriously reduce" broadcast service on the channels the air boys requested.

A broadside of "usurpation and preemption of valuable channels" was issued against the idea by Electronic Industries Assn. Almost expressing the sentiments of the opponents of its own UHF table, NAEB dubbed the sky-vee proposal "a noble experiment, but an unrealistic approach."

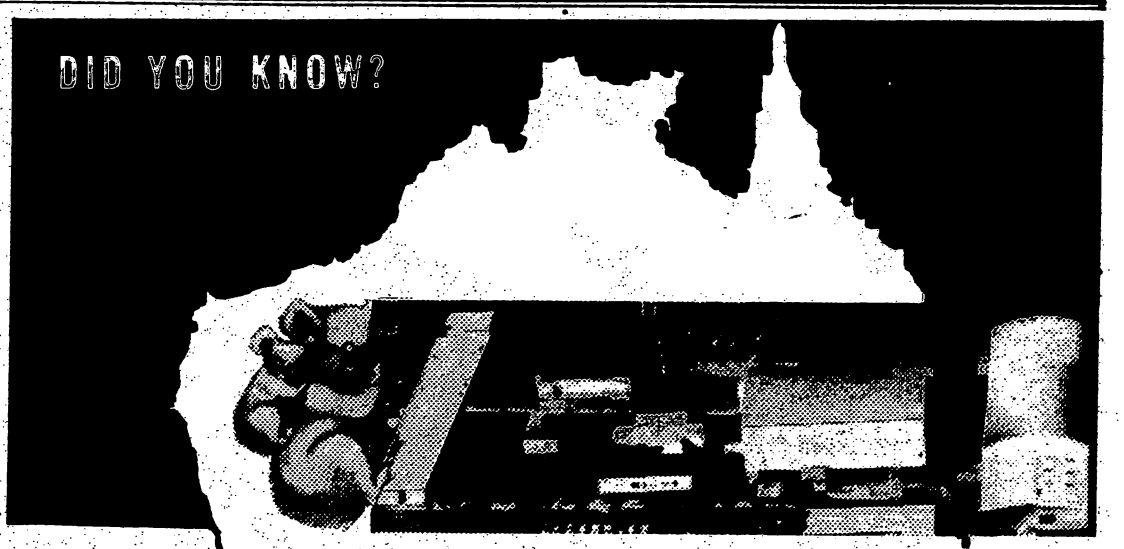
Midwest Program defended its operation as the "most efficient and economical" to meet the growing needs for in school tv. It charged FCC and NAEB with creating an "artificial scarcity" of allocations by misjudging economic, engineering and commercial requirements for education.

Canadian BBG Wants Cable TV Regulated

Ottawa, April 14.

Will the content stipulation for Canadian tv be extended to cable-relayed programs from the U.S.?

Board of Broadcast Governors and federal Dept. of Transport (which handles broadcasting in parliament) have jointly recommended that cable tv be subject to the same regulations as regular tv—notably in program content and in license applications, both new and renewal.



National Community Antenna Television Assn. contends that cable tv should not be regulated by BBG because it is not broadcasting but merely relaying. Also that regular tv is already overprotected and that anyone could put up a 300-foot antenna to intercept signals, as NCATA does.

Alhough they haven't been mentioned, two thoughts in BBG's collective mind may be; unrestricted cable tv might be considered unfair competition by U.S. vs. Canadian advertisers, since the former have to pay nothing—unless to NCATA—for the wide extra exposure; and (b) saturating Canadian homes with exclusively U.S. advertising is another step toward painlessly imposing "the American way of life" on Canadians.

Des Moines — Edwin T. Elliott has been named general manager of radio station KSO, Des Moines. Whitehall Stations, Inc. is the new owner of the Des Moines AM outlet.

Sardi's East
123 East 54th St. New York
PLaza 1-6655
Sardi's
234 W. 44th ST. NEW YORK
LA 4-0707

No. 3 OF A SERIES

FACILITIES

★ Sound Stages at Artransa Park are 102ft. x 75ft. x 34ft....61ft. x 36ft. x 25ft. . . 30ft. x 24ft. x 14ft....and 28ft. x 26ft. x 10ft.

★ Camera equipment includes Mitchells . . . Arriflexes . . . Auricons . . . DeBries.

★ Lighting is Australia's most complete . . . enough (literally!) to light 3 full-length movies at one time.

★ Sound equipment includes Westrex . . . Nagra . . . Magnasync plus a full range of microphones....completely equipped recording Theatre.

. . . THAT AUSTRALIA HAS WORLD-STANDARD LIGHTING EQUIPMENT

Harry Watt and Stanley Kramer as well as the Hecht-Hill, Lancaster Unit will tell you that for technical facilities, "down-under" is on world standards. Artransa Park Studios in Sydney—Australia's largest and most complete film production centre—uses lighting equipment on a par with the world's best.

Our New York office will be happy to provide full details and an illustrated brochure on Artransa Park, outlining its top technical facilities plus the many advantages of Australian location sites . . . which are only 14 hours from the West Coast!

ARTRANSA PARK TELEVISION PTY. LIMITED
WARRINGAH ROAD, FRENCH'S FOREST, SYDNEY, AUSTRALIA Tel: 40.9311
NEW YORK OFFICE: 229 WEST 43RD ST., NEW YORK 36, N.Y. Tel: LA 4-9058

4PV/3

DICK JOHN LEAVES WIIC FOR KNBC, HOLLYWOOD

Pittsburgh, April 14.

Dick John, news director of WIIC, has resigned to take a job with NBC-TV in Los Angeles where he will have a regular 6 p.m. newscast. John had been with the station for several months when he developed the "Dateline" concept which put all the news, sports and weather under the same heading.

This concept will be dropped by the station, according to a decision made by operations manager Sheldon Weaver. Each news show will now have a separate identity. For the present, Adam Lynch, the 11 p.m. newsman will double at the 6 p.m. time until a new man is found or the substitution is made from the present staff of Larry Gaffney, Regis Bobonis, Matt Mathews, Red Donley (sports director), Bob Cochran, Mark Schaefer and Lynch.

France's Michel Legrand In Israel for TV Series

Tel Aviv, April 14.

Michel Legrand, French composer-pianist, spent a week in Israel location-hunting for the first of a television series projecting countries and people he visits. His visit to Israel would be the first of the 30-minutes features, produced by Pierre Veille and directed by Andre Ceremans for an Israeli-Swiss co-production between Israel's A.A.A. Films and Teleant Corp. of Zurich.

The television features would depict people and places without any commentary, or dialog, using only pictures, rhythm and music, mostly folklore, as ingredients. Interest in the series has been shown and some distribution contracts have already been signed with five European networks.

Klavan's Zany Book

"We Die at Dawn" by Gene Klavan (Doubleday; $3.95) is a zany report from the front half on the radio comedy team of Klavan & (Dee) Finch who have assailed the 6-10 a.m. airwaves from New York's station WNEW since November, 1952.

Since the joshers must arise in respective Long Island residences each weekday morning at 4:30, this book gained a title. Typical of the volume's merry tilt is its alleged "Forward" by Senator Barry Goldwater. This contains one word: "Backward"!

For its revelation of an aspect of American mores in this tantivy era, copy of this book probably should be deposited in one of the innumerable time capsules Robert Moses is sure to sink in Flushing Meadows during the World's Fair.

Robe.

Foreign TV Followup

Continued from page 40

Griffith) made love to the landlady, a skittish matron whom he despised. The strangely haunting events took place in an atmosphere of Welsh puritanism, which tittered about sex and felt guilty about it.

Upshot was that the minister tried to break through to Miss Vaughan, who conversed with an imaginary Colonel on the seashore. But she could not see him, so wrapped up in her personal fantasy, and he wandered disconsolately away.

Hanley's dialog was firstrate in its acute idiom and its occasional poetic flights. But the situation needed more focus and development to strengthen its hold. It stayed static, and the mournful devotion of the minister required more explanation.

Gilchrist Calder's direction of Peter Luke's production was excellent, providing a sturdy and imaginative visual framework. Annette Crosbie was well cast as the odd spinster, and carried off her imaginary conversations without falling into comic bathos. William Squire coped ably with the devoted minister, but the most stirring performances came from Kenneth Griffith, revelling in the vulgarity of his common-man character, and from Hazel Hughes as the grotesque landlady. It made a curious, but worthwhile, entertainment.

Otta.

Bridgeport—Steve Powers, formerly with WICC, has been named news director at WNAB, succeeding Robin Sunde.

VARIETY ARB FEATURE FILM CHART

VARIETY-ARB's weekly chart offers a day-by-day analysis of the top feature evening slots in a particular market. On Saturdays and Sundays, daytime feature slots compete with nighttime pix periods for designation as the top feature slot of the day. The analysis is confined to the top rated feature slots in the ARB measured period, broken down by days in the week. The ARB measured period usually covers three or four weeks. Other data such as the time slot and total area homes is furnished. Top competition and competitive ratings also are highlighted.

Pittsburgh • STATIONS: KDKA, WTAE, WIIC. • SURVEY DATES: JANUARY 4-31, 1964.

KDKA — Total Area Homes: 172,700 — Metro Rating: 18 — Share of Audience: 42

MONDAYS 5:00-6:30
Program: EARLY SHOW

Jan. 6 "TARZAN'S SECRET TREASURE"
Johnny Weissmuller, Maureen O'Sullivan
1941, MGM, Banner

Jan. 13 "BLOOD ON THE MOON"
Robert Mitchum, Barbara Bel Geddes
1948, R.K.O., U.A.

Jan. 20 "CARIBBEAN"
John Payne, Arlene Dahl
1952, Paramount, Colorama

Jan. 27 "SHE WORE A YELLOW RIBBON"
John Wayne, Arlene Dahl
1949, R.K.O., U.A.

TOP COMPETITION

PROGRAM	STATION & TOTAL HOMES
Adventure Time 5:00-6:15	WTAE 206,900
Ron Cochran News 6:15-6:30	WTAE 144,100

KDKA — Total Area Homes: 153,400 — Metro Rating: 15 — Share of Audience: 39

TUESDAYS 5:00-6:30
Program: EARLY SHOW

Jan. 7 "SANTA FE TRAIL"
Errol Flynn, Olivia DeHavilland
Warner Bros., 1940, U.A.

Jan. 14 "GOLDEN EARRINGS"
Ray Milland, Marlene Dietrich
1947, Paramount, M.C.A.

Jan. 21 "THE NAVY COMES THROUGH"
Pat O'Brien, Jackie Cooper
1942, R.K.O., U.A.

Jan. 28 "THE EAGLE & THE HAWK"
John Payne, Rhonda Fleming
1950, Paramount, Colorama

TOP COMPETITION

PROGRAM	STATION & TOTAL HOMES
Adventure Time 5:00-6:15	WTAE 213,500
Ron Cochran News 6:15-6:30	WTAE 152,300

KDKA — Total Area Homes: 133,500 — Metro Rating: 14 — Share of Audience: 38

WEDNESDAYS 5:00-6:30
Program: EARLY SHOW

Jan. 8 "TROPIC ZONE"
Ronald Reagan, Rhonda Fleming
1953, Paramount, Colorama

Jan. 15 "THE WAGONS ROLL AT NIGHT"
Humphrey Bogart, Joan Leslie
1941, Warner Bros., U.A.

Jan. 22 "THOSE REDHEADS FROM SEATTLE"
Gene Barry, Rhonda Fleming
1953, Paramount, U.A.

Jan. 29 "TARZAN'S SAVAGE FURY"
Lex Barker, Dorothy Hart
1952, R.K.O., Banner

TOP COMPETITION

PROGRAM	STATION & TOTAL HOMES
Adventure Time 5:00-6:15	WTAE 196,300
Ron Cochran News 6:15-6:30	WTAE 139,000

KDKA — Total Area Homes: 121,200 — Metro Rating: 13 — Share of Audience: 37

THURSDAYS 5:00-6:30
Program: EARLY SHOW

Jan. 9 "PRIDE OF THE MARINES"
John Garfield, Eleanor Parker
1945, Warner Bros., U.A.

Jan. 16 "BERLIN EXPRESS"
Robert Ryan, Merle Oberon
1948, R.K.O., U.A.

Jan. 23 "EASY LIVING"
Victor Mature, Lizabeth Scott
1949, R.K.O., U.A.

Jan. 30 "ESPIONAGE AGENT"
Joel McCrea, Brenda Marshall
1939, Warner Bros., U.A.

TOP COMPETITION

PROGRAM	STATION & TOTAL HOMES
Adventure Time 5:00-6:15	WTAE 191,300
Ron Cochran News 6:15-6:30	WTAE 138,800

WTAE — Total Area Homes: 159,400 — Metro Rating: 17 — Share of Audience: 57

FRIDAYS 11:15-1:45
Program: MILLION DOLLAR MOVIE

Jan. 10 "UP PERISCOPE"
James Garner, Edmond O'Brien
1959, Warner Bros., Warner Bros. TV

Jan. 17 "BLOWING WILD"
Gary Cooper, Barbara Stanwyck
1955, Warner Bros., Jayark Films

Jan. 24 "BOMBERS B-52"
Natalie Wood, Karl Malden
1957, Warner Bros., S.A.A.

Jan. 31 "ATTACK"
Jack Palance, Lee Marvin
1956, United Artists, U.A.A.

TOP COMPETITION

PROGRAM	STATION & TOTAL HOMES
Steve Allen 11:15-12:45	KDKA 123,100
Gateway Studios 12:45-1:45	KDKA 37,200

WTAE — Total Area Homes: 263,000 — Metro Rating: 25 — Share of Audience: 41

SATURDAYS 6:30-8:30
Program: PITTSBURGH MOVIE SPECIAL

Jan. 4 "HERCULES"
Steve Reeves, Sylva Koscina
1959, Warner Bros., Embassy

Jan. 11 "THE WONDERS OF ALADDIN"
Donald O'Connor, Noelle Adam
1961, MGM, Embassy

Jan. 18 "THE BLACK SCORPION"
Richard Denning, Mara Corday
1957, Warner Bros., S.A.A.

Jan. 25 "MASK OF THE AVENGER"
Anthony Quinn, John Derek
1951, Columbia, Screen Gems

TOP COMPETITION

PROGRAM	STATION & TOTAL HOMES
Wrestling 6:30-7:30	WIIC 159,400
Jackie Gleason 7:30-8:30	KDKA 357,000

(Continued on page 46)

GEO. STERN RETIRES, A FOUNDER OF REVUE

Hollywood, April 14.

Revue veepee George Stern, one of the founders of the telefilmery in 1950, has retired after 18 years with MCA. With Dick Irving and Karl Kramer, Stern founded what has become the top telefilmery in the industry volume-wise.

Stern, who joined MCA in 1946 as an agent, moved into radio production and later produced the pilot of Revue's initial series, "Stars Over Hollywood," based on a radio show he produced. He subsequently produced several series, and later moved into the exec veepee ranks of the company. Before joining MCA, he was with the Leland Hayward-Nat Deverich agency.

Stern plans a global trip, and on his return will enter indie production.

Femme Viewers Campaign To 'Clean Up' Television

Glasgow, April 14.

Women viewers are rallying round a campaign started here to "clean up" television plays. The campaign is being spearheaded by a city housewife, Mrs. Mary Middleton, who launched her first attack with a letter in a daily newspaper. Result was a flood of correspondence from all parts of the U.K. applauding her action and pledging support.

"I have had hundreds of letters of support, and more are arriving by every post," Mrs. Middleton said. "The Scottish Housewives' Association and the Catholic Women's League have promised their help."

Femmes plan to send their letters en masse to both the British Broadcasting Corp. and the British Independent Television Authority. "What we are trying to do is to remove completely from television the smut that has been prevalent," added Mrs. Middleton. "We are chiefly concerned about dramatic productions."

GM & NAACP

Continued from page 27

the others, in NAACP's opinion, were also far from satisfactory). And the Seven Arts Chapter of the New York branch of the Congress of Racial Equality (CORE) continued to picket GM in New York last week (at the auto show) for the company's alleged total lack of cooperation in the hiring of Negro talent for its industrial shows.

The copy of the GM-to-NAACP wire stated, "With respect to the use of talent in television, radio and other entertainment fields, the General Motors nondiscriminatory employment policy is in full accord with the nondiscriminatory policy adopted some time ago by the American Federation of Radio & Television Artists and major elements of the broadcasting, advertising and recording industry.

"General Motors dealers are appointed from among the large number of applicants which our automotive and other divisions always have for their franchises. Selections are made on the basis of ability, experience in our line of business and financial responsibility. As independent businessmen, dealers of course determine their own personnel policies and practices."

The wire then quotes the company's "long-standing written policy of nondiscrimination in employment," which calls for extension of opportunities to qualified persons regardless of race, creed, color, sex or national origin. The wire finally claims more than 41,000 nonwhite employees for the company.

NBC Int'l's Obit Deal

London, April 14.

NBC International, whose London base is captained by Gerald Adler, is making a deal with Rediffusion whereby NBC makes available to the British commercial major all NBC's filmed obituaries of prominent Americans.

Dickers follow the successful showing on Rediffusion of NBC's obit on General MacArthur. If deal goes through, it will mean Rediffusion has day and date the same facilities for screening obits on Americans as has NBC.

Radio Reviews

THE LIVELY ARTS
With George Gordon, moderator, others Producer: Joe Cook
30 Mins., Sat. 10:30 p.m.
WCBS, N. Y.

Resembling a college bull session, with the talk loose and free, is "The Lively Arts," a new weekly program on popular entertainment, moderated by George Gordon, associate prof of communication arts at New York U.'s School of Education.

For the Saturday (11) night opener at 10:30 p.m., the half hour was devoted to the theatre. Off-Broadway producer Julian Beck said that nothing less than "total revolution" could cure the ills besetting the theatre. Columnist Hy Gardner said he agreed with Beck "up to a point." With this "total revolution" sought by Beck should be was never explained, although there was some intimations of Beck's dissatisfactions with the current theatre in the U.S. Up to what point did Gardner agree also was left open, as the program came to an end.

Columnist Gardner lamented that we live in the age of "Beverly Hillbillies" and there's far too much featherbedding kiting production costs. He called off-Broadway the "minor leagues," which upset Beck, whose "Living Theatre" was padlocked by the Feds for tax delinquencies.

Beck spoke of the "ice scandals" and held out the contention that there's too much "sham commercialism" on and off-Broadway. The theatre, too, he said, may be playing to a large extent to a "decadent court," the affluent set whose partonage may make or break a show.

It was a mind-ringing session; next Saturday night "comics and culture" will be examined. Pity more thinking wasn't done prior to coming before the mike. The listeners then could have more distillations of thoughts, usually a more satisfactory experience.

Horo.

LUNCHEON WITH MIMI
With Mimi Benzell, others
Producer: Michael Klepper
110 Mins., Mon.-Fri., 12:10 p.m.
WNBC, New York

Met Opera star Mimi Benzell, whose repute with the masses has been enlarged in recent years via tv guesting and a Broadway long-run in the "Milk and Honey" tuner, is the latest addition to WNBC Radio's gab-minded schedule.

Her "Luncheon With Mimi" strip teeupper Monday (13) was surprisingly smooth, albeit unremarkably, with a guest list of sportscaster Joe Garagiola, funster Tom Poston, and a femme (non-pro) chum of Miss Benzell's who was on as rep for Boys' Town of Italy, but plenty willing to chip in on the general palaver.

Session originates from the Cafe Francais, at the edge of the Rockefeller Plaza ice rink, which circumstance can obviously give the topper a "crutch" when the conversation slumps, as it did several times on the opener. How sustained the gab can be will, of course, depend on guest chemistry in large part. This is typical hausfrau fare, the talk being largely escapist, which is all right so long as the panel can keep it breezy and reasonably amusing. In this respect, the preem was so-so, with Garagiola's baseball lore proving a key contrib.

Miss Benzell has no great verbal gifts, but her hair is down and she is refreshingly ingenuous. She doubtless has a large fund of personal anecdotes (in grand opera, who doesn't?) which will come in handy when there's danger of a lull in the proceedings.

Ultimately, of course, the stanza will require strong guest appeal to build and keep audience allegiance.

Pit.

Mgt.: William Morris Agency

N.Y. Papers

Continued from page 29

sides, is simply one of "good journalism"— the unequivocal identification of a news source. That it wasn't always the practice (and, of course, still isn't in many markets) only suggests how emotions can affect better journalistic judgments.

Growing Acceptance

A station pubrelations man views the evolution of citydesk attitude as "a growing acceptance by the press that we're here to stay." And an editor at one of the afternoon sheets adds a comment, among others, that the broadcasters have become "more enterprising, more conscious of their potential." (Presumably, therefore, deserving of acknowledgement in print.) Same news exec can now say, too, that "it's parochial to avoid source identification."

West of the Hudson, the reapprochement story is spotty. In some markets, especially one-ownership newspaper towns, the local press lord tends to regard independent station managements as China-like outcasts.

Tuning in and ticking off the commercials, though, he knows the guy out there is no myth.

4 Star

Continued from page 31

"The Out of Towners." The picture, with a cast headed by Glenn Ford and Geraldine Page, was produced in association with Martin Manulis Prods., and Biography Prods. and was financed by Warner Bros. which also will distribute the film. The script was written by Tad Mosel and directed by Delbert Mann.

Commenting on the growth of its other divisions and subsidiaries, the company noted that Four Star Distribution Corp., its wholly owned domestic subsid, increased its sales during the first half of the current fiscal year by approximately 11% over the same period last year. Four Star Television International, another wholly-owned subsid, formed in Feb. 1963 to distribute Four Star films in foreign countries, registered sales of $1,411,653 in the 26-week period but said only $400,884 of this amount had been recorded as income "because revenue from foreign syndication is recorded only as it is received."

Danny's Sales

Continued from page 31

European tv minefields can yield a lot more paydirt than the lie of the land would first indicate. Trick, of course, is in the mining.

In Kaye's case, his star status and international following are proven and invaluable instruments. Not only has the show struck a sales pace unprecedented in the annals of American series sales history, but it has won over European buyers to such an extent that, universally, it is being bought in blocks of 12 shows and in each case prime "showcast" slots on stations concerned.

Bulk sales of Kaye is also another interesting new factor. European sales, for previously distribs have found the continental stations often willing to pick up only a few isolated segments out of a series.

It is now thought that Kaye's strike—at 300% over the going rate—will cue a lot more "star" selling to the benefit of American big international headliners who have established reputations over here. But there is a question in some industryites' minds as to whether Kaye has picked up the first and only nuggets in this new vein.

It is interesting, incidentally, that Kaye's wholly-owned hotseller is being sold by Ashley-Steiner for a 10% slice of the international sales action (as against a 40-50% cut taken by a distrib). To the star, European sales, if all estimates mature, will mean he will gross from each of his first 12 vidshows a total of $28,00 from continental Europe, a total of $336,000. In addition, the 26-segment sale to BBC is worth around $390,000 to Kaye, making a U.K.-Europe aggregate of $726,000.

Atlanta—Two Georgia stations have acquired new managers: Jerry Chambers has taken over at WMES, Ashburn, and Pat Steed is new chief at WDOL, Athens. Dave Steele is new production manager of WJBF, Augusta. Jack Turner, WCHK, Canton, staffer, has resigned to work for Southeast Poultry and Egg Assn.

Radio Caroline's Offshore B'casts Causing Plenty of London Static

London, April 14.

Radio Caroline, the pirate broadcasting station, moored aboardship just off the English east coast, is causing a considerable stir because it appears, at the moment, there is little that can be done to stop the station from beaming music to London and vicinity from 6 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Not that all sorts of flack hasn't been thrown out in the hope that the proprietors—Irishman Ronan O'Rahilly at their helm—will up anchor and vamoose. For Parliamentarians there's no such luck, however, the station is still coming through loud and clear and has now evolved such hints of its intention to stay as a rate card and a London time-sales office.

In Parliament, the possibility of legislation to counter the ship's activities from its vantage point outside British territorial waters, is being considered by Reginald Bevins, the Postmaster General. He said he had not overlooked the possibility of jamming the broadcasts. "There is even," he said, "the prospect of concentrated action before long by all the European countries."

In the meantime, Bevins said he was relying on British adver-

(Continued on page 44)

Pix Pull Profits

Those hot-shot titles skedded for the ABC "Sunday Night Movie" marquee next season are working their magic. Already committed are Dodge, via BBDO; Plymouth, via N.W. Ayer; and Exquisite Form bras, through Paepert, Koenig & Lois.

Among the batch of classy cinematics in the United Artists package are "Exodus," Billy Wilder's "One, Two, Three," "Some Like it Hot," and "The Misfits."

Dodge and Plymouth parked a total of $2,500,000 at the web, buying into several other shows.

ABC last week also racked up some next-season biz from DuPont, a scatter buy covering the pre-Xmas period.

Virginia Mittendorf Quits Air After 31 Yrs.

Tucson, April 14.

Virginia Mittendorf, hostess and creator of her "Visiting With Virginia" tv show here weekdays at 11 a.m., and a 31-year vet of radio and tv, called it quits after her Friday (10) program.

Mrs. Mittendorf, who has also doubled as traffic manager of her outlet, KOLD-TV, entered radio with WIND, Chicago, in 1933, and was associated with WOOL, Minneapolis, before she came here in 1946. Mrs. Mittendorf gave "personal reasons" for her retirement. Her husband, Eugene S. Mittendorf, was KOLD general manager until a few weeks ago when he was stricken by failing health.

Stevens Named as One Of Caroline Directors

London, April 14.

Leading magazine publisher Jocelyn Stevens, who owns the posh Queen mag, has been named as one of the syndicate of backers behind Radio Caroline, the pirate broadcast station anchored off the East coast of England.

Stevens is joint managing director with Ronan O'Rahilly in Planet Sales Ltd. company which handles ad sales for the station. (O'Rahilly is also managing director of Planet Productions (Eire) Ltd. the parent company).

Now It's Stereo TV

Montreux, April 14.

French and Swiss TV engineers are cooperating at Montreux for a presentation of stereophonic TV.

The demonstration will take place during the International Television Festival which opens Friday (17), for the annual "Golden Rose of Montreux" competition. The stereophonic TV program will be a concert given by Frank Pourcel's Orchestra de Musique Legere, Paris. It will be fed to monitors over the specially-prepared closed-circuit system in the Montreux Palace.

ELINSON PRODUCER DANA

Hollywood, April 14.

Jack Elinson has been named producer of "The Bill Dana Show," half-hour comedy series which returns to NBC-TV next season.

Elinson, with Chuck Stewart, produced "The Danny Thomas Show" on CBS-TV this past season. Thomas is ending the long-running series following this semester. Elinson was a comedy scripter before becoming a producer. He replaces Howard Leeds, who has been named producer of Jack Chertok's new series, "Living Doll."

TIME BUYER:

Sharpischerthinken gootenratenunit uppensnapper

How do you order prime steak... rare with mushrooms?

How about prime-time... well done with audience?

Good!

We got that!

ABC is different in Milwaukee. Wow is it different!

WITI-TV is consistently the best prime-time buy.

witi-tv Milwaukee
A STORER STATION

abc

WANT TO PLAY IN THE BIG LEAGUE?

The Northwest area is really big league . . . 810,800 TV homes and over $5 Billion in spendable income.

Why not sign up with the first place club—KSTP-TV. The Northwest's first TV station, KSTP-TV serves and sells this vital market most effectively, most economically.

KSTP television 5

100,000 WATTS • NBC
MINNEAPOLIS • ST. PAUL

TRANS-LUX TELEVISION CORP. presents

THE MIGHTY HERCULES

© MCMLXII Trans-Lux Television Corporation

Write, wire or phone today for Audition Print! 625 Madison Ave., N.Y.C., PL1-3110

From The Production Centres

Continued from page 33

producer David Dortort scouting locations in the Florida keys for a new series he'll propose to NBC.

IN CHICAGO . . .

Paul Saliner quit his on-the-air work at WGN last week to join Jim Hanlon's ad-promo staff, working mainly on special promotions and client relations for both WGN stations . . . WMAQ is dropping the Doug Pledger deejay stanza that it's been carrying via audio tape from San Francisco. The NBC radio station, incidentally, has split itself off from its tv sister, WNBQ, in the area of promotion and publicity. Steve Krasula, who has been merchandising manager for WMAQ, now takes the title of ad-promo-press relations director. Chet Campbell and Dan Anderson henceforth concentrate on the tv station exclusively . . . Some 14 WBKB engineers will be transferring to New York in the next couple of weeks to complete the move of ABC-TV network feed operations from here. Along with them, floor managers Joe Lauth and Howard Shapiro will go to the web as associate directors . . . Sears Roebuck picked up the whole tab for WFMT's Tuesday night broadcasts of Shakespeare plays, 32 in all and each in its entirety . . . Phil Thompson rejoined the WBBM Radio sales staff after a stint in tv sales . . . WGN radio and tv will preview the Illinois pavilion at the New York World's Fair in special programs next Tuesday (21). Virginia Marmaduke (ex-WMAQ and WBKB) is working with WGN at the fair as interviewer and producer of the special events centering on the Lincoln exhibit . . . "Between Teens," a conversation series for th teenage community, becomes a Sunday morning entry on WNBQ April 26, under YMCA auspices . . . Film maker Henry Ushijima produced a 30-minute film to serve as Mayor Daley's 1963 progress report with Norm Barry as narrator . . . WNBQ plucked Dick Zimmer from WBBM-TV as sales research coordinator, a new post there . . . Glen Clots, who's worked at a number of midwest stations including WOOD-AM-TV, Grand Rapids, Mich., joined WGN News as writer-editor . . . Larry Atterbery devoting this week's "Current" strip on WBBM Radio to career women.

IN LONDON . .

Producer John Morley, who helms ABC-TV's click "Big Night Out" series to U.S. to o.o. entertainment shows . . . Meantime, "Big Night Out" headliner Bernie Winters hospitalized . . . Rediffusion, London's midweek commercial tv contractor, organizing a mammoth beat group contest in order to discover the vocal talent that should be on record, but isn't . . . Anna Neagle starrer "Shadow In The Sun," which Anglia-TV screened in the commercial web's "Play Of the Week" skein, racked up the highest audience ever for an Anglia play. It was seen in 7,454,000 homes . . . CBS' Charles Collingwood recorded in their own home in the three major political party leader—Sir Alec Douglas Home, Harold Wilson and Jo Grimond. Associated TeleVision will present the interviews as Sunday p.m. features from April 19 . . . Hot from BBC-TV's medico series "Dr. Finlay's Casebook," Bill Simpson recorded a couple of sides for Pye Records, "Sentimental Reasons" and "My Love Is Like A Red, Red Rose". . . Ulster-TV mounting one of its most ambitious shows from 6-7 p.m. called "Parade." Show has three program directors and three resident journalists writing it. Jimmy Greene is compere . . . Armand and Michaela Denis back on BBC from this week with with new natural history footage . . . Rediffusion presented the local science museum with its original call-sign clock following the introduction of the station's new-on-the-air title and modern timepiece . . . Yank singer Roy Orbison set for May 2 edition of ABC-TV's "Thank Your Lucky Stars."

IN WASHINGTON

Local stations were adjusting telecastings to Washington's big Springtime doings—The Cherry Blossom Festival . . . Ernest Borgnine attended the festivities as "Special Honored Guest" and crowned the Queen . . . CBS News Diplomatic correspondent Marvin Kalb talking up the Sino-Soviet split and implications for U.S. at June 5 conference of Council of Foreign Relations in Gotham . . . WTTG-TV took a look at urban renewal controversy and run-down neighborhoods near the Capital in its "Community Dialogue," Sunday (12) . . . KGMS aired "Trends and Strategies" special Tuesday (14) with pollster Sam Lubell and campaign managers for Republican Presidential candidates as guests . . . Library of Congress and Office of the Secretary of Air Force requested tapes of CBS Reports "Vietnam: The Deadly Decision" . . . WTOP radio's Jamie Bragg and WNEW's Gene Klavan in mutual puff society. Klavan, prompting his book "We Die at Dawn" on Gregg Oliver's WTOP interview show gave credit to Bragg for making Al Hirt's "Java" song a big hit . . . The leading GOP advocate in the Bobby Baker imbroglio, Sen. Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania guested Sunday (12) on WTTG-TV's "Opinion in the Capital" . . . WMAL-TV's documentary on child beating was screened at recent conference of Maryland Chapter of the National Assn. of Social Workers.

IN SAN FRANCISCO .

Veteran performer Jack Smith slated for the Dick Stewart Channel 7 daily ayem show for week of April 21-27 . . . KTVU has lined up Russ Hodges, Bill Dana and a representative of Gamblers Anonymous for "I Want to Know" . . . Chronicle's Terrence O'Flaherty accompanying Shakesperean expert Dr. Frank Baxter on trip to Stratford-on-Avon for material for the latter's new program, "The Fair Adventure," in which the doc reads from the Bard . . . Don Devendorf producing.

Count Marco's daily 15 minute of girl-chat on KGO has been syndicated to KABC-TV in Hollywood . . . "Take a Break," a series of 5-minute "exercises for people who hate to exercise" broke in Monday with Evalee Harrison calling the stretches . . . Gorge Gobel due in town this week to tape six of the Ernie Ford Show, which he's taking over during the vacation season . . . "It's Your Money," a 30-minute discussion of finance, to be hosted by Dick Chase—no relation to bank—KTVU art director Ian Zellick addressing American Assn. of University Women in Orinda, Calif.

IN DETROIT . . .

Erik Smith, completing his studies in mass communication at Wayne State U., has joined the promotion, publicity and research department at WJBK . . Austin Grant, news director of CKLW-AM and TV, is among a group of newsmen attending a U.S. State Department briefing in Washington . . . WXYZ disk jockey Lee Alan donating all proceeds of his record, "Set Me Free," to the Detroit YMCA Summer Camp Fund . . . WJR will broadcast the Tiger games for the ninth consecutive season. Ernie Harwell and Bob Scheffing will handle the mikes.

Al Koski, WXYZ city-county news bureau chief, off to New York for press preview of World's Fair . . . Fred Wolf, of WXYZ-TV, nationally known tv bowling commentator, in Akron for the 11th renewal of "Championship Bowling". . . CKLW is inaugurating a new series, "In Search of a Solution: Presidential Succession and Disability," featuring U.S. Senators, historians and political scientists in the symposium program . . . WJR news and public affairs department readying "By the People, For the People," a study of the Michigan Legislature, with Jim Harper as narrator . . . WJBK disk jockey's are giving away "Good Guy's Sweatshirts" and entries are reported in the thousands . . WJR resumes marine weather forecasts.

Robin Seymour, disk jockey, will host a new CKLW-TV show "Teen Town," on hour-long pot pourri of teen interests on Saturday afternoon . . . Frank Tomlinson is the new news director of WJR, replacing George Kendall who resigned . . . WWJ women's editor Fran Harris was named one of Detroit's "10 Top Women". . . Charles E. Gunn, has resigned as general sales manager of CKLW-AM-FM with E. C. Metcalfe, director of sales and operations, replacing him on an interim basis . . . Dave Klemm, WXYZ director of promotion advertising, will speak on "Career Opportunities in Advertising" at Indiana University . . . Lee Alan, WXYZ disk jockey, returns to the air after a month convalescence from severe injuries suffered in an auto accident . . . Gov. Nelson Rockefeller will guest on WWJ-TV's "Town Meeting" . . . Charles Fritz, veepee and general manager of WXYZ is the proud papa of a son, the sixth frisky Fritz . . . CKLW disk jockey Tom Clay and his wife, Joan, will take two teenagers, winners of a contest that attracted many entries, to England for a week vacation . . . WXYZ had won two Associated Press news awards.

IN CLEVELAND . . .

Bill Jorgensen has resigned as the major newscaster at KYW-TV and has tentatively been replaced by staffer Bud Dancey. He's the third top Westinghouse newsvoice to leave in about four years . . . WERE helping to promote Cleveland Indian ticket sales with Randy Hall, deejay, doing helicopter promotional stints . . . WPVL celebrated eighth anniversary on the air . . . Dorothy Fuldheim gets a 15-minute noon newscast augmenting her 6:15 p.m. daily gab . . . Bud Wendell doing five-minute Sunday "Ad-Lib" on advertising beat over WCLV . . . Charles Day initiated WEWS cross-the-board business news tv show at 6:45 p.m. . . . Bob Miller named program manager at WERE . . . Chris Miller doing three-hour risk beat from Encore Room . . . Van Lane again pacted for WERE's seasonal horse race coverage . . . Launa Newman left TW3 to become talent coordinator for Mike Douglas show . . . James Sieger exited KDKA for KYW-TV public affairs.

Charles M. Pickering named assistant sales manager, KYW-TV . . . WJW-TV Doug Adair and Joel Daly doing half-hour weekly interviews with senatorial candidates . . . Steve Allen feted (7) by Westinghouse . . . Bill Jorgensen resigned as KYW-TV news voice, the station's third 11 p.m. newsman to quit in about four years . . . Bob Miller named program director for WERE . . . WPVL celebrated eighth anniversary . . . Dorothy Fuldheim gets 15-minute WEWS newscast at noon augmenting her 6:15 p.m. nightly stint . . . Bud Wendell pacted for five minute Sunday "Ad-Lib" on advertising industry on WCLV . . . Charles Day started cross-the-board five minute business show on WEWS at 6:45 p.m. . . . Van Lane pacted for WERE's horse race coverage . . . James Sieger exited KDKA for KYW-TV public affairs department . . . Rocco N. Urbisci back with KYW-TV graphic arts after army stint.

IN BOSTON

Nancy Ames of "Week That Was" hosted at press confab by WBZ-TV's Joe Ryan and staff at Golden Swan beanery yesterday, Monday (13), and guested at Boston Press Club annual awards dinner that night . . . WGBH-TV, Channel 2, televising the 1964 Godkin lectures Sundays (19), (26) 3 p.m. . . . WEEI running "April Showers" promosh in which listeners must estimate total month's rainfall . . . WNAC-TV observing 15th anni of its "Late Show;" first feature film, "Black Eyes," Otto Kruger, Mary Maguire, went on a Sunday night back in 1949 . . . Jack LaLanne, the exercise king, visits Hub Monday (20) for interviews and promos in a week long series of events for his slimming programs on WNAC-TV . . . Cardinal Cushing did a show with Paul Benzaquin on WEEI's "Conversation Piece," discussing churches' missions in Latin America . . . Don Trageser, CBS veep, general manager WEEI, Tom Young, sales manager; Joe Cullinane, promosh manager, attending special meetings with CBS radio spot sales reps and other CBS execs at Pheasant Run Lodge, outside Chicago, Friday thru Sunday (17-19) . . .

Two Carol Nashe models, Margie Keenan and Leila Shear, passed out Salada Tea and Krindelman's coffee beans on Boston Common Friday (10) as part of WEII's promosh for Salada Foods following through Joe Cullinane, WEII adv. and sales promosh manager brainstorm.

IN ST LOUIS . .

Newhouse Broadcasting Corp. has acquired sole ownership of KTVI-TV, the ABC affiliate here, by purchasing the stock of Paul E. Peltason, Harry Tennebaum, Herbert J. Klein and Richard Steinmetz. The Newhouse Corp. has owned approximately 25% of the stock since 1957. It is the broadcasting company owned by S. I. Newhouse and his family, who also own the Globe-Democrat in St. Louis. Peltason stated that the reason for the sale was the illness of Tennebaum. Peltason will remain as general manager of KTVI-TV. Price was not disclosed. The sale is subject to FCC approval . . . KSD radio will broadcast the full schedule of Missouri U. football in the fall, with Ed Macualey doing the play-by-play and Jim Burke color commentary . . . Jack S. Sampson has been named v.p. and g.m. of KXOK radio (a Storz station) and Bud W. Connell has been appointed operations manager.

IN MINNEAPOLIS . . .

Comics Jerry Lester and Edward Everett Horton, here starring in roadshow "A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum," made guest appearances on KSTP-TV's "Treasure Chest" last chapter . . . Sponsors of Perry Como's NBC-TV special were bombarded by 55,000 requests for tix when the show was beamed last frame from 5,000-seat Northrop Auditorium on the U. of Minnesota campus . . . St. Paul hockey fans complained bitterly because no Twin Cities radio station carried the St. Paul pro hockey's team's championship series although WLOL in Minneapolis aired the rival Minneapolis team's preliminary playoff games . . . Minnesota Twins' tv and radio announcer Ray Scott named Minnesota's top sportscaster by National Broadcasters and Sportswriters Committee . . . Producer-writer Martha Crane here last weekend to address organizational meeting of Minnesota chapter of American Women in Radio and Television.

Mrs. Sara Carey, ex radio continuity director of KDAL, Duluth, named to same post at WTCN-TV . . . New CBS-TV quiz shows "Celebrity Game" and "Made in America" were panned unmercifully by local crix . . . Program director Leigh Kamman and production chief Elton Ryberg are out at KSTP Radio. New operations manager is Eugene (Garfield) Clark Jr. . . . KRSI carried Academy Awards last night (13) . . . KSTP-TV preemed new weekly agricultural program this month. Produced in cooperation with Minnesota Dept. of Agriculture, show is hosted by David Stone and Dr. W. E. Petersen

IN CINCINNATI . .

Guest stars for Variety Club, Tent 3 telethon aired by WKRC-TV from Taft Theatre were Rick Jason, Tim Considine, Virginia Gibson, Billy Lee, Will Hutchins, Julie Newmar and Louis Nye . . . To get by jet, announcer Ed Kennedy did WLW-Radio coverage of a Saturday night Royals-Celtics basketball game in Boston, and next day did the afternoon Reds-Yankees exhibition baseball game on WLW-T in Tampa and that same night back to Cincy for another Royals-Celtics game on WLW-Radio . . Fred Bernard, WLW announcer, teaming with his wife, Jo Ann, on a 45-minute a.m. "Open House" studio session weekdays . . Joe Cella, former Crosley Broadcasting exploiteer, has opened his own ad and publicity agency here.

IN PHILADELPHIA . . .

John O. Downey, CBS veepee and general manager of WCAU, appointed vice chairman of division "C" (steel and electronics) for the United Fund 1964 campaign . . . WDAS deejay Del Shields to emcee the "Freedom Speaks" closed circuit telecast at the Arena (May 14) . . . Mayor James H. J. Tate named Harvey L. Glascock, WIP v.p. and

(Continued on page 46)

Film German TV Show On Bremen Crossing

Frankfurt, April 14.

A novel television show is being produced for South West German TV in Baden-Baden, aboard a German passenger ship enroute to America. And part of the fee for the top international talent participating in the round-trip to the U. S. and back.

"Music on the Atlantic" is the title of the unusual show, being directed by Dietar Proettel on Germany's largest passenger ship, the Bremen, now in transit to New York.

Stars include the American singer Bill Ramsey, German songstress Heidi Bruehl, Will Schmidt, the Danish violinist Sven Asmussen, and American dancer-choreoghapher Gene Reed. Along with the group is the station's own orchestra conducted by Rolf Hans Mueller.

In addition, the Travellers Aid Society is doing a one-night benefit with the gala stars on board performing for the ship's passengers.

Ralph Edwards Lines Up Names For T&C Festival

Albuquerque, April 14.

Several tele recording personalities are in the entertainment package skedded for the 15th annual "Ralph Edwards Fiesta" skedded in the New Mexico town of Truth or Consequences (named after Edwards tv show) on April 23-26.

Lineup includes, in addition to Edwards, Bob Barker, emcee on his daytime "Truth or Consequences" NBC show; singer Wayne Newton, composer Buddy Pepper and Billy Strange, a regular on Tennessee Ernie Ford's daytime tv-er.

Caroline

Continued from page 43

tisers not to use Radio Caroline. The principal advertising associations—the Incorporated Society of British Advertisers, and the Institute of Practitioners in Advertising (which together rep approximately 90% of the local ad coin)—have already given assurances that they will boycott the unathorized station.

Moving in on other fronts in attempts to ruffle O'Rahilly's calm, are Phonographic Performance Ltd., diskery-owned company which controls broadcasting of disks. PPL is seeking an injunction against Caroline to restrain it from using British disks. It is not known, however, if such a writ can be served on a vessel outside the jurisdiction of British courts.

Performing Rights Society has done an about face and has withdrawn the offer of a license to the station in view of Government's obvious eagerness to scupper the pirate broadcaster.

Throughout, the Caroline crew has remained calm. Having taken "the best legal advice in the world," crew duly reason that they are "untouchable" from a legal standpoint as the law stands at the moment.

Ship is stocked with more than 3,000 disks and enough food to withstand a siege for many weeks, and the 12 hour solid music transmissions continue.

No firm advertisers have yet been set, though it is still early. The rate cards have only just landed on account execs desks. Reportedly, Dutch advertisers (used to pirate broadcasting in the shape of Radio Veronica which claims that 60% of the Dutch population are listening to it) are making interesting noises in connection with support for the Caroline station. The Dutch, it seems, are interested in the 16c per thousand cost being offered by Radio Caroline.

But O'Rahilly and his boys have not, at the moment, any intention of going over to broadcasting in Dutch. They are after the bigger pickings in the U.K.

Winnipeg—Board of Broadcast Governors granted a license to the Churchill TV Assoc., a private non-profit organization, to operate a television station at Churchill, Man., 600 miles north of Winnipeg. The station, which will be the first in the community of 1,500, is to commence programming within a year, with construction to start before June.

Those Xerox-UN Specials

Continued from page 29

garnered the support of top Hollywood talent, were to consist of documentaries as well as dramas. The plan was later changed to drama vehicles exclusively.

"Those who have proposed it to CBS have made it crystal clear that the primary purpose is not drama but is to prove a point—to feature the UN 'in some favorable way.' This may well be a worthy purpose. But it is not the proper starting point for drama or musical, particularly when it is produced under the control of the very organization which is the subject matter of the play. Put in their best light, the circumstances here establish not a dramatic purpose but a public relations purpose. CBS does not believe that it is proper to broadcast under the guise of drama a 'play' written or controlled by the subject of the play."

'Fairness & Balance'

According to the CBS memorandum, CBS was told that the United States delegation to the UN in general and Ambassador Stevenson in particular would have final responsibility for content, taste and treatment.

"Although we have contended that fairness and balance requirements do not apply to dramas—an issue unresolved by the FCC—it may be that those requirements do apply where the very purpose of the dramas, as here, is to prove a point. So there may be the necessity of producing offsetting dramas," a potential development labelled "absurd programming" by the memorandum, which also held "there is .....a substantial segment of the American population which is opposed to the UN."

The memorandum went on to say that CBS-TV has and will continue to cover the United Nations, the web's coverage for the 20th anni of the UN to be reflected in a variety of programming forms, the contents of which, though, will be controlled by CBS-TV. CBS News plans a "Town Meeting of the World" in April 1965, using the communications satellite, and hopefully originating in San Francisco (where the UN charter was signed), Washington, London and Moscow. Planning has begun on a "CBS Reports" on some lesser-known activities of the United Nations and "Twentieth Century" is investigating broadcasts on the World Health Organization or on other branches of UN activities.

Xerox Corp., spending $4,000,000 on the "Help the UN" drama series, has placed four of the outings on ABC-TV and two on NBC-TV, after getting a turn-down from CBS-TV. The cost of the dramas would have been much higher, considering the producing, acting, and writing talent lined up, had it not been for the fact that many prominent people associated in the project have agreed to accept no compensation.

Project, designed to further international peace and understanding, has elicited the support of producer-directors Peter Glenville, Stanley Kubrick, Joseph L. Mankiewicz, Otto Preminger, Robert Rossen, Sam Spiegel and Fred Zinneman. Writers preparing scripts are Reginald Rose, Tad Mosel and Peter Stone. Mosel, for instance, is doing a drama about refugee seamen, who could not find asylum in any country until the United Nations solved their plight.

In agreeing to air two of the UN shows, NBC set forth a list of restrictions. Network told Xerox that the shows must fall in the "entertainment" and not the "documentary" category, that they must not solicit funds or make any appeals for UN support, that they must be produced by the promised big-name talents and have big-name stars, and that the network must retain the right of final approval.

Over at ABC, a statement on production of the UN programs says they "must fit into, or comply with, our normal program operating and continuity acceptance policies."

This means no serious obstacles are anticipated. The net is delighted with the project.

In the midst of the controversey surrounding the network United Nations drama series, a spokesman for Telsun Foundations Inc., the producing organization said that the networks "will have final control" over the dramas.

Edgar Rosenberg, production executive and coordinator for Telsun, said it goes without saying that the networks are "masters of their own house." Each drama will have to conform to network continuity acceptance, and that, as the dramas, are developed there will be a mutual exchange of information between the producers and networks. He said there will be no solicitations of funds. He said the stories will be culled from the files of the United Nations, much as series are based on the files of police departments, U.S. Treasury, et. al. He didn't want to engage in public debate on the position taken by CBS-TV.

Decatur, Ga.—WLKB, dark here for more than a year, has been sold to Joel Lawhon, of Greenville, S.C.

G-T Wants M & M

Hollywood, April 14.

Goodson-Todman Productions is negotiating for the production team of Herb Meadow and Jack Meyers to join G-T with their indie company, and prepare pilots for the 1965-66 season. G-T coast chief Harris Katleman is handling negotiations for his firm.

Meadow, a producer-writer, created "Have Gun — Will Travel" with Sam Rolfe, has been active on a number of series, his most recent work being with "Arrest and Trial." Meyers was formerly with CBS-TV.

TV Lenser Lays Assault To Cassius Clay's Mgr.

Cincinnati, April 14.

A jury trial for Archie Edward Robinson, 28, manager of heavyweight champ Cassius Clay, on an assault and battery charge filed by Frank Jones, 37, WCPO-TV cameraman, is set for April 24 in Municipal Court.

Jones alleges that he was pushed in the face with his own camera by Robinson when he attempted to take a picture of Clay leaving a rock 'n' roll show April 6 at Music Hall.

The photographer said he asked Clay inside the hall if he could take a picture of him, to which Clay replied: "Well, pay me!" Jones said he heard a $300 asking price quoted as the fee.

Hearing of the case was continued when Robinson demanded a jury trial. He gave Miami as his home.

New Frisco Telefilmery Plotting New Series

San Francisco, April 14.

Independent Producers Associated, with Bruce P. Campbell as prez, is nomenclature for a new filmery here projecting theatrical, tv and industrial film endeavor. Outfit has leased a large warehouse and is converting it into two soundstages, hopeful of recouping lost tv blurb billings that have fled Frisco because of inadequate studio facilities.

In the entertainment sphere, company is prepping a tv series for Ken Murray, and novelist Eugene Burdick has been tapped to script the initial opus.

Campbell was associated with the late Alfred Levy (Talent Associates-Paramount), and earlier with comedienne Carol Burnett. Other execs are Morton P. Beebe, George C. Walker and Robert Nagy.

Buckeye's WRDV Buy

Washington, April 1.

FCC's Broadcast Bureau okayed the $814,000 sale of WROV-AM, Roanoke, Va. from WROV Broadcasters Inc. to WROV Radio Inc. The buyer is a wholly owned subsidiary of the Buckeye Corp.

Selling interests were Burton Levine, Joseph Goodman, Leon and Nidra Levine and Cy Blumenthal.

The 'Green Hornet' Strikes Back

Old Radio Program Getting Taped Replay in Many Markets — Residuals to Talent or Heirs

Detroit, April 14.

Old radio shows which faded away are being heard again. "The Green Hornet" is being heard in Pontiac, Mich., and such major cities as Chicago, Los Angeles, Boston, Washington, Cleveland and Pittsburgh.

Taped replays of another whilom fave, "The Shadow" also is available.

"The Green Hornet," along with "The Lone Ranger" and "Challenge of the Yukon," were created in the 1930s by George W. Trendle and originated from Detroit. Trendle-Campbell Enterprises still own the "Hornet," although rights to the other shows have been sold.

H. Allen Campbell, prexy of Pontiac station WPON, and an associate of the Trendle-Campbell firm, said: "We have learned that in this area there especiallly has been great interest shown recently in bringing back 'The Green Hornet.'" It seems to be one of the most popular shows, and we plan to add "The Shadow" and the two shows will be heard from 4 to 5 p.m. each Sunday."

Residuals are being payed actors in the shows, or their heirs. Some of the actors have been located as a result of AFTRA's appeal, published in VARIETY, for their addresses so that residual payments can be sent to them.

CBS' CABLE OPTION

Has Until April 30th to Decide, Native Opposition Growing

CBS' option in Canada's Vancouver Cable Co., under which it acquires a substantial interest in the cable tv system, expires by the 30th of this month.

Option was acquired last October and extended in December. Since CBS' move to acquire a substantial interest in the Canadian cable company, there have been native moves both on the governmental and quasi-governmental levels looking with suspicion on American companies securing major stakes in Canadian broadcasting facilities. There also have been restrictive proposals. In the face of this, whether CBS chooses to exercise its option is a moot question.

Programatic Sold To Esau's Schedumatic

Programatic Broadcasting Service, radio's oldest fully automated service, has been sold to Schedumatic Corp., a holding company, of which John Esau is prexy and Robert E. Fender, sales v.p.

Esau has been general manager of Programatic for the past five years. Programatic had been operated by Muzak, a division of the Wrather Corp. Under terms of the agreement, the newly-formed corporation will continue its music taping activities at Muzak's N.Y. studios for a short period of time to avoid current service interruption to Programatic subscribers.

Service offices will be opened in Los Angeles, Dallas and St. Louis, shortly, according to the prexy Esau.

Calgary, Alta.—A. F. Shortell, of Lloydminster, has been elected president of the newly-formed Alberta Association of Broadcasters. G. R. A. Rice, of Edmonton, is v.p. Directors are G. A. Hartley, of Red Deer; J. A. Love, of Calgary; Orville Kope, of Medicine Hat.

NAB Wrapup

Continued from page 26

months worth, but they're taking a calculated risk." Lee revealed that the commission was trying to get some excise tax relief on the all-channel sets so that the impact on the consumer might be greater. He said Congress will be asked to pass it into law for tv sets only and strictly for the purpose of helping UHF to grow.

Commission chairman E. William Henry assured the broadcasters that the FCC would never hand down a ukase on programming. "We may ask questions," he said, "but we cannot dictate what must be programmed."

REAL ESTATE

FURNISHEDLUXURY APARTMENT
Available Beginning May 15th—
One or Two Year Lease . . .
Fashionable Upper East Side
Large Master Bedroom,
Early French Period, with Bath
Guest Room and Study Combination, Modern Traditional, with Bath
Large Living - Dining Room
Combination,
Modern and Traditional Spanish
Two Fireplaces, Large Working Bar
Completely Modern Kitchen—
All Appliances
Contact: R. WAGNER
Rm. 4530
30 Rockefeller Plaza, NYC
Or Call: Circle 6-0333

POUND RIDGE, N. Y.
LOOKING for a HIDEAWAY?
Secluded rustic 8-rm. Ranch. Private road. Lake; furnished; lge. living rm., fplce, den, game rm., modern kitchen, screened porch, sun deck, 3 B rms., bath, dng. rm. Good commuting, $26,500.
Days—POund Ridge 4-5470.
Evenings—Ridgefield, Conn., 438 - 8376

SUB-LEASE APT.
BEVERLY HILLS, CALIF.
Writer's Apt. 5 Rms., charmingly furn. duplex, 1 yr. lease. Half block off Wilshire Blvd. 2 Bdrms., 2 Bas., Living Rm., Dining Rm., Kitch. $350 per mo. Call Beverly Hills, Calif.
CRestview 3-8348

SMITHTOWN, L.I., ESTATE
20 ACRES
In the center of superbly restored Colonial, 14 rooms, 5 baths, three-car attached garage. Price $135,000.00.
Owner: GENE SMITH
Box #97 or 516 - JU 4-5734

SUMMER RENTAL
LARCHMONT—Direct Waterfront. 30 minutes mid town. Stunning contemporary. Privacy of six acres. 4 bdrms., 4 bths., etc., fully air conditioned. Boating, bathing, fishing from property. Scenic spectacular, furn'd fully—to Labor Day. $12,500.
Box V-3804, VARIETY
154 W. 46th St., New York 10036

"Wacky hilarious journeys on board the fictional s.s. Flying Wind..."*
There You Are, But Where Are You?
"MIRVISH IS WONDERFUL!"
at concocting funny episodes that get even funnier as they develop. He is a master of the running gag. Very entertaining. *Publishers' Weekly
"...Down to Earth Pleasure!" —Bert Lahr Star of "Foxy"
A Novel by ROBERT F. MIRVISH
DUTTON $3.95

SHOCK!
72 OF THE MOST FAMOUS HORROR FILMS OF ALL TIMES
The original great horror films that made motion picture and TV history...are still making TV history from coast-to-coast!
Available only from
SCREEN GEMS, INC.

in the EAST it's MOVIELAB for...
COLOR
BLACK & WHITE
FOR YOUR SCREENINGS
Film & Tape EDITING & STORAGE Rooms
MOVIELAB BUILDING, 619 WEST 54th STREET, NEW YORK 19, PHONE 586-0360 (AREA CODE 212)

Countdown In Progress for BBC-2

Continued from page 31

toe," an Eric Sykes, a "Dick Powell Theatre" and so on, BBC-1 will undoubtedly slow the rating climb of the new giant. But, given that BBC-1 and BBC-2, planned jointly at the Corporation's central control at White City, London, will be geared to getting the newer web firmly on its projected path as quickly as possible, the shifting and swaying in the indies' camp looks ominous for the hundreds of BBC staffers who have been working day and night, to get their baby off on time.

Inside Opposition

The indies, headed by a corps of showbiz execs by now deeply experienced in the technicalities of network launchings, are currently debating their strategy as a unified network to steal the fire and the thunder from BBC's 625-line project. It's said in inside circles that the 14 commercial operators as never before are linked in a new, close cooperation and are uniting their resources to stall a common competitor which, in some measure, threatens their current domination of the airwaves.

The two majors initially affected by BBC-2, Rediffusion and Associated Television, who with Granada-TV and ABC-TV supply by far the greater proportion of the commercial web's program fuel, have also maneuvered individually to deflect the audience-seeking course of BBC-2.

For instance, Rediffusion (latterly Associated-Rediffuision), under the control of wily broadcast campaigner John McMillan, chose the days immediately before the big BBC launch, to step in with a launch of its own, thus siphoning off some of the "New" and "exciting" glamor from the projected BBC-2 blow.

McMillan not only revealed some of his own "new" features—such as a station name change, a different call sign, a fresh signature tune—but enlarged on such "exciting" projects as three major specials (including the first TV spectacular written around the Beatles,) a new comedy show, a new dramatic series, and a new interview skein (among other fresh features.

Basically, though, Rediffusion's schedule is unchanged from the five star winning lineup which, with the exception of Tuesday nights, has been keeping the indie way ahead in the nation's leading market.

Associated TeleVision, under aegis of Lew Grade who with Val Parnell launched their own station back in the '50s, is also presenting as solid a line up of tried and tested winners as he can muster. Into the key anchor slots where Grade could have positioned new audience traps, he has elected to stay with shows which have proved successful on previous runs (though ATV is taking ABC-TV's new actioner "The Protectors").

Promos In High Gear

While the commercial majors are in the main relying on their old safeguards to ward off the heat of BBC-2 competition, latter's promo generators, now working at full tilt, are being supplemented by the powerful forces of the TV manufacturing biz which sees the launch of BBC-2 as its salvation.

Pouring in an intense on-the-air and press advertising campaign, the set makers, second only to BBC itself, have generated a lot of excitement about the new UHF medium both in London, where the web will take off, and throughout the rest of the country, which should be seeing the web by 1970.

The question of whether, together, the vast selling forces of the manufacturers and the expertise of upper echelon execs at BBC—men like director-general Sir Hugh Greene, program topper Stuart Hood and BBC-2 program factotum Michael Peacock who can to have rejuvenated BBC-1—can successfully keep the mammoth UHF projectile off the ground will not be answered for some time.

But if BBC-2 gets a good blast off on April 20, the long haul into the rating black will at least be started.

Lindsays Shift

Glasgow, April 14.

Maurice Lindsay, broadcaster and interviewer, is quitting his post at Border Television, the south-of-Scotland and northwest England commercial tv station, to work for the British Broadcasting Corporation here on radio and tv.

Move reflects the trend of BBC-tv in recruiting extra staff for development of their programming in Scotland, with particular reference to feeding-into the new BBC-2 network.

CBC Moves Into New $2,750,000 Ottawa Hqs.

Ottawa, April 14.

Canadian Broadcasting Corp.'s h.q. staff in this capital has moved from seven downtown spots to the new, $2,750,000 CBC Building on 14 acres at town's edge. Old offices, occupied since '38, cost $218,500 a year in rent.

CBC staff architects, directed by chief D. Gordon McKinstrey, designed and—with CBC engineers—supervised construction by Dell Construction Ltd. of Toronto. (Broadcasting operations continue at CBO—radio—and CBOT-CBOFT—English and French tv—in Chateau Laurier Hotel and west end respectively).

New h.q. has 175 offices with 112,500 sq. ft. of floor space for 485 employees. Its exterior is sandstone and green granite, fronting steel-and-concrete on a concrete-raft foundation.

Jerry Paris to Direct 20 Van Dyke Segments

Hollywood, April 14.

Jerry Paris has been signed to direct a minimum of 20 segments in the Dick Van Dyke series, and six Bill Dana episodes for next season.

Deal for Paris was made with Calvada Productions, which turns out the DVD show on CBS-TV, and Amigo Productions, producers of the Dana series on NBC-TV. Carl Reiner is producer of the Van Dyke show, and Sheldon Leonard and Danny Thomas helmsmen of the Dana series. Norman Brokaw of the William Morris agency agented the deal.

CKLW's New Pix Plot

Detroit, April 14.

CKLW-TV, is adopting a concept of its parent RKO General for multiplying audience exposure, with its new feature film show "Encore Theatre." The plan is to offer one selected motion picture over a period of five successive nights. The film will be shown in its entirety each night.

Show begins this week, replacing "Starlight Theatre" in the 11:25 p.m. spot. "Starlight," a separate program of movies, will continue to be shown on Sunday's only at 11:20 p.m.

Winston-Salem—Bill Brown has been appointed manager of the WSJS radio program department in Winston-Salem. He is being transferred from the radio-television news department to his new post.

Baird Festival of TV To Palm Brit. Pioneers At Royal Albert Hall

London, April 14.

Radio Rentals, a set manufacturing-hiring chain which has a strong link with video pioneer John Logie Baird, is organizing a Baird Festival of Television on April 16 at the Royal Albert Hall to mark the growth of tv in the past 40 years.

Event, which has all the earmarks of a ring-a-ding splash, is being supported by senior tv industry execs and other prominent show people — including Baron Thomson of Fleet (formerly broadcaster Roy Thomson), Sir Philip Warter, chairman of Associated British, Sir Jules Thorn, chairman of Thorn Electrical Industries, transport minister Ernest Marples, impresario Bernard Delfont, Peter Cadbury, chairman of Westward-TV, John L. Burgess, chairman of Border-TV and a host of others.

Mrs. Margaret Baird, widow of the tv pioneer, and Dr. Malcolm Baird, his son, will also be present. As will a string of writers, producers and artists. Among the acts slated for the five hour show are the Ted Heath and Johnny Dankworth orchestras, Acker Bilk and his band, Freddie and the Dreamers and Kathy Kirby.

Highlight of the one-shot event is the presentation of 30 John Logie Baird silver medallions for "outstanding contribution to television." Those to be awarded are: —Benjamin Clapp, one of the earliest pioneers in tv; William Taynton, first man ever seen on tv; songstress Gracie Fields, first artist ever to perform on tv (she's flying from Capri to pick up the citation); Moira Tracey, repping the host of chorus girls involved in early transmissions.

George More O'Ferrall, producer of the first three plays on BBC-TV; comic Arthur Askey, in at the start of tv; Cecil Madden, assistant to the controller of BBC-TV and producer of the first high definition tv service in the world (in 1936); Thornton Bridgewater, head of BBC-TV engineers, who worked with Baird; George Campey, BBC's publicity chieftain; Leslie Mitchell, a senior video announcer.

Eric Robinson, vet tv orchestra leader; Sylvia Peters, one of the earliest announcers; Lord (Ted) Willis, creator of BBC's (and thus Britain's) longest running series "Dixon Of Dock Green"; Kenneth Wolstenholme, prominent local sportscaster; Donald Baverstock, program controller of BBC-1; Peter Dimmock, BBC-TV's head of outside broadcasts; Ray Galton & Alan Simpson, click comedy writers; Franklin Engelmann "the brain of British tv"; Sydney Newman, BBC's video drama boss.

Patrick Macnee, noted actor in ABC-TV's actioner "The Avenger"; Ned Sherrin, who produced "That Was The Week That Was," actor Rupert Davies who portrays "Maigret" in the BBC skein; Ruth Dunning, established tv thesp; Bruce Forsyth, commercial web's top-rated compere; Joan Kemp-Welch, Rediffusion producer responsible for the first night transmission of the commercial web in 1955; Michael Peacock, program controller of BBC-2 (which bows on April 20); Henry Hall, who celebrates 40 years of broadcasting.

From The Production Centres

Continued from page 44

g.m., to the Mayor's Citizens' Committee for Law Day . . . WRCV-TV cited by the Roman Catholic Archdiocese for its special programs on the beatification of Bishop Newmann . . . Fred Walters, former senior legislative correspondent for the AP in Harrisburg, joins the WIP news staff . . . Over 10,000 listeners phoned the WCAU-TV studios during the annual income tax session, "Is It Deductible?". . . WFIL-TV skedding 65 colorcasts, beginning next fall, tagged "The Wonder of Birds." Programs are tv's first ornithology series . . . Charles S. Grill, former Admiral exec, appointed national manager of Philco Corp. . . . Stan Moderski, longtime WPEN engineer recupping from a heart attack . . . Johnny Carson to be honored with the Television-Radio Advertising Club's annual Liberty Vell Award at the group's luncheon at the Warwick (May 21).

IN TORONTO . . .

CKEY city hall reporter Don Kerr, in his off hours has been wandering around unshaven and dressed in old clothes since last fall. He has been doing research with a tape recorder for programs on prostitution and drunken derilicts. Kerr even persuaded police to throw him into the tank as if he was a normal drunk so he could observe the forced sobering up process . . . Melvin Belli, Jack Ruby's colorful defense lawyer, was interviewed by Pierre Berton on his late night tv show. He discussed judicial procedure and problems in the U.S. . . . On the same show Friday, former Toronto and now Broadway actor Don Harron joins Toronto actor Larry Mann in a satirical look at Shakespeare . . . Morley Callaghan's novel "More Joy in Heaven," inspired by the killing of a famous Canadian bank robber, Red Ryan, is being performed as a six part serial on CBC-TV. John Vernon stars as the robber . . . Barry Morse (Lt. Gerard in "The Fugitive") and Australian actress Zoe Caldwell costar in a romantic French-Canadian tv play "Step Out of Darkness" which will be seen late this month. It was translated from the French by director Mario Prizek.

IN PITTSBURGH . . .

Max Reilly, a member of the sales staff of KDKA-TV, has been named national sales coordinator for the station. Donald R. Cote will take Reilly's job on the sales staff . . . After 30 years, WWSW will not broadcast the Steelers' football games this year. The station's sports director, Joe Tucker who has broadcast Steeler games since 1936, has been given permission to go along with the station who gets the rights . . . Chuck Brinkman, the top rated night jock with KQV, has been hired to handle the Dave Clark Five concert at the Civic Arena on June 5 . . . Paul Long of KDKA lashed out at the Pittsburgh Press again last week for breaking a release date on a civic appointment. This is just another chapter in the long feud between the paper and the Group W stations . . . Liz Seneff, local folk-singer, was featured last week on the ABC "Hootenanny" show . . . News bulletins broadcast from the scene by Mike Levine in the KDKA news mobile unit are now being sponsored by McDonald hamburgers . . . Steve Monheimer, a Penn State student, is the new "intern" at KDKA. He will learn about broadcasting through a 10 week stay at the station.

Economics: Key To TV Future

Continued from page 27

prexy LeRoy Collins issuing an anti broadside, and Federal Communications Commission chairman E. William Henry taking the position that pay-tv should be given a trial in the market place.

Election Issue

The issue of pay-tv in this Presidential election year has taken on political overtones, with more fireworks in the offing. In California, voters will ballot in November on whether to outlaw tollvision in that state. Sylvester (Pat) Weaver Jr. has crossed over from free (commercial) tv to head-up Subscription Television, the Santa Monica-based firm. Weaver, in response to the NAB convention, issued two broadsides, one attacking the Collins position, and the other praising the FCC posture assumed by Henry. Months ahead of the California vote, the Weaver-helmed Subscription Television wired service is expected to be operating in Santa Monica and San Francisco.

To date, the Hartford over-the-air experiment being conducted by RKO General and Zenith, the wire system Paramount Telemeter service near Toronto, the upcoming STV wired service in California, have allowed some wheeling and dealing for attractions. Examples of the attractions secured for pay-tv are the vidtaping of N.Y.'s "Upstairs at the Downstairs" satirical revue, "Spoon River Anthology," off-Broadway productions, "Ole, Ole" and "Streets of New York." Tollvision entrepreneur Arnold Brown, who committed the aforementioned productions to vidtape, says he tries to lineup attractions which normally the public would have to pay for and which wouldn't be shown, for one reason or another on free tv.

Mass Appeal

That free (commercial) tv can ante up kingsized monies for popular attractions isn't a moot issue any longer, witness the multi-millions paid for football telecasts. What is a moot point is commercial tv's ability to program less than mass appeal attractions, those that have sizable audiences yet fail to meet the needed Nielsen numbers. That's the area in question at this point, along with the home boxoffice pull of current features, sports, et al.

Other than an economic dislocation which may be ushered in by pay-tv, little is seen that will rock the current tv establishment.

A forum on the issue of pay-tv slated for Thursday (16), night by the N.Y. Chapter of the National Academy of Television Arts and Sciences has been postponed indefinitely, because the Academy couldn't get anyone to speak against toll television.

According to an Academy spokesman, the forum was set awhile back. Two speakers in favor of subscription tv were lined up. National Assn. of Broadcasters prexy LeRoy Collins bowed out because of prior commitments that night. Attempts to secure network spokesmen to voice their opposition to pay-tv were met with vague references of current court litigation surrounding the issue. The two pro-pay-tv speakers who had been set for the now indefinitely delayed forum had been John H. Pinto of Phonevision and Donald F. Conaway, national exec secretary of AFTRA.

VARIETY ARB FEATURE FILM CHART

VARIETY-ARB's weekly chart offers a day-by-day analysis of the top feature evening slots in a particular market. On Saturdays and Sundays, daytime feature slots complete with nighttime pix periods for designation as the top feature slot of the day. The analysis is confined to the top rated feature slots in the ARB measured period, broken down by days in the week. The ARB measured period usually covers three or four weeks. Other data such as the time slot and average share of audience is furnished. Top competition and competitive ratings also are highlighted.

(Continued from page 42)

WTAE

Total Area Homes: 289,300
Metro Rating: 33
Share of Audience: 59

SUNDAYS 9:30-12:45
Program: SUNDAY NIGHT MOVIE SPECIAL

Jan. 5 "AUNTIE MAME"
Rosalind Russell, Peggy Cass
1958, Warner Bros., S.A.A.

Jan. 12 "SAYONARA"
Marlon Brando, Red Buttons
1957, Warner Bros., S.A.A.

Jan 19 "THE NUN'S STORY"
Audrey Hepburn, Peter Finch
1959, Warner Bros., Warner Bros. TV

Jan. 26 "ALEXANDER THE GREAT"
Richard Burton, Fredric March
1956, United Artists, U.A.A.

TOP COMPETITION

PROGRAM	STATION & TOTAL HOMES
Bonanza 9:30-10:00	WHC 274,400
Candid Camera 10:00-10:30	KDKA 348,300
What's My Line 10:30-11:00	KDKA 343,500
Chiller 11:15-12:30	WHC 58,100

SEE FTC DISK RULES BY JUNE

Col's Epic Subsid, Once a Longhair Showcase, Now Clicking as Pop Label

Epic Records, Columbia Records subsid which had been chiefly known for its line of imported longhair LPs, has developed into one of the hot pop labels. Switch of accent stems from development of a click pop roster over the past year when Len Levy took over the reins of Epic and reshaped the label into a swinging indie-styled company.

Currently riding with the Dave Clark Five, a British combo, Epic has been scoring with such names as Bobby Vinton, Adam Wade, actor George Maharis, Buddy Greco and Cliff Richard. Latter is another British import who has shown considerable strength in the American market via his Epic releases.

Vinton's disk, "Roses Are Red," was the first Epic single to top the 1,000,000 marker and got the label off winging last year along with Rolf Harris' "Tie Me Down Kangaroo Sport."

Levy thinks there's more than pot luck in coming up with a hit. He's been placing heavy stress on merchandising angles to sell his product, coming up with extensive displays and other point-of-sale material to retailers.

Under Levy's administration, Epic has been pushing its disks via a spread of paid spots on radio which has been paying off in increased turnover of records.

Epic will be marshalling its full strength to meet the anticipated demand for the Dave Clark Five disks when the combo makes its return for a 16-city cross-country tour to this country in May. The group's first disk, "Glad All Over," has already topped the 500,000 marker and is building up momentum with "Bits and Pieces."

A third Clark single has been placed on the shelves with "Do You Love Me" backed by "Chaquita." In addition, the "Glad All Over "LP is also emerging as a powerhouse LP for Epic.

Epic, moreover, has come up with a hit LP in The Village Stompers' "Washington Square." In addition, Lester Lanin and his orch have been a steady standby for the label in lean years and fat. The Golde-Briars and the Freewheelers are two more promising folk and Dixie groups on the Epic roster.

Levy has reactivated the Okeh label for the rhythm & blues releases. Okeh hit the pop charts last year with Major Lance's "Monkey Time," and has a new hit in "The Matador." Two other r&b artists, Dr. Feelgood, once known as Piano Red, and Ted Taylor, have also been consistent sellers for Okeh.

Epic, which works mostly through indie distributors, is maintaining its high standards in its longplay releases while trying to build a rounded catalog, including jazz and ethnic disks.

Hello, Solly

Sol Handwerger, veteran ad-promotion chief for MGM Records, was feted at a surprise luncheon given by the music trade press at Al & Dick's, N.Y., Monday (13). It was the first time that the trade press ever picked up a tab for a disk company publicist. The event marked Handwerger's 24th year with MGM.

Over 85 members of the music biz, including publishers, other diskery execs, ad agencies, were on hand to salute Handwerger. Henry Brief, RIAA exec secretary, presented a gold disk to Handwerger certifying that he has a "million friends in the business."

Diskeries Rush MacArthur LP's To the Market

Immediately after the announcement of Douglas MacArthur's death last week, albums about the five-star general were being rushed to the market. The disk industry repeated virtually the same pattern of the period following President John F. Kennedy's assassination last November when numerous documentary LPs about JFK's career were issued.

In Gen. MacArthur's case, the diskeries had been preparing their LPs during the long final phase of his illness. At last count, four labels, MGM, RCA Camden, Atlantic and 20th Century-Fox, were putting out news LPs, while one old album about the general, on the Chesterfield label, was reissued.

MGM Records came out with "General of the Army Douglas MacArthur—The Life and Legend of 'The Old Soldier'." Over 50,000 were shipped last week. Material was culled from the tv documentary, "Perspective on Greatness," and from MGM film newsreel clips of the war years.

RCA Camden released a double-LP package titled "The Farewell Addresses of Gen. Douglas MacArthur," containing the complete speeches that MacArthur made to the Congress on April 19, 1951 and to the U.S. Corps of Cadets at West Point May 12, 1962.

RCA Camden is paying a royalty on its MacArthur album to the Assn. of Graduates of the U.S. Military Academy. The two-disk set is being sold at $2.98.

Atlantic Records is putting out "The Complete Life of Douglas MacArthur Through His Own Words." This LP will contain material from speeches and interviews. Stan Burns is narrator and produced this set with Joseph Terry.

Twentieth-Fox is releasing "General Douglas MacArthur—The War Years." The material was compiled from the soundtracks of the Fox Movietone Newsreels.

Cap, Vee-Jay End Beatles Litigation

Hollywood April 14.

That long-spinning litigation involving Capitol Records vs. Vee-Jay Records has been settled out of court, diskeries have jointly announced. Agreement between Robert Carp, veepee and general counsel for Cap, and Mark Sands and Jay Lasker of Vee-Jay was reached here late Thursday (9).

Capitol agreed to drop its temporary injunction against Vee-Jay (acquired February in Circuit Court of Cook County, Ill.), providing Vee-Jay accepted license from Cap to sell its Beatles product, royalties from which to go to Capitol. Additionally, Capitol received "substantial payment" for past Beatles royalties, plus licensing fee for future sales.

Asked what was meant by "substantial payment," Capitol prexy Alan Livingston declined to designate exact figure, but did say it cost Vee-Jay "several hundred thousand dollars."

ABC-PAR GROOVING LP OF OFF-B'WAY 'CINDY'

ABC-Paramount is following up its Broadway cast album release of "High Spirits" with an off-Broadway cast album of "Cindy," which opened March 19 at the Gate Theatre, N.Y.

Music and lyrics for "Cindy" is by Johnny Brandon, with the book by Joe Sauter and Mike Sawyer. Jacqueline Mayo, Johnny Harmon, Sylvia Mann and Lizabeth Pritchett are among the featured players. Sammy Benskin is musical conductor of the show.

PRAISE ARMADA FOR LEADERSHIP

Washington, April 14.

The final version of Federal Trade Commission record industry rules should be out by mid-June, informed sources predicted.

Crystal ball gazers come up with the prediction FTC would announce April 22 deadline for filing additional comments on the proposed industry trade practice rules.

Originally the comment deadline was set for 20 days after the trade practices conference of March 13, but delays in getting the transcript of that meet caused it to be moved back.

Meanwhile, it was disclosed that Rep. James Roosevelt (D.-Calif.), who headed a hearing last Fall on the record industry, is keeping a close eye on the Commission proceedings.

In a letter to Amos Helicher, president of the American Record Merchants & Distributors Assn. (ARMADA), Roosevelt termed the FTC gathering a "landmark" conference.

Though the Commission has been acting on "dual distribution" since 1919, its disk venture is something of a departure from earlier practices in applying various laws such as the Robinson-Patman Act.

Roosevelt, who had been somewhat baffled by the record industry muddle, has indicated his hopes that FTC and the industry can solve their myriad problems without resorting to further Congressional action which would be time consuming and mired in complexities.

He praised ARMADA for its role in the conference averring, "You have chosen the one route most likely to return your industry to a semblance of order and stability."

Once the industry comments are in, FTC lawyer John Benton who has been overriding the disk doing, will submit a confidential report and set of recommendations to the full Commission.

His report and the advice of Commissioner John Reilly who presided at the hearing, will probably carry the most weight with the other six Commissioners unfamiliar with the industry.

CBS DISKERY DIGS FRANKFURT TALENT

Frankfurt, April 14.

CBS Records, which only a couple of months ago opened its own pressing and distributing organization in Germany, is going at a brisk pace and already has two disks by local artists on the top record list in West Germany.

The new diskery here, headed by Wolfgang Mitulski, has the hit record, "When Cowboys Dream." It was cut as the first record by blond world ice skating champ Marika Kilius, who is a Frankfurt girl. CBS also has the initialer platter by another Frankfurt local singer, Bernd Spier's "You Can't Forbid Me," both sung in German, of course.

Now CBS has signed the Jacob Sisters, Johanna, Rosemarie, Hannelore and Eva, who have been regular performers on the local television show called "Blue Bock" (after the name of one of the popular apple wine cafes).

The quartet, who have appeared on the stage and radio, are making their first record with CBS, under a three-year contract. Initial title is "Dreams of Love Are Beautiful."

British Disk Best Sellers

London, April 14.

Can't Buy Me Love (Parlophone)	Beatles
Little Children (Parlophone)	Dakotas
Just One Look (Parlophone)	Hollies
I Believe (Decca)	Bachelors
Not Fade Away (Decca)	Rolling Stones
I Love You Because (RCA-Victor)	Reeves
World Without Love (Columbia)	Peter & Gordon
Girl Belongs Yesterday (United Artists)	Pitney
Tell Me When (Decca)	Applejacks
Bits and Pieces (Columbia)	Clark Five

'Funny Girl' LP a Smash In 1st Wk.'s Release

Capital Records' original cast album of the Broadway musical, "Funny Girl," starring Barbra Streisand, shaped into an immediate hit following its release last week.

Diskery, which began shipping platters less than three days after recording sessions were completed on Sunday (6), racked up orders for 60,000 LPs by the end of last week. Capitol estimates that the album is a sureshot to top the 250,000 mark within a couple of months.

Impressive figures on the Broadway cast album raise questions about who will get the soundtrack LP rights when the filmusical version is made. Columbia Records has Barbra Streisand under contract, but did not pick up its option to get the Broadway cast rights to "Funny Girl."

Ray Stark, Seven Arts exec who is producing the Broadway play and holds the picture rights, will determine what label will make the soundtrack LP for "Funny Girl."

Columbia, of course, has a powerful selling peg in its record club operation which has put so many of the Col original cast LPs over the $1,000,000 billings figure.

Although the current season has thrown up two top selling Broadway cast sets in "Hello Dolly" for RCA Victor and "Funny Girl" for Capitol, Columbia has a big edge in its long series of Broadway cast sets that have copped gold disk awards.

Leading the field, of course, is "My Fair Lady," followed by such LP clicks as "South Pacific, "West Side Story," "The Sound of Music." "Camelot" and "The Flower Drum Song."

Schroeder Music Inks Writer, Film Music Deals

Aaron Schroeder Music, which recently opened offices in Hollywood, has signed writer deals with Bronislau Kaper and Pete Rugolo.

Schroeder has also picked up the rights to the film music for Ely Landau's "The Fool Killer," Samuel Fuller's production of "Shock Corridor" and the American-International film, "Pyro."

Norway's 'ASCAP' Income

Norway's TONO (Norsk Komponist Forenings Internasjonale Musikkbyra), the Oslo-based performing rights society, was late in reporting its last (1962) audited income which came to $450,000. (The 1963 figures, estimated to be up a bit, have yet not been finalized).

TONO's income comes dominantly from radio and tv, $180,000; stage (variety, musichall etc.), is next with $90,000; restaurants and niteries, $88,000; cinemas, $80,000.

Income from foreign societies and miscellaneius accounts for $12,000.

Cap Expanding Artist Stable Via Its 'Indie' Subsid Label, Tower Records

Capitol Records, now riding at the fastest clip in its history, is setting up an "independent" subsid label, Tower Records, named after the shape of the company's home-office building in Hollywood. New label will initially release singles to be followed by album product.

Gorron R. (Bud) Fraser, currently head of Capitol's international division, will run Tower, reporting directly to Capitol prexy Alan W. Livingston. Vito Samela will be national sales and promotion manager.

Unlike the Capitol disks which are handled through company-owned branches, Tower will sell through independent distributors. These are yet to be selected. Tower will not be bound by Capitol's recent one-price-to-all policy which has made sub-distributors and rackjobbers unhappy.

New label will also give the Capitol family far greater capability to handle artists who are hot for the parent British company, EMI. While Capitol struck a bonanza with The Beatles, an EMI group, the U.S. label was forced to turn down handling such groups as Dave Clark Five and Jerry & The Pacemakers, both with very great potential.

The formation of the new label will now enable Capitol to wrap up any artist or group which zooms up via its overseas affiliations.

Tower will also take material from independent producers and masters from Capitol's a&r department, as well as creating its own disks. Fraser said that Tower will not have a regular release pattern, but will rather operate on a fast-moving record-by-record basis. "And as soon as have our first hit single", he added "Tower will be in the album business."

UA Wins Writ Vs. Shad's 'Jones' LP

United Artists Records was granted a preliminary injunction in N.Y. Supreme Court last week against Theatre Productions' use of an album jacket on the Bobby Shad - produced album, "Tom Jones."

Judge Irwin D. Davidson said: "When we examined the material as set up on plaintiff's jacket (UA) and as set up on defendant's jacket (Shad), there appears a likelihood of the public being deceived into believing that defendant's compositions have some connection with the motion picture of 'Tom Jones'."

The Shad album of "Tom Jones" is an original musical version of the Henry Fielding classic. UA Records, which put out the film soundtrack LP, objected to the fact that the former album jacket claimed to be an "original cast" set.

BEATLES NAB ANOTHER $1-MIL ALBUM SELLER

It's getting to be routine. The Beatles' "Second Album" for Capitol racked up over $1,000,000 worth of business, calculated at the manufacturer's price, on the very first day of its release, according to Stan Gortikov, v.p. and general manager of Capitol Records Distributing Corp. This LP has become the fastest-selling LP in the history of the label.

Capitol has once again applied to the Record Industry Assn. of America for official certification of the album's Gold Record status.

It's the fastest such application in RIAA's history.

STEVE MOGULL TO DORSEY

Steve Mogull, formerly with Shapiro-Bernstein Music, has joined Dorsey Bros. Music's professional department.

Herbert Wise is general manager of the firm which is part of the Consolidated Music combine.

'Funny Girl' Cast Set, Enoch Light's 'Dimension Three,' Makeba, Franklin, Fountain's 'New Orleans' Top New LPs

BARBRA STREISAND-SYDNEY CHAPLIN: "FUNNY GIRL" (Capitol). If the Broadway musical biography of Fanny Brice is a great showcase for Barbra Streisand's talents, this original cast version is equally so. Miss Streisand's performance of the Jule Styne-Bob Merrill score has been put into the groove with unusual vividness. As in the show, Miss Streisand does a flock of show-stopping numbers, such as "Cornet Man," "I'm The Greatest Star," "People," "Don't Rain On My Parade," "Sadie, Sadie," and whether it's a razz-matazz show biz tune or a tender ballad, she extracts extraordinary emotional power out of the material. Sydney Chaplin registers nicely in his duets with Miss Streisand, "You Are Woman" and "I Want To Be Seen With You Tonight." Danny Meehan, Kay Medford, Jean Stapleton and John Lankston contribute some support in other numbers.

ENOCH LIGHT & HIS LIGHT BRIGADE: "Dimension 3" (Command). Enoch Light has come up with another contribution to the stereoephile's paradise with his development of three-channel recordings for the conventional two-speaker arangement. This is a brilliant demonstration disk, in which each sound has great definition and clarity to highlight the illusion created by this process. Musically, it's a superbly swinging collection, including such oldies as "All I Do Is Dream of You," "Life Is Just A Bowl of Cherries," "Adio," "The Hawaiian Wedding Song" and "It's Only a Paper Moon."

MIRIAM MAKEBA: "THE VOICE OF AFRICA" (RCA Victor). Once again, Miriam has fashioned a group of varied songs into a stirring LP. In this collection, she delivers one art tune, "Willow Song," and for the rest concentrates on folk material from Africa, Cuba and Israel. The African songs get the most exciting performances by Miss Makeba and a small instrumental combo.

ARETHA FRANKLIN: "UNFORGETTABLE" (Columbia). Billed as a tribute to the late Dinah Washington, this set showcases Aretha Franklin in a standout performance. An excellent blues stylist with a distinctive attack unmarked by any tricky effects, Miss Franklin sings several of Miss Washington's hits, including "Unforgettable," "What A Difference A Day Makes" and "Evil Gal Blues." She also superbly belts numbers like "Cold, Cold Heart," "This Bitter Earth," "Soulville," "Drinking Again" and "Nobody Knows The Way I Feel This Morning." Robert Mersey's arrangements lend an important assist.

CLYDE McPHATTER: "SONGS OF THE BIG CITY" (Mercury). With items like "Deep In the Heart of Harlem," "My Block," "Spanish Harlem," "Chinatown," "Coney Island," "In My Tenement" and others, Clyde McPhatter takes listeners on a musical tour of some of Gotham's locales. It is an atmospheric array, with a social comment strongly implied in the tunes. McPhatter gives the songs a strong, emotional pop sell, spiced with r&b stylings. Alan Lorber arranged and conducted the session which is by no means a normal pop music tour of New York. It is highly personal and one that teeners will dig.

PETE FOUNTAIN: "NEW ORLEANS AT MIDNIGHT" (Coral). One of the top exponents of the classic jazz clarinet style, Pete Fountain comes up with another one of his musical promenades down Bourbon Street. This is a firstrate instrumental offering in which Fountain, backed by a tightly knit rhythm, blows some sparkling sounds on numbers like "I Want To Be Happy," "Brahms' Lullaby," "Ballin' The Jack," "Midnight Pete," "Battle Hymn of The Republic" and "Midnight Boogie."

"ROD McKUEN SINGS ROD McKUEN" (Capitol). This is a nice showcase for Rod McKuen, A prolific songwriter and fine singer, his work is well displayed here, arranged and conducted by Bunny Botkin and Freebairn Smith. McKuen the singer has a simple, easy style and this pattern fits smoothly with the pleasant simplicity of the arrangements of his melodic and flowing ditties. Withal a nifty pop item which should help propel him even further up the show biz ladder.

RAY BROWN-MILT JACKSON: "MUCH IN COMMON" (Verve). Bassist Ray Brown and vibist Milt Jackson, backed by various small combos, turn up with a powerhouse jazz set. Perhaps the most striking aspect of this driving set is the presence of gospel vocalist Marion Williais, who certainly deserves topranking billing. Her performances on "When The Saints Go Marching In," "I've Got To Live The Life I Sing About In My Songs" and "Sometimes I Feel Like A Motherless Child" have profound bite. The straight instrumental numbers are all sharply swinging.

DAVID ALLEN: "THIS IS MY LUCKY DAY" (Everest). With a hip lilt to his style, singer David Allen scores in this LP which, incidentally, was produced for Everest Records by film actor Tony Curtis' Curtis Enterprises. Bob Florence arranged and conducted the groovy session. A savvy warbler, Allen is equally strong with ballads and uptempo sides. He has chosen a hip array of tunes and Florence has dressed them with just the right fit for the singer. It's a solid disk and one which could step out in hipster circles.

"CABIN IN THE SKY" (Capitol). Vernon Duke and John Latouche's "Cabin in the Sky" has been around since 1940 and is currently enjoying a reprise off-Broadway. This LP is by the new production's cast and features Rosetta Le Noire, Ketty Lester, Tony Middleton, Sam Laws and Bernard Johnson. The Duke-Latouche songs come strongly alive with this grooving and legit buffs will be pleased with it. The cast has a stylish savvy and Sy Oliver's orchestration have spirit and effective simplicity. It's a nifty reprise LP which deserves considerable attention from legit fans and pop music listeners alike.

THE IRISH RAMBLERS: "THE PATRIOT GAME" (Elektra). The Irish Ramblers are three brothers named Clancy and they remind one of the Clancy Bros. & Tommy Makem, a highly successful Irish tune purveying unit. The Ramblers sing with spirited style, delivering a hefty number of ballads and uptempo tunes. It is a pleasant-sounding unit which disyplays Irish charm. Some of the material is known but much is not. The trio serves it all up with a spicy taste of the green which should attract attention.

"NBC's CHAMBER MUSIC SOCIETY OF LOWER BASIN STREET" (RCA Camden). A nostalgic trip back to the 1930s is provided here in a collection of cuts from the NBC Chamber Music Society of Lower Basin Street, featuring performances by Dinah Shore, Paul Laval & His Woodwindy Ten, Sidney Bechet, Lena Horne and Harry Levine & his Dixieland Octet. It's a delightful session with some spirited and swinging performances of some memorable tunes. Among the latter are "Mood Indigo," "Basin Street Blues," "St. Louis Blues," "Body and Soul," "Careless Love," and "Beale Street Blues."

LAWRENCE WELK
Presents His New Hit DOT ALBUM
"EARLY HITS OF 1964"

"BILL BLACK'S COMBO PLAYS THE BLUES" (Hi). The ever-shuffling beat of the Bill Black combo gets another strong workout in this rundown of some famous blues numbers. The Black sound is fashioned for easy dancing with its firm, unvarying rhythm structure. In this LP, Black dishes up some great oldies, including "Birth of "The Blues," "Blues In The Night," "Basin Street Blues," 'St. Louis Blues" and a pounding tv theme, "Peter Gunn."

PAT BOONE: "AIN'T THAT A SHAME" (Dot). Pegged to the hit title tune, this is an attractive wrapup of recent pop entries. Boone varies his style from the rocking sound of "Ain't That a Shame" to the country flavor of "That's Me Without You" to the straight ballad genre of "Sunday, Morning Or Always." Other standout numbers are "Everybody's Somebody's Fool," "He'll Have To Go" and "Venus."

BUFFY SAINTE-MARIE: "IT'S MY WAY" (Vanguard). A strongly emotional style is the trademark of folksinger Buffy Sainte-Marie, who gets off a solid platter with this outing. Accompanying herself on guitar, the folkstress wails an array of ballads and upbeat items with intensity and feeling. Folkniks will dig her ways and the unusual nature of some of her material. This session should do well in the ever-potent folk disk sweepstakes.

2 of Col's 3 Rip Chords Injured in S.D. Crash

Minot, N. D., April 14.

Two of the three Rip Chords, Columbia recording artists, suffered minor injuries last week when their car, linked to a trailer, went out of control on an ice-slick, jack-knifed and went over a 60-foot embarkment.

Phil Stewart and Arnie Marcus were taken to St. Joseph's Hospital here for several days. Singer Shirley Ellis and Lincoln Chase, her 88er, riding in same car, also sustained minor injuries.

Rich Rotkin, the third Rip Chord, was travelling in another car with singer Dion Di Mucci, but pair were not involved in accident. Troupe was en route to Fargo, N. D., for a date.

Longplay Shorts

Cyril Ornadel, British composer-conductor, starting a promotion tour of the west in behalf of his nine instrumental LPs for MGM Records . . . Elektra Records projecting 40 releases on its lowprice None such label this year after issuing the first group of 10 . . . RCA Victor has expanded its Elvis Presley campaign by adding six Gold Star singles to the singer's catalog which now numbers 36 singles, 20 LPs, and 23 EPs . . . Gian-Carlo Menotti's new cantata, "Death of the Bishop of Brindisi," will be recorded by RCA Victor with the Boston Symphony Orchestra under Eric Leinsdorf.

Columbia Masterworks paying tribute to Paul Hindemith, who died last December, with a memorial issue of three albums. Leonard Bernstein conducts the N.Y. Philharmonic in one of Hindemith's earlier compositions, "Concert Music For Strings and Brass," while the composer batons his works on the other two LPs . . . Prestige Records showcasing Willis Jackson's albums in its April sales promotion . . . Columbia is issuing seven four-track stereo tapes, including "Manhattan Tower," "What Makes Sammy Run" Broadway cast recording and five pop albums . . . Several London distributors' salesman off to England as prizes in the label's Mantovani sales contest.

Top Singles Of The Week

(The 'Best Bets' of This Week's 100-Plus Releases)

LOUIS ARMSTRONG-DAVE BRUBECK . . . . . NOMAD
(Columbia) . . . . . Summer Song

Louis Armstrong-Dave Brubeck's "Nomad" (Derry†) gives Satchmo, who's riding high with "Dolly," an interesting piece of material which is surefire for wide spins. "Summer Song" (Derry†) changes pace with a pretty slow-tempoed ballad which Armstrong handles with customary skill.

* * *

FATS DOMINO . . . . IF YOU DON'T KNOW WHAT LOVE IS (ABC-Paramount) . . . . . Something You Got Baby

Fats Domino's "If You Don't Know What Love Is" (Anatole†) gives this veteran performer one of those bouncing rhythm tunes which he knocks off with solid impact. "Something You Got Baby" (Tune-Kel†) is another nifty bluesy slice also due for wide attention.

* * * *

CHARLES AZNAVOUR . . . . . LA MAMA
(Verve) . . . . . Et Pourtant

Charles Aznavour's "La Mama" (BIEM) showcases this French performer, now touring the U.S., on one of his dramatic ballads which he projects with compelling force over the barrier of language. It could come out left field, much like those Italo numbers where the lyric is secondary to the mood. "Et Pourtant" (Leeds) is another one of his compositions which rates close attention.*

* * *

JOHNNY SEA . . . . MY BABY WALKS ALL OVER ME
(Philips) . . . . . There's Another Man

Johnny Sea's "She Walks All Over Me" (Lu-Tal†) stems from the backwoods but has a clever lyric performed with a sound which could go far in the pop market. "There's Another Man" (Trio†) is an okay slice pleasingly performed.

* * *

FREDDIE CANNON . . OK WHEELER, USED CAR DEALER
(Warner Bros.) . . . . . Odie Cologne

Freddie Cannon's "OK Wheeler, The Used Car Dealer" (Claridge-Halseon) registers as a frantically paced rocking number with a cute lyric and sound which will score with the teenagers. "Odie Cologne" (Claridge-Halseon*) is a similarly styled high-flying rhythm slice.*

* * *

PAUL ANKA . . . . . MY BABY'S COMIN' HOME
(RCA Victor) . . . . . No No

Paul Anka's "My Baby's Comin' Home" (Spanka-Trio†) is a hard-rocking number with a blues feeling which this singer handles effectively. "No No" (Spanka†) impresses as a bright rhythm idea that could take over the action.

* * *

MERRY CLAYTON . . . . . LA LA JACE SONG
(Capitol) . . . . . Beg Me

Merry Clayton's "La La Jace Song" (T.M.†) shapes up as an original rhythm slice with a Latin-flavor overlaying a rocking beat which this high-pitched singer projects to the hilt. "Beg Me" (T.M.†) is another neat uptempo slice due for spins among the juke set.

* * *

CAROL CHANNING . . . . . SO LONG DEARIE
(RCA Victor) . . . . . Put On Your Sunday Clothes

Carol Channing's "So Long Dearie" (E.H. Morris), from the current Broadway hit "Hello Dolly" in which she stars, gives this showtune a rollicking ride which could propel it to a big place on program schedules. "Put On Your Sunday Clothes" (E.H. Morris*), from the same show, is an okay song but with lesser impact.*

* * *

THE VILLAGE STOMPERS . . FROM RUSSIA WITH LOVE
(Epic) . . . . . The Bridges of Budapest

The Village Stompers' "From Russia With Love" (Unart†) work over this pic tune with a guitar sound which could put it on top of the stack of versions of this number. "The Bridges of Budapest" (Rayven†) is a colorful instrumental featuring this group's Dixie-styled sound.

* * *

RICK NELSON . . . . . THE VERY THOUGHT OF YOU
(Decca) . . . . . I Wonder

Rick Nelson's "The Very Thought of You" (Witmark) updates this standard with a rocking version in which this young singer hits the teenage target with his simple vocal. "I Wonder" (Silmo†) is an okay contemporary ballad also nicely handled.*

* * *

SARAH VAUGHAN . . . . . THE WALLFLOWER WALTZ
(Roulette) . . . . . Only

Sarah Vaughan's "The Wallflower Waltz" (Marvin) is a standout ballad with a lilting melody and a fine lyric which this songstress slants for big returns in the pop market. "Only" (Chappell*) is another firstrate ballad with solid pop potential via an arresting slice.*

* * *

CHIP TAYLOR . . . . . ON MY WORD
(Mala) . . . . . Joanie's Blues

Chip Taylor's "On My Word" (Sea Lark Enterprises†) is a catchy rhythm tune which this newcomer delivers with a neat sound tailored for the teen set. "Joanie's Blues" (Sea Lark†) is a good slow ballad instrumental.

* * *

THE DRIFTERS . . . . . ONE WAY LOVE
(Atlantic) . . . . . Didn't It

The Drifters' "One Way Love" (Keatch, Caesar & Dino†) hits as a swinging rocker sharply arranged by this fine combo. "Didn't It" (T.M.†) is an okay rhythm side.

* * *

BRIARWOOD SINGERS
LOVE TASTES LIKE STRAWBERRIES
(United Artists) . . . . . Two Brothers

The Briarwoods Singers' "Love Tastes Like Strawberries" (Allendale†) impresses as a standout entry in the folk genre, a very pretty tune handled with taste and style. "Two Brothers" (Haworth) is another good folk song about the Civil War.*

Herm.

*ASCAP. †BMI.

Grammy Nominations in Label Spread

Col, Victor, Cap, Philips Lead in NARAS' '63 Race For 'Record of the Year'

Nominations for the 1963 Grammy Awards of the National Academy of Recording Arts & Sciences struck a neat balance among the top companies for the "Record of the Year." Columbia came up with two of the five, disks by Barbra Streisand and Tony Bennett, while RCA Victor, with Henry Mancini; Capitol with Jack Jones, and Philips with Soeur Sourire, took one nomination apiece.

In the album category, the Philips label, a Mercury subsid, took the lead with nominations of two imports, The French Swingle Singers' "Bach's Greatest Hits" and Soeur Sourire's "The Singing Nun."

Miss Streisand also copped an album nomination on Columbia along with Andy Williams, while an Al Hirt LP was nominated on the Victor label. Final winners will be announced by NARAS in ceremonies on May 12.

Following are the nominations in the top pop and longhair categories:

Record of the Year

THE DAYS OF WINE AND ROSES—Henry Mancini
DOMINIQUE—Soeur Sourire
HAPPY DAYS ARE HERE AGAIN—Barbra Streisand
I WANNA BE AROUND—Tony Bennett
WIVES AND LOVERS—Jack Jones

Album of the Year

BACH'S GREATEST HITS—The Swingle Singers
THE BARBRA STREISAND ALBUM—Barbra Streisand
THE DAYS OF WINE AND ROSES—Andy Williams
HONEY IN THE HORN—Al Hirt
THE SINGING NUN—Soeur Sourire

Album of the Year—Classical

BRITTEN: WAR REQUIEM—Benjamin Britten, cond. London Symphony Orch. & Chorus
DEBUSSY: LA MER/RAVEL: DAPHNIS AND CHLOE—George Szell cond. Cleveland Orchestra
GREAT SCENES FROM GERSHWIN'S PORGY AND BESS—Leontyne Price and William Warfield PUCCINI: MADAMA BUTTERFLY—Leontyne Price, Richard Tucker, Rosalind Elias

Song of the Year

CALL ME IRRESPONSIBLE — Sammy Cahn, Jimmy Van Heusen
THE DAYS OF WINE AND ROSES—Johnny Mercer, Henry Mancini
THE GOOD LIFE—Sacha Distel, Jack Reardon
I WANNA BE AROUND—Vimmerstedt, Johnny Mercer
WIVES AND LOVERS—Burt Bacharach, Hal David

Best Instrumental Theme

BLUESETTE—Jean "Toots" Theilman
GRAVY WALTZ—Ray Brown, Steve Allen
LAWRENCE OF ARABIA—Maurice Jarre
MORE (THEME FROM "MONDO CANE")—Riz Ortolani, Nino Oliviero, Norman Newell, M. Cirociolini
WASHINGTON SQUARE—Bob Goldstein

Best Vocal Performance—Female

THE BARBRA STEISAND ALBUM—Barbra Streisand
BLAME IT ON THE BOSSA NOVA—Eydie Gorme
DOMINIQUE—Soeur Sourire (The Singing Nun)
I'M A WOMAN—Peggy Lee
THE WORLD OF MIRIAM MAKEBA—Miriam Makeba

Best Vocal Performance—Male

BUSTED—Ray Charles
CATCH A RISING STAR—John Gary
THE DAYS OF WINE AND ROSES—Andy Williams
I WANNA BE AROUND—Tony Bennett
WIVES AND LOVERS—Jack Jones

Best Instrumental Jazz Performance—Soloist or Small Group

CONVERSATION WITH MYSELF—Bill Evans
CRISS-CROSS—Thelonius Monk
DAVE BRUBECK AT CARNEGIE HALL—Dave Brubeck Quartet
4 TO GO!—Andre Previn, with Ray Brown, Herb Ellis and Shelly Manne
OUR MAN IN NEW ORLEANS—Al Hirt
PETER NERO IN PERSON—Peter Nero & Combo
SEVEN STEPS TO HEAVEN—Miles Davis

Best Instrumental Jazz Performance—Large Group

ENCORE—WOODY HERMAN, 1963
FULL NELSON—Oliver Nelson Orchestra
GERRY MULLIGAN '63
OUR MAN IN NEW ORLEANS—Al Hirt
QUINCY JONES PLAYS THE HIP HITS
SEVEN STEPS TO HEAVEN—Miles Davis

Best Performance by an Orchestra—For Dancing

ENCORE: Woody Herman, 1963
FLY ME TO THE MOON AND THE BOSSA NOVA POPS—Joe Harnell
THE PAGE 7 . . . AN EXPLOSION IN POP MUSIC
QUINCY JONES PLAYS THE HIP HITS
RICHARD RODGERS BANDBOOK—Les Brown
THIS TIME BY BASIE! HITS OF THE 50'S AND 60'S—Count Basie

Best Performance by a Vocal Group

BLOWIN' IN THE WIND—Peter, Paul and Mary
HEY LOOK US OVER!—The J's with Jamie
THE HI LO'S HAPPEN TO BOSSA NOVA LIKE SING—JACKIE AND ROY KRAL
WAITIN' FOR THE EVENING TRAIN—Anita Kerr Singers

Best Original Score From a Motion Picture or Television Show

CLEOPATRA—Alex North
THE DAYS OF WINE AND ROSES—Henry Mancini
LAWRENCE OF ARABIA—Maurice Jarre
MONDO CANE—Riz Ortolani, Nino Oliviero
TOM JONES—John Addison

Best Score From an Original Cast Show Album

HERE'S LOVE—Meredith Willson
JENNY—Arthur Schwartz and Howard Deitz
110 IN THE SHADE—Harvey Schmidt and Tom Jones
SHE LOVES ME—Jerry Bock and Sheldon Harnick
TOVARICH—Lee Pockriss, Anne Croswell

Most Promising New Classical Recording Artist

THE ABBEY SINGERS (Vocalists)
REGINE CRESPIN (Vocalist)
COLIN DAVIS (Conductor)
ALIRIO DIAZ (Guitarist)
JOHN OGDON (Pianist)
FOU TS'ONG (Pianist)
ANDRE WATTS (Pianist)

Best Comedy Performance

BILL COSBY IS A VERY FUNNY FELLO, RIGHT!
CARL REINER AND MEL BROOKS AT THE CANNES FILM FESTIVAL
HELLO MUDDUH, HELLO FADDAH—Allan Sherman
I AM THE GREATEST!—Cassius Clay
THINK ETHNIC—The Smothers Brothers

Best Documentary, Spoken Word or Drama Recording (Other Than Comedy)

THE BADMEN—Pete Seeger and others
BRECHT ON BRECHT—Original Cast with Dane Clark, Anne Jackson, Lotte Lenya, Viveca Lindfors, George Voskovec, Michael Wager
JOHN F. KENNEDY—THE PRESIDENTIAL YEARS (with David Teig as Narrator)
STRANGE INTERLUDE—(Eugene O'Neill) —Broadway Cast
WE SHALL OVERCOME (The March on Washington . . . August 28, 1963. Authorized recording)
WHO'S AFRAID OF VIRGINIA WOOLF? —Original Cast: Uta Hagen, Arthur Hill, George Grizzard with Melinda Dillon

Best Rock and Roll Recording

ANOTHER SATURDAY NIGHT — Sam Cooke
DEEP PURPLE—Nino Tempo & April Stevens
I WILL FOLLOW HIM—Little Peggy March
IT'S MY PARTY—Lesley Gore
OUR DAY WILL COME—Ruby & The Romantics
THE SHELTER OF YOUR ARMS—Sammy Davis, Jr.
TEEN SCENE—Chet Atkins

Best Country & Western Recording

DETROIT CITY—Bobby Bare
FLATT & SCRUGGS AT CARNEGIE HALL—Lester Flatt and Earl Scruggs
LOVE'S GONNA LIVE HERE—Buck Owens
NINETY MILES AN HOUR—Hank Snow
THE PORTER WAGONER SHOW—Porter Wagoner
RING OF FIRE—Johnny Cash
SAGINAW, MICHIGAN—Lefty Frizzell

Best Folk Recording

BLOWIN' IN THE WIND—Peter, Paul & Mary
GREEN, GREEN—The New Christy Minstrels
JUDY COLLINS #3—Judy Collins
ODETTA SINGS FOLK SONGS—Odetta
WALK RIGHT IN (album)—The Rooftop Singers
WE SHALL OVERCOME—Pete Seeger
THE WORLD OF MIRIAM MAKEBA—Miriam Makeba

Best New Artist of 1963

VICKI CARR
JOHN GARY
J'S WITH JAMIE
TRINI LOPEZ
SWINGLE SINGERS

Glasgow Slaps Ban On Beatles Queues

Glasgow, April 14.

Magistrates here have slapped another ban on The Beatles by forcing the city's Beatle-mad fans to avoid queuing for tickets. Aim is to prevent scenes such as have happened elsewhere, such as overnight sleeping on sidewalks and day-and-night-long queues.

Authorities will ask the management of the Odeon Theatre, where The Beatles are billed to appear April 30, to issue all tickets for the show by mail.

Glasgow's police boss, James Robertson, says it is in the best interests of young people, and particularly teenagers, not to endure the severe hardship of having to queue overnight for theatre tickets. A certain amount of hooliganism had attended such lines in Edinburgh and other cities, he claimed.

The show in question, set for the city-centre Odeon Theatre, part of the Rank Organization, is the return treat promised the city's juves by The Beatles when they clicked here six months ago. On that occasion the Liverpool Sound had such an effect on the youngsters that they had the balcony of the city's Concert Hall (a former cinema) swaying dangerously.

An Odeon Theatre spokesman commented to VARIETY: "There has never been any trouble in the past, and queues have started only a few hours before the booking-office opens. I suppose the fantastic popularity of The Beatles has to be taken into account."

In Edinburgh, meanwhile, the police have denied the Glasgow magistrates' suggestion that there were signs of hooliganism on the part of young fans in the queues there.

Spoleto Chamber Prize

Spoleto, April 14.

Festival of Two Worlds here has offered a $500 prize for a chamber music work to be performed at the 1964 "aperitive concerts" (from noon to one o'clock each day).

Conditions: not more than 10 musicians and composer not more than 35 years old.

'German Negro' Music New Kick

Frankfurt, April 14.

Latest kick in the West German record industry is American Negro spirituals—translated and sung in German.

Called "German Negro" music, the songs have been inspired, apparently, by attempts of the German Protestant and Catholic churches to pep up their ceremonies by presenting the rhythmic Negro spirituals with German words.

The Protestant Academy in Tutzing recently offered a competition for religious "hits," in which 350 composers participated with about 700 entries. Winner was Pastor Martin G. Schneider, with his "Thank You, Thank You, Thank You" which aped the rhythm of many of the Negro spirituals in a lively four-four time.

Now "Danke" (Thank You in German) has been recorded by pop German singing star Ralf Bendix—and has already sold 250,000 platters.

Deutsche Grammophon (Polydor) has also come up with an album, selling for 18 marks ($4.50) titled "Halleluja." This is regarded as a deliberate attempt to capitalize on the most beloved Negro spirituals, all translated into German.

Such songs as "Joshua Fit de Battle of Jericho," "Go Down Moses" and "Down by the Riverside" have been turned into German Negro classics by a talented trio. Texts are done by Ernst Bader, son of a pastor who also composed the words to the hit platter "Tiritomba." Arranger is Horst Wende. Singer is Knut Kiesewetter, twice the winner of German jazz contests.

German churches recently offered blues for Christmas, little shepherd calypsos, tangos like "Jesus You Are My Symbol for Life" and slow foxtrots like "Like a Little Bird, I Was Seized by Satan".

As these tunes have caught on, the other record firms have been quick to follow. Latest platters introduced include The Fellows, singing for Decca with "The Time is Coming Again," a pressing from English-born disk-jockey John Paris who has his own German shows and makes records here, with "One Knows Everything" for Bella Musica; Polydor artist Freddy Quinn with "Boss," and Lys Assia with "All God's Chillun Need Shoes"—all in German, of course.

Carr-Shuman to Clef Off-B'way 'Mitty' Score

Pop songwriters Leon Carr and Earl Shuman have been tapped to write the score for a musical, "Secret Life of Walter Mitty," which is being produced off-Broadway next fall by Joe Manchester. It's their first legit effort.

Book is being written by Manchester from the story by James Thurber.

RIAA's Henry Brief Spins Off Salient Phono & Disk Statistics at NAB Meet

The boom of the phonograph and record industry since Columbia Records introduced the longplay disk was drawn in some vivid statistics at the National Assn. of Broadcasters' meet in Chicago last week.

Henry Brief, exec secretary of the Record Industry Assn. of America, in a talk to the NAB radio panel, pointed out that from an estimated 17,000,000 home phonographs in 1950, the figure rose to over 40,000,000 in 1963. Disk sales rose from $172,000,000 in 1948 to about $600,00,000 currently.

Brief said the disk industry for a number of years has been releasing more than 10,000 new records annually, composed of about 6,500 singles and better than 3,500 albums. The number of disk companies, he added, has grown from several dozen in 1948 to several thousand in 1963.

Last year, over $400,000,000 worth of LP disks were sold, running the full gamut of repertoire material. Brief noted that there are marked changes in the buying habits of people about every 10 years in age classification.

A 10-year old buys mostly teen-beat music; by the age of 15 or 16, the interest in teen beat music declines and there's a movement towards pops, light classicals, country & western, jazz, folk and classical music. Purchases of pops and light classicals increase right through age 60 while interest in other categories reach a plateau at about 25 or 30.

Brief asserted that those who earn over $7,500 a year, accounting for about 36% of the population, buy almost half the total records. Males account for 52% of total record purchasers but females outstrip males in single purchases by 64% to 36%.

Brief said that the disk industry invested about $68,750,000 in creating new records, with an average cost of $2,500 to produce a single and get it out in the field as against an average cost of $15,000 per album. Individual singles and albums would, of course, greatly diverge from the average.

Because the disk industry and radio broadcasters are so closely interlinked, Brief proposed the creation of a joint committee that would discuss mutual problems.

German Disk Best Sellers

Frankfurt, April 14.

Hold Your Hand . . . . Beatles (Odeon)
Darling Caroline . . . . . Ronny (Telefunken)
You Can't Forbid Me . . Spier (CBS)
When Cowboys Dream . . Kilius (CBS)
Red Lips for Kissing . . Richard (Columbia)
Place Beside Me . . . . Distel (Polydor)
Lady Music . . . . . March (RCA)
America . . . . . Lopez (Reprise)
Stories of 20-Year-Old (Polydor) Fritsch
Mexico . . . . . Presley (RCA)

Folk Fad Dealing Bands New Blow, Marterie Moans

Chicago, April 14.

The dance bands, those that have survived more than a decade of declining ballrooms and playdates, have been dealt another shattering blow by the folk music trend of the past year.

Where, for several years, college dates have been the bread and butter of the band biz, now these bookings are being cut out from under them by folk acts and hootenanny units since they've become the rage of the campus.

Ralph Marterie, who has kept a band together since 1948, says that while a few years ago he could count on 75 to 80 college dates a year, he is now down to less than half that number. In most cases the collegiate concert stands have been replaced by the folk acts.

About the only sure thing that an orch leader can count on these days, according to Marterie, are the college proms. And, he adds, since these all take place in a matter of weeks, if one expected to make a living from the proms he'd have to be in 3,000 places at once.

The erosion of the college concert dates began in the early '50s, Marterie points out. Prior to that time the big name bands had a virtual corner on that market. Then as bop, "cool" and progressive jazz came to the fore, more of the dates started going to the small combos.

But the folk fad has pre-empted a far greater number of dates than did the combos and occasional variety acts. "The dates are so widely scattered now," says Marterie, "that we spend more time in the bus than we do on the stage." His band logged more than 100,000 miles last year.

"You don't have to be a veteran to remember that if you picked up a college date in Des Moines you could arrange a dozen ballroom engagements in between," Marterie recalls. "But that's all gone now."

FORM DUNING MUSIC

Hollywood, April 14.

Duning Music Co, has been formed by George Duning in association with Aaron Schroeder, N.Y. publisher.

Enoch Light Bows New Hi-Fi Wrinkle

Enoch Light, head of Command Records which has been among the successful pioneers in high-fidelity recording techniques, introduced another wrinkle last week with his "Dimension Three" development. New process is designed to give a third dimension to stereo recording via the sound of three distinct channels with only two speakers.

Light accomplishes this audio illusion via a center "ghost" speaker which is created by the placement of the recording mikes and the effects of the other two speakers. Recording is designed as a three-channel process with a resultant increase in clarity and separation.

Light kicked off the new process with release of a new Dimension Three LP featuring his Light Brigade orch on a group of standards. Light struck paydirt with his "Persuasive Percussion" LP disks many years ago and later followed up with its magnetic recording technique on 35m film.

Helen Black Retires As Mgr. of Denver Symph

Denver, April 14.

Helen Black, for 30 years manager of the Denver Symphony Orchestra Assn., retired from the organization coincident with the group's final performance of the 1963-64 season.

Despite a heavy snowstorm a huge crowd turned out to pay tribute to her and to Saul Caston, conductor for the past 14 years, who is leaving the symphony and returning to his native Philadelphia.

Before becoming manager of the Denver Symphony, Miss Black was film and drama editor of the Rocky Mountain News.

Robt. Burns Panned Own Words

Ayr, Scotland, April 14.

Four small volumes of Scottish songs have fetched a record price of $16,500 because they contain 3,000 words of comment by Robert Burns, the Scot poet. This is $4,500 more than was paid for Burns' cottage birthplace at Alloway, near here.

On one page the poet has penned the familiar words of "Auld Lang Syne," a tune sung all over the world.

Burns himself, in his notes, is caustic about some of the songs. Fr'instance, alongside "The Banks of the Tweed," he has written: "The music is good, but the verses are just above contempt."

Of "The Fairest of the Fair," he says: "I would have prevented such an absurdity." But he regards "There's Nae Luck Aboot the House" as one of the most beautiful songs in any language.

Burns' annotated copy of the "Scots Musical Museum" in four volumes has been bought by the trustees of the Burns Monument. The volumes are now on exhibition in Burns Cottage Museum at Alloway, near here.

The private deal was concluded by the trust secretary, W. H. Dunlop. Deal was completed with the London firm of Bernard Quaritch Ltd.

The volumes have been in America for some years, and are known to have changed hands there in 1940 for $15,500.

VARIETY

ALBUM BESTSELLERS

(A National Survey of Key Outlets)

This Wk.	Last Wk.	No. Wks. On Chart
1	1	12	BEATLES (Capitol) Meet the Beatles (T2047)
2	2	23	AL HIRT (Victor) Honey in the Horn (LPM 2733)
3	3	9	BEATLES (Vee Jay) Introducing Beatles (LP 1062)
4	4	10	HELLO DOLLY (Victor) Original Cast (LOCD 1087)
5	5	7	BARBRA STREISAND (Columbia) Vol. III (CL 2154)
6	6	17	HENRY MANCINI (Victor) Charade (LPM 2755)
7	7	26	PETER, PAUL & MARY (Warner Bros.) In the Wind (W 1507)
8	8	36	JOAN BAEZ (Vanguard) Vol. II (URS 9094)
9	10	12	ANDY WILLIAMS (Columbia) Wonderful World of (CL 2137)
10	—	1	BEATLES (Capitol) Second Album (T 2060)
11	11	10	AL MARTINO (Capitol) Living A Lie (T 1975)
12	13	5	JOHN GARY (Victor) Encore (2836)
13	12	9	NANCY WILSON (Capitol) Yesterday's Love Songs (T 2012)
14	14	30	BARBRA STREISAND (Columbia) Volume II (CL 2054)
15	18	12	JACK JONES (Kapp) Wives and Lovers (1352)
16	21	2	ELVIS PRESLEY (Victor) Kissin' Cousins (LPM 2894)
17	17	7	ROGER WILLIAMS (Kapp) Solid Gold Steinway (KL 1354)
18	22	2	SERENDIPITY SINGERS (Phillips) PHM (200-115)
19	16	2	LAWRENCE WELK (Dot) Early Hits of '64 (DLP 3572)
20	20	5	BOB DYLAN (Columbia) Times Are Changing (CL 2105)
21	25	127	WEST SIDE STORY (Columbia) Soundtrack (OL 5670)
22	—	1	DAVE CLARK FIVE (Epic) Glad All Over (LN 24093)
23	—	1	FOUR SEASONS (Philips) Dawn (PHM 200-124)
24	15	18	SMOTHERS BROS. (Mercury) Curb Your Tongue, Knave (MG 20862)
25	9	12	KINGSTON TRIO (Capitol) Time to Think (T 2011)
26	29	4	RAY CHARLES (ABC-Par) Sweet & Sour (480)
27	—	1	BEACH BOYS (Capitol) Shut Down, Vol. II (T 2027)
28	26	22	THE SINGING NUN (Philips) Soeur Sourire (PCC 203)
29	19	8	JOHNNY MATHIS (Mercury) Tender Is the Night (MG 20890)
30	47	18	ELVIS PRESLEY (Victor) Fun in Acapulco (LSP 2756)
31	—	1	HENRY MANCINI (Victor) Pink Panther (LPM 2795)
32	—	1	JOHNNY CASH (Columbia) Ring of Fire (CL 2053)
33	—	1	BOBBY VINTON (Epic) There I've Said It Again (LN 24081)
34	27	2	CHAD MITCHELL TRIO (Mercury) Reflecting (MG 20891)
35	23	12	VENTURES (Dolton) In Space (2027)
36	41	54	ROY ORBISON (Monument) Greatest Hits (MLP 8000)
37	—	1	WHAT MAKES SAMMY RUN (Columbia) Original Cast (KOL 6040)
38	38	10	KINGSMEN (Wand) Louie Louie (657)
39	32	22	JOHN GARY (Victor) Catch a Rising Star (LPM 2745)
40	—	1	JERRY VALE (Columbia) Till the End of Time (CL 2116)
41	35	35	TRINI LOPEZ (Reprise) Trini Lopez at PJ'S (6093)
42	30	4	AL HIRT & ANNE-MARGARET (Victor) Beauty & the Beard (LPM 2690)
43	33	14	RICK NELSON (Decca) For You (DL 4479)
44	40	53	ANDY WILLIAMS (Columbia) Days of Wine & Roses (CL 2015)
45	39	65	PETER, PAUL & MARY (Warner Bros.) Moving (W 1473)
46	48	93	PETER, PAUL & MARY (Warner Bros.) Peter, Paul & Mary (W 1449)
47	50	24	SWINGLE SINGERS (Philips) Bach's Greatest Hits (PHM 200-097)
48	36	13	LAWRENCE WELK (Dot) Wonderful Wonderful (DLP 3552)
49	45	3	NEW CHRISTY MINSTRELS (Columbia) Today (CL 2159)
50	43	27	AL MARTINO (Capitol) Painted Tainted Rose (T 1975)

Scot Teens Who Queued 60 Hrs. for The Beatles Were Show Themselves

Edinburgh, April 14.

Teenagers who queued for over 60 hours for tickets to see The Beatles at a one-nighter here April 29 became a show in themselves as they squatted on the sidewalk outside the ABC Regal Theatre.

People traveled for miles to see the juves, their average age 14, protected in rugs and drinking hot coffee and soup, while transistor radios and record-players dispensed Beatles music to them on the sidewalk.

When manager Les Lovell opened up the boxoffice 12 hours earlier than skedded, the first teenager at the window was 13-year-old Carolyn Woodman, of Edinburgh, who had undergone a marthon 62-hour sidewalk vigil. She received a ticket for each performance and a bouquet.

A line of 1,600 fans stretched round the theatre when the boxoffice opened. They faced biting winds during the night. About 200 were turned away without tickets, and thousands of mail applications had to be refused. Police officers praised the young fans for their behaviour while encamped outside the theatre.

Tin Pan Valley

By RED O'DONNELL

Nashville, April 14.

Fred Foster, president of Monument Records (whose artists include Roy Orbison, Rusty Draper, Boots Randolph, Bobby Moore, Grandpa Jones, et. al.), said he thinks The Beatles are going to last longer than a lot of us so-called experts surmised. "I believe," he added, "you'll be hearing from them through most of 1964."

It was Foster, who in late 1963, predicted in VARIETY that Beatlemania" would be the next big trend in sounds.

Todd-Briar Records' prez Paul Cohen signed country singer Donny Young, formerly with Ray Price band.

Al Hirt here to plug May 11 opening of his new Bourbon Street jazz club in New Orleans French Quarter. . . Mitch Miller a brief visitor, en route from Los Angeles to New York. Recalling days of yesteryear when he was first a&r man to record country music by pop singers.

The c&w show arranged and sponsored by the Country Music Assn. for the Detroit Adcraft Club Friday (17) is to be emceed by CMA president Tex Ritter. Featured will be Jimmy Dean, Sue Thompson, Roy Clark, the Marijohn Wilkins Singers and Harold Bradley's band from Music City. Joe Allison is producer-writer for the event, which is scheduled at the Latin Quarter.

Sonny James cut an LP for Capitol. . . . Piano duo of Ferrante & Teicher slated for concert at War Memorial Auditorium, April 22. . . . ASCAP's local office signed writers Ray Carroll, William Parsons and Alf Bartles, who are pactees with Vanilla Music pubbery.

Columbia inked the Slater Bros. (4), a folk-singing group. . . . Country artist Glenn Douglas Tubb (nephew of Ernest) cut his first singles for Philips label. . . . Hickory Records' promo rep Joe Lucus covering his territory on crutches; result of broken leg, suffered in fall at home.

Roy Orbison (accompanied by wife Claudette) off to England and month's tour. Orbison will be featured on show in London with The Beatles; shares top-billing.

Eddy Arnold is to sign short-term non-singing contract next Monday (20) as flying (what else?) public relations rep with Eastern Airlines. Deal is for 16 weeks this summer and will find the RCA Victor artist visiting 20 key cities on hand-shaking tour in behalf of the airlines. He'll be on road four days weekly, according to present plans, calling on newspapers, and radio-tv stations, etc.

SHORT SHOTS—Faron Young has severed booking affiliation with Shelley Synder, and signed with the Moeller-Denny Talent Agency. Young said the parting was on a "friendly basis." Meantime, Young and Preston Temple (who edits his monthly country music newspaper) are opening a printing plant on Record Row May 1.

VARIETY

SINGLE RECORD T.I.P.S.

(Tune Index of Performance & Sales)

This Wk.	Last Wk.	No. Wks. On Chart		Label
1	2	2	CAN'T BUY ME LOVE Beatles	Capitol
2	1	5	TWIST & SHOUT Beatles	Tollie
3	3	5	SUSPICION Terry Stafford	Crusader
4	8	7	HELLO DOLLY Louis Armstrong	Kapp
5	15	2	DO YOU WANT TO KNOW A SECRET Beatles	Vee Jay
6	10	4	CROOKED LITTLE MAN Serendipity Singers	Phillips
7	4	12	SHE LOVES YOU Beatles	Swan
8	9	7	GLAD ALL OVER Dave Clark Five	Epic
9	11	5	SHOOP SHOOP SONG Betty Everett	Vee Jay
10	5	7	MY HEART BELONGS TO YOU Bobby Vinton	Epic
11	6	13	I WANT TO HOLD YOUR HAND Beatles	Capitol
12	7	9	PLEASE PLEASE ME Beatles	Vee Jay
13	13	5	THE WAY YOU DO THINGS Temptations	Gordy
14	12	8	FUN FUN FUN Beach Boys	Capitol
15	28	2	SHANGRI-LA Robert Maxwell	Decca
16	17	4	NEEDLES & PINS Searchers	Kapp
17	35	2	BITS & PIECES Dave Clark Five	Epic
18	24	4	DEAD MAN'S CURVE Jan & Dean	Liberty
19	19	5	MONEY Kingsmen	Wand
20	21	13	JAVA Al Hirt	Victor
21	23	2	FOREVER Pete Drake	Smash
22	14	10	DAWN (Go Away) Four Seasons	Philips
23	37	2	WHITE ON WHITE Danny Williams	UA
24	16	8	KISSIN COUSINS Elvis Presley	Victor
25	20	7	HI HEEL SNEAKERS Tommy Tucker	Chess
26	25	2	HEY, BOBBA NEEDLE Chubby Checker	Parkway
27	29	2	ROLL OVER BEETHOVEN Beatles	Capitol of Canada
28	27	2	YOU'RE A WONDERFUL ONE Marvin Gaye	Tamla
29	22	7	STAY Four Seasons	Vee Jay
30	41	2	THANK YOU GIRL Beatles	Vee Jay
31	18	4	THINK Brenda Lee	Decca
32	26	4	NADINE Chuck Berry	Chess
33	42	2	MY GUY Mary Wells	Motown
34	47	2	ALL MY LOVING Beatles	Capitol of Canada
35	40	2	THAT'S THE WAY BOYS ARE Lesley Gore	Mercury
36	—	1	T'AINT NOTHIN' TO ME Coasters	Atco
37	36	2	HIPPY HIPPY SHAKE Swinging Blue Jeans	Imperial
38	—	1	DON'T LET THE RAIN COME DOWN Serendipity Singers	Philips
39	44	2	EBB TIDE Lenny Welch	Cadence
40	39	2	NEW GIRL IN SCHOOL Jan & Dean	Liberty
41	30	9	PUPPY LOVE Barbara Lewis	Atlantic
42	43	2	TELL IT ON THE MOUNTAIN Peter, Paul & Mary	W. B.
43	32	5	I SAW HER STANDING THERE Beatles	Capitol
44	34	7	FROM ME TO YOU Beatles	Vee Jay
45	50	10	SEE THE FUNNY LITTLE CLOWN Bobby Goldsboro	UA
46	—	1	IT'S OVER Roy Orbison	Monument
47	—	1	Ronnie Four Seasons	Phillips
48	—	1	MAKE ME FORGET Bobby Rydell	Cameo
49	38	10	NAVY BLUE Diane Renay	20th-Fox
50	33	10	CALIFORNIA SUN Rivieras	Riviera

Inside Stuff—Music

A new work by Ferde Grofe, "The World's Fair Suite," will be performed at the New York World's Fair next Wednesday (22) as part of the opening day's ceremonies. Paul Laval will conduct the five-movement symphonic work at a site at the fair still to be selected. Grofe, whose works are published by the Robbins Music wing of the Big Three, is slated to attend the performance.

Another special work for the Fair has been written by Norman Dello Joio whose composed the score for a film to run continuously at the Port of N.Y. Authority building in a specially designed 400-seat circular theatre. Unique projection system will completely surround the audience with sight and sound. E. B. Marks will publish the Dello Joio score.

Glen Gould—the Canadian pianist—has recently appeared on tv, not as a performer but as a composer. As a closing number of the program on which he explained about the nature of a fugue, he offered a choral piece called "So You Want to Write a Fugue." Some of the words have been printed in the G. Schirmer newsletter as follows:

So you want to write a fugue
You've got the urge to write a fugue
You got the nerve to write a fugue
So, go ahead and write a fugue. . .

Bill Simpson, Scot actor who plays Dr. Finlay in the British tv series "Dr. Finlay's Casebook," is providing the U.K. answer to the American medics, Doctors Kildare and Casey, both of whom have sortied into the music world. Simpson, billed as Dr. Finlay, has a new disk on the Piccadilly label titled "I Love You for Sentimental Reasons." On it, he doesn't actually sing, but merely whispers the words huskily against a musical background. On the flip side, tv medico, who was born in the same rural terrain as poet Robert Burns, reads the Burns love poem "My Love Is Like a Red, Red Rose," also against the music for background.

U. of Minnesota's Artist Course's annual Masterpiece and Celebrity series offerings for next season, disclosed last week, include several overseas attractions. Masterpiece series will comprise Mexico's Ballet Folklorico, Warsaw Philharmonic Orchestra, Norman Luboff Choir, Canada's National Ballet, Metropolitan Opera's Roberta Peters and Robert Merrill, and pianists Leonard Pennario and Alexander Brailowsky. Celebrity series patrons will have Mantovani and his Orchestra, Royal Irish massed bands, bagpipes, drummers and dancers, among other units. Season begins next winter in Minneapolis.

Musicians Foundation, in attempting to raise $50,000 to support its work in behalf of needy professional musicians and their families, is selling a limited edition of a special LP featuring the late Arturo Toscanini conducting the NBC Symphony Orchestra in rehearsals. Walter Toscanini prepared the disk as a memorial tribute to his father. The disk will be given to anyone making a contribution of $25 or more to the Musicians Foundation. Several other disks by Toscanini and others will be given for donations from $10 to $20.

American Federation of Musicians is picking up the tab for 100 young string instrumentalists in the U.S. and Canada at the eight-week scholarship school at Michigan State U. June 21 to Aug. 15, sponsored by the Sixth Annual Congress of Strings. Congress of Strings student body is limited to 100 winners of community auditions conducted from now to May 1 by AFM locals. In past summers, guest conductors at the school have included Eric Leinsdorf, Josef Krips and Eugene Ormandy, among others.

Mayor Thomas F. Shebell of Asbury Park, where songsmith-songstress May Singhi Breen (Mrs. Peter De Rose) now resides, officially proclaimed April 23-30 the 11th commemorative anniversary of the composer of "Deep Purple" and many other song hits. "It's Time To Say Aloha," words by Miss Breen, was the last song he wrote on March 1963. Vincent Lopez and the Armed Forces Radio Service (on which ASCAP prexy Stanley Adams and p.r. Richard E. Frohlich will participate), among others, will salute the late tunesmith.

Gian-Carlo Menotti's work, "The Death of the Bishop of Brindisi," will be heard during next season in Boston and N.Y. under Erich Leinsdorf who will also play it in Tanglewood on Aug. 18, with Justino Diaz and Lili Chookasian as soloists and George London as the Bishop. This will also be recorded by RCA Victor. First European performance will take place June 15 at the Vienna Festival. Conductor will be Heinz Wallberg.

A new instruction book for drummers, published by Sam Ulano, has come up with something novel in music notation, a circular musical staff which can be read clockwise or counterclockwise. Standard bars are omitted in what is called "free-style rhythm studies" which, it is said, can compress a vast number of mathematical rhythm patterns in a small printed space.

Jazz clarinetist-bandleader Pete Fountain was presented the annual distinguished salesman's award at a banquet of the members' council of the Chamber of Commerce of the New Orleans Area at the Jung Hotel last Tuesday (7). He received a certificate of merit and a plaque in recognition of his fame as a clarinetist known everywhere as "Mr. New Orleans." Trumpeter Al Hirt was similarly honored last year.

"Music to Nudge You To Sleep," a premium LP produced by RCA Victor, is being distributed by Abbott Laboratories to physicians to plug the drug company's new sleep-producing drug, Placidyl. Disk contains popular light classics recorded by the Boston Pops orch under Arthur Fieldler.

Paul Denis and Helen Martin, writers, and Gene Dauber, photographer, sent to Nashville for several weeks to concoct a series of articles on the country music activity there for publishers MacFadden-Bartell.

COLPIX LABEL PACTS WEISS-SHERMAN PRODS.

Weiss - Sherman Productions have been signed to non-exclusive pact by Colpix Records. Joe Sherman was onetime artists & repertoire director of Epic Records and George Weiss is a composer who used to collaborate with Bennie Benjamin. Weiss-Sherman have already brought comedian Rip Taylor who cut his first single for the label recently.

Meantime, Irwin Robinson has been named attorney for the music and disk division of Columbia Pictures-Screen Gems. He'll supervise the legal operations for the publishing companies, Screen Gems-Columbia Music and Colgems, and the disk labels, Colpix and Dimenson. Robinson had been connected with Zodiac Music and Palette Records.

Chas. Schicke Joins Col

Charles Schicke has joined Columbia Records' special projects division as director of education services.

He'll report to Albert Shulman, veloping techniques for marketing manager of special projects, in de-Columbia product for educational services for Columbia Records Sales Corp.

AMERICAN ENSEMBLE MIXES LONGHAIR, JAZZ

Wrongo billing here. Two serious U. S. composer-players studying in Rome played a first half of Debussy, Sessions and Milhaud, hardly the advertised "contemporary music," and later joined by rhythm section swung Porter and Rodgers.

However in the last half they did one effective original. This was "Concert Music for Jazz Ensemble" in which they played against a pre-recorded tape, giving a fine demo of stereo sound. Of course, this could go on indefinitely, recording another layer of variations each time.

William O. Smith, clarinettist, did a solo demo of new possibilities with the instrument, virtuoso-wise, achieving double tones, with growls, jumps, falsetto, vibrato, fast-fingering with sustained tones at same time, and other schizoid tootings. He later laid some of these acrobatics into "It's All Right With Me."

Pianist of duo, John Eaton, is a strenuous four-member performer. He swings left foot wildly while beating time vigorously with right and whamming keyboard with a busy bass and a nimble treble—on his solos only, fortunately. Unclear if the effective Barre Phillips on bass and meticulous Gerald Tomlinson on drums were picked up here or are also expatriates in Italy.

Combo is far enough offbeat to be a potential draw at Max Gordon's Village basement where they opened last Thursday (9) if they catch on with the young crowd. At Phoenix Monday (6) their draw was scant and surprisingly mature. Downpour may have been responsible for former and the old "contemporary music" for the latter.

Anyone attracted by the "jazz" tag would have felt short-changed by the meager (5) jazz portion of the total one hour, 25 minutes playing time at $4 top. Leve.

American Jazz Esemble

Phoenix Theatre, by arrangement with Columbia Artists Management Inc. presents Bill Smith, clarinet; John Eaton, piano, in a program of contemporary music and jazz with the American Jazz Ensemble. Barre Phillips, bass; Gerald Tomlinson, drums. At Phoenix, N.Y., April 6, '64; $4 top.

Trinidadian Cleffer Sues London as Song Pirate

Raphael DeLeon, a Trinidadian also known as Hubert R. Charles and The Lion, filed suit in N.Y. Federal Court last week against London Records, Frank J. Guida and others. He charges infringement of his tune, "Ugly Woman," by the defendants' song, "If You Want To Be Happy."

DeLeon contends that he wrote "Ugly Woman," a calypso number, prior to 1945 and secured the copyright that year. He asserts that the defendants' song, copyrighted in 1963, embodied the same words and tune as his tune. He asks damages and impounding of all alleged infringing copies.

Richards' Boff U.K. Biz

Glasgow, April 14.

Cliff Richards, English pop singer, is playing to solid biz on his current U.K. tour, which reaches here Thursday (16) and Edinburgh tomorrow (15).

Tour, according to promoter Arthur Howes, is a near sellout. Advance biz has been practically capacity. Richard is doing a 22-day tour, his ninth U.K. one-night stand trek.

Hey, Rocky!

The Chad Mitchell Trio's recording of "Barry's Boys" on the Mercury label, a spoof of Sen. Barry Goldwater, has cued WNEW Radio to offer equal time to all qualified comers.

Since the trio's disk runs two minutes and 38 seconds, equal time will mean just that. Freddy Robbins aired the disk last Saturday (11) and made the offer equal time which is required under FCC rules.

Beatles Don't 'Bug' Kenin But He Wants Anglo-U.S. Tooter Balance Enforced

American Federation of Musicians prexy Herman Kenin says he is not "bugged" by the invasion of The Beatles, but he does want a musicians' trade balance to be enforced between the U.S. and Britain.

Kenin declared he has already received "convincing reassurances" from British Musicians Union execs that such a balance will be restored. He added that the union's protests had spurred the U.S. Labor Department to rule that after April 15, under the Immigration Act, foreign performers with no cultural talents will not be exempted from clearance certification.

Kenin pointed out that contracts for return of The Beatles and another British combo, the Dave Clark Five, are now in the process of being reviewed by the Musicians Union. In return, American musical groups will visit England.

Kenin said the Beatles are a phenomenon that should be seen to be believed. "They are an exemplary group of young men who have reflected credit both on themselves and their country—not to overlook the accumulation of a lot of cash."

Stamping ASCAP's Anni

U.S. Postmaster John A. Gronouski is giving his recognition to the 50th anniversary of the American Society of Composers, Authors & Publishers via the issuance of a special American Music Stamp. Details on design, date of issue, etc. have not yet been completed.

American Music Stamp will serve as a cultural companion piece to the fine arts series that reproduce works of great American painters.

Japanese Auds Find No 'Ghost' In Miller Band

Tokyo, April 14.

As far as the Japanese fans are concerned, there is nothing spectral about the Glenn Miller Orch. The first of the "ghost" bands generally drew good houses during its extensive Japan tour, which included concerts, niteries and U.S. military clubs.

And while applause was not always forthcoming from all-Japanese audiences at the opening of such Miller standards as "In the Mood," "American Patrol," "Tuxedo Junction," "Little Brown Jug" and "Chattanoga Choo Choo," the response at the close of each offering indicated full appreciation.

While the band naturally dispensed a generous helping of the Miller faves, it did not religiously adhere to the original arrangements. "We like to think of it more and more as a modernized Glenn Miller Orchestra," said Ray McKinley, its director. "For example, nice as it is, we wouldn't think of doing an arrangement as thinly-voiced as 'Sunrise Serenade.' Harmonies have improved a lot since those days."

"But we like to maintain the main Miller characteristics, especially the reed voicing," explained McKinley. This is, of course, the trademarked Miller blend with a clarinet lead and a tenor playing the same lead an octave below.

No attempt is made to copy the solos in the Miller originals, McKinley pointed out. "If they can play, I let them play," he said. "There's no thought of trying to play tenor like Tex Beneke or trumpet like Johnny Best, good as they are."

Topped by reed man Lenny Hambro, the McKinley edition of the Miller orch has some fine soloists. Others include Bobby Finley on trumpet, Jiggs Whigham on trombone and Herb Lorden on tenor. Hambro, who has been with the band almost continuously since its inception, doubles as conductor when McKinley is offstage or occupied at the drums. He also takes solos on clarinet, tenor, alto and flute. And auburn-haired Joan Shepherd, a throwback to the vanishing tribe of band singers, got attention here.

When it was mentioned that some of the soloists seemed ready to burst from their commercial confinements, McKinley said, "The people want the Miller stuff. That's why they come. If we didn't do it, they'd be disappointed. But if we come back, we'll spread out a little."

This Glenn Miller Orch is the only band legally authorized to go by that name, although many have borrowed from the Miller style. The orch is owned and operated by the Glenn Miller estate and yields an income to the late leader's widow.

It was launched June 6, 1956. "There was no Glenn Miller Orchestra at that time," McKinley recalled. "Tex Beneke, who fronted a Glenn Miller band during the postwar period until about 1951, had broken with the Miller estate. And of course there were guys who laid claim to being some kind of successor of Glenn, but they had nothing to do with it. The music was locked up in a warehouse on Long Island until we formed the band."

Helen Shapiro, British Teen Chirp, Sounds Off On 'What's in a Name?'

Tokyo, April 14.

Teenage thrush Helen Shapiro, who rocketed as a chart-topper three years ago with a recording of "Please Don't Treat Me Like A Child" when she was a 14-year-old London schoolgirl, disclosed that she and her parents wanted to change her name, but that others talked them out of it.

"I didn't figure Shapiro was a great stage name," she said here. "But it hasn't really hindered me.

"In England, lots of people think it's Italian because of the 'o' ending," observed the singer, who wears a Star of David necklace. "The only time it surprises people is in New York, especially in taxis," she added. "Sometimes when I'm riding in a cab in New York the people I'm with will give me a big buildup with the driver and try to explain who I am."

On those occasions, she noted the driver will invariably turn around, cast a look of skepticism and growl, "Oh yeah. Then why didn't she change her name?"

"But it's completely different in England," the singer cited. "There are not so many people named Shapiro in England."

Miss Shapiro is here for a coupla weeks of nitery, tv and U.S. military club dates. Under promotion of Associated Artistes International of Hong Kong, the thrush previously played the Crown Colony and from here wings to Singapore, Kuala Lumpur and Manila for additional engagements on her first Far Eastern swing.

The singer, whose booking at this city's Copa was only her second nitery date, says she'd slowly like to work into the cabaret groove, but not forsaking the teenage scene.

Eventually, Miss Shapiro would like to crack the American market in a big way. Although she has appeared on the "Ed Sullivan Show" and had a number called "Walking Back to Happiness," recorded in Nashville, on the U.S. charts, she's hasn't yet made a big impact in the U.S.

She feels that in the past her records weren't given enough promotion. But now, Miss Shapiro points out, with disclicks by Cliff Richards, the Dave Clark Five and Dusty Springfield, in addition to The Beatles, on the U.S. charts, English artists must get more attention in America.

Tucson Boys' Fair Date

Tucson, April 14.

Tucson Boys Chorus returned home from first leg of its 11th national tour last week to learn it has been invited to sing at the New York Fair on Arizona Day, May 8.

Group starts next week on second leg of tour, which takes in the Pacific Coast states.

On the Upbeat

New York

Nancy Wilson, Cannonball Adderley, Joe Williams and Billy Taylor will star in the United Cerebral Palsy benefit at Carnegie Hall May 8 . . . George Doerner band held over at Roseland Dance City for two more weeks . . . Pianist Joe Bushkin guesting on the "Bell Telephone Hour" May 5 . . . Nino Oliviero is co-composer of "More," theme of "Mondo Cane." His name was inadvertently omitted from a story in last week's issue . . . The Feur Seasons signed for a series of one-nighters over the next two months.

Timi Yuro exited Liberty Records . . . Cadence Records issuing the "Plaza Waltz," dedicated to the Plaza Hotel. It was the closing number in Julius Monk's revue, "Dime a Dozen," which had a long run at the Plaza . . . Mal Braveman handling publicity for the Gold Bug, new jazz room in Greenwich Village . . . Dave Gardner playing Memorial Hall, Dayton, April 17 . . . Miriam Makeba at Philharmonic Hall Saturday (18) . . . Jan Peerce will sing at Philharmonic Hall April 29 with the Bach Aria Group and then take off for a European tour.

Joan Baez concertizing at the Westchester County Center Sunday (19) . . . Martin Salkin, Decca v.p., in Hollywood to coordinate a promotional drive for the label's instrumental artists . . . Thrush Cathy Woodruff at the Blue Angel for four weeks . . . Gene Krupa quartet open at the Crystal Palace, St. Louis, April 20 . . . Atlantic Records distributing Al King's "Reconsider Baby" on the Shirley label . . . Roy Berry, managing director of Campbell Connelly Music in London, spoke on "The Music Publishing Business in England" yesterday (Tues.) at the International Record & Music Men's Club luncheon.

London

Ian Hockridge, son of singer Edmund Hockridge, joined Pye Records' exploitation department. . . . Salvation Army group, The Joy Strings, prepping their first extended-play disk, "The Trumpets Of The Lord," following their click single, "It's An Open Secret," which warranted release in the U.S. and earned the group cafe dates. . . . In conjunction with Lena Horne's visit here, EMI released a new Horne single, "He Loves Me."

While Beatles' a&r man George Martin is readying a tribute to the group via an album of their songs recorded by a 36-piece orch, Decca has rushed out a special by the Merseyboys featuring 15 compositions by John Lennon and Paul McCartney. . . . New album series by EMI, aiming to dramatize the lives, events and speeches of famous historical people, is out under the title Laureate. . . . Danny Williams, whose disk "White On White" is climbing in the U.S., leaves for the States April 12.

The HIT! OF THE WEEK

GINNY ARNELL
SINGS
I WISH I KNEW WHAT DRESS TO WEAR
and
HE'S MY LITTLE DEVIL
K 13226

M-G-M Records

Two From Top Albums
BEE-BOM
"The Shelter of Your Arms"
SAMMY DAVIS JR.
(Reprise)
•
CARAVAN
"The Many Moods of Tony"
TONY BENNETT
(Columbia)
MILLS MUSIC, INC.
New York, N. Y. 10019

'Solemnis' Plays Israel Though Some Think It 'Too Christian' a Work

Tel Aviv, April 14.

"Missa Solemnis," by Beethoven, will be one of the highlights of next year's Israel Philharmonic Orchestra's programs. This will mark the first public performance of such a work here. Many Israeli people consider it "too Christian."

Dependent upon 30,000 subscribers and single ticket sales for 90% of its revenues, and deriving only 10% from grants, the local Philharmonic is one of the world's busiest. Between the three major cities here, Tel Aviv, Jerusalem and Haifa it plays 188 concerts annually. This puts a strain on program-making, which perhaps explains the decision to disregard the prejudice against "Solemnis."

Wein Shifts His Ohio Jazz Fest Into Crosley Field

Cincinnati, April 14.

George Wein's third annual Ohio Valley Jazz Festival will move from Carthage Fair Grounds to the more suitable Crosley Field, home of the Cincy Reds baseball club, with bookings for another all-star lineup of talent. Dates are Aug. 14-16.

Wein's advance slate includes Louis Armstrong, Duke Ellington, Woody Herman, Sarah Vaughan, Dave Brubeck, Dizzy Gillespie, Jimmy Smith, Cozy Cole and Gloria Lynne.

JACK ROSS

Mar. 23 thru Apr. 4—ROARING 20's, Albuquerque, N. M.
Apr. 8 thru May 5—RIVIERA HOTEL, Las Vegas, Nev.
May 7 thru 24—GASLIGHT ROOM, San Diego, Calif.
May 28 thru July 8—HARRAH'S CLUB, Lake Tahoe, Nev.
July 10 thru 19—CACTUS PETE'S, Jackpot, Nev.
Sept. 10 thru Oct. 21—HARRAH'S CLUB, Lake Tahoe, Nev.

BOOKED EXCLUSIVELY BY ASSOCIATED BOOKING CORPORATION
JOE GLASER, President
50 WEST 57 STREET, NEW YORK 19 JUdson 2-7700
CHICAGO • MIAMI • BEVERLY HILLS • LAS VEGAS • DALLAS • LONDON

'Frogman' Henry Needn't Pay 'Do Nothing' Agent, New Orleans Court Rules

New Orleans, April 14.

Rock 'n' roll singer-pianist Clarence "Frogman" Henry has been c'eared of any obligation to pay 10% of his earnings to a New Orleans manager. Judge Rene A. Viosca of Civil District Court ruled Wednesday (8) that Pascal Marcello, after signing the Negro artist to a contract, did "absolutely nothing to carry out his obligations."

Marcello brought suit Jan. 30, 1963, alleging he deserved $70,000 from Henry's earnings since 1958. Marcello claimed that Henry had sold some 4,000,000 records and earned about $500,000 in personal appearances.

Henry testified during trial of the case two weeks ago, that he was playing piano for $8 a five-hour night at Joy's Lounge in Gretna, across the Mississippi river from New Orleans, when Marcello got him to sign the agent contract. He said the $8 wages were below union scale.

Henry said he arranged for the recording of his first hit, "Ain't Got No Home," himself and that after he began "making a splash around the country" he paid Marcello $1,100.

When Marcello did little to further his career, Henry said he signed a contract with the Gale Agency in New York.

Besides dismissing Marcello's suit against Henry, Judge Viosca ordered Marcello to return the $1,100 to Henry.

BRITISH DISK EXPORTS SOARED 33% IN JAN.

London, April 14.

British disk biz, boomed as never before by the emergence of local rock groups, continues its upwards spiral. Board of Trade figures reveal that during January, 1964, diskeries' sales totalled $6,568,800 against $4,648,000 the previcus year.

Hike in sales was the result of increased activity both at home and abroad, the export sales figure leaping more than 33% above the previous January to $694,400.

Production of both albums and 45 rpm disks was up on the same month a year previous, albums totalling 2,758,000 against 2,046,000 and medium players reaching 7,864,000 against 6,570,000 the previous January.

Cleve's Spring Proms

Cleveland, April 14.

Cleveland Symphony Summer Orchestra, under Louis Lane's direction, will have guest artists in six spring promenade concerts in airconditioned Severance Hall beginning June 21.

Martyn Green is appearing in a Gilbert & Sullivan program, with assisting cast, June 13. Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society are performing Handel's "Israel in Egypt" June 16. Concert pianist Theodore Lettvin has been slated for June 18 in a Brahms program.

Opening attraction is not yet set in series which closes June 20 with a Viennese program. This spring promenade schedule was arranged, it was announced by A. Beverly Barksdale, manager of the Cleveland Orchestra, as a bridge between winter symphony concerts at Severance Hall and summer pops concerts in downtown civic auditorium.

Italo Disk Best Sellers

Rome, April 14.

Lacrima sul Viso (Riccordi)	Solo
Non Ho l'Eta (CGD)	Cinquetti
Quando Vedrai Ragazza (UA)	Pitney
Ogni Volta (RCA)	Anka
Un Bacio Piccolissimo (Carosello)	Robertino
Citta Vuota (Ri-Fi)	Mina
Pieta (Pathe)	Ovale
Che M'Importa Mondo (RCA)	Pavone
Cin Cin (Columbia)	Anthony
Stasera No No No (Jolly)	Germani

Artist-Disk Deals

United Artists: Frankie Avalon

Frankie Avalon, actor-singer formerly with Chancellor Records, has been signed to an exclusive pact by United Artists Records. Artists & repertoire staffer Jack Gold went to California last week to record an album of tunes from "Muscle Beach Party," a film in which Avalon stars.

Deal was arranged by Si Mael, UA Records v.p. and general manager, and Avalon's manager, Bob Marcucci, who is prexy of the Chancellor label.

No Featherbedding In Mpls., Tooter Claims, As He Hits Sheet's Editorial

Minneapolis, April 14.

A Minneapolis Musicians Union member has defended the union's requirement that six of its members be employed to play during local engagements of touring straight legit dramatic attractions when the theatre management deems their services unnecessary.

His comments were made in a letter to the editor published by The Morning Tribune here. This was in reply to the newspaper's editorial taking the union to task for what the daily alleged to be "featherbedding" practices.

"I am a 'jobbing' musician," said S. L. Haugesag in the letter. "The term 'jobbing' means casual employment, usually weekend dances and an occasional show engagement.

"Many musicians have devoted years of study, energy and money to perfect their talents. It is discouraging suddenly to realize that after all of your efforts employment is so scarce. The music business is highly competitive, not only musicians against musicians, but also musicians against recordings, professional against amateur, etc.

"Attacks such as yours certainly cannot help our standing in the community. Why not give some publicity to the scores of benefit performances in which musicians participate?

"Your 'featherbedding' allegation conjures a vision in the public eye of music being forced on a theatre-owner against his will. Yet I understand, and you even published this a few days prior to the editorial, the contract that the union has with this particular theaterowner gives him a substantial reduction in the going pay rate per musical show in return for hiring a few men on dramatic shows at an even lower rate.

"This does not sound like 'featherbedding' so much as it sounds like a device to keep musicians employed a little more regularly."

Chi's Integration

Continued from page 1

board member said that Kenin has put off the merger as a play for votes from the 35 Negro locals in the upcoming national AFM election. The other Negro locals, he said, like 208, don't want to integrate, and Kenin's delaying action with the Chi locals will provide them with an excuse.

The Windy City merger negotiations went sour when lawyers from both sides discovered that many of the concessions that the 11,000-member Local 10 was willing to make in order to facilitate the coupling were illegal under existing labor laws. A stalemate ensued when it became evident that the merger would simply mean the dissolution of Local 208.

Many of the musicians feel that the delay will result in an 18-month war of attrition that will make the eventual merger even more difficult than now.

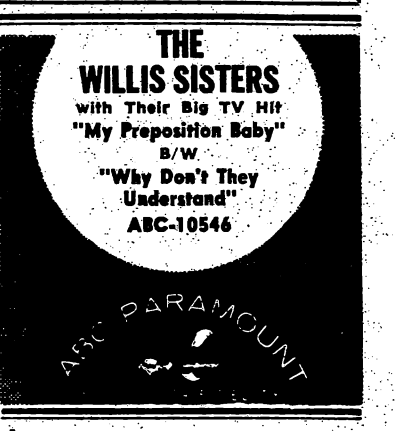
The AFM ukase is designed to protect both the job and property rights of both locals with specific safeguards to be in force preparatory to the final merger and for a limited time afterwards.

A joint exec advisory committee is being set up immediately to start the amalgamation process. Until 1972, the Negro members of Local 208 will be assured representative of their own choice in the merged unions. New local will be known as Local 10-208.

Chi Council Unit Would Up Tooter Work in Taverns

Chicago, April 14.

The license committee of the Chi city council last week voted to amend the municipal code to permit taverns or clubs hiring only musical trios to permit the spots to use up to eight pieces without buying an expensive cabaret license. The change was steered into the legislative channels by Barney Richards, prexy of the Chicago Federation of Musicians (Local 10 AFM).



The amendment will go to the full council April 17, but committee endorsement usually results in passage of such measures. In support of the change, Richards told the committee that it would mean employment for several hundred more musicians. The annual music and dancing license (trios or less) cost $150, while a cabaret license can cost from $700 to $2,000 depending upon the seating capacity of the club.

Richards said that the primary impact would be upon nabe and suburban cabarets and dance halls, which, for instance, might like to increase the size of their bands for holidays or weekends. He emphasized that the increased number represented a maximum for the purposes of the cheaper license only.

DONNA LYNN
New CAPITOL
Special Release
"JAVA-JONES"—(Java)
b/w "THINGS THAT I FEEL"
Management
JACK WOLF and "BUGS" BOWER
JU 6-5577

BECKET
The Original Sound Track Music from
The Paramount Picture
"BECKET"
Released by Decca Records
FAMOUS MUSIC CORPORATION

Announcing
Two Great Songs...
CIUMACHELLA &
THE LIGHTS OF ROMA
From the Hit Italian Musical Comedy
RUGANTINO
MILAN FLORENCE ROME
MUSIC PUBLISHERS
HOLDING CORP

Japan's Yen for C&W Music Sparks Lotsa Far East 'Nashville' Bookings

Tokyo, April 14.

Rising popularity of country and western music in these parts is being reflected in upswing of bookings of performers in the field, not only on the U.S. military club circuit, but also on Japanese concert time.

Big success scored here recently by Hank Snow on 12-day Japan tour—which included only one night at a U.S. military club—showed strength of c&w music among Nipponese fans. In Snow's first performance before foreign audiences in his long career, he played to SRO houses.

Result is that Victor Artists of Japan, which promoted Snow here, is bringing Roy Acuff in June. These tours naturally are designed to push record sales by Victor of Japan of which the talent agency is an offshoot.

The U.S. military circuit in the Far East, long a likely market for c&w performers considering that big percentage of the GIs are from regions where that music is native, is also going more heavily on artists from the Nashville orbit. Reasons for boost in bookings at this time are more organization to the setup, more willingness to pay at least moderate prices by the military clubs and support of a beer dealer on Okinawa, one of the GI strongholds in these parts.

Upcoming in late April is Little Jimmy Dickens with Mother Maybelle Carter and daughters Helen and Anita slated to follow. Tex Williams will hit here in June for at least six weeks of touring U.S. military bases in Japan, Okinawa, Taipei, the Philippines and South Korea acts will be promoted by Tokyo-based Eddie Sereno in conjunction with Dave Moore, a beer dealer operating on Okinawa.

In addition, negotiations are under way for Johnny Cash to return in the summer with June Carter. Cash made an extensive swing of South Korea and Japan almost two years ago on a non-commercial USO junket playing for GIs. His only non-military performance that trip was an admission-free date in Tokyo.

In same field, Rusty Draper has twice toured these parts under promotion of Tom Nomura.

AGVA HIKES H'WOOD SCALES; 1ST SINCE '59

Hollywood, April 14.

American Guild of Variety Artists' local here is instituting scale tilts in numerous niteries, and leaving some status quo. Hikes are first since 1959.

Minimum at Dino's is up from $150 to $170; Slate Bros. $125 to $150 and three stripperies, Largo, Pink Pussycat and Body Shop, are escalatored from $125 net to performer to $135. All deals are for six-day weeks.

Holding the line are Cocoanut Grove, where minimum is $175; Hilton Rendezvous Room $150; Crescendo, $150, and The Losers, $125. Ye Little Club has balked and made counter proposals, now being studied by union.

Incidentally, tallest minimum tab has been placed on Jerry Lewis', from $150 to $200—but that spot currently is using no talent.

Meanwhile, Ernie Fast, from union's national exec interim committee, is here from New York parleying with Jimmy Kelly, western regional chief of AGVA. Interim committee of five is now running union, as there is no national exec secretary. Last two were booted.

Per Contract Icer Plays Segregated Jackson Date

"Holiday on Ice" started an engagement in Jackson, Mississippi, last night (Tues.) despite protests from the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee. SNCC had asked the American Guild of Variety Artists to cancel the engagement because the date was being played in the City Coliseum which is a segregated facility.

A "Holiday on Ice" spokesman declared that the date was being kept in keeping with its contractual obligations. Engagement ends Saturday (18).

Maine Churches Urge Blackface Show Ban

Portland, Me., April 14.

The executive committee of the Maine Council of Churches has called upon all organization in this state to halt entertainments such as "blackface" minstrel shows which "depend for their supposed humor upon the representation of a minority in terms of a prejudiced and untrue stereotype."

The appeal was included in a four-column advertisement published in the Portland Sunday Telegram in a campaign to end racial discrimination in Maine.

Beatles' $40,000 (60%) for 2-Nites At Tennis Stadium

The Beatles have been forced out of Madison Square Garden, N. Y., by previous booking of "Ice Capades" and move to the Forest Hills (L. I.) Tennis Stadium Aug. 28-29 with a surrounding show. Promoters are Bill Grumman of Limelight Productions and Theatre Three Productions which brought The Beatles to the U.S. and which promoted their recent Carnegie Hall, N. Y., dates.

Liverpool group is guaranteed $40,000 against 60% for both nights.

Theatre Three had first call on The Beatles for several U.S. dates because of Sid Bernstein, who first persuaded the "Mersey Sounders" to play Carnegie Hall when he was with General Artists Corp. GAC is now booking The Beatles and offered Bernstein, now the Theatre Three topper, the British rock 'n' rollers in Dallas. No deal is firmed up.

Bernstein, meanwhile, is hopeful that the wave of British rockers will continue. He has booked the Dave Clark Five for Carnegie Hall for two nights starting May 29. They'll do two shows each date. He has also set a more orthodox singer, Jerry Vale, for the following night (31) at Carnegie. Bernstein has also set the Serendipity Singers for a Thanksgiving Day bash at the same musical temple.

The asking price for the Beatles has now mounted to $30,000 for a night. It's only possible to play them in kingsized spots and perhaps some of the promotions may have to be shifted to ballparks.

With that asking price, the selling of The Beatles has been slowed down. There is a great deal of trepidation by promoters inasmuch as the breakeven point with the 30G tag will be somewhere around $50,000. Promoters also fear that, while the Britons are now hot, it may be an entirely different story in August when they'll tour the U.S.

Gregory's CORE Dates In Mpls. & Schenectady

St. Paul, April 14.

The Twin Cities chapter of the Congress of Racial Equality (CORE) will sponsor a Minneapolis or St. Paul appearance of comedian Dick Gregory on May 10 in connection with a fundraising campaign for civil rights activities by the Students Non-Violent Coordinating Committee (SNCC) in Mississippi this summer.

CORE heads say they hope to enlist two or three other Twin City organizations in the sponsorship of the one-nighter engagement.

Part of U.S. Tour

Schenectady, April 14.

Dick Gregory will appear at Proctor's Theatre here April 20 as part of a nation-wide tour to benefit the Student Non-Violent Coordinating Committee. The Schenectady SNCC is sponsoring the fundraising event at which the Freedom Singers will also appear.

Proceeds will be used mainly in the voter registration drive in the South.

Smothers Bros. Score With N.M. Collegians In Pulling Boffo 10G Take

Albuquerque, April 14.

The Smothers Bros., in first concert date here, pulled a crowd of about 5,500 to the 7,000-seat U. of New Mexico fieldhouse last Tuesday (7) for a gross of $10,000. Show is part of a string of one-night concert bookings being played across the country by the twosome.

Tickets for the date were priced at $2.75 for the general public and at $1.75 for students, with collegians making up about 80% of the audience. U. of New Mexico student concert group sponsored the lash.

The Smothers Bros. are one of the driving forces behind the popularity of folk music on the nation's campuses this season. But they don't take the music too seriously, playing it mostly tongue-in-cheek.

The Brothers Smothers come across fine in a college audience, and show why their albums have been so firmly anchored in the bestseller lists most of the winter. They add fun to folk music, high jinks and hilarity to the hootenanny hit parade.

They're on for two hours—excepting 20 minutes intermission—and play very little of the material straight. It's practically all one big subdued bit of foolishness, which pleases and delights.

Material is well-written and well-done with guitar-playing Tom doing most of the comic bits to straightman brother Dick on bass. Humor is the major part of the act, but they do peddle a song nicely, if and when they play it straight. They could add a few more selections without the buffoonery. Not to say, however, that the comic stuff doesn't click. It does.

Mitt.

Blue Angel, N.Y., Under Chapter XI

The Blue Angel, one of New York's oldest niteries and regarded as one of the top talent incubators in the cafe field, last week filed a petition for reorganization under Chapter XI of the Bankruptcy Act. Listed were $126,230 liabilities and $36,446 assets. A schedule of payment would be submitted within a few days, according to Charles Mintz, attorney for the spot.

The Blue Angel is operated under the corporate name of Her-Max Inc. after Max Gordon and Herbert Jacoby, its founders. Gordon last year bought out Jacoby and has been operating solo. Jacoby, incidentally, is opening a new nitery, The Caprice, tomorrow (Thurs.) in partnership with bandleader-singer Bobby Short and Martin Scheer.

Gordon, who also operates the Village Vanguard, which is unaffected by the reorganization plea, has been instrumental in developing some top names in the cafe field by alternating them between both spots. Among those who played these spots include Harry Belafonte, Eartha Kitt, The Weavers, Kingston Trio, Limelighters, Shelley Berman, Nichols & May, Woody Allen, and others.

ADD 65G TENT CITY' TO MPLS. AQUATENNIAL

Minneapolis, April 14.

A new feature to be added to this summer's (July 17-26) annual Aquatennial celebration will be a $65,000 "tent city" for displays, shows and restaurants at the foot of the leading downtown business thoroughfare.

In a vacant block, framed by a number of impressive new structures, including two leading hotels, there'll be up to 50 vari-colored tents. One of the restaurants will be Polynesian and another French, similar to the ones in adjacent hotels that will be their operators.

There'll also be a stage for the local Old Log Theatre pro dramatic stock company and other groups to perform, "Dancing Waters" from the Minnesota State Fair and booths to supply information on other of the festival's aspects.

Heavy 'Action' Around in Chi Despite Cops' Raids Vs. Strip-and-Clip Joints

Chicago, April 14.

Open season on Chi's bistros and strip-and-clip joints continued unabated last week as G-men joined Windy City police in raids on cafes alleged to be backed by members of the crime syndicate.

What a few months ago was thought to be a passing legal gesture in response to a series of newspaper exposes has turned into an apparent war of attrition against the saloons that trade on watered whisky and greedy bar sirens.

Despite the more stringent enforcement of the law, attendees at last week's National Assn. of Broadcasters confab reported that there was plenty of "action" around the Loop for those seeking it. However, it was also the consensus of those that toured the conventioneer traps that the ladies who collect swizzle-sticks for profit were models of decorum.)

G-Men in the Act

The Federal government got into the act when 50 agents of the Alcohol & Tobacco Tax unit descended upon five bars on the north side and two in a western suburb and found suspected violations at every place.

At the Tender Trap Lounge near the Rush St. play area, the agents found the spot lacking in liquor purchase records required by law and "requested" that the owner close the place until further investigation could be made.

The Trap features a running serenade of Frank Sinatra records. It recently reopened after a vice raid closed the bar last April when two men and three women were arrested. The Backstage Lounge, further north, was found similarly lacking in liquor records.

Other spots raided for suspected label switching on liquor were the Celebrity Lounge, the Nite-Life and the Walton Club. In the northwestern suburbs, the revenooers raided the Club D'Or and Pepe's Supper Club and came away with bottles for testing.

Way Out's Revocation

Earlier in the week, Mayor Richard J. Daley revoked the license of the Way Out Lounge, 827 No. State St., on the grounds that the manager and bartender permitted two women to solicit policemen for drinks and prostitution. Another bar to have its license lifted was the Seventh Hour, on charges, that the bartender sold liquor to minors.

The crackdown on the peel parlors took on a political twist last week when it was discovered that the county building commissioner, Erwin Horowitz, was a member of a land trust that owned the properties which housed two of the more notorious spots, Eddie Foy's and the Crossroads. County board chairman Seymour Simon said that he was "looking into the matter."

Chi saloon savants, who usually take the periodic crackdowns with a grain of salt, are now wondering if perhaps the cops don't really mean business this time.

Court Bars New Trials In Mpls. Terp Studio Fraud

Minneapolis, April 14.

Federal Judge G. H. Nordbye denied new trials for seven officials and employees of two defunct Twin Cities' dance studios who were convicted by a jury of participating in a scheme to defraud elderly female customers.

Stanley Friedman, Old Bridge, N.J., the studios' owner, and Ralph O'Grady, a local suburban resident who managed the Minneapolis studio, were sentenced to prison terms. The other five defendants were put on probation. Two more defendants remain to be sentenced. Friedman, who drew two years in prison, says he'll appeal.

Steve Parker To Produce Shows At Vegas' Tallyho

Steve Parker has been named entertainment director and producer of the new Kings Crown-Tallyho Hotel, Las Vegas, in a deal which makes him a member of the inn's board and gives him a slice of the place. Parker will produce the show in the hotel's 750-room main room and the 400-seat lounge.

Parker is no stranger to Las Vegas. He was the producer of "Holiday in Japan" which was a major hit at the New Frontier Hotel under Bill Miller's aegis, and also produced the "Philippine Festival" which had a run at the Dunes. He's presently working on the 20th-Fox film, "John Goldfarb, Please Come Home" which stars his wife, Shirley MacLaine, and Peter Ustinov.

The Tallyho was originally built with the idea that there are people who would like Las Vegas if it weren't for the gambling and the huge shows. It boasted a well-stocked library. However, the literary crowd didn't show up, and hotel plotted a casino and showspot. The original management has since bowed out, and construction is now going on under new auspices.

Denver Show Biz Gets First Wax Museum

Denver, April 14.

A wax museum, first of its kind for the Rocky Mountain region, opened here last Sunday (12). Licensed under a franchise by the National Historic Wax Museum of Baltimore, the Denver concern features 97 figures in 35 tableaux, 80% of which are characters out of the Old West.

Unsinkable Molly Brown, "Baby Doe" Tabor and Alfred Packer, billed as "the cannibal," created the most interest, according to manager Al Ritter, during its opening week. Admission is 95c. for adults, 55c. for children.

Honolulu's Room at Top Reopens With Sally Blair

Honolulu, April 14.

Room at the Top nitery, formerly known as The Clouds, has been redecorated and reopened under new management, with entertainment consisting of a series of topical blackout skits and single acts.

Sally Blair is initial headliner. Her husband, Rene de Knight, fronts the four-piece combo, with Carl Jones as emcee. Cast includes Lei Becker, Carol Harris, Jane McGrainor, Lindy Adams and pianist Dick Smart, presenting material written, directed and produced by Wright Esser, operating manager of KTRG-TV.

Edmonton's New Cafe

Edmonton, Alta., April 14.

New local dine and dancery is the Penthouse, atop the Caravan Motor Hotel, with seating for 220.

Music is by the Ron Johnson trio.

VILLAGE THEATRE, N.Y. IN 2D BURLESQUE TRY

The Village Theatre, N. Y., will house a second burlesque try this season. "International Playgirls of '64" has been set to open at this house under the auspices of producer Martin B. Cohen in association with Trans-World Productions. Georgia Sothern has been signed as a lead and Art Mooney will conduct in the pit.

This will be the second burley show in the lower eastside sector. The Casino East Theatre has the longrunning Ann Corio starrer, "This Was Burlesque."

Aikenhead to Manage $4-Mil Saskatoon Aud

Saskatoon, Sask., April 14.

Roy M. Aikenhead, manager of Jubilee Auditorium in Calgary for six years, has been named manager fo the proposed $4,000,000 civic auditorium in Saskatoon, effective June 1. A successor will be named soon.

Aikenhead, who went to Calgary from Saskatoon, returns as project manager until the auditorium is completed in 1967. He then will continue as manager.

Mike Todd Jr.'s 'America, Be Seated!' A Hip Minstrel Show in Pre-Fair Bow

New Haven, April 14.

A variation of history repeating itself seems in the making as Mike Todd Jr. unfurls his "modern minstrel show" preparatory to installing it at the upcoming World's Fair in Flushing Meadows, N. Y.

On a similar occasion, the senior Todd made hay by crashing an earlier Fair with a fast-moving musical novelty. The younger Todd's show, however, drew a so-so $13,050 at its Shubert Theatre preem here April 8-11. Five performances at $5.40 top opened to a negligible advance but picked up after favorable word-of-mouth.

As a hedge against possible racial resentment, pre-opening bally stressed the non-blackface, absence-of-Uncle-Tom-gags aspect of the production. This hardly seems necessary as the presentation shapes up with only slight resemblance to the oldtime version of this type of diversion. The interlocutor-end men format is negligible and the pattern leans more toward vaude, with various specialties being handled in one.

America, Be Seated!

Mike Todd's Minstrels presentation in three parts. Directed by Ronny Graham, produced by Michael Todd Jr., in association with Leonard P. Gaines. Featuring Ronny Graham, Timmie Rogers, Bibi Osterwald, Mae Barnes, Louis Gossett, Peter Conlow; sketches and lyrics by David Axlerod; music by Sam Pottle; settings and costumes, Winn Morton; lighting, Peggy Clark; choreography, Peter Conlow; musical direction and arrangements, Sy Oliver; production supervised by Moe Weiss. With Jack De Lon, Rico Froehlich, Val Pringle, Brandon Maggart, Joleen Fodor, Lola Falana, Maggie Worth, Lou Kristofer, Nicole Karol, Suzanne Charney, Al Valenti. Opened at Shubert Theatre, New Haven, April 8, '64; $5.40 top.

Todd has assembled a lively group of performers involving considerable talent. For the most part, proceedings hop along at a peppy gait. Several phases, however, especially a last part pageant, are due for revision, not only because of their tendency to slow the show but also to get the running time down to the point of doing two performances a night, which will be the Fair schedule.

In typical minstrel fashion, everybody does a variety of things in addition to his own specialty. Ronny Graham makes an efficient interlocutor in a rather lengthy assignment. Timmie Rogers scores neatly on comedy, Bibi Osterwald wallops across a lively vocal, Mae Barnes' deadpan rendition of spicy lyrics registers amusingly, Louis Gossett hits a good comedy vein, Peter Conlow shines in a terp solo.

Other good contributions are Val Pringle's fine voice, Maggie Worth's coloratura, Brandon Maggart's laugh-provoking delivery, Lou Kristofer's hoofing, Jack De Lon's tenorizing, and a variety of support from Lola Falana, Al Valenti, Joleen Fodor, Nicole Karol, Suzanne Charny.

The Sam Pottle-David Axlerod score hits an amiable average and there's a temperate display of glitter in the physical production of sets and costumes by Winn Morton and lighting by Peggy Clark. Sy Oliver conducts capably and, as a side observation, musical numbers come across better in first segment, with band on stage, than they do later with musicians shifted to pit and singers having to project over them.

"America, Be Seated!" may be the forerunner of a revival of minstrelsy. Bone.

Houston Cont'l Expands Bookings in Its Nitery

The Continental Hotel, Houston, will expand cafe operations in the new French Quarter Club of the hotel. Barbara Velasco has been set for April 20 to follow the run of the current "Latin from Manhattan" revue. Spot will be booked by Sammy Roen out of Miami Beach.

Hotel's manager is James R. Shaffer, who previously had been with the Cabana Moter Hotel, Dallas. The new inn lists actress Doris Day as one of its owners.

Goulet Inks 3-Year Deal With Vegas, Miami Hotels

Robert Goulet has signed a three-year deal for the Flamingo Hotel, Las Vegas, and the Deauville, Miami Beach. He'll start the agreement Oct. 1 with a four-weeker in the Vegas inn.

Goulet's deal calls for one appearance each season at each hotel. It's the first time that a Miami Beach spot has inked a multiple contract. Both hotels are operated by Morris Lansburgh.

Luciano Virgili Co. Bows U.S. Tour to SRO Ethnic And at Carnegie Hall, N.Y.

Ethnic-appeal entertainment is today a standard commodity in the concert halls, whether the material qualifies as operatic or popular. The present instance combines a powerful pop baritone, Luciano Virgili, who records for Capitol, with surrounding talent from Italy and a pick-up musical unit of Americans conducted by Stan Free.

The ensemble will play three weeks of dates in the eastern U.S. Hall audience is presumably typical, the clientele is likely to be 90% Italianate. That helps account for special enthusiasm and shouting and a general "European" atmosphere.

There were a number of little touches which must strike Yankee spectators as curious. Why does Virgili wear that iridescent jacket? Not, surely, because he thinks this is the apex of American showmanship? Rather it suggests Cab Calloway of long ago. Curious, too, the presentation on stage of an award to the baritone from Fernet Branca, the Italian bitters one swallows with courage for an upset stomach. The connection was hard to figure.

Luciano Virgili Co.

All-Italian talent unit presented by Erberto Landi. Luciano Virgili supported by Dimari Sisters, Dino Giacca, Egidiana Palmieri, Frank Bernardi and Stan Free Orchestra. At Carnegie Hall, N.Y., April 11, '64; $5.90 top.

Odd, too, was the green spot on the girl singer, Egidiana Palmieri who was wearing a green gown. A good trouper, but she looked a bit zombie in the curious lighting.

But of Virgili himself there is no question. He has a fine voice and an appealing personality. Very tall, there is about him a suggestion of a young Gregory Peck. He sings with gusto and authority, and until the stagehands come to lead him off stage so that the lights may be put out. His capacity audience adored him.

Another standout talent in the unit is tenor Dino Giacca. Unit carries its own emcee, Frank Bernardi. His style is Italian.

Erberto Landi staged and booked the tour. It is certain to draw forth and please Its natural audience. Land.

Embers, N.Y., Eyes Late Biz With Midnight Show

The Embers, N.Y., which has been on a musical policy, is inaugurating a midnight show April 16 with Tessie O'Shea, English comedienne as the initial headliner. Miss O'Shea had been in the now-closed Noel Coward legit musical "The Girl Who Came to Supper."

Miss O'Shea, as well as others coming in, will give one show nightly at midnight in what will be billed as "Twelve O'Clock Theatre." But the display, however, will be advanced to 10:30 p.m. on Sundays.

Idea is to catch the after theatre trade by nabbing a theatrical personality. Other legit performers are being approached to double into the Embers on that basis.

Unit Reviews

Lawrence Welk Show

Albuquerque, April 7.

Lawrence Welk & Orch (25), Lennon Sisters (3), JoAnn Castle, Aladdin, Myron Floren, Barbara Boylan, Bobby Burgess, others. A Lawrence Welk production. At Albuquerque Civic Auditorium, April 5, '64; $5.50 top.

Lawrence Welk proves again—in the debut of his new spring concert tour—that he is a master showman who knows how to package and stage a slick production. The first of Welk's string of seven one-nighter concerts, held at Albuquerque's Civic Auditorium, it was well received by a crowd of about 4,200 in the 5,000-seat house.

It's a two and a half-hour showcase of the same artists the bandleader spotlights weekly on his ABC-TV airer, and he's woven them into a smooth, well-paced unit. He's taken his 25 talented musicians, along with some 13 specialty performers, wrapped them in the band's standard book, added a healthy touch of nostalgia, and come up with a winner.

Show opens with each of the featured performers, including the band men—total of about 40— introing themselves with a four-line poetic vocal to establish rapport with the audience.

It's a corny trick, but it gets the audience in Welk's palm, and he never lets go. From then on, it's one big old-fashioned musical concert, reminiscent of Saturday night in a small town.

They segue into a Victor Herbert medley, then to the cute and talented Lennon Sisters—long a mainstay on the weekly tver. After that it's a bit of the band, interspersed with a vocalist from time to time.

The band does takeoffs on the New Christy Minstrels, Peter Paul & Mary, Liberace, Louis Armstrong and the old Glenn Miller sound. Standouts are many, time and space in the show are limited. This results in far too much talent and not enough time to really give everyone a proper showcasing.

Especially noteworthy in the crew is trombonist Bob Davis, who plays a top horn and gets two brief spots to prove the point.

Others worth more than a passing note: JoAnn Castle, blond

(Continued on page 56)

Hunt Gunman in Shooting Of N.O. Strip Joint Op

New Orleans, April 14.

A man described as a habitue of French Quarter night spots was being sought in connection with the shooting at 2:30 a.m. last Tuesday (7) of a Bourbon Street nightclub operator outside his establishment.

Confined to Mercy Hospital is Carlo Montalbano, operator of the Blue Angel, a striptease spot. He underwent surgery for a gunshot wound in the abdomen. His condition was described as fair.

The Blue Angel is one of 10 Bourbon Street strip joints involved in a large-scale crackdown by police recently in which 50 persons were arrested. Among them was Montalbano, who was booked with allowing prostitution on the premises.

Guide Michelin's New Star Ratings & Upped Paris Prices (Again?)

By WOLFE KAUFMAN

Paris, April 14.

Prices are going up and good eateries are disappearing. That seems to be the lesson of the new Guide Michelin, which has just been issued. The annual listing of French hotel and restaurants gastronomy is accepted by most experts as virtually gospel. It lists and grades practically all French hotels and restaurants and is generally credited with being impartial and accurate. To gourmets the Michelin judgments are the last word. The newest one lists one less top (three-star) restaurant than in 1963, three less two-star restaurants and 20 less one-star eateries.

The big shock is dropping the Cote d'Or of Saulieu from three to no stars. This leaves only 11 in the top rank, five of them in Paris (Lasserre, Maxim's, Tour d'Argent, Laperouse and Grand Vefour). Three two-star fooderies are

(Continued on page 56)

Feld, Now Booking Freedomland, Aligns Beaucoup Live Talent

Freedomland, the Bronx, (N.Y.) amusement park, will become one of the largest stageshow users in the country this summer. Irvin Feld, president of Super Shows Inc. and personal manager of Paul Anka, has been named booker of the venture which will use two full shows, each one slated for three shows daily for a total of six complete layouts in its Moon Bowl.

The Moon Bowl will start with weekends on May 16 and go full-time June 20 until Sept. 13, day before the N. Y. public schools open. After that the park hopes to continue weekends, at least while the N. Y. World's Fair continues, according to the park's general manager Art Moss.

The Moon Bowl policy marks the first time that Freedomland will have an extensive entertainment format. In the past, there were individual names along with dance bands. This year will mark the first time for fullscale shows, virtually on a continuous basis, at no extra admission nick.

The shows will be geared mainly to the teenage level. The first bill May 16 will be topped by Trini Lopez with Solomon Burke, and Dionne Warwick. Alternate show will comprise The Orlons, Garnet Mimms, and an orchestra. The May 23 layout will consist of The Four Seasons, Betty Everett, Freddie Cannon, The Rivieras, and Paul Williams Orch, who will split into two bills. The May 30 card will be Lesley Gore, Terry Stafford, Shirelles, Angels and King Curtis Orch. Each layout will last for 40 minutes.

In addition to the enlarged show policy, Freedomland is now negotiating for sports personalities to appear in a Sports Clinic where youngsters will be given instruction in various sports by personalities in that field.

Moss also stated that he had purchased the German-made Wild Mouse ride which had been originally intended for the N. Y. World's Fair. The Mouse had been purchased by Texas oilionaire H. L. Hunt, whose lease was cancelled by the Fair. Moss, although refusing the divulge the purchase price, said that he "made a good deal." Other new rides at the park this season will include an Eli Wheel, Paratrooper, Rotojet, a whip, and a kiddie ride wherein sulkies are pulled by goats. One of the buildings at the Park is being converted to a haunted castle.

Price policy this year will be $1 at the front gate plus purchase of individual rides. Various discount plans will be in effect for the rides. According to Moss the various packets are now being sold by travel agencies. He said that 23,000 Girl Scouts will have an outing at Freedomland May 23.

Johnson's Wax Industrial Film Potent Soft-Sell Goodwill-Getter

The non-commercial industrial film is likely to be one of the more potent public relations weapons in years to come. Johnson's Wax, which through the years has sought odd public relations gimmicks such as its tower in Racine, Wis., created by Frank Lloyd Wright, has provided an unusual approach in goodwill with its "To Be Alive" which seems to be a milestone in the commercial picture field. There is not a single sales spiel in the picture.

"To Be Alive" says that it's a privilege to be living at anytime, anywhere and proves it through a delightful and thoughtful 18-minute color presentation in the 500-seat panoramic theatre at Johnson's Golden Rondelle at the N.Y. World's Fair.

One of the most striking facets of this presentation is the film process made via three syncronized cameras and projected on three screens each of which is separated by framed. There are apparent advantages in this type of screen structure.

As presented by its makers, Francis Thompson & Alexander Hammid, the three projectors can either show relationships between three separate filmed entities or can show a continuous strip of action. In the first case, the separation is a definite asset, and when connected strips are shown, the mouldings are no bar to a continuous line of thoughts. The effect is very much like that of Cinerama in many instances.

Well Scripted

The filmmakers have selected their sequences with care and its effects have been measured for variety. "To Be Alive" opens with scurrying mob sequence presented with dizzying speed and thence into a scene of tranquility. From then on it shows the joys of childhood and motherhood in various countries, scenes of the young satisfying their curiosity of the world about them, people pursuing everyday activity in work and play contemplation. There is an underlying theme in that the same emotions and feelings are shared by all peoples throughout the world, and it's nice to be here to enjoy them.

Although it may not be one of the most vigorous themes, it seems right for a firm such as Johnson's Wax to pursue that line of thought. It operates internationally, needs peace and an ever increasing economy in order to expand, and what's more it carries out the Fair's theme, "Peace Through Understanding."

Thompson & Hammid have christened this process Tri-Arc 335. There are commercial possibilities in this triptych form in which ayone of the screens can be used independently. The Eastmancolor is soft and appealing, and the Gene Forrell score accents brightly keyed themes. Edward Field's narration has a lot of poetic moments.

"To Be Alive" presentation in the disked dome of the Johnson Pavilion is only one facet of the firm's display. The Lippincott & Margulies design is in itself themed to inspiration with arches reaching above the dome housing the theatre. Ramps take the fair-goers from one level to another with little strain, and on each level are various product exhibits. There are teletypes answering a series of questions on household problems and free shoeshine apparatus. Latter is no small public relations stunt since one needs plenty re-sprucing after tramping around the grounds. Jose.

GRETA KELLER OPENS RUN AT STAGE 73, N.Y.

Greta Keller, Continental singer of American and European evergreens with an ingratiating personality, has been around long enough to build a following which almost filled the intimate playhouse on E. 73d St. Monday (13) at $4.50. She is also in for next three Monday nights. Pop diseuse delighted the faithful who are more accustomed to listen with a glass of something in hand, than in a knee-bumping off-Broadway house. Miss Keller showed about 60% of the potential for a concert tour, needing firm judgment to weed out weaker items, someone to dress her smartly, to curb a few distracting mannerisms, and, most of all, to bring out a unified character, like a Piaf, Pearl Bailey, or Hildegarde, to carry through a full evening of song.

Miss Keller is too defensive and apologetic with the "September Song" type of number, but puts across the nostalgic "Thanks For the Memory," "These Foolish Things," "Get Along Without You Very Well" most effectively. She amuses by switching the gender on "Go Away Little Girl" and intros "Cloudy With Occasional Rain" and "Other Woman In His Life" to fine response. Same goes for her French numbers, but the German section could stand a couple cuts. A Kurt Weill medley scored, with "A Touch of Venus" tops. Likewise a Richard Rodgers, "No Strings" medley. Paul Mann accompanied with deftness. Lightning was over-wattage, overworked and not always flattering. Leve.

CONEY'S WORLD'S FAIR PITCH

Ford's Disney 'Animatronics' Vies With GM Among Fair's Top Shows

The automotive giants, Ford and General Motors, are likely to be the top showmen of the N. Y. World's Fair which preems in Flushing Meadows next Wednesday (22). Each are ready to the last blade of grass, and each has a display that will vie for top attention among the free shows.

Ford has used the talents of Walt Disney to provide the design and motif of a trip through time and space. Like most of Disney's other works, it has charm and appeal to youngsters and a lesson for elders as well. It's a valuable 15-minute course in anthropology at one end and a delightful excursion into storybooks at the other. Ford seemingly can't miss under these circumstances.

The rider goes into a brand new convertible, the steering wheel, gas and break pedals of which are battened down because the ride is controlled on tracks and any additional movement would set the car off course. The first item seen is a view of the fair before it hits the darkened tunnel. The major display in this area is the world of the caveman before and after the invention of the wheel. The prehistoric animals depicted are lifelife. They move as living creatures would do, their skin has texture and form and their surroundings are excellent depictions of the forest primeval.

Disney has used a process known as animatronics to give life to these prehistoric creatures. They feed off the lush vegetation, they warily observe the world around them for natural enemies and they fight off such natural phenomena as erupting volcanos. It's a believable world that was depicted in entertaining and educational terms.

Comedy Relief

Disney has thrown in a few dashes of humor in the sequence concerning the invention of the wheel. The grin of vast satisfaction on the face of the inventor, his acceptance of accolades when he goes off in a cart, pulled by a woman with a babe strapped on her back, and a panel in which an excited individual tries to tell another of a wild animal approaching at his back, provide a few laugh lines on this display.

The ride closes with a glimpse of the automotive world to come in a Space City sequence and the viewer debarks the car to walk out to panels inspecting exhibits of Ford products of the future and a display of possibilities of things to come on the immediate horizon.

There is, of course, a chain of Ford cars and trucks that pass in view. Interspersed, at odd times, is a covered car. It's a new Mustang, still to be unveiled formally, although pictures have been published because of one of the Ford

(Continued on page 56)

Hawaii's SRO 'Barefoot' Show No Paradise To 200 Foiled Ticketholders

Honolulu, April 14.

Single performance of the World's Fair-bound "Barefoot in Paradise" show was a gold mine that backfired when some 160 to 200 ticketholders couldn't get in, even after standing in line for hours.

It's indicated that the Hilton Dome rhubarb was caused by a combination of overselling, too many comps, and shortsighted planning. What made it worse was the fact the boxoffice ran out of cash and had to ask many of the turned-away ticketholders to return the next day for their $3.50 refunds.

Dome, before the show, already was crowded with persons who had paid $10 on a combination dinner-show basis. "Paradise" is part of Hawaii's World's Fair exhibit, on a private concession basis.

Talent Exit for N.Y. Fair Shuffles Honolulu Acts

Honolulu, April 14.

Jesse Kalima and his "1000 Pounds of Melody" tops the new talent roster at the Barefoot Bar. Gabby Gomes and Leinaala are featured with Kalima's group.

Booking fills vacancy created by departure of Sterling Mossman and his Barefoot Gang after a lucrative run of several years. Mossman has the Hawaiian show concession at the State's New York World's Fair exhibit.

Rene Paulo Quartet, coincidentally, has opened a three-month engagement in the Hilton Hawaiian Village's Shell Bar, returning to "home port" after a five-month mainland trek.

Bob Hope Soloing In That Lucrative College 1-Nite Field

Hollywood, April 14.

Bob Hope has rounded up so much boxoffice boodle through one-nighters in fieldhouses of the larger universities that he is continuing to harrow that field—and hereafter won't take any name acts with him, not even a band. Comic will go it alone, and pick up local orchs and acts at each date played.

His fee, now, according to Mark Antony, Hope's road appearance manager, is flat $15,000 per night. Out of that he pays supporting talent. Hope had been booked for May 9 show at U. of Indiana in Bloomington. But advance racked up by sales to students and townsfolk proved so large, he was asked and will do a performance following night. So his gross there will be $30,000. On April 25 he will play, at $15,000, at Duke U., Durham, N.C.

Extension of lucrative college dates followed SRO biz Hope did

(Continued on page 56)

NEW GLAM FOR KNISHVILLE

By JO RANSON

Coney Island, spurred on by the World's Fair, is reglamorizing itself by sticking a zircon-studded tie-pin in its rayon cravat.

Its grizzled showmen appear to be working on the likely assumption that the World's Fair will be up to its clavicle primarily in gigantic preceptorial and industrial exhibits and that the only way to siphon off some of the biz from the beaten grasses of Flushing Meadows is to sell the Surf Avenue and boardwalk lures with a slogan along these lines: "Go the Fair for Education! Come to Coney for Recreation!"

When Grover Whalen's '39 World's Fair got under way on the Flushing Flats, Coney's showmen jabbed the Fair in the ribs with a refrain that went like this: "Sweat at Flushing! Swim at Coney!"

One of the first of the famed Brooklyn seaside's jabs at Bob Moses' World's Fair was delivered at the recent groundbreaking ceremonies for the Astro-tower, one of the tallest structures of its kind, at the new amusement park, slugged Astroland. The park is on the old Feltman site, a kashe-knish throw from the boardwalk and the salami-slobbered Atlantic Ocean.

To get this $1,500,000 attraction under way, as befits a new entrant for Coney's summertime masses, Astroland's management planted a time capsule, or Astrocule, some 32 feet below sea level.

When the archaeological scholars of the coming centuries—the future Schliemanns and Carters—stumble on the contents of the Astrocule's treasure trove buried deep in Coney Island sand, they'll learn, for example, that the Beatles (not Kilroy) were there.

The items cached in the Coney time capsule included one Beatle wig, one ladies' smoking pipe bedecked with phoney diamonds, a sexy two-piece bathing suit, two Nathan's hot dogs (sans mustard), some basics from a female's handbag (circa '64): metal haircurlers, false eyelashes, plastic fingernails,

(Continued on page 56)

On Eve of N.Y. World's Fair Union Feud Over Filming & Electrical 'Gravy' Jobs

By EDDIE KALISH

With the opening of the N.Y. World's Fair now only a week away, there are still jurisdictional labor problems which remain unresolved. Among the prime combattants are Local 3, the AFL-CIO International Brotherhood of Electricians and Local 52, the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employees studio mechanics unit in Gotham, which includes theatrical electricians. Also squabbling are theatrical teamsters Local 817 and standard haulers.

The 52-3 hassle involves the handling of cable and other electrical work for filming done at the Fair. The contract electricians are claiming that all electrical work at the Fair is theirs up to the use of equipment for purposes like filmmaking. 52 says that the making of pix at the Fair is no different from anywhere else and that such work is clearly theatrical and in its jurisdiction.

Under normal conditions, both locals work on a clearly-defined basis with Local 3 handling contract electrical work and 52 doing the theatrical. For the Fair, however, the electrical brotherhood has taken a firm stand that it must bring cable, switches etc. to the job with 52 there only to operate the equipment. The IA unit claims, naturally, that it knows more about theatrical cable, loads, needs and such and that this type of work is not within the province of Local 3.

So far both sides are at an impasse as far as solving the dispute, each local taking an adamant stand on its position. Affected by the hassle are makers of documentaries, commercial pix, some theatrical exhibits and others. To date, there have been some pix made at the Fair and these have settled the matter case by case and in different ways. But the major use of the Fair as a site won't begin until it is completed and open and then the trouble could start. As it stands, it doesn't look like a settlement is near. 52 won't bargain except with 3 itself and this hasn't worked. Another course would be for pic producers to take the matter to the National Labor Relations Board (NLRB) for arbitration.

Maintenance

One of the factors in Local 3's position is the fact that, once the Fair is open, some of its men will be out of work there except for maintenance and such, since all of the installation will have been accomplished. Naturally the brotherhood wants to keep its finger in the pie and this fight over theatrical work is seen as an attempt to do so. Although it primarily a contract labor source, Local 3

(Continued on page 56)

Exotic's 'Bathing' Act Too 'Lascivious' for Honolulu

Honolulu, April 14.

Police Vice Squadsmen went night clubbing and ended up by arresting exotic dancer Patricia Nelson, who bills herself as "Jezebel," on a lascivious conduct charge. She was arrested at the Forbidden City nitery while performing a "bathing" act.

Gal pleaded not guilty and a May trial date was set.

Nev. Sets License Hearing on Vegas Slipper Dice Case

Las Vegas, April 14.

The Silver Slipper casino, which was closed April 3 by the Gaming Control Board for allegedly using dishonest dice, comes up for a hearing before the board of Carson City next Tuesday (21), when it will be decided whether the casino's license will be revoked.

Several hours after agents of the control board and sheriff's deputies closed the casino, a show cause order was signed by Dist. Judge David Zenof which resumed gambling at the Silver Slipper. However, the Judge reversed himself at a hearing on April 6, and the casino was shut down again, except for 108 slotmachines.

Members of the control board say dice were picked up from the tables one week before the raid, put in a sealed envelope, and signed by casino manager Tony Canino. Canino claims that the dice were planted on the table by an outside party.

Silver Slipper's major stockholder is Robert O. Schulze allegedly it's the second charge against this spot. Sometime ago, a 21 dealer was involved in a complaint to the commission but was released.

GM's Highly Imaginative Futurama II Looms As Repeat Smasheroo of '64 Fair

By JOE COHEN

World Fairs seem to bring out the Barnum in big business. General Motors got a major taste of being an impresario of a hit show in World's Fair I in 1939-40 when it sponsored the First Futurama. It's at it again with Futurama II, which again promises to be one of the great industrial hits of the Fair which opens April 22.

The automotive colossus poured in $51,000,000 for its current Fair venture. There are possibly a lot of laymen riding through this exhibit who will authoritatively proclaim that it was worth it. Of course, it's GM's money. In two years many millions will have been impressed by the world of the future as depicted in this brilliantly conceived display.

The new Futurama is a direct decendent of the original which was designed by the late Norman Bel Geddes. The 1939-40 version dwelt largely in the world as influenced by the still rising automotive industry. Many of the predictions made during the shindig have already come to pass. The new version has gone in for a much wider orbit. It concerns itself with the world to come in outer-space, moon exploration, research in Antartica, underseas living, desert reclamation and finally the bright and shining world of the future.

It's a comparatively brief ride of about 15 minutes with three-abreast seating with built-in earphones explaining the various panoramas. The viewer is treated to a wealth of detail and dazzling imagination. Most of the lads at the drawing boards have restrained themselves from going too far. They have merely shown the possibilities available with materials and discoveries at hand. It's not fanciful Buck Rogers stuff, but items that the present generation can bequeath to its successors.

The ride is summarized in its final sequence when a city of metal and steel with plenty lebensraum for everybody. The buildings, plazas, roadways with electronic control of traffic, clean and sharp architecture befitting the new materials, can be done with sufficient courage and vision. It's a promising and gleaming world that General Motors has presented for the urbanites of the future.

From Space to the Aqua Hilton

The ride opens with an astral interlude in which the major item shows how man can explore the craggy moon surfaces by bringing with him his own oxygen. There are ingenious modular vehicles which conform to the rugged topography of the moon. Weightless men navigate in space probing for useful discoveries.

Reentry to this world is via Antartica. Here, according to GM, the future world citizens will devote themselves to research in laboratories carved from snow. Again ingenious vehicles and equipment will relay important information in miliseconds. The undersea sequence shows men in octopus-like vehicles probing the underseas search for minerals, new sources of food and shows the possibilities of vacationing underseas at the Hotel Atlantis. For the showbizzer, a string of Lloyd Bridges-like acts can even form an aquatic borscht circuit in Neptunes domain. It seems possible according to GM.

Another attention compelling sector is the building up of jungles. A laser ray fells the vegetation, and a huge road building factory rolls along to create elevated highways that will not be impeded by fresh growth. Desalinization plans will make deserts habitable in another sequence.

Technology's advances have created a wondrous vision in this display. It's a show that will not only excite and impress, but also may cause some cerebral churning among those seeing it. The Futurama indicates an exciting new world to come.

The GM display also takes the viewer through the world of today. Its display of products shows advanced model cars as well as the autos of today. The housewife is given a look at some gleaming kitchens as created for various countries.

In all, GM's Futurama is a blueprint for living in a civilization that is only a short time away and

(Continued on page 56)

Seattle Center (Site Of '62 World's Fair) Preps Its 2d Season

Seattle, April 14.

The Seattle Center is preparing for its second season, opening June 1, with Center presently operating some facilities and the majority to be open May 1. The Space Needle and restaurant operates the year around, as do the theatre (Playhouse, Opera House, Arena and Exhibition Hall).

The June opening will find a completely landscaped and refurbished Center (site of the 1962 World's Fair). Facilities will include the Food Circus, an amusement centre, restaurants, the newly converted mammoth Coliseum, International bazaar and other attractions.

Summer operation will be tied in with celebration of Washington State's 75th anniversary.

New operations director for the Centre, taking over May 1, is Maxwell G. Burland of San Francisco. He succeeds Donald Foster, who has been acting directo since Ewen C. Dingwall left to come director of San Antonia (Texas)

(Continued on page 56)

LV Becoming Resort Town, Sahara's Milt Prell Notes on Tokyo 'Sales' Tour

Tokyo, April 14.

Tourists now go to Las Vegas for more than gambling, says Milton Prell, board chairman of the Sahara-Nevada Corp., which operates the Sahara on the strip and the Mint in the downtown sector of that city as well as affiliated hotels in Lake Tahoe, Fresno, San Diego and Phoenix.

"It's getting to be a resort town," Prell said. "More than half of the people who go to Las Vegas today don't even gamble."

He hastened to add, however, that gambling is still the backbone of the Las Vegas hotel action, with the added revenue from the casinos enabling the hostelries to offer first-class accommodations, restaurants, entertainment and recreational facilities at moderate rates.

"We're now getting a big summer family business," Prell pointed out. He noted too that the Sahara has convention facilities in its two ballrooms to handle 1,800 people at a time.

Prell headed a delegation here to tubthump the attractions of Sahara-Nevada hotels to the Japanese press, travel agents and innkeepers in Tokyo, Osaka, Kyoto and Nagoya. The only Las Vegas outfit to undertake such a promotion campaign, chieftains of Sahara-Nevada made a similar excursion to Tokyo about 18 months ago.

Eyes Japanese Tourists

Prell confirmed the obvious, that the treks were designed to turn some of the Japanese tourism traffic to the Sahara as of April 1 and the new fiscal year, when restrictions on Japanese travel abroad were eased.

Asked about the $500 per person limitation in spending money that will prevail, at least officially, Prell acknowledged that the amount wasn't very much. "But," he added, "it's the volume we're after."

He had little doubt that even with such sparse spending, a certain amount of the Japanese foreign currency traveling allowances would trickle into the casino coffers. "People from all over the world love to gamble," he opined. "And they'll do it whether it's in nickles, dimes or dollars."

Claiming advantages of Las Vegas over other sun-baked communities, Prell said, "If you go to a Florida resort you might spend $100 a day for a room. We charge $16 a day and you can spend the difference gambling. It's the fairest gambling in the world. We keep a very small percentage."

Retaining Name Policy

While some of the other Las Vegas hotels have gone in for splashy production shows in recent years, Prell said the Sahara will adhere to its policy of presenting name headliners. "The more other places that go for production shows, the stronger that makes us," he added. "And we give good productions with our shows too."

He noted that he recently signed Johnny Carson of the "Tonight" telethon to a three-year pact. Carson will make his Las Vegas bow with four weeks at the Sahara this summer.

Questioned about a recent popular tome on a "surefire" system to beat blackjack, which has generated a stir in gambling circles, Prell submitted, "That book has helped our business.

"Sure, it cut our percentage," he added, "but it made many more players. And there's no such thing as beating the percentages.

"I'd like to find a guy to write another book like that," Prell said.

Bob Hope

Continued from page 55

last month in whirl of shows at Tulane, LSU and Baylor. On those dates he carried Molly Bee and two other turns.

Meanwhile, only one other p.a. excursion is on the Hope booking sheet—a four-day stand in Seattle fairgrounds' coliseum starting June 24. For this caper, Hope is down for flat $100,0000 and will supply bevy of name acts in addition to a name band (can't be Les Brown this time, for Brown will be encamped at Cocoanut Grove).

Thereafter, starting July 6, Hope starts in Edward Small production for United Artists, "I'll Take Sweden."

Guide Michelin

Continued from page 54

dropped, all in Paris, the Bisson, San Francisco and Chataigner, making a total of 61. Curiously all four of these restaurants were dropped to no-stars, which is drastic. There are 33 new restaurants sporting one-star while 53 lost the designation, for a total of 555. In all, 9,907 restaurants and hotels are listed in the book.

More to the point (for us working stiffs) is the fact that the Michelin drops a careless phrase to the effect that costs have gone up from 10 to 15% in the past year. Other economic bird-watchers claim that costs in France have gone up about 50% in the past five years, which is all of a piece, and which contrasts sharply with the official government claim that prices have been "stabilized" since the entry of the current regime. Actually Americans who live in Paris are under the impression that prices and costs have gone up even more and that overall costs right now are higher in France than in the U.S.

An interesting point is the fact that small bistros all over the country have gone into a much higher degree than in the past for fixed-price meals at a "reasonable" tap. Tourist board has been watching these carefully and is making an earnest effort to see that the meals actually cost what they are billed to cost, without surprises. Wines, "cover charges," etc., are usually included—though there are still quite a few (frowned upon by the tourist board) who claim to sell a three or four course meal, then add on all sorts of extras, making the total cost twice as much as billed, or more.

Another interesting factor is the spread of Diner's Club, American Express charge accounts, etc. Past year has seen their emblems appear virtually everywhere. Which may or may not be good. There are those who claim that restaurants who agree to accept and honor the charge accounts, raise their prices to make up the differential.

There are still no new hotels in Paris, perhaps the most underhoteled major world capital, but two Hiltons are en route. Rising costs seem to make no difference. Rooms are at a premium and you have to know somebody to get a place to bed down most of the year. In the small side-street hotels the Tourist Board seems to have a bit of an improvement. Almost all of them (at the express plea of the Board) now include breakfast in the overall price.

Unit Reviews

Continued from page 54

Lawrence Welk Show

looker on piano who swings the ricky tick piano mightily; multi-talented violinist-vocalist-clown Aladdin; singer Bob Lido, and dancers Barbara Boylan and Bobby Burgess.

Welk has a money-winner in this show. It has a built-in audience from its top-rated weekly tv exposure; but it should also attract, by word-of-mouth, lots of others. It's a happy romp that's smooth, slcik and sharp. Mitt.

An Evening of Old-Tyme Music Hall

Glasgow, April 1.

(King's Theatre, Glasgow)

Don Ross presentation, with Dave Willis, Jean Kennedy, Bond Rowell, Ellis Jackson, Nat Gonella, Trevor Moreton, Davies & Gray, Jimmy Plant, Pan Yue Jen Troupe (3), Two Rexanos, Alex Smith Orch.

Dave Willis, 69-year-old comedian with a Chaplin style, is the comedy click of this nostalgic layout, featuring veterans and near veterans. Show is striving to bring back some of the warmth and gaiety of ye-old-tyme English and Scottish music-hall.

With his amusing face, eyebrows that almost talk, and a simple infectious humor, Willis, onetime top star of the Auld Lang Syne comedians, has the outfronters happy in memory and rouses high quota of yocks. He is joined near finale by his former partner, Jimmy Plant, for a typical "Old Pals" routine.

Ellis Jackson, billed as "from the original Billy Cotton Band," is another seasoned performer with know-how, and dances nimbly despite his years. Nat Gonella, leading trumpet maestro of some years back, also scores, notably with the tune most associated with him, "Georgia."

The Two Rexanos, mixed duo, are a lively opener with comedy acrobatics, the male half staying over for walk-on bits between acts. The Pan Yue Jen troupe (one male, two femmes) are skillful jugglers representing China, while Eddie Davies teams with Charlie Gray for some amusing banter and crosstalk.

Trevor Moreton provides memories of the famed English vaude star, the late Florrie Forde, with a Dame study in which he is gorgeously gowned, to gasps of outfronters. Jean Kennedy, a rough-gabbing comedienne, essays a vigorous comedy patter act that has many crude edges and lacks subtlety and cleverness; and she is the only weak spot on a bill of sound performers.

Bond Rowell, dapper light entertainer, now also in the veteran class, wins applause with his singing of such yesteryear tunes as "When the Red Red Robin."

Bill is held together by a music-hall chairman in the time-honored style, seated onstage and introducing the various acts with the usual buildup. Role is portrayed with competence by Jimmy Plant, himself a vet trouper.

The resident orch under Alex Smith showbacks in right vein. Gord.

Union Feud

Continued from page 55

has now decided that its jurisdiction includes bringing power to the source of photography.

One feeling is sure among film producers. The dispute has to be settled soon because there is considerable film work planned in connection with the Fair. A fight over cable hauling and the like could severely hamper such work. There have been some meetings on the problem among the unions themselves and with a Fair committee but the electrical situation remains troublesome. Stagehands Local 1, IATSE, has worked its jurisdiction out with Local 3 as far as theatrical lighting at exhibits is concerned.

There have been and continue to be other disputes. The theatrical teamsters vs. regular haulers is one and there has been some difficulty between AFL-CIO carpenters and Local 52's hammer and saw men. These too are jurisdictional hassles. The latter has been settled for the most part but the teamsters situation continues, involving which holds sway in the long and short-distance hauling of exhibits and other matter for the Fair. The disputes are similar in nature to the electricians problem being theatrical vs. contract in nature.

Also, the Screen Actors Guild-Film Producers Assn. dispute is continuing. This is over new scales for Fair work imposed by SAG without negotiation with producers. FPA members, for the most part, have refused to pay the SGA Fair scales, which run two to three times that of the regular rates worked out in negotiation governing commercial filming. No settlement for this situation is seen in the offing.

Seattle

Continued from page 55

Hemisfair. Burland was assistant director, then director of operations for the Seattle 1962 World's Fair and since has been with the Whitney-at-the-Beach operations in San Francisco.

Century 21 Centre, Inc., operators of the Centre, will merge sometime this fall with Greater Seattle Inc. At that time, according to local reports, Walter Van Camp, veteran showman who has been managing director of Greater Seattle, Inc., for the past 14 years, will become promotion director for the new organization.

Coney's World's Fair Pitch

Continued from page 55

photos of Feltman's from the 1910 period, a Feltman's menu (circa 1903) and a page from the late outdoor showman Samuel Gumpertz's scrapbook of March 7, 1927.

Also preserved in the capsule were the front pages of four newspapers: N.Y. Times, Amsterdam News, Jewish Forward and El Diario of March 7, 1964—thus taking scrupulous care not to slight any of the English-speaking or foreign-tongued elements of the city who regularly seek out the blandishments of the Brooklyn Biarritz. Also into the Surf Avenue sarcophagus went a glossy photo of the proposed Astrotower which, when completed, will rise to more than 300 feet and will be gandered for some 37 miles in all directions.

'The Bagel In The Sky'

The Astrotower will reportedly be more than 60 feet higher than the Parachute Jump (the '39 World's Fair attraction) now at Steeplechase Park. Builders of the Astrotower say that the observation car in the shape of a huge circular plastic cabin (now being dubbed "the bagel in the sky") will carry 60 passengers as it spirals to the top and then descends. A beacon will be placed atop the tower, thus displacing the Statue of Liberty as the first view of America to incoming ships and planes.

Coney made certain that no vandals would raid the capsule in the foreseeable future. Park management hired a bona fide welder who sealed the iron tube with eclat. A special song, "Oh Astroland, My Astroland," was written for the occasion by a "famous poet" identified as Mary Hill Moore. The song was played by a drum and bugle corps of 60 bare-kneed moppets shivering on the wintry midway. A powerfully built "sopralto" rendered the lyrics to the accompaniment of the glockenspiels and drum rattles of the teenage musicians recruited from the Major Irving Lehman Post of the Jewish War Veterans. Mary Hill Moore is reportedly Frederick Fried, press-agent for the park.

On the eve of the ground-breaking and time-capsule-planting ceremonies, the editor of the Brooklyn section of the N.Y. World Telegram, with impish Underwood in hand, shellacked the builders of the ride for desecrating the skyline of the shorefront. "Who wants an outlandish Astrotower along the shoreline?" the editor detonated. "Who wants a big bagel in the sky? It's flights of fancy like this that give serious-minded men something to shudder about." The editor, however, ended his phillipic with a salute to the one-time nickle empire for maintaining "its zest for the bizarre."

Astroland's entrepreneurs are not alone in trying to steal some of the trade from the flats of Flushing. Coney's conglomerate assortment of rides and slides, including such hardy perennials as the Cyclone, the Thunderbolt and the Virginia Reel, have once again been okayed by Gotham's Department of Building under the professional eye of chief ride inspector Bill Olsen. Olsen this year observes his 25th anni as the city's official ride tester.

New Rides

Among Coney's new rides is the Double Diving Bell, slated to open shortly at Astroland. Attraction consists of two bathysphere type diving bells which drop 30 feet into a pool of water resembling the bottom of the sea. Each bell, eight feet in diameter, carries 15 passengers.

The Coney Island Aquarium, under the superb direction of Aquarist Christopher W. Coates, shifted from a Wednesday-through-Sunday schedule to a seven-day basis starting Easter Sunday. It is a foregone conclusion that this brilliant and fantastic collection of fish and sea mammals will be a magnet attracting many visiting the World's Fair. Latest arrivals to join such stellar acts as the electric eel and "Olaf, the Walrus," are six white wooly "baa-ing" harp seals from Newfoundland.

Most of Coney's attractions, notably the rides, operate on a Sunday-only sked, from Palm Sunday to Decoration Day, at which time they change to a seven-day operation. During Easter Week the rides were in full swing every day.

The smoothly-managed Steeplechase Park opens its gates on a Sunday-only basis May 2. Starting Decoration Day, the public is admitted from Tuesday through Sunday. As for the Parachute Jump, the Tilyou attraction on the boardwalk, it opened for Sundays on Easter Sunday and goes on a seven-day-a-week basis starting Decoration Day.

Those hellbent on experiencing more titillating sensations—watching, for example, female midriff muscle-movers and fan manipulators in the purlieu of Surf Avenue—are doomed to disappointment. The gendarmerie have let it be known that they will crack down on any dubious diversions featuring the less decorous belly terpers.

Like the guardians of morals and manners at the high-falutin' World's Fair, Coney's keepers of the peace won't tolerate latterday, accelerated versions of the hootchy-kootchy. Nor will the coppers permit any cozenage and chicanery to be practiced on the perspiring proletariat at the games, rides and comestible stands.

Coney, in the final analysis, is a powerful suction pump sucking in the less affluent of the metropolis and offering them, in addition to the popular-priced rides and games, two of the choicest free acts on the broad strang, namely, the sand and the sea.

Ford-GM

Continued from page 55

scions took the car out on a spin and left in a parking lot. There is also a showing of oldtime Fords and models of cities around the world. The commentary is in four languages and selection can be made via pushbuttons.

The display was viewed Sunday (12) in an atmosphere which resembled picnic grounds. With the cooperation of pressagent Bill Doll, they evolved a wonderful scheme to clear the buildings. At 4:30 p.m. it was announced that visitors could view a rehearsal of the Dick Button-Paul Feiga ice show in the New York City Building. It was a rehearsal, in an unfinished auditorium sans sets, costumes or orchestra. Sequences were gone over and over, and pretty soon the viewers felt that they shouldn't have left the comfortable atmosphere, the viands, drinks and the polished architecture of Welton Beckett Associates who designed the Ford Wonder Rotunda with its 290,000 sq. ft. of floorspace. Jose.

Futurama

Continued from page 55

will be one of the great smasheroos of the Flushing exhib.

Just how far away GM's conception of the city of the future will be may be seen by the fact that the 1939-40 show projected cloverleaf intersections, major highways running through the heart of the city unimpeded by urban traffic problems, the fusion of urban and suburban living into a huge megalopolis, separation of commercial from residential areas, and the use of highways and motor cars to knit the nation together in a more cohesive manner. Pretty good Nostradamusing.

The underseas sequence, shows few highway problems and passenger subs will ply the undersea lanes. There will be considerable industry since it'll be an area which in the future may supply most of the world's food and mineral supply. Living and vacation quarters will be set up and individual vehicles especially suited for watery travel are in use. (A major trouble could be the future version of scuba equipment—a guy may not be able to tell whether a girl is worth following or not.)

The Futurama has a capacity of 70,000 during a 12-hour day. A passenger snakes along on a track 1,850 ft. long and a slow pace of about a mile and a quarter. But during the 15 minutes riding time, a viewer is transported a quarter century into the future.

B-6 Los Angeles Herald-Examiner H★ Saturday, April 4, 1964

Compared to Caruso

Stuarti's Debut— A Smash at Grove

By WALTER WINCHELL

There's a New Boy In Town, Girls!

His name is Enzo Stuarti. A handsome bloke who arrived from Italy in 1945 and was schooled in New Jersey. He sings songs. Like a boid.

He made his West Coast debut last night at the Hotel Ambassador's Cocoanut Grove before Mr. and Mrs. Los Angeles and their two daughters Beverly Hills and Holly Wood plus a New Yorker or two.

The jam-packed Grove almost smothered him with deafening a p p l a u s e, "Bravos," e a r-p i e r c i n g whistling and love.

Edw. G. R o b i n s o n, Groucho Marx, Glenn Ford, Jimmy McHugh, Patti Page, Mrs. J. Barrymore Jr. (Cara Williams), Michael Wilding, Laurence Harvey, George Hamilton, Barbara Rush, Liz Minelli, Gracie Allen and Academy Award Winner composer S a m u e l Cahn, who were introduced by Rowan & Martin (they followed Mr. Stuarti's exciting repertoire of songs) led the hollering and clapping.

The best tenor since Mario Lanza and Mr. Caruso of the long ago. His version of Caruso's famed aria "Poggleeotch" is his "Getaway" number and last night's Grove population sighed when he left the stage.

Enzo to Bed. Dotza Myy Boy!!!

COBINA WRIGHT
. . . A Voice of Resonance, Beauty and Power . . .

LOUELLA O. PARSONS
. . . Sensational ENZO STUARTI Sings Up A Storm . . .

COCOANUT GROVE

ENZO STUARTI A HIT

. . . MAGNIFIQUE . . .
—Citizen News

THE Hollywood REPORTER

. . Earned deafening applause at end of each number and unrestrained shouts of approval.
—HANK GRANT

DAILY VARIETY DAILY

. ENZO STUARTI throws away more high notes with ease than any tenor on the nitery beat . . .
—ARMY ARCHERD

GAC

WINTER/KAFAFIAN
Public Relations

PAGE-RAEL ASSOCIATES

JUBILEE RECORDS

BERNARD DELFONT
ORGANISATION
LONDON

THEATRES

PRINCE OF WALES
THEATRE, PICCADILLY, W.
BERNARD DELFONT
and
STEWART CRUIKSHANK
present
MAX BYGRAVES
IN A NEW MUSICAL
"ROUND ABOUT PICCADILLY"
Director: DICK HURRAN

TALK OF THE TOWN
HIPPODROME CORNER, W.
WORLD'S GREATEST THEATRE RESTAURANT
BERNARD DELFONT
presents
ROBERT NESBITT'S
TEN O'CLOCK REVUE
"ROMAN HOLIDAY"
and at 11:30 P.M.
MARY KAYE TRIO

SAVILLE
THEATRE, W.
BERNARD DELFONT & TOM ARNOLD
present
HARRY SECOMBE
in
"PICKWICK"
Director: Peter Coe

PHOENIX
THEATRE, W.
BERNARD DELFONT & FREDERICK GRANVILLE present
CALIGULA
By ALBERT CAMUS
Director: Peter Coe

LONDON PALLADIUM
LESLIE A. MACDONNELL & BERNARD DELFONT
present
INTERNATIONAL VARIETY
with
LENA HORNE

U.S.A. TOUR
DAVID MERRICK
in association with
BERNARD DELFONT
present
"STOP THE WORLD—I WANT TO GET OFF" also World Touring Co.'s

AUSTRALIA
TIVOLI, MELBOURNE
The Tivoli Circuit Australia Pty Ltd.
and
BERNARD DELFONT
present
"STOP THE WORLD—I WANT TO GET OFF"

TELEVISION

MORECAMBE & WISE SERIES
CHARLIE DRAKE SERIES
TONY HANCOCK SERIES

BERNARD DELFONT
ORGANISATION
LONDON

Really 'Screaming' Now

Honolulu, April 14.

Singer known as "Screaming Jay" Hawkins was hospitalized with a stab wound, reportedly received in the Waikiki apartment of a 20-year-old girl friend.

Girl allegedly stabbed Jalacy J. Hawkins, 32, nitery entertainer, during an argument.

WELK SOLID $203,136 IN SPRING 1-NITER TOUR

Hollywood, April 14.

Lawrence Welk troupe returned Sunday (12) from its annual one-nighter Spring tour. The seven-city trek through seven states wond up with a New Orleans stand Saturday (11) that grossed $29,125.

Previous takes were Louisville, $28,901; Dallas, $29,660; Greensboro, N.C., $34,000; Tulsa, $32,400, and Charleston, W. Va., $35,050. Only loss incurred by promoter Bill Daly on tour was a $14,000 gross in Albuquerque, N.M. Welk entourage was guaranteed $20,000 per night.

Meanwhile, Welk show is booked to play Chicago Stadium Sept. 22 at 50th anni party of Employes' Organization of Illinois Bell Telephone. Troupe will get a flat $25,000 for that.

Ice Show Review

Ice Capades

Kansas City, April 14.

Ice extravaganza in two acts produced by John H. Harris; costumes, Billy Livingston; conductor-composer, James N. Peterson; production coordinators, Rosemarie Stewart, Robert Dench, Donna Atwood; lighting, James Moser. Cast: Otto & Maria Jelinek, Cathy Machado, Doug Austin, Romayne & Steele, Brigitte, Alan Konrad, Hans Leiter, Jan Tors, Doris Winter, Three Bruises, Hugh Forgie, Labrecque & Bussey, Spanky the Chimp & Dave Pitts; Line, 48 girls, 30 boys. At Municipal Auditorium, Kansas City, Mo., April 6-12; $4 top.

After 24 years around it would seem that "Ice Capades" would have worn itself thin, but the exact opposite is true this trip. The show is glamorous and eye-filling, there is refreshing new talent and the boxoffice plays a merry tune.

Judging by the take, upwards of $210,000 for 10 shows, this is the all-time champ, probably doing more than $85,000 better than the next best year—the one before last. Possibly generally better economic conditions and favorable weather are big plusses in this astounding record here. But hard work in promotion, advertising and a good show are always good boxoffice medicine.

The usual array of gorgeous costumes, adept staging, skillful skating and corny clowning are all important ingredients in this show. And the talent roster is a department in which "Ice Capades" never had a shortage. This time around it has an unusually good pair in the Jelinek siblings, Otto and Maria, billed as the world champions, and spotted deep in the first act they impress strongly with skillful acrobatics.

Other cast members are old faves here, from the smooth adagio work of Romayne & Steele, to the whizzing whirls of Doug Austin and Alan Konrad, and gal skaters Cathy Machado, Brigitte and Doris Winter.

Comedy is represented by Hans Leiter in a ridiculous interpretation of Cleopatra; Hugh Forgie and his never-tiring badminton antics, the Three Bruises. Most novel turn is Spanky, the skating champ chimp, and his handler, Dave Pitts. Other novel bits are contributed by Jan Tors as a duo of dancing dolls, and by quartet of king-sized kangaroos skating about on their huge tails.

Opening night attendance was up, group sales were especially good, and the entire engagement pleasing to customer and producer alike. Quin.

Fair Perks Cafes

Continued from page 1

ond week in a row, Miss London has gone into percentage figures.

The Latin Quarter and the Copacabana also have perked and Basin St. East has moved up nicely. Latter is primarily due to Pat Collins, the hypnotist, who is creating a good-word-of-mouth for the spot.

Lipizzaner Stallions' 20-Horsepower Ballet Trots to SRO 80G in Philly Bow

By JERRY GAGHAN

The horse is a noble animal and a hot ticket as well. To assay the quadruped's true nobility and its unprecedented drawing power a visit is in order to the 20-horsepower ballet that trades under the name of the Spanish Riding School of Vienna. This four-centuries-old institution that became known in America through Walt Disney's "Miracle of the White Stallions," is displaying for the first time in this country the brand of horsemanship that has made its fame unchallenged.

Col. Alois Podhadjsky, the former Austrian hussar, is the regisseur of the peerless man on a mount. With his squad of riders and grooms, he demonstrates the art of horse training known as "haute ecole" (high school), although for the Lipizzan white stallions high school is the equivalent of a Ph.D. degree in any other stable.

The Viennese flavor is re-created with imitation crystal chandeliers dangling from the Arena eaves. Flowers bank the rim of the sawdust covered rink, raised with nine inches of topsoil. A 30-piece symphonic-style orchestra adds to the Danubian ballroom effect with classic dance time (Mozart, Boccherini, von Suppe, Strauss, Chopin, etc.), while the graceful steeds and their impressively costumed riders run through a series of quadrilles, minuets, gallops and marches with beauty and precision.

The fine points are strictly for the aficionados. For those who wouldn't know a courbette-in-hand from a pas-de-trois, the graceful stallions and their accomplishments tend to become repetitious.

But even for the uninitiated it is still something of an experience, thanks to the illuminating and nostalgic narration of bearded Tony Kraber and the obvious enjoyment the animals get out of their workouts. It is one animal act that doesn't seem to have been tormented into its tricks. Considering that the Lipizzans have played one stand, Vienna for 400 years, it's an exotic treat as well.

For the horse fanciers, the show rates somewhere between Mecca and Lourdes. The pony pilgrims piled in by bus and conveyance from over a six-state radius. The Arena just placed one ad and the second requested that no more mail orders be sent in. Some 22,000 seats for the four-night stand, with more than an $80,000 gross, were sold six weeks in advance of the opener.

The visit of the white stallions to America and Canada has to do with the rescue of the animals in Czechoslovakia in 1945 by Gen. George C. Patton's 2d Cavalry. A halftime fuss over this event, known in the books as "Operation Cowboy," was made at the stallions' Arena debut.

The Austrian consul and a military representative from the Embassy made presentations to Col. Charles H. Reed, present CO of the 2d; Sgt. Joseph E. Carpenter, of Englewood, NJ., the first U.S. soldier to reach the horses, and Major Louis T. Holz, a Philadelphian who took part in the mission. Col. Reed discounted the Patton rescue story. "The boys found them by accident," he said. "I think they were really looking for girls."

Lipizzaner Stallions

Philadelphia, April 14.

Columbia Festivals Inc. presentation, through courtesy of Austrian Government, the Spanish Riding School of Vienna, under direction of Col. Alois Podhajsky, in two acts. Production by Col. Podhajsky; musical arrangements, Dr. Lothar Reidinger, conductor; Felix Popper; narrator, Tony Kraber. At the Arena, Philadelphia, April 9, '64; $6 top.

'Bottoms Up' to Vegas

Las Vegas, April 14.

Bill Norvas, entertainment director of The Castaways, has signed "Bottoms Up" for an April 16 preem. The intimate revue has been running at the Dallas Adolphus for four years.

Comedian Red Foxx returned to the Castaways Sun. (12) and will alternate his act nightly with "Bottoms."

RICKI DUNN IS A THIEF!

Dir.: Harry Greben, 203 N. Wabash Av.
DEarborn 2-0996, Chicago, Illinois

BUCK BUCKLEY

QUARTER WIT
Currently Touring West
with
VEGAS VARIETIES REVUE
Direction:
CARLSON ARTISTS CORP.
Birmingham

"THE COMEDIAN"
The Only Real Monthly
PROFESSIONAL GAG SERVICE
THE LATEST — THE GREATEST — THE MOST-UP-TO-DATEST
Now in its 160th Issue, containing stories one-liners, poemettes, song titles, hecklers, audience stuff, monologs, parodies, double gags, bits ideas, Intros, Impressions and Impersonations, political, interruptions. Thoughts of the Day, Humorous Views of the News, Vignettes, etc. (20 Pages)
$25 YR.—SINGLE ISSUES $3
Foreign
$35 YR.—SINGLE ISSUES $4
No C.O.D.'s
BILLY GLASON, 200 W. 54th St.
New York City 10019, CO 5-1316

BILLY GLASON'S FUN-MASTER
PROFESSIONAL COMEDY MATERIAL
For every branch of theatricals
"WE SERVICE THE STARS!"
35 Gag files $15, plus $1 postage
FOREIGN: 35 for $30
• 3 Parody Books, per Bk. ... $10 •
• 5 Blackout Books 1-2-3 Each $25 •
No. 4 for $35—No. 5 for $30
• Minstrel (white face) Budget $25 •
• "How to Master the Ceremonies" •
$3 PER COPY . . NO C.O.D.'s
BILLY GLASON
200 W. 54th St., N.Y.C. 10019 CO 5-1316
(We TEACH M.C'ing and COMEDY)
(Let a real Professional train you)

Quickest Way to HANDSTAND is BALANZA
(Workout for Handbalancers)
Easy to Carry, Practice Anywhere
(AVAILABLE IN THREE SIZES)
Address inquiries to:
P.O. Box 193 9th Street, Brooklyn 15, N. Y.

GAY'S GAGS
Published Monthly. Topical gags. Original one liners. Jokes. Over 300. Sample Copy $2. $12 per Year. Six back issues (latest) $5; 12 back issues (latest) $9; 40 back issues (first) $22.
Send checks to EDDIE GAY
P.O. Box 161, New York, N. Y. 10023

NOW
NICK LUCAS and the TROUBADORS
HARRAH'S Reno
Thru May 6 ACCENT RECORDS

Cave, Vancouver

Vancouver, April 8.

Shelley Berman, Fran Gregory, Dancing Debs (5), Fraser Macpherson Orch (7); $2.75 admission.

Whatever reservations might have existed locally as to Shelley Berman's ability as a cafe comedian are completely dispelled by the sock performance he produces for his Cave debut. Heretofore only in Vancouver for two separate concert appearances in the plush atmosphere of the Queen Elizabeth Theatre, he shows commanding nitery expertise as he works straight standup or prowls the stage with mike in hand for robust repartee with ringsiders.

Only for two or three set pieces per his bestselling LP's does he perch on a stool to utilize his trademarked telephone. Overall, Berman offers a solid 55 minutes of brilliant satire, wickedly sardonic wit and genuine, bellylaugh humor.

His preem night was one of the most heavily attended openers in Cave history, and he didn't let any of his auditors down. Opening with caustic comments on tv commercials, Berman ranges far and wide for topics on which to vent his satirical spleen.

His observations, untinged with malice, retain the average guy touch, the common denominator (albeit in a saloon setting) that so distinguishes his concert stage and recording studio work and is the factor that ensures instant rapport and communication with his audience.

Fran Gregory, in support of headliner, was a promising young vocalist out of Los Angeles before she married Vancouver Sun columnist Jack Wasserman and assumed semi-retired status as a West Vancouver homemaker and mother. Her professional appearances in the past few years have been necessarily limited. But when she does take an engagement she shows she still has the pro touch and personable blond looks to light up any room.

In this outing Miss Gregory is elegantly gowned by Cy Cook and takes full advantage of excellent backing by the Fraser Macpherson house orch and some top arrangements by Pat Trudell to create a stir of vocal excitement.

Miss Gregory's 20-minute turn takes in some eight songs, including "Let There Be Love" and "Let's Do It," among others. Singer throughout has good stage presence, radiates personality and deservedly rates hearty auditor response.

Next: Mickey Rooney with Bobby Van, opening Thursday (16).

Shaw.

Ye Little Club, L.A.

Los Angeles, April 9.

Monte Mansfield, Dave Havilland; two-drink minimum.

In an intimate club like Marshall Edson's YLC, nothing can be deadlier for a performer than to take himself too seriously and let it show. It's just not the proper environment for that type of approach.

A perfect two-way illustration of the pitfalls of pretentiousness occurs in the current offering of Monte Mansfield, whose act is smothered by the artificiality of his style, and Dave Havilland, whose very unaffectedness is his staunchest ally as an entertainer.

Top-billed Mansfield plays the smooth, debonair troubadour in his set of eight songs. He's fond of strolling through the audience and making goo-goo eyes at the patrons as he croons away. This device has some merit in larger rooms in that it brings a faraway performer closer to his audience. But in the cozy YLC an entertainer is close enough on the stage.

As for Mansfield's vocalizing, he seemed jittery and uncertain opening night. Several times he forgot his lyrics and on many occasions notes emerged flat. He might brush up on the words and music and deemphasize the staging imagery for a better act.

Havilland is an engaging lad from Down Under who strums a guitar and reels off a batch of popular folk tunes, mostly of Australian vintage. Unlike many of the new crop of folksingers, he comes to entertain an audience, not badger it with ethnic affectedness. His selections include "Tie Me Kangaroo Down," "Marianne," "Waltzing Matilda," a harmlessly risque item evidently called "Ooo, Ah, Hah-Cha-Cha" and something labelled "Cuckoo-barra" which features bird calls. Havilland does a great bird.

For Mansfield's set, no fewer than five musicians crowd onto the YLC stage, which may be one reason Mansfield wanders into the throng so often. The musicians who support him skillfully are saxist Dave Harris, guitarist Gil Hintz, bassist Jack Smalley, pianist Ronnie Phillips and drummer Roy Roten.

Show's in for 10 days. Tube.

Hotel Roosevelt, N. O.

New Orleans, April 10.

Edgar Bergen, Frances Bergen, Tina Robin, Leon Kelner Orch; $2.50 weeknight minimum; $4 Sats.

Edgar Bergen, making his first appearance here in a number of years, found a warm welcome at Seymour Weiss' plush Blue Room when he trotted Charlie McCarthy, Podine Puffington, Effie Klinker, Mortimer Snerd, et al., out of their trunks opening night Thursday (9).

Bergen's showmanship and choice of smart comedy material for his family of dummy personalities make his act still seem fresh after his long absence. He also has excellent rapport with the more convivial diners, working them into the show with sharp and timely ad libs.

Also working in the act is the ventriloquist's wife, Frances. A honey blond, she has some good laugh lines and sings one song to nice response.

Bouncy, little Tina Robin trees off the new layout with a songalog of newies and oldies arranged by her spouse, Sam Klinger. Miss Robin mimics Kay Starr belting out "The Wheel of Fortune"; Roberta Sherwood, in her husky voice with "Up a Lazy River"; Teresa Brewer with her booming "Put Another Nickle In" and others. However, she has a talent all her own and doesn't need to imitate other warblers. She closes to heavy palm-pounding.

Maestro Leon Kelner and his musical crew give the show top-drawer backing and mix evergreens, Latinos and other tunes to keep the tables empty during the knee-action sessions.

Show runs until April 22.

Liuz.

Liborio, N.Y.

Celia Cruz & Co. (6) in "Latin Fire Revue" with Candido, Walfredo de Los Reyes Orch, Pancho Cardenas Orch; $6 minimum.

Perez Blanco has made the Liborio a haven for the expatriate Latin American performers who normally found Cuba a profitable stop. Latest Cuban fave to hit this spot is Celia Cruz, a vet entertainer for the Habaneros, who has brought in a revue to give her suitable production.

The layout, as presently constituted, is reminiscent of the shows at the well-remembered Tropicana on the outskirts of Havana. It's not as big nor as lavish as those of the Cuban large-seater, but the same flavor is evident.

Miss Cruz is one of the more volatile Latin singers. The cream-colored senorita gives a lively recital in both Spanish and English. Her performance is flavorful and at times torrid! In addition, she does copious terp interludes to point up her tunes. Each one of her endeavors is geared to those who remember her work in the Latin American countries.

Although this is her first U.S. appearance in many years, Miss Cruz has maintained her audience through recordings disked mainly in South America. She's one of the topsellers in the Latin sections of town. Much of her repertoire is known to her compatriots as is evidenced by applause accorded her when tunes are recognized.

Miss Cruz's English tunes frequently sound phonetic. They're not her strongpoints, but are delivered, presumably, as a concession to the gringo trade, which is also part of the Liborio scene. However, all her numbers are excellently received.

The surrounding production is topped by holdover performer Candido who does his own bongo turn and provides background accompaniment for Miss Cruz. There are four elegantly costumed and excitingly figured girls along with a pair of lads who provide good surrounding production in Cuban style.

The Walfredo de Los Reyes and Pancho Cardenas musicrews provide the backing and dansapation.

Love.

Latin Quarter, N. Y.

"Diamond Fair," with The Kaye Sisters (3), Jack La Cayne & Gel Somina, Marvyn Roy, Rolly & Arry, Ana Raines, Hill Roberts, Jeanne Michelle; Diamond Fair Show Girls (12), L.Q. Showcase Dancers (14); Diamond Escorts (4); Jo Lombardi Orch; $7.50 minimum.

The U.S. debut of the Kaye Sisters, a trio of English canaries, proves a successful experiment for the L.Q.'s E. M. Loew and Ed Risman. The well-filled bundles from Britain, after a slightly stiffish start, warmed up to their receptive listeners in a matter of minutes.

Although they've worked many spots in Britain and on the Continent, this date is the sisters' first American effort. The combination of professionalism acquired from previous exposure and a refreshing naivete that is evident throughout their energetic efforts is as welcome in an act as it is rare.

Smartly gowned for their opening set in pink sheaths, they switch into form-fitting black suits and bowlers for an English medley. It is here that they start coming across with strength. For a closer they change again (with no loss of time to bright blue flapper frocks for a fast windup of the 1920s and the music of that period.

Numbers vary from the opening rocky rhythms (not their best with the unnatural stress put on their voices) through music hall oldies and tunes from the Charleston era. Latter group even works in "Barney Google." Best single number is a beautifully harmonized "Underneath the Arches." Their dancing is equally good.

Also new on the bill is Marvyn Roy, "Mr. Electric," whose sleight of hand effects are illuminating. With a fast-tempoed routine which never allows viewers to relax enough to investigate his maneuvers, he builds effects steadily to his sock closing bit of passing strings of lit bulbs from his mouth.

Holdover acts are La Cayne & Somina, knockabout dancers whose slick terpsichore is well received, and Rolly & Arry, corpulent comics who get more "action" out of their prominent tummies than a belly dancer.

The production numbers continue, the opening bit proving that diamonds are a girl's best costume, if worn in the right places. Jo Lombardi's musical aggregation contribs powerful support for a talent-loaded show.

Robe.

Villa Frascati, L. A.

Los Angeles, April 7.

Calvin Jackson, Al McKibbon; no cover, no minimum.

With Calvin Jackson, the Villa Frascati is in good hands for the next four weeks. Unlike that of the ordinary keyboard stylist who toils in the restaurant-cocktail lounge sphere, Jackson's music is rich and inventive and not to be relegated to mere atmospheric background.

With the stalwart and expressive support of bassist Al McKibbon, Jackson, in a typical set, might wend his way through an astonishing variety of selections ranging all the way from Duke Ellington's "Satin Doll" to Chopin's "Raindrop" prelude in a D-flat major. His work is a mixture of jazz and classically-oriented stylings.

Jackson's remarkably fertile musical imagination brings genuine freshness and distinction to such overworked standards as "What's New?" and "Dancing On The Ceiling." On the former, his lengthy classical statement at the outset is followed by a delightful jazz passage in which the melody is sustained by his left hand while the right bats out a contrapuntal succession of familiar refrains.

Tube.

Desert Inn, Las Vegas

Las Vegas, April 7.

Pinky Lee Revue, Davis & Reese; produced by Frank Sennes; no cover or minimum.

The Desert Inn's policy of names in the lounge is paying off with this doubleheader. Pinky Lee's revue, alternating with Pepper Davis & Tony Reese, packed the room and had standees for first week.

Lee's show is a romp which you would expect to find in a main showroom—it's good, spicy, funny, adult fare. Teodoro Morca, a brilliant flamenco artist, is aboard with his dancing; Donnie Brooks is a handsome young singer with great potential; Andre Raymond does a novelty doll dance which probably would be more effective if the time were cut in half; Tanya Lemani is a luscious bellydancer with exciting torso tosses; and Sue Lyman is a pleasant song-seller.

Lee's 21-year-old daughter Patti joins him in some delightful song and dance bits, nearly stealing the show from the star. She's a shapely looker with plenty of talent.

Lee, backed by the Musical Wades (5), dominates the festivities, clicking big with his music (vibes), blackout sketches, and his w.k. brand of comedy peaked by a very funny striptease.

Davis & Reese are in fine form for this outing; the oafish Davis gets solid yocks with his outlandish dialog and wonderfully funny face. The handsome Reese is an ideal partner, is effective with his songs and straightman role. Embellishing act is the lovely chirp Carol Lee and The Cousins (4) with a high light "West Side Story" takeoff.

This bill in for eight weeks.

Duke.

Village Gate, N. Y.

Stratis Ensemble (5), Sultana, Stephanie, George Morel, Nina Simone & Quartet; $3 admission.

Art D'Lugoff, Village Gate impresario, veers to the Oriental atmosphere with this current layout. And it plays and entertains much better than it looks on paper. For contrast, he has singer Nina Simone and her four-piece instrumental combo. This Negro group goes in for straight jazz licks and a touch of Latinesque.

The Oriental flavor is built up by the Stratis Near-East Ensemble, which features the tunes of that area. George Stratis, a Greek, leads the combo with his sharp clarinet. In the crew are Norman Gold, a Jewish lad from Brooklyn, who handles the vibes and piano; Joe Marrapodi, Greek-Italian, percussionist; Louis Mavrogian, a Syrian, who plays bass viol; and Nick Patides, Grecian youth, who manipulates the bazoukee, a long-necked mandolin.

Outfit builds an excellent Oriental atmosphere, interrupted by the singing of Stephanie. It is a perfect setting for the finale, the gyrations of Sultana, belly dancer.

Stephanie, a dark-haired femme, impresses with her tunes which include "Never On Sunday," among others. A bellydancer is a bellydancer, but Sultana has touches of the venerable Oriental movement, and scored lustily even though perhaps too heavily clothed.

The Stratis combo set here for four weeks. Besides their instrumental work, members of the outfit also contrib a couple of songs.

Miss Simone is effective for the most part but seems to have erred by including several numbers that call for very quiet vocalizing—difficult to put over in this room. She is as excellent with her piano-playing as her warbling. Her foursome backs her handsomely, with Montego Joe scoring with his conga playing. Miss Simone & Co. are due back here in mid-June.

George Morel, Argentine guitarist, is a return booking at the Gate. His "Granada" and "Summer Time" are standouts, and he's excellent on all his instrumentations.

Wear.

Saddle & Sirloin, Tucson

Tucson, April 8.

Nelson Eddy & Gale Sherwood, Bud Osborn Orch (7), directed by Ted Paxson; $1.50 cover.

No matter how often you catch them, Nelson Eddy & Gale Sherwood remain a refreshing act. And it's a tribute to them that they continue to draw constant praise despite the headaches they must have with local musicians. As here, where Eddy's right-hand man for 37 years, Ted Paxson, fronted six other pieces with sheer bravery.

Also refreshing is the fact that this is an established act that doesn't explain its Tucson stop with the slough-off: "Well, we needed a place to break in our act for Vegas."

Adhering to their tried-and-true format, Eddy opens as a single with "Great Day" and "September Song" before bringing on the attractive and talented Miss Sherwood. He straights for her clowning as they romp through the duets.

Eddy also does another solo stint to give his partner a change into her shortie outfit, this time coming on as a cigaret girl. More patter and songs and the 40-minute stint is wrapped up. Auditors beg for more but the pair wisely get off to keep all appetites whetted.

Trump.

Strollers, N. Y.

"The Establishment," with John Bird, Jeremy Geidt, Eleanor Bron, David Battley, Carole Simpson; staged by Stephan Vinaver; writers, John Bird, Peter Cook; music, Marian McPartland Trio; $4.50 top.

Members of "The Establishment" company periodically return to England, look over the situation in the mother country, then report back to the colonists in what has come to be a highly amusing manner. The current show "The Muffled Report," is probably one of the most amusing safe shows they've done in the U. S. Not only is the material clever and brittle, but they seem to have caught on to American show biz methods.

The gifted company current at John Krimsky's boite on the site of the old El Morocco has considerably more punch than some of its previous efforts. For the group has learned to eliminate much of the unnecessary gab, spiel more on germane matters and they're keeping it down, albeit still giving their subject matter sufficient buildup and background.

The bulk of the membership in the current troupe has had considerable experience locally. The company, as presently constituted, works together excellently and seems to be able to communicate with each other more readily. What's more, a central theme gives the players a better peg on which to operate and the filmed sequences are generally directly related to the subject at hand.

In "The Muffled Report" the general premise is to have the Conservative Party fortified with a ready report to whitewash the administration should any scandal of the Profumo-Christine Keeler-Mandy Rice-Davies variety plague the party at a future date.

Jeremy Geidt is a bumbling British jurist while John Bird is the party genius who suggests the report. They provide the thin plot elements. However, the various sketches with Eleanor Bron and David Battley give a lot of substance to the story line. The skits generally come off, most are in good taste, and all are a lot of fun.

There are times when Miss Bron has to double into parts obviously conceived for a male player, of which there is an apparent insufficiency in this grouping. It's a bit difficult to picture her as a lad, but she manages to contribute laughs even in this situation. The songs again are by Carole Simpson who infuses her interludes with some heady listening.

It's one of the more clever entertainments in the off-Broadway genre.

For added measure, the Marian McPartland Trio provides the entr'actes and also showbacking where needed. Miss McPartland is a gifted ivoryist and she has competent help to aid her in making some thought provoking variations on selected themes.

Jose.

Statler-Hilton, Dallas

Dallas, April 10.

George Jessel, Don Ragon Orch (9); $2.50-$3 cover.

George Jessel, who first played a Majestic Theatre vaude date here 53 years ago, made an impressive local nitery bow Thursday (9) before the largest Empire Room opening night crowd in recent months.

He's still highly voluble, a solid entertainer whose offerings range from the risible to the sentimental. He maintains a big score throughout the yarn spinning and vocal efforts. It's his last time on the boards, as he assumes an Israeli diplomatic post in September.

Jessel touches on show biz history tastefully, many of his tales in religious vein, and rates immediate rapport with his fans. In a nudist colony routine, the laughs build and he kids himself: "I looked at one two years ago and it cost me $250,000; that's why I'm working this saloon tonight!"

Nostalgia sets in with bits about Al Jolson and Eddie Cantor, and he mimes them with vocals of "California, Here I Come," "April Showers" and "If You Knew Susie" for nice returns. After a 40-minute score, Jessel begs off with his trademarked poem, "Old Friends."

Don Ragon's house band gives capable showbacking for the song session, and lures the leather pushers with top dansapation.

Jessel plays two weeks, with Molly Bee due April 24.

Bark.

CURRENT BILLS

WEEK OF APRIL 15

NEW YORK CITY

MUSIC HALL — Rockettes, Corps de Ballet, Raymond Paige Symphony Orc.

AUSTRALIA

MELBOURNE (Tivoli)—Jackie Warner, Evelyn Page, Katherine & Karen Kessey, Yvonne Barrett, Joan Stuart, Angela O'Toole, Barbara Young, Lesley Secombe, Janet Dearness, Joan Morrow, Sue Menlove.

SYDNEY (Tivoli)—Penny Nicholls, Bob Andrews, The D'Angolys, Two Pirates, Balcombes, Eddie Mendoza, Eric Whitley, Jeff Hudson, Harry Currie, Keith Leggett, Jackie Griffiths, Maureen Wilson, Wendy Faulkener.

BRITAIN

BLACKPOOL TOWER CIRCUS—Charlie Cairoli and Company, The Flying Marilees, Lilian Daniels and Her Polar Bears, Konyot's Chimpanzee Rodeo, The 4 Rodriguez, Circus Schumann's 12 Liberty Horses presented by Billy Baker, The Ascots, Kimi Yokoi, See-Hee Troupe, Bartschelly, Evelyn Hans and Her Poodles, Rudi Llata, Desmond and Marks, Fuzzy-Ball Kaye and Tiny Tommy Gallaher, Our Sammy, Little Jimmy and the Circusettes.

COVENTRY—Dickie Henderson, Jimmy Clitheroe, Pinky and Perky, Jimmy Tarbuck, Susan Lane, Four Gale Boys, Los Flamencos, Ugo Garrido, Billy Winsor, Alexandra Dane, Malcom Goddard Dancers, Six In Harmony.

LONDON PALLADIUM—Lena Horne, The Bachelors, Des O'Connor, The Monarchs, Arthur Worsley, The Bal Caron Trio, The Del Fey Brothers, Bill Finch.

MANCHESTER PALACE — The Ballet Rambert.

VICTORIA PALACE — The George Mitchell Minstrels, John Boulter, Tony Mercer and Dai Francis, Leslie Crowther, Margo Henderson, George Chisholm & The Jazzers, Schaller Brothers, The T. V. Toppers, Pat Ellis.

SCOTLAND

GLASGOW ALHAMBRA—Kenneth McKellar, Rikki Fulton, Terry Hall, Paul & Peta Page Puppets, etc.

KING'S—"Old-Tyme Music-Hall," with Dave Willis, Jimmy Plant, Bond Rowell, Jean Kennedy, 'Master' Joe Petersen, Davies & Gray, Nat Gonella, Trevor Moreton, 2 Rexanos.

GLASGOW KING'S—Dave Willis, Jean Kennedy, Bond Rowell, Nat Gonella, Ellis Jackson, Trevor Moreton, Davies & Gray, Master Jo Petersen, Two Rexanos, Jimmy Plant.

GLASGOW PAVILION — Johnny Victory, Bob & Jack Young, John Mulvaney, Eileen Keegan, Three Bells, Moxon Girls.

EDINBURGH PALLADIUM — Lex McLean, The Hi-Fi's, The Melody Makers, Margo Bentley, Carr & Vonnie, Moxon Girls.

AYR GAIETY — Jack Milroy, Glen Michael, Mal Hollander & Esther Hart, Three Scott Boys, Eve Robbins, Roddy McNeil, Pamela Penfold, Billy Cameron, Colin Beach, Springtime Dancers.

GLASGOW METROPOLE—Gracie Clark & Colin Murray, Joe Gordon Folk Four, Alexander Brothers, Dennis Clancy, Ivy Carey, Alan Beale, Moxon Girls.

NEWCASTLE - ON - TYNE THEATRE ROYAL—"An Evening of Old Time Music Hall," Morris & Cowley, Dave Willis, Sindy Powell, Jill Summers, Marie Lloyd, Geddes Bros., Joan Hurley, Davies & Gray, Nat Gonella, Jimmy Gay.

Cabaret Bills

NEW YORK CITY

APARTMENT — Melodye Condos, Charles De Forest.

BASIN ST. EAST—Pat Collins, Joe & Eddie.

BITTER END—Joan Tolliver, Jim, Jake & Joan.

BON SOIR—Felicia Sanders, Three Flames.

BLUE ANGEL — Godfrey Cambridge, Kathy Woodruff, Wayne Storm.

CAFE AU GO GO — Lenny Bruce, Hendra & Ullett, Shawn Phillips.

CHARDAS—Bela Babai Orc., Elemar Horvath, Tibor Rakossy, Dick Marta, Janos Hozzsu, Kato Fenyas.

CHATEAU MADRID—Los Chavales de Espana Emilio Reyes Orc., Carbia Orc.

COPACABANA—Los Cincos Latinos, Jan Murray, Pat Woodell, Eddie Albert, Joseph Mele Orc.

CRYSTAL ROOM — Joe Mooney

EMBERS—Joey Bushkin, Lenore Paxton.

GRINZING — Kalman Banyak, Henry Butz.

HAWAIIAN ROOM—Teiko Yannagi, Keolu Beamer, Auletta Orc.

FIVE SPOT—Sonny Rollins & Co.

HOTEL ASTOR—Eddie Lane Orc.

HOTEL AMERICANA—Julie London, Lee Evans Orc.

HOTEL NEW YORKER—Sylvia Barry, Milt Saunders Orc.

HOTEL PARK SHERATON — Irving Fields 3.

HOTEL PLAZA—Kessler Twins, Emil Coleman Orc., Mark Monte Orc Plaza-9 Room: Julius Monk, Gerry Matthews, Jamie Ross, Nagle Jackson, Ruth Buzzi, Barbara Cason, Delphi Harrington, Richard Blair, Jan Templeton, Wm. Ray, Robert Colston

HOTEL ST. REGIS—Peter Duchin Orc, Nancy Manning, Quintero Orc, Walter Kay, Jani Sarkozi.

HOTEL SAVOY-HILTON—Arturo Arturos Orc

HOTEL SHERRY-NETHERLAND — Juli Christman.

HOTEL WALDORF-ASTORIA — Edie Adams, Emery Davis Orc., Horace Diaz Orc.

INTERNATIONAL—"Vive Les Girls," Mike Durso Orc

LATIN QUARTER—Kaye Sisters, Rolly & Arry, Jack Le Cayen, Marion Conrad, Jeanne Michelle, Jo Lombardo Orc., Sammy Bidner Orc.

LIBORIO—Celia Cruz, Pancho Cardenas Orc., Candido.

LIVING ROOM—Kathy Keegan, Casey Anderson, Bob Manning, Bob Ferro Orc.

NO. 1 FIFTH AVENUE—Hankinson & De Maio, Stan Freeman, Teresa Celli.

RAT FINK ROOM — Jackie Kannon, Johnny Johnston, Tobi Townes.

RED GARTER—G-String Strugglers.

RED ONION—Banjokers.

SAHBRA—"Hora Hootenany" Menasha Bakrat Orc., Gavri Ders., Margolit Ankory, Basheva Byron & Ezra Zahavi, Leo Fuld.

SNIFFEN COURT INN—Renee Taylor, Joe Randi, Pepi Moreale 3.

SQUARE EAST—"Open Season at Second City," Barbara Harris, Severn Darden, Bob Dishy, Dick Schall, Avery Schreiber, Ben Keller.

TEEN HAVEN—Madisons, 8 Fashions, Soul Bros.

THE MOST—Morgana King & Kingsmen.

TOWN & COUNTRY — Milton Berle Show, Amin Brothers, Leonard Sues, Lou Wills Jr., Royal Quartet, Ned Harvey's Orc., Rod Rodriguez Rhythms.

UPSTAIRS & DOWNSTAIRS—"Twice Over Nightly," Jane Alexander, MacIntyre Dixon, Paul Dooley, Richard Libertini, Mary Louise Wilson. "In This Corner" Bill Brown, Virgil Curry, Marian Mercer, Carol Morley.

VIENNESE LANTERN—Maria Carillo, Lillian Cavell, Ernest Schoen Orc.

VILLAGE GATE—Nina Simone, Stratus Near East Ensemble.

VILLAGE BARN—Jess Long, Jeanie Allen, Gene Allen, Barn Stompers, Lou Harold Orc.

VILLAGE VANGUARD—Bill Evans.

CHICAGO

THE BELFRY—"Noises In The Theatre," June Ericson, Haskell Gordon, Ann Hilton, Ross Lashbrook, Bert Vallencourt.

BLUE ANGEL—"Calypso Nights" Lord Carlton, Sami Coe & Anita, Georgia Carroll, Lord Montego, Lord Smiley, Al D'Lacy Orc.

CONRAD HILTON — "Ladies First" Lucho Navarro, Wells & Four Fays, Manuel Del Toro, Marie Langenbein, Ernie McClean & Caroline Paul, Boulevar-Dears (5), Boulevar-Dons (5), Jimmy Palmer Orc.

HAPPY MEDIUM—Three Cheers For The Tired Business Man. Downstage Room—Rolf Harris.

HOTEL CONTINENTAL—JoAnn Val, Franz Benteler Orc.

DEL PRADO HOTEL—"Hits of Broadway" revue.

DRAKE HOTEL—Joe E. Lewis, Jimmy Blade Orc.

EDGEWATER BEACH — "Swing Into Spring" Bob Newkirk, Claire Perreau Orc.

LE BISTRO—Pat Galleo & The Highlads, Connie Milano Trio.

LONDON HOUSE—Billy Maxted's Manhattan Jazz Band.

MISTER KELLY'S — Shecky Greene, Judy Curtis, John Frigo Trio, Marty Rubenstein Trio.

OLD TOWN NORTH—Richard & Jim.

PALMER HOUSE—Jane Russell, Connie Haines & Beryl Davis, Ben Arden Orc.

PLAYBOY—Bobby Byron, Berle Williams, Nick Noble, Toy Petty, Judie Thor-Danielle Dravor.

SECOND CITY—"New York City Is Missing," John Brent, Jack Burns, Ann Elder, Sally Hart, Gene Kadish, Omar Shapli, David Steinberg, Bill Mathieu

SHERATON BLACKSTONE—Toni Carroll, Frank York Orc.

LOS ANGELES

COCOANUT GROVE—Rowan & Martin, Enzo Stuarti.

CRESCENDO—Henny Youngman, Mary Ford, Frank Fanelli.

DINO'S—Betsy Duncan, Jack Elton, Steve LaFever.

ICE HOUSE—Shaggy Gorillas, Stewart Clay, Pat & Victoria.

INTERLUDE—Tani Jones.

MELODY ROOM—Jack Costanzo Quartet, Jacqueline Fontaine.

SLATE BROS.—Simmy Bon.

STATLER HOTEL—George Liberace

TOWN HOUSE—Red Nichols & Five Pennies

TROUBADOR—Hoyt Axton, Freddie Neile.

YE LITTLE CLUB—Monte Mansfield.

LAS VEGAS

CASTAWAYS—"Holiday In The Orient," Peggy Lord, Patti Kim, Bobby Stevenson Orc.

DESERT INN — Milton Berle Show, Donn Arden Dancers, Carlton Hayes Orc. Lounge: Pinky Lee, Davis & Reese, Mafalda Trio, Lilting Strings.

DUNES—Frederic Apcar's "Casino de Paris," starring Line Renaud. Lounge: "Vive Les Girls!" Gwen Harmon. Sultan's Table: Jose Mario, Arturo Romero Strings (11).

FLAMINGO—Mitzi Gaynor, Russ Black Orc. Lounge: Della Reese, Nita Crul, Bob Sims.

FREMONT—Cables, Fables, Paul Dino.

GOLDEN NUGGET—Buck Owens, Billy Gray, Ronnie Pearson, Judy Kay.

HACIENDA—"Les Poupees de Paris," Ink Spots, Johnny Olenn, Kay Houston.

MINT—"Hong Kong Scandals," Pat Moreno's Artists and Models.

NEVADA—Peter Anthony, Royal Tahitians.

NEW FRONTIER—Bobby Wick and Ray Brand in "Fantasy on Ice," Clara Ward Singers, Dick Rice Orc.

RIVIERA—Kay Starr, Louis Armstrong, Jack Cathcart Orc. Lounge: Johnny Desmond, Jack Ross, Betty Ayres' Sparkling Strings, Marty Heim Trio.

SAHARA—Tony Bennett, Moro-Landis Dancers, Louis Basil Orc. Lounge: Louis Prima, Gia Maione, Sam Butera, Characters.

SANDS—Danny Thomas. Lounge: Martin Denny, Johnny Prophet, Vido Musso, Dave Burton, Ernie Stewart.

SHOWBOAT — Jack "Jive" Schafer, Twin Tunes, Johnny Paul, Frankie Yankovic, Leo Wolf.

SILVER SLIPPER—Hank Henry, Sparky Kaye, Lill St. Cyr, Jack Larson, Eddie Innes, Danny Jacobs, Laura Del Mar, George Redman Orc. Lounge: Charlie Teagarden, Funtastics, Beverly Marshall, Skeets Minton.

STARDUST—"Lido de Paris," Eddie O'Neal Orc. Lounge: Don Cornell, DeCastro Sisters, Esquivel, Lobato Dancers, Nelida, Nalani Kele.

THUNDERBIRD—Peter L. Marshall in "Anything Goes," with Eileen Rodgers, Patricia Marand, Irving Benson, Benny Baker, Nat Brandwynne Orc. Lounge: Treniers, Brothers Castro, Micki Lynn.

TROPICANA — "Folies Bergere," Ray Sinatra Orc. Lounge: Perez Prado, Denis & Rogers, Al DePaulis 4, Dubonnet 3.

RENO-TAHOE

GOLDEN—Flapper Follies with Vespia Brothers, Elsa & Waldo, Vega Maddus, Don Staiton, Golden Girls, John Carleton Orc.

HAROLDS — Trini Lopez, Johnny O'Brien, Don Conn Orc.

HARRAH'S (Reno) — DeCastro Sisters, Nick Lucas, Judy Lynn, Joe King & Zaniacs, Red Coty.

HARRAH'S (Tahoe)—Tony Martin, Cyd Charisse, Moro-Landis Dancers, Leighton Noble Orc. Lounge: Billy Eckstine, Jerry Colonna, Top Notchers, Coquettes.

HARVEY'S—Florian Zabach, Curtiss & Tracy, Town Pipers, Jack Bedient, Chessmen Jets, We Four, Orrin Tucker Orc.

HOLIDAY—Jon & Sondra Steele, Esquires, Sparklers, Charles Gould's Satin Strings.

MAPES—Deedy & Bill, One Plus One, Joe Karnes.

NEVADA LODGE (Tahoe)—Sawyer Sis, Max Daffner Trio.

NUGGET (Sparks)—Fred Waring Show, Rudy Cardenas, George Arnold Singers & Dancers, Foster Edwards Orc.

RIVERSIDE—Arthur Walsh, Riverside Varieties, Carlton MacBeth Orc.

MIAMI-MIAMI BEACH

AMERICANA—"Ecstasy on Ice," Bobby Short 3.

CARILLON—"Oui Oui Paree" Lynda Gloria, Arnaut Bros., Steve Danik, Les Stevens, Line (12), Jacques Donnet Orc., Bill Jordan & Lee Coby, Sammy Morris, McCormick's 3, Georgie Kaye, Tanya & Biaggi.

CASTAWAYS—Gospel Singers, Tony Foster, Joe Nero & Dixiecrats, Kirby Campbell, Wreckettes.

DEAUVILLE — Tommy Dorsey Orc., Frank Sinatra Jr., Helen Forrest, Charlie Shavers, Sam Donohue, Pupi Campo, Les Rhode Orc.

DIPLOMAT—Buddy Hackett, Neil Sedaka, Dick Haymes Jr., George Foster, Van Smith Orc.

CORAL BEACH—Steve Alaimo, Bobby Hackett 4, Mal Malkin Orc., Chester Nennett Dancers, Bea Kalmus.

EDEN ROC—Belle Barth, Escobar Orc., Richard Tucker, Monroe Kasse Orc.

FONTAINEBLEAU—Len Dawson Orc., Gonzalo Barr Orc., Chero Del Prado Orc., Pat Galo, Hi Lads, Ziggy Lane.

LeBISTRO—Billy Daniels, Pat Morrisey, Benny Payne.

MURRAY FRANKLIN'S — Murray Franklin, Roy Sedley, Harvey Bell, Guy Rennie.

PLAY ROOM—Dakota Staton, Mickey Gentile 3, Eddie Sack 3.

THUNDERBIRD—Richie Bros., Berj Vaughn 4, Jimmy Holmes, Phyllis Branch.

TONY'S FISH MARKET—Milt Trenier, Remarkable Rubin, Arabian Nights Revue, Dorothy Donegan.

SAN FRANCISCO

BIMBO'S—Lili St. Cyr.

THE COMMITTEE—Kathryn Ish, Irene Riordan, Scott Beach, Hamilton Camp, Gary Goodrow, Larry Hankin

FAIRMONT HOTEL—Ernie Heckscher Orc.

GALAXIE — Nooney Rickett V. Joni Lyman.

hungry I—John Gary, Helen Humes, Turtles.

INTERLUDE—Don Washington, Merrill Hoover Trio.

JAZZ WORKSHOP—Art Blakey Messengers.

LITTLE FOX—"Private Lives," Oliver Cliff, Marrian Walters.

McGOON'S—Turk Murphy band, Clancy Hayes.

OFF BROADWAY—Mel Torme.

ON BROADWAY—"Under the Yum Tree."

PURPLE ONION—Albert T. Berry, Rusty Carlisle.

SAFARI ROOM (San Jose)—Mills Bros.

SHERATON-PALACE—Bola Sete.

SUGAR HILL—Shirley Horn 3.

THE TRIDENT (Sausalito)—Jean Hoffman Orc.

TIN PAN ALLEY (Redwood City)—Terri King, The Henchmen.

New Act

THE TRAVELLERS
Songs
110 Mins.
Glebe Collegiate Inst. Aud., Ottawa

Only Canadian folknik group to tour Russia——two years ago, on an international exchange—Travellers now have a good-selling disk of Oscar Brand's "Something to Sing About" on Columbia's Canadian label. They do a one-niter May 5 at Palmer House, Chicago, and June 1 tee a week at Winnipeg's new nightclub, The Establishment. Most of their gigs are at universities, and two-thirds of the 500 at this concert (Gilbert Levine, impresario) were students.

Long a quartet, Travellers (traditional spelling) recently added a non-vocal bass man, Terry Quinn, who adds depth to their own accompaniment. Lone femme, Simone Johnston, plays no instrument. Banjoist-emcee is Jerry Gray, with Sid Dolgay on mandolin-cello and Ray Woodley on guitar (no juice). The sound, both vocal and instrumental, is generally standout, but more continuity of pattern in material arrangement would be an improvement.

Although the program was predominantly Canadian — including their loveliest tune, "The Wild Goose" — they also scored with a splendidly sung spiritual, "Let My Little Light Shine"; charming Mexican lullaby; the old depression song "Beans, Bacon and Gravy," — strong and amusing; "When the Ice Worms Nest Again"; and a couple of South African Bantu songs, in one of which they easily got the audience singing along. Welsh, Irish and Israeli ballads were also done with rich harmony. Handful of protest songs included one Woodie Guthrie, Bob Dylan's "Blowing in the Wind" and Earl Robinson's integration ballad, "The Ink is Black." They also did a funny, often incisive, multi-chorus, political-comment ditty by Paul Kligman & Ed McNamara.

The Travellers have plenty to offer audiences elsewhere than on campus. They've only played a couple of U.S. dates so far, but plan to do more next season. Pert, pretty Miss Johnston and handsome Terry Quinn would be visual pluses for tv. Woodley is young too, Gray and Dolgay a bit older.

Gard.

OBITUARIES

EL BRENDEL

El Brendel, 73, Swedish-dialect comedian whose career encompassed virtually every facet of show biz during his 51 years onstage, died April 9 in Hollywood as a result of a diabetic condition. Believed by many audiences to be a Swedish actor, he was actually born in Philadelphia and attended the U of Pennsylvania.

He launched his theatrical career in Philly with Bart McHugh, who staged flash acts; then with his wife, Sophie, appeared in vaudeville as El Brendel & Flo Bert. They played the Keith circuit for seven years (1913-1921). Later they left the variety stage for five years of Shubert musical shows. Among these were "Cinderella on Broadway," "Spice of 1922," "Passing Shows," on Century Roof; and "The New York Whirl."

Brendel turned to the silent screen in 1926 and was with Famous Players-Lasky for two years before returning to Broadway stage for another two years. Then, in 1929, with talking pix already established, he was placed under contract by Fox Films, where his Swede comedy characterization became known to millions.

Among his early roles at Fox were such pix as "The Cockeyed World," "Sunny Side Up," "Movietone Follies of 1930" and "Just Imagine." Later, he turned freelance and appeared for the majority of the majors, particularly Metro, Warner Bros. and 20th-Fox.

He sandwiched in nitery appearances, and in recent years did both telepix and tv commercials.

His wife survives.

In Memory of a Beloved Friend
SELMA LYNCH
April 18, 1960
G.S. Jr.

TODD STORZ

Todd Storz, 39, owner of the Storz Broadcasting Co., died Monday (13) at his home in Miami Beach. Death was believed due to a cerebral hemorrhage. Storz operated radio station WQAM, Miami, WDGY, Minneapolis, WHB, Kansas City, KXOX, St. Louis, KOMA, Oklahoma City, WTIX, New Orleans.

He was a member of the Navy Broadcasting-Telecasting Advisory Board.

VIOLA BARRY

Viola Barry, 70, early-day screen star who was cast by Jack London to appear with Hobart Bosworth in first version of "The Sea Wolf," died April 2 in Hollywood.

As age of 14 she wrote, produced and directed her own play, "The Light of Mythra," for which San Francisco Chronicle hailed her as a "child genius." A year later she played role of Juliet in the Shakespeare classic on Frisco stage, youngest actress ever to undertake role in Bay City. She later toured with the Benson Co. in England.

We'll all miss you.
TOMMY LYMAN
Jerry Vogel

Going to Hollywood in 1918, Miss Barry made her film bow in "Sea Wolf," and D. W. Griffith elevated her to one of his leading ladies. She married the late Jack Conway, later to become a top Metro director, when he was still an actor. She encouraged him to branch out in the directing field. Later she married the late F. McGrew Willis, a screen writer. She had been retired for many years.

Surviving are two sons, three daughters and sister, Mrs. Irving Pichel.

VEIT HARLAN

Veit Harlan, 64, German film director who became notorious for a film that most of the world never saw, died Monday (13) of cancer in a Capri (Italy) hospital. Harlan, as one of the many films he made under the Nazi regime, directed "Jew Suss," based on Lion Feuchtwanger's novel. The violently anti-Jewish film caused him to stand trial twice after World War II but he was acquitted. Harlan often denied being anti-Semitic, insisting that the film was made under duress, because his and his family's lives were threatened.

Despite these denials and his gesture, in 1957, of burning one or two negatives of the film (the other had been confiscated by U. S. occupation forces), he was never again accepted seriously as a director. Two postwar films, "The Third Sex" and "The Immortal Lover One" were released in the U. S. to little business. He is survived by his widow, actress Christina Soderbaum, and two sons.

CHARLES F. DANVER

Charles F. (Charley) Danver, 65, died in Pittsburgh on April 11 after a lingering illness. Danver was the most popular and colorful columnist in the history of Pitt journalism with his popularity standing up under constant readership surveys for the entire 40 years of his employment by the old Pittsburgh Post-Gazette. Danver started with the Post after World War I and came to work his first day in his naval ensign's uniform. After a few years he started writing his "Pittsburghesque" column, which at first was one long human interest story. He gradually drifted into personality patter. He was the chief chronicler of the speakeasy era in Pitt and covered the night club and show biz beat during its hectic years from 1922 to 1936 when everything was wide open.

During World War II he served as a war correspondent for the Post-Gazette. It was during this war that his wife's son was killed in action. Upon his return to the paper, Danver found show business and niteries a rather colorless beat and devoted most of his column to more general fields of interest. However, he always used show biz items when he found them. He was widely quoted all over the country. When he became ill just before Christmas last year, the paper was forced to run a box daily saying, "Charley Danver will be away from his desk for a few days." But after his hospital stay ran into the months, the paper dropped the box and the switchboard was tied up with callers who wanted to know how Charley was. He did get back to work for four days and then was ordered back to the hospital and the box went back in saying, "Charley Danver's doctors have insisted that he be given a longer convalescence. His column, 'Pittsburghesque,' will be resumed on his return."

Survived by his widow.

GEORGIA CAINE

Georgia Caine, 88, Broadway actress for years before going to Hollywood in the '30s, died April 4 in Hollywood. She launched her career in musical comedy, among her legiters being "The Messenger Boy." Her screen credits included such films as "Christmas in July," "'Ridin' on a Rainbow" and "The Wife Takes a Flyer."

She retired in 1949.

JAMES BRENNAN

James (Jimmy) Brennan, 70, English vaudeville and theatre impresario, and head of Brennan's Cinemas Ltd., died of a heart attack April 1 at St. Anne's-on-Sea, near Blackpool, Eng.

His company owned the intimate Queen's Theatre vaudery in Blackpool, noted for its annual summer show, which regularly featured U.S. acts, mainly specialties. Company also owned the King's Theatre, Oldham, and the Empire, Oldham, among other north-of-England cinemas.

Brennan, a familiar personality in north-of-England show biz circles, built up his circuit from a small group of cinemas in the Barrow area. His headquarters were in Manchester.

RITA MORGENTHAU

Rita Wallach Morgenthau, 84, a founder and director of Neighborhood Playhouse School of the Theatre, died April 8 in New York City.

Mrs. Morgenthau, with Irene and Alice Lewisohn, founded the Neighborhood Playhouse School in

(Continued on page 71)

LEGIT 'REFORM' BOOB'S TRAP?

Fewer Alien Actors Hereafter?

United States Immigration Service procedures covering the importation of alien actors have undergone a change which Actors Equity feels may lead to a reduction in the inflow of foreign (mostly British) performers to Broadway. Heretofore the Immigration & Naturalization Service was the final arbiter on whether the importation of a performer was justified on the grounds that no one else could be found to perform the service for which the actor was being employed.

Beginning today (Wed.), clearance orders from the U.S. Employment Service will be required to bring in actors. The Immigration & Naturalization Service, which will no longer be the authority in such cases, has sought the opinion of Equity when the matter of such employment arose, but the union's view was not binding. Equity will also work in close liaison with the Employment Service which will now decide whether or not a performer qualifies as unique.

This change in regulations, which does not affect alien actors imported on the basic of distinguished merit and ability, is a result of a series of conferences between the Dept. of Labor and the Immigration & Naturalization Service and is principally concerned with the temporary entry of alien actors, actresses and nitery entertainers.

The U.S. Employment Service is designating three affiliated State Employment Service professional offices, one each in New York, Chicago and Los Angeles, as Offices Specializing in Entertainers. Each will be staffed by those designated as specialists in occupations in the performing field. Other offices may get the same designation at a later date.

Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz stated "Recent experiences have shown the need for protecting the wages and employment opportunities of our own professional entertainers. We realize that this activity represents a venture into a new occupational and industrial field for the Employment Service. However, we hope that with the cooperation of producers, employers, and labor unions involved, the Offices Specializing in Entertainers will be able to expedite the requests for certification." He also asked that producers or employers of entertainers who request certification for alien performers should allow as much time as possible and not less than 30 days for a determination to be made in each case.

L.A. CLO, Starting 28th Season, Has $3,000,000 Gross Subscription; Created Several Standard Works

By DALE OLSON

Los Angeles, April 14.

In its 27 years of musical presentations, the L.A. Civic Light Opera has grown from subscriptions amounting to $50,000 in its first season to an anticipated $3,000,000 this year. According to Edwin Lester, general director, the organization has done much to put Southern California on the theatrical map.

Aside from the success of the non-profit CLO on its home grounds, it has originated a number of shows that have become at least semi-classics of the musical stage. Probably the foremost of these has been "Song of Norway," the Robert Wright and George Forest musical based on the life of and using the music of Edvard Grieg. It was originally produced here in 1944, later a Broadway hit and has been revived by the CLO three more times to be the company's biggest hit to date.

On its heels is "Kismet," another Wright-Forrest work, based on the old Edward Knoblock play, with songs adapted from Alexander Borodin. It was produced in 1953, has been revived twice and remains a standard in the field.

The CLO also presented the musical edition of "Peter Pan," starring Mary Martin, in 1954 and, earlier, in 1940, a new version of "The Red Mill" which ran 531 performances on Broadway.

Less successfully, Lester and the CLO has also created "Magdalena," "At the Grand" and last year's "Zenda" to the front, the latter, at $450,000, the most costly production ever staged by the company.

CLO was founded in 1938 after two years of Lester-produced operettas. The producer started with $5,000 capital promoted, at $500 apiece of his own and from nine friends. The first year was not successful, there was sufficient response to initiate the 1938 CLO inauguration with $15,000 capital.

The initial CLO season brought $50,000 in subscriptions for four shows at one week each, in contrast to the currenet setup of a 200,000 subscription list for four

(Continued on page 66)

Schedule 'Devil's Choice' For London, Then B'way

Hollywood, April 14.

Ben Kamsler will present and George Shdanoff will direct a London production next fall of "The Devil's Choice," Ray Russell's dramatization of his own bestseller, "The Case Against Satan." Since the book did exceptionally well in Britain, it was decided to present the play version in the West End ahead of Broadway.

A recent Kamsler-Shdanoff venture in London legit was "Portrait of Murder," starring Phyllis Calvert.

'MFL' MULLS POLAND AFTER ISRAELI RUN

Tel Aviv, April 14.

Eliza Doolittle stands a good chance of learning Polish. Negotiations are underway between Giora Godik, producer of the Israeli "My Fair Lady" and Pagart, the official agency of the Polish Government, for the production of "MFL" in Warsaw, later this year.

The Hebrew version of the Lerner and Loewe hit proves to be every bit a repetition of the outstanding success its American original enjoyed. The producer took up the option of keeping the production at the Habimah Theatre in Tel Aviv another six weeks, being S.R.O. for two weeks in advance, an unusual phenomenon in this country.

Godik proposes to produce the Polish version without help of interpretation. Himself of Polish origin and bringing along to Warsaw the director of the Hebrew version, Habimah's Shraga Friedman and local conductor Roman Mesing, both of whom also speak fluent Polish, the local cast would have hardly any problems getting the message.

11,486 in British Equity

London, April 14.

British Actors Equity rolls hit a new high during 1963 with 11,468 paid-up members. The previous year's total was 11,052 members.

The 1963 total includes 6,026 women and 5,442 men.

WHARTON SEES 'CORRUPTION'

Attorney John F. Wharton has been among those fighting the proposed new legislation at Albany whereby the Attorney-General of the State, and his appointees, would have drastic authority over the Broadway legitimate theatre. The suggested laws are intended as a "cleanup" of admitted evils in connection with "ice" and loose auditing practices, but Wharton believes the measures are badly conceived and written and will create temptations to shakedown and abuse power. The attorney has now petitioned Gov. Nelson Rockefeller to veto the bills. Wharton has informed the Governor that his own language, applicable to the State Liquor Laws, is in point. Herewith Wharton's letter, dated April 13:

(COPY)

Your Excellency:

I am doubly inspired to present this plea after reading your forthright and statesmanlike appeal to the citizens for support of your so-called "Liquor Legislation." (I have written my representatives urging them to vote for your proposals.) Let me be equally forthright.

Both of the "Theatre Legislation" Bills will, to use your own phrase, "invite and encourage widespread corruption." It is, therefore, submitted that you cannot logically ask the citizens to support your attempt to deal realistically with the abuses which have grown up under the State Liquor Authority if, at the same time, you are putting your signature to a Bill which sets up an incipient similar situation.

The Bill amending the General Business Law appropriates $35,000 to create a department in the Attorney General's office which will have unrestrained power to harass theatrical producers to a dangerous degree. The Bill provides that whenever it shall appear to the Attorney General that any person is about to violate any provision of the Law, the Attorney General, may,—without any check or bal-

(Continued on page 64)

Concerts Hard To Book in Jackson

Swedish soprano Birgit Nilsson of the Met Opera is the latest of a number of concert artists to cancel out of the segregated audiences autitorium at Jackson, Mississippi. This was in response to pressures on her, as previously on others, to shun the racial backwaters of Dixie.

Concert management has been among the last to feel the new civil war in the South. Many of the towns down there have organized audiences (viz, subscription tickets) which contract for five or so New York-booked concerts annually. Columbia Concert's own subsidiary, Community Concerts Inc. had the deal in Jackson.

Previously cancelling out were pianists Gary Graffman and David Bar Ilian although a German pianist, Hans Richter Haaser, consented to fill in for one date on the grounds that, as a foreigner, Dixie segregation politics and propaganda were of no concern to him.

'Sunday Man,' ex-'Dressed,' Due May 12 at Morosco

"The Sunday Man" is the new title for "The Importance of Being Dressed" which Cornelius Productions Inc. intends opening May 12 at the Morosco Theatre, N.Y. The play, a Hungarian comedy by Ference Dunai, was presented in Budapest under the title, "A Nadrag," and has been adapted by Louis S. Bardoly for Broadway.

It's to star David Brooks with Alexander Dore directing.

New Dramatists Group Has $32,718 Toward $50,000 Target for 1964-65; Members Have Scripts on Option

As of the end of last week, the New Dramatists Committee had raised $32,718 of the $50,000 the non-profit organization is seeking for 1964-65 expenses in connection with its program of encouraging and developing playwrights. The total includes $15,000 previously received by the committee and $17,718 raised at the organization's annual luncheon last Friday (10) at Sari's Restaurant, N.Y.

Included in the luncheon contributions was $7,525 which John H. MacFayden, executive director of the N.Y. State Council on the Arts, said the council would donate, as well as a $5,000 gift from the John Golden Fund. Speakers at the luncheon included Paul R. Screvane, president of the N. Y. City Council; Mary K. Frank, Broadway producer and president of the New Dramatists; Alfred de Ligare Jr., Broadway producer and industry fund-raising chairman for the committee; New Dramatists alumnus Sidney Michaels, currently represented on Broadway as author of "Dylan," and from the acting ranks, Margaret Leighton and Robert Preston.

In a New Dramatists "Activities Report," dated last Friday (10), it's revealed that several members of the organization have plays earmarked for Broadway production. They include Alice Childress' "Wedding Band," under option to Oliver Smith and Henry Guettel; Roger O. Hirson's "World War 2½," owned by Alexander H. Cohen, and Norman Wexler's "Lovers in the Act," which Judith Abbott and Ray Katz have under option. The report salso says that Malcolm Marmorstein's "The Switchboard" and another undesignated play of his have been optioned for Broadway production, but the party or parties involved aren't designated.

Other members have plays earmarked for off-Broadway presentation, as well as workshop showcasing. In addition, Justin Mamis has authored "Love," a novel to be published next fall by Stein and Day, and Harold Yablonsky has written the script to "Jordi," a film scheduled to go into production this summer with Piper Laurie starring and the author directing.

Paul Shyre-Staged 'USA' Touring College Circuit

"U.S.A.," the Paul Shyre-John Dos Passos adaptation of Dos Passos' novel of the same title has begun a month's tour of universities and colleges. Shyre staged the presentation for co-producers Alan Neuman and Martin B. Cohen. Featured in the cast are Barbara Hayes, John Leighton, Dorlee MacGregor, Will Mackenzie, Wayne Maxwell and Ellen Newquist.

The tour, which began March 31 at East Tennessee Southern Univ., Johnson City, Tenn., ends April 27 at Kutztown (Pa.) State College.

Cap Records Has $200,000 Slice Of 'Golden' Musical

Capital Records, which has secured the original cast album rights to the forthcoming Broadway musical version of "Golden Boy," is putting up $200,000 of the musical's $465,000 capitalization. The disk firm's stake could climb to $240,000 if a 20% overcall is made, to boost the total bankroll to $558,000.

In addition to its investment in the show, Capitol is also earmarking another $50,000 for a special promotion budget in connection with the legit venture. Hillard Elkins, who's producing the musical, leaves today (Wed.) for a Coast meeting with Capitol president Alan Livingston and Edwin H. Morris, who's publishing the score. They'll work out exploitation angles for the album and the production, which goes into rehearsal May 11 in New York.

Accompanying Elkins to the Coast will be Charles Strouse, composer of the show's music. Elkins intends returning next Wednesday (22) with Sammy Davis Jr., who'll play the title role in the tuner. Davis will host an affair that day for theatre party agents in the Belasco Room of Sardi's Restaurant. Incidentally, Davis is under contract to Reprise Records, but he's been given permission to do the album for Capitol.

Tony Walton, who's designing the sets and costumes for the presentation, arrived from London last Saturday (11). The book for the musical, which the late Clifford Odets adapted from his original play, is being revised by Louis Peterson and lyrics to Strouse's tunes have been written by Lee Adams. Direction and choreography are to be handled by Peter Coe and Donald McKayle, respectively.

"Boy," is to begin a 13-week road tryout June 22 at the Shubert Theatre, Philadelphia. The Broadway opening is scheduled for Sept. 28 at the Majestic Theatre.

London Summer School Course in Bard Staging

The British Centre of the International Theatre Institute will conduct a summer school on the staging of Shakespeare next Aug. 6-15 at the London Academy of Music and Dramatic Art. The school is being organized by William Caskill, associate director of Britain's National Theatre.

The number of admissions will be limited. Experienced directors and designers in England and from other countries have until April 30 to apply for admittance. No charge is to be made for attendance at the school or for visits to theatres presenting Shakespeare, but participants will have to pay for their board and lodging and for fares to and from London.

Betty Field to Star In 'Menagerie' in Hub Stock

Betty Field will play Amanda Wingfield in "The Glass Menagerie," opening tonight (Wed.) as the sixth and final production of the season at the Charles Playhouse, Boston. Michael Murray, coproducer at the Playhouse with Frank Sugrue, is directing the Tennessee Williams drama.

"Menagerie" will end the theatre's seventh season May 17.

Arsonists Cause $15,000 Damage to H'wood Legiter

Los Angeles, April 14.

Arsonists, over weekend set fire to the Le Grand Theatre, Hollywood, causing approximately $15,000 damages to dressingrooms, wardrobe and other equipment.

According to Stan Seiden, who operates the house with Zev Bufman, no trace of the guilty parties has been found.

Bay at Ohio Univ.

Broadway designer Howard Bay is currently at Ohio Univ., Athens, O., as a visiting Professor of Dramatic Arts. He'll direct and design a college production of Mario Fratti's "The Cage," opening April 22.

While at the university, Bay will also design "Tartuffe," a production in the school's Great Play Series.

Shows on Broadway

High Spirits

Lester Osterman, Robert Fletcher & Richard Horner presentation of musical comedy in two acts (12 scenes, 18 numbers), with book, music and lyrics by Hugh Martin and Timothy Gray, based on the Noel Coward comedy, "Blithe Spirit." Staged by Noel Coward; choreography and musical staging, Danny Daniels; settings and costumes, Robert Fletcher; Tammy Grimes' costume, Valentina; lighting, Jules Fisher; musical conductor, Fred Werner; vocal direction and arrangements, Hugh Martin and Timothy Gray; orchestrations, Harry Zimmerman; dance music, William Goldenberg. Stars Beatrice Lillie, Tammy Grimes, Edward Woodward; features Louise Troy, Carol Arthur, Margaret Hall, Lawrence Keith. Opened April 7, '64, at the Alvin Theatre, N. Y.

Charles Condomine . . . Edward Woodward
Edith . . . Carol Arthur
Ruth Condomine . . . Louise Troy
Mrs. Bradman . . . Margaret Hall
Dr. Bradman . . . Lawrence Keith
Madame Arcati . . . Beatrice Lillie
Elvira . . . Tammy Grimes
Bob . . . Robert Lenn
Beth . . . Beth Howland
Rupert . . . Gene Castle

Singers-dancers: Adrienne Angel, Syndee Balabar, Gene Castle, Jerry Craig, Jackie Cronin, Altovise Gore, Judith Haskell, Beth Howland, Jack Kauflin, Bill Kennedy, Al Lanti, Miriam Lawrence, Renee Lee, Robert Lenn, Alex McKay, Jaqueline Maria, Stan Mazin, Joe McGrath, Don Percassi, Kathy Preston, Sybil Scotford, Tom Thornton, Ronnie Walken, Anne Wallace.

Musical numbers: "Was She Prettier Than I," "The Bicycle Song," "You'd Better Love Me," "Where Is the Man I Married?" "The Sandwich Man," "Go Into Your Trance," "Where Is the Man I Married?" (reprise), "Forever and a Day," "Something Tells Me," "I Know Your Heart," "Faster Than Sound," "If I Gave You," "Talking to You," "Home Sweet Heaven," "Something Is Coming to Tea," "The Exorcism," "What Is the World Did You Want?" "Faster Than Sound" (reprise).

About halfway through the second act of "High Spirits," which opened last Tuesday night (8) at the Alvin Theatre, there are two smash numbers in succession. The first is by Beatrice Lillie and the second by Tammy Grimes, and they turn the new musical comedy into a hit.

As a result, with the drawing power of the two femme stars, the song and dance version of Noel Coward's old farce, "Blithe Spirit," should be good for a hefty Broadway run. It may perhaps also ultimately do as a stock vehicle and possibly even have the makings of a picture.

In general, those two powerhouse numbers typify "High Spirits." When Miss Lillie is onstage, for example, tossing sanity and, incidentally, the book into the wings, the show is blissful pandemonium. And when Miss Grimes gets rewarding material to work with, there's also ample fun out front. Since they get enough such opportunities, the show provides a generally enjoyable evening.

Miss Lillie plays Madame Arcati, the ecstatically daffy spiritualist (she calls herself a happy medium) who does a sort of sorcerer's apprentice act by conducting a seance that brings back on the scene the stuffy novelist's late first wife and thereby causes all the uproar. It's a goofy character role, but as those who recall Mildred Natwick's brilliant characterization in the 1941-42 straight-play original know, it is essentially a bit.

Hugh Martin and Timothy Gray, who not only provided the tunes and words but also wrote the book for this musicalization, have been unable to enlarge the function of the part in terms of story, but have added one number based on Madame Arcati's bicycle, two others in her spiritualist headquarters, a kind of occult Hernando's Hideaway, and finally one in her bedroom for the show's triumphal bit of clowning.

"The Bicycle Song" is funny, if apparently more or less expected, but the numbers in her spiritualist hangout are the occasion for rousing Danny Daniels choreography and Miss Lillie's private brand of contagious idiocy. She performs the prescribed nonsense, adding what appears to be just about the entire repertoire of her trademarked bits.

Since parody is the essence of the comedienne's style, however, the climax is her solo turn, in which she offers what seems to be practically a recital of her own inspired brand of comment, in this instance a spoof of classical ballet that stampedes the audience and just about wraps up "High Spirits" as a show. It's a cinch the number will be expanded as the star works on it during the coming months.

Although Miss Grimes, as the impish reincarnation of the first wife, has more scope in terms of story, the authors haven't created a great deal more for her to do, and Coward, who staged the production, has simply fallen back on having her glide endlessly around the stage, trailing her filmy gown and, in the two occasions when she does a suspended-by-wire flying act, a la Peter Pan, sail back and forth without much point.

She has several passable numbers, two with third costar Edward Woodward as the smug husband whose aplomb is upset by having two wives simultaneously under his roof. One song is with Louise Troy as the second wife, and another is her initial solo. But when she gets the big number in the second act, a name-dropping patter song called "Home Sweet Heaven," she whams it and thereby cements the successful impact of Miss Lillie's click of a few minutes earlier. This tune is likely to become Miss Grimes' personal identification hereafter.

As the rather self-satisfied husband, Woodward is a capable actor stuck as a straight man opposite two femme comics. He's an agreeable stage personality, though seemingly lacking in the sort of brittle detachment ideal for farce. As it happens, he has an excellent voice, and uses it well, but without the knack of selling a song.

Miss Troy is competent but cool as the harassed second wife, though her singing voice has a perceptible change of registers. Carol Arthur is acceptable as the befuddled maid who's an unconscious medium, and Margaret Hall and Lawrence Keith are passable as the visiting friends who aren't aware of what they can't see.

Some of the dancing and singing chorus are nifty lookers, but for some incomprehensible reason designer and co-producer Robert Fletcher has togged them in unbecoming costumes for all but one number. Fletcher's scenery is ingenious and effective, however, and Jules Fisher's lighting is an asset. The Martin-Gray songs are more impressively lyrically than musically—none of the tunes remains in memory after the performance.

In general, "High Spirits" is an uneven show, but it succeeds by giving Beatrice Lillie enough to do for the first time in years, with Tammy Grimes as a notable accomplice. Hobe

BLITHE SPIRIT

Three-act farce by Noel Coward, produced and staged by John C. Wilson, with setting designed by Stewart Chaney. Opened Nov. 5, '41, at the Morosco Theatre, N. Y.; moved May 18, '42, to the Booth, N. Y.; played 657 performances.

Edith . . . Jacqueline Clark
Ruth . . . Peggy Wood
Charles . . . Clifton Webb
Dr. Bradham . . . Philip Tonge
Mrs Bradman . . . Phyllis Joyce
Mrs. Arcati . . . Mildred Natwick
Elvira . . . Leonora Corbett

Hamlet

Alexander H Cohen presentation of revival of drama in two acts, by William Shakespeare. Staged by John Gielgud; scenery, Ben Edwards; lighting, Jean Rosenthal; costumes, Jane Greenwood; production associates, Gabriel Katzka, Andre Goulston; in association with Fremman Productions. Features Richard Burton, Hume Cronyn, Alfred Drake, Eileen Herlie, William Redfield, George Rose, George Voskovec, Philip Coolidge, John Cullum, Michael Ebert, Dillon Evans, Clement Fowler, Geoff Garland, Barnard Hughes, Linda Marsh, Robert Milli. Opened April 9, '64, at the Lunt-Fontanne Theatre, N.Y.; $8.80 top weeknights, $9.90 Friday-Saturday nights.

Bernardo . . . Robert Burr
Francisco . . . Michael Ebert
Marcellus . . . Barnard Hughes
Horatio . . . Robert Milli
Claudius . . . Alfred Drake
Voltimand . . . Philip Coolidge
Cornelius . . . Hugh Alexander
Laertes . . . John Cullum
Polonius . . . Hume Cronyn
Hamlet . . . Richard Burton
Gertrude . . . Eileen Herlie
Ophelia . . . Linda Marsh
Ghost . . . Voice of John Gielgud
Reynaldo . . . Dillon Evans
Rosencrantz . . . Clement Fowler
Guildenstern . . . William Redfield
Player King . . . George Voskovec
Player Prolog . . . John Hetherington
Player Queen . . . Christopher Culkin
Lucianus . . . Geoff Garland
Fortinbras . . . Michael Ebert
Gentleman . . . Richard Sterne
First Gravedigger . . . George Rose
Second Gravedigger . . . Hugh Alexander
Priest . . . Barnard Hughes
Oaric . . . Dillon Evans
English Ambassador . . . Hugh Alexander

Others: Alex Giannini, Frederick Young, Claude Harz, Gerome Ragni, Linda Seff, Carol TeNel.

Some of the key questions have already been answered about the Richard Burton edition of "Hamlet." The Alexander H. Cohen presentation, opening last Thursday night (9) at the Lunt-Fontanne Theatre, recouped all or most of its production cost during its huge-grossing tryout engagement in Toronto and Boston, and it has a strong advance sale. Audiences will be expecting Elizabeth Taylor to attend most performances, and that will also help business. Apparently nothing else matters very much.

There is the subject of quality, of course, and the quality of this revival is spotty. Burton appears to be in excellent condition—he looks slimmer than when he was here last, in "Camelot"—his voice is fine and he moves well. He has fire, humor, variation, dimension, authority and real star magnetism. He has the familiar Burton air of detachment, almost seeming inattention, however, and occasionally he speaks so fast as to be unintelligible. He is dressed in black slacks and a black knitted shirt, open at the neck.

The name-studded supporting cast is uneven, and the whole production is in many respects unsatisfying. Perhaps the trouble is basic—in stager John Gielgud's concept of playing the Shakespeare masterpiece as a supposed rehearsal, with the cast in working garb, mostly street clothes, and on a sceneryless stage, with only a few platforms, etc. This may have caused what seems to be a lack of prevailing point of view, or approach, which is more serious than the distracting effect of assorted and in some instances incongruous dress.

There is an impression of lack of unity about the whole show, as though Gielgud had not provided sufficient direction or worked out a consistent style of performance. The tempo tends to be slow in many scenes, but occasionally the readings are rushed so much they become incomprehensible. One of the basic merits of a satisfying Shakespeare performance is that the meaning of the text is clarified. That is only sporadically true of this production.

Hume Cronyn is a superb Polonius. He is in street clothes, in a grey beard and with half-lens eyeglasses suspended by a string around his neck. He plays the character as a somewhat senile fuddy-duddy, a self-assured, pompous, garrulous, hopelessly humorless bore, yet in a curious way understandable and not without inherent dignity.

Alfred Drake is puzzlingly stilted and stiff as King Claudius. He is dressed in street clothes, with what may be a sports jacket and in several scenes with a topcoat over his shoulders. He is one of the worst offenders in rushing his lines to the point of unintelligibility, and somehow he doesn't seem regal or, until the final scenes, to possess enough purposefulness to be such a villain.

Eileen Herlie also gives the impression of having not been sufficiently directed and of lacking a clear approach to the part and the play. She wears a modification of a hostess gown, with a mink coat held around her. Her Queen Gertrude seems empty and strident, and there is little suggestion of sex motivation in her scenes with Claudius.

George Rose is colorful, amusing and well spoken as the loquaci-

(Continued on page 64)

LONDON SHOWS

(Figures denote opening dates)

Boeing-Boeing, Apollo (2-20-63).
Caligula, Phoenix (4-6-64).
Difference of Opinion, Garrick (11-21-63)
Diplomats, Westminster (12-31-63).
Fielding's Hell, Prince Charles (2-27-63).
Funny Thing Happened, Strand (10-3-63)
Half a Sixpence, Cambridge (3-21-63).
Hang Head Down, Comedy (3-19-64).
Hedda Gabler, St. Martin's (2-13-64).
How to Succeed, Shaftesbury (2-21-63)
Kayf Up West, Royal, East (3-10-64).
Lovely War, Wyndham's (3-19-63).
Mexican Fiesta, Drury Lane (3-30-64).
Minstrels, Vic. Palace (5-25-62).
Mother's Boy, Globe (3-19-64).
Mousetrap, Ambassador (11-25-52).
No Strings, Her Majesty's (12-30-63).
Oliver, New (6-30-60).
One for the Pot, Whitehall (8-2-61).
Pickwick, Saville (7-4-63).
Poor Bitos, Duke of York's (1-6-64).
Reluctant Peer, Duchess (1-15-64).
Repertory, Aldwych (12-15-60).
Repertory, National Theatre (10-22-63)
Round Piccadilly, Prince Wales (2-26-64).
Royal Comm. Revue, Mermaid (3-11-64).
Schoolmistress, Savoy, (4-8-64).
Seagull, Queen's (3-12-64).
Severed Head, Criterion (6-27-63).
Six of One, Adelphi (9-26-63).
Sound of Music, Palace (3-18-61).
Subtoplans, New Arts (4-14-64).
Wait a Minim, Fortune (4-9-64).
Who's Afraid Woolf, Piccadilly (2-8-64).
Wings of Dove, Haymarket. (12-3-63).

CLOSED

Everybody Loves Opal, Vaudeville (4-1-64); closed April 4, after 5 performances.
Formation Dancers, New Arts (3-18-64); closed last Saturday (11), after limited engagement, 25 performances. Transfers to Globe, opening April 16.
Mother's Boy, Globe (3-19-64); closed last Saturday (11), after 36 performances.

SCHEDULED OPENINGS

Beyond the Fringe, May Fair (4-15-64).
Formation Dancers, Globe (4-16-64).
Amber for Anna, Vaudeville (4-28-64).
She Loves Me, Lyric (4-29-64).

Shows Abroad

The Seagull

London, March 20.

English Stage Co. presentation (in association with Tennent Productions and Lewenstein-Delfont Productions of a four act drama by Anton Chekov, translated by Ann Jellicoe. Staged by Tony Richardson; decor by Jocelyn Herbert; sounds & music selected by John Addison. Features Vanessa Redgrave, Peggy Ashcroft, Peter Finch, George Devine, Paul Rogers, Ann Beach, Mark Dignam, Peter McEnery, Philip Locke, Rachel Kempson. Opened March 12, '64, at Queen's Theatre, London; $3.35 top.

Yakov . . . Malcolm Taylor
Workmen . . . Reginald Gillam, Derek Fuke
Semyon, Medvedenko . . . Philip Locke
Masha . . . Ann Beach
Pyotr Sorin . . . Paul Rogers
Konstantin Treplev . . . Peter McEnery
Nina Zarechnaya . . . Vanessa Redgrave
Polina Andreyevna . . . Rachel Kempson
Yevgeny Dorn . . . George Devine
Irina Arkadina . . . Peggy Ashcroft
Boris Trigorin . . . Peter Finch
Ilya Shamrayev . . . Mark Dignam
Maid . . . Kate Binchy

With the Royal Court Theatre undergoing renovations, the English Stage Co. has transferred temporarily to the Queen's Theatre for a season of limited engagements of classics, beginning with Strindberg's "The Father," followed currently by "The Seagull." The distinguished should be a draw, and London is fortunate in a glittering stage attraction.

Tony Richardson's staging of "The Seagull," is generally admirable, with grace, understanding and information. Yet, though the author's tone of melancholy inner loneliness, frustration and yearning, are still to be relished, the play does not fully register as a composite. It is a fine production, but its mood is variable. While the performers contribute lavishly as individuals, some of the scenes appear to lack an essential teamwork.

Most of the players, particularly the more experienced ones, are impeccable. Paul Rogers as the grandfather and George Devine as the charming middleaged doctor score heavily in roles which sometimes tend to be regarded as mere stage dressing. Peggy Ashcroft plays with rich style and subtle comedy to make the possessive fading middleaged actress and mother a shallow woman, although her use of coquetish tricks and the absence of a grand manner are out of key.

Vanessa Redgrave has most of the limelight in her scenes with Miss Ashcroft, and though she has a refreshing charm as the girl awakened to the glamorous world of stage and literature, her best passages are at the end. Peter Finch, as the mysterious man of letters torn between possessiveness and infatuation, does not make the error of presenting Trigorin as a charming heartbreaker, but is perhaps a little too serious and self-effacing, and fails to project the man's selfishness.

The mother-dominated son provides Peter McEnery with several chances of change of mood, and he brings them off successfully. Rachel Kemspon, Mark Dignam and Philip Locke contribute sterling performances and Ann Beach is outstanding as the tiny, matter-of-fact Masha, a bundle of petulance, unhappiness and near-neuroticism.

Jocelyn Herbert's sets, though somewhat artificial outdoors, capture the loneliness and the half-torment, half-peace of the lakeside, and her interiors are stolid and cosy. Rich.

Round About Piccadilly

London, April 6.

Bernard Delfont & Stewart Cruickshank presentation of revue in two acts (14 scenes) devised and staged by Dick Hurran. Stars Max Bygraves; features Yvonne March, Gibson Girls (2), Tiller Girls, Anthony Bygraves, Eddie Vitch, Alma Michael, Barbara French, Diana Dickson, Gimma Boys (5). Choreography, Lionel Blair; costumes, Berkeley Sutcliffe; decor, Tod Kingman. Opened March 28, '64, at Prince of Wales Theatre, London; $3.55 top.

The nearest thing to a foolproof insurance policy for a West End spectacular revue, particularly in a theatre like the Prince of Wales, is to have Max Bygraves as star. So "Round About Piccadilly," which Bernard Delfont and Stewart Cruickshank are presenting, is a gilt-edged proposition. There's an advance of around $85,000 to prove it.

Unashamedly unsophisticated, "Round About Piccadilly" is shrewdly designed and mounted to appeal to the bus and train tourist trade and the anticipated hordes of visitors who welcome an eyefilling show loaded with solid entertainment values. As a twice-nightly offering it should fill the theatre for months to come.

Bygraves, a solid draw, whose relaxed style conceals a wealth of preparation and effort, is surrounded by impressive talent, and the entire production has been skillfully and lavishly mounted by Dick Hurran. Sumptuous settings, lavish and spectacular costumes, plus staging novelties which make use of the two circle-level boxes, contribute towards making this a sure-fire family show.

The star has a large chunk of the playing time and fills it confidently. Much of his material is familiar, but judging from audience reaction, that hardly matters. He sings, dances, tells jokes, sometimes alone, sometimes with his son Anthony, and occasionally is surrounded by the rest of the company. The result is always boffo entertainment.

On the vocal stakes he mainly relies on his proven oldies, such as his parody of "Fings," "Hands," "Tulips From Amsterdam" and "Back in the Old Routine," but the only disappointment of the show caught was the reluctance of the audience to participate. His teenage son Anthony has promising style, but showed up better recently in a cabaret engagement. Nevertheless, there is evidence of family talent in his performance.

A novelty item features a film of Bygraves in a plane, and as it lands the hostesses turn out to be the Tiller Dancing Girls, who go straight into one of their slick and immaculately drilled routines. As the screen rises, they complete the number onstage.

The leading femme is Yvonne Marsh, a good-looker with a sturdy set of pipes. She can belt a number as confidently as she can handle a melodious tune, and her vivacity is a considerable help. The distaff side is also helped by the Gibson Girls (Nicky Allen and Sara Mackay), who fit into several of the production numbers.

There are also three top grade specialty acts. Eddie Vitch, who has added new business to his dining out routine, once again demonstrates that he is one of the leading comedy mimists in the business. His performance garners a non-stop flow of chuckles.

The Gimma Boys, five Italian acrobats, add a nice touch of knockabout comedy to their routine, which includes two or three fancy and unusual stunts.

Finally, there are Alma Michael and Barbara French with the w.k. Excess Baggage act, comprising five performing dogs. It's a sure-fire comedy bit.

Lionel Blair rates a nod for his colorful dance routines, Barbara Aitken has drilled the Tiller Girls to perfection, and Berkeley Sutcliffe and Tod Kingman have provided stunning costumes and decor, respectively. Myro.

The Formation Dancers

London, April 1.

Michael Codron presentation of three act comedy by Frank Marcus. Staged by Clive Donner; decor, Sally Jacobs. Features Robin Bailey, Maxine Audrey, Joanna Dunham, Gerald Flood. Opened March 18, '64, at the New Arts Theatre; $2.10 top.

Maggie . . . Maxine Audley
Perdita . . . Joanna Dunham
Paul . . . Gerald Flood
Gerald . . . Robin Bailey

"The Formation Dancers" is a slight comedy padded and showing signs of repetitious strain. But it provides a fair sprinkling of brittle laughs and is at its best when it plays tongue-in-cheek.

Frank Marcus's dialog veers from the witty to the facetious, is often designed purely to shock but is never dull. It is adroitly played and staged and, in an intimate theatre, might enjoy a reasonably happy run.

The play has much of the flavor of Noel Coward's "Private Lives" (1930-31) and Frederick Lonsdale's "On Approval" (1926-27) in that it has its four characters involved in sex outside the conventional marital or heterosexual extra-marital relationships. The principals in this minor emotional warfare are a conceited writer encouraged by his wife to carry on an affair with the beatnik mistress of his best friend, who has a wife and family on the side. The writer's wife hopes that the affairs will help him regain his male

(Continued on page 65)

Divorce, Show Business Style

In show business, they're sophisticated about divorce. For example:

At producer Alexander H. Cohen's opening night party for "Hamlet" last Thursday (9) in the Rainbow Room, N.Y., the table at which Richard Burton and his wife, Elizabeth Taylor, sat, was also occupied by Michael Wilding, who was Miss Taylor's second husband. Wilding, actor-turned-publicist, is pressagent for Burton, who's playing the title role in the Shakespeare classic at the Lunt-Fontanne Theatre, N.Y.

In "Blues for Mister Charlie," the James Baldwin play which began a series of previews last night (Tues.) at the ANTA Theatre, N.Y., the cast includes Rip Torn and his ex-wife, Ann Wedgeworth, who replaced Nancy Berg. Torn is currently married to actress Geraldine Page. The Baldwin play, which the Actors Studio Theatre is producing, is scheduled to open officially at the ANTA next Tuesday night (21).

"Thursday Is a Good Night," a play coauthored by Abe Einhorn and Donald Segall, is to be tried out this summer in stock with Tom Ewell and Sheree North costarred. The director will be Ewell's first wife, Judith Abbott.

B'way Slides, But 'Hamlet,' 'Deputy,' 'High,' 'Wed.' 'Park,' 'Girl,' 'Dolly' SRO; Center-'Story' $45,104, NRT $11,819

Broadway went into a post-Easter depression last week, with grosses dropping as much as $22,187 for one musical. The going was particularly rough for several marginal shows, but despite the downhill pattern, there were seven sellout entries. They were "Any Wednesday," "Barefoot in the Park," "The Deputy," "Funny Girl," "Hello, Dolly" and the newcomers, "Hamlet" and "High Spirits."

"Anyone Can Whistle' closed last Saturday (11) and "Foxy" is scheduled to shutter next Saturday (18). There's a possibility that the N.Y. City Center production of "West Side Story" may be moved after its four-week run at the Municipal House to either the Majestic or Ziegfeld theatres, on the theory that it may benefit from the influx of World's Fair visitors.

"Stop the World—I Want to Get Off," which closes next Saturday in Philadelphia, had been considered for a return to Broadway because of the fair, but the management decided against it, at least for the present. Such a move is also under consideration for the bus-and-truck production of "Camelot."

Whether or not the fair will help Broadway business remains to be seen, but some in the trade figure that little of the fair action will carry over to the Main Stem.

Estimates for Last Week

Keys: C (Comedy), D (Drama), CD (Comedy-Drama), R (Revue), MC (Musical-Comedy), MD (Musical-Drama), O (Opera), OP (Operetta), Rep. (Repertory), DR (Dramatic Reading).

Other parenthetic designations refer, respectively, to weeks played, number of performances through last Saturday, top prices (where two prices are given, the higher is for Friday-Saturday nights and the lower for weeknights), number of seats, capacity gross and stars. Price includes 10% Federal and 5% repealed City tax (diverted to an industry-wide pension and welfare fund), but grosses are net: i.e., exclusive of taxes.

Asterisk denotes show had cut-rate tickets in circulation.

Grosses normally have been reduced by commissions where theatre parties are mentioned.

Any Wednesday, Music Box (C) (8th wk; 63 p) ($6.90-$7.50; 1,010; $40,000) (Sandy Dennis, Don Porter). Previous week, house record, $40,987.

Last week, $40,297.

Barefoot in the Park, Biltmore (C) (25th wk; 195 p) ($6.90-$7.50; 994; $38,692) (Elizabeth Ashley, Robert Redford, Mildred Natwick, Kurt Kasznar). Previous week $38,861.

Last week, $38,912.

* Beyond the Fringe, Golden (R) (77th wk; 611 p) ($7.50; 799; $34,874). Previous week, $18,798.

Last week, $12,316.

Case of Libel, Longacre (D) (27th wk; 210 p) ($6.90-$7.50; 1,101; $40,986) (Van Heflin, Paul McGrath, Larry Gates). Previous week, $19,368.

Last week, $13,197.

Deputy, Atkinson (D) (7th wk; 53 p) ($6.90-$7.50; 1,088; $43,246) (Emlyn Williams, Jeremy Brett). Previous week, $43,488.

Last week, $43,154 with some small parties.

Dylan, Plymouth (D) (13th wk; 97 p) ($6.90-$7.50; 1,084; $48,369) (Alec Guinness). Previous week, $47,048.

Last week, $39,961.

Foxy, Ziegfeld (MC) (8th wk; 64 p) ($8.80-$9.40; 1,628; $78,305) (Bert Lahr, Larry Blyden). Previous week, $37,961.

Last week, $25,952. Closes next Saturday (18).

Funny Girl, Winter Garden (MC) (3d wk; 20 p) ($9.60; 1,442; $74,516) (Barbra Streisand, Sydney Chaplin). Previous week, $73,097 with parties.

Last week, $71,949 with parties.

* Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum, Hellinger (MC) (101st wk; 805 p) ($8.60-$9.40; 1,572; $84,000) (Dick Shawn). Previous week, $38,538.

Last week, $32,886.

Hamlet, Lunt-Fontanne (D) (1st wk; 4 p) ($8.80-$9.90; 1,478; $73,062). Previous week, $81,539, Shubert, Boston.

Opened here last Thursday night (9) to four favorable reviews (McClain, Journal - American; Nadel, World - Telegram; Taubman, Times; Watts, Post), one qualified disapproval (Kerr, Herald Tribune) and one unfavorable notice (Chapman, News).

Last week, $55,678 for four performances with parties and two previews.

Hello, Dolly, St. James (MC) (13th wk; 100 p) ($9.60; 1,609; $71,331) (Carol Channing). Previous week, $71,391.

Last week, $71,539.

Here's Love, Shubert, (MC) (28th wk; 218 p) ($9.60; 1,453; $67,923). Previous week, $49,805.

Last week, $34,800.

High Spirits, Alvin (MC) (1st wk; 7 p) ($9.60; 1,334; $69,549) (Beatrice Lillie, Tammy Grimes, Edward Woodward). Previous week, $60,901 for eight previews at the Alvin.

Opened here April 7 to three endorsements (Chapman, News; McClain, Journal - American; Taubman, Times), two qualified approvals (Nadel, World - Telegram; Watts, Post) and one qualified disapproval (Kerr, Herald Tribune).

Last week, $65,903 for seven performances with parties and one preview.

How to Succeed in Business Without Really Trying, 46th St. (MC) (131st wk; 1,039 p) ($9.60; 1,342; $66,615). Previous week, $62,684.

Last week, $51,581.

* Mary, Mary, Hayes (C) (162d wk; 1,290 p) ($6.90-$7.50; 1,164; $43,380) (Mindy Carson, Murray Hamilton, Tom Helmore). Previous week, $19,382.

Last week, $13,832.

National Repertory Theatre, Belasco (Rep) (1st wk; 8 p) ($4.95-$7.50; 1,008; $34,051). Previous week, about $6,900 for four previews at the Belasco.

Last week, $11,819 for eight performances of "The Seagull" and "The Crucible." The former opened April 5 to three favorable notices (Chapman, News; McClain, Journal-American; Nadel, World-Telegram), one yes-no review (Kerr, Herald Tribune), one qualified approval (Taubman, Times) and one thumb-down (Tallmer, Post). "The Crucible" opened April 6 to five endorsements (Crist, Herald Tribune; McClain, Journal-American; Nadel, World-Telegram; Tallmer, Post; Taubman, Times) and one pan (Chapman, News).

Never Too Late, Playhouse (C) (72d wk; 573 p) ($6.90-$7.50; 994; $37,000) (Paul Ford, Maureen O'Sullivan, Orson Bean). Previous week, $34,047. Martha Scott joins the cast April 27 as Miss O'Sullivan's successor.

Last week, $31,497.

Nobody Loves an Albatross, Lyceum (C) (17th wk; 132 p) ($6.90-$7.50; 995; $33,000) (Robert Preston). Previous week, $27,611.

Last week, $22,284.

Oliver, Imperial (MD) (66th wk; 527 p) ($8.60-$9.30; 1,450; $71,977) (Clive Revill, Georgia Brown). Previous week, $62,874.

Last week, $40,687.

110 in the Shade, Broadhurst (MC) (25th wk; 194 p) ($8.80-$9.40; 1,186; $58,000) (Robert Horton, Inga Swenson, Stephen Douglass). Previous week, $48,970.

Last week, $41,239.

Sponono, Cort (D) (2d wk; 12 p) ($6.90-$7.50; 1,100; $41,482). Previous week, $7,508 for four performances and three previews.

Last week, $7,667.

What Makes Sammy Run? 54th St. (MC) (7th wk; 52 p) ($8.80-$9.40; 1,271; $68,128) (Steve Lawrence, Sally Ann Howes, Robert Alda). Previous week, $60,224.

Last week, $54,373 with two parties.

* Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf? Rose (D) (79th wk; 624 p) ($6.90-$7.50; 1,162; $40,485) (Mercedes McCambridge, Donald Davis, Ben Piazza) (matinee company Haila Stoddard, Hendreson Forsythe, Bill Berger). Previous week, $23,658.

Last week, $13,231.

Miscellaneous

Lincoln Center Repertory Theatre, ANTA Washington Square (Rep) (12th wk; 92 p) ($6-$6.50; 1,158; $46,500). Previous week, $40,747 with subscription for eight performances of "After the Fall," "But for Whom Charlie" and "Marco Millions."

Last week, $40,067 with subscription for same repertory.

West Side Story, City Center (MD) (1st wk; 7 p) ($4.95; 3,015; $91,000).

Opened four-week engagement here Wednesday night (8) to five favorable reviews (Chapman, News; Funke, Times; Harris, World-Telegram; Kupferberg, Herald Tribune; McClain, Journal-American) and one qualified approval (Tallmer, Post).

Last week, $45,104 for seven performances and one preview.

CLOSED LAST WEEK

Anyone Can Whistle, Majestic (MC) (2d wk; 9 p) ($8.60; 1,655; $81,000) (Lee Remick, Angela Lansbury, Harry Guardino). Previous week, $32,728 for opening performance and six previews.

Last week, $35,675. Closed Saturday (11) at an estimated loss of its entire $350,000 investment.

OPENING THIS WEEK

Cafe Crown, Beck (MC) ($8.60-$9.60; 1,280; $63,000). (Sam Levene, Theodore Bikel, Tommy Rall). Previous week, $22,914 for eight previews at the Beck.

Philip Rose and Swanlee Production presentation of musical version of Hy Kraft's play with music by Albert Hague and lyrics by Marty Brill; opens Friday night (17). Last week, $21,839 for another eight previews.

PREVIEWING THIS WEEK

Baby Want a Kiss, Little (C). Began previews April 6.

Last week, $23,882 for eight previews.

Blues for Mr. Charlie, ANTA (D). Began previews last night (Tues.).

Bits of London

London, April 14.

Clovissa Newcombe, following the folding of "Monsieur Blaise" at the Phoenix, has switched to cabaret work at the Danny La Rue Room.

Vanessa Redgrave is named a governor of the Central School of Speech and Drama, where she trained.

Road: Two 'Camelot' Troupes 138½G, 'Forum' 65½G, Mpls.; 'Woolf' 35G, Chi; 'World,' 'Clowns' Closing This Week

Business was big last week for the two road companies of "Camelot," with a combined gross of over $138,500. On the basis of a regular eight-performance week, the top-grosser was "A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum" in Minneapolis. Big in the straight play division were "A Man for All Seasons" in Toronto, "Luther" in Washington and "Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf?" in Chicago.

There was one closing last Saturday (11), the double-bill of "The Private Ear" and "The Public Eye," which shuttered in Denver. Next Saturday (18) will see the closing of "A Thousand Clowns" in St. Louis and "Stop the World—I Want to Get Off" in Philadelphia.

Estimates for Last Week

Parenthetic designations for out-of-town shows are the same as for Broadway, except that hyphenated T with show classification includes tryout. RS indicates road show and BT indicates bus-and-truck production. Also, prices on touring shows include 10% Federal tax and local tax, if any, but as on Broadway grosses are net; i.e. exclusive of taxes. Engagements are for single week unless otherwise noted.

Where subscription is mentioned, the gross is the net after the deductions of commissions. Grosses for split weeks are projected when shows play guaranteed dates.

BOSTON

Stop the World—I Want to Get Off, Shubert (MC-RS) ($6.50; 1,727; $56,000) (Kenneth Nelson, Joan Eastman). Previous week, $12,332 for seven performances, Shubert, Cincinnati, plus $4,000 guarantee for March 30 performance at Univ. of Michigan, Ann Arbor.

Last week, 28,062 with twofers in return engagement

CHICAGO

How to Succeed in Business Without Really Trying, Shubert (MC-RS) (22d wk) ($5.95-$6.95; 2,100; $74,000). Previous week, $64,625.

Last week, $52,739.

Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf? Studebaker (D-RS) (7th wk) ($5.50-$6; 1,200; $34,000) (Nancy Kelly, Sheppard Strudwick) (matinee company Michael Myers, Kendall Clark). Previous week, $30,156.

Last week, $35,169.

DETROIT

Little Me, Fisher (MC-RS) (3d wk) ($5.70-$6.50; 2,081; $75,000) (Sid Caesar). Previous week, $52,384 with Fisher Playgoer subscription.

Last week, $50,529 with Fisher Playgoer subscription.

INDIANAPOLIS

How to Succeed in Business Without Really Trying, Murat (MC-RS-3d Co.). Previous week, $61,635, KRNT, Des Moines.

Last week, $28,998.

LOS ANGELES

Enter Laughing, Biltmore (C-RS) (1st wk) ($5.50-$6; 1,636; $55,000) (Yvonne de Carlo, Alan Mowbray, Irving Jacobson, Alan Arkin). Previous week, $17,990, Wilbur, Boston.

Last week, $24,802 for seven performances with Theatre Guild-American Theatre Society subscription.

MIAMI

Camelot, Dade (MC-BT) (Biff McGuire, Jeannie Carson, Melville Cooper). Previous week, unreported.

Last week, over $62,400 for eight performances at the Dade, plus $13,078 for two performances Sunday (5) at the Municipal, Tampa.

MILWAUKEE

Thousand Clowns, Pabst (C-RS) (Dane Clark, Margaret O'Brien). Previous week, $17,040 with TG-ATS subscription, Auditorium, St. Paul.

Last week, $16,210 with TG-ATS subscription.

MINNEAPOLIS

Funny Thing Happened On the Way to the Forum, Orpheum (MC-RS) ($5.95-$6.50; 2,800; $98,000) (Jerry Lester, Edward Everett Horton, Paul Hartman, Arnold Stang). Previous week, $58,239, Hanna, Cleveland.

Last week, $65,316 with TG-ATS subscription.

PHILADELPHIA

Camelot, Shubert (MC-RS) (3d wk) ($6.60-$7.50; 1,907; $70,000) (Anne Jeffreys, George Wallace, Arthur Treacher, Robert Peterson). Previous week, $72,725.

Last week, $63,066.

PITTSBURGH

Pajama Tops, Nixon (C-RS) ($5.50; 1,760; $29,000) (June Wilkinson, Richard Vath). Previous week, $26,532 with twofers, Center, Norfolk.

Last week, $18,172 with twofers.

ST. LOUIS

In One Bed (and Out the Other), American (C-RS) (2d wk) ($5.90; 1,863; $31,500) (Jules Munshin, Greta Thyssen). Previous week, $20,015 with twofers.

Last week, $24,512 with twofers.

TORONTO

Man for All Seasons, O'Keefe (D-RS) (3d wk) ($5.50; 3,283; $89,327) (William Roderick, Bruce Gordon, Albert Dekker). Previous week, $53,660 with TG-ATS and O'Keefe subscription.

Last week, $47,997 with TG-ATS and O'Keefe subscription.

WASHINGTON

Luther, National (D-RS) (2d wk) ($4.50-$5.95; 1,673; $48,926) (John Heffernan). Previous week, $36,990 with TG-ATS subscription.

Last week, $37,722 with TG-ATS subscription.

SPLIT-WEEK

Private Ear and Public Eye (CD-RS) (Geraldine McEwan, Barry Foster, Brian Bedford, Moray Watson). Previous week, $20,576 with TG-ATS subscription, Geary, San Francisco.

Last week, $14,875 for seven performances split between Geary, S. F., and Auditorium, Denver. Closed Saturday (11) in Denver.

UNREPORTED

(Shows listed below were playing guaranteed dates for which grosses cannot be accurately figured.)

Boys From Syracuse (MC-BT), split-week.

Hollow Crown (DR-BT) split-week.

Off-B'way Review

Of Mice and Men

Equity Library Theatre revival of a drama in three acts (six scenes) by John Steinbeck. Staged by Paul Melton; settings, Kurt Lundell; lighting, Chuck Hover; costumes, Sydney Milliken; associate lighting designer, Audrey Zukerman. Opened April 5, '64, at the Master Theatre, N. Y.

Cast: Peter Masterson, Bernie Meyer, Gordon Peters, Lew Shaw, James Jennings, Jane Culley, Oliver Berg, Dan Priest, L. M. Gibbons, Floyd Ennis.

Although there are good moments in the Equity Library Theatre revival of "Of Mice and Men," the John Steinbeck play is unevenly acted, and it is paced too slowly. Much of Paul Melton's staging is effective, but he allows his actors to drawl their speeches excessively, and drags out some of the scenes until they become tedious.

Bernie Meyer is well cast and believable as Lennie. Peter Masterson is a low-key but sympathetic George. As Candy and Crooks, Gordon Peters and Floyd Ennis both have partial success. But James Jennings is an unconvincing Curley, and Jane Culley is unable to make the sole female role come to life. Oliver Berg is too laconic as Slim, and is sometimes inaudible. Dan Priest, L.M. Gibbons and Lew Shaw are adequate in support.

Kurt Lundell's sets, Chuck Hover's lighting, and Sydney Miliken's costumes are all appropriate.

Kenn.

Jeff Britton, producer of the recent Broadway flop, "A Murderer Among Us," claims the venture did not drop $155,000 as reported in VARIETY. He states the loss comes to about $125,000, representing a $100,000 investment, plus 25% overcall.

Posh Post-Preem 'Hamlet' Party

Security As for Presidential Visit—Burton-Liz Do An Emily Post—One Photog Rhubarb

By JESSE GROSS

Some of those attending the opening last Thursday night (9) of "Hamlet" at the Lunt-Fontanne Theatre, N. Y., were disappointed because of the omission of period costumes in the production which is presented as a rehearsal with most of the cast in contemporary garb. But, for the gawkers in the crowd and the sidewalk oglers there could be little complaint about the chic attire of the first-night audience. The Lunt-Fontanne was virtually wall-to-wall in black tie and the latest couture.

Many of those in formal attire moved on after the performance to the Rainbow Room, a few blocks away and 65 floors up, for producer Alexander H. Cohen's post-premiere party. The lobby of the RCA Building, in which the Rainbow Room is located, was blanketed by a security detail and anyone without invitation was persona non grata. Some 550 guests were invited to the shindig with the celeb contingent topped by Richard Burton, who plays the title role in the Cohen production, and his bride, Elizabeth Taylor.

Because of the hefty guest list, the party was split between the Rainbow Room and the Rainbow Grill on the same floor. This was unfortunate in that it lent itself to class distinction. Charles McHarry, in his Saturday (11) column in the N. Y. Daily News, referred to the Grill setup with the comment, "I kept hearing bleats about discrimination, segregation, snobbery and plots darker than any shown in the play." He suggested, "Alex get thee to a monastery or other place of sanctuary until all this blows over."

Thus, it seems that Cohen, in trying to accommodate as many people as possible (his office says it had to turn down a few hundred requests for invitations with one persistent individual calling about 20 times) may have rubbed some the wrong way. Nevertheless, he carried off a difficult job well and, in particular, saw to it that the Burtons made two trips to the Grill to provide those in that room with a looksee and introductions. Incidentally, Burton and his lovely wife handled themselves well throughout despite having been surrounded by a constant swarm of photographers and/or guests.

One of the newspaper photogs created a minor incident when he attempted to take pictures in one of the dining areas. An agreement had been reached with the press whereby pictures were to be taken only in the entrance lounge. However, a pool photographer and others hired by Cohen were permitted to take some pictures in the two rooms being used for the party.

Tony Cabot fronted an orch for dancing in the Rainbow Room and pianist Dudley Moore, one of the original members of the "Beyond the Fringe" cast, worked the Grill with his trio.

Legit Bits

Eli Wallach and his actress-wife, Anne Jackson, sailed last Saturday (11) for London where they'll appear in the double-bill of "The Typist" and "The Tiger."

Nancy Nugent has succeeded Bryarly Lee as femme lead in "Billygoat Eddie," which opens tonight (Wed.) at the Writer's Stage, N.Y.

The American National Theatre & Academy and its Greater N.Y. Chapter moved yesterday (Tues.) to new headquarters in the ANTA Theatre N.Y.

"Three," comprised of Jacques Audiberti's "The China Bird," translated by Nina Graboi; Michael de Ghelderode's "Escurial," translated by Robert Hellman, and Hellman's "Kling," will be presented next Monday night (20) by Maecenas Productions at the Phoenix Theatre, N.Y. The plays, all one-acters, are being directed by Eugene Lion.

'Doubletalk' Off-B'way

"Doubletalk," the overall title for two one-acters by Lewis John Carlino, is being produced for a May 4 opening at the Theatre de Lys, N. Y., by Cheryl Crawford and Roger L. Stevens. The double-bill will comprise "The Dirty Old Man," starring Franchot Tone, and "Sarah and the Sax," in which Ruth White and Clarence Williams will be the only performers.

Both plays will be directed by Cyril Simon. Arthur Waxman is general manager for the production.

Repertory Review

The Crucible

American National Theatre & Academy presentation of National Repertory Theatre revival of drama in two acts (five scenes) by Arthur Miller. Staged by Jack Sydow; producers, Michael Dewell and Frances Ann Dougherty; settings, Peter Larkin; costumes, Alvin Colt; lighting, Tharon Musser; production supervisor, Robert Calhoun; musical director, Dean Fuller. Opened April 8, '64, at the Belasco Theatre, N.Y.; $4.95 top weeknights, $7.50 weekends.

Betty Parris ..... Pamela Gruen
Rev. Parris ..... Ben Yaffee
Tituba ..... Osceola Archer
Abigail Williams ..... Kelly Jean Peters
Mrs. Ann Putnam ..... Mary Hara
Thomas Putnam ..... G. Wood
Mercy Lewis ..... Susan Carr
Mary Warren ..... Barbara Stanton
John Proctor ..... Farley Granger
Rebecca Nurse ..... Betty Sinclair
Giles Corey ..... George Turner
Rev. John Hale ..... Denholm Elliott
Elizabeth Proctor ..... Anne Meacham
Ezekiel Cheever ..... Richard Bowler
Marshall Willard ..... Clinton Anderson
Judge Harthorne ..... Jerome Raphel
Governor Danforth ..... Thayer David
Sara Good ..... Mary Hara
Hopkins ..... Fred Ainsworth

The second of the National Repertory Theatre's current offerings is a rewarding production of Arthur Miller's powerful drama, "The Crucible." Under the taut direction of Jack Sydow, the production is compelling and frequently intense.

The best performance is by Anne Meacham as one of the Salem women accused of witchcraft. Underplaying effectively, she changes from a cold, self-righteous woman to one who recognizes her own flaws and the goodness of her condemned husband.

Farley Granger conveys much of the torment, anger, and frustration of the latter, who knows that the trials are a fraud but can save himself only by confessing to traffic with the Devil. His performance is competent, but not as expert as the role deserves.

Kelly Jean Peters makes a promising Broadway debut as the girl who accuses her neighbors, evoking the terrifying self-confidence and vengefulness of the character. Denholm Elliot is fine as the preacher, and Thayer David is ideally cast as the chief judge.

The rest of the acting is just adequate, but that doesn't keep the production from being gripping. Peter Larkin's settings are stark but suitable, and the costumes by Alvin Colt and lighting by Tharon Musser are laudable. Kenn.

Touring Shows

(Figures cover April 13-25)

Boys From Syracuse (bus-truck)—Split-week (April 13-18); American, St. L. (April 20-25).
Camelot—Shubert, Philly (April 13-25).
Camelot (bus-truck)—Split-week (April 13-18); Civic, N. O. (April 20-25).
Enter Laughing—Biltmore, L. A. (April 13-25).
Fade Out-Fade In (trvout) — Shubert, New Haven (April 20-25).
Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum (2d Co.)—Auditorium, St. P. (April 13-18); Pabst, Milwaukee (April 20-25).
Hollow Crown (bus-truck) — Split-weeks (April 13-25).
How to Succeed in Business Without Really Trying (2d Co.) — Shubert, Chi (April 13-25).
How to Succeed in Business Without Really Trying (3d Co.)—Murat, Indpls. (April 13-18); Brown, L'ville (April 20-25).
In One Bed (and Out the Other) — Hanna, Cleve. (April 13-25).
Little Me—Fisher, Det. (April 13-18); Curran, S. F. (April 20-25).
Luther—Shubert, Boston (April 13-25).
Man For All Seasons—Capitol, Montreal (April 13-18); Fisher, Det. (April 20-25).
Pajama Tops—Orpheum, Madison, Wis. (April 13-14); Music Hall, Omaha April 15-18); Music Hall, K. C. (April 21-25).
Royal Shakespeare Theatre—National, Wash. (April 13-25).
Stop the World—I Want to Get Off—Forrest, Philly (April 13-18; closes).
Thousand Clowns — American, St. L. (April 13-18, closes).
Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf? (2d Co.)—Shubert, Cincy (April 13-18); Playhouse, Wilmington (April 20-25).

Shows on B'way

Continued from page 62

Hamlet

ous First Gravedigger, George Voskovec is competent as the Player King, and William Redfield and Clement Fowler are adequately unctious as Guildenstern and Rosencrantz, Robert Milli is a somewhat decorous Horatio, John Gielgud reads the part of the Ghost melifluously over the p.a. system (his presence is also indicated by an enlarged shadow on the blackwall) and Linda Marsh lacks projection in the always difficult role of Ophelia, although she's clearer-spoken than some of her experienced and more priminently featured colleagues.

The Ben Edwards setting, a pseudo-backwall with towering doors, plus platforms, stairs and a few set pieces and props, seems overly expansive, and tends to dwarf the performance. Jane Greenwood's costumes, in the free style of Gielgud's conception, are confusing, but Jean Rosenthal's lighting is expressive.

The revival pretty much boils down to Richard Burton's generally potent performance and presence, with a valiant assist from Hume Cronyn, greatly modified by the theoretically provocative but impractical rehearsal-clothes production scheme. The theory that the gimmick should emphasize the beauty of the text simply doesn't work. Nevertheless, this is an interesting, if slow and overlong "Hamlet." Hobe.

West Side Story

N. Y. City Center Light Opera Company (Jean Dalrymple, director) revival of a musical drama in two acts, based on a conception of Jerome Robbins, with book by Arthur Laurents, music, by Leonard Bernstein, lyrics by Stephen Sondheim, entire production directed and choreographed by Jerome Robbins. Revival staged by Gerald Freedman; choreography remounted by Tom Abbott; original co-choreographer Peter Gennaro; musical director, Charles Jaffee; original scenic production, Oliver Smith; revival scenic production, Peter Wolf; costumes, Irene Sharaff, supervision, Stanley Simmone; lighting, Jean Rosenthal. Opened April 8, '64, at the City Center, N.Y.C.; $4.95 top.

Cast: Don McKay, Julia Migenes, Luba Lisa, James Moore, Joe Bennett, Harry Davis, Jay Norman, Erin Martin, Ted Gunther, B. J. De Simone, Frank Downing, Steve Curry, Marily Cooper, Mark Jude Sheil, Brooks Morton, Wilma Curley, Barry Burns, Larry Moss, Hamp Dickens, Danny Lockin, Joe Corby, John McCook, Tobie Lynn, Barbara Rogers, Gloria Kaye, Eileen Casey, Noel Schwartz, Tim Ramirez, Jo Jo Smith, Kent Thomas, Carlos Gorbea, Richard Balin, Carmine Terra, Eliot Feld, Carmen Morales, Ella Thompson, Diana Corto, Lolli Hinton, Tina Faye.

The City Center's spring season of musicals is off to a running start with a top-grade revival of "West Side Story." The vivid, pulsating production recaptures the excitement of Jerome Robbins' staging and choreography, the beauty of Leonard Bernstein's score, and the drama of Arthur Laurents' book.

A fine young company brings the opposing teenage gangs and their girls to life, from the tense, rhythmic prolog to the moving finale. Julia Migenes is an enchanting Maria, and Don McKay a laudable Tony. The two sing "Tonight" and "One Hand, One Heart" effectively, and are fine in the ballet, "Somewhere."

Luba Lisa is a vivacious and sympathetic Anita, and the members of the rival gangs are all excellent, particularly Jay Norman, who makes an excellent Bernardo, and James Moore, who dances extremely well as Riff.

Joe Bennett, Mark Jude Sheil, Steve Curry, Erin Martin, B. J. De Simone and Carmen Morales all register favorably, and Harry Davis, Ted Gunther, Frank Downing and Brooks Morton do well in the relatively unrewarding adult roles.

Director Gerald Freedman and choreographer Tom Abbott rate A-plus for their recreation of the original Robbins staging. The orchestra, under the direction of Charles Jaffe, could hardly be bettered. At $4.95 top, this Kenn.

The N.Y. Public Library, in association with The American Scandinavian Foundation, began a series of Monday night readings from the Scandinavian Drama at the Donnell Library last Monday (13) with R. V. Forslund's translation and adaptation of Ibsen's "The Wild Duck," directed by Bob Heren. Scheduled to follow are Strindberg's "Master Olof," April 27; Hjalmar Bergman's "The Baron's Will," May 11, and a new play by Valentin Chorell, May 25.

Inside Stuff—Legit

The opening April 5 of the National Repertory Theatre at the Belasco Theatre, N.Y., was a black-tie gala, honoring Eva Le Gallienne's 50th year in the theatre. After the final curtain of "The Seagull," ANTA executive director Stanley Young took the stage to pay tribute to Miss Le Gallienne and the company, and then introduced Adlai Stevenson. The UN Ambassador, in a gracious and witty speech, praised Miss Le Gallienne's accomplishments and her efforts in behalf of the repertory movement. He then presented the 1964 ANTA Award to the actress.

Among those spotted in the celebrity-filled audience were Katherine Cornell, John Gielgud, Lillian Hellman, Margaret Leighton, Agnes De Mille, Luise Rainer, Cornelia Otis Skinner, Lillian Gish, William Prince, Helen Menken, June Havoc, Zachary Scott, Ruth Ford, Earle Hyman and Kitty Carlisle.

"Look Bridegroom What You Found," a comedy written almost 400 years ago in Italy, by Yehuda Somo of Mantova, is the original fare the amateur theatre group of the students of the Hebrew University in Jerusalem are carrying with them to the International Festival of Amateur Students' Theatres to be held in Nancy, France, later this month.

This comedy, the first ever written in Hebrew (as far as there are records, or copies found), is a gay Commedia Del Arte love-and-fun story and has been adapted by Dr. Leah Goldberg, a poetess and playwright lecturing on European and comparative Literature at the Hebrew University. Directed by Robin Morgan this production had a number of performances both in Jerusalem and Tel Aviv, and aroused mixed reactions.

The 20th Century Fund issued questionnaires to the audience at the recent Martha Graham dance recital at Philharmonic Hall, N.Y., seeking to ascertain facts as to typical patrons, their age, marital status, annual income, profession and so on. How did the patron happen to attend the event tonight: check mail list, newspaper ad, press story, radio or video, poster, word of mouth.

Another question: Did you pay to get in? Also queried: Status of the patron as contributor to the arts, other than purchase of tickets for given events.

TV producer-author Jerry Stagg has decided on "The Brothers Shubert" as the title of the definitive work he is doing for Random House on the famed theatrical dynasty. It's slated for 1966 publication because the author envisions mirroring "the story of the American theatre in the 20th century" through the careers of Sam S., Lee and Jacob J. Shubert. With the exception of the late A. J. Liebling's 1939 New Yorker profile there has been little written about the private lives of the Shuberts.

Legit 'Reform' Boob's Trap?

Continued from page 61

ance,—make a public investigation of the matter.

The threat of such an investigation is obviously the threat of death, for no producer could finance a production, lease a theatre, or even sign a cast, in the face of a public investigation. The opportunity for "shakedowns," which you so rightly deplore, would be unlimited. Some check on this unrestrained power is essential, if such opportunities are to be eliminated.

The Bill amending the Penal Law is almost as vicious, when viewed realistically. This Bill makes it a penal offense for certain persons to receive a premium or other payment for a theatre ticket — the type of payment generally known as "ice." This law is either naive or hypocritical. It is well-known that the people who accept "ice" do so in open violation of Penal Law No. 439 (the commercial bribery section) and Regulation 2(d) of the Theatre Regulations adopted by the New York City Department of Licenses (prohibiting theatre owners and their employees from accepting commissions).

They also regularly risk prosecution under the Federal Internal Revenue Code. Can it be seriously contended that the people who are now flouting three laws will be turned into law-abiding citizens by the enactment of a fourth? What they will be turned into is a flock of sitting ducks for shakedown artists. (The solution of the "ice" problem, incidentally, lies along quite different lines.)

I am not, in any of the foregoing impugning the motives of the people who proposed this legislation. I am not remotely suggesting that the present Attorney General or his present staff would try to administer these laws in other than the most honest and efficient manner. Unhappily, the same thing was true of the men who first proposed the Liquor Laws which you are seeking to amend.

Our government is a government of laws, not men, and it is based on a system of checks and balances. Legislation that ignores this principle opens the door to unrestrained power, and, given time, unrestrained power always corrupts.

I know that other members of the bar have pointed out the dangers of censorship inherent in these Bills; their duplication of existing law; the hastily drawn nature of some of the provisions. I agree with such criticisms and see no need to repeat them here. I wish, however, to make one non-legal point.

The public has been led to believe that these Bills will curb speculation in tickets by ticket brokers and thus eliminate excessive prices. Neither of these Bills — nor the so-called "Ice Bill" which failed of passage—professes to regulate such speculation. If these Bills become law, the public will soon see that the legislation proposed by your administration to solve the problem of high priced tickets has been completely unrealistic and useless.

The solution of the theatre ticket problem does not lie in the passage of hastily drawn, ill conceived, legislation. It is submitted that it can be shown—in a calmer climate—that a necessary step in any solution is the repeal of all existing legislation dealing with the subject. I again urge Your Excellency to veto these Bills and await the proposal of a comprehensive plan from those members of the industry who have opposed, and still oppose, the present legislation.

In conclusion, I should clarify my position.

For 40 years I have been intimately connected with the New York theatre as a practicing attorney, business head of a well-known producing organization, and as a Trustee or Board Chairman of various non-profit theatrical organizations. In submitting this plea that you veto the bills mentioned above, I am acting for myself, as a citizen of the State, and not in behalf of any client.

I have to honor to remain
Yours faithfully,
John F. Wharton

Met Opera's Shortened Tour Opens in Boston

Shortened this time by the special situation of a return to Manhattan for a World's Fair "season" of two weeks the Met Opera is at the Music Hall, Boston, this week with the Cleveland Auditorium due April 20-26.

Resumption of road tour after 16 performances in New York, will be at Fox (film) Theatre in Atlanta May 11-17; the State Fair Music Hall, Dallas, May 18-20; Northrup Auditorium, Minneapolis, May 21-24, and Masonic Temple, Detroit, for the May 25-30 windup.

Francis Robinson is again in charge of the tour.

Shows Abroad

Continued from page 62

The Formation Dancers confidence and so put their edgy marriage on firmer ground.

None of the four appears to think of anything more elevating than bed, though there is a great deal of pseudo-emotional palaver about it. While the flippant banter is going on the comedy is pleasant and engaging. Towards the end, however, the author bogs down in an attempt to find inner meaning in the relationships. But the four are too shallow to be more than adolescents subjected to the inconveniences and problems of illicit romancing and domestic deceit.

Robin Bailey is excellent as the phoney, vain writer-lecturer who analyzes every emotion, has an apt quote for every situation and regards his juvenile approach to love as adult and sophisticated. Gerald Flood, as the husband who cannot break up his home out of affection, but cannot break away from the association with a girl who can do him nothing but harm, is also drily amusing.

The two femmes are also well contrasted. Maxine Audley has deft comedy values as the musicomedy actress who goes along with things as the author's-wife. Joanna Dunham is effective in the tricky role of a forthright, hard, sexy actress.

Clive Donner has staged the comedy with style and imagination and, above all, at a brisk pace. He introduces several ironic touches of direction which add to the play's flavor. The Sally Jacobs setings are economical, but perfectly right and work well on the theatre's smallish stage. Rich.

Everybody Loves Opal

London, April 2.

Bob Swash (by arrangement with J. A. Gatti) presentation of a comedy in three acts (five scenes), by John Patrick. Staged by Toby Robertson; decor and lighting, Brian Currah. Stars Betty Marsden, Liz Fraser, James Villiers; features Warren Mitchell. Opened April 1, '64, at the Vaudeville Theatre, London; $3.50 top.

Opal	Betty Marsden
Viv	James Villiers
Gloria	Liz Fraser
Solomon	Warren Mitchell
Joe	Robert Arnold
Doctor	Donald Bisset
Stranger	Kenneth Campbell

There's not much to be said about "Everybody Loves Opal" that's apt to cheer Bob Swash, who is presenting the show at the Vaudeville Theatre, for John Patrick, the author, or for any of the investors. The comedy is a dismal prospect, with virtually no chance of survival, particularly after the critical drubbing it received.

It is hard to understand how a writer with the experience of John Patrick conceived such a play, and his own description of it as "a prank" hardly makes it more palatable. It is a tedious, wishy-washy piece of sentiment, which cannot justify a place in the West End theatre of today.

The best feature of the production is Brian Curran's setting of the living room of the junk woman who is the title character. The intended comedy of three small-time crooks who plot to murder the old woman for her insurance money is a feeble exercise which sets out to demonstrate that virtue will triumph over evil. The dialog, the incident and even the acting is of little help.

Toby Robertson's staging is uneven. Myro.

Mother's Boy

London, April 1.

Alan Kaplan Productions and J.R. Productions presentation (by arrangement with H. M. Tennent Ltd.) of a two-act (seven scenes) comedy by Sewell Stokes. Staged by David Tomlinson; scenery, Ralph Brinton; costumes, Clare Jeffrey; music, Michael Dress; lighting, Michael Northern. Stars David Tomlinson, Peggy Mount; features Ann Bell, Alan Bennion, Robert Raglan. Opened March 19, '64, at the Globe, London; $3.50 top.

Ralph Spicer	David Tomlinson
Miss Pringle	Ann Bell
Mrs. Spicer	Peggy Mount
Mrs. Dickson	Dorothy Batley
Mr. Lapham	Alan Bennion
Tigellinus	Robert Raglan
Burrus	Tom Bowman
Seneca	Alan Bennion
Phaon	John Porter Davison
Otho	Blake Butler
Guards	Robert Hollyman, Martyn Hartley
Servants	Dorothy Avery, Roger Williams, Brian Hunt

David Tomlinson, as both actor and stager of this inane comedy, brings all his popular artifice to bear in a vain attempt to save it. "Mother's Boy" is a witless affair which doesn't rate even a minor run.

Inconception, writing and production, the piece is ponderously unfunny. It concerns a writer of popular historical novels whose themes have all to do with the Roman Empire. There are times when he takes on the moods and characterization of the particular Emperor he is writing about.

Tomlinson's baffled, fatuous style isn't enough to save the show, and he has to fall back on irrelevant tricks which are more padding. Peggy Mount, understandably more subdued than usual, has a reasonable stab at the role of the hectoring, possessive mother, and Ann Bell makes a slight, but pretty heroine.

Robert Raglan, Alan Bennion, Tom Bowman and Blake Butler are among the others caught up in the farrago of poor jokes, wisecracks and concocted situations. Ralph Brinton and Clare Jeffreys have, respectively, provided effective, flashy sets and costumes, and Michael Dross a short snatch of undistinguished music remorselessly plugged to bridge the gaps between scenes. Rich.

Don Juan

Paris, April 7.

Vera Korene presentation of Marcel Marceau Co. in Mime Parade, Pantomimes and full length mime drama, "Don Juan," by Andre Laszlo and Marceau. Staged by Marceau; costumes and sets, Jacques Noel; music, Jean Prodromides. Stars Marcel Marceau; features Lele De Triana, Pierre Verry, Rosenda Monteros, Francis Bocquet. Opened March 23, '64, at the Theatre Renaissance, Paris; $3.50 top.

After six months doing his one-man sketches, Marcel Marceau has reorganized his company to give a full mime-drama, plus his sketches and mime interludes by other members of his group. Again the appeal and vitality of this ancient art form is captured by the star, and the show appears in for a run here and should have appeal on his foreign tour later this year.

First up is the "Parade," a series of pantomimes illustrating the Marceu style of mime. Marceau does most of these. Pretending to climb a high building, he gives the feeling of tension, space and movement. Then he simulates vertigo as he totters on the supposed brink of the building. All this sans props.

The "Don Juan" piece runs 70 minutes. Marceau sets this seducer in modern times, but it is acceptable since his mythical aspects and the wordless qualities make it universal and timeless. Mosk.

Fruehjahrsparade

(Spring Parade)

Vienna, March 25.

Volksopera production of operetta in two parts, by Ernest Marischka, Volksopera version by Hugo Wiener; music, Robert Stolz; musical direction, Stolz; direction, Otto Fritz. Stars Guggi Loewinger and Erich Kuchar; features Mimi Coertse, Peter Minich, Gretl Schoerg, Peter Gerhard, Rudolf Carl, Hans Unterkirchner; Lilly Stepanek, with the Austrian regiment of the Guards (250), commanded by Major Alfred Nagl and the Mozart Boys Choir. Volksopera ballet, Dia Lucca; settings and lighting, Walter Hoesslin; costumes, Alice Maria Schlesinger. World premiere, Volksopera, Vienna, March 25, 1964; $5 top.

Marika	Guggi Loewinger
Willi Sedlmayer	Erich Kuchar
Hansi Gruber	Mimi Coertse
Gustl v. Laudegg	Peter Minich
Therese Huebner	Gretl Schoerg
Fritz	Harald Oslender
Neuwirth	Peter Gerhard
Swoboda	Rudolf Carl
Von Laudegg	Hans Unterkirchner
Klothilde von Laudegg	Lilly Stepanek
Sct. Mittermeier	Friedrich Nidetzky
The Emperor	Fred Liewehr
Ketterl	Hans Laurer
Teacher	Hilde Laengauer
Aide-de-camp	Wolfgang Zimmer
Archduchess	Hedda Kindler

"Spring Parade," the most stupendous and gorgeous production so far in operetta tradition-laden Vienna, is based on the motion picture by the same author, Ernst Marischka, and composer, Robert Stolz. The three times repeated world success of the film gave the writers the idea to transform the Cinderella story into a stage version.

Joe Pasternack produced "Spring Parade" twice for Universal before World War II, Henry Koster directing both times—once in Budapest with the Hungarian Franziska Gaal starring and once in Hollywood with Deanna Durbin in the lead. In 1954 Ernst Marischka became his own producer and Romy Schneider was his star.

Operetta historians might well classify "Spring Parade" as a parallel to "Two Hearts in Three Quarter Time," also with music by Stolz, which was also turned later into an operetta, a rare and risky evolution, because ordinarily it's the other way around.

The newly adapted Volksopera building, a real showcase now, never before witnessed a world premiere comparable to this one. Volksopera, being a repertory theatre, "Spring Parade" is bound to stay on for many years. Thus, Ernst Marischka, librettist of international fame, who passed away about one year ago, has scored his perhaps greatest success postmortem.

Composer Robert Stolz personally conducted the show. The presence of the President of Austria, members of government, corps diplomatique and society at the "Spring Parade" preem marked undoubtedly a milestone in the history of the operetta.

In this Cinderella story, laid in the golden era of the Austrian Empire, ably adapted for the Volksopera version by Hugo Wiener, practically every type of the people around 1905 is represented.

Guggi Loewinger gives a standout performance and Erich Kuchar is the perfect juvenile lead. Gretl Schoerg, as the widow, is excellent as are Hansi Gruber, Mimi Coertse and Peter Minich.

The real star of the show is Robert Stolz. His galaxy of melodies ensemble, ballet and finale numbers is surefire light opera stuff. The Volksopera orchestra of 65, with Stolz as director is superb.

"The Melody You Can Never Forget," a love duet, is a hit parade. Tenor Peter Minich's outstanding number is "Today I Sing For You." "I'm Happy When the Sun Shines" also had many encores. The march, "When The Birds Start To Sing," "I Cannot Promise It, But I'll Do My Best," "In Springtime, Moonlight, Grinzing" are bound to participate in prominence with Stolz's other Viennese songs, as is "Lovely Vienna at Night. The love song, "A Glass Of Champagne Is Enough," went over big, as did "My Heart Is Bursting," "A Little Bit of Happiness," "We're Young, We're Gay," which stopped the show.

Otto Fritz has provided skilfully taut direction of the gigantic production. Everything moves in high gear all the way until the overwhelming finale, which assembles on stage 400 persons (250 extras by the Vienna Guard Corps of the Army). Walter Hoesslin's settings are particularly effective. In sharpening the mood, he uses the most modern revolving stage and various other devices. Alice Marie Schlesinger's costumes are a joy.

Dia Lucca's choreography is capital although the ballet at the beginning of the second act is too long.

The Austrian army is represented by 250 men of the Vienna Guard Corps, commanded by Major Alfred Nagl, all marching to the stirring Stolz melodies.

Despite the elaborate settings, it was quite clear to many interested parties from all parts of Europe and abroad here to weigh the possibilities of production, that this "Spring Parade" will serve its purpose in a less costlier outfit. The charming story and the excellent score are a guarantee. Maas.

Met's Chief Serene Despite All

Rudolf Bing a Candid Impresario—Vexations of Repertory in Today's Inflation Detailed

By ROBERT J. LANDRY

Probably pushing to the outer rim of candor possible to the impresario of an opera house, the Met's Rudolf Bing met informally last week with the New York music press. The scene was the lounge of the Opera Guild, usually the refreshment station of the golden horseshoe. A great deal of fascinating insight was afforded as to the next season and the problems of operating operatic repertory under private financing in the inflation-haunted affluent society.

If the sheer recital of the forces and personalities which must be kept in working harmony were sufficient to alarm the mere onlooker, Bing was undismayed. Not even the current demands of his musicians (see separate story) tempted him to a fleeting grimace. Opera life is real, it is earnest and the grave is not its goal, to paraphrase Longfellow.

Bing began gaily by challenging Miles Kastendieck, of the N.Y. Journa-American, to assume his regular role as provocateur. The critic did his best as gadfly, but at the conclusion Bing expressed disappointment. Kastendieck could do better.

He had, true, challenged the failure of the Met to arrange more than three new productions next season. And why not a Richard Straus cycle? And so on. Bing (15th year coming up) professed astonishment when told that he had once presented six new productions in one season. "Did I really?", was the gist of his reaction, when the fact was confirmed by an aide.

Money alone was never the whole problem at the Met, Bing stressed. Time for planning, contracting, building, rehearsing was always an insistent consideration. There are generous ladies who would finance more new productions, but repertory is the art of the possible within time and space.

One question not asked was how handsome but buxom Birgit Nilsson is going to manage that dance of the veils when she appears next season in "Salome." A good deal was said about the sopranos on the roster. Bing contrived to be both realistic and gallant, a considerable achievement in itself.

The press curiosity about prima donna antics was obvious. Significantly, it was acknowledged that Maria Callas "might" return. Nothing is set. The contract would not be easy to consummate. But the lady is a great artist and most "welcome" at the Met, if and when.

That the Met changes casts a lot is a necessity of its kind of repertory. La Scala in Milan is able to present a new production with a fixed roster eight times in two months and then discard it. It goes otherwise at the Met, with a 27 week season (next year) and with a series of 27 different odd-and-even performances divided among the 16,000 subscribers (upped lately from 14,000).

Certain roles, as Mimi in "La Boheme," are passed around among the sopranos. First, because so many are up in the role. Second, because a house cannot have singers under contract and not arrange for them to "let out."

Interesting sidelights on the Met: It will make one road jump this spring, Dallas to Minneapolis, by air, a first time. Usually the Met tours in a long special train like Ringling Bros., Barnum & Bailey. For this air-jump the Met is chartering three passenger and one freight plane.

The company is curtailing its 1964 spring tour to return to N.Y. for two weeks. This requires understanding. The road tour is a sure thing, the Met's only always-profitable venture. The World's Fair "gesture" meant that 16 non-subscription performances were up for auction.

As for last week, the ticket sale was 75% of capacity. The American Express ticket franchise was an exclusive from last September until this February, but since then the Met has circularized the world at large. Bing has no expectation of repeating in the spring of 1965. One such gesture to the Fair was all the Met can risk.

Much of the questioning concerned certain artists and works. The Met has 30 of the greatest opera singers in the world for longer periods of time than has any other opera house. t has a very large total roster of talent. It is not always possible to contract certain obviously distinguished singers for reasons of conflict of dates and unsuitability of vehicles.

The acute problem in talent lies with conductors. Bing mentioned a number who either conduct very little opera nowadays or propose to quit the field. It is hard work, not very rewarding, and the conductors often do better in other areas. The Met is hampered by distance, even in this jet age. One Italian conductor, "an extraordinarily devoted father," will not consent to be away from Milan over three weeks at a stretch. This man can conduct at Covent Garden in London at night and be home for luncheon in Italy next day.

Leonard Bernstein, who had his debut at the Met recently with "Falstaff," one of this season's big clicks, will not be available next season. He's taking a sabbatical year off from the Philharmonic and is unwilling to break the sabbatical for opera performances.

Two legit personages due back for stagings next season are Alfred Lunt and Cyril Pritchard.

The Met's gross for the season just ended in Manhattan was $4,685,600, compared to the official advance estimate of $4,688,300. There's a cash deficit of $60,000 and a more realistic operating deficit of $1,400,000. The latter must be made up by voluntary contributions from individuals, corporations, foundations, et al.

Bing and Met Musicians, 1964

Rudolf Bing, Managing Director of the Metropolitan Opera, last week summoned the New York music press to explain the new season and was promptly asked, "But will there be a season?" This was in reference to the wage and working demands of Local 802, American Federation of Musicians, the union among some 14 at the Met which most troubles management.

In reply, Bing eschewed despondency, said it was a matter of bargaining which would start, hopefully, this, week the first on tour, while the Met is playing Boston. "We have often conducted labor negotiations while on tour," he reminded the scribes. The present negotiations with 802 may not be haunted by the events of 1961, on both sides, but seem obviously under their shadow. It was then that the season was both cancelled and restored and that bargaining broke down and went to arbitration by then Secretary of Labor Arthur J. Goldberg, now a Supreme Court Justice.

Under questioning by the press, Bing or his various executive aides who were present developed a fiscal picture of the position of the musicians at the opera house. Counting in advance rehearasls and road tour to make a yearly work span of 35 weeks, it was estimated that pitmen compensation averages from $245 to $330 weekly. About half the men are over-scale.

Present demands of 802 are not confined to basic wage rates alone. Pitmen want the salary hike to apply to five performances weekly instead of the customary seven. This would force the hiring of extra men. Bing explained that while "Figaro" and certain operas can be played with a small complement, thus providing nights off, this is the rare exception in repertory.

Putting the musicians' demands in the perspective of the last three years (the contract length), these figures emerge:

1961	basic then existing	$170.13	weekly
1961	basic then existing	$170.13	weekly
1961	demand by union	268.80	"
1961	arbitration award	180.00	"
1962	" "	185.00	"
1963	"	190.00	"
1964	demand by union	280.00	"

The musicians average some 300 in-season hours of paid rehearsals, on which the Goldberg decision set the hourly rate at $3.45, then $3.65, the now-prevailing rate. Local 802's demand under this item is $7.50 per hour.

Australian Shows

(Week Ending April 11)

ADELAIDE

Fledermaus, Her Majesty's.
Antigone, Emerald Hill.

MELBOURNE

Barefoot in Park, Princess.
Camelot, Her Majesty's.
Don't Tell Father, St. Martin's.
Love Rides Rails, Russell St.
Philippine Dancers, Comedy.
Stop the World, Tivoli.

SYDNEY

Black Theatre Prague, Royal.
Boeing-Boeing, Palace.
Do You Know Milky Way, Independent.
Henry V, Tent.
How to Succeed, Her Majesty's.
Importance Being Earnest, Old Tote.
Importance Being Oscar, Old Tote.
Minstrels, Tivoli.
Physicists, Ensemble.

SCHEDULED B'WAY PREEMS

Cafe Crown, Beck (4-17-64).
Baby Want a Kiss, Little (4-19-64).
Blues for Mr. Charlie, ANTA (4-21-64).
Porgy and Bess, Center (5-8-64).
Sunday Man, Morosco (5-12-64).
Royal Shakespeare, State (5-18-64).
White House, Miller's (5-19-64).
My Fair Lady, Center (5-20-64).
Rear Like a Dove, Booth (5-21-64).
Fade Out-Fade In, Hellinger (5-26-64).
Hamlet, Delacorte (6-10-64).
King and I, State (7-6-64).
Othello, Delacorte (7-8-64).
Electra, Delacorte (8-5-64).
Merry Widow, State (8-17-64).
Golden Boy, Majestic (9-28-64).
Ben Franklin, Lunt-Font. (wk. 10-12-64).

CASTING NEWS

Following are available parts in upcoming Broadway, off-Broadway, and touring shows, as well as ballet, films, industrial and television shows. All information has been obtained directly by the VARIETY Casting Department by telephone calls, and has been rechecked as of noon yesterday (Tues.).

The available roles will be repeated weekly until filled, and additions to the list will be made only when information is secured from responsible parties. The intention is to service performers with leads provided by the managements of the shows involved rather than to run a wild goose marathon. (This information is published without charge).

Parenthetical designations are as follows: (C) Comedy, (D) Drama, (MC) Musical Comedy, (MD) Musical Drama, (R) Revue, (Rep) Repertory, (DR) Dramatic Reading, (DB) Double Bill.

Legit

BROADWAY

"Ben Franklin in Paris" (MC). (c/o Casting Consultants, 22 W. 24th St., N. Y.). Available parts: femme lead, 30-35, must sing and do French accent; male, 19, likeable, must sing and dance; femme, 19, French, must sing and dance. Accepting photos and resumes through agents only, c/o above address.

OFF-BROADWAY

"Arms and the Man" (C). Producer Northwestern Productions (c/o Alfred Geller, 30 E. 60th St., N.Y.). All roles open. Send photos and resumes to Johan Fillinger at 205 W. 57th St., N.Y. Do not phone or visit.

"Dream of Swallows" (D). Producers, Sylvia & Joseph Harris (145 W. 55th St., N. Y.). Available parts: male, lead, 50s, embittered, failure, drunkard, must have bravura; male, 20, must play guitar and sing well. For audition appointment phone Delmar Hendricks at CI 5-1086 daily between 2-5 p.m. Do not visit.

"The Streets of New York" (M). Producers, Gene Dingenary & Jane Gilliland (416 W. 42d St., N.Y.). All roles open. Equity only. Legit voices required. Mail photos & resumes c/o above address. Do not phone or visit.

"The Amorous Flea" (MC). Available parts for touring company and/or understudies for N.Y. production: male, 19-23, tenor, good comedian; femme, ingenue soprano with some dance experience; male, young, character actor, able to cover juve and play older man (45-50); character male and femme comics, servent types loud voices, with some dance experience; character male, 45-55. Mail photos and resumes to John Fenn, (York Theatre, 64th St. and First Ave., N.Y.).

"This Was Burlesque" (R) Audition every Wednesday at 5 p.m. for tall femme dancers, experienced in modern, tap & ballet, at the Casino East Theatre (12th St., and Second Ave., N. Y.).

STOCK

BALTIMORE, MD.

Center Stage. Producers, William Bushnell and Edward Golden (45 W. Preston St., Baltimore, Md.). This Equity resident company is accepting photos and resumes c/o above address for a 35-week season beginning in Mid-Sept. thru mid-May.

EPHRATA, PA.

Ephrata Star Playhouse. Producer-director, John Cameron (c/o P.O. Box 334, Ephrata, Pa.). Accepting photos & resumes from dramatic & musical performers for Equity resident company, also jobbers & apprentices, c/o above address.

INDIANAPOLIS, IND.

Starlight Musicals. Auditions next Mon. (20) for dancers: Equity men at 10:00 A.M. Femmes at 11:30 A.M. Tues. (21) open call dancers: Men at 10:00 A.M. Femmes 11:30 A.M.—all at the Variety Arts Studio (225 W. 46th St., N.Y.).

SULLIVAN, ILL.

Summer of Musicals. Producer, Guy S. Little Jr. Box 155, Sullivan, Ill. Accepting photos and resumes from musical and dramatic performers for Equity resident company. Also applicants for paid apprenticeships, c/o above address.

WILLIAMSTOWN, MASS.

Williamstown Summer Theatre. Producer, Nikos Psacharopoulos (c/o School of Drama, Yale University, New Haven, Conn.). Accepting photos and resumes for a resident Equity company of twelve and a non-Equity company of six. All types will be considered. Appointments will be scheduled from photos and resumes received; mail to producer at above address. Do not phone or visit.

TOURING

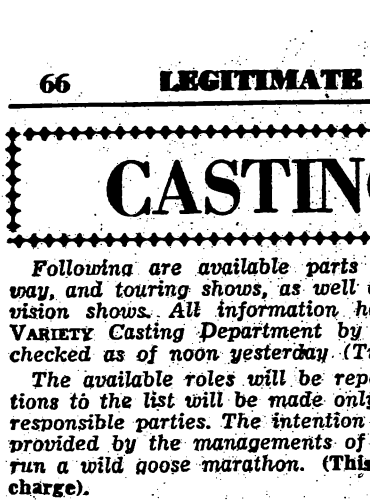
"Camelot" (M). Audition this Fri. (17) at 12 noon for Equity and open male dancer-tumblers at the 46th St. Theatre (226 W. 46th St., N. Y.).

"The Irregular Verb To Love" (C). Myrna Loy stars. All other roles open. Mail photos & resumes to McAloney Productions (853 7th Ave., N.Y.). Do not phone or visit.

Television

"Camera Three" (educational-dramatic series). Producer, CBS (524 W. 57th St., N. Y.; JU 6-6000); casting director, Paula Hindlin. Accepting photos and resumes of general male and female dramatic talent, c/o above address. No duplicates.

"Lamp Unto My Feet" (religious-dramatic series). Producer, CBS (524 W. 57th St., N. Y.; JU 6-6000); casting director, Paula Hindlin. Accepting photos and resumes of general male and female dramatic talent, c/o above address. No duplicates.



Miscellaneous

"The King and I" (M). At Lincoln Center. Auditions tomorrow (Thurs.) for dancers: Equity men at 10:00 a.m. and open call at 11:00 a.m. Equity femmes at 2:30 p.m. and open call at 3:30 p.m.—all at the New York State Theatre (62d St. and Columbus Ave., N. Y.). Report to the stage entrance.

"The Magic Flute." This one-hour version of the Opera will be presented throughout the summer at the N.Y. World's Fair. Agma-open tenor and bass voices only, should contact Mr. Friedberg at Sacramento 2-3220 daily from 9 a.m.-5 p.m. for audition appointment.

Ballet

Radio City Music Hall Ballet. Director, Marc Platt (c/o Radio City Music Hall, Rockefeller Center, N.Y.) Open call auditions for femme ballet dancers will be held Tuesdays at 3 p.m. at the Music Hall stage entrance (55 W. 50th St., N.Y.).

WELLS RICHARDSON

WALTER KERR says he likes "salt" and "seasoning" in his CHEKHOV.

RICHARDSON's performance of SORIN in THE SEA GULL brought GERALDINE PAGE to the verge of appreciative tears and caused BARBARA BULGAKOVA (former leading woman of the MOSCOW ART THEATRE) to elect him the most CHEKHOVIAN member of the cast. His FIRS in THE CHERRY ORCHARD was acclaimed as perfect by SHOW Magazine, highly commended by 7 papers.

RICHARDSON's receipe evidently has the right ingredients.

"MIKE TODD'S 'AMERICA, BE SEATED' PURE GOLD

Delightful, free and easy entertainment packed with talent. Its young company has glitter."
—New Haven Register

"Lively, bouncy exuberant production with a raft of good material, fresh and lively music, exceptionally clever sketches and lyrics."
—New Haven Journal-Courier

MIKE TODD
PRESENTS
"AMERICA, BE SEATED!"
AN ALL ORIGINAL MUSICAL ROMP
Directed by Ronny Graham
PRIOR TO N.Y. WORLD'S FAIR
Wilbur, Boston — April 14-25
Premiere Louisiana Pavilion May 15
PREVIEWS MAY 1-14

Set Another Broker Buy For London 'Funny Thing'

London, April 14.

The biggest brokers' tab guarantee in the history of the Strand Theatre will keep the tuner, "A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum," rolling into 1965. The Combined Theatre Libraries Assn. has amended the original guarantee of $224,000, announced opening night last October by Peter Cadbury up to $420,000.

The show, presented by Hal Prince, Tony Walton and Richard Pilbrow, stars Frankie Howard, Kenneth Connor, Robertson Hare, Jon Pertwee and "Monsewer" Eddie Gray.

Ronald Bruguiere is assistant to general manager Arthur Waxman on the Actors Studio productions of "Baby Want a Kiss" and "Blues for Mister Charlie."

L.A. CLO Starting 28th Season

Continued from page 61

shows at seven weeks each in Los Angeles and San Francisco and an additional week in Pasadena, the latter started two years ago. Total business in the first year hit $130,000 gross.

The CLO repertoire was only operetta in its early days, and the policy continues to stress operetta, but has also extended to musical field. The change came in 1943, when Rodgers and Hammerstein changed the musical taste of the country with "Oklahoma," Lester believes. The producer now attempts at least one operetta revival a year, and has gone as far as developing "The Merry Widow" with rewrites that makes the CLO version the standard for the operetta.

"Ideally," Lester reveals, "we now import two shows, produce a new one and do a revival each season." The pattern has been successful, and the company now grosses an average of $4,500,000 per season, including the estimated $3,000,000 subscription sales which make up the major revenue. And seats have gone from $2 to $6.90 top, which is still only abqut 60% of New York prices for New York shows.

The CLO version of "Merry Widow" will open the musical season next Aug. 17 at the New York State Theatre in the Lincoln Center, N. Y., with the Lester organization getting a royalty. Lester points out that such operettas are still popular with many people, but he also notes that 90% of the successful vehicles today were written in the last 20 years. Under its non-profit setup, the CLO maintains a large fund for the development of new properties, and ploughs all profits back into the operation. Lester is now is working on a new production of "Count of Luxembourg." There are now some 1,100 guarantors for the season who underwrite against possible financial loss.

Aside from their contributions of material to the American theatre, Lester and the CLO have developed considerable talent. For instance, in 1940 a UCLA student named Jerome Hines was a member of the chorus or, as Lester prefers to call it, "the ensemble."

Similarly, in 1942, Jan Clayton was introduced as a soubrette in "Music In the Air," the same year that launched Peter Lind Hayes and Mary Healy as well as dancers Maria and Marjorie Tallchief in "Rio Rita. "Gypsy Lady" opened in 1945, starred Helena Bliss and John Tyers, later went to Broadway for mild success and then to London for greater acclaim, and the same year found Gwen Verdon and Carol Haney toiling in the ensemble.

In 1947 a youngster named Mitzi Gerber got raves in "Song of Norway," later changed her name and Mitzi Gaynor became a film star. Lester also introduced audiences to opera stars Jean Fenn and Salvatore Baccaloni, as well as to Florence Henderson, Bruce Yarnell, John Raitt, James Hurst and numerous others who got their first legit training in his chorus.

"It's much more interesting as you look back at it than when it was happening," the producer reflects, but predicts that more is in store for the Los Angeles theatre. Particularly, he expects the opening next year of the new local Music Center will give great new opportunities to Los Angeles theatre.

The CLO staff under Lester includes Eleanor Pinkham, general manager who has been with the outfit since 1941 and originated the policy of putting New York shows in the company's repertoire. Other longtime employees include technical director Richard Rodda, business manager Dick Drew, musical director Louis Adrian, director Ed Greenberg, production manager Tommy Turner and production stage manager Kenn Randall. Publicity man Hal Wiener has been with Lester since he started 29 years ago.

The current CLO season opens [next Monday (20)] with "Kiss Me, Kate," a third time around for the Cole Porter musical. The schedule will continue with "Little Me," "Here's Love" and a special CLO production of the current Broadway hit, "110 In the Shade."

OFF-BROADWAY SHOWS

(Figures denote opening dates)

Amorous Flea, York (2-17-64).
Blacks, St. Marks (5-4-61).
Blood Knot, Cricket (3-2-64).
Boys Syracuse, Theatre 4 (4-15-63).
Caretaker, Players (1-30-64).
Cindy, Gate (3-19-64).
Fantasticks, Sullivan St. (5-3-60).
Immoralist, Bouwerie Lane (11-7-63).
In White America, Sher. Sq. (10-31-63).
Life is a Dream, Astor Pl. (3-19-64).
Little Eyolf, Actors (3-16-64).
Pinter Plays, Midway (11-26-62).
Repertory, Phoenix (3-4-64).
Salad Mad Cafe, Masque (3-31-64).
Six Characters, Martinique (3-8-63).
Streets of N. Y., Maidman (10-29-63).
Trojan Woman, Circle in Sq. (12-23-63).
Triple-bill, Cherry Lane (3-24-64).
Trumpets Lord, 1 Sher. Sq. (12-21-63).

SCHEDULED OPENINGS

Dream Swallows, Jan Hus (4-14-64).
Diary Madman, Gram. Arts (4-16-64).
Marietta, Hotel Astor (4-16-64).
Billygoat Eddie, Writers (4-20-64).
Arms & the Man, East End (4-27-64).
Doubletalk, de Lys (5-4-64).
Grossman-Corners, Actors (5-5-64).
Awakening Spring, Pocket (5-13-64).
Knack, New Theatre (5-20-64).

CLOSED

White Rose & Red, Stage 73 (3-16-64); closed last Sunday (12) after 31 performances.

*"Wacky hilarious journeys on board the fictional s.s. Flying Wind..."

There You Are, But Where Are You?

A Novel by ROBERT F. MIRVISH

"MIRVISH IS WONDERFUL!"

at concocting funny episodes that get even funnier as they develop. He is a master of the running gag. Very entertaining.
*Publishers' Weekly

"...Down to Earth Pleasure!"
—Bert Lahr
Star of "Foxy"

DUTTON $3.95

SID MELTON

The
DANNY THOMAS SHOW
Monday Nights
CBS-TV

GREAT SPACE IN TOP CENTRAL PARK HOTEL
1,000 sq. ft., air conditioned.
All hotel services available.
Reasonable.
PL 5-5800 EXT. 141

FOR LEASE
THEATRE-BY-THE-SEA
Matunuck, R. I. Seats 550. Unusually large stage. $5000 yr., including inn, restaurant, bar.
MRS. CLIVE L. DUVAL
4815 Buchanan St.
McLean, Va.

AVAILABLE
little fox theatre
152 Bleecker St., New York
MR. REYNOLDS
LO 3-1870

SCRIPT FILL IN
Newly Written. Excellent only for female comedienne.
For Sale $100, 156 words.
M. MASON
817 Cherry St., Kansas City, Missouri
VI 2-6990. Ext. 410

S. Fischer Not Selling Out

Dr. Gottfried Bermann Fischer, head of the old-line literary and dramatic agency based in Frankfurt-am-Main, West Germany, denies that he has sold out to Uebberreuter, an Austrian publishing house specializing in children's books, or to anybody else.

While there have been repeated rumors stemming from the fact that the sexagenarian Dr. Fischer has no male heirs—he and his wife have three married daughters, with apparently none interested in the publishing business—the Fischer Verlag is carrying on, as is.

S. Fischer Verlag is well known to American literary agents because playwrights such as Eugene O'Neill, Arthur Miller, Tennessee Williams, Jean Kerr et al., have worked closely with the longtime head of its dramatic department, Mrs. Stephanie Hunzinger. (American rep for Fischer is Mrs. Elizabeth Marton, sister of Paris agent George Marton and film director Andrew Marton).

Fischer some time ago reportedly sold about 25 or 30% of its business to a large West German printing plant as part of its paperback expansion which originally sparked the rumors.

Incidentally, both Dr. Fischer and his wife, says Mrs. Marton, became American citizens when they sat out the war during the Hitler holocaust. First he had gone to Sweden, to publish books in German, and eventually came to New York.

MacArthur's Postmortems

One famous phrase-maker who refuted his own remark was the late General of the Army Douglas MacArthur. Not only did he prove that "old soldiers" do die but that it isn't necessary that they "fade away." He accomplished the latter by leaving in his wake some controversy that has, and undoubtedly will, keep him in the news for some time.

On the same day, April 8, copyrighted Scripps-Howard "secret" interviews with MacArthur were published in the N.Y. World Telegram and Sun and Heart's N. Y. Journal-American. Jim S. Lucas, the S-H correspondent, and Bob Considine, writing for Hearst, evidently saw and listened to MacArthur about the time of his 74th birthday in 1954. Their "exclusives" are similar in information provided. Lucas' story centres more on the comments of MacArthur about several of his contemporaries—the British, Presidents Truman and Eisenhower, and assorted generals. Considine's, while milder, deals more fully with the late soldier's frustrated plans for ending the Korean difficulty. In both stories, the opinions expressed by their interview subject are very strong.

To date the two stories have created heavy editorial and columnar comment, plus a few reactions from the subjects of MacArthur's remarks. That more detailed statements from them are in the making can be taken for granted, and 1965 will probably see many tomes published on the subject (by the subjects).

Curtis' Close-Order Drill

When the 32-story Saturday Evening Post building is completed next fall, Curtis Publishing, which puts out the Post as well as Ladies Home Journal, Holiday, Jack & Jill and American Home, will consolidate the editorial, advertising and sales offices of all five publications in the one building.

The magazines will occupy 123,000 sq. feet of space (second through fifth floors and additional tower space) in the building to be named for the SEP. The new building will be located at Lexington Avenue and 54th Street.

The 20-year lease on the space, said Curtis chairman-president Matthew J. Culligan, will cost a total rental of $18,000,000. The magazines have been located in N.Y. since 1962 when they moved from Philadelphia, home base of Curtis. They've been scattered among several buildings here.

New building reportedly made very attractive buyup of existing leases in order to land Curtis toute ensemble.

Exec Shifts

James C. Duane, former administrative assistant to Howard Cady at Holt, Rinehart & Winston, has joined David McKay as an associate editor.

Patrick O'Connor named editor of Silver Screen and Screenland. As senior editor of Popular Library Books he had experience in film tieups ("Mockingbird," "America, America," "Proper Stranger," etc.). The fan mags are also PL publications.

Bernard Russell, sales exec, elected a v.p. of Affiliated Publishers, a division of Pocket Books Inc. which distributes for Simon & Schuster, Golden Press, PB and Washington Sq. Press. Another new Affiliated veep is Hugh Collins, regional sales manager, previously with American News.

Ralph Daigh, editorial director of Fawcett Publications Inc., has been named v.p. in charge of the Fawcett World Library.

Al Dinhofer's Book

Al Dinhofer is also "Our Man In San Juan" although he's first and primarily that for the San Juan Star whereon he does his offbeat columns, interviews, opinionating and general al fresco coverage of America's Caribbean colony. But he's also the VARIETY man on the scene and evidences a good nose for news, interspiced with good humor, in his daily stint. For this trade sheet he's more hardnosed on the basic show biz coverage.

Dinhofer's analogy to Art Buchwald's former Paris (and now Capitol) coverage is obvious. True, the Carib, while a terrific centre for tourism, hasn't the same glamor as the environs of the Eiffel Tower nor can Dinhofer indulge in the same linguistic hazards many Yanks experience in the Champs-Elysees belt. But he does evidence a tongue-in-cheek approach to the local scene. The Yank island, strongly tinged by Espagnol overtones, does have its own brand of touristic peccadilloes and the columnist makes the most of it.

Bulk of the columns comprising "Our Man In San Juan" (Star-press; $1.25) were first published in the San Juan Star. They're worthy of reprinting in this oversize paperback. Abel.

'My Son, The Candidate'

Jackie Mason's "My Son, The Candidate" is a topical $1 paperback (Citadel Press). The rabbi-turned-comedian punctuates his gag caption "interviews" with some borscht belt one-liners and, by and large, Bill Adler has written for him (to Gary Wagner photos) a bright colloquy. Adler gets co-copyright ownership with Mason, so it's a reasonable assumption he's the man with the gags but Wagner is on the title page with more prominent "billing."

It's a bright kingsize paperback attuned to the times and will hand some chuckles to the $1 investors. Abel.

Miss Lejeune Recalls

Over 30 years as film critic of the exclusive London Observer made C. A. Lejeune one of the top women of her craft—and as w.k. in the States as in Britain. Now, after three years' retirement, comes her reminiscences, "Thank You For Having Me" (Hutchinson; $3.15). Those expecting an orgy of film tittletattle and keyhole confidences may be disappointed. For Miss Lejeune has charmingly elected to weave her film reminiscences into a story that tells of the growing up and background of a middleclass young woman from the North of England. It is a story of a gracious period, now gone forever, and the reader will share Miss Lejeune's regrets at the passing.

But the cinema side is packed with interest. One of her crackerjack yarns concerns how she went to Claridges to interview some Hollywood actress who, clearly, had never heard of the interviewer. She knocked on the door and the actress shouted "Come in." Enter Miss Lejeune. The actress was stark naked. Abashed she dragged a bath-towel around her and apologized, "I'm so sorry. I thought you were a man!"

Miss Lejeune, with shrewd insight and a warm pen, tells of the arrival of the talkies, her early excitement at discovering German films, anecdotes about Robert Donat, Anna Neagle, Herbert Wilcox, Elisabeth Bergner, Alexander Korda, Laurence Olivier, Grace Moore, Alfred Hitchcock, Dietrich ("she took no pains to hide her natural boredom"), Bob Montgomery and Noel Coward. Of Disney she writes: "Sometimes I think we may not yet have understood the charm of Disney." Of Chaplin, Miss Lejeune says with disarming candor: "With the exception of 'Monsieur Verdoux' I never wholeheartedly enjoyed a Chaplin film."

But namedropping is the least part of a book that breathes the author's affection and knowledge of the film world. It's a book to please those for whom motion pictures are an important part of life—but not wholly life itself. Rich.

Guido Orlando's Confessional

There must come a time in every publicist's life when he feels that he deserves some of the limelight, yet surprisingly few of those dedicated men and women who seek the spotlight for their clients command or even want much press attention for themselves.

None of that reticence, however, seems to have brushed off on Guido Orlando, a brash, brazen and impudent public relations man, whose dapper figure is a familiar sight in New York or any of the capitals of Europe. Not so long ago his life story was serialized in one of the London mass circulation Sundays; now his biography ("Never Sleep With a Client," by Ronald Handyside; T. V. Boardman & Co.) has been published in London, and apparently he's confident a biopic will follow.

There is a refreshing element in the author's treatment of this larger-than-life character, whose ethical standards are frankly admitted to be governed by his clients' ability to pay hard cash in large sums. Part of the narrative has an "as told to" style, in which the subject of the biog recalls some of his more notable exploits to a hard-drinking newsman hired to write the book, but who appears reluctant to get ahead with the actual writing. It makes a welcome switch from the more conventional style biography, and the author's sharp sense of character is as revealing as it is amusing. Nevertheless Orlando's brash technique has a repetitious quality which Handyside cannot always conceal. Myro.

Another Dutton Contest

As a followup to the $7,500 Dutton Animal Book Award, won this year by Robert Murphy for "The Pond," E. P. Dutton & Co. is incepting a $3,500 Junior Animal Book Award which, as the competition indicates, is for the children's market. As with the adult competition, themes can be fiction or nonfiction. Both competitions end Dec. 31, 1964.

Sterling North's "Rascal" won last year's prize. Murphy's "Pond" will be published next August. Author retired in 1962 as senior editor of the Satevepost.

Toynbee's 75th Birthday

Oxford Univ. Press is keying souvenir and boxed sets of British historian Arnold J. Toynbee's works to his 75th birthday on April 14.

Best known for his 12-volume "Study of History," some 7,000 pages totaling over 3,000,000 words, Toynbee also collaborated in later years with Edward D. Myers, and also with his wife, Veronica M. (Boulter) Toynbee.

Hochuli Scholarship

A journalism scholarship fund in the memory of the late Houston Press columnist Paul Hochuli has been started here with a $1,000 gift by a friend of the columnist who asked to remain anonymous.

The fund will be handled by the Houston Press Club.

CHATTER

Richard Schickel, book editor on NBC-TV's "Sunday," was awarded a Guggenheim Fellowship to work on "The American Comic Novel, 1945 To The Present" which he will then put out for publication.

Sandra J. Adams, daughter of Jack B. Adams, exec veepee of New American Library of World Literature, engaged to Andrew R. Morris. June wedding planned.

Comedian Jack Douglas' newest, "Adventures of Huckleberry Hashimoto" (Dutton), due next month. It's about the humorist's return visit to Japan with his Nipponese wife Reiko, who is also partnered in his act, and their two-year-old son, Bobby.

Sumner Locke Elliott, tv writer and playwright, whose first novel, "Careful, He Might Hear You," a Harper & Row bestseller last fall, won the Miles Franklin Award, a $500 prize given annually in Sydney for the best novel representing Australian life or any of its phases. Joshua Logan bought "Careful" for filming; it was also a Reader's Digest Book Club suggestion.

Curtis Pub. has two more veepees, John S. Connors, who's general sales manager of Satevepost, and Robert L. Young, publisher of Jack and Jill.

Bucklin Moon, senior editor of Pocket Books and editor of PB's hardcover subsid, Trident Press, in L.A. and Frisco, contacting authors and studios.

Small Business World Inc. has been authorized to conduct a publishing business in Yorktown, N.Y.

Publishing Stocks

(As of April 14, closing)

Allyn & Bacon (OC)	19⅞	— ¾
American Book (AS)	38¾	—1¼
Amer. Book Strat (AS)	5⅝	+1⅛
Amer. Heritage (OC)	7¼
Book of Month (N.Y.)	17¼	+ ¼
Conde Nast (N.Y.)	13
Cowles (OC)	14¼	+1
Crowell Collier (N.Y.)	22⅜	+1⅛
Curtis Pub. (N.Y.)	7⅞	+ ⅛
Esquire nc. (AS)	9¾	— ⅝
Ginn & Co. (N.Y.)	30¼	—1¼
Grolier (OC)	44⅞	+ ⅞
Grossett & Dunlap (OC)	12
Harcourt Brace (N.Y.)	38½
Hayden Pub. (OC)	3
Hearst (OC)	27½	+ ½
Holt R & W (N.Y.)	24½	— ¾
LA Times-Mirror (OC)	35¾
Macfadden Bartel (AS)	6⅛	— ⅛
McCall (N.Y.)	27¼	+ ¼
McGraw-Hill (N.Y.)	38	+1¼
Meredith Pub. Co.	27¾
Nat'l Per. Pub. (OC)	14¼	+1½
New Yorker (OC)	121
Pocket Books (OC)	4⅞	— ¼
Popular Library (OC)	2½
Prentice Hall (AS)	28	+ ¾
Random House (N.Y.)	14⅞	+1¼
Scott Foresman (OC)	28⅞	+ ⅝
H. W. Sams (OC)	31¾	— ¾
Time Inc. (OC)	118¾	— ¼
Western Pub. Co. (OC)	25⅛	—½

OC—Over the Counter.
NY—N.Y. Stock Exchange.
AS—American Stock Exchange.
(Supplied by Bache & Co.)

SCULLY'S SCRAPBOOK

By Frank Scully

Non-writers are singularly unobserving. If they are rich and have a story of sorts they are sure there's at least a million in it. You may point to a harbor where they have a yacht and ask are there any writers who have yachts as their neighbors. This irony doesn't impress them. They still think they are going to make a million.

Now and then a book by a non-writer does make a fortune and it is pointed to by all the other rich non-writers as proof that it can be done. They know Ike got a million for his "Crusade in Europe" and because writing was not his profession but an avocation he had to pay only a capital gains tax.

Homer Croy Tells All

In the Authors Guild Bulletin of last month Homer Croy, who seems to me has been writing buoyant prose since I was a boy, relates the story of "The Specialist," a back house prose-poem by Chic Sale, which hardly could be classed in length as a short story but which has sold as if it were "In His Steps."

Those of us who knew Chic Sale, and his very amusing hillbilly vaudeville act, know of course something of his success with "The Specialist," but Croy gives us chapter and verse of a writing success by a man who knew nothing about writing.

According to Homer, "The Specialist" sold 1,500,000 copies in the United States, a half million in England and 250,000 in Australia. The book now sells around 2,500 a year and it has been out 34 years. Around 10,000 copies are printed at one time because it is cheaper to run them off at such a figure, and it takes about three years to sell the edition.

Why Sale Wrote The Specialist

Croy tells how Sale had been telling this story for years at smokers. It was about a carpenter who took a great deal of pride in his specialty, which was building outhouses.

It is a Rabelaisian tale, not sexy, or dirty, but it deals with a subject which is known in nature and while we seemingly now have imported movies which think the complete sex act is entertainment on the screen, though if performed in any other public place would throw the participants in jail, "The Specialist" is still unmade as a motion picture. What started Sale in the publishing business, according to Croy who knew him like a book, was that while Chic was playing in St. Louis, probably in a Keith house where the word damn would get you thrown off the bill, he was shown a mimeographed copy of his story.

He Wrote It From Memory

This threw Chic. There didn't seem to be any way to copyright his monolog short of publishing it as a book. R. J. Seeman of the St. Louis Globe-Democrat told Sale this is what he should do.

"I couldn't write a book," said Chic.

But he was talked into putting one word behind another as he had always recited the monolog and it was figured that between the righteous service clubs and conventions they could unload the books for a buck a piece.

As Chic was a non-writer he knew nothing about copies being sent to newspapers and critics on the cuff. He thought the newspapers got their copies for review by buying them and Croy said even Harry Hansen had to get his that way.

The Doubleday Doran bookshop in St. Louis put a lot of copies on the table with a box next to it and a sign "Take your copy and put a dollar in the box."

Fifty Per Cent Royalty, Oh Boy!

As Chic was his own publisher he was collecting 50c royalty on this dollar book and not even Shaw approached within a country mile of such loot.

Without advertising and only by word-of-mouth the book began to move across the country as if it were a Roosevelt landslide. Chic had no idea there was that much money in writing books. As a best-seller (it had as a competitor "All Quiet On The Western Front"). "The Specialist" outsold Remarque two to one.

Letters poured in. Chic had to hire a secretary. The book went into translation in French, German, Dutch, Swedish, Finnish and Spanish. They all seemingly had the problem and were amused at Chic's solution of it.

Don't Tell It, Sell It!

He moved the publishing company from St. Louis to Hollywood. There he wrote "I'll Tell You Why." Homer Croy helped him. The book flopped. They couldn't understand why. Chic certainly knew more about writing than he did when he wrote "The Specialist" but any artist who has had an initial meteoric success will tell you it happens every time. He consulted Croy but Homer said he knew nothing about the publishing business and still knows nothing about it.

He had so many failures in so many fields after that that it doesn't seem possible that he had anything to do with the success of "The Specialist." He and Homer even did a musical called "Hello Paris" for the Shuberts. And for all the people who went to see that one it would have been just as well if it were produced in the Paris sewers.

Chic next tried his hand at radio. He got 13 weeks for Pennzoil and that's all he got. He tried a stage play called "The Elephant." A bomb.

In fact the only thing that kept him from being the best known name in the breadline was the continuous sale of "The Specialist."

He stayed around Hollywood as so many oldvauders do and made shorts for all the major studios. In fact he died there at 52, still in his prime years.

All Chic had for his memory book was a swell vaudeville act and one of the most amazing bestsellers of all time.

Broadway

Delmonico's cable address is Elegence, New York.

Broadway legit pressagent Seymour Krawitz and his wife, former English dancer Patricia McLean, have adopted a baby boy.

Robert Lantz to Europe tomorrow (Thurs.) for powwows with clients Erich Maria Remarque, Romain Gary and Hans Habe.

Morality In Business lead story in the Roman Catholic parish paper Our Sunday Visitor carries the slogan, "Take Your Religion To Work."

Herbert Jacoby and Bobby Short previewed their new Le Caprice dinery-musicroom with a press preview yesterday (Tues.). It opens formally tomorrow (Thurs.).

Robert Downing planed to Boston to speak on "Repertory" at Boston University Drama Dept. Downing is coproduction stage manager of the Lincoln Center Repertory Co.

What price publicity when a fire [illegible] the joint? Just as Town & Country gave the class LeAm[illegible] a terrific spread the posh East 55th St. restaurant suffered a mysterious blaze.

Aegis Theatre Club's Hotel Plaza luncheon awards on April 27 to Van Heflin and Louis Nizer, respectively star of "A Case of Libel" and author of "My Life in Court," from which Henry Denker dramatized the play.

During one single week this past winter soprano Brigit Nilsson of the Met sang concerts before three kings. In Oslo she was heard by King Olav, in Stockholm by King Gustav Adolf and in Copenhagen by King Frederick.

Lawrence A. Wein, Gotham lawyer-realtor, heads a group which just bought back the operating lease on the 20-story Warwick Hotel, Philadelphia, which it acquired in 1955. Kirkeby-Natus Corp. operated it since under lease.

N.Y. Times' Joseph Lelyveld's story on the SRO Rainbow Room shindig post-"Hamlet" (Richard Burton) premiere last week was captioned "'Hamlet' Greeting By Lizabethans," with accent on Elizabeth Taylor and her husband's lure for the gawkers.

Tom Curtiss, longtime entertainment editor of the Paris edition of the N.Y. Herald Tribune, due in this weekend on his annual o.o. of the show biz scene, including the N.Y. World's Fair. Returns to his Paris base via the Cannes Film Festival around May 1.

Augusto Marcelli, exec veepee of the Rizzoli Corp., pouring this (Wed.) afternoon for the visiting Italian publisher-film producer Angelo Rizzoli. Among the honored guests will be Federico Fellini, Giulietta Massina, Mr. and Mrs. Andrea Rizzoli, and Angelo Rizzoli Jr., all here on a visit.

The Hotel Drake's Shepheard's has become such a focal point for new terpsichorean motifs that the Jamaica Tourist Board is exporting a group of singers and dancers to introduce the new "Jamaica Ska" dance style. The island's Carol Joan Crawford ("Miss World of 1964") heads the troupe.

Bianchi, w.k. waiter-captain who left the Colony (where he was a fixture) to join the Hotel Delmonico's new Il Mio discotheque, has switched to Shepheard's Room in the Hotel Drake. Gogi, longtime host at the Pierre's Cotillion Room who folded the class eatery bearing his name, is hosting at Il Mio.

Danny Stradella, operator of Danny's Hideaway, last week preemed a new eatery on Long Island in the Stadium Motor Inn near Shea's Stadium. Broadwayites were transported via bus and limousine to the new food dispensary and show people came in after the show to sample the viands.

Jan Mitchell launching the new decor of his Empire State Longchamps, redone as the Mark Twain Riverboat Restaurant, tomorrow (Thurs.) night with a show biz VIP invitation party and dansapation policy to Stan Rubin's Tigertown Five and a strolling banjo group. Theatrical designer Oliver Smith did the authentic Mississippi riverboat decor.

The Phil Greenwalds (he's booker for the Concord Hotel,) feted comedian Marty Allen and his wife Lorraine (Frenchy), reservations manager for the Catskill Mt. Inn., on the couple's fourth wedding anni at the Greenwalds' Hewlett Bay Park (L.I.) manse Thursday (9). The Allens had one of the largest wedding in show biz annals at the Concord when 1,800 guests attended.

The Wisconsin Investment Board, a pension fund, has bought the land under the City Squire Motor Inn on which the Loew's motel stands on Broadway-7th Ave. square block bounded by 51st and 52d St. Reported price paid was $3,275,000. Loew's Motels' leasehold on the land for its 20-story inn, which cost about $12,000,000 to build, runs until 2051 with renewals.

Grace and Michel Lauria back to their Rome base, via Paris. Have been in New York on Columbia Pictures business matters, seeing new product, etc. Lauria is Italian sales chief for Col. While here he also consulted medicos for that ailing broken left arm sustained while driving on business from Rome to Milan. It had been poorly set and re-set in two previous operations.

Playwright Guy Bolton, who is off to London soon on his annual trip, recalls that the current Beekman film, Adorable Julia," was originally a play he wrote, based on Somerset Maugham's novel, "Theatre," for London, then revised as "Larger Than Life," and was no great success until Paris, where Madeleine Robinson played it for over 1,000 performances. He credits the star's personal click as figuring largely in its success.

Alan Lewis' division of Restauraint Associates will include the new LaGuardia Terrace, class eatery atop the main terminal building. George Lang is RA's division manager of all its World's Fair restaurants which includes the private diningroom in the Ford exhibit, the class Indonesian restaurant, the American Restaurant in the Festival of Gas, and Missouri Pavilion refreshment area. Latter will feature the "original hot dog," said to have been invented at the time of the 1904 St. Louis World's Fair.

Restaurant Associates' prexy Joe Baum is personally supervising the company's new operations in the Pan Am Bldg. which includes the coffeewagon concession (to office workers) and a string of three "atmospheric" eateries, all in one line, on the ground floor. Two of them have been open about a month and apparently b.o. clicks, per business; the Trattoria is Italian and the Zum-Zum Germanic in motif. The new Charlie Brown pub, named after the famed London railway terminal public house, will not be ready for another month or so.

Rome

By Robert F. Hawkins
(Sardegna, 43; Tel. 479316)

Barbara Steele back from Far East location work on French pic.

Giorgio Moser setting up tvfilm series based on R. L. Stevenson stories.

Fernandel in Milan to tape some tele commercials together with Gino Cervi.

Katie Culver signed for femme lead in "The Last Gun," opposite Cameron Mitchell.

Lex Barker reported set for Robert Siodmak's "Shoot," being made in Belgrade.

Rossini's "Othello" got its first Rome staging in 80 years at Capital's Opera House.

Intercontinental Film Service here completed 2 pilots for Guy Thayer of Gallery Films, London.

Victor Hugo's "Les Miserables" is latest classic to be serialized by RAI-TV, with 10 weekly stanzas planned.

Dino, latest RCA recruit (via its ARC label), makes his tele debut this week on Mike Bongiorno quizzer, "Dream Fair."

Latest Rome gimmick is twofer restaurant booklet, with 22 restaurants in on deal. Coupon booklet can be bought for $6.40 and is good for year.

Marianne Koch and Antonio Prieto latest additions to cast of "Magnificent Stranger," Clint Eastwood starrer which starts in Almeria, Spain, soon.

Rita Pavone gets her third Gold disk this month at RCA ceremony, company's Edoardo Vianello also rating gold platter soon via sensational sales of "O Mio Signore."

Giulio Macchi's profile of Vittorio De Sica, recently aired by RAI-TV, now also in English-language version. Macchi also plans series on Roberto Rossellini, Anna Magnani and Jean Renoir.

B'way Jr.

By Walter Winchell

This NYC rube got his first "No Stopping" summons from LA Police Dept. In front of Del's H'wood shop where he rented tux for Oscar event. Night before he was given "Honored Guest" badge from F.B.I. at Palladium, where G-Man Mill Simon (retiring after 24 years) was testimonial'd by Greater L.A. police groups.

Mickey Hargitay and wife Jayne Mansfield (reported estranged) lifted eyebrows of press at Cocogrove — making like highschool sweedees.

P. Weber Sr. (veep-gen. mgr. of Schine Hotels) mending at home. Pneumonia.

Sammy Fain's latest swelody, "Why Is The Heart A Fool?", has a beguine beat. Royalties to pay expenses at Runyon Cancer Fund.

Del Webb's swanky Ocean House on Mission Bay near San Diego ($9 per for Goldwater press-bus bunch) pet spot for showfolk.

Ye Little Club's (Bevhills) lark Monte Mansfield rates talent scout att'n.

Opposition blatts and (wire-services here) hosted 67th birthday bash for this "Aging Lion" (as Time heckled a decade ago). AP's H'wood agent Jimmy Bacon organized it. Grove wanted to pick up entire tab. Bacon bellowed "No!"

San Diego Union's reporter Dick Bowman ordered from Alaska quake scene to cover "the Grove quake." Newsweek's deputy — a youngster named MacFadden — is kin to late Mark Hellinger (of NY News) and this dept's B'way crony in 1920-30s. "I don't get it," frowned MacFadden, "newspaper people fling you a party but you invite 75 tv-film stars. Why?" "Because I didn't want to be alone if a big story broke." We m.c'd.

Intros opened with: "Harry Richman! Who made showbiz history and almost every doll in it!" Bookwriter Dick Gehman (and Harry) fell to ringside floor.

Vincent Edwards, ("Dr. B. Casey") got triffic ribbing from hilarious roof-lifter Jack Carter, who followed J. Durante "Mr. Show Biz" and fractured one&all.

Wm. Self (20th Centfox chief of TV Documentary Division and hour-long tv show-builder) peddled 3 pilots to ABC-TV last week and a 4th to NBC. One of few magicians out here to peddle anything.

Lucille Ball (Mrs. Presilu) unhappily told us: "We haven't sold one yet! First time in Desilu history."

Lou Lurie (San Fran philanthropist and backer of B'way plays, films and now tv shows) put up fortune for Bill Dozier's new video firm.

Greer Garson's groom (zillionaire Buddy Fogelson of Texas) also backing pix and tv stuff.

Friday was dreadline for Mal Wald, Jerry's brother, and Jesse Sandler (many "Naked City") and tv-pix-clix. If 20th's money-butchers in NY refuse to send loot to "speculate" on new tv shows, both were to be "regretfully" dumped. Fine way to run a delicatessen!

Cleveland

By Glenn C. Pullen
(Main 1-4500)

Met Opera on 39th annual visit here April 20-26.

Count Basie orch snagged by Leo's Casino for one-nighter later this month.

Arthur Lithgow to stage another Great Lakes Shakespearean Festival at Lakewood civic auditorium this summer.

Sid Friedman, booker with a string of mid-eastern agencies, nabbed exclusive rights to book talent for Chicago's Regal Theatre.

Johnny L. Price, producer of Musicarnival tent theatres here and in West Palm Beach, opening season here with "Sound of Music" on June 8.

Johnny L. Price, producer of Musicarnival tent theatres here and in West Palm Beach, Fla., starting season here June 8 with "Sound of Music."

Trustees of Cleveland Play House considering proposal to build new downtown theatre as successor to its Drury-Brooks theatres, which will be torn down during Cleveland's urban renewal program.

Little Italy Restaurateurs Assn. taking over house at Loew's Ohio for opening of "Fall of Roman Empire," offering dinner at their spots, chartered bus rides to and from theatre, and cinema tickets all in one package.

Summer sked for another Great Shakespearean Festival at Lakewood Civic Auditorium to include "Taming of Shrew," "Hamlet," "Henry VI," "Much Ado About Nothing," "Richard III" and "Anthony and Cleopatra."

James J. Cordes and James Moir organized new theatre-cafe company for Saturday series of satirical topical revues. "Up for Grabs," their first original show, opened last weekend. Cast includes Cordes, doubling as director; Lamar Hill, Jane Nottage, Eddy Halas and Melody Thompson.

Cape Cod

By Evelyn Lawson
(DElaware 7-4984)

Broadway packages of "My Fair Lady" and "Camelot" booked for Hyannis Melody Tent.

Actress Battina Dinsmore has affiliated with the Barnstable Comedy group. She is now a Cape resident.

Nearly 10,000 Vets of Foreign Wars of state of Massachusetts due in for convention in Hyannis on June 19.

Cape bandman Paul Nossiter tapped to direct and coordinate music for Star-Nite, new Cape Cod summer spectacular.

Jim Pendergast hires twin curvacious aquacadists to perform in pool nightly underwater behind glass partition of his Mermaid Lounge Bar, Hyannis Inn Motel.

Mrs. Cornelius J. Hickey, Falmouth housewife and mother chosen Mrs. Massachusetts on her way to St. Petersburg, Fla., to compete for Mrs. America's crown.

"My Name Is Everyone," a one-act play adapted from Saturday Evening Post story by Barnstable. Author Kurt Vonnegutt will preem at Robert Wagner Theatre in N.Y. April 15-16.

Jim Burrows of Provincetown moves his nightclub reveue, "Bottoms Up," from its successful run at the Hof Brau in New Haven to Sunday night slot at the Strollers in N. Y., on April 26. Producer Burrows, is the son of Abe.

After a winter of travel in the Orient and Caribbean, Sidney Gordon, prexy of the Falmouth Playhouse, leaves her home in Boston to open booking and casting offices in N. Y. for casting summer shows for this playhouse. Stephen Langley retains his position public relations and production assistant at Falmouth Playhouse.

Eleanor Cody Gould, director of American Academy Of Dramatic Arts Cape Playhouse summer program, (Raymond Moore Foundation) will continue her operations at Cape Playhouse in Dennis. This year, Miss Gould will move the plays, after they are shown at Dennis, for an afternoon stand at Falmouth Playhouse for the benefit of that section of the Cape.

Palm Springs

Saturday Evening Post doing a bathing suit layout with the spa's posh pools as background.

Bob Lippert Jr. opens a new eatery and cocktail lounge, The Branding Iron, this week at his Thunderbird Motor Hotel.

Rep. Seymour Halpern of N.Y., and wife, Barbara, at Ocotillo Lodge. Latter represents the distaff side of Washington on the "Roberta" syndicated air show next week. David Susskind guests on the same program.

Phil and Jo Regan back from Washington where the onetime policeman sang and emceed the annual Congressional dinner hosted by Rep. Michael Kirwan of Ohio at the Armory. Regan was the only nonpolitico on the dais with 100 Congressmen who entered the House in 1937, the same year as President Lyndon B. Johnson.

San Juan

By Al & Elisa Dinnofer
(2 Taft, Santurce; 723-8457)

San Juan's long awaited multimillion dollar tourist pier opened.

Sam Donanue and Tommy Dorsey band setting pace for dancing at El San Juan Hotel.

The New Broadway, of the Llamas cinema theatre chain, getting a facelift. Will reopen in May.

ABC-TV veepee Henry Plitt, vacationing here with wife and daughter reported theft of jewels valued at $100,000. FBI is investigating.

Las Vegas

By Forrest Duke
(Dudley 4-4141)

Hank Kovell, Hotel Fremont flack since it opened, resigned and will open a publicity firm here.

Dunes producer Frederic Apcar in Paris rehearsing third edition of "Vive Les Girls," set to preem next month.

Thunderbird veep Dave Victorson inked Village Stompers for special one-week gig opening May 8.

Mitch DeWood preparing new lounge act for Flamingo, set to open in May, says it's a girly show without nudes.

Young baritone Jose Mario took over spot at Sultan's Table piano bar vacated by Jacques Foti, who went to Beverly Hilton.

Roberta Shore of "The Virginians" tele show, in at the Flamingo to hostess convention of American Type Founders.

Michael Kapp, prexy of Kapp Records, at the Riviera to supervise recording of Louis Armstrong's new album, "Hello, Dolly."

J. K. Houssels Jr., Troprexy, on quick weekend trip to Paris with Folies Bergere producer Tony Azzi to sign contracts for new edition opening in December.

Bobby Wick and Ray Brand, comedy stars of the New Frontier's "Fantasy On Ice," prepping new material for second edition which opens late this month.

Philadelphia

By Jerry Gaghan
(319 N. 18th St.; Locust 4-4848)

The Saints and Sinners have chartered a Philly chapter.

Chubby Checker makes his third visit to Sands Hotel, Las Vegas, May 3.

Former boxer turned theatrical booker, Bruce Rohrback, expanded his Harrisburg agency.

Eagles' star and vocalist Timmie Brown, signed an exclusive pact with booker Jolly Joyce.

Ed Rosenbaum, longtime theatre and film ballyhooer, chalks up his 80th birthday this month (24).

Jimmy Darren to drumbeat his role in "For Those Who Think Young" for homefolks here (May 9).

Sam and Mort Shapiro, operators of Arcadia Theatre, jetted to Coast to attend wedding of John Wayne's daughter Melinda (4).

Don Stott, owner of the Lansdowne Classic Cinema, features a silent pic once a month with the organ as musical background.

Maurice Evans to be honor guest festival held by the English Speaking Union, in the Bellevue Stratford, to observe Shakespeare's anni (25).

Latin Casino exec Jim Kilkenny named to planning committee for 18th annual confab of fifth Marine Division at Miami's Fontainebleau (June 24).

Ralph W. Preis, Tent 13 exec committee member and past chief barker, appointed chairman of Variety's International Charities Committee.

William Goldman's Midtown selected by Disney as one of the showplaces throughout the U.S. for "Mary Poppins," in a special pre-release preem engagement.

Melbourne

By Raymond Stanley
(Box 1039H, G.P.O.)

Judy Garland expected for one concert some time this month or June.

Arts Theatre to start late-night Friday and Saturday programs of Grand Guignol.

Stanley Willis-Croft returning to stage "Lilac Time" for Tivoli; will star John Larsen.

Sophocles' and Anouilh's "Antigone" playing season of alternate weeks at Emerald Hill.

Victorian Symphony Orch likely to visit Houston, under conductorship of Georges Tzipine.

French songstress Vicki Beñet following Dickie Valentine into Menzies and Savoy Plaza.

"Camelot" doing bigger box-office business at Her Majesty's than "My Fair Lady" did.

Union Theatre Repertory Company to stage American melodrama, "Love Rides the Rails."

Melbourne University Film Society presenting season of John Ford and Howard Hawks films.

Alan Hopgood's Aussie football comedy, "And the Big Men Fly," now on Victorian and South Australian tour for Union Rep.

Hollywood

Jack Benny back from Australian crawl.

Howard Keel hopped to Sydney to date at Chevron Hilton.

Vic Heutschy named director of tele publicity for Rogers & Cowan flackery.

Ray Milland hopped to Paris for personals with his AI starrer, "X—Man With X-Ray Eyes."

Ed Begley will dedicate the Ed Begley Manuscript Collection April 24 at Syracuse U library.

John Huston to narrate "Legend of Marilyn Monroe," hourlong vidocumentary by David L. Wolper.

Phil Harris set by Walt Disney for voice of "The Bear" and opening title song in "Jungle Book."

Walter Beakel, N. Y. director, in from east to arrange production of Anita Loos' adaptation of Colette's "Cherie."

Charles (Chuck) Moses and Bob Joseph to hoopla Robert Aldrich's "Hush . . . Hush, Sweet Charlotte" for 20th.

Lou Morheim succeeds James Menzies as story editor of Metro's "Mr. Novak" teleseries for 1964-65 season.

LuLu Porter inked second non-exclusive three-appearance pact with NBC-TV, to run from May 1 to April 30.

The Jets, dance trio who appeared in film, "West Side Story," to do tele special with the Beatles in London.

Danny Kaye on crutches as result of burns suffered when pot of boiling water and spaghetti overturned on him.

Franz Waxman opens 18th Los Angeles Music Festival May 10 at UCLA, with Joseph Fuchs and Jerome Lowenthal in concert.

Ann Blyth to do fiveweek summer silo tour in "Sound of Music" taking in Dallas, Indianapolis, Atlanta and Highland Park, Ill.

Al Fisher ankled post as head of Bing Crosby Prods.' music dept., for which he set up pubberies with both ASCAP and BMI affiliations.

Sam Decker joined Al Cooperman-Shan V. Sayles Continental Theatres Inc., as a partner to head realty operations and theatres acquisitions.

Charlie Brockman, Chris Economaki, Sam Hanks and Tom Carnegie to announce closed-circuit telecast of Indianapolis Race Classic for MCA-TV on Memorial Day.

John Orloff replaced Steve Binder as director of "Steve Allen Show" after two years, latter exercising his 30-day release clause to devote full time to NAACP special.

Rod Serling replaces ailing astronaut Col. John Glenn as narrator of Cinerama's Spacearium presentation for N.Y. World's Fair, the 15-minute film tabbed "To the Moon and Beyond."

Chicago

(DElaware 7-4194)

The Second City Cabaret Theatre preems a new show, "Inside the Outsider," April 28.

Gore Vidal due in town next weekend to make the press rounds on behalf of "The Best Man."

"Tea House of August Moon", with Brigid Bazlen starring, is next entry at Candlelight Dinner Playhouse on April 28.

Billy Starr temporarily sidelined from cast of "Three Cheers For Tired Businessman" at Happy Medium as the result of a sprained back.

Groundbreaking ceremonies for Balaban & Katz's new Oakbrook Shopping Center theatre held last Friday (10), with B&K prexy Dave Wallerstein wielding the spade.

Radio personality Sig Sakowicz, who weighs in at about 250 pounds, will participate in a "Weightlessness Flight" at Wright-Patterson Air Force Base April 13, 14 and 15.

Universal Picture's adpub chief Ben Katz got clearance from the State Street Council for an air-cushion vehicle to hover over the Main Stem April 21 to publicize "The Brass Bottle."

The suburban Sahara Inn Motel (once a site for name acts in its Club Gigi) dropping the entertainment policy in its Sultan's Table dining room after current Georgia Drake engagement.

Dolph Hewitt's WGN-TV "Barn Dance" cast, now a regular unit on the public appearance circuit will play the Du Page County (Ill.) Fair Aug. 1, the Effington County Fair, Aug. 9; State Fair (Springfield), Aug. 15; and Menard County Fair, Aug. 26.

Mayor Richard J. Daley has issued a proclamation naming April as Auditorium Restoration Month in Chicago. A major fund-raising campaign is underway to restore the Auditorum, which was built by Louis Sullivan and Dankmar Adler in 1889.

Mpls.-St. Paul

By Bob Rees
(2208 Kenwood Parkway; 374-4015)

Theatre in Round Players' production of "Becket" bows out this weekend.

Minneapolis and St. Paul are hosting a record number of roadshows in March and April.

Film director Josef von Sternberg and critic Pauline Kael here this chapter to speak at U. of Minnesota's annual creative arts festival.

National Education Television taped Cincinnati Symphony playing St. Paul composer Gene Gutche's Fifth Symphony for Strings last weekend.

Stadium Club, private bottle club at Metropolitan Stadium, home of the Minnesota Twins baseball team, denied renewal of its food and liquor licenses.

Dave Brubeck Quartet takes part in Minneapolis Symphony's final concert of season Sunday (19). Brubeck subs for George Shearing who was originally skedded.

Minneapolis exhib Ben Berger, back from tour of Africa, addressed Variety Club of Northwest, Tent 12, last frame. His subject: "Is Africa Ready for Drive-in Theatres?"

For benefit of Minnesotans planning to visit N.Y. World's Fair, Minneapolis Tribune columnist George Grim devoted an entire column to tips on inexpensive dining and entertainment in Gotham.

Season ticket sale for Tyrone Guthrie Theatre's second season, opening in May, wound up last chapter. Theatre spokesman estimated 18,000 to 19,000 season subscriptions had been sold through March 26. Last year's final figure was 21,900.

Boston

By Guy Livingston
(508 Little Bldg.; LI 2-5095)

Max Gendel in town fronting for Mike Todd, Jr. on "America Be Seated" at the Wilbur.

Sam Snyder's Water Follies rehearsing for U. S. tour with all new format including 10 Japanese swimmers and divers added.

Borah Burman, film drama ed of Patriot Ledger, nabbing prize award in MPAA Boyd Martin contest for best film page, Class III.

Mike Della Russo celebrating 29th year for his posh supper club, Revere Frolic, on the beachfront, with Cab Calloway topping the show.

Gladys Shelly's records getting play on local radio stations, "Enter Laughing," and campaign song, "Leave It To Girls," for women prexy.

"Enter Laughing" company pulled out of Boston for Los Angeles with a $75,000 advance for three weeks at the Biltmore with Yvonne De Carlo, Alan Mowbray, Irving Jacobson and Alan Arkin.

Brussels

By John Florquin
(28, Avenue des Heliotropes; 156825)

Gilbert Becaud back at Ancienne Belgique before touring the provinces.

Joe Napoli's annual jazz festival at Comblain-la-Tour scheduled for Aug. 8-9.

After "Mary Mary," Flemish Theatre, scored with second American play of the season, "Come Blow Your Horn."

Twentieth Century Ballet will leave its cradle, the Opera House, and appear under canvas in small provincial towns.

Feature films are what tele audiences prefer here. Referendum has just established this with an overwhelming majority.

National Theatre imported Rene-Louis Lafforgue for the revival of "Three-Penny Opera," under auspices of Caltex Foundation.

"Suddenly, Last Summer," first Tennessee Williams play to be seen here since "Cat on Hot Tin Roof, enjoying successful run at Tneatre de Quat 'Sous.

London

(HYde Park 4561/2/3)

Robert Aldrich came in for the British Film Academy awards.

Columbia International topper Mo Rothman here on routine trip from his N. Y. base.

The Variety Club yesterday (Tues.) feted National Hunt jockey Fred Winter, who is retiring.

Agent Felix de Wolfe on a 10-day quickie to N. Y. to negotiate U. S. publication rights for a book of current Beatles film.

Show biz personalities around the town include Frederick Brisson, Maureen O'Hara, Oscar Peterson, Lloyd Burns and Michael Burke.

Hugh Walker, general manager of the O'Keefe Centre in Toronto, taking a look at the London shows before heading for Paris to gander the French legit scene.

Stanley Baker and Cy Endfield to South Africa scouting locations for "Sands of Kalahari," which goes into production later this summer. They will be away about a month.

Tom McDermott, Four Star Television prexy, returned to his Hollywood base after two-day quickies here and in Paris. His veepee, Manny Reiner, who accompanied him, continuing his European travels.

Gene Barry, star of "Burke's Law," guest of honor at a Dorchester press reception. He is on a sevenweek vacation with his wife and son and, will be doing the Grand European Tour, including a stop at Cannes during the film festival.

Ireland

By Maxwell Sweeney
(Dublin 684506)

Bolshoi Ballet mulling return visit to Ireland.

Films Appeal board okayed "Tom Jones" after scissoring.

Victoria de los Angeles set for concert at Gaiety, Dublin, May 4.

Dublin's Embassy Cinema, one of city's oldest film houses, to be sold.

Abbey Co. booked in Theatre des Nations, Paris, after London stint.

Producer Sir Tyrone Guthrie to get honorary degree from Dublin University.

Variety Club of Ireland (Tent 41) has set $30,000 target for fund-raising this year.

Irish Federation of Musicians seeking upped pay for musicians in radio and dance orchs.

Milo O'Shea set for role in Envoy Productions presentation of "The Tempest" at Gate, Dublin, next month.

Patrick Jennings named agricultural editor for Telefis Eireann (Irish TV); he's been gabber on farm programs.

Pay hike of 12% approved for theatre and cinema staffs in Dublin. Working hours to be cut 60 minutes per week.

Ernest Byrne, former executive producer of Telefis Eireann, named assistant program manager KPIX, San Francisco.

Cork's Coliseum Cinema, one of oldest in that city, shuttered on April 4. It's first local closure following launching of teleservice.

Abbey Theatre Company planes to London (19) for the Aldwych staging of Sean O'Casey's "The Plough and the Stars" and "June and Paycock."

Louis Elliman, retired managing director of Rank outfit here, received portrait painted by President of Royal Hibernian Academy Maurice McGonigal as gift from former colleagues and employees of circuit.

Scotland

By Gordon Irving
(Glasgow: DOuglas 9999)

"Burke's Law" and "Sam Benedict" new entries in local central Scotland tele.

Anna Neagle to Lyceum Theatre, Edinburgh, in new thriller, "Person Unknown."

"Pink Panther" (UA), Peter Sellers-David Niven starrer, notching up top biz in Scot cinemas.

Kenneth McKellar readying world tour which takes him to North America in September.

Jimmy Logan, Scot comedy actor, launched English tour of Scot play "Wedding Fever." He's in lead.

"Sam Benedict" into Scot commercial tele schedules for spring. New run of "Rawhide" also in the works.

Pitlochry Festival Theatre-in-the-Hills teeing off new season with Shakespeare's "Twelfth Night."

Andy Stewart, in from U.S. looksee trek, rehearsing for new tv spectaculars at BBC-tv studios in Glasgow.

Pete Kerr, formerly of Clyde Valley Stompers, named as A & R manager for Waverley Records, Edinburgh.

Denise Shaune, ballet mistress, to Glasgow to audition new talent for summer season of "Black & White Minstrel Show" at Morecambe, Eng.

David Hughes, English singer, to Glasgow for radio and tv dates, and readying operatic debut as Cassio in "Otello" with Scottish Opera Company in May.

Jack Milroy, Auld Lang Syne comedian, teed off in spring vaude layout at Gaiety Theatre, Ayr. He is pacted for Howard & Wyndham season in Edinburgh next June.

Winnipeg

By Robert Hucal
(WH 2-5435)

Dick Vincent appointed station manager of KCND-TV, Pembina, N.D.

Winnipeg Symphony ends its current season April 23, with Gary Graffman guesting.

Met opera tenor Richard Tucker set for a one nighter at the 1963-seat Capitol April 20.

Brian MacDonald of Montreal named resident choreographer of the Royal Winnipeg Ballet.

Toronto director Curt Reis signed by the Manitoba Theatre Centre to direct season finale "Cat On A Hot Tin Roof."

John Hirsch, Manitoba Theatre Centre artistic director, signed by the Canadian Players to direct next season's repertory.

Hypnotist Peter Reveen returns for a three-day stand at the Auditorium in May, after his successful week here in early March.

Sellers' Uniqueness

Continued from page 2

Guinness, Sir Ralph Richardson, Sir. John Gielgud, John Mills and, more recently, Peter O'Toole and Richard Burton. With the exception perhaps of Burton, whose publicity (and notoriety) resulting from his relationship over the past couple of years with Elizabeth Taylor have made him a "household word," none of these have had quite the experience of Sellers in the U. S. market and with Yank producers.

Actually, Sellers' U. S. popularity has been building for several years, since "Mouse on the Moon" drew the "in" crowd in droves. Along with Terry-Thomas, Margaret Rutherford and a couple of others, this group has lead the film version of the British popularity swing in legit. Out of these, Sellers has emerged a U. S. top-notcher. This year he has moved strongly into the U. S. market with Columbia's "Dr. Strangelove" and UA's "World of Henry Orient," now completing a successful run at Radio City Music Hall.

Another Sellers starrer, "Pink Panther," follows "Orient" into the Hall, having played during Easter week to sturdy biz in Chicago, Washington, D. C., Los Angeles, San Francisco, Detroit and Boston. "Kiss Me, Stupid," on which Sellers was working for Billy Wilder and the Mirisches at the time he was stricken, was to have kept the Sellers cycle in motion this summer with a July opening. With the actor out of action, "A Shot in the Dark," in which he also stars, has been moved from its originally-planned Christmas release slot to July.

Meanwhile, Sellers has been succeeded by Ray Walston, currently toplining in the tv series "My Favorite Martian," in the "Stupid" role. Filming was suspended last week when the actor was stricken but resumed this past Monday (13), also toplining Dean Martin and Kim Novak. Signing of Walston ends considerable speculation about the fate of the pic. Several actors had been mentioned as possible replacements for Sellers (Walston not included, incidentaly) and postponement had also been considered.

But the British actor is figured to be out of action for about six months at least and that, presumably, was too long to wait. Actually, "Stupid" began filming only a couple of weeks ago so that not too much has to be refilmed and costs will not be severely esculated.

Paris

By Gene Moskowitz
(80 Ave Neuilly; SAB. 0712)

Prizewinnng novelist Jean-Marie Clezio will do a ballet for Roland Petit.

Revival of John Steinbeck's "Of Mice and Men" opens at the Comedie Des Champs-Elysees this week.

Pierre Brasseur does the pre-war Anglo play, "On Borrowed Time" next year at the Theatre Edouard VII.

Danielle Delorme opens in George Bernard Shaw's "Saint Joan" this week at the Montparnasse Theatre.

Serge Lifar to South America for choreographic chores with several ballet companies from diferent countries there.

Patchou stars and Georges Ulmer and Liliane Montevecchi support her in the Folies-Bergere show in which hits Broadway in May.

Film actor Michel Auclair, after a successful stage stint in Moliere's "Tartufe," does Shakespeare's "Julius Caeser" at the Lyon Drama Fest this summer.

The first color TV set, for experimental emissions, may be out later this year. Sets will cost $1,300 and allow for catching programs three times a week.

Marcel Achard's new play, "Machin-Chouette" (Mr. Who Do You Call It), will be done at the Theatre Antoine next season with Robert Dhery and Jean Richard.

Barrillet and Gredy adapting "Goodbye Charlie" for Nicole Courcel. They will air it next season but currently are doing a new play, "Complicated Love" for Sophie Desmarets, also for next year.

Edmund Tamiz takes over the Theatre Recamier to make it a private cultural centre, via private dues, giving shows, talks and films shows. His first legiter next September will be Diderot's "Jacques Le Fataliste."

Irma Demich set for a role in Philippe de Broca's pic "A Hail Fellow Well Met," opposite Jean-Pierre Cassel. Then she does "Epitath for an Enemy" and "Camille," the last a modern version of the old Alexandre Dumas classic.

Film thesps Jean-Pierre Cassel, Laurent Terizeff and Jean-Louis Trinrignant, who have all done stage chores, want to hire a theatre where each will produce, direct and star in a Shakespeare play of their choice to mark the 400 anni.

Australia

By Eric Gorrick
(160 Castlereigh St. Sydney)

Donald O'Connor booked for Silver Spade Room at Chevron-Hilton, Sydney.

Eartha Kitt will do a repeat run at the Chevron-Hilton, Sydney, next September.

"Camelot" is smash hit at Her Majesty's, Melbourne, for J. C. Williamson Ltd.

John Meillon comes from London to take lead in "Rattle of a Simple Man" at Phillip Theatre, Sydney.

"Under Yum Yum Tree" (Col) a click at State, Sydney, for Greater Union Theatres. Pic was banned in New Zealand.

Joan Regan here from London for a run at Andre's nightclub, Sydney. Will also do some tele shows during stopover.

Keith Mitchell will star with Googie Withers in a Shakespearean anthology for J. C. Williamson Ltd. at the Comedy, Melbourne, April 23.

Madrid

By Hank Werba
(Avda. Habana, 86 - Tel: 2590497)

Benidorm Song Festival again slotted for July 24-26.

"Disneyland" and "The Untouchables" are click additions to Spanish tv programming.

Conchita Montes opens "Mary Mary" in Barcelona after a hit run of seven months in Madrid.

Nati Mistral and the "La Perrichola" company will appear for Spain in the Teatre des Nations in Paris.

Sacha Guitry comedy, "Living in a Dream," directed by and starring Alberto Closas looks like a legit winner until summer closing.

The Manuela Vargas Flamenco troupe signed for the Spanish Pavilion at the World's Fair. The troupe includes Enrique el Cojo, El Jarrito, El Farruco, and Teremaya.

England's Bard Bash

Continued from page 1

tributes to the Bard. The Royal Shakespeare's London home, the Aldwych, set the ball rolling at the beginning of the year with a nine weeks' season including "King Lear" and "The Comedy of Errors."

Headed by Paul Scofield, the season clicked at the Aldwych and on tour in Eastern Europe. The troupe set off for the States last Thursday (9).

At Stratford the Shakespeare Co. is giving visitors from June 15 to early December the rare chance of seeing all the historical plays in sequence. A rich cast, with such actors as Peggy Ashcroft, Patience Collier, Eric Porter, Hugh Griffith, Ian Holm, William Squire, David Warner and Derek Waring will be under the guidance of Peter Hall, John Barton and Clifford Williams.

They'll be playing "Richard II," "Henry IV" (Parts One and Two separately, "Henry V," "Henry VI" and "Richard III." Plus "Henry IV," a new play devised by Hall and Barton from Shakespeare's "Henry VI" trio.

Both the Edinburgh and Pitlochry Festivals will toss nosegays to the poet. The Bristol Old Vic will present "Henry V" and "Love's Labor Lost" alternately at Edinburg's Lyceum Theatre. At the Assembly Hall, Joan Littlewood's Theatre Workshop has hired Richard Harris, Roy Kinnear and Barbara Windsor for "Henry IV," combining the two parts.

London's Mermaid Theatre has chosen "Macbeth" to open on the eve of the 400th birthday anni and schools have responded well. The Mermaid is taking this so seriously that it has banned the selling of potato crisps at the theare, thus ensuring Culture without Crunch.

At Pitlochry, the choice is "Twelfth Night" and the Group of Three, disdaining public grants, has decided to take Shakespeare to the provinces with a tour of "The Merchant of Venice," opening at Wolverhampton. Stephen Murray has been cast as Shylock, with ex-film star Jean Kent making her Shakespearean debut as Portia.

The British Council is splashing with the bucks to take Shakespeare abroad. Apart from the Paul Scofield tour, the Bristol Old Vic is to visit 12 European countries and the H. M. Tennent management, in cooperation with the Council, sent Sir Ralph Richardson and Barbara Jefford and company to Europe and Central and South America.

The New Shakespeare Co. follows its Shakespearean tribute at the Open Air Theatre in Regent's Park by taking "The Tempest" and "Richard II" to India and the Far East. The Council is also spraying dozens of countries abroad with Shakespearean lectures, art, photography and book exhibitions and an assortment of feature films.

The Chichester Festival Theatre is hosting the Stratford Shakespearean Festival Company of Ontario, Canada in a repertory of plays. Waving the Shakespeare flag abroad will be John Blatchley, a director from Stratford-on-Avon and Sadler's Wells, staging "Macbeth" for the Institute of Advanced Studies in the Theatre, In New York, April 23. The Gulbenkian Foundation has contributed $2,750 to the project.

The National Theatre's tribute should be one of the year's standout events. Already seen in Birmingham and Cardiff, the National brings "Othello" into its repertoire next Tuesday (21), with Laurence Olivier in the title role, Maggie Smith as Desdemona and Frank Finlay as Iago.

Among the big musical events in connection with the celebrations is a Royal Festival Hall concert April 23, with Lawrence Leonard conducting the Philharmonia Orchestra. The program comprise w.k. works inspired by Shakespeare's plays, linked with apt Shakespeare passages spoken by Donald Wolfit and Rosalin Iden.

Among the operatic tributes will be Verdi's "Macbeth" at Glyndebourne and his "Otello" and "Falstaff" at Covent Garden, and also Benjamin Britten's "A Midsummer Night's Dream," also at the Royal Opera House. All four operas are [illegible] for radio on the Third Program.

Radio is having a ball with Shakespeare this year, with a stream of music, plays, talks, debates and so on. It started way back in January with Val Gielgud's production of "Twelfth Night," starring Jimmy Edwards and Beryl Reid and, later, Parts 1 and 2 of "Henry IV" were broadcast.

Starting with "Midsummer Night's Dream" next Monday (20) on the Home program, at least a half-dozen other plays are scheduled to be spread through the year.

Musical highlights planned are relays of a Third Program Invitation Concert from Stratford-on-Avon next Tuesday (21) and a Birthday Night concert by the Bournemouth Symphony Orchestra. Almost every phase of comment possible about Shakespeare and his work will be featured in readings, discussions and features.

Television is rising to the big occasion, too. B.B.C.'s big plum will be "Hamlet," starring Christopher Plummer, which has been taped at Elsinore and is to be aired next Sunday (19). Later there will be nine one-hour plays under the generic title of "War of the Roses," while Hal Burton has been seconded to the drama department for an exhaustive documentary called "Shakespeare and His Times." Rediffusion tents itself with "Midsummer Night's Dream," featuring Benny Hill as Bottom, skedded for Midsummer Day.

Since last fall Associated Television producer Peter Potter has been working on a series of four commemorative programs in the form of a review, titled "Man of the Year." The aim is to enliven the general goings on with a show covering the whole range of Shakespearean influence over the years, and demonstrating the poet's inspiration of opera, films, vaude, symphonic music and musicomedy both here and abroad. This ambitious project will be a tapestry of music, drama, anecdotes and comedy, exploring even the bizarre and ridiculous results of experimenting with Shakespeare's original writings.

A highlight of disk activity has come in right on the nose, the end of a project started seven years ago by Argo Records. The result is that all of Shakespeare's works are now available on 139 LP disks, selling at $5.25 apiece, or $721.75 per set. The artists who recorded the plays, for little money and usually in their spare time, are not billed. However, besides members of the Cambridge Marlowe Society, they include such prominent actors as John Gielgud, Peggy Ashcroft, Miles Malleson, Natasha Parry, Patrick Wymark, Irene Worth, Jeannette Sterke and others.

Caedmon, part of the Philips' stable, has produced 16 LP disks of Shakespeare's works in the past and to celebrate this occasion it has come up with "Hamlet," with Paul Scofield, Zena Walker, Diana Wynyard and Roland Culver.

In the picture world, British Film Institute is waving the banner with a special season in May of Shakespeare films. "Hamlet," "Romeo and Juliet," "Midsummer Night's Dream," "The Taming of the Shrew," "Othello," "Ophelia" and "As You Like It" are to be shown in the repertoire, together with "Throne of Blood," a little known Japanese version of "Macbeth."

Briefly, this looks to be a year in which, paradoxically, almost everything's Bard and practically nothing is barred. For instance, Roy Plomley has written a wry comedy which is being played during Shakespeare's birthday week at Eastbourne. It throws farcical, but not highly reliable, fresh light on the problem of who did write the plays, and it's called "Everybody's Making Money—Except Shakespeare."

Even the stripperies are apparently not overloking the possibilities of the poet's quater-centenary. At the Casino de Paris, in Soho, a nuderie of top peelers is appearing in a "Sensational Shakespearean Spectacular," called "Shakespeare—As You Like It." Alas, poor Will. As one unregenerate remarked, the 400th anniversary of Shakespeare's birthday has a lot of people hoping that their efforts will bring home the bacon.

But, amid all the words, the music, the pomp and the circumstance, and the glowing tributes, it could well be that the finest, certainly the most enduring and the one that Shakespeare would most have appreciated will take place on Primrose Hill, London, on his birthday at noon. Edith Evans will plant a sapling oak to mark his quater-centenary. It will take the place of one, since died, that Samuel Phelps planted on the same spot in 1864, as part of the tercentenary celebrations. The show goes on.

Showmen Await Fair

Continued from page 1

"spectacular" come-ons. Advance o.o. of the various shows augurs boffo b.o.

There are still the skeptics who figure that the entertainment backwash may or may not benefit the legits (fortified by a couple of new smash hits), "girlie" shows like the incoming "Folies-Bergere," and the restaurants, hotels, niteries and the like. One theory has it that they'll come back to the main drag for "real entertainment"; another has it that they'll be so foot-sore and weary that they'll pack into the many peripheral motels that now ring the Flushing Meadows (Long Island) fair site. (For that reason, the Manhattan hotels are making sure not to scare away itinerant trade by ballyhooing that "there'll be a room for everybody").

There is little doubt from among the incumbent exhibitors, vendors, caterers, press corps attached to each, separate and apart from the Fair's own public relationsers, that the expectancy on the eve of the long-awaited premiere next Wednesday morning has become quite electric.

Recent weekends have seen people attempting to storm the gates for illegal "previews," harassing the Pinkertons (private security and police force) no end.

From today (Wed.) on, no private automobiles and rubbernecking busloads of advance gawkers (charity gimmicks, and the like) will be allowed on the grounds. Idea is to permit landscapers, construction and all other workers unhampered movement with completely free flow of most vital construction vehicles. Traffic in recent weeks has been hampered by the many private cars permitted on the fairgrounds proper for the thousands of on-the-ground personnel.

Guided tours and the like for the press will be suspended until after the opening.

William Berns, v.p. for Communications & Public Relations, has set up an elaborate press accreditation system, working in cooperation with the William J. Donoghue Corp. An advisory committee has been set up comprising Max Klein, Radio-Newsreel Television Working Press Assn.; Douglas Lovelace, AP; Eugene S. Haggerty, UPI; George R. Wolff of Agence France-Press, as prez of the UN Foreign Press; Robert Mindlin, prez of Newspaper Reporters Assn. of N.Y.C.; Ellsworth Schell, prez N.Y. Press Photographers Assn.; Fitzhugh Green, foreign Correspondents Center; Deputy N.Y. Police Commr. Walter Arm.

The Fair still faces the threat of a splinter CORE group seeking to achieve civil rights via a "stall-in" threat; i.e., running out of gas on the highway approaches to the Fair on opening day so as to clog the roads. Parent CORE has disowned these tactics and expelled the militant Brooklyn chapter.

'Anything Goes'

Continued from page 1

tation," the committee further noted the personal and social implications of such doings are never probed in these films.

In this vein the committee warned of the "corruption" of film artistry and that the influence of these pictures can lead to juvenile "crimes of passion and violence."

In contrast to this film panning, television came in for praise from the committee for its "sensitive" coverage of the Ecumenical Council, of Pope Paul's trip to the Holy Land and of the deaths of Pope John and President Kennedy.

Also in for a panning was modern education for overlooking the potential of films and tv for teaching.

The committee averred juves are being taught "as if films and television did not really exist, as if the media had influence neither upon the formation of their lives nor upon the molding of 20th Century culture and values."

Festivals, They Look-Alike

Continued from page 1

cultural, economic and government life. Not that the crowded fest sked really allowed most delegates to see more of B.A. than the insides of the San Martin and Alvear-Palace Hotel and various avenidas in between. Still, there were fast trips to La Bocca, B.A.'s colorful Italian quarter (commented one jaundiced member of the Yank delegation: "I didn't fly 7,000 miles just to eat spaghetti—can I get a plain steak?"); a reception for delegates by President Illia in his historic Pink House (the Argentine equivalent to the White House); an outing in the gardens of the Tigre, a sort of pastoral Venice of canals and islands off the Rio Plata; the university, museums and art galleries to say nothing of the swank shops along the Avenida Santa Fe, where alligator bags and shoes and belts, etc., go for a comparative canto.

It seems obvious that any future Argentine fest would profit from being earlier in the year, say February or early March. Not only would that give winter-weary visitors from the northern hemisphere a chance to luxuriate in Argentina's summer warmth (it rained during most of this year's fest), but it would result in a better crop of pix being made available. This year's fest wound Saturday (11), only a fortnight prior to the start of the Cannes fest. Most producers who have what they feel to be festival-calibre films are thus inclined to save them for the Big Show on the Cote d'Azur.

Too Many Prizes

This year's B.A. affair also dramatized the need for (1) putting some limit on the prizes bestowed—so many vaguely defined special prizes detract from the value of the others, and (2) better organized handling of visiting celebs.

Re the latter, B.A. could learn from Cannes and Venice, where personalities are brought in for only two or three days of intensive p.a.s., and then allowed to return to normality. Ten days is too much for almost anyone to bear, especially in view of the tumultuous, occasionally riotous reception which stars receive in this territory.

Grueling Availability

Tony Perkins, for example, was forced for a good part of his 10-day visit to spend his time holed up in his hotel room. Getting in and out of the hotel, and in and out of the San Martin, he was mobbed, having his clothes torn, arms twisted, etc., in addition to being beseiged for autographs (even in the dining room), constantly photographed (no matter what the occasion), required to give newspaper, radio and tv interviews from 9 a.m. onwards, and then asked to show up at official soirees, none of which ever started before 2 a.m. or ended before 4 or 5 a.m. Enough is enough, even understanding that few Yank personalities ever travel this far south.

Janet Leigh, who came in for the fest's last week, spelling Paula Prentiss who was on hand for the opening days, was forced to hold to the same kind of sked. Being a photogenic doll, she came out fine even when snapped at unflattering moments. But she too began to show the strain at the end. Her good-natured comment when the cops failed to hold back the crowds and she found herself in a sea of humanity, the likes of which might not been seen anywhere else: "when you come on these trips you make up your mind to accept everything and anything." She also displayed a certain amount of psychological insight re crowd behavior: "When they suddenly come at you in a mass, walk toward them, not away. They usually fall back, almost out of shyness. If you try to run, they go wild."

This advice, perhaps, is of pertinence only in Latin America, but it's important. No one who hasn't been here can quite imagine the kind of hysterical, sometimes frightening adoration heaped on Yank film personalities.

The prize situation at the Argentina fest (see separate story for winners) seems to be creeping towards absurdity. For one thing, having the international jury pick a "best Spanish language picture" would seem to imply that these films cannot compete with those from other parts of the world on an equal footing. Situation was made more foolish this year when, in addition to the best Spanish language award, which went to Argentina's so-so "Demon In the Blood," the jury voted a "best production" award to Spain's truly stunning "Los Tarantos." Reportedly, Yank juror David Miller refused to vote on the latter category on the grounds that he simply could not see the difference between "best film" and "best production." Also hard to fathom was the special award for "best spectacle production" which went to Rumania's awkwardly made "Tudor."

Quite unusually, neither the British, with one film in competition ("Nothing But the Best") nor the French with two ("Les Tons-Tons Flingeuers" and "La Ravissante Idiote") took any prizes whatsoever. To be perfectly honest, none of these pix seemed particularly deserving, though the French were stylishly repped by "Les Parapluies de Cherbourg," an an out-of-comp entry which closed the fest. Whether this lack of prizes will cool British and French participation in future Argentine fests remains to be seen.

About the only special prize which delighted everybody was the giving of the Eric Johnston award, for the film best illustrating human values and the universality of films as a medium of communications, to the Russ "His Own Blood." The award, donated by the Motion Picture Assn. of America but bestowed by the international jury, spotlighted the very real value of the Russ pic and, secondarily but importantly, dramatized a spirit of understanding between the Yank and Russians which other nationals wanted to see.

There were, however, some skeptical latino comments re MPEA veep Bob Corkery's remarks when he presented the award. The latinos felt that when Corkery stressed the norteamericano faith in—and desire for—the free trade of films among all nations, what he really was asking was for Yank freedom to dominate the international market. For the most part, though, Corkery's remarks, and the award itself, were real crowd pleasers.

The Yanks, in fact, have nothing to be ashamed of.

'Foxy' 350G in Hole

Continued from page 1

originated in the Yukon. The tuner, with book by Ian McLellan Hunter and Ring Lardner Jr., lyrics by Johnny Mercer and music by Robert Emmett Dalan, was suggested by the Ben Johnson play, "Volpone."

When the overcall provision for the Broadway production was exercised, it pushed the capitalization to $420,000. The production cost was $280,496, but that included transportation and hauling, as well as take in and take out expenses in connection with all dates played. These expenses are frequently relegated to the weekly operating nut. The shift enabled the production to show a $9,303 profit on a five-week out-of-town tryout.

In addition to the production cost, there was a special post-opening advertising outlay of $7,716. As of last March 7, there had been another $30,796 lost on six previews and three weeks of regular performances at the Ziegfeld. Unrecouped costs as of March 7 totaled $329,250. It's figured the show has incurred additional losses since then.

'Awakening' Due May 13

An adaptation by Arthur A. Seidelman and Donald Levin of Frank Wedekind's "The Awakening of Spring" is being produced by Theatre Vanguard for a May 13 opening at the Pocket Theatre, N. Y. Seidelman, who was producer and principal director of Theatre Vanguard for the last four years in Los Angeles, will stage "Spring." A score for the play, which will have sets by Gary Zeller, has been composed by George Fischoff.

John Savoca is co-producer.

Obituaries

Continued from page 60

1928. She devoted 35 years to the school where children could learn through drama. She began her settlement work at the turn of the century and was also active in several organizations that provided vocational counseling and training for young people. She became the first vocational counselor licensed by the state, serving in that capacity at Public School 147.

Her daughter survives.

JOHN T. FLYNN

John T. Flynn, 81, longtime radio commentator for the Mutual Broadcasting System, died Monday (13) in Amityville, Long Island, after a long illness. Besides his radio work, Flynn was also a columnist, lecturer and writer and, in 1934-35, economics adviser to Senate Committee on Banking & Currency during its munitions industry investigation.

An ultraconservative, Flynn worked for several publications, including the N. Y. Globe, New Republic and Collier's.

He is survived by a son, and three grandchildren.

JAMES KOVACH

James Kovach, 46, an executive in radio-tv, public relations and advertising, died April 6 in Cheshire, Conn.

From 1946-57, he produced and directed the NBC Symphony, Seranade to America, NBC String Quartet, a weekly drama series, public service, news and documentary shows, wrote editorials and prepared scripts for the above mentioned shows.

In 1952, Kovach took a 14-month leave of absence from NBC to serve as station manager for WQGR in N. Y. He established the first binaural three-dimensional broadcasts and initiated new ideas for merchandising and programming. From 1957-60, he went into partnership with the Waltjen Associates advertising agency in Baltimore, Md. From 1960 to the present, he was tv-program manager for WHNC-TV in New Haven, Conn.

His numerous other activities included, director of music at Transylvania College in Lexington, Ky., electronics engineer with Westinghouse in Mansfield, O., a professional singer with Fred Waring Orch., and speech and drama instructor at the Alfred Dixon Speech School in N. Y.

His wife, two sons and a daughter survive.

HESKETH PEARSON

Hesketh Pearson, 77, biographer of many literary greats, died April 9 in London. Active until his death, he had just sent his latest, "Extraordinary People," to American publishers Harper & Row.

Pearson, whose parents wanted him to be a clergyman, disappointed them by entering the shipping business. Later he took a fling at the theatre, long enough to appear with Herbert Beerbohm Tree and Harley Granville-Barker.

In 1930 he published his first important book, "Doctor Darwin." His 20-odd biographies include works on George Bernard Shaw (his "G.B.S.: A Full-Length Portrait" is considered his best work), Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, Gilbert and Sullivan, Charles Dickens, Beerbohm Tree, Oscar Wilde, Sir Walter Scott, Charles II, Henry of Navarre and others, plus an autobiography "Think It Over."

JOSEPH STANSELL

Joseph Franklin (Frank) Stansell, 90, retired band director, tunesmith and radio writer, died April 6 in Springfield, O. He helped organize the Columbus, O., Municipal Band and was one of the oldest members of Local 103, Columbus Federation of Musicians.

Stansell, who played violin and French horn, also was an instructor on brass and string instruments besides composing and arranging march music. In his early days, he traveled across the country with road shows, doubling as a pit musician and in presenting acts on the stage.

Son, daughters and stepson survive.

JOHN L. McKISSOCK

John Lawrence McKissock, 94, onetime medicine show, Chautauqua and school magician, died April 5 in Lake Worth, Fla. A native of Pittsburgh, he was interested in magic from childhood. He was one of the first American magicians to perform the cabinet levitation illusion.

McKissock taught a number of performers in magic, including several who became vaudeville headliners. The West Palm Beach Ring of the International Brotherhood of Magicians is named after him.

A brother survives.

ARTHUR REECE

Arthur Reece, 94, vaude performer, died April 2 in Twickenham, Eng., in the Variety Artists Benevolent Fund home. He played in pantomime and music hall and, at the turn of the century, was a star contemporary with such headliners as George Lashwood and Marie Lloyd.

Two of his outstanding songs were "Sons of the Sea" and "The Boers Have Got My Daddy." In 1905 he was King Rat of the Grand Order of Water Rats. His "Sons of the Sea" song is still played at Water Rats functions.

EDWIN D. McKNIGHT

Edwin D. McKnight 63, a drummer, who was widely known in vaudeville and pit bands, died March 27 in Atlantic City, N. J. He was a vaude drummer on Steel Pier for 25 years, dating to the famed Murphy's Minstrels and during that period played under Roy B. Comfort and NBC music supervisor Frank Black. At one time he conducted his own band at Garden Pier.

His brother Harold and another brother Vincent, a Broadway legit company manager, and two sisters survive.

WILBUR ARD

Wilbur Ard, 55, musical director of the live "Early Birds Show" on WFAA, Dallas, for 17 years, died April 2 in that city. He doubled as instrumentalist and vocalist on the daily variety show at various times from 1934-55, when the station dropped the staff band.

He was president of AFM Local 147, Dallas, in 1963. Since 1957 he had been band and orchestra teacher in Dallas elementary schools.

Survived by a daughter, son, mother, brother and two sisters.

ROBERT VOM SCHEIDT

Robert vom Scheidt, 82, longtime member of the Frankfurt City Stage and City Opera, died April 6 in Frankfurt-Main, West Germany. For 27 years, from 1912 until 1939, he was an active member of the Frankfurt Opera, especially well known for his role of Hans Sachs in "Der Meistersinger."

Born in Cologne, vom Scheidt started his career in 1896 as a comic with the local theatre, then studied singing and became a baritone with the Hamburg Opera.

J. FRANCIS HANEY

Will J. Haney, veteran vaudeville performer known professionally as J. Francis Haney, died April 11 in Milan, Ind. He played the major vaude houses both in the U. S. and abroad. He married his dancing partner Helen Stewart.

After retiring from the stage, he operated a motion picture theatre in Milan for several years. He also invented the Haney Tap, for dancing shoes.

His wife survives.

MRS. FRANCES GUNTHER

Frances (Mrs. John) Gunther, 77, a former wife of the author, died in Jerusalem (Israeli sector) April 6. She had lived there for several years and wrote on religious subjects. She was a member of the American Friends of Jewish Palestine and long campaigned for Zionism.

Her brother, Hollywood producer Bernard P. Fineman, was at her bedside when she died.

CYRENA VAN GORDON

Cyrena Van Gordon, 67, contralto who had sung with the Metropolitan and Chicago Civic operas, died April 4 in New York. Born Cyrene Sue Pocock, she made her debut in 1913 as Ammeris in "Aida" and bowed at the Met Jan. 18, 1934 in the same role. She also sang on the concert stage and, of late, had been a vocal teacher.

Survived by a brother.

JAMES HURLEY

James Hurley, 71, outdoor editor of the N. Y. Journal-American, died in New York, March 4. Before joining the J-A, he was a sports writer and assistant sports editor of the now-defunct N. Y. Daily Mirror.

Survived by wife, three daughters, son, and 13 grandchildren.

TOM LESLIE

Tom Leslie, 68, comedian, died March 26 in Birmingham, Eng. His real name was Thomas Veale. He started as a concert party comic.

Later he was with the Devonshire Dandies in a double act with his brother, Lou Fredericks, becoming a solo performer after Fredericks' death.

BASIL FORTESQUE

Basil Fortesque, 62, exhibitor, died April 1 in Brighton, Eng. He was general manager for the Bentley Circuit, became a distributor and then director of the Bognor Hippodrome.

He retired two years ago due to ill health.

JUNE K. MOSER

June K. Moser, 49, wife of broadcasting attorney John Moser and daughter of retired Kraft Foods prexy John H. Kraft, died April 7 in Chicago.

Other survivors include three sons, two daughters, mother and a sister.

IRA G. MERCER

Ira G. Mercer, 51, former president of KHON radio (now KPOI), Honolulu, died April 8 in that city, where he had lived for many years. He had been an electrical service executive since his station changed hands.

Wife and three daughters survive.

ALFRED H. LLEWELYN

Alfred H. Llewelyn, 71, retired vaudeville and radio actor, died April 6 in Albuquerque. He worked in vaude and radio in the 1920s and '30s, and retired at start of World War II.

Wife, son, sister and a brother survive.

JOE HAMM

Joe Hamm, 87, formerly of the Harmony 4, a quartet that was a standard vaudeville act, died in Kansas City, Mo., April 4. For years he was w.k. as a singer and nitery operator around K.C.

Wife survives.

TIFFANY SHREVE

Tiffany Shreve, 31 (real name, Carol Everson), stage actress, died April 2 in Hollywood after a long illness. Her last appearance was in "Man in the Dog Suit" at Cameo Theatre, L.A., in 1962.

Mother and brother survive.

HARRIS PACE

Harris Pace, 42, film editor, died of an apparent heart attack in Hollywood April 6. He had worked at Four Star, Revue, Universal and Columbia Pictures.

Surviving is his mother, Lois Bergquist, a lab technician.

Leonard Carroll, musical arranger at copyist, died at 48 in Forest Hills, N. Y., on April 6. He with two other brothers were associated with the Mitch Miller tv show. He managed a copying service and provided the musical scores; brother Jimmy Carroll was also an arranger; Frank L. Carroll is a bass player in the "Sing Along With Mitch" orchestra. Another brother and two sisters survive.

Walter F. Hanrahan, 72, who played the role of Cy Prime in the annual revival of the melodrama, "The Old Homestead," at Potash Bowl in Swanzey, N. H., for 20 years until his retirement in 1961, died there March 21.

Samuel S. Schary, 68, a retired promotions representative and brother of writer-producer Dore Schary, died March 30 in Philadelphia. His wife and two daughters also survive.

William Reich, 76, an attorney for more than 50 years in Trenton, N. J., died April 10 in Philadelphia, after a brief illness. He was the father of legit producer Eddie Rich.

Robert Fine, musical director, died March 19 in London. He worked for years as m.d. for Thomas Convery and Jack Taylor's shows.

Hubert Broderick, 55, for years a Warner Bros. cameraman, died April 3 in Hollywood. His wife, son, two daughters and father survive.

Fritzi Reilly, 78, one of the more popular folk singers in "old Vienna," died March 15 in the Austrian capital. She also frequently appeared in operettas.

Angelo R. Casamassa, 72, wardrobe master at the Metropolitan Opera House for the last 45 years, died April 9 in Brooklyn.

Leo J. F. Bartunek, 68, onetime member of the musical staffs of WTAM and WHK, and Cleveland Opera Co., died recently in Elizabeth, N. J.

John R. Ashton, 52, head of Walt Disney studio transportation dept., died April 4 in Hollywood. His wife, son and daughter survive.

Cyril Hogg, 79, play publisher, died Feb. 21 in London. He was managing director of Samuel French Ltd.

Mabel Van Camp Owen, 103, former concert singer, died recently in San Antonio. Two daughters survive.

Father, 72, of composer Bob Merrill, died April 2 in Philadelphia. His wife and another son survive.

Father, 72, of Melville Mills, announcer with CJQC-TV Saskatoon, Sask., died April 5 in that city.

Wife of Peter Del Negro, exec v.p. of Iverson Corp., died of a heart attack March 22 in Hollywood.

Mother, 71, of tv writer-producer Sid Dorfman, died of a heart attack April 4 in Hollywood.

Father, 81, of Hazel Court, tv and film actress, died recently in Hastings, Eng.

Father, of actor Robert Wagner, died April 4 in Hollywood.

NBC's Fair Spec

Continued from page 1

formers will be in the Fair intro, since a good deal of the coverage will include shows at the various entertainment exhibs, but the stet star cast is quite an investment in itself.

Henry Fonda will be overall host of the 90-minutes, and working as guides to the various areas of the fair grounds will be Lorne Greene, the "Bonanza" star for the state and Federal exhibits; pix star Fred MacMurray for transportation; singer Marian Anderson for the religioso section; song and dance star Carol Channing ("Hello Dolly") for a musical tour of the industrial grounds; and Mexican comedian Cantinflas for the International exhibits (in one of his rare U.S. tv appearances and gratis as a good will gesture and plus for his native country).

Easily as impressive as the star roster is the production set up. Schedule calls for 25 days of color-film shooting, using three cameras each day. There will be eight days of color-vidtaping, with a five-camera remote unit (the RCA color unit at the Fair is not being used, since the unit is busy with the 12-hours a day of programing that will be presented daily for the run of the event).

On Sunday (19), NBC will move in with three separate color mobile units—12 color cameras—to start rehearsals for the live segments of the show. On the night of the show the 12 color cameras will be in operation. All events during opening day (ribbon cuttings etc.) will be covered by tape for last minute insertion. That night (22), master control at NBC's 30 Rock HQ will be fusing the tape, film and live segments besides handling a studio orchestra live, and the three live remote truck units will have their own master control.

Add to the works, helivision with a tv-equiped helicopter for both live and film segs (the latter now in production).

There are five directors on the show working under producer Bob Bendick. First director is Kirk Browning; second is Dean Whitmore; third Gil Cates; fourth Lee Tredenari (for tape and live segs) and fifth, Bernie Hirschenson, film.

All of this and one writer too — Lou Solomon. Obviously, too many writers might spoil this mix of live, film, tape and helivision.

MARRIAGES

Nancy Richards to Sherman Wayne, April 11, West Hartford, Conn. He's a legit producer.

Catherina Lodders to Chubby Checker (in private life Ernest Evans), April 12, Pennsauken, N.J. Bride is a Dutch model and former Miss World; she met the Negro rock 'n' roll singer while both were on the same bill in Manila.

Penelope Agren to Douglas C. Conrad, Honolulu, April 4. Bride is daughter of W. M. Agren, Fox Intermountain Theatres exec.

Valerie Middleton to Piers Burrows, Chichester, Eng., recently. Bride is with Erwin Wasey Advertising; he is ad manager of Premier Drum Co.

Linda Mae Schwartz to Boris Tepper, New York, April 12. Bride is the daughter of Louis E. Schwartz, business manager of Mills Music.

Jane Aronberg to Donald Edwin Culkin, April 11, New York. Bride is designer of school textbooks for Harcourt, Brace & World; he's with Hanover Trust.

Joan Ann Hirschland to Hans Meier, Lake Worth, Fla. Bride studied at Stella Adler Drama School and is with Harper & Row, publishers; bridegroom, formerly with Dutch Air Force, is assistant to the treasurer of the UN.

Sandra Lee Cadieux to George Goldring, St. Albans, Vt., April 4. He's an announcer with radio station WDRC, Hartford, Conn.

Jasmine Watson to David Round, Sunderland, Eng., March 25. He is stage manager of Sunderland Empire; she's a staffer with theatre's booking office clerk.

Marjorie Dalziel to Reginald Cunard, Edinburgh, April 10. Bride is an actress.

Geraldine Kidd to Richard Johnsen, New York, April 10. Bride is with the Allan, Foster, Ingersoll & Weber publicity firm; he's a writer.

Patti Coots to Julie Chester, New York, March 7 (just revealed). Bride is daughter of songwriter J. Fred Coots; he's with Lloyd Greenfield management office.

BIRTHS

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Rosen, son, April 10, Newport Beach Calif. Father is son of VARIETY Radio-TV editor George Rosen.

Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Edson, daughter, Hollywood, April 2. Father is a nitery operator.

Mr. and Mrs. Karl Lind, daughter, Hollywood, April 6. Parents are The Linds, a nitery act.

Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Vance, daughter, London, April 2. Mother is actress Claire Neilson; father is an Associated TeleVision producer.

Mr. and Mrs. Michael Artist, daughter, Albany, March 15. Father is promotion manager for Stanley Warner-owned WAST-TV there.

Mr. and Mrs. Stanley H. Durwood, son, Kansas City, March 3. Father is president of Durwood Theatres circuit.

Mr. and Mrs. Hector Spadek, daughter, Benidorm, Spain, Jan. 29. Mother is the former Trini Reyes, Brooklyn-born flamenco dancer, long with the Los Chavales de Espana organization.

Mr. and Mrs. Larry Noble, son, Bushey, Eng., recently. Mother is actress Pamela Plant; father is a comedian.

Mr. and Mrs. Sparky Kaye, son, Las Vegas, April 8. Father is comedian at Silver Slipper.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Alexander, son, April 7, New York. Mother is actress Jane Alexander; father is a legit director-stage manager.

Mr. and Mrs. Herb Granath, son, April 9, New York. Mother is tv actress Ann Flood; father is eastern sales director for the ABC radio network.

Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Morrow, son, April 3, New York. Father is a deejay at WABC.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Antonell, daughter, March 18, New York. Mother is singer Barbara Cassini; father is a legit company manager.

'Runaway' Pix

Continued from page 2

berg-Seaton production of "36 Hours" at 20th. Film started Monday (13); directive takes effect Wed. (15).

Pix which are most affected by directive are those requiring large groups of foreign thesps such as "My Fair Lady," notes Perlberg. He opines that if interpretation of ruling is strict, such pix may be forced to go abroad due to casting considerations.

It's Dark Outside.

Chief Inspector Rose and Detective Sergeant Swift star in this TV suspense series from Granada. (Not since Holmes and Watson have the British been so enthusiastic about a couple of sleuths.)

It's Dark Outside is a hot package of proper corpses and mystery. Now wrapped up and ready for sale. Americans should love it, too. It absolutely beats curling up in bed with an Agatha Christie.)

GRANADA TV NETWORK, ENGLAND
[illegible] Square, London W1.

FILMS | VIDEO | TV FILMS | RADIO | MUSIC | STAGE

VARIETY

PRICE 35¢

APR 22 1964

Published Weekly at 154 West 46th Street, New York, N. Y. 10036, by Variety, Inc. Annual subscription, $15. Single copies, 35 cents.
Second Class Postage Paid at New York, N.Y.
© COPYRIGHT, 1964, BY VARIETY, INC., ALL RIGHTS RESERVED
Vol. 234 No. 9 NEW YORK, WEDNESDAY, APRIL 22, 1964 152 PAGES

BRITISH PIX ROLL TO ROCK BEAT

Latin Quarter's E. M. Loew Would Sue To Ease Expense Account Spending

Latin Quarter owner E. M. Loew, who also heads a New England Theatre circuit, has threatened to go to the courts to correct the inequities against nightclubs in the present expense account regulations. In a full hour meeting with International Revenue Commissioner Mortimer M. Caplin, Loew declared that because of the hardships brought on by the expense account policies now in effect, he has no choice. "Either I have to go out of business or go into the Court," he told the Commissioner.

Loew declared that in an hour-long meeting with Caplin, he outlined the plight of the nightclubs since the expense account regulations were promulgated. The original dictum has been softened considerably since the original announcement, but Loew told the Commissioner that any easing of the law hasn't been sufficiently stressed and niteries are still suffering as a result of the law.

Loew has stated that he not only seeks further clarification of the law, but he would like the regulation corrected to eliminate the injustices done to legitimate businessmen who still abstain from taking clients or customers to niteries, and to the cafe field. He said that conditions for at least a year and a half have been very bad, and unless the cafes get immediate relief, the dwindling num-

(Continued on page 138)

Mr. Dubious

Negro Press Bureau, while extolling the acting skills of Sidney Poitier, was quick to suggest after the recent Oscarcast which handed Potier the "best actor" statuette that this was an easy "out" for the craft union memberships of the Hollywood film studios. They exclude Negro workers from the studios and then hand one Negro actor a prize—such was the reaction.

NPB contends that a handful of Negro performers are the standoff for "consistent and deliberate" exclusion of the race from the American scene as presented on screen and the shutout from the film studio payrolls.

Poitier's Oscar Has Exhibitors Whistling Dixie

Oscar of Hollywood always has his effect on the picture biz but this year an Academy Award is taking on social significance. This, of course, refers to the naming of Sidney Poitier as "best actor" for his role in United Artists' "Lilies of the Field." It seems that many southern exhibs who wouldn't book the picture before have suddenly changed their tune and the picture is doing substantial biz both in the south and elsewhere around the the country.

All 300 prints of "Lilies" are

(Continued on page 150)

Hooliganism, a la 'Mods,' 'Rockers,' Jeopardizing Pop Concerts in Britain

London, April 21.

Hooliganism, which marred many attempts to present jazz fetes in this area, is now jeopardizing the staging of pop concerts and similar shows. Following the recent disorder in Clacton, seashore resort, by a tribe of "mods" and "rockers," a big scale beat festival which was to have been held in Brighton May 2 has been cancelled.

Reason for the projected fete's sudden death, according to presenter George Kendall who loses more than $3,000 on the deal, was pressure from the local police who acted on the advice of a "nervous" council. Earlier, there was a threat

(Continued on page 146)

U.S. Diplomat's Daughter Tops Tokyo Cafe Show

Tokyo, April 21.

Diplomacy has been given a new wrinkle here by Dorothy Emmerson, who is starring in the current show at the Tokyo Hilton's Starhill Supper Club. Miss Emmerson, a singer, is the daughter of John K. Emmerson, deputy-

(Continued on page 138)

BEAT(LES) MUSIC BOOMS TREND

By ROGER WATKINS

London, April 21.

Impact of the British beat music boom, which has seen the emergence of scores of local guitar-toting song groups who have taken over the British hit parade and made substantial inroads into the American charts, is sending strong vibrations down Film Row. Filmmakers have picked up the tremors and are moving quickly to translate some of the international (and thus big-coin) popularity of the mopheaded diskers into solid b.o. profitability while the boom is still hot.

Right up front is United Artists which has pacted with The Beatles for three pix. The first, "A Hard Day's Night," with producer Walter Shenson at the helm, is currently shooting here. Four days in advance of The Beatles' pic summer preem, Associated British's Cliff Richard starrer, "Wonderful Life," bows in the West End on July 2. "Life" is Richard's third film; the first two, "The Young Ones" and "Summer Holiday," were both smash hits.

Now rolling at Shepperton studios is Jacques De Lane Lea's production for British Lion called "Just For You," which features a

(Continued on page 150)

Liz & Burton Top NAACP Closed-TV

Elizabeth Taylor and Richard Burton have joined the New York stellar lineup for the National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People closed-circuit May 14 fundraising affair.

Others in the N.Y. galaxy include Robert Preston, Fredric March, Lena Horne, Jackie Gleason, Godfrey Cambridge, Harry Belafonte, Gloria Foster, Sammy Davis Jr., Sidney Poitier, Ossie Davis, Ruby Dee, Larry Blyden, Piper Laurie, Dick Gregory, Duke Ellington, Mahalia Jackson.

Coast talent lineup includes Burt Lancaster, Tony Bennett, Edward G. Robinson, Ed Begley, Agnes Moorehead, Cannonball Ad-

(Continued on page 138)

Fear of Traffic Snarl Haunts Opener; Workers at N.Y. Fair Openly Loafing

By ABEL GREEN

As civic pride and metropolitan New York ballyhoo spirals to a peak for the formal opening today (Wed.) of the 1964 World's Fair, alarm grows in fear of the "worse traffic snarl in history" which occurred at last Friday's baseball start at Shea Stadium, next door to the Fair. The fact that it was much smoother the next day was conceded by Traffic Commissioner Henry A. Barnes who has been dubious earlier about the Flushing Meadows area for a 1964-65 (and probably 1966) Fair.

Even without the Fair's actual operation, the potential of what could happen with the converging of Jones Beach, Shea's Stadium and World's Fair traffic was too vividly sampled last Friday. But Commissioner Barnes conceded that the Fair's own maintenance trucks and other bulky vehicles putting the finishing touches on Robert Moses' big show were the prime offenders—not the civilians.

None the less a crash advertising and other propaganda campaign stresses the usage of public transportation in favor of private automobiles.

There must be recognition, how-

(Continued on page 148)

In Tails and Safety Belt

Met opera tenor Richard Tucker made a Tuesday (21) night flight in tails to sing at dedication ceremonies this morning (Wed.) at the World's Fair. He then returns to Phoenix to concertize with the Arizona Symphony there.

Elaborate logistics of symph, American Airlines and Fair were necessary. It was a commitment Tucker made two years ago.

Ladybird's Station Under Scrutiny In Capital Cable Deal

Washington, April 21.

FCC ordered Capital Cable Co. to disclose the terms of its option agreement with Austin station KTBC-TV, owned by Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson.

With Commissioner Lee Loevinger dissenting, FCC voted 6-1 that Capital Cable should by April 22 hand over the terms of the agreement under which KTBC can buy up to 50% of the community antenna television system.

Commission said it would keep any section of the document secret if its disclosure would place Capital Cable at a competitive disadvantage.

Capital Cable had previously declined to provide the option agreement, challenging FCC's

(Continued on page 148)

Duchess of Windsor Helping 'Lady' Start

Hotelier Claude C. Philippe, who is staging the $150-a-ticket "My Fair Lady" pink champagne supper dance on behalf of Jack L. Warner and the Will Rogers Memorial Hospital next Oct. 21, has gotten the Duchess of Windsor into the act. She's hostessing a pre-premiere cocktailery at Delmonico's on May 5 to get the ball rolling on "MFL"

(Continued on page 150)

Dems Eye $4-Mil Gross On $100 Top Presidential Gala in D.C. and Gotham

Washington, April 21.

Democratic biggies expect a gross of up to $4,000,000 on a Presidential Gala which will play Washington's Armory May 26 and New York's Madison Square Garden May 28, with tickets priced at $100 each.

President and Mrs. Johnson will attend both performances, and there will be a dinner ahead of each for more affluent Democrats at $1,000 per plate.

Arthur Krim is chairman of both shows, and Richard Adler is the producer-director. With a few exceptions, it will be an identical production in both cities.

There will be a difference in emcees and in Metropolitan Opera stars. Robert Merrill will sing in New York; Anna Moffo in Wash-

(Continued on page 138)

DISCOVER A NEW WORLD

New Sunset Blvd. RCA Bldg. Recalls Much Hollywood Lore

By WHITNEY WILLIAMS

Hollywood, April 21.

Should a certain faint aroma of ham tinge the rarefied atmosphere of RCA's new Coast headquarters at Sunset Blvd. and Ivar Ave., which opens officially today, it's no wonder. The site was once occupied by a butcher shop. It was operated by Jacob Muller, father of Frank and the late Walter Muller who parlayed a few thousand dollars' investment into the largest service station in the world directly across the street where the new dome-shaped Cinerma Theatre now stands.

Back of the butcher shop, which he opened in 1890, the elder Muller had a large smokehouse where he cured bacon and ham, made head cheese and bologna and other titillating viands to tempt the palates of the neighborhood, then devoted mostly to citrus-growing. Huge groves extended almost solidly from Laurel Canyon east to Vermont Ave., southward to Santa Monica Blvd. and northward to Hollywood Blvd.—then Prospect Ave.—and continuing to the hills.

Frank Muller was born in a house next door to the butcher-shop, the entrance to which was only a foot or so from the five steps that lead up to the handsome $3,500,000, nine-story structure Muller has built for RCA. It occu-

(Continued on page 150)

MARLENE AND TALENT, PER VON STERNBERG

Minneapolis, April 21.

Film director Josef von Sternberg, now 70, came here last week as one of the speakers at a U. of Minnesota Creative Arts Festival. He offered his opinions about Marlene Dietrich, whom he claims to have "discovered."

He did this while showing two Dietrich pictures which he directed. "The Blue Angel" and "The Devil Is a Woman," both of which were rated successes. Incidentally, he had to borrow the print of the latter because he doesn't own one himself.

Von Sternberg said he didn't think Miss Dietrich had any talent, even though the two pictures were boxoffice hits. She was "only a great personality with the desire to participate in creative work," in his opinion. The quote is from Gary Gilson, Star staff writer.

He asserted that his real name is Sternberg, that somone just slipped the "von" into it when he wasn't looking in order to make it sound more aristocratic.

"After the 'von' was attached to my name, the first picture that I had directed flopped," he said. "There was a lot of anti-German sentiment then and that's why I think people didn't come to see it."

No, No, No!

London, April 21.

Widespread published reports on both sides of the Atlantic that Paul McCartney, a member of the Beatles group, had married actress Jane Asher, were apparently without foundation, although the rumor was confirmed by the "bride."

They are, it is understood, "just good friends."

CORE Spotlites Chevy's Interracial Auditions

Editor, VARIETY:

When you announce the casting calls for the Chevrolet Industrial Show, we request that you publicize the interracial aspect of these auditions which will be held April 27 and 28, at Variety Arts Studios, 225 West 46th St.

The Seven Arts Chapter of CORE has been attempting to widen the scope of employment for non-white performers and has chosen the field of industrial and trade shows as its first project.

Representatives of the four major automobile manufacturers have indicated to delegates from this CORE chapter their willingness to cooperate in hiring talented performers regardless of color and in sending out integrated troupes to all areas of the country.

Your help is urgently needed to reach non-white as well as white performers who would be interested in applying for employment.

The audition schedule for Equity singers and dancers is: Mon., 4/27, Male: Dancers — 10 a.m.; Singers—2 p.m.; Tues., 4/28, Female: Dancers—10 a.m.; Singers —2 p.m..

Richard W. Bracken.

Bayreuth Bid to Czech

Prague, April 21.

Young Czech singer from the local opera house, Antonin Svorc, has been invited by Wieland Wagner to appear in Bayreuth in the role of Hans Sachs in the "Meistersinger."

Jaroslav Krombholc will stage a new production of Janaceek's "Jenufa" at the State Opera in Vienna this May.

COHEN PAGES ROD STEIGER

Hollywood, April 21.

Rod Steiger has been offered the lead in "World War II½," which Alex Cohen is producing for Broadway legit presentation next fall.

Roger Hirshon wrote the play.

KAY GARDELLA

N. Y. Daily News Columnist says: "TV has proven another happy outlet for PAUL ANKA'S natural talent as a singer-actor-composer. Video screens in this country and Europe have helped add to the wide popularity enjoyed by this youthful performer. The air waves are additional solid ground for his expanding career."

'Kelly' Musical Set; Col Vice Roulette On Album Angle

Joseph E. Levine and the David Susskind-Daniel Melnick partnership join on Broadway next fall for "Kelly," a musical with book and lyrics by Eddie Lawrence and music by Moose Charlap. Capitalization of the tuner will be around $450,000, with Levine putting up $250,000 and Columbia Records supplying another $50,000 for the LP rights.

Project, which has been pending over a year, was most recently optioned to legit producer Ed Padula. It is fully capitalized, the new auspices stated at a press parlay last week, and goes into rehearsal in July with a September Broadway opening planned. A Boston trial will precede. The three partners also own the screen

(Continued on page 131)

The House Still Can Be Beaten, Asserts Prof. Who Authored 'System' for 21

Las Cruces, N.M., April 21.

The blackjack, or 21, rules in Las Vegas' casinos may have been changed, but the New Mexico State U. professor whose system caused a switch, says the house can still be beaten.

House rules in Vegas were altered, after players using a system developed by Prof. Edward O. Thorp, a mathematician, began to cut into house percentages.

His bestselling book, "Beat the Dealer," outlines the pattern that gives players the favorable edge of a 52-48 percentage instead of the usual house odds of 52½-47½ against the player.

Under new rules, the professor said, Thorp system players will make only 3½%, compounded hourly. "I predicted the changes in my book," Thorp added, "and in the book, I told the players how to react to changes."

He said that under the new rules, a player using the system will make a profit "only about two-thirds as fast as under the old rules." He did not go into detail, but said the information is "in the book."

On top of that, Prof. Thorp plans more trouble for the casinos.

He said he's planning a book on beating other games, such as roulette and baccarat. The latter is a card game that originated in France.

Opera In the Black

London, April 21.

Something every board of directors of every opera house would like to achieve—has so far been achieved only by London's Royal Opera House.

It is in the black! For the last year by roughly $2,000,000.

DeG 'Finds' Debussy Still Boffo

Paris, April 21.

General De Gaulle went to a performance at the Opera Comique (in Paris) recently. Back of which is quite a yarn. First, the office of the President would like to attend the following evening, and what was playing? Mozart's "Marriage de Figaro." Pause. M le President would prefer to see something different, it seemed. Nothing easier; what would he like to see? That's why, suddenly, "Figaro" was withdrawn and "Pelleas and Melisande" substituted overnight. This meant finding the singers for the latter, rehearsing them, making refunds to customers who wanted to see "Figaro," explaining the change of program to the casts and musicians and newspapers—without revealing the reason. And without revealing the fact that President De Gaulle would be attending the performance, which must (always) be a secret, in advance. All of which was easy, as compared to the real toughie—how to fill the theatre, which almost always plays to half a house and especially when "Pelleas" is billed. A dozen secretaries were put to work on the telephone inviting an audience . . . a well-dressed audience.

When the General and his group arrived in the Presidential box they were pleased to note that "Debussy is still drawing big houses."

Death Of a Convenient Scapegoat

Many Jews Forgave Veit Harlan For 'Jew Seuss' Film —His Red Tormentors Had All Been Good Nazis

By HANS HOEHN

Berlin, April 21.

Veit Harlan, 64, the German who directed the notorious Nazi feature, "Jew Suess," under direct order of Joseph Goebbels in 1940, died of cancer April 13 on the isle of Capri, Italy. He had suffered several heart attacks in earlier years. That he never could live down his "Jew Suess" past was obviously the major reason for his professional dilemma. He had been practically inactive for several years although he did direct one film, "The Third Sex."

Harlan was one of the most prominent and also most able German film directors of the 30s and early 40s. There were former Nazis who managed to find their way back to "big biz." Not Harlan, though never a member of the Nazi Party. Former colleagues who were zealous Nazis ignored him after Germany's defeat because "it

(Continued on page 150)

A 'Variety' Skim Record?

Glasgow, April 21.

Peter Hattie, 28-year-old postal sorter in Glasgow's General Post Office, an avid show biz and jazz fan, reads every issue of VARIETY religiously each week.

A sucker for statistics, he reckons that he can skim an entire issue (every dept.) in an average time of one hour 48 minutes flat.

Is this a world record, asks Hattie.

Universal at Home To Those Sightseers

Los Angelis, April 21.

One studio that takes the tourist business seriously is Universal. It has for many years been on the bus-tour route, giving visitors to its motion picture and tv production center a limited but satisfactory, according to surveys, look at the overall operation.

As part of the expansion of its tourist accommodations, Universal is adding something new in sightseeing trams. Barry Upson, exec in charge of the development, said that the new trams were designed, and will be tested this summer on a limited basis, because of poor maneuverability and semi-obstructed views afforded by buses presently used.

Harper Goff, one of original designing architescts of Disneyland and the creator of the N. Y. World's Fair's Unisphere, designed the trams. He is now a member of Universal's tour staff. They will accommodate 70 persons each and are highly maneuverable, allowing visitors to be routed over a much greater area of the 410-acre studio. Delivery is expected about July 1.

COMPLETE LEGAL GUIDE TO SHOW BIZ PACTS

By HARRIET F. PILPEL

There's no book like Alexander Lindey's new "Entertainment, Publishing and the Arts (Clark & Boardman; $47) for show biz lawyers and their clients. It is an indispensable guide and aid to the legal ins and outs of the literary and entertainment maze.

This is so, first of all, because it contains in easily findable arrangement, the forms by and through which creative talent in these fields as well as their lawyers and agents live and thrive.

The forms are clear, comprehensive and so set forth that you can

(Continued on page 131)

4/22

VARIETY

Subscription Order Form

Enclosed find check for $.....

Please send VARIETY for ☐ One Year ☐ Two Years ☐ Three Years

To .....
(Please Print Name)

Street .....

City..... Zone.... State.....

Regular Subscription Rates

One Year—$15.00 Two Years—$28.00

Three Years—$39.00

Canada and Foreign—$1 Additional Per Year

VARIETY Inc.

154 West 46th Street New York, N. Y. 10036

VARIETY

Trade Mark Registered

FOUNDED 1905 by SIME SILVERMAN; Published Weekly by VARIETY, INC.

Syd Silverman, President
154 West 46th St., New York, N. Y. 10036 JUdson 2-2700
Hollywood, Calif. 90028
6404 Sunset Boulevard, HOllywood 9-1141
Washington, D. C. 20004
784 National Press Building, STerling 3-5445
Chicago, Ill. 60611
400 No. Michigan Ave., DElaware 7-4984

London, S.W.1
49 St. James's Street, Piccadilly, HYde Park 4561-2-3
SUBSCRIPTION Annual, $15; Foreign, $16; Single Copies, 35 Cents

ABEL GREEN, Editor

Volume 234 128 No. 9

INDEX

Bills	142	Music	129
Casting	146	New Acts	142
Chatter	149	Night Club Reviews	140
Film Reviews	6	Obituaries	151
House Reviews	142	Pictures	3
Inside Pictures	100	Radio	105
Inside Radio-TV	128	Record Reviews	130
International	11	Television	105
Legitimate	143	Television Reviews	117
Literati	150	TV Film	112
House Reviews	142	Vaudeville	136
		Wall Street	4

DAILY VARIETY
(Published in Hollywood by Daily Variety, Ltd.)
$20 a year. $25 Foreign.

U.S. RENTALS VITAL TO ITALY

National Boxoffice Survey

Academy Awards Lift Biz; 'Jones' Firm in First 'World' 2d, 'Doctor' 3d, 'Empire' 4th

Oscar awards are hypoing biz this week in most key cities covered by VARIETY. Its laurels for the best picture particularly helped "Tom Jones" (UA) (21st wk) to retain its hold on first place. The Academy accolades also cued the reissue of a flock of award winners including "Hud" (Par) and "Lilies of the Field" (UA), both of which snared favorable grosses.

Second in the b.o. sweepstakes is "It's a Mad World" (UA) (22d wk), displacing "Dr. Strangelove" (Col) (10th wk) which dropped to third. "Fall of Roman Empire" (Par) (3d wk), fifth last week rose to fourth by dint of takes that ranged from modest to tall in some eight keys.

"Capt. Newman" (U) (6th wk) is nabbing fifth position closely followed by "Cleopatra" (20th) (43d wk). "Pink Panther" (UA) (5th wk) is winding up seventh. "7 Days in May" (Par) (9th wk) is drawing smooth biz to latch on to eighth while "Yesterday, Today and Tomorrow" (Embassy) has pushed up to ninth.

"Night Must Fall" (MGM) (4th wk), "Silence" (Janus) (11th wk) and "Best Man" (UA) (2d wk) round out the Top 12. Runnerup pix are "Muscle Beach Party" (AI) (2d wk), "How the West Was Won" (MGM) (62d wk) and "The Carpetbaggers" (Par) (2d wk).

"Carpetbaggers," the Carroll Baker-George Peppard starrer, is socko in second week of its Denver preem and looms a powerful b.o. contender. "Becket," another newcomer from Par, also shows strong promise via fancy holdover biz in Chi, L.A., N.Y. and Toronto.

Among other fresh pix, "Kissin' Cousins" (MGM) is hotsy in Boston, fair in Seattle and modest in Louisville. "World of Henry Orient" (UA) is steady in New York. "Flight From Ashiya" (UA) is fair in Baltimore. "From Russia With Love" (UA), a potential blockbuster, is good in N.Y.

"Advance to the Rear" (MGM) is good in Boston and San Francisco but thin in Pittsburgh. "Silence" (Janus) is okay to trim in some seven holdover dates in as many cities. "America, America" (WB), mild in Washington, is okay in Philly, Boston and Pittsburgh.

"To Bed—Or Not to Bed" (Cont) is brisk in Chi but light in Baltimore. "Dark Purpose" (U) is dim in Philly. "Soldier in Rain" (AA), hefty in L.A., is sharp in Denver. "Strangler" (AA) is good in Detroit, but slow in Minneapolis.

Paramount Resumes Profit Position; But Lives With Federal Tax Sleuths

In 1963, Paramount Pictures reversed the financial setback suffered by the company the previous year, the only season in its history that Par showed a loss. This expected return to profit was revealed last week in an advance statement to the company's annual report in which Par reported an estimated net income for '63 of $5,908,000, equal to $3.58 per share based on 1,652,531 shares outstanding at the end of the year. In 1962 the company lost $2,754,000.

In addition to this income, profit on sales of investments in 1963 was $1,788,000, as compared with $1,642,000 from such sales and other assets the year previous. Gross income last year totaled $116,374,000 as compared with $113,512,000 in 1962. Amounts for both years include the results of Plautus Productions, Par's wholly owned tv production company.

Paramount and the Internal Revenue Service continued to be at odds during the past year. The IRS continued its examination of the company's tax returns from 1953 to 1960, a process which has been going on for the past several years. Although the company hasn't yet received the IRS reports for any of the years in question, Par now feels that amounts which will be in dispute will be far greater than than been anticipated. "We continue to be in complete disagreement with the position of the Service and will strongly contest any assessments," the company stated. As a precautionary measure, Par retained $10,000,000 from its earnings in 1963 for taxes in controversy.

Deferred Research

Another area drawing considerable attention during the year was the time element involved in the recoverability of the deferred research and development costs carried on the books for Par's toll-vision and color tube projects. The company reaffirmed its confidence in both operations but noted that the period of time before which substantial income will be on its way to Par is still some time off. As a result of this thinking, a charge to retained earnings of $8,107,000, the balance of the unamortized research and development costs at the end of 1962, was made.

While the Telemeter toll project has been putting along at a less than envigorated clip, with some developments expected later this year, the Chromatic color tube endeavor is quite close to fruition. Sony, the Japanese electronics company, is working on the application of the tube for its small portable tv sets and, in fact, delivery of models using the Par tube are expected by the end of the year. This, of course, would place the tube in an earning position. The Telemeter project faces many developments, among which could be a switch in base of operations from Toronto, the test area for the past few years.

Await FCC Okay

Late in 1963, Paramount made a deal, subject to the approval of the Federal Communications Commission, for the sale for $12,000,000 of the assets of tv station KTLA in Los Angeles to Golden West Broadcasters. Profit from this transaction, when consumated, is now expected to be around $7,500,000. The expectation is that this transaction will be completed in 1964.

Along with the KTLA sale, there are other items of fiscal interest which point to the current year as a substantial prospect. For one, there's the deal with NBC-TV whereby the web leased 30 Par post-'48 pix, with two more years of options, bringing the total to 90 features with an estimated total return to Par of $28,000,000. Although the payment rate hasn't been revealed, substantial coin will come to the company this year.

Also, of course, there's the revenue from pix in theatrical distribution. Such income is strongly projected for the year, although there are pix out which could offer resistance. Items like "Carpetbaggers," "Seven Days in May," "Love With the Proper Stranger," reissues of "Hud" and others provide indications of distribution strength. "Becket" and "Fall of the Roman Empire," the company's two road-show pix, will continue on hard-tickets for a while yet. In both cases, Par's investment is not gigantic.

Rackmils Reach London

London, April 21.

Universal's president, Milton Rackmil, is due in London on Thursday (23) and will be staying until next Monday. He will be accompanied by his wife.

Rackmil came into London from Rome.

RIZZOLI GOAL: 25% OF COSTS

With between $15,000,000 and $20,000,000 invested in 15 current and upcoming productions, Federiz Productions of Italy must earn at least 25% of that investment back in the U.S. simply to break even. This is the estimate of Angelo Rizzoli, Federiz chief who is also a major factor in Italo publishing circles.

Rizzoli, along with Mr. and Mrs. Federico (Giuletta Masina) Fellini, brother Andrea Rizzoli and son Angelo Jr., was in New York briefly last week after attending the Oscar ceremonies in Hollywood, where Fellini's "8-1/2" was named best foreign language picture of the year. Rizzoli Sr.'s estimate of what Federiz films should be earning in the States came by way of explanation of his plans to open his own film distribution organization here.

The U.S. operation will start small, he says, and will not necessarily mean that no outside deals with other Yank distribs will be made. He is principally concerned with seeing that more of his pix get Stateside exposure than is now the case. While it's impossible to pass advance judgment on what a film's U.S. market potential may be, Rizzoli is convinced that Yank distribs buy on very conservative estimates.

As an example of the latter, he cited the case of his $2,000,000 costume spectacle, "Imperial Venus," a Gina Lollobrigida-Stephen Boyd starrer, on which no Yank bids were even received. At the moment, he says, "Venus" is still about $800,000 in the red, and he feels it's worth the investment of perhaps a couple of hundred thousand dollars more to see if the pic does not actually have a sizeable U.S. audience. Pic will be one of the first to be launched by the new Rizzoli operation here.

Asked to comment on the apparent conflict between the fact that while the Italo production industry is reported to be in grave financial shape, Italo films are doing booming biz in the U.S., Rizzoli noted that in the U.S. only the cream of Italo production is available, and that the Italo product seen in the U.S. in any one releasing season may well represent the top films of several production years. There is also the fact that Italo producers may not always receive a very large percentage of what their pix earn in the Yank market.

He, thinks Rizzoli, may have fared somewhat better in the U.S. market because he has not been forced to seek preproduction coin in the U.S. Thus, on the pictures he has later sold here, he has been able to make somewhat better deals, retaining a greater measure of control.

Commenting on the Italo production scene generally, Rizzoli says that "we have artistic talent to export, but we need money." There is also the implication that Italo distribution knowhow, at least in overseas sales, may not as yet measure up to the artistic knowhow of its best film creators.

Hopes are that the Rizzoli film office in New York will be ready for launching this September. Talks now are in progress for a Yank filmman to head the operation, but no deal has yet been set. Italo exec and his party returned to Rome over the weekend.

Hiring of Brando and Sinatra Tops A Year of Zanuck Production

Twentieth-Fox's signing last week of Marlon Brando to star in "Morituri" and Frank Sinatra for "Von Ryan's Express," both to go into production this summer, dramatizes the anniversary the company marks today (Wed.)—the resumption of production activity at the Hollywood studio on April 22, 1963 after the nine-month shutdown for policy reappraisal which followed Darryl F. Zanuck's election to the 20th presidency.

The company, it now turns out, is very much alive.

At the time of the studio shutdown, there were those Cassandras who wondered if it would ever reopen. And the wholesale housecleaning which subsequently took place gave rise to sharp criticism re the Zanuck economy measures. Not the least of these came from producer-director Billy Wilder who suggested publicly that the studio should be bulldozed to extinction and that no self-respecting film talent would consider working for such a cold, cruel company. The obituary was premature.

In addition to Brando and Sinatra, the company has in the last 12 months signed such performing talent as Doris Day, Charlton Heston, Rex Harrison, Glenn Ford, Steve McQueen, Paul Newman, Dean Martin, Robert Mitchum, Shirley MacLaine, Anthony Quinn, Ingrid Bergman, James Stewart, Peter Ustinov and Natalie Wood. Producing-directing talent has included Sir Carol Reed, Robert Wise, Vincente Minnelli, David Miller, Serge Bourguignon, J. Lee Thompson, and a raft of others.

As of today (Wed.), there are four features shooting at the studio, with that number skedded to go up to seven next month, plus four tv series being sold to the networks, not to mention the additional 15 or more pix due to be lensed abroad between now and the end of the year.

At the time the studio reopened last year, there were less than 200 on the studio payroll, against 3,000 today—one of the largest 20th payrolls in more than a decade.

Executive in Greasepaint

The marquee could—but probably won't—read: "20th Century-Fox Films Proudly Presents the Special Assistant to the President of Warner Brothers in 'Von Ryan's Express'." In other words, producer - director - star - tycoon Frank Sinatra.

20th's signing of Sinatra last week to star in "Von Ryan's Express" is the first deal outside Warners which Sinatra has made since he tied up so closely with Warners several months ago via various picture commitments and the sale of his Reprise Records.

The 20th pic is skedded for shooting this summer. At the moment, Sinatra is directing and starring in "None But the Brave" for WB.

20th Promoting Pair of Features At Beech-Nut Hut

The 500-seat, multi-purpose Beech-Nut Theatre, located in the Better Living Center at the New York World's Fair, will be used by 20th-Fox for two important promotions in May and June. 20th's "What A Way To Go" will have its world preem at the theatre on the evening of May 13, to be followed the next day by the film's day-date openings at the Criterion and Sutton Theatres in New York.

20th also will launch its nationwide "resumption of release" of "The Longest Day" with a special screening of the film at the theatre on June 6, the 20th anniversary of the 1944 D-Day landings, for a special audience of military and civilian leaders. The Darryl F. Zanuck production was withdrawn from domestic release on Jan. 1 of this year in anticipation of the D-Day anniversary and a new wave of launchings around the country.

The theatre, which is sponsored by Beech-Nut Life Savers Inc., will also feature live shows, concerts, fashion shows, and be available for meetings of business and fraternal groups. Phil Tippin is managing director of the theatre and Jean Dalrymple program consultant.

NAMED GENERAL COUNSEL

Leonard Kaufman Gets Added Braid at Paramount

Leonard Kaufman has been appointed general counsel for Paramount Pictures. He had been house counsel in New York prior to the promotion.

Actually, Paramount has had no general counsel since the passing five years ago of Louis Phillips. Kaufman has been filling in same title since then. He has been with the company for the past 15 years.

1,000-Car Drive-In At Butlin Camp

U. S. theatre architect Drew Eberson has been commissioned to design and supervise the construction of England's first drive-in, a 1,000-car, all-weather ozoner, part of the large Butlin Holiday Camp complex in Blackpool.

Associated British Pictures Corp. will build and operate the theatre, construction on which is to start shortly.

Legit Can Hawk Grog But New Law Explicitly Nixes Booze 'n' Pictures

Albany, April 21.

The compromise omnibus liquor-control bill, passed 34 to 23 in the Senate, and 80 to 63 in the Assembly, after lengthy, spirited debate before record gallery and floor crowds, creates a special license for on-premises consumption that may be issued for "operation of a legitimate theatre or such other lawful adult entertainment or recreational facility as the Liquor authority . . . shall by regulation classify for eligibility."

The 32-page measure, at once signed by Governor Nelson A. Rockefeller (who had demanded it) contains, for the first time in the history of the Alcoholic Beverage Control Law, a specific ban on licensing a motion picture theatre to sell such beverages.

It reads: "Nothing in this subdivision shall be deemed to authorize the issuance of a license to a motion picture theatre."

Tough Terms for Rentals Contrasted With 'No Muscle' on Summer Stock

Columbus, O., April 21.

Calling it "another stage show giveaway," the Independent Theatre Owners of Ohio's bulletin brought to attention of member exhibitors that "My Fair Lady" isn't the only business-dissipater because of heavy summer stock exposure prior to release of a screen version. Metro's "Night of the Iguana" has now joined the club.

Ken Prickett, exec secretary of ITOO, pinpointed a local presentation of the Tennessee Williams play as another instance of failure on part of a film company to protect its release by preventing play versions being shown in summer stock. He said that in many cases the casts of summer stock groups leave a great deal to be desired and "quite a different aspect can be gathered of a motion picture production by the exposure of the public to a stock showing by sometimes pretty immature actors."

Four Individual Post-1948 Paramount Films on Unique Terms With ITC

In a deal involving no cash guarantee or any coin in advance, Paramount leased four of its remaining 110 uncommitted post-1948 pix to Independent Television Corp. for syndication. Films in the deal are Alfred Hitchcock's "Man Who Knew Too Much," the Danny Kaye starrer "Knock On Wood" and two Elvis Presley-starring pix made by Hal Wallis, "King Creole" and "Loving You."

Par also made a separate deal for the same pix with RKO General whereby the station group, the New York outlet of which is WOR-TV, will play the pix. Again no guarantees or front money is involved but it is estimated that this deal alone could bring in to Par over $100,000 per pic.

The ITC deal involves short-term leases of various length for the pix. Paramount will receive 85% of the income from these films in syndication, ITC getting the remaining 15%. Estimates are that the features could provide earnings for Par of $100,000 to $200,000 per film, depending, of course, on the length of time of each lease and the amount of syndication coin ITC is able to corral.

As in the case of the lease to NBC-TV of 30 Paramount post-'48s recently, with options for another 30 pix a year for the next two years, the ITC and RKO General deals were made via Paramount Television Productions, the Par subsid reactivated to handle leasing transactions. In the case of the NBC agreement, the films in question had gone for an average of $300,000 per pic. Of course this was a network deal and so prices are higher.

The Par-ITC deal is somewhat thought-provoking because of the no-guarantee, no-cash-down nature of the transaction and because the pix involved are each substantial properties for inclusion in a web package. A factor understood to be behind the nature of the pact is that these pix are close to expiration of their ties with Paramount, the negatives soon to revert to makers. This would put Par in the position of having to act fast to get its final drops out of the features. It would also just about eliminate a web deal since there wouldn't be enough time. Instant syndication was the only answer and, natch, no guarantee could be asked since the short-term potential of the pix can't really be estimated.

The deals still leave Par with 106 uncommitted post-48s. Other transactions are believed under discussion but nothing is immediately forthcoming. It is understood, however, that more tv deals for the company's remaining pix will occur within the next several months and that the films will all be leased by the end of the year. The pattern followed on the ITC and RKO deals is not to be judged as the shape of things to come, however, since both arrangements were quite special in nature.

Rival Pix for Cannes

With the Cannes Film Festival due April 29, official pic entries are disclosed. Latest are the French and U.S. entrants, (a) Francois Truffaut's "La Peau Douce" (Soft Skin) and (b) United Artists' "World of Henry Orient."

Also from France, Henri Verneuil's "Cent Mille Dollar au Soleil" (Greed in the Sun) will compete as the invited entry. There is presently a possibility that another UA pic, "The Best Man," may go to Cannes out-of-competition. Italy is already on record as entering "Ape Woman" officially.

The Truffaut pic is a romantic drama featuring Francoise Dorleac and Jean Desailly. "Orient," which stars British actor Peter Sellers, is the first pic produced by Jerome Hellman's Pan Arts indie and was directed by George Roy Hill.

The best things in air travel are on TWA

Sparkling wine, a connoisseur's menu, and a fine first-run movie.* What more could you ask for when you're going places? You get them all... at no extra charge... when you're a TWA First Class Royal Ambassador. In fact, only TWA treats you so royally on nonstop coast-to-coast and overseas flights to ten of Europe's favorite cities. Live it up next time you travel. Call your travel agent or Trans World Airlines.

Nationwide Worldwide depend on TWA *Films by Producers Number 250

Hollywood, April 21.

Membership in Screen Producers Guild now numbers 250, near its alltime high of 257, with addition of three new members.

Trio are Robert Markell, W. Lee Wilder and Max E. Youngstein.

Spanish Pavilion May Make Tie To Touted 'Tarantos'

Plans are being set to hold the U.S. premiere of the Spanish "Los Tarantos" in New York either in May or June, perhaps in some sort of tie-in with the Spanish Pavilion at the New York World's Fair. The pic, Spain's entry in this year's Oscar derby, won a prize as "best production" at the just concluded Buenos Aires film fest, plus a special citation for the art of its star, the late flamenco dancer, Carmen Amaya.

Western hemisphere rights to the film are held by Leonard Gruenberg, whose Sigma III company will distribute the pic in the States and negotiate distribution deals for Canada and Latin America. Gruenberg acquired the rights less than a week before the start of the B.A. fest

In New York last week to consult with Gruenberg on the U.S. launching were the film's producer J. G. Maesso and director F. Rovira Beleta. Pair flew to London and Madrid over the weekend, but plan to be back in the U.S. for the film's New York preem.

Lazarus Joins Weaver

Paul Lazarus Jr., recenlty resigned as exec veep of Samuel Bronston Prodctions, is joining Subscription TV as vicepresident, of the program subsidiary.

Company is a Coast-based toll-vision outfit, headed by Pat Weaver. Lazarus will make his h.q. in New York.

L.A. to N.Y.

Molly Bee
Marc Daniels
Jerry Fischer
Dominic Frontiers
Gary Haworth
Eugene V. Klein
Danny B. Landres
Bethel Leslie
Shari Lewis
Bob Middleton
Jeanne Rainier
Hugh Reilly
A. Schneider
Sam Spiegel
George Spota
Leslie Stevens
Shelley Winters
Fred Zinnemann

U.S. to Europe

Billie Biederman
Fanny Bradshaw
Emmett R. Callahan
Robert F. Carney
Angela Cartwright
Irving Drutman
Mrs. Ted Hartman
Dorothy Jeakins
Robin Joachim
Boris Leven
Beverly Nichols
Gerald Pratley
Peter Randall
Charles Russell
Miguel Salkind
Rock Stevens
Glenna Syse
Norman Syse
Saul J. Turell
Nolan Van Way
Trio Vitalites
Al Weisman
Lee Young

Europe to U.S.

Ralph Alswang
Robert Ardrey
Frederick Brisson
Carl Foreman
Arthur Haines
Gerry Le Grove
Arthur Miller
Jack Radcliffe
Mo Rothman
Paul Scofield
Michael Stern
Jerry Wayne

N.Y. to L.A.

Carroll Carroll
Joe Scandore
Richard Pack
Ruth Pologe
Mel Sayne

Amusement Stock Quotations

Week Ended Tues. (21)

N. Y. Stock Exchange

1964 High	1964 Low		*Weekly Vol. in 100s	Weekly High	Weekly Low	Tues. Close	Net Change for wk.
16⅞	13	ABC Vending	442	16⅝	16	16¼	— ⅜
40⅛	28½	Am Br-Par Th	1286	38½	35½	36¾	+ ⅞
18⅛	14⅝	Ampex	647	17⅜	16¾	17⅛	— ⅛
46⅞	36½	CBS	643	47⅜	44⅝	47⅜	+ ⅞
18½	12⅜	Chris Craft	173	17⅞	17	17⅜	— ⅛
24⅝	21⅛	Col Pix	79	22⅝	21⅝	22½	+ ¼
49½	38⅜	Disney	212	48⅝	46⅛	48⅛	— ⅜
131¾	114⅝	Eastman Kdk.	254	129⅜	126⅝	128⅜	+1
7⅜	5⅜	EMI	129	7⅜	6⅝	7⅛	+ ¼
28¼	21⅜	General Tire	577	25⅞	24⅞	24⅞	— ¾
14⅝	12⅝	Glen Alden	237	14¼	13¾	13¾	— ¼
79⅝	64	Litton Ind.	504	71⅞	66¾	67½	—3
24¾	17½	Loew's Th.	115	22¼	21¼	21¼	—1
60⅝	52⅜	MCA Inc.	65	55	52⅜	54	—1
34⅛	27½	Metromedia	126	34	31½	33⅛	— ⅜
35½	28¾	MGM	240	34¾	32¾	34¼	..
10⅛	8¾	Nat G'l Corp.	293	9⅜	8¾	9⅛	+ ⅜
22⅞	20⅛	Outlet	†1330	21⅜	20¼	20½	— ⅞
62⅝	54⅛	Paramount	230	60⅞	57¼	57¾	—2¼
183½	145¼	Polaroid	439	169¼	158¾	160¾	—5
39¼	33¼	RCA	4267	35⅜	33¾	34⅛	—1¼
9⅛	7¾	Republic	50	8⅞	8¾	8¾	..
15½	14⅞	Rep., pfd.	14	15¼	15⅛	15¼	+ ¼
29½	24½	Stanley War.	56	28½	27½	27¾	— ¾
44½	38	Storer	107	44⅝	43	43½	..
29¾	22⅝	Taft Bdcst.	26	28⅝	27½	27¾	+ ¼
27¼	21⅝	20th-Fox	195	24	22½	23	..
29⅝	18½	United Artists	539	29⅝	26⅝	29½	+2¼
15¼	11¾	Warner Bros.	333	14¾	13⅝	14⅜	— ¼
87⅛	73⅛	Zenith	518	83	79¼	79⅝	—2¾

American Stock Exchange

3	2¼	Allied Artists	28	2½	2⅜	2⅜	— ⅛
12¼	9⅜	BalM'nt GAC	24	10¾	10¼	10⅜	— ⅜
8	5⅛	Cam-P'kway	98	6⅜	5⅛	5⅞	— ½
27⅜	20	Cap. Cit. Bdc.	72	26½	25¼	26	— ½
13½	10	Cinerama Inc.	258	10⅝	10¼	10¼	— ¼
8	6⅝	Desilu Prods.	38	7⅝	7¼	7¼	..
9⅛	7½	Filmways	29	8½	8¼	8½	+ ⅛
11¾	9⅛	Movielab	16	9¾	9⅜	9⅝	+ ¼
12¾	8⅝	MPO Vid.	69	10⅜	8⅝	9	—1⅜
3	2⅝	Reeves Bdcst.	8	3	2⅞	2⅞	..
4¾	2⅜	Reeves Ind.	1162	4¾	4¼	4¼	— ⅛
17	14¼	Rollins Bdcst.	49	16⅞	15½	16⅝	+ ⅛
23	18½	Screen Gems	16	21¾	20¼	21¾	+1½
20¾	17⅝	Technicolor	172	17⅞	17⅜	17⅜	— ⅜
7¼	4¾	Teleprm'ter	25	6¾	6½	6½	..
1	11/16	Tele-Indus.	17	¾	11/16	11/16	..
15¼	10⅝	Trans-Lux	9	12¾	11¾	12	— ¾

* Week Ended Mon. (20).
† Actual Volume.

(Courtesy of Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith, Inc.)

Over-the-Counter Securities

	Bid	Ask
Commonwealth Theatres of Puerto Rico	5½	6⅛	+ ⅜
Four Star Television	4½	5½	+ ¼
Gen. Aniline & Film	360	383	+35
General Artists Corp.	6¾	7¼	— ¼
General Cinema Corp.	10½	11⅜	— ⅛
Magna Pictures	1⅞	2¼	..
Medallion Pictures	16¾	18	+ ¾
Pickwick International	4⅜	4⅞	— ¼
Premier Albums	4⅞	5⅝	—1⅛
Rust Craft Greeting Cards	12⅞	14	— ⅝
Seven Arts Productions	13¾	14⅞	+ ½
U.A. Theatres	8½	9¾	..
Universal Pictures	66	70	..
Walter Reade-Sterling Inc.	2⅜	2¾	..
Wometco Enterprises	35	37⅜	+1
Wrather Corp.	3½	4⅛	..

(Source: National Assn. of Securities Dealers Inc.)

Showman's Own Grapefruit Circuit; Tors' Miami, Bahamas Studios

Film-tv producer Ivan Tors is investing $800,000 in two studios, one a two-stage facility in Miami and the other a single-stage layout to be built in the Bahamas. The Miami project involves the purchase of United Studios, a commercial film house at present and its enlargement, which will cost an estimated $500,000. The Bahamas project will require an outlay of around $300,000.

Tors' plans for the Miami setup include the addition of a stage to augment the present facility and the installation of process photography equipment. This would then be the only studio equipped for process work in the east. The deal for United is presently being wrapped up and the producer expects to begin work there May 15 on his tv series "Flipper." He'll also use the studio for "Around the World Under the Sea," a 70m underwater epic which will also be lensed in the Bahamas.

In connection with the Bahamas lensing, Tors will construct the first filmmaking facility in the area with his projected $300,000 plan. In both the Miami and Bahamas situation, the projects are being undertaken by his company, Ivan Tors Films, with no capitalization from Metro for which he is making the "Flipper" tv series and a few pix including "Under the Sea." Ben Chapman, vice prez of the Tors company, will administrate the studio operations. Metro will probably benefit from the studio constructions in that it will most likely service Metro's location needs in the areas, Tors reported last week in New York.

Once the Miami setup is enlarged with the new equipment and floor space, Tors expects to do some rental biz as well. He figures that, with the increasing trend toward location production, Florida and environs will become more important lensing areas. He concludes that New York commercial folk will work in Florida, with a little incentive, instead of traveling all the way to the Coast for location work when appropriate. Same goes for features themselves. The producer points out that he has worked there and in the Bahamas on his tv "Sea Hunt" and his "Flipper" feature and that he has found the area excellent for film work.

FILMS FUSS FELON'S FEELINGS

Giroux Hunts Pix for AA in Europe; Present 12 for 1964 May Become 18

Claude Giroux, Allied Artists board chairman and new chief operations officer, is heading to Europe this week to scout new product for the company. This is in line with Allied's program to step up its dealings with indie producers with an eye to buying completed pix and making agreements for the production of other properties.

Allied already has 12 features for release during the remainder of the year, one of its largest inventories in years. It is anticipated that AA may actually use 18 during the year, figuring to pick up these along the term.

Among the upcoming features Allied is putting a hefty push behind is Philip Yordan's European filmization of James Jones' war tome "The Thin Red Line." This will be handled on broad multiple bookings, starting on the Coast with a 55-60 print saturation in the Los Angeles area May 13. The pic will then move through Florida, Georgia and the Carolinas with an excess of 100 bookings. In all it wil be one of the widest multiples Allied has ever staged, with about 200 prints in all.

Sales Chief Ernest Sands commented that "Red Line" is being released in a orphan period, seeing as how it was going in May, and that this was in keeping with the company's desire to back the orderly release movement. He also noted that June-July-August has been booked pretty solidly already.

Campaign for the picture, the first to be run out of New York since the ad-pub departments were switched to Gotham under Jack Goldstein, will be an all-media drive, it was emphasized. A heavy promo push is planned for the pic which is one of Allied's top releases of the year and the first pic released with Ace Films, the production arm of the American Congress of Exhibitors, money involved.

Puerto Rico, Too?

Damian Rosa, who, with Tony Martinez and other investors, produces low-cost Spanish soundtrack feature feature films in Puerto Rico, is advaneing a proposal that the island Commonwealth establish an international film festival. He is insistent that it must be international and not merely intra-Latino.

Rosa concedes that unless the Puerto Rican government approves and helps it's just an idea.

Though On Coast, Pair Tout London As Film Center

Hollywood, April 21.

Hollywood spawned but London-based for the past five years, producers John Kohn and Jud Kinberg whose "The Collector" is presently before Columbia cameras here, have sifted relative merits of filmmaking in each country and give the nod to Blighty.

Leading consideration, declare the youthful pair, is the availability of material at non-inflated prices in Britain. They note that they were able to bag from galleys John Fowles' since best-selling tome "The Collector" for a thrifty $2,500 down payment, total price still an economical $25,000. Says Kohn, "It's different if you're a Billy Wilder and have 100s of thousands of dollars to spend—then you can be in Madagascar and get material."

In truth, the main reason why "Collector" isn't lensing on a modest budget on a London sound-stage right now is that William Wyler made his deal to helm film contracts on stipulation that pic lense here. Wyler made this demand, according to producers, primarily because of the loyalty he felt to the Hollywood film community. Columbia also had its reasons to want to roll film here, they note. Among factors which prompted them to decide on the considerably fattened budget and loss of potential Eady Plan coin which lensing here would entail was question of publicity, declare producers. "They felt they would get better coverage here," avers Kinberg, "So that when film is released in the U.S. it won't come in as "some little British picture!"

Producer team, which last year produced the critically but not financially successful "Reach for Silence" on a budget of $280,000 for Columbia, feel that all things considered, from both an artistic and economical standpoint filming in England has an edge on Hollywood—as far as their type of film is concerned, at last. "You can get more done here during any given day," says Kinberg, "but not enough to offset the added cost." Pair had envisioned, before inking Wyler to direct, filming of picture on a budget of approximately $600,000 in England. With nine weeks of interiors here, six weeks of English exteriors (no studio work there at all) film will probably come in now around $2,000,000.

Available pool of well-trained actors in London also impresses producers. The repertory company circuit out of which so many British actors seem to emerge give them an edge on many of their Hollywood counterparts, producers believe.

Pair even had a good word for Britain's chief censor John Trevelyan. "When he knows the material you're doing is not salacious, but strong he does everything in the world to help you," says Kohn, noting that Trevelyan even offered casting advice for "Collector."

Randall-Susskind Ponder Joe Julian's Farce For Shooting in Gotham

Tony Randall and David Susskind, head of Talent Associates-Paramount, are dickering a deal for the production of an original screenplay by Joe Julian called "Only Moreso," the actor reported in New York last week.

Randall has an indie production company by the name of Searus Productions, which has participated in "The Brass Bottle" at Universal and "Seven Faces of Dr. Lao" at Metro, both pix in which he's starred. The company will also participate in "Fluffy," Randall's next for U. So far, the outfit hasn't functioned as a producer in its own right, as would be the deal with Susskind, should it go through. Susskind noted last week that the project was under discussion but only that and that no papers had been signed.

"Moreso" would be another starring vehicle for the comedian. On that score he commented, "why else would I produce a picture? To star somebody else?" He also revealed that he has other properties in mind for Searus to produce and that they would all be vehicles for himself.

"The only point in an actor becoming a producer these days is to fill for himself the vacuum created when the old major studio system collapsed." This is to find properties. "Before, they used to do this for you, now you have to do it yourself or sit and wait." It's a way of protecting what an actor wants to do, he said.

Randall's plan for "Moreso" is to do it in New York. He said he would like to work here. The pic is described as a "wild farce." Randall's home is in Gotham which is presumably a factor. He planed to the Coast last Sunday (18) to start "Fluffy," which has been moved up on U's production schedule.

NATHAN TESTING A CON'S PRIVACY

Chicago, April 21.

Nathan Leopold, in the persons of his attorneys, last week won a court fight in Chicago to sue Darryl F. Zanuck and Simon & Schuster for invasion of Leopold's privacy in the book and film versions of "Compulsion." Judge Thomas Klucynski on Wed. (15) directed that a jury trial be held on Leopold's claim for $1,405,000 damages from 57 defendants, including Meyer Levin, author of the book.

Leopold served 33½ years in prison for participating in the slaying of Bobby Franks, 14, in Chicago in 1924. He was paroled in 1958 and was discharged from parole in March, 1963. He is now in Puerto Rico.

In addition to Levin, Zanuck and the book company, the suit also names distributors of the book, theatre chains and individual motion picture houses. Barring an appeal by the defendants, the lawyers will file suit for a new jury trial in Circuit Court to determine the amount of the damages.

Handling the case for Leopold were Elmer Gertz, who was largely responsible for Leopold's parole, and Harold Gordon, who has represented similar cases on behalf of the estate of Al Capone for ABC's "The Untouchables" and Allied Artists' "Al Capone."

The decision was based on the second of two counts in the complaint, which alleges that the defendants used Leopold's name in the advertising and publicity connected with the book and picture. A primary charge that the novel and film themselves invaded Leopold's privacy was not considered.

Among other charges, the complaint said that Levin and Zanuck traveled around the country and "allowed themselves" to be interviewed by newspapers and on radio and television in the course of which they related the actual murder to the fictionalized versions. The complaint also stated that Leopold's name and picture were used on the cover of the book although the character was called Judd Steiner in the fictionalization.

Last Yr. Showed Deficit, First For Benjamin & Krim

For the first time in the 13-year history of present management, United Artists registered a loss in 1963. Operations for the year showed a net deficit of $831,000 or 45c a share after a credit of $935,000 for taxes on income. In 1962, the company had net earnings of $3,815,000 or $2.06 per share.

Gross income for 1963 was $124,573,000 as compared with $126,259,000 the year previous. Commenting on the company's performance in a statement in advance of the annual report, chairman Robert S. Benjamin and prez Arthur B. Krim stated that the situation was basically the result of the poor box-office showing of several pix released early in 1963 which forwarded a decision to provide additional writeoffs of $4,000,000 to anticipate losses on these pix.

A charge of $5,000,000, net of credit for Federal income taxes, was made to retained earnings to give effect, as of 1963, to a reevaluation of the cost of acquisition of the tv film library series acquired by UA-TV for syndication. Other info regarding the company's performance in '63 is unavailable at present, pending release of the UA annual report, expected shortly.

Initial 1964 Quarter as Best Ever For United Artists; Income Analyzed

The first quarter of 1964 set a record as the highest net earner of any quarter in the company's history, according to a letter to stockholders mailed last week by chairman Robert S. Benjamin and prez Arthur B. Krim. Net, after taxes for the period was $2,025,000, equal to $1.10 per share.

It was pointed out by the execs that these earnings do not include in any way the proceeds from the recent sale to ABC-TV of a package of late-years UA features. It was not revealed when revenue from this transaction will show in the company's figures but the income from these features will be a factor in UA's overall earnings picture this year.

Benjamin and Krim went on to predict that, based on the momentum generated by pix now in release and prospects for coming releases, 1964 will be the most successful year in the company's history. The major impact of these pix will show in the balance of the year, the execs opined. The first quarter showing represents a dramatic return to profits, rebounding from a loss for the previous year of $831,000, the first in the present management's 13-year reign. (Separate story).

Cited among those pix contributing handsomely to UA's first quarter look were "Tom Jones," "It's A Mad, Mad, Mad, Mad World," "Lilies of the Field," "From Russia With Love," "Pink Panther," "World of Henry Orient," "Best Man," "Irma La Douce" and "The Great Escape." These features will be joined by other pix of promise, Benjamin and Krim added.

In the wind for some time has been the prospect of a record first half for UA this year. Items like the web tv deal and the continued record performance of the company's foreign division which has been showing an intake of $1,000,000 a week for the past three and a half months have helped point the way to such a performance. The dramatic first quarter showing, backed up by a solid Oscar display (always a boost to pix in question) and the continued strength of several other pix now in release would seem to make this a certainty.

As for the record year predicted by the execs, both domestic and overseas picture performances back up the notion. At home UA has lined up the most ambitious summer release program it has ever undertaken, continuing through the fall. Then there's "Greatest Story Ever Told," a major investment which opens in November thereby forecasting something of how the year will end and the new term begin. Abroad, prospects continue strong.

Father's Goslings

Seven unknown youngsters have been signed by producer Robert Arthur for key roles in "Father Goose," being filmed under the Granox banner for Universal release. They're all girls, of varying nationalities and ranging in age from six to 15.

The femme septet—Stephanie and Jenifer Barrington, Laurelle and Nicole Felsette, Verina Greenlaw, Pip Sparks and Sharyl Locke—play students of Leslie Caron, who shares lead with Cary Grant. Ralph Nelson is directing the picture, currently shooting at Universal.

'Windjammer' For C'rama Return Before 'Circus'

Cinerama is bringing back "The Windjammer" and will slot it in the Loew's Cinerama Theatre (former Capitol) following the exit of "The Cardinal," now playing there as the Broadway slot in its New York secondary "showcase" spread. The widescreen company will follow the "Windjammer" reissue with the New York preem of Samuel Bronston's "Circus World" at the house on June 24.

Actually, "Circus" will make its U.S. debut a few days before in Dallas. Some other regional dates have also been set like a July 1 opening in Milwaukee. In a three-way deal set a while back, Cinerama will playoff the firstrun engagements of the picture in the big-screen process and Paramount will then take over for the balance of the runs, distributing in 35m. Third partner in the deal is, of course, Bronston.

'At Least 15' Outlook For '64 From Columbia

Chicago, April 21.

Columbia Pictures will release "at least 15 pictures" between now and the end of the year, Rube Jackter, veep-general sales manager, said here yesterday (Mon.) at the opening session of Col's five-day sales convention. On hand for the meeting at the Ambassador East are all Col district and branch sales managers from the U.S. and Canada.

Eight of the 15 upcoming pix, said Jacketer, are on the immediate sked for booking during the summer months. At least seven others represent Col's roster for fall and early winter.

In the first category are "Good Neighbor Sam," "The New Interns, "The Long Ships," "Hey, There, It's Yogi Bear," reissue of "Bridge on the River Kwai," "Ride the Wild Surf," "Devil Ship Pirates" and "Crimson Blade."

UP-RANK STEISEL

Now Is Asst. Genl. Sales Mgr. For Embassy Pix

Lou Steisel has been promoted to assistant general sales manager of Embassy Pictures. The move follows by a couple of weeks the coming to the company of D. J. (Bud) Edele, Embassy general sales manager.

Steisel has been the company's western and metropolitan New York sales supervisor and assumes his new post immediately. A vet of some 25 years in the pic biz, Steisel joined Embassy in January of 1962 having previously held various sales positions with Columbia Pictures.

'One Potato, Two Potato,' Peerce-Weston First, Invited by Cannes

Hollywood, April 21.

A first feature length film by two young Americans, acted by a cast minus star names, has been chosen as the invited U. S. film at the Cannes Festival. Pic is "One Potato, Two Potato," directed by Larry Peerce and produced by Sam Weston. Modest budgeter is said to have a "modern, controvercial theme."

The invitation by the gestival was reported by Ingo Preminger, prexy of General Artists Corp. literary division, who reps the filmmakers. Peerce is in Europe, editing and subtitling a print for the Cannes Fest, which opens April 29.

Preminger, who will attend the fest, added that no distribution commitment has been made for "One Potato, Two Potato."

UA's "World of Henry Orient" is the official U. S. entry at the fest.

The Thin Red Line
(C'SCOPE)

War meller crammed with action but fuzzy in characterization. Strong fare for action market.

Hollywood, April 17.

Allied Artists release of Sidney Harmon production. Stars Keir Dullea, Jack Warden; features James Philbrook, Ray Daley, Robert Kanter, Merlyn Yordan, Kieron Moore. Directed by Andrew Marton. Screenplay, Bernard Gordon, from James Jones' novel; camera, Manuel Berenguer; editor, Derek Parsons; music, Malcolm Arnold; assistant director, Jose Maria Ochoa. Reviewed at the studio, April 17, '64. Running time, 90 MINS.

Pvt. Doll ..... Keir Dullea
1st Sgt. Welsh ..... Jack Warden
Col. Tall ..... James Philbrook
Capt. Stone ..... Ray Daley
Fife ..... Robert Kanter
Judy (Doll's wife) ..... Merlyn Yordan
Lieut. Band ..... Kieron Moore
Capt. Gaff ..... James Gillen
Pvt. Mazzi ..... Steve Rowland
S Sgt. Stack ..... Stephen Levy
Medic ..... Mark Johnson

Aficionados of the action-packed war film will savor the crackling, combat-centered approach of "The Thin Red Line," an explosive melodramatization of the Yank assault on Guadalcanal in World War II. It's a man's picture, a solid entry for the action market. But it is limited by shortcomings in the area of characterization. In its attempt at deeper insight into the mental and emotional stresses that govern men's behavior at the front, the Philip Yordan production and Allied Artists release lacks the necessary motivational clarity and dramatic eloquence to attract the attention of the more discerning picturegoer.

Bernard Gordon's scenario, turbulently gleaned from James Jones' novel, focuses its characterization gaze at two figures prominently implicated in the taking of that small but significant piece of Pacific real estate. One is a resourceful private (Keir Dullea), the other a war-wise, sadistic sergeant (Jack Warden). The two quickly become enemies but it is no surprise when, ultimately, one dies in the other's arms after saving the other's life. In addition to this pivotal intramural conflict, there are other hostilities including the one between Japan and the United States.

The movements, chaos and bloody brutality of front-line conflict are vividly and vigorously depicted, a credit to the willing cast, talented production staff, and especially to director Andrew Marton, who again demonstrates his flair for the crowd scene, his keen sense of detail yet perspective of overall patern in designing and executing mass movements of men. He is backed up stalwartly in this regard by Manuel Berenguer's alert, often striking photography and Derek Parsons' perceptive editing. Another major asset to Sidney Harmon's production is Malcolm Arnold's surging, expressive musical score. As a physical production, it's an outstanding effort.

Dullea and Warden are colorful antagonists, former's intensity contrasting sharply with the latter's easygoing air. Firm histrionic support is chipped in by James Philbrook, Ray Daley, Robert Kanter and Kieron Moore, with smaller but equally capable assists from James Gillen, Steve Rowland, Stephen Levy and Mark Johnson. Merlyn Yordan participates in a flashback sequence that is rather artificial and irrelevant and could be deleted. She's the only female in the picture. Tube.

Never Put It In Writing

Sporadically amusing trifle about Pat Boone in pursuit of a letter he's mailed. Mild b.o. prospect.

Hollywood, April 14.

Allied Artists release of Andrew Stone production. Stars Pat Boone. Written and directed by Stone; camera, Martin Curtis; editor, Noreen Ackland; music, Frank Cordell; assistant director, Ted Wallis. Reviewed at the studio, April 14, '64. Running time, 93 MINS.

Stephen Cole ..... Pat Boone
Danny O'Toole ..... Milo O'Shea
Katie O'Connell ..... Fidelma Murphy
Lombardi ..... Reginald Beckwith
Mr. Breeden ..... Harry Brogan
Miss Bull ..... Nuala Moiselle
Adams ..... John Le Mesurier
Adams' Secretary ..... Sarah Ballantine
Security Officer ..... John Gardiner
Oscar ..... Colin Blakeley
Taxi Driver ..... Derry Power
Tower Man ..... Bill Foley
Receptionist ..... Polly Adams
Maid ..... Julia Nelson
Pringle ..... Ed Devereaux
Foreman, Sorting Office ..... Seamus Healy
Young Woman ..... Karal Gardner
Judge ..... John Dunbar
Judge's Wife ..... Susan Richards
Basil's Girl Friend ..... Liz Lanchbury

Filmed in Ireland and England by Andrew and Virginia Stone, "Never Put It In Writing" is a diverting, frivolous novelty constructed around an unusual "chase" in which the pursuer is simply trying to intercept a letter he himself had mailed, much to his later regret.

Pat Boone plays the desperate young man in pursuit and, although his presence may help push a few extra wickets, the Seven Arts production for Allied Artists release appears to lack sufficient allure for a solo boxoffice flight. It would, however, make a suitable featured companion on an unpretentious program package—or secondary running mate to a major attraction of less than epic proportions.

The picture was written, produced and directed by Andrew Stone, in capable enough fashion on all three counts. Many of the players of Ireland's Abbey Theatre cavort in the film, and their participation gives it a lift in atmospheric values.

The lightweight plot, stretched pretty thin, describes Boone's feverish efforts to catch up with a letter he has mailed to the boss of the London insurance firm for which he works, accusing him of nepotism in having selected his nephew, not Boone, for a general manager-junior partner post the latter feels he deserves. The chase begins when Boone discovers that it is indeed he, not the nephew, who had been promoted. The upshot is a merry romp from Belfast to London, during which he picks up two allies and tangles with, among others, an officious secretary, a tipsy pilot and several gendarmes.

Boone turns in a creditable performance as the hotshot insurance agent. The girl with whom he plays post office is Fidelma Murphy of the Abbey, a pretty colleen who tends to overemote. The outstanding participant is Milo O'Shea, who's a delight as a devious, opportunistic "friend" of Boone's. Others of more than passing import are Reginald Beckwith as the pilot, Sarah Ballantine as the secretary, John Le Mesurier as the boss and Colin Blakely as the nephew.

Skillful contributions to the production include those of cameraman Martin Curtis, editor Noreen Ackland (under Mrs. Stone's supervision), composer Frank Cordell and stunt flying expert Charlie O'Hara. A frisky and salable title song has been written by Boone, and he sings it enthusiastically over the main titles. Tube.

The Third Secret

Absorbing if uneven psychological mystery meller. B.O. prospect depends on smart salesmanship.

Hollywood, April 16.

Twentieth-Fox release of Robert L. Joseph production. Stars Stephen Boyd, Jack Hawkins, Richard Attenborough, Diane Cilento, Pamela Franklin. Directed by Charles Crichton. Screenplay, Joseph; camera, Douglas Slocombe; editor, Frederick Wilson; music, Richard Arnell; assistant director, Peter Bolton. Reviewed at the studio, April 16, '64. Running time, 103 MINS.

Alex Stedman ..... Stephen Boyd
Frederick Belline ..... Jack Hawkins
Alfred Prince-Gorham ..... Richard Attenborough
Anne Tanner ..... Diane Cilento
Catherine Whitset ..... Pamela Franklin
Dr. Milton Gillen ..... Paul Rogers
Alden Hoving ..... Alan Webb
Mildred Hoving ..... Rachel Kempson
Lawrence Jacks ..... Peter Sallis
Mrs. Pelici ..... Patience Collier
Mrs. Bales ..... Freda Jackson
Miss Humphries ..... Judi Dench
Dr. Leo Whitset ..... Peter Copley
Lew Harding ..... Nigel Davenport
Dermot McHenry ..... Charles Lloyd Pack
Police Secretary ..... Barbara Hicks
Police officer ..... Ronald Leigh Hunt
Floor manager ..... Geoffrey Adams
Mark ..... James Maxwell
Mr. Bickes ..... Gerald Case
Nurse ..... Sarah Brackett
Mr. Morgan ..... Neil Arden

When a renowned psychoanalyst is deemed a suicide, the emotional repercussions on the patients he was treating are bound to be severe. The puzzle surrounding his sudden and unaccountable death, as it is put together piece by piece by one of his agitated patients, is the plot pursued by "The Third Secret," an engrossing, if not altogether convincing, mystery melodrama of the weighty psychological school. The British-made Robert L. Joseph production, a 20th-Fox release, should be a welcome attraction for the diehard mystery buff, but it is better equipped to absorb an audience than to allure one. Word of mouth will be a helpful boxoffice factor and with smart admanship this picture can intrigue customers generally. The trick is to build advance curiosity.

Producer Joseph's original scenario has strengths and weaknesses. It is literately written, with a liberal sprinkling of sharp dialog and interesting observations. On the other hand, it is hampered by occasional vaguenesses, a tendency toward pretentiousness, motivational question marks, and an early tipoff that doesn't figure to elude the discerning mystery enthusiast.

Stephen Boyd, as the inquisitive patient of the deceased analyst, conducts a private investigation to determine whether the death was actually a suicide (contradicting everything the noted doctor stood for) or a murder committed by one of his patients, of whom there were only four, according to the analyst's daughter (Pamela Franklin). The investigation leads Boyd—an American telenewscaster living in England—from patient to patient, a fruitless path until he unearths "The Third Secret," which stands for the truth.

A lack of animation in spots is evident in Boyd's performance, but there are moments when he catches the spark of the character. Young Miss Franklin does a highly professional job as the daughter. She's a young actress of great potential. The three ex-patients visited by Boyd are Jack Hawkins as a judge, Diane Cilento as a secretary and Richard Attenborough as an art gallery owner. All three are effective, with Attenborough especially distinguished and memorable in his characterization. Chief support, competently etched, is contributed by Paul Rogers, Alan Webb, Rachel Kempson and Peter Sallis.

"The Third Secret" is a rather talky film, but Charles Crichton has done a commendable job of keeping it taut and as visually stimulating as possible. To this end, he benefits from the aid of such craftsmen as photographer Douglas Slocombe, editor Frederick Wilson and art director Tom Morahan. Richard Arnell's score is richly endowed with an aura of eerie imminence. Tube.

The Golden Arrow
(ITALIAN—TECHNIRAMA—COLOR)

Erratically written and executed adventure fantasy. Special effects trickery its only b.o. bait.

Hollywood, April 15.

Metro release of Titanus production. Stars Tab Hunter, Rossana Podesta. Directed by Antonio Margheriti. Screenplay, Bruno Vailati, Augusto Frassineti, Filippo Sanjust, Giorgio Prosperi, Giorgio Arlorio; camera (Technicolor), Mario Capriotti; editor, Giorgio Serandrei; music, Mario Nascimbene; assistant director, Ettore Fizzarotti, Giovanni Fago. Reviewed at the studio, April 15, '64. Running time, 91 MINS.

Hassan ..... Tab Hunter
Jamila ..... Rossana Podesta
Thin Genie ..... Umberto Melnati
Absent-Minded Genie ..... Giustino Durano
Baktlar ..... Mario Feliciani
Sabrath ..... Jose Jaspe
Mokbar ..... Giampaolo Rosmino
Prince of Bassora ..... Renato Baldini
Prince of Aleppo ..... Rosario Borelli
Prince of Samarkand ..... Ceco Zamurovich
Prince of Bassora's General ..... Calisto Calisti
Queen of Rocky Valley ..... Dominique Boschero
Capt. Hamit ..... Abdel Moneim Ibrihim
Bandit ..... Claudio Scarchilli
Magician of Rocky Valley ..... Omar Zoulfikar

An adventure fantasy from Italy's Titanus picturemakers, "The Golden Arrow" is fashioned in roughly the same vein as "Captain Sindbad," a boxoffice winner for Metro last year. However, this import, owing to its lack of dramatic cohesion and rather unimaginative creative approach to the wide-open possibilities of special effects spectacle, isn't apt to duplicate the success of its forerunner. Vivid, hard-sell exploitation of fantasy angles might stimulate attendance of the moppets and adults with childlike appetites for screen adventure.

It took all of five scribblers to grind it out. Tab Hunter plays the lead, a dashing bandit who discovers he's the rightful heir to the sultanship of Damascus but must come by a magic golden arrow to properly stake his claim and assert his authority. With the aid of three whimsical genies, he accomplishes this goal.

Hunter is okay, but he does a lot of grinning and gaping, as if puzzled by the language cross-currents of the post-dubbed production. Rossana Podesta is that inevitable Damascus prop, the beautiful princess waiting for her Prince Charming. The balance of the cast performs in mechanical fashion under Antonio Margheriti's haphazard direction.

Fernando Mazza's special effects are generally satisfactory, best being his illusory construction of flaming monsters in human silhouette. Mario Capriotti's lenswork is adequate, but the editing by Giorgio Serandrei is choppy and gets the film off to a false start from which it takes a long time to recover. Flavio Mogherini's art direction is impressive but Mario Nascimbene's musical score is often somewhat incompatible with the dramatic events it accompanies. Tube.

The Cool World

Shirley Clarke's drama of contemporary Harlem life, which began its U.S. preem engagement Monday (20) at Cinema II, was reviewed by Mosk. at the Venice Film Fest in the Sept. 11, '63 issue of VARIETY. The writer opined, "Elements are well blended to make this a telling look at Harlem and is probably one of the least patronizing films ever made on Negro life in N.Y.

"Counterpoint jazz background is an asset as is the well textured lensing, cogent editing and natural thesping by a mainly non-pro cast. But it is chiefly the virile, well observed directing of Shirley Clarke that keeps this long film engrossing and revealing most of the time. Dialog is hip but understandable."

Nightmare
(BRITISH)

Chilly melo, loosely concocted, but with some tense moments. Fair dualler.

London, April 17.

Rank release of a Hammer Film for Universal. Stars David Knight, Brenda Bruce, Moira Redmond, Jennie Linden. Features George A. Cooper, John Welsh, Irene Richmond, Timothy Bateson, Hytie Jessop. Written & produced by Jimmy Sangster. Directed by Freddie Francis; music, Don Banks; camera, John Wilcox; editor, James Needs. Previewed April 15, '64 at Rank Private Theatre, London. Running time: 83 MINS.

Henry Baxter ..... David Knight
Grace ..... Moira Redmond
Mary ..... Brenda Bruce
Janet ..... Jennie Linden
John ..... George A. Cooper
Mrs. Gibbs ..... Irene Richmond
Doctor ..... John Welsh
Barman ..... Timothy Bateson
Woman in White ..... Clytie Jessop
Sir Dudley ..... Hedger Wallace
Maid ..... Julie Samuel
Janet (as child) ..... Elizabeth Dear
Mother ..... Isla Cameron

Best feature of this highly contrived chiller is the direction and lensing (by Freddie Francis and John Wilcox respectively) of the atmosphere of a house where eerie things happen in the way of shadows, significant noises and the fleeting appearances of a phantom-like woman in white. A fair atmosphere is worked up by Francis and Wilcox, and it is aided by a useful musical score by Don Banks and sound editing by James Needs. But Jimmy Sangster's screenplay and dialog do not match these plusses. Dialog, in particular, often lapses into bathos. With minor stellar appeal, "Nightmare" can be functional only as a second feature in support of a strong bring-em-in top pic.

Jennie Linden's mother was committed to an asylum when the child was 14, after stabbing her husband. This preys on the child's mind and she is convinced that she may have inherited a streak of madness. She certainly is the victim of bad dreams. She is taken from school to her home where she is apparently safely guarded by the attention of an adoring housekeeper (Irene Richmond), her school mistress (Brenda Bruce), her young guardian (David Knight) and a nurse, (Moira Redmond), posing as a companion. But Knight and Miss Richmond are clandestine lovers. Their object is attained when the adolescent is goaded into murdering Knight's wife in a fit of panic, and is taken to a mental institution. But with both safely out of the way Miss Redmond becomes suspicious that her newly acquired husband wants to murder her. She takes the initiative but is trapped by the vigilance of the school mistress and family chauffeur (George A. Cooper).

The attempts by Knight and Miss Redmond to prey on the mind of the girl are elaborately worked out and, though highly incredible, serve as a workmanlike plot for such a modest thriller.

"Nightmare" has several of the ingredients of a successful thriller cocktail but these have not been shaken with enough guile to click satisfactorily. Rich.

Where Has Poor Mickey Gone?
(BRITISH)

Naive attempt by unknowns to produce a low budget chiller on cooperative basis.

London, April 17.

Compton-Cameo release of a Ledeck-Indigo Production. No star credits. Produced and directed by Gerry Levy. Original story & screenplay by Peter Marcus; camera, Alan Pusney; editor, Howard Lanning; music, Graham Whettam; title song written & sung by Ottilie Patterson. Previewed April 14, '64 at Hammer Theatre, London. Running time, 58 MINS.

Emilio Dinelli ..... Warren Mitchell
Mick ..... John Malcolm
Ginger ..... Raymond Armstrong
Tim ..... John Challis
Kip ..... Christopher Robbie
Girl ..... Karol Hagar
Boy ..... Joseph Cook
Detective ..... Philip Newman

Attempts by unknowns to produce modest films on a co-operative basis supposedly are to be encouraged. But this one is too naive and lacking in expertise to stand much chance except that, at 58 minutes, it is a welcome length for a filler. Filmed on location with direct sound, it lacks punch as an essay in the macabre. Its straggling script has some down-to-earth saltiness, Warren Mitchell, the best known name, gives a professional performance and John Malcolm, as Mick, chief of the layabouts, is a podgy offbeat character who may do well as a character actor. But these are about all the bouquets that can be tossed to this misfire.

Malcolm leads a little gang of streetcorner roughs and they set out in search of mischief. Tossed out of a sleazy club, they assault a couple of streetcorner lovers and then decide to rob a basement workshop run by an Italian. All this is padding. The film really starts when they break into the premises to find that it is the workshop of a stage magician who makes novelty sideshows for carnivals.

Only Mitchell as the magician provides a performance that creates the intended atmosphere. The rest appear to have been given undue head by the producer-director Gerry Levy and the result is flat. Rich.

The Evil of Frankenstein
(BRITISH-EASTMANCOLOR)

Baron Frankenstein in trouble again in another of the horror pix. Okay for its natural audience.

London, April 16.

Rank release of a Hammer Film for Universal. Stars Peter Cushing. Features Peter Woodthorpe, Duncant Lament, Sandor Eles, Katy Wild, David Hutcheson. Producer, Anthony Hinds. Directed by Freddie Francis. Story & screenplay by John Elder; camera, John Wilcox; music, Don Banks; editor, James Needs. Previewed at Rank Private Theatre, London. Running time; 84 MINS.

Baron Frankenstein ..... Peter Cushing
Zoltan ..... Peter Woodthorpe
Hans ..... Sander Eles
The Creature ..... Kiwi Kingston
Beggar Girl ..... Katy Wild
Burgomaster ..... David Hutcheson
Chief of Police ..... Duncant Lamont
Priest ..... James Maxwell
Burgomaster's Wife ..... Caron Gardner
Drunk ..... Howard Goorney
Hypnotised Man ..... Timothy Bateson
Landlord ..... Alister Williamson
Bodysnatcher ..... Tony Arpino

The horrific adventures of Baron Frankenstein are still providing Hammer Films with rich boxoffice loot. In this one the finale shows Frankenstein's castle going up in flames. But it is a safe bet that the sinister scientist will have got away to scare another day. Peter Cushing plays the Baron with his usual seriousness, avoiding tongue-in-the-cheek, and he is the main prop in the proceedings. Some of his fellow thesps tend to ham it up to the make-believe's detriment.

Director Freddie Francis, an upcoming horror specialist, must hereafter rap down severely on such actor fancies. Only by playing the films deadpan can audiences be indulgent enough to accept them for the harmless nonsense that they are. Direction here is deft enough over the more preposterous stretches. Special effects help, viz the Baron's crazy apparatus. Result, there is always something going on.

This time Cushing returns to the Castle which is his scientific playground and is bent on reviving and co-ordinating the brain of one of his homemade monsters. Earlier this character had escaped, but is found, conveniently preserved in a glacier. The Baron has sundry other problems on his plate, notably a drunken, blackmailing hypnotist, a deaf and dumb beggar

(Continued on page 102)

IF SCRIPT NOT RIGHT, WHAT IS?

'Showcase' Misapplied at RKO 86th

Residents of Yorkville Nabe Dislike Confusion Of Terms and Lockout of 'Fresh' Product

The "showcase" situation in New York is getting sloppy. For one thing, theatres are keeping their "showcase" banners flying and scales in force — regardless of what's playing—and, for another, runs are becoming "endless."

Examples have been visible at the RKO 86th St. Theatre, where it has happened before, and at other spots around town. A reissue double bill had been playing the 86th, a coupling of Universal's "Pillow Talk" and "Operation Petticoat." This is surely no "showcase." Yet the theatre still has the phrase "A Premiere Showcase Theatre" on the marquee. It also has $1.65 top scale in force.

To Yorkville area residents this is an annoyance—and a confusion. Carrying the sloppy practice to the basic question—can any prestige survive in the term "Premiere Showcase" if it is misapplied so loosely, and many will think, so unethically? Words have meanings and these meanings must be respected. If any booking is a "showcase" no booking has a separation from the run-of-stream.

A separate question relates to the tendency to hold films just as long as possible in neighborhood houses. There are limits to the economic sense in doing so. The Yorkville district is residential and too much "showcasing" deprives the residents of their accustomed change of bill and variety of choice.

To use the 86th Street example again, "The Cardinal" has been at Loew's 86th it now seems like forever. Before the U double bill, "Captain Newman" had been at the RKO spot for an equally seemingly endless run.

Meantime United Artists is selling "Tom Jones" on the basis of nine and more weeks of locked in bookings.

"Showcase" originally was presented as a multiple firstrun scheme, aimed at bringing the nabes and suburbs into the Broadway release pattern. But bookings were only to be two-three weeks as a quick first wave kill before the subsequent multiple. Today's "showcase" seems evolving into a followup to an exclusive firstrun on Broadway, the eastside or Radio City Music Hall, with longrun policy in the nabes. This has exhibs climbing walls. It also annoys local patrons.

There are genuine "Showcase" bookings too, like the current UA "From Russia With Love" and "Flight From Ashiya." But the pattern is such a conglomerate one that patrons who are supposed to be attracted by "showcase" are confused and annoyed by it.

AA's Bilious Eye Upon 'Showcase'

Discussing the hefty sales campaign set by Allied Artists for "The Thin Red Line" in New York last week general sales manager Ernest Sands commented that he was going to "bank into New York" with the picture. Questioned further on this point, Sands said this was so because he was concerned with the "showcase" situation in Gotham.

Although Allied hasn't played a pic on "showcase" yet, Sands commented that as regards AA he was "not happy" with it.

So far it is not clear how the "Red Line" will be handled in Gotham. It is being distributed on a wide multiple basis elsewhere around the country but that type of pattern is crimped a bit in the New York area because so many nabe houses are out of circulation and tied up in "showcase" runs. This has been one of the big "showcase" problems — how to handle straight multiples.

Re-Tag Gen'l Drive-In

Boston, April 21.

General Drive-In Corp. has officially changed its name to General Cinema Corp. Action was approved at the annual meeting of stockholders here last week.

According to prez Richard A. Smith, the new name is considered to be more appropriately descriptive of the diversified theatre activties of the company. Latter includes a total of 72 theatres in 20 states, comprising not only drive-ins, but also conventional hardtops and what is believed to be the largest chain of shopping center theatres in the U.S.

It's Lou Chesler Of Bahamas Now, Not Seven Arts

Lou Chesler, chairman of the board of Seven Arts Production Ltd., and chairman of its board for the last three years, is pulling out of the company in order to devote his full time to the burgeoning Grand Bahama Development Co.

According to a 7A press handout, the company has entered into an agreement with Chesler "providing for the elimination of" his holding of 7A securities and the disposition by 7A of its holdings in Grand Bahama Development. While the exact amount of Chesler's holdings in 7A have never been revealed, the 1962 Seven Arts annual report shows 7A's investment in Grand Bahama Development, via a wholly owned subsid, to be valued at $5,000,000 and equal to 21% of Grand Bahama's outstanding common shares.

Consummation of the agreement with Chesler is subject to the completion of arrangements for necessary financing, still being negotiated, and to the approval of the 7A shareholders, according to Eliot Hyman, prez of Seven Arts. Upon completion of the transaction, Chesler will resign as 7A chairman and board member.

CANNES FEST BID TO CHICAGO INDIE

Chicago, April 21.

First feature-length art film ever produced in Chicago has been selected to represent the United States in the Critics choice section at the Cannes International Film Festival commencing April 21 in France. The producers, directors and writers of the 85-minute film, "Goldstein," are Philip Kaufman and Benjamin Manaster, both in their mid-twenties.

The picture, which was brought in for about $75,000, was filmed on location in Chicago using no studio scenes. It was shot in October and December of 1963 and was completed just in time for the prejudging for the French fest.

The picture is a modern-setting adaptation of a story by Martin Buber based on the legend of the return of the prophet Elijah. The cast includes Lou Gilbert, who appeared in the films "Viva Zapata" and "Requiem For A Heavyweight" and in a stage version of "The Caretaker"; Benito Carruthers ("Shadows" and "Lilith"); and Ellen Madison, who has appeared on "The Defenders" and "Route 66". Also in the cast are Severn Darden, Anthony Holland and Jack Burns of the Second City troupes, and a guest appearance by novelist Nelson Algren.

STARS, SETS, SIZE CAN'T COVER UP

By ROBERT J. LANDRY

Not runaway (to overseas) productions but runaway (to the poor house) budgets is what frightens many a thoughtful New York film showman nowadays. In their private conversations open alarm is expressed as to epics costing double and more what was intended. Impatience has developed, too, respecting the time-tarnished alibis that the weather, the natives, the director or the leading lady went berserk.

All of which throws attention to the future of costume and chariot spectacles, big-screen historicals of all kinds, further explorations of Old and New Testaments, even the Protean-change Yugoslavian cavalry disguised as Medes, Persians or ancient Greeks. Yet despite the fretting over burst budgets nobody suggests an end to epics. Truth is epics have been standard since "Birth Of A Nation" in 1915, and frequently profit bonanzas, though now clouded by fiscal madness.

Stripping away alibis of unseasonable monsoons and unreasonable natives, and the love lunacies of stars, there is apparently a growing disposition to see the heart of boxoffice letdown in two weakly controlled factors (1) negative costs and (2) script and dialog. Not players, not big sets, not width of screen, nor Wagner-like music scores can cover up.

New York showmen and/or financiers may partly be repeating the critics in their latterday awareness that the characters in epics must talk good dialog. Because Joe Manckiewicz took good care of that in "Cleopatra," dialog became one of the plus points of a troubled spectacle. True, some folk objected that the speech patterns were pretty modern for old Egypt. Dialog, too, became an asset in "Becket," and a point of criticism in "Fall of The Roman Empire."

But if dialog is being singled out increasingly as one vital component of boxoffice appeal or nonappeal, it is only part of the script. The script in turn is part of the cost and the control of budget is related to the script being good to start with, and completed sufficiently ahead for shrewd evaluation. "Cleo" and "Bounty" are the two most-cited recent instances of unready script. In each instance the quarrel has raged as to whether the company in New York or the director on location should bear the blame for today's script changes written last night.

What the worrying ones cannot understand is how, with millions involved, and so much attention bestowed upon stars, sets, special effects, fancy credits, art, lavish scores and fortunes in robes and togas the basic elements of a well-told tale are sometimes so trite and thin. It is possibly even more shocking in certain cases where the completed script was in hand months ahead. "If the critics can see the flaws so readily why cannot the fortune-collecting professiona's see them and correct them?" sums up the complaint.

JAC THALL AD CHIEF AT COLUMBIA PICTURES

Jac Thall, formerly copy chief and creative director for the entertainment division of West, Weir & Bartel, has been named ad manager for Columbia Pictures.

He replaces Gil Pearlman, who resigned to join a new legit theatre project.

Thall has also served stints with RKO, Universal and 20th-Fox. Recently he headed his own studio, servicing film contracts.

Paramount's Quarterly 50c

Paramount last week voted a quarterly divvy of 50c per share on its common stock.

Split is payable June 1 to stockholders of record May 15, 1964.

Hardy Showmen

Minneapolis, April 21.

Twin Cities' 13 outdoor theatres, which opened their season this month, last week on a Monday night (13) encountered a near blizzard, the snowstorm being accompanied by wind gusts up to 90 miles an hour. At same time the Oscarcast was on ABC-TV.

While the patronage was almost non-existent, the ozoners went ahead with their screenings. And only one suffered sufficient damage that put it entirely out of commission for most of last week. That was the Lucky Twin, a leading one which wasn't so lucky on this occasion, having had a portion of its screen demolished.

Glen Alden Corp. (Owner of RKO) Expects Guests

Notice of annual meeting of the Glen Alden Corp., scheduled for Park Sheraton Hotel on May 15, was sent to shareholders last week. It stated that agenda would include consideration of authorization of stock purchases out of capital surplus and authorization of amendments of corporation's stock option plan to bring it into conformity with stock-option provisions of 1964 Revenue Act. Alden is parent of RKO Theatres.

Glen Alden sold its capital stock investment in American Hardware Corp. in January for approximately $19,350,000, realizing a profit of approximately $5,460,000. In February it offered to purchase common shares from stockholders for $14 per share, as result of which, by the March expiration date, company had purchased 712,878 shares at aggregate cost of $9,980,292.

Proxy statement, which accompanied notice, proposed that directors be fixed at 11, the 11 nominees being directors at the present time.

Lewis D. Gilbert and John J. Gilbert, stockholders and co-executors of estate of Minnie D. Gilbert, another stockholder, have advised Glen Alden they intend to introduce a resolution at the annual meeting requesting that Board of Directors take steps necessary to restore pre-emptive rights to stockholders. Management is recommending that shareholders vote against the resolution.

'CIRCUS' INTO DALLAS DAY BEFORE GOTHAM

Dallas, April 21.

Capri Theatres is set for the world premiere June 24 of the newest Cinerama production, Samuel Bronston's "Circus World," with John Wayne, Claudia Cardinale and Rita Hayworth. Film opens June 25 in New York.

Earl Podolnick, Trans-Texas Theatres prexy, set the preem Thursday (16) with Sid Cooper, general sales manager of Cinerama, on the Coast.

The midtown Capri's current Cinerama film, "It's a Mad, Mad, Mad, Mad World," runs through May 3.

Rosenberg on Coast

Hollywood, April 21.

Anna Rosenberg, consultant to Motion Picture Assn., meets Thurs. (23) with major studio publicity directors' committee on ways, means of achieving goal of an improved "image."

Negro Pickets Protest Shabby House

Bailey Circuit Promises Renovation — Defends Slowness on Grounds of 40c Admission

Atlanta, April 21.

Some 35 Negro demonstrators picketed eight theatres belonging to Atlanta-based Bailey Theatres circuit for about three hours recently in protest against failure of chain's management to renovate a theatre in a Negro neighborhood.

Mrs. Asberry Fears, spokeswoman for Atlanta Civic Council, said management had promised a complete renovation of Carver Theatre several weeks ago and "they have done little to improve the theatre."

She added that all eight of the houses are in need of improvement. Seven are located in Negro sections of Atlanta and the eighth is in a racially mixed neighborhood.

Harold T. Spears, president of Bailey chain, which includes historic Bailey's 81, located on Decatur Street in heart of Atlanta's downtown Negro business section, said his outfit has been in process of renovating Carver for some time now and Civic Council members were not satisfied with speed with which work is being done.

"We charge only 40c admission," Spears said, "as compared to $1.50 charged by Atlanta's theatres for whites, so we are not in financial position to make de luxe houses out of our locations. However, we try to keep them in good repair and make them comfortable for our patrons and expect to continue this policy."

Civic Council did not follow through on their picketing program after initial effort.

Weirdo Chi Jam Post-Oscarcade

Chicago, April 21.

An embarrassment of Oscar riches has created a traffic jam at Chi's subrun houses. Exhibitors accustomed to scurrying after the better pix have for the first time in years found themselves in a buyers' market.

The current week finds United Artists accounting for 65 houses—20 with the second week of "Tom Jones" and 45 situations picking up a hastily-arranged first subrun of "Lilies of the Field" (which had a dim three week first run at the Oriental Theatre last November).

Nearly all of the rest of the nabes are carrying "Hud," "8½" and "Irma La Douce" in varying combinations.

The backup is further congested by a 20th reissue of "South Pacific" which was arranged months ago and nailed some of the better houses, and the fact that "The Cardinal" is being held for a third week at several of the prime nabe situations.

A Poitier Editorial

Albany, April 21.

Albany Knickerbocker News editorially observed (18) "No one who saw 'Lilies of the field' could doubt that Sidney Poitier was deserving of the 'Oscar' for the best actor of the year. The ovation Mr. Poitier received from his colleagues in the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences, plus the reaction of Jack Lemmon, the master of ceremonies at the awards presentation, made it clear that the movie industry—a major factor in carrying America's image abroad—realized the selection of the Negro actor had special significance in a year when civil rights has become a subject of intense concern."

Stanley Warner Ritz booked "Lilies of the Field" for a downtown-revival date. Picture had originally played the Strand.

Oscars Hypo L.A.; 'Man' Sock 10G, 'Soldier' Slick $22,800, 'Hud' Robust 25G, 'Jones' Wow 18G, 17th; 'Days' 13G

Hollywood, April 21.

Firstruns are up and showing strongly this week, sparked partially by flock of Oscar-winning pix. Pair of openers likewise are boosting the overall outlook. "Soldier in the Rain" is after a hefty $22,800 in four situations and "Best Man" is looking to a sock $10,000 at the Fine Arts.

"Hud," which took best actress and best supporting actor awards, is shaping to a lush $25,000 in four houses. "Lilies of the Field," accoladed for best actor, is a hot $17,500 at the Four Star and Warren's. Fellini's "8½," however, eyes only a slender $7,500 at the Iris and Lido.

Among regular holdovers, "Tom Jones," which copped best picture and director honors, maintains its previous hot pace with a torrid $18,000 in sight for its 17th round at the Picfair and Vogue. "Yesterday, Today and Tomorrow" is gandering a loud $18,000 in fifth Fox Wilshire sesh.

"Pink Panther" is a tall $14,000 in a fifth frame at the Hollywood Paramount. "Seven Days in May" is a nice $13,000 in seventh Chinese stanza. "Dr. Strangelove," in eighth round at the Beverly, and "South Pacific" reissue in third Egyptian week, are a trim $12,000 apiece.

On hardtix front, "Mad World" is a likely $25,000 in 24th stanza at the Cinerama, while two other Oscar sweepers are showing improved biz. "How the West Was Won," in 61st week at the Warner Hollywood, is a sizzling $22,800 and "Cleopatra" is a bustling $18,600 in 44th frame at the Pantages. "Becket" looks a fine $19,300 at Warner Beverly.

Estimates for This Week

Baldwin, Orpheum, Pix, Wiltern (State - Metropolitan - Prin - SW) (1,800; 2,213; 756; 2,344; $1-$1.49) —"Soldier In the Rain" (AA) and "Cry of Battle" (AA). Hefty $22,800. Last week, Baldwin with Hillstreet, Hollywood, "Mail Order Bride" (MGM), "Muscle Beach Party" (AIP) (moveover) (1st wk), $14,300. Orpheum with Picfair, Vogue, "Tom Jones" (UA) (20th wk, Orpheum; 16th, Picfair, Vogue), $24,700. Pix with El Rey, Village, Warren's, "Paris When It Sizzles" (Par), "To Catch a Thief" (Par) (reissue) (1st wk), $21,200. Wiltern with Crest, Iris, Los Angeles, Loyola, "Captain Newman, M.D." (U) (1st general release), "Brass Bottle" (U) (moveover) (1st wk), $27,900.

Beverly (State) (1,150; $1.49-$2.40) — "Dr. Strangelove" (Col) (9th wk). Trim $12,00. Last week, $13,100.

Chinese (FWC) (1,408; $1.49-$2.40)—"Seven Days in May" (Par)

(Continued on page 10)

Key City Grosses

Estimated Total Gross
This Week $2,005,660
(Based on 21 cities and 267 theatres).
Last Year $2,961,800
(Based on 22 cities and 280 theatres, chiefly first runs including N. Y.)

'Empire' Tall 12G, Cincy; 'Tiger' 7G

Cincinnati, April 21.

"Fall of Roman Empire" looms sturdily on the Cincy film front currently as hardticket successor to "Cleopatra" 42-week run at the Grand. Fortified by Oscars, long-run "Tom Jones" at the Times and "Mad World" at Capitol hold strongly. Newcomer "A Tiger Walks" shapes fairish at Keith's. "Night Must Fall" looks okay on holdover at Albee. "Frigid Wife," sans title in adult-slanted ads, rates big at Twin Drive-In. "South Pacific" rates oke in second return to the Valley.

For the arters, "Dr. Strangelove" looks sweet on subrun daydating at Esquire and Hyde Park. "Mondo Cane" looks nice on reissue at the Guild.

Estimates for This Week

Albee (RKO) (3,100; $1.25-$1.50) —"Night Must Fall" (MGM) (2d wk). Okay $7,000 after $8,000 opener.

Capitol (SW-Cinerama) (1,329; $1.25-$2.75)—"Mad World" (UA) (18th wk). Wow $12,500 or better. Last week, $12,200.

Esquire (Cin-T-Co) (500; $1.25)—"Dr. Strangelove" (Col) (subrun). Sweet $2,000. Last week, "The Silence" (Indie) (3d wk), $1,400. Daydating with Hyde Park.

Grand (RKO) (1,396; $1.75-$2.75) —"Fall of Roman Empire" (Par). Good $12,000. Last week, "Cleopatra" (20th) wound up 42-week run with $4,500 session.

Guild (Kilgore) (275; $1.25)—"Mondo Cane" (Indie) (reissue). Nice $1,500. Last week, "And Suddenly It's Murder" (Indie), $1,300.

Hyde Park (Cin-T-Co) (700; $1.25) —"Dr. Strangelove" (Col) (subrun). Okay $1,600. Last week, "The Silence" (Indie) (3d wk), $900.

Keith's (Cin-T-Co) (1,500; $1.25-$1.50)—"A Tiger Walks" (BV). Fair $7,000. Last week, "Merlin Jones" (BV) (3d wk), $6,100.

Palace (RKO) (2,600; $1.25-$1.50) —"Seven Faces of Dr. Lao" (MGM) (4th wk). Okay $6,500 after $7,000 for third.

Times (Mid-States) (660; $1.25-$1.50)—"Tom Jones" (UA) (10th wk). Wham $11,000 or more after $11,500 for ninth round.

Twin Drive-In (Cin-T-Co) (800 cars each side; $1)—West: "Frigid Wife" (Indie). Title of film withheld in adult-slanted ads. Big $10,000. Last week, "Commando" (AI) and "Torpedo Bay" (AI), $3,500. East: "Man's Favorite Sport" (U) and "Caretaker" (UA). Fairish $6,000. Last week, "4 For Texas" (WB) and "A Summer Place" (WB) (subruns), $5,000.

Valley (Cin-T-Co) (1,275; $1.50) —"South Pacific" (20th) (reissue). Oke $6,000. Last week, "Captain Newman" (U) (3d wk), $5,000.

'Tiger' Fairish $7,000, Columbus; 'Cleo' 11½G

Columbus, O., April 21.

Walt Disney's "A Tiger Walks" at the Palace is the only new entry, and average returns are indicated. Adequate biz is anticipated in holdovers of "Cleopatra" at the Beechwold and New Main. "Mad World" at the Grand and "Captain Newman M.D." at the Ohio.

Estimates for This Week

Beechwold (Academy-Neth) (860; $1-$2) and New Main (Yassenoff) (1,100; $1-$2)—"Cleopatra" (20th) (5th wk). Steady $11,500. Last week, $10,000.

Grand (RKO) (860; $1.50-$2.75) —"Mad World" (UA) (10th wk). Cheering $9,000. Last week, $9,000.

Ohio (Loew) (3,079; 50-$1.50)—"Captain Newman M.D." (U) (2d wk). Slow $6,500. Last week, $10,000.

Palace (RKO) (2,845; 75-$1.50)—"Tiger Walks" (BV) and "Cavalry Command" (JMG). Fair $7,000. Last week, "Mr. Limpet" (WB) and "Thunder Island" (WB), $6,000.

'Paris' Thin $4,000, Pitt; 'Rear' 6½G

Pittsburgh, April 21.

Biz is spotty but Oscar awards are helping some pix. "Lilies of Field," boffo in 24th week at the arty Forum, moves downtown to the Fulton tomorrow (Wednesday) for continuation of run. It will be replaced by "Dr. Strangelove," which will be day-dated downtown with Gateway for first time a film has played an art house and deluxer simultaneously in city's history.

Oscar laurels are also a big help to "Tom Jones," which is heading for a boff week in 10th round at the Squirrel Hill. Reissue of "Hud," paired with "Come Blow Your Horn," is in neat session at Penn. Newcomer "Paris When It Sizzles" is drab at the Fulton. "Advance to Rear" is thin at the Stanley.

Estimates for This Week

Forum (Assoc.) (380; $1.75) — "Lilies of Field" (UA) (24th wk). Best week of run with $5,500 from Oscar aid. Moves downtown Wednesday to Fulton for continuation of run. "Dr. Strangelove" replaces. Last week, $4,500.

Fulton (Assoc.) (1,400; $1-$1.75) —"Paris When It Sizzles" (Par). Weak $4,000. Last week, "Irma la Douce" (UA) and "Some Like It Hot (UA) (reissues) (2d wk), $4,500.

Gateway (Assoc.) (1,900; $1-$1.75) — "Captain Newman" (U) (5th wk). Fair $5,000. "Dr. Strangelove" (Col) starts Wednesday daydating with Forum. Last week, $6,000.

Penn (UATC) (3,472; $1-$1.50)—"Hud" (Par) and "Come Blow Your Horn" (Par) (reissues). Oscar big help for excellent $12,000. Last week, "Dr. Lao" (MGM), $7,800.

Shadyside (MOTC) (623; $1.75)—"America, America" (WB) (8th wk). Okay $2,500. Last week, same.

Squirrel Hill (SW)(800; $1.75)—"Tom Jones" (UA) (10th wk). Oscar kudos bringing $14,000, close to record week. Last week, $12,500.

Stanley (SW) (3,700; $1-$1.75)—"Advance to Rear" (MGM). Thin $6,500. Last week, "Night Must Fall" (MGM) (nine days), $7,500.

Warner (SW) (1,260; $1.50-$3)—"It's Mad World" (UA) (18th wk). Wow $12,000 and running well ahead of last week's $10,500.

'Jones' Big $21,000, D.C.; 'Panther' Lively 14G, 5th, 'Yesterday' Boff 14G, 3d

Washington, April 21.

Warm weather has taken some of the wind out of biz sails here but strong films are holding their own. "Tom Jones" shapes sock in 17th session at Ontario and "Pink Panther" looms lofty in fifth frame at Keith's.

"Yesterday, Today and Tomorrow" figures boffo in third round at Embassy while "Dr. Strangelove" looks strong in ninth at Dupont. "Seven Days in May" is busy in 10th turn at Trans-Lux.

Estimates for This Week

Ambassador - Metropolitan (SW) (1,480; 1,000; $1-$1.49) — "Global Affair" (MGM) and "Tamahine" (MGM). Trim $9,000. Last week, "Paris When It Sizzles" (Par) (2d wk), $6,000.

Apex (KB) (940; $1.25-$1.40) — "Silence" (Janus) (2d wk). Hep $7,000 after opening at $8,200.

Dupont (Mann) (400; $1.50-$2)—"Dr. Strangelove" (Col) (9th wk). Strong $8,000. Last week, same.

Embassy (Loew) (567; $1.25-$2)—"Yesterday, Today and Tomorrow" (Emb) (3d wk). Boffo $14,000. Last week, $15,000.

Keith's (RKO) (1,838; $1-$1.49)—"Pink Panther" (UA) (5th wk). Lofty $14,000. Last week, $16,000.

MacArthur (KB) (900; $1.25-$1.40) — Shakespeare Festival pix (2d wk). Fine $8,000 after $12,000 initialer.

Ontario (KB) (1,240; $1.50-$2)—"Tom Jones" (UA) (17th wk). Sock $21,000. Last week, same.

Palace (Loew) (2,360; $1.25-$1.80) —"Night Must Fall" (MGM) (2d wk). Oke $8,500 after initialing at $11,000.

Playhouse (TL) (459; $1.25-$1.80) —"America, America" (WB) (6th wk). Mild $3,500. Last week, $4,000.

Plaza (TL) (278; $1.25-$1.80) — "Lorna" (Indie) (4th wk). Trim $4,000. Last week, $4,400.

Town (King) (800; $1.25-$1.80)—"Captain Newman" (U) (4th wk). Okay $7,500. Last week, same.

Trans-Lux (TL) (598; $1.49-$2)—"Seven Days in May" (Par) (10th wk). Busy $6,500. Last week, $6,900.

Uptown (SW) (1,300; $1.65-$2.75) —"It's a Mad World" (UA) (9th wk). Hep $11,000. Last week, $11,500.

Warner (SW) (1,250; $1.50-$2.75) —"Fall of Roman Empire" (Par) (3d wk). Modest $11,000. Last week, same.

'Party' Perky $10,000 in Spotty Hub; 'Rear' Solid $9,000, 'Dr. Lao' Oke 9G

Boston, April 21.

Biz is spotty this week, but exhibs are hopeful as school vacash started Friday (17) and new fare is booked for moppet crowd. Disney's "Tiger Walks" opened yesterday (Monday) at the Music Hall for the school trade. "Advance to Rear" is good at the Orpheum. "Seven Faces of Dr. Lao" looks to hit an okay pace at the Paramount.

"Muscle Beach Party" is strong at the Center. "Kissin' Cousins" is hot at the Mayflower. "War of Buttons" is sharp at the West End Cinema. "Connection" is bright at the Park Square Cinema. "Tara Tahiti" is good in third at the Exeter. "Tom Jones" shot up with heavier lines with Academy Award hypo at the Beacon Hill in its 18th week.

Estimates for This Week

Astor (B&Q) (1,117; 90-$1.80)—"Dr. Strangelove" (Col) (4th wk). Sock $17,000. Last week, $20,000.

Beacon Hill (Sack) (900; $1-$1.80)—"Tom Jones" (UA) (18th wk). Boomed by Academy Award to solid $18,000. Last week, same.

Boston (Beacon Ent.) (1,354; $1.20-$3.95) — "Mad World" (UA) (23d wk). The 22d week ended Monday (20) was hotsy $19,000. Last week, $17,000.

Capri (Sack) (900; $1-$1.80) — "Paris When It Sizzles" (Par), m.o. from Music Hall where Met Opera is berthed after three weeks, and "Servant" (Indie) (subrun) (4th wk). Oke $6,000. Last week, $5,000.

Center (E. M. Loew) (1,250; 90-$1.25)—"Muscle Beach Party" (AI) and "Starfighters" (Indie). Hypoed by p.a. of Amadee Chabot, "Miss U.S.A.," to happy $10,000. Last week, "Strangler" (AA) and "Secret Door" (Indie) (2d wk), $7,000.

Cinema, Kenmore Square (Indie) (320; $1.50-$1.90) — "Wuthering Heights" (MGM) (reissue). Mild $1,900. Last week, "Silence" (Janus) and "Old Man and Flower" (Indie) (8th wk), $1,500.

Exeter (Indie) (1,276; 90-$1.49) —"Tiara Tahiti" (Zenith) (3d wk). Third week opened Saturday (18). Second week, nice $5,000.

Gary (Sack) (1,277; $1.25-$1.80) —"Pink Panther" (UA) (5th wk). Neat $10,000. Last week, $12,000.

Mayflower (ATC) (689; 90-$1.50) —"Kissin' Cousins" (MGM) and

(Continued on page 10)

Broadway Grosses

Estimated Total Gross
This Week $539,050
(Based on 35 theatres)
Last Year $666,000
(Based on 33 theatres)

'Empire' Hot 10G, Mpls., 'Way' 4G

Minneapolis, April 21.

"Fall of the Roman Empire" is making most of the newcomer b.o. noise. Helped by a big advance and heavy exploitation campaign, it joins two other local hardticket shows, "How The West Was Won" and "Cleopatra." Another fresh entry is reissue of "South Pacific" at the Mann. Summer - like weather followed last week's near-blizzard and it's helping firstrun biz.

Estimates for This Week

Academy (Mann) (1,050; $1.75-$2.65)—"Fall of Roman Empire" (Par). Formidable $10,000. Last week, dark.

Avalon (Frank) (900; $1) — "Queens Wild" (Indie) and "Playgirl and War Minister" (Indie) (subrun) (2d wk). Okay $900. Last week, $1,200.

Campus (Mann) (600; $1.25) — "Silence" (Janus) (2d wk). Fair $1,800. Last week, $4,000.

Century (Par) (1,300; $1.50-$3.50) — "Cleopatra" (20th) (43d wk). Varies hardly at all week to week, $4,000. Last week, same.

Cooper (CF) (905; $1.25-$2.50)—"How West Was Won" (MGM) (59th wk). Smash $13,000. Last week, $11,000.

El Lago (Carisch) (800; $1) — "Nature Complex" (Indie) and "Unknown Paradise" (Indie). Good $1,100. Last week, "Naughty Dallas" (Indie) and "Ladies Who Do" (Indie) (2d wk), $800.

Gopher (Berger) (1,000; $1-$1.25) — "Strangler" (AA). Slow $2,500. Last week, "Seven Faces of Dr. Lao" (MGM), $4,000 on nine days.

Lyric (Par) (1,000; $1-$1.25) — "One Man's Way" (UA). Tepid $4,000. Last week, "Paris When It Sizzles" (Par) (2d wk), $4,500.

Mann (Mann) (1,000; $1.25-$1.50)—"South Pacific" (20th) (reissue). Good $8,000. Last week, "Dr. Strangelove" (Col) (7th wk), $5,000.

Orpheum (Mann) (2,800; $1-$1.25 — "Molesters" (Indie). Brisk $10,000. Last week, "At War With Army" (Indie) and "Night Passage" (Indie) (reissues), $3,000 on five days.

Park (Mann) (1,000; $1.50) — "Seven Days in May" (Par) (10th wk). Scrumptious $3,500. Last week, $4,000.

State (Par) (2,200; $1-$1.25) — "Muscle Beach Party" (AIP) (2d wk). Healthy $6,000. Last week, $11,000.

Suburban World (Mann) (800; $1.25)—"Silence" (Janus) (2d wk). Fair $1,800. Last week, $4,000.

World (Mann) (400; $1.25-$1.50) —"Tom Jones" (UA) (9th wk). Smash $9,000. Last week, $9,000.

'Cousins' Slow 6G, L'ville; 'Stranger' Nice 8G, 4th

Louisville, April 21.

"Kissin' Cousins" at the Ohio is the only change in the firstrun front this week. Pattern at the downtown houses is becoming more and more a weekend proposition. Lines at the wicket and full houses seem to manifest themselves only from opening through Sunday. Balance of the week is for the birds.

Spring race meeting at Churchhill Downs opens Saturday (25). The 90th Running of the Kentucky Derby will be early this year, Saturday, May 2. Usual hoopla is slated prior to the Derby.

Estimates for This Week

Kentucky (Switow) (900; 75-$1.25) — "Tom Jones" (UA) (10th wk). Neat $5,000. Last week, same.

Mary Ann (People's) (1,100; 75-$1.25)—"PT-109" (WB) and "Palm Springs Weekend" (WB) (reissues) (2d wk). Slow $4,000. Last week, swell $8,000.

Ohio (Settos) (900; 75-$1.25) — "Kissin' Cousins" (MGM). Modest $6,000. Last week, "Paris When It Sizzles" (Par) (3d wk). Brisk $5,500.

Penthouse (Fourth Avenue) (900; 75-$1.25)—"Love With Proper Stranger" (Par) (4th wk). Good $8,000. Last week, nice $9,000.

Rialto (Fourth Avenue) (1,100; $1.50-$2.50)—"It's a Mad World" (UA) (17th wk). Fair $7,000 as end of long run approaches. Last week, helped by conventions and school vacation, pulled large $10,000.

United Artists (Fourth Avenue) (1,700; 75-$1.25) — "Tiger Walks" (BV) and "Lassie's Great Adventure" (BV) (4th wk). Medium $6,000 after last week's okay $7,000.

'Bottle' Brassy $6,000 In Prov.; 'Tiger' Fast $7,000

Providence, April 21.

Midterm schools' holiday and product aimed at the small fry are helping to boost biz. "Tom Jones" is still the topper in its 11th frame at Elmwood. Majestic is lively with Disney's "A Tiger Walks." RKO Albee's "The Brass Bottle" and Strand's second week of "Dr. Strangelove" are also on the happy side.

Estimates for This Week

Albee (RKO) (2,200; 90-$1.25)—"Brass Bottle" (U) and "He Rides Tall" (U). Fairly active $6,000. Last week, "Man In the Middle" (20th) and "Surf Party" (20th). Mild $4,500.

Elmwood (Snider) (2,200; $1-$1.75)—"Tom Jones" (UA) (11th wk). Brash $11,500. Last week, socko $11,000.

Majestic (SW) (2,200; 90-$1.25)—"Tiger Walks" (BV). Nice $7,000. Last week, "The Strangler" (AA) and "Secret Door" (AA). Meek $4,000.

State (Loew) (3,200; 90-$1.25)—"Night Must Fall" (MGM) (2d wk). Dead $3,000. Last week, same.

Strand (National Realty) (2,200; $1.25-$1.50) — "Dr. Strangelove" (Col) (2d wk). Happy $7,000 after hot $10,000 in opening sesh.

Oscar Reissues Clip Chi Deluxers, But 'Empire' Smash $21,000, 'Party' Sweet $18,500, 'Order' 4½G, 'Becket' 17G

Chicago, April 21.

Several new entries are making a splash at Chi firstruns, but the general tone of deluxer biz is soft as Oscar-garlanded subruns pull to the nabes. A smash first subrun round of "Tom Jones," for example, set the pace for a red hot array of reprises that included "8½," "Hud" and "Irma la Douce" as well as "South Pacific."

Hardticket preem of "Fall of Roman Empire" is pulling a rousing $21,000 at the Todd, and "Muscle Beach Party" is notching a sweet $18,500 first Roosevelt round.

"Point of Order" is taking off to a bright $4,500 at the Surf, and Town reissue dualer of "Trial and Error" and "Wrong Arm of Law" should cop a trim $3,000. Monroe reissue tandem of "Devil and 10 Commandments" and "Assault" should take a modest $4,500.

"One Man's Way" is posting a soft second Oriental stanza, "Night Must Fall" is tame in its third Woods lap, and "The Doll" is frisky in its World third.

"Captain Newman" is stout in its fifth Chicago frame, and "Pink Panther" is holding steady for the same State-Lake sesh. Daydated "Silence" is potent at the Loop and Carnegie in its fifth lap, and "To Bed Or Not To Bed" is snappy for the same Cinema sesh. "Seven Days in May" is tidy in its eighth United Artists round.

On hardticket, "Becket" is tallying a sturdy third Cinestage stanza, and "It's a Mad World" is lusty in its McVickers 22d.

Estimates for This Week

Carnegie (Brotman) (495; $1.25-$1.80)—"Silence" (Janus) (5th wk). Nifty $3,900; Last week, $4,500.

Chicago (B&K) (3,900; 90-$1.80)—"Captain Newman" (U) (5th wk). Solid $16,000. Last week, $16,500.

Cinema (Stern) (500; $1.50)—"To Bed Or Not To Bed" (Cont) (5th wk). Brisk $3,500. Last week, $3,700.

Cinestage (Todd) (1,038; $1.75-$3.50)—"Becket" (Par) (5th wk). Firm $17,000. Last week, $17,000.

Esquire (H&E Balaban) (1,236; $1.25-$1.80) — "Dr. Strangelove" (Col) (9th wk). Mighty $14,000. Last week, $14,000.

Loop (Brotman) (606; 90-$1.80)—"Silence" (Janus) (5th wk). Good $6,800. Last week, $8,000.

McVickers (Beacon) (1,100; $2.20-$3.80)—"It's a Mad World" (UA) (22d wk). Stout $22,000. Last week, $22,500.

Monroe (Jovan) (1,000; 65-90)—"Devil and 10 Commandments" (Indie) and "Assault" (Indie) (reissues). Okay $4,500. Last week, "Right Hand of Devil" (Indie) and "Sadist" (Indie), $5,000.

Oriental (Indie) (3,400; 90-$1.80)—"One Man's Way" (UA) (2d wk). Limp $11,000. Last week, $13,000.

Roosevelt (B&K) (1,400; 90-$1.80)—"Muscle Beach Party" (AI).

(Continued on page 10)

Estimates Are Net

Film gross estimates as reported herewith from the various key cities, are net; i.e., without usual tax. Distributors share on net take, when playing percentage, hence the estimated figures are net income.

The parenthetic admission prices, however, as indicated, include U. S. amusement tax.

'Empire' Boff 8G, Port.; 'Hud' 7½G

Portland, Ore., April 21.

Firstrun trade is perking with nearly all main stem spots having product and Academy winners. "Tom Jones" is moving into a 10th sizzling Irvington week. "Hud" is revived at the Orpheum. "Cleopatra" is off to a whopping start at the Laurelhurst at pop prices. new entry at the Music Box with "Fall of Roman Empire" is strong hardticket policy.

Estimates for This Week

Broadway (Parker) (1,890; $1-$1.50)—"Captain Newman" (U) and "One Man's Paris" (U) (5th wk). Okay $4,000. Last week, $4,100.

Cinema 21 (Foster) (648; $1.50)—"The Easy Life" (Emb). Fine $3,500. Last week, "America, America" (WB) (7th wk), $2,700.

Fine Arts (Foster) (421; $1.50)—"America, America" (WB) (m.o.). Steady $2,500. Last week, "Irma La Douce" (UA) (m.o.) (13th wk), $2,000.

Fox (Evergreen) (1,600; $1-$1.49)—"Dr. Strangelove" (Col) (4th wk). Fast $6,000. Last week, $6,400.

Hollywood (Evergreen) (1,188; $1.49-$2.75)—"It's A Mad World" (UA) (18th wk). Heavy $9,500. Last week, $9,700.

Irvington (Smith) (650; $1.50)—"Tom Jones" (UA) (10th wk). Sizzling $10,500. Last week, $10,200.

Laurelhurst (Cruikshank) (700; $1.50)—"Cleopatra" (20th) (pop prices). Tall $6,500. Last week, second run policy.

Music Box (Hamrick) (640; $1.50-$3)—"Fall of Roman Empire" (Par), hard tix policy. Loud $8,000. Last week, "All Way Home" (Par), $2,900.

Orpheum (Evergreen) (1,536; $1-$1.49)—"Hud" (Par) and "L-Shaped Room" (Col) (reissues). Nifty $7,500. Last week, "Shock Treatment" (20th) and "Man in Middle" (20th), $4,900.

Paramount (Port-Par) (3,006; $1-$1.50)—"Voodoo Village" (Indie) and "Girls of Night" (Indie). Meager $2,000. Last week, "Mail Order Bride" (MGM) and "Palm Springs Weekend" (WB) (reissue), $4,000.

Rain Dampens Philly Biz; 'Purpose' Dark $7,000, 'Empire' Rugged 15G, 2d

Philadelphia, April 21.

Soaring temperatures Saturday (18) and a rainy Sunday put the damper on weekend business. Oscar laurels, however, are lifting "Tom Jones" in its eighth week at the Midtown. "Dark Purpose" is dim at the Goldman. "Fall of the Roman Empire" is lively in a second Stanley round.

Estimates for This Week

Arcadia (S&S) (623; $1.20-$1.80)—"Night Must Fall" (MGM) (3d wk). Passable $5,000. Last week, $7,000.

Boyd (SW) (1,536; $2-$2.75)—"Mad World" (UA) (18th wk). Lively $14,000. Last week, $15,000.

Bryn Mawr (Goldman) (630; $1.49)—"America, America" (WB) (6th wk). Okay $3,100. Last week, $3,800.

Fox (Milgrim) (2,400; 95-$1.80)—"Captain Newman" (U) (3d wk). Busy $14,000. Last week, $16,000.

Goldman (Goldman) (1,000; 95-$1.80)—"Dark Purpose" (U). Dim $7,000. Last week, "Flight from Ashiya" (UA) (3d wk), $5,000.

Lane (SW) (1,000; $1.49)—"Si-

(Continued on page 10)

$1.25-$1.50) — "Kissin' Cousins" (MGM) and "Beauty and Body" (Indie). Fair $6,000. Last week, "Incredible Mr. Limpet" (WB), $6,100.

Paramount (Fox-Evergreen) (3,000; $1.25-$1.50) — "Goliath and Vampire" (FF) and "Terror in Haunted House" (FF). Poor $3,000. Last week, "One Man's Way" (UA) and "The Great Escape" (U) (reissue), $3,100.

Oscars Lift St. L.; 'Hud' Hefty $10,000

St. Louis, April 21.

Two art houses are looking sharp this session — the Pageant with "Act One" and the Apollo with "Macbeth." The St. Louis is also expected to do nicely, on the basis of the Academy Awards, with reissue of "Hud," paired with "Rose Tattoo."

Estimates for This Week

Ambassador (Arthur) (2,970; 90-$1.25)—"South Pacific" (20th) (2d wk) (reissue). Okay $7,000. Last week, $8,000.

Apollo Art (Grace) (700; 90-$1.25)—"Macbeth" (Indie). Good $3,000. Last week, "Brief Encounter" (Indie) and "I Know Where I'm Going" (Indie), $1,500.

Esquire (Jablonow-Komm) (1,800; 90-$1.25)—"Cleopatra" (20th) (6th wk). Okay $7,000. Last week, same.

Fox (Arthur) (5,000; 90-$1.25)—"Captain Newman" (U) (2d wk). Nice $13,000. Last week, $16,000.

Loew's Mid-City (Loew) (1,160; 60-90) — "Tom Jones" (UA) (8th wk). Good $12,000. Last week, $14,000.

State (Loew) (3,600; 60-90) — "Night Must Fall" (MGM) (3d wk). Fair $7,000. Last week, same.

Martin Cinerama (Martin) (913; $1.30-$2.50) — "It's Mad World" (UA) (9th wk). Good $14,000. Last week, ditto.

Pageant (Arthur) (1,000; 90-$1.25)—"Act One" (WB). Nice $3,500. Last week, "America, America" (WB) (2d wk), $3,000.

Paris Art (Chernoff) (800; $1)—"Maid for Murder" (Indie) and "Just Once More" (Indie). Average $1,200. Last week, "Hand in Trap" (Indie) and "Summerskin" (Indie) (2d wk), $1,000.

St. Louis (Arthur) (3,800; 75-90)—"Hud" (Par) and "Rose Tattoo" (Par) (reissues). Good $10,000. Last week, "This Sporting Life" (Cont) and "Lord of Flies" (Cont) (reissues), $8,000.

Shady Oak (Arthur) (760; 90-$1.25) — "Dr. Strangelove" (Col) (6th wk). Okay $1,000. Last week, $1,500.

This Week's N.Y. Showcases

(1) PRIMARY FIRSTRUN SHOWCASES
(2) WEEK'S SECONDARY SHOWCASES

"The Cardinal" (Col)—$62,481 in five days of fourth week, eight spots.

Loew's Cinerama, Loew's 83d St., Orpheum (Manhattan); Oriental (Brooklyn); Dale, Palace (Bronx); Loew's Triboro, Elmwood (Queens). Cinerama will hold for fifth week. Total run, as of Sunday (19), was $991,972, which means showcase run will exceed $1,000,000.

"From Russia With Love" (UA)—$227,475 in five days, 29 spots. Figures, however, are for 27 houses as two had not reported by press time.

Astor, RKO 58th St., Coliseum, Skouras Riverside (Manhattan); RKO Castle Hill, Skouras Valentine (Bronx); RKO Kenmore, Dyker, Madison, Fabian's Fox (Brooklyn); RKO Keith's Flushing, Strand, Skouras Forest Hills, Merrick (Queens); RKO White Plains, Skouras Bronxville, Elmsford Drive-In (Westchester); Skouras Rivoli, Playhouse, Cove, Westbury Drive-In, Bel Air, Wantagh.

"Paris When It Sizzles" (Par)—$65,000 in 16 spots.

Paramount, Trans-Lux 52d Street (Manhattan); Kingsway, Rialto (Brooklyn); Paradise, Whitestone Drive-In (Bronx); Meadows, Bliss, Hillside (Queens); Loew's Mt. Vernon, Plaza (Westchester); Glen Cove, Fantasy, Freeport, Roosevelt Field, Sunrise Drive-In (Nassau).

"Seven Days In May" (Par) ($225,000 in first week, 23 spots.

Criterion, Sutton (Manhattan); American, Luxor (Bronx); Kings, Avalon, Metropolitan (Brooklyn); Valencia, Prospect, Trylon (Queens); Green Acres, Plainview, Grove, Town, (Nassau); Bay Shore, Patchogue, Shore, Smithton, All-Weather Drive-In (Suffolk); St. George (Staten Island); New Rochelle, White Plains, Park Hill (Westchester).

"Tom Jones" (UA)—$193,000 in five days, 15 spots. These do not include the two Manhattan houses, Cinema I and Cinema II. UA says this run is "a showcase but not a showcase. It's a matter of semantics."

Astor, Seaview (Brooklyn); Ascot, Earl (Bronx); Bay Terrace, Continental (Queens); Cinema, Plaza, York (Suffolk); Rye Ridge, Town (Westchester); Lynbrook, Manhasset, Bar Harbour, Salisbury (Nassau).

'COUSINS' FAIR $6,000, SEATTLE; 'GOLIATH' 3G

Seattle, April 21.

Academy awards are giving a further push to the already steady pace of "Tom Jones," in its seventh stanza at the Blue Mouse. Of the newcomers, "Kissin' Cousins" is fair at the Orpheum while "Goliath and the Vampire" is dismal at the Paramount.

Estimates for This Week

Blue Mouse (Hamrick) (739; $1.50-$1.75)—"Tom Jones" (UA) (7th wk). Smash $14,000. Last week, $13,000.

Coliseum (Fox-Evergreen) (1,870; $1.25-$1.50) — "Dr. Strangelove" (Col) (7th wk). Big $8,000. Last week, $8,500.

Fifth Avenue (Fox-Evergreen) (2,500; ($1.50-$2) — "Cleopatra" (20th). (7th wk). Good $8,000.

Music Box (Hamrick) (738; $1.50-$1.75) — "Irma La Douce" (UA). (39th wk). Swell $7,000. Last week, $6,300.

Orpheum (Hamrick) (2,200;

Oscar Echo at 'Jones' & 'Cleo' Sites; Rain and Same Films Slow Broadway; 'Roman' $22,000, 4th, 'Russia' $26,000, 2d

Combination of rainy days and probably too many holdovers kept Broadway first runs to about same level as previous week. Most spots were unveiling new films to coincide with World's Fair. If CORE brouhaha materializes at today's (Wed.) opener in Flushing, many of the visitors could switch, think showmen, to their wickets.

Despite, for others, a generally quiet week, "Cleopatra" improved over previous session's biz, possibly as result of Academy Awards recognition. Same held true with "Tom Jones" at Cinema 1. Other pix showing slight increases were "The Cardinal" at the Cinerama, Sutton's "Seven Days in May" and the Warner's "It's a Mad (4) World."

Most impressive new bill was "Modern Times" at the Plaza. The fourth in house's Chaplin series, it showed a great $17,500 in its first session. Ahead of it, "Great Dictator" went seven weeks, the last one grossing $11,500. Embassy's "Yesterday, Today and Tomorrow" continues very strong at both the Tower East and Festival.

"Night Must Fall" was pulled yesterday (Tues.) at the Embassy after fourth week only did $5,300. Replacement was moveover of "Mistress for a Summer" from the Guild.

Estimates for This Week

Astor (City Inv.) (1,094; $1.25-$2)—"From Russia With Love" (UA) (3d wk). First holdover session ended yesterday (Tues.) with $26,000 after $35,000 for opener. Also Showcase.

Cinerama (Loew) (1,552; $1.50-$2.50)—"Cardinal" (Col) (subrun) (5th wk). Fourth week finished yesterday (Tues.) was $20,000 after $19,000 for third. Also Showcase.

Criterion (Moss) (1,520; $1.50-$2.50)—"Seven Days in May" (Par) (10th wk). The ninth round ended yesterday (Tues.) was $15,300 after $14,399 for eighth. Pic is also at Sutton and, since the 15th, on Showcase.

DeMille (Reade) (1,463; $1.50-$2.50)—"Fall of Roman Empire" (Par) (4th wk). This stanza winding tomorrow (Thurs.) is heading for $22,000 after $24,000 for third.

Embassy (Guild Enterprises) (500; $1.50-$2.50) — "Night Must Fall" (MGM). Fourth and final session completed yesterday (Tues.) was $5,300 after $6,000 for third. "Mistress for the Summer" moves over today (Wed.) from Guild.

Forum (Norel) (813; $1.25-$1.80)—"False Shame" (Embassy) (2d wk). This week finishes tomorrow (Thurs.) with $16,000 after $18,500 in first.

Palace (RKO) (1,642; $1.25-$2)—"Flight From Ashiya" (UA) opens today (Wed.). Last week, two reissues, "Operation Petticoat" (U) and "Pillow Talk" (U) did good $11,000 in one-week stand.

Paramount (AB-PT) (3,665; $1-$2)—"Paris When It Sizzles" (Par) (3d wk). Second stanza ended yesterday (Tues.) was $19,000 after $22,000 in first. Also at T-L 52nd St. and on Showcase.

Radio City Music Hall (Rockefellers) (6,200; 99-$2.85)—"World of Henry Orient" (UA) with Easter stage show sans 'Glory of Easter' portion (5th-final week). This final session, ending today (Wed.), looks like $113,000 after $135,000 in fourth. "Pink Panther" (UA) and new stage show opens tomorrow (Thurs.).

Rivoli (UAT) (1,545; $2.50-$5.50)—"Cleopatra" (20th) (46th wk). The 45th week ended yesterday (Tues.) was $18,300 after $17,000 for 44th week. Upsurge may be result of Academy Award recognition.

State (Loew) (1,850; $1.50-$3.50)—"Becket" (Par) (6th wk). This session winding today (Wed.) is heading for $29,000 after $34,500 for fifth week. Stays on indefinitely.

Rialto (Brandt) (600; $1.25-$2.50)—"Silence" (Janus) (11th wk). The tenth week ended Sunday (19) was $6,000 after $8,500 for ninth round. Also at Trans-Lux East.

Victoria (City Inv.) (1,003; $1.25-$2)—"Dr. Strangelove" (Col) (13th wk). The 12th week finished yesterday (Tues.) was $14,000 after $20,000 for 11th session. Also at Baronet. Starts Showcase today.

Warner (SW) (1,504; $2.50-$4.80)—"It's a Mad (4) World" (UA) (23d wk). The 22d stanza ended Saturday (18) was $24,500 after $22,000 for 21st week. One of few pix to improve over previous week.

First-Run Arties

Baronet (Reade) (430; $1.25-$2)—"Dr. Strangelove" (Col) (13th wk).

(Continued on page 10)

'Sunday' Fancy $11,500, Denver; 'Soldier' Sharp 12½G, 'C'baggers' 27½G

Denver, April 21.

Biz is brisk in most downtown spots even with drive-ins now open. Of the three fresh firstrunners "Sunday in New York" is fancy at the Centre, "Soldier in the Rain" is sharp at the Denver and "Macbeth" is fair at the arty Vogue. "Carpetbaggers" is socko in second Paramount frame.

Estimates for This Week

Aladdin (Fox) (900; $1.45)—"Dr. Strangelove" (Col) (7th wk). Strong $4,500. Last week, $5,000.

Centre (Fox) (1,270; $1.25-$1.45)—"Sunday in New York" (MGM). Fancy $11,500. Last week, "Captain Newman" (U) (4th wk), $6,500.

Cooper (Cooper) (814; $1.65-$2.50)—"How West Was Won" (MGM) (57th wk). Great $9,850. Last week, $8,750.

Denham (Indie) (800; $1.45-$2.50)—"Fall of Roman Empire" (Par) (3d wk). Good $7,000. Last week, $10,000.

Denver (Fox) (2,432; $1.25)—"Soldier in Rain" (AA). Sharp $12,500. Last week, "Muscle Beach Party" (A-I) and "Young Swingers" (20th) (2d wk), $7,500.

Esquire (Fox) (600; $1.25)—"Cleopatra" (20th) (2d wk pop run) Big $3,500. Last week, $4200.

Paramount (Wolfberg) (2,100; $1.25-$1.45) — "Carpetbaggers" (Par) (2d wk). Socko $27,500. Last week, $38,000.

RKO International 70 (RKO) (1,530; $1-$1.50)—"Paris When It Sizzles" (Par) (4th wk). Thin $4,000. Last week, $4,500.

Towne (Indie) (600; $1.25-$1.45)—"Tom Jones" (UA) (9th wk). Smooth $5,500. Last week, $4,500.

Crest (Wolfberg) (700; $1.25-$1.45)—"Tom Jones" (Par) (9th wk). Smart $6,500. Last week, $4,200.

Vogue (Art Theatre Guild) (450; $1.25) — "Macbeth" (Indie) Fair $1,400. Last week, "Devil and 10 Commandments" (Union) $1,100.

'Ashiya' Fair $7,000, Balto; 'Paris' Trim 12G, 'Jones' Virile 16½G, 8th, 'Mad' 15G

Baltimore, April 21.

"Flight From Ashiya" is fair in bow at the Hippodrome. "Paris When it Sizzles" is strong in opener at the Stanton. Leading the holdovers is "Tom Jones," boff in eighth week at the Charles. "It's a Mad World" is stout in ninth week at the Town. "Lilies of the Field" is big in first week of reissue at Playhouse. "Pink Panther" is fine in fifth week at the Senator.

Estimates for This Week

Charles (Fruchtman) (500; 50-$1.80)—"Tom Jones" (UA) (8th wk). Boff $16,500. Last week, $16,500.

Five West (Schwaber) (435; 90-$1.50)—"To Bed or Not to Bed" (Cont) (4th wk). Light $1,300. Last week, $2,000.

Hippodrome (T-L) (1,800; 50-$1.50) — "Flight From Ashiya" (UA). Fair $7,000. Last week, "Captain Newman" (U) (3d wk), $10,000.

Little (T-L) (300; 60-$1.50)—"Cleopatra" (20th) (4th wk). Fair $2,400. Last week, $2,900.

New (Fruchtman) (1,600; 50-$1.50) — "Dr. Strangelove" (Col) (9th wk). Down to $5,000. Last week, $7,500.

Mayfair (Fruchtman) (700; 50-$1.50)—"Seven Days in May" (Par) (8th wk). Nice $7,500. Last week, $8,000.

Playhouse (Schwaber) (365; 90-$1.50)—"Lilies of the Field" (UA). Big $5,500. Last week, "High and Low" (Toho) (4th wk), $2,000.

Senator (Durkee) (960; 60-$1.50) —"Pink Panther" (UA) (5th wk). Solid $11,000. Last week, $11,500.

Stanton (Fruchtman) (2,800; 50-$1.50)—"Paris When it Sizzles" (Par.) Pleasing $12,000. Last week, "Mr. Limpet" (WB), $6,000.

Town (T-L) (1,125; $1.50-$2.65)—"It's A Mad World" (UA) (9th wk). Strong $15,000. Last week, same.

Rex (Freedman) (500; $1.50)—"Have Figure, Will Travel" (Indie). Good $3,000. Last week, "Bell, Bare and Beautiful" (Indie), $2,300.

Holdovers Perk Det. Biz; 'Strangler' Lively $15,000, 'Jones' Happy 23G, 10th

Detroit, April 21.

Biz continues big among the hot holdovers, but the overall total is dipping slightly this week. "Greatest Show on Earth" is slow in reissue at the Palms while revival of "South Pacific" is moderate at the Michigan. "Psychomina" is quiet in Grand Circus bow. "Strangler" looks good in initial frame at the Fox.

Estimates for This Week

Fox (Downtown Fox Corp.) (5,041; $1.25-$1.49) — "Strangler" (AA) and "Secret Door" (AA). Good $15,000. Last week, "7 Faces of Dr. Lao" (MGM) and "Centurion and Gladiator" (Indie), $7,500 in third week.

Michigan (United Detroit) (4,926; $1.25-$1.49)—"South Pacific" (20th) (reissue) (2d wk). Down to $10,000. Last week, $15,000.

Palms (UD) (2,995; $1.25-$1.49) —"Greatest Show on Earth" (Par) and "Buccaneer" (Par) (reissues). Fair $10,000. Last week, "Horror of Party Beach" (20th) and "Curse of Living Corpse" (20th), $11,000 in second week.

Madison (UD) (1,408; $1.25-$1.49)—"Dr. Strangelove" (Col) (6th wk). Swell $14,000. Last week, $17,000.

Grand Circus (UD) (1,400; $1.25-$1.49)—"Psychomania" (Indie) and "Witch's Curse" (Indie). Slow $7,000. Last week, "Two Women" (Emb) and "8½" (Emb) (reissues), $6,000.

Adams (Community) (1,450; $1.23-$1.50)—"Pink Panther" (UA) (4th wk). Strong $9,000. Last week, 9,500.

United Artists (UA) (1,667; $1.50-$2.50)—"Cleopatra" (20th) (43d). Up to $6,000. Last week, $5,009.

Music Hall (Beacon Enterprises) (1,213; $1.80-$3)—"It's a Mad World" (UA) (10th wk). Great $25,000. Last week, $24,400.

Mercury (Suburban Detroit) (1,468; $1-$1.80)—"Captain Newman" (U) (4th wk). Good $6,000. Last week, $6,797.

Trans-Lux Krim (Trans-Lux) (980; $1.25-$2)—"Tom Jones" (UA) (10th wk). Great $23,000. Last week, $25,000.

BROADWAY

(Continued from page 9)

The 12th session ended yesterday (Tues.) was $16,000 after $16,500 for 11th week.

Beekman (Rugoff) (590; $1.50-$2) —"Adorable Julia" (Indie) (3d wk). Second round finished Monday (20) was $3,500 after $3,890 for opener.

Carnegie Hall Cinema (F&A) (330; $1.50-$2)—"Dimka" (Artkino) (5th wk). This week winding tomorrow (Thurs.) looks like $7,600 after $8,200 for fourth.

Cinema One (Rugoff) (700; $1.50-$2) — "Tom Jones" (UA) (29th wk). The 28th session completed Sunday (19) was $20,300 after $17,300 for 27th week.

Cinema Two (Rugoff) (300; $1.50-$2) — "Cool World" (Indie). Opened Monday (20). Last week "Tom Jones" (UA) (10th wk) was $11,300 after $10,500 for ninth week.

Coronet (Reade) (590; $1.50-$2) —"Best Man" (UA) (3d wk). First holdover stanza finished Sunday (19) was $12,000 after same gross for initial week. Daydates 34th Street East.

Festival (Embassy) (546; $2-$2.50) — "Yesterday, Today, Tomorrow" (Embassy) (6th wk). Fifth round ended Monday (20) was $18,500 after $21,000 for fourth. Also at Tower East.

Fifth Ave. Cinema (Rugoff) (250; $1.25-$2)—"Open The Door And See All The People" (Indie) (4th wk). Third week ended yesterday (Tues.) was very lean $800 after $1,900 for second week.

Fine Arts (Davis) (468; $1.80-$2) —"La Bonne Soupe" (20th) (6th wk). Fifth session completed Saturday (18) was $7,000 after $8,000 for fourth week.

Guild (Guild) (450; $1-$1.75) — "Grand Olympics" (Times) opened yesterday (Tues.). In ahead, "Mistress For The Summer" (Indie) (4th wk-4 days) was $3,000 after $5,000 full third week. Moves to Embassy today (Wed.).

Little Carnegie (Landau) (520; $1.25-$2) — "Servant" (Landau) (6th wk). Fifth week completed Sunday (19) was $13,100 after $14,500 for fourth.

Murray Hill (Rugoff) (565; $1.50-$2) — "The Hustler" (20th) (reissue) (3d wk). Second week ends tomorrow (Thurs.) with $6,900 after $8,000 for first.

Paris (Pathe Cinema) (568; $1.50-$2)—"Bandits of Orgosolo" (Indie) (2d wk). Initial week ended Sunday (19) was $3,100.

Plaza (Lopert) (525; $1.50-$2)—"Modern Times" (Indie) (reissue). Initial week ending tomorrow (Thurs.) looks to reach $17,500. In ahead, "Great Dictator" (Indie) (7th wk) was $11,500. "Modern Times" is fourth in series of Chaplin pix.

Sutton (Rugoff) (561; $1.50-$2) —"Seven Days In May" (Par) (10th wk). The ninth session finished yesterday (Tues.) was $7,750, up from $7,500 for eighth week. Also at Criterion and on Showcase.

34th Street East (Reade) (456; $1.50-$2)—"Best Man" (UA) (3d wk). First holdover week finished Sunday (19) was $10,000 after same figure for initial week. Daydates with Coronet.

Toho Cinema (Toho) (299; $1.50-$2) — "Life of Oharu" (Toho) opened Monday (20). Last week, "Challenge to Live" (Toho) (2d week-6 days) was $3,800. Opener was $4,200.

Tower East (Loew) (588; $1.50-$2) — "Yesterday, Today, Tomorrow" (Embassy) (6th wk). Fifth round ended Monday (20) was $15,000 after $16,500 for fourth. Also at Festival.

Trans-Lux East (T-L) (600; $1.25-$2) — "The Silence" (Janus) (12th wk). The 11th session ended Sunday (19) was $5,000 after $5,500 for 10th week. Also at Rialto. "Third Secret" (20th) opens April 28.

Trans-Lux 52d St. (T-L) (540; $1.25-$2) — "Paris When It Sizzles" (Par) (3d wk). First holdover week ended yesterday (Tues.) was $9,500 after $12,000 opener. Also at Paramount and Showcase.

World (Perfecto) (390; 90-$1.50) — "Psychomania" (Vic) plus "Flamboyant Sex" (Ellis) (10th wk). Current week ending tomorrow (Thurs.) looks like $8,000 after $7,500 last week.

BOSTON

(Continued on page 10)

"Dime With Halo" (MGM). Hotsy $8,000. Last week, "Mr. Limpet" (WB) (2d wk), $7,000.

Memorial (RKO) (3,000; 90-$1.80) — "Captain Newman" (U) and "Dream Maker" (U) (5th wk). Fifth week began Friday (17). Fourth was stout $12,000.

Music Hall (Sack) (4,400; 90-$1.80) — "A Tiger Walks" (BV). Opened yesterday (Monday). Last week, rented to Metropolitan Opera Co. on four wall deal.

Orpheum (Loew) (2,900; 90-$1.80) — "Advance to Rear" (MGM). Good $9,000. Last week, "L-Shaped Room" (Col) and "Sundays and Cybele" (Indie) (reissues), $7,200.

Paramount (NET) (2,357; 90-$1.80)—"Seven Faces of Dr. Lao" (MGM) and "Girls at Sea" (Indie). Okay $9,000. Last week, "Night Fall" (MGM) (2d wk), $11,000.

Pilgrim (ATC) (1,909; 75-$1.25) —"Day of Stripper" (Indie) and "Girl of Night" (Indie). Good $7,000. Last week, "Girl in Trouble" (Indie) and "Love on Riviera" (Indie), $6,000.

Park Square Cinema (Indie) (300; $1.80) — "Connection" (Indie). Okay $3,000. Last week, "Billy Liar" (Cont) and "David and Lisa" (Cont) (subruns) (3d wk), $2,500.

Paris Cinema (Indie) (608; $1.75) —"America, America" (WB) (7th wk). Oke $3,400. Last week, $4,000.

Saxon (Sack) (1,100; $2-$3.90)—"Cardinal" (Col) (19th wk). Sock $18,000. Last week, same.

State (Trans-Lux) (730; $1-$1.50) —"Paris After Midnight" (Indie) and "Sun Place" (Indie). Hotsy $9,000. Last week, "Heavenly Bodies" (Indie) and "White Slavery" (Indie) (2d wk), $8,000.

West End Cinema (E. M. Loew) (500; 75-$1.50)—"War of Buttons" (Bronston). Perky $5,200. Last week, "Of Women and Pleasure" (Indie) (2d wk), $3,000.

LOS ANGELES

(Continued from page 8)

(7th wk). Nice $13,000. Last week, $12,000.

Cinerama (Pac) (915; $1.49-$3.50) —"Mad World" (UA) (24th wk). Big $25,000. Last week, $23,900.

Crest, Los Angeles, Loyola (State-Metropolitan-FWC) (750; 2,049; 1,298; $1-$1.49) — "Captain Newman, M.D." (U) and "Brass Bottle" (U) (2d wk). Soft $10,200.

El Rey, Hillstreet, Hollywood, Village (FWC-Metropolitan) (856; 2,752; 856; 1,535; $1-$1.49)—"Hud" (Par) and "L-Shaped Room" (Col) (reissues). Lush $25,000.

Fine Arts (FWC) (631; $1.50-$2) —"Best Man" (UA). Sock $10,000. Last week, "The Silence" (Jan) (10th wk), $3,500.

Four Star, Warren's (UATC-Metropolitan) (868; 1,757; $1-$2) — "Lilies of Field" (UA) and "America, America" (WB) (reissues). Hot $17,500. Last week, Four Star, "Sunday in N.Y." (MGM) (moveover), "The Prize" (MGM) (repeat) (1st wk), $1,300.

Egyptian (UATC) (1,392; $1.55)—"South Pacific" (20th) (reissue) (3d wk). Nice $12,000. Last week, $11,800.

Fox Wilshire (FWC) (1,990; $2-$2.40)—"Yesterday, Today, Tomorrow" (Emb) (5th wk). Loud $18,000. Last week, $21,000.

Hollywood Paramount (State) (1,468; $2-$2.40)—"Pink Panther" (UA) (5th wk). Tall $14,000. Last week, $16,000.

Iris, Lido (FWC) (825; 876; $1.25-$2)—"Federico Fellini's 8½" (Emb) and "The V.I.P.'s" (MGM) (reissues). Slender $7,500. Last week, Lido, "To Bed—Or Not to Bed" (Cont) (3d wk), $2,500.

Music Hall (Ros) (720; $2-$2.40) —"The Cardinal" (Col) (moveover). Okay $5,800.

Pantages (RKO) (1,512; $2.50-$5.50) — "Cleopatra" (20th) (44th wk). Bustling $18,600. Last week, $17,900.

Picfair, Vogue (State-FWC) (750; 810; $1.25-$2)—"Tom Jones" (UA) (17th wk). Torrid $18,000.

Warner Beverly (SW) (1,316; $1.65-$3.50)—"Becket" (Par) (5th wk). Fine $19,300. Last week, $19,100.

Warner Hollywood (SW) (1,291; $1.25-$2.80) — "How West Was Won" (MGM) (61st wk). Sizzling $22,800. Last week, $20,700.

Lewis Milestone purchased Gretchen Travis' novel, "She Fell From Thieves," for indie production and is negotiating with majors for filming under the title, "The Second Time Around."

'Newman' Moderate 10G, K.C.; 'Order' Healthy 2G, 'Jones' Rousing $7,000

Kansas City, April 21.

One new film and a major revival hit the firstrun marquees, with "Captain Newman" showing moderate strength in the Uptown and Granada, and "South Pacific" shaping solid for a returne at the Plaza. Kimo is continuing to score with "Tom Jones."

Paramount, looking to cash in on Oscar honors, moved in "Hud" for a return date. "Cleo" is closing strongly at the Capri while "It's a Mad World" stays stout in Empire and "Seven Days in May" holds up in a fourth frame at the Roxy, as does "Strangelove" in a fifth week at the Brookside. "Point of Order" bows in the art Rockhill and holds.

Estimates for This Week

Brookside (Fox Midwest-Nat. Gen.) (800; $1.50)—"Dr. Strangelove" (Col) (5th wk). Durable $4,000. Last week, $4,500.

Capri (Durwood) (1,260; $1.85-$3)—"Cleopatra" (20th) (23d wk). Satisfying $7,500 in final five days.

Crest, Riverside (Commonwealth) (900 cars each), Boulevard (Rosedale) (750 cars) — Playing subruns. Last week, with Granada "Horrors of Party Beach" (20th) and "Curse of the Living Dead" (20th), $12,500.

Empire (Durwood) (866; $1.50-$2.50)—"It's a Mad World" (UA) (18th wk). Muscular $12,000. Last week, $11,500.

Kimo (Dickinson) (504; $1.50-$2)—"Tom Jones" (UA) (9th wk). Excellent $7,000. Last week, same.

Paramount (Blank-UP) (1,900; $1.25-$1.50) — "Hud" (Par) (reissue) and "Paris Pick-Up" (Par). Looking for $6,000 or better. Last week, "Incredible Mr. Limpet" (WB) (3d wk), $5,500.

Plaza (FMW) (1,630; $1.25-$1.50) —"South Pacific" (20th) (revival). Heading toward $8,000 with three-a-day. Last week, "Paris When It Sizzles" (Par) (3d wk), $3,500 for five days.

Rockhill (Art Theatre Guild) (821; $1-$1.25)—"Point of Order" (Indie). Lively $2,000. Last week, "Trial & Error" (MGM) and "Kill or Cure" (MGM), $1,300.

Roxy (Durwood) (664; 75-$1.50) —"Seven Days in May" (Par) (4th wk). Smooth $7,000. Last week, $7,500.

Uptown, Granada (FMW) (2,043; 1,219; $1.25 - $1.50) — "Captain Newman M.D." (U). Moderately strong $10,000. Last week, Uptown only, "Tiger Walks" (BV) (3d wk), $3,500.

PHILADELPHIA

(Continued from page 9)

lence" (Janus) (3d wk). Trim $3,500. Last week, $6,500.

Midtown (Goldman) (1,200; 95-$2.50) — "Tom Jones" (UA) (8th wk). Lusty $24,000. Last week, $20,000.

Randolph (Goldman) (2,200; 95-$1.80) — "Dr Strangelove" (Col) (8th wk). Firm $6,900. Last week, $7,800.

Stanley (SW) (1,450; $2.50-$2.75) —"Fall of Roman Empire" (Par) (2d wk). Good $15,000. Last week, $19,000.

Stanton (SW) (1,483; 95-$1.80)—"Shock Treatment" (20th) (2d wk). Mild $7,500. Last week, $8,000.

Studio (Goldberg) (383; 95-$1.80) —"Sin on Beach" (Indie). Sunny $7,000. Last week, "Naked Island" (Indie) and "Nudes of All Nations" (Indie), $4,000.

Trans-Lux (T-L) (500; 95-$2)—"Charade" (U) (17th wk). So-so $3,800. Last week, $4,200.

World (Rugoff) (499; 95-$1.80)—"America, America" (WB) (6th wk). Fair $2,900. Last week, $3,400.

Yorktown (SW) (1,000; $1.49)—"8½" (Embassy) (reissue) (2d wk). Neat $4,200. Last week, $4,200.

Stanley's Brand New Unit

Pittsburgh, April 21.

Stanley Warner chain opened its first brand new house in over 20 years on Thurs. (9) in the North Hills Shopping Center. Called the North Hills, the theatre was built from the ground up and stresses comfort, the latest in projection, sound and airconditioning equipment.

There is a wall to wall screen that can show any existing process, including Cinerama. Seats are large, plush and have plenty of leg room. Sam Gould is the manager with B. F. Moore as the district zone manager in the area.

'Rear' Fat $13,000, Frisco, 'Sea' 4½G

San Francisco, April 21.

Two newcomers, "Advance to the Rear" and "My Enemy, the Sea," shape solid at the Paramount and Vogue, respectively. Latter film has strong Coast and local appeal. Oscar award is giving "Tom Jones" a healthy lift in its 18th week at the United Artists. "It's a Mad World," however, is the town's top coin getter in a 17th Orpheum frame.

Estimates for This Week

Alexandria (Un. Calif.) (1,444; $3-$4)—"Cleopatra" (20th) (43rd wk). Solid $11,000. Last week, same.

Bridge (Schwartz) (500; $1.50-$1.75)—"Purlie Victorious" (Hammer) (2d wk). Okay $1,500. Last week, $2,000.

Clay (Ros) (360; $1.75)—"Dr. Strangelove" (Col) (9th wk). Steady $3,600. Last week, $4,300.

Coronet (Un. Calif.) (1,250; $2-$2.50)—"The Pink Panther" (UA) (5th wk). Fast $11,500. Last week, $12,000.

El Rancho Drive-In (Affil.) (925 cars; $1.25 per person)—"Night Must Fall" (MGM). Light $3,000. Last week, "Incredible Mr. Limpet," $6,000.

Embassy (Dibble-McLean) (1,400; $1.49)—"Night Must Fall" (MGM) Fair $6,000. Last week, "Incredible Mr. Limpet," $5,000.

Golden Gate (RKO) (2,850; $1.25-$1.50)—"Captain Newman" (U) (5th wk). Down to $4,300. Last week, $6,500.

Metro (Un. Calif.) (1,000; $2-$2.50)—"The Silence" (Janus) (9th wk). Okay $3,000. Last week, $3,500.

Orpheum (Cinedome) (1,439; $1.50-$3.50)—"It's a Mad World" (UA) (17th wk). Great $30,000. Last week, $29,500.

Paramount (Par) (2,646; $1.50-$1.75)—"Advance to Rear" (MGM). Good 13,000. Last week, "Paris When It Sizzles," $12,500.

Presidio (Art Theatre Guild) (750; $1.25-$1.50)—"My Life to Live" (Union) (3d wk). Thin $1,800. Last week, $3,600.

St. Francis (Par) (1,400; $2)—"Sunday in New York" (MGM) (3d wk). Slipped to $7,500. Last week, $9,500.

Stage Door (A-R) (444; $1.75-$2) —"Dr. Strangelove" (Col) (9th wk). Steady $5,000. Last week, $7,000.

United Artists (No. Coast) (1,148; $2-$2.40)—"Tom Jones" (UA) (18th wk). Smash $14,000. Last week, $11,000.

Vogue (S.F. Theatres) (365; $2-$2.25)—"My Enemy, the Sea" (Ichikawa). Lively $4,500. Last week, "The Easy Life" (Emb), $2,200.

CHICAGO

(Continued from page 9)

Bright $18,500. Last week, "A Tiger Walks" (BV) and "Arizona Sheepdog" ((BV) (3d wk), $9,500.

State-Lake (B&K) (2,400; 90-$1.80)—"Pink Panther" (UA) (5th wk). Busy $14,000. Last week, $15,000.

Surf (H&E Balaban) (664; $1.50-$1.80)—"Point of Order" (Indie). Excellent $4,500. Last week, "And Suddenly It's Murder" (Cont) (2d wk), $2,500.

Todd (Todd) (1,089; $1.75-$3.50) —"Fall of Roman Empire" (Par) Tall $21,000. Last week, "Tom Jones" (UA) (17th wk), $14,500 for five days.

Town (Teitel) (640; $1.25-$1.80) —"Trial and Error" (Indie) and "Wrong Arm of Law" (Indie) (reissues). Nice $3,000. Last week, "Beat the Devil" (Indie) (reissue) (2d wk), $2,000.

United Artists (B&K) (1,700; 90-$1.80)—"Seven Days in May" (Par) (8th wk). Brisk $12,000. Last week, $14,000.

Woods (Essaness) (1,200; 90-$1.80)—"Night Must Fall" (MGM) (3d wk). Light $10,000. Last week, $13,000.

World (Teitel) (608; 90-$1.80)—"The Doll" (Indie) (3d wk). Lively $5,000. Last week, $6,000.

Allied to Detroit May 1

Detroit, April 21.

The spring board meeting of National Allied will be held at the Sheraton Cadillac Hotel in Detroit May 1-3, instead of in Pittsburgh May 22-4, as previously set.

No explanation for the switch given.

Gibes Anglo & Yank Showmen

Glasgow, April 21.

Tony Richardson, harvesting nothing but prizes for "Tom Jones" just now, hit out at both the British and American film industries in an interview on the film-clip program "Star Parade," televised by Tyne-Tees Television.

About London's Film Row (Wardour Street) he said: "They're a sour and seedy lot in Wardour Street. The cinema doesn't really interest them at all. All they are concerned about is making a quick buck."

About Hollywood, he declared: "They take you to the top of a high hill, and show you the world. But they won't let you make a film the way you want to make it. You've got to make it their way."

Cost of Distribution in Australia

Becomes Acutely Worrisome — Talk of One Big Sales Office and Other Economies

Sydney, April 21.

It is touted here in film circles that major distributors set up one key outlet for the distribution of films and front-of-house advertising. This as a curb upon rising overhead costs. Columbia and British Empire Films-Rank have been operating film dispatch under the one roof for some time now and other distributors are tipped to follow suit in the not too distant future on a New York say-so.

In New Zealand 20th-Fox and Metro joined forces about three years ago and it was figured these companies would do likewise in Aussie, but hook-up has been delayed on question of terms. However, with pic revenue downtrending here on an overall basis a link between these two majors is seen as an early possibility.

Skull practice here also sees distributors putting the shutters up on some unprofitable branch offices, gearing business through one outlet coast-to-coast, likewise as an operational costs saver. Distribs for a long span now have been handling their Tasmanian biz (a minor centre) through their Melbourne branches.

Exhibitors here say they would welcome one pickup centre for pix and front-of-house advertising, instead of presently having to make about eight calls in conjested areas of the keyers.

With a heavy staff reduction by the major U.S. distributors operating here, more economic moves are seen with the bow in of winter and the usual slump in cinema attendances in the suburbs, country and the drive-ins. Hardticket pix are doing well at city cinemas but run-of-the-mill pix are pulling nix here, hence the prediction here that major changes will be made in the distribution setup in the near future.

Dublin Festival Theatre Endangered by Owners Seeking a Dance Hall

Dublin, April 21.

Local authority here in Dublin has nixed project to convert Olympia Theatre, now shuttered and sold to London-Irish group, into a dance spot.

Buyers, headed by London terpery owner Tom Gorman, have lodged an appeal with Minister for Local Government to over-rule municipal decision. Gorman has said that his group will permit use of the building for Dublin Theatre Festival this year, and Fest group has purchased seating and theatre fittings which remain in the building.

AUSTRIA & HUNGARY UNITED–VIA CONCERTS

Vienna, April 21.

Austria and Hungary are geting together again, at least musically. Partial lift of the iron curtain resulted in the first folk music exchange—a conceret by the Austrian-founded Tamburizza Ensemble at Kophaza, near Sopron, Hungary.

A Croatian tambuizza ensemble will reciprocate with a concert in the Austrian Burgeland (formerly Hungarian territory.)

Tamburizza? It's a Croatian guitar-like instrument.

Irish Hail Bard, Indirect

Dublin, April 21.

Opera "Otello" by Verdi will be main Irish tribute to 400th anniversary of William Shakespeare's birth. Piece will top Dublin Grand Opera season opening May 18 with Italian soprano Virginia Zeani singing Desdemona role.

Season will star about 20 Italian singers and works on sked are "Turandot," "Andrea Chenier," "La Traviata" and "La Boheme."

Event gets subsidy from Italian government and also from Irish official funds.

Seymour Mayer On Japanese Mkt.

Tokyo, April 21.

Even if Japan becomes a free market, as expected in July, Metro will not substantially step up its number of imports, according to Seymour R. Mayer, first v.p. of Loew's International.

Mayer said the company expects to release 19 new pictures here during the current fiscal, the same number as the last fiscal annum under the import license restrictions. (With 19 import licenses, Metro and Warner had more than the other U.S. distribs.) In addition, Mayer said, MGM will place a trio of re-releases in the market during the period—"Quo Vadis," "Seven Brides for Seven Brothers" and "Never So Few," the latter aimed at cashing in on the big popularity here of Steve Mc Queen.

Mayer was here for a week setting releases through the yearend. He also visited Hong Kong and Manila on his territorial swing.

The exec noted with pleasure that Toto is setting up a circuit of four 70m houses in Tokyo for day-dating roadshows, on the order of the splash four-theatre showcasing by the Shochiku and Tokyu circuits, which have found success in recent years with action and other mass-appeal fare at popular prices. Roadshowing in single houses will also be retained, of course.

Mayer noted too that "How the West Was Won," which played longrun Cinerama dates in Tokyo, Osaka and Fukuoka, will be released in 70m roadshows in July in other keys followed by general releases in all cities.

He cited too that Metro will give comedies another try in this market, where they have not found big favor before. Mayor cited "Sunday in New York," "Wheeler Dealers" and "Ticklish Affair" on the schedule "just to see if they can go here."

Mayer was supposed to meet Loew's Inc. prez Robert H. O'Brien and Loew's International prez Maurice Silverstein here, but they were detained in England and were to go directly to Australia.

Foreman to N.Y.

London, April 21.

Carl Foreman, following a swift trip to Kenya, where he is overseeing the production of "Born Free," returned to London last Saturday and next day (19) planed to Hollywood. There he celebrated his daughter's birthday.

Tomorrow (Wed.) he heads for New York for huddles over the pic with Columbia Pictures' Abe Schneider and Leo Jaffe.

FORMOSA FILM FEST DELAYED BY POLITICS

Tokyo, April 21.

Japanese toppers are making preparations for full participation in the 11th Asian Film Festival, to be held this year in Taipei. Fest was postponed to June 15-19 from the identical dates in April.

Delay came about because of political embroilment involving Formosa and Japan after a would-be Red Chinese defector was turned over to the Communist Chinese by the Japanese government.

The incident ignited anti-Japanese demonstrations on Formosa and a ban of Japanese products on that island stronghold. With that atmosphere, the Japanese film industry figured to have only token representation at the film fest, had it been held when originally scheduled.

But since Japan is the backbone of the Asian picture industries, it was decided to postpone the event. Relations between the two nations show signs of becoming less heated and are expected to permit a more favorable climate for Japanese film execs and their pictures by the time of the rescheduled fest. In addition to Japan and Formosa, participating countries will be Hong Kong, the Philippines, Republic of Korea, Malaysia, Indonesia and Thailand.

Simone Signoret Exits 'Zorba the Greek,' Sez 'It Didn't Work Out'

Paris, April 21.

Simone Signoret made it clear that her leaving the cast of "Zorba the Greek" (20th) was completely amicable and she parted with reluctance and is still friends with producer-director-writer Michael Cacoyannis.

"It was just one of those things," said she, where a role was tempered by the love of the book and a chance to do one of the characters. Though she had some misgivings, since it was the part of a rather frilly, oldish, leftover French courtesan in Greece, the isle of Crete exactly, he felt she would like to try it.

She also was an admirer of Greek director Cacoyannis and was ready for an English-speaking role. So off she went to Crete for tests and also, since the part was not too big, to be on call there for her episodic appearances.

She opined it was a sad solution but it was something she decided quickly. It was no use trying to force something that was not at once forthcoming in her early tests and scenes. Miss Signoret firmed it was hard to leave and she stayed a few days extra to say goodbye to everybody.

Pic is based on the Niko Kazantsakis novel and deals with a young, too-intellectualized Englishman (Alan Bates) initiated into life by a goat-like older man, Zorba (Anthony Quinn). Irene Papas also stars.

Film, originally a United Artists project, was taken over by 20th Fox. Several actresses have been asked to come to Crete for tests to fill the role vacated by Miss Signoret. Latter also pointed out that since it was something she really wanted, and it did not work out, she had decided to take no renumeration for her services. Her next project, and first truly American pic role is in Stanley Kramer's "Ship of Fools," which begins in June.

Indie German Preds. Like James Chase

Frankfurt, April 21.

American thriller writer James Hadley Chase is becoming a big favorite with indie German producers. Currently, there are three German productions in the works based on his bestsellers.

In Venice, there's a German-French coproduction filming "Mission to Venice" (retitled "Murder on the Grand Canal") starring Karin Baal, Sean Flynn and Hannes Messemer.

In Hamburg the book "Choose or Die" is being filmed with Hildegard Neff in the lead, under the German title "Waiting Room for Eternity."

And in Hongkong, Wolfgang Hartwig is making "A Coffin from Hongkong."

Spain's Valladolid Film Week Had A Busy Schedule, Debating Forum For Catholic Viewpoint on Films

Vallodolid, April 21.

The ninth annual Valladolid film week of religious and human values opened last week with only two religious films in contest for the Golden Labrador and 11 in the human values race for the Golden Sheaf of Wheat.

Valladolid fest has acquired some definite characteristics over the years. One, is the loyal support it gets from local filmgoers. As in the past, the film meet is SRO for every night session; almost filled for the evening sessions and about three-quarters of the Avenida Cine seating capacity occupied for afternoon retrospective screenings.

Audience participation has become a rule of thumb. Spectators applaud or stomp to express reactions at each session, rarely, as happened with the Swedish tinter "Brief Summer," does the audience exit without a vocal judgment. The beautifully-photographed film story of uninhibited summertime amour in the far north ended in uncertain silence.

Film week curtain raiser, "Train Halt at Marienborn," a German coproduction starring Jose Ferrer, Sean Flynn and Nicole Courcel registered the first "pateo" (feet stamping protest), while out-of-competition "Night Train" (Poland), "I Basilischi" (Italy) and "This Sporting Life" (Britain) drew solid applause in early screenings.

Heavy Sked

Daily round of activities is prodigous. Day begins with a.m. film conversations and continues well past midnight with three screenings of films in an out of contest, as well as several retrospective cycles, this year embracing Carl Dryer and Leo Jannon.

Year after year, delegates to Valladolid from many parts of Spain and Europe ask each other why the film week fails to progress from the stable plateau it has reached to become a major international motion picture gathering as the only film event of its kind on the annual festival calendar.

Partial selection of films discourages world-wide interest. Pix have already been in release or screened at other festivals, producers of films entered rarely show since films are submitted by Spanish distributors seeking an extra dubbing license and a national exploitation peg the Valladolid awards provide, Scope is consequently reduced to the Spanish scene.

Further explanation of Valladolid's status quo is provided by the film conversations, where young Catholic priests and lay delegates contend that the hierarchy is moving all too slowly in adopting specific film policies and attitudes needed to win over modern moviegoers for more positive moral and religious values on the screen.

Under the general theme of "Religion in Motion Pictures," conversation panelists and floor debaters, representing the film specialists within the Catholic Church, voiced regret that Vatican pro-cinema directives in recent years have not reduced hostile distrust of the film medium in high church circles.

In the opening seminar, presided over by Rev. Jos Burvenich of Belgium, Catholic screen writer Charles Ford historically traced the positive, but belated steps taken on a Papal level to achieve a benevolent recognition of motion pictures as a fundamental in-

(Continued on page 13)

Dancing in Streets

Vienna, April 21.

On May 23, to celebrate the opening of the annual music festivals by the President of the Republic, traffic will be stopped between 9-11 p.m. and public dancing will be permitted to the music of 87 combos on most main streets.

Robert Stolz's "Spring Parade" will be given in the Volksopera, Franz Lehar's "Count of Luxembourg" in the Theatre au der Wien.

Osaka Festival's Tokyo Repeaters

Tokyo, April 21.

All of the major foreign groups appearing at the Seventh Osaka International Festival, April 11-May 7, will also give performances in Tokyo.

Cappella Coloniensis of the West German Broadcasting Corp., will give Tokyo concerts on May 6 and May 8 at the Metropolitan Festival Hall. The group of 40 musicians will play works by Telemann, Vivaldi, Handel, Johann Christian Bach, Sebastian Bach and Mozart.

Yugoslav Ballet from Belgrade will perform four times in Tokyo April 29-30 and May 3-4 at the same hall. Accompanied by the Tokyo Philharmonic, the company's program will be selected from "The Miraculous Mandarin," "Swan Lake," "Romeo and Juliet" and "Symphonie."

State Symphony of the USSR and the Paris Conservatoire Orch will give five concerts each. The Russians will be at the Metropolitan Festival Hall April 25-May 2. The French orch will be at the same hall May 7-11.

Theatre Of the Absurd In 'Pendulum,' Comedy Nearing End of Prod.

London, April 21.

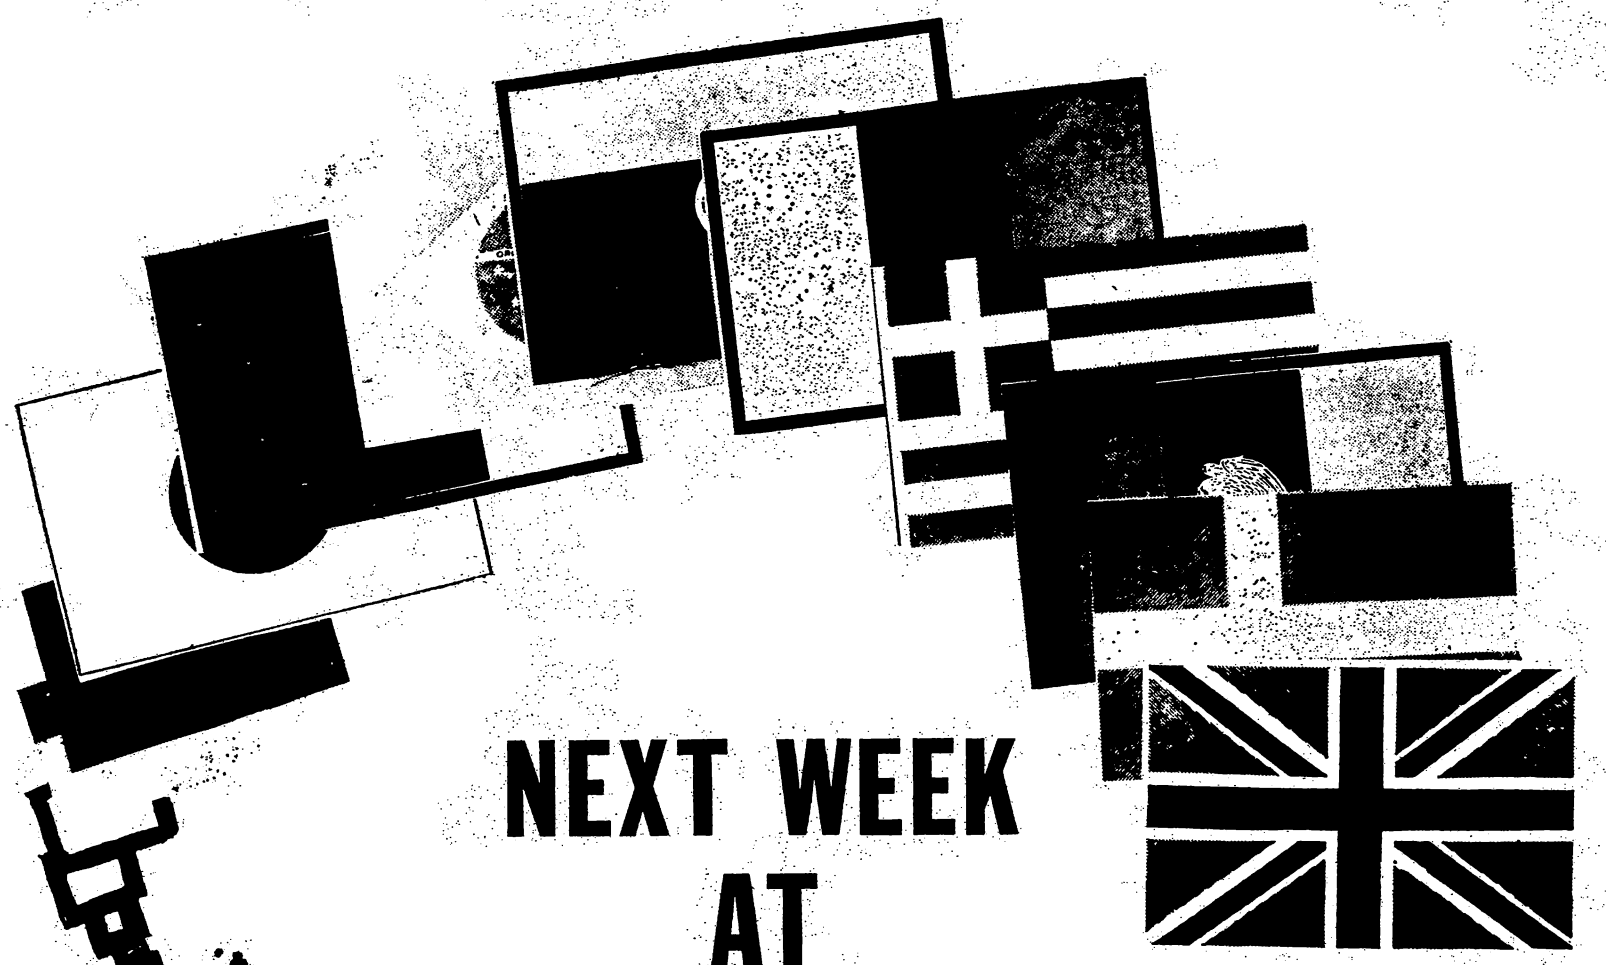
The wind of change, which has been blowing hot and cold through the West End theatre for the last decade, is now, apparently, penetrating British film studios. For the first time, a prominent example of what is commonly known as the Theatre of the Absurd is forming the basis of a new British picture. Interestingly, this is being financed by an American major.

Film in question is "One Way Pendulum," based on N.F. Simpson's comedy which first started out as an experimental presentation at the Royal Court Theatre, and subsequently had a successful West End run at the Criterion. It was later staged off-Broadway.

The pic project is under the Woodfall Films banner (the Tony Richardson company currently riding high with "Tom Jones") and is being produced by Michael Deeley and directed by Peter Yates. Lead roles are portrayed by Eric Sykes, Julia Foster, Jonathan Miller, George Cole and Mona Washbourne.

It is being produced for world release through United Artists, which, it is understood, has advanced the entire budget of around $150,000. Simpson wrote the screenplay from his own stage original, and has widened the background to the extent that about 20% of the five-week schedule was on exterior locations in and around London.

Although acknowledging that the project took a year or so to promote, both producer Deeley and director Yates are confident that the pic will get top release billing on a major British circuit. In spite of any labels that may have been attached to the stage version, they insist they are making a comedy film which should command wide popular acceptance.



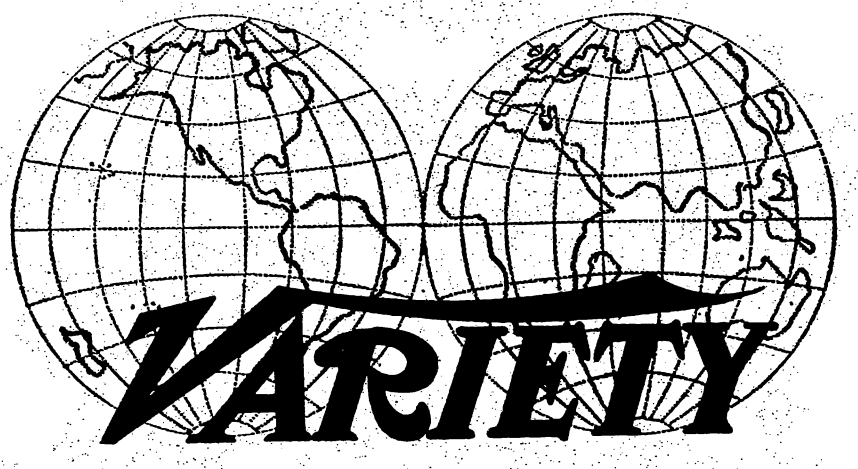
Pic started its final week of studio interiors yesterday (Mon.).

NOT FOR ZEALANDERS IS 'CHRISTINE KEELER'

Auckland, April 14.

D. C. McIntosh, chief New Zealand film censor, has banned the screening of "the Christine Keeler Affair" throughout the Dominion of New Zealand. He simply ruled that the Danish-made feature was opposed to public order and decency.

"Keeler" was given the greenlight in Australia following heavy cuts and an "adults only" edict No theatre has yet been set here and pic may stay on the ice for a term.



NEXT WEEK AT CANNES, FRANCE

The flags will flap in the sea breezes, the lights will play and the cameras will snap the producers, directors, writers, critics, actors and visiting film importers. It will be a time to see again what the international market promises the box office. In short, there begins the first of the great summer festivals of the summer of 1964.

To this important marketplace, as is the annual custom, will go the indispensable directory of titles and talent, of trade insights and buyer-seller aids.

THE SEVENTH ANNUAL INTERNATIONAL FILM EDITION OF

Still Time to Reserve and Insert Your Advertising Announcement.
But Act at Once. Telephone or Telegraph. Time Is of the Essence.

NEW YORK 10036	LONDON S.W.1	PARIS	ROME 3	TOKYO	BERLIN	MADRID 16
154 West 46th St.	49 St. James's St. Piccadilly	80 Ave. de Neuilly Neuilly-sur-Seine	Via Sardegna 43	Press Club	Enzian Strasse 1 Lichterfelde, West Germany	Avda. de la Habana 86

International Sound Track

London

Henry Geddes has resigned his membership of the Federation of British Film Makers because of his appointment as executive producer of the Children's Film Foundation. Le Vien Films, however, which has just completed "The Finest Hours," has joined the Federation ranks . . . Director Joseph Losey went to Paris for the triple openings of "The Servant." The pic was also shown at a gala performance in aid of the Association de la Critique Francais du Cinema et Television . . . Otto Preminger's "The Cardinal" has just opened engagements in Dublin and Glasgow. At the Metropole, Dublin, the first week's gross is reported to have topped the "Lawrence of Arabia" take . . . Plastic eyes by Metro on posters advertising "Children of the Damned" started to disappear from the hoardings within a few hours of being posted. They were glued on to the posters to highlight the eeriness of the children . . . Art directors have formed their own guild, known as the Guild of Film Art Directors. Pamela Alcott, of the Pinewood Art Department library, is assistant secretary and Maurice Carter has been named vice chairman . . . German-born Gert Frobe, a star on the Continent for some 20 years, is to play the title role in the Ian Fleming thriller "Goldfinger," now in production at Pinewood for release through United Artists. It will be his first English-language role.

Paris

Yank Eddie Constantine, who became a Continental star in G-Man parody pix here, doing a change via a situation comedy opposite Michele Morgan to be directed by Gerard Oury, to wit, "La Belle Et La Brute), with Constantine playing a U.S. officer . . . Big scale costumer "Angelique," being produced by Francis Cosne, will have several sequels . . . A firstrun house inaugurating on Ingmar Bergman week with seven pix of the Swedish filmmaker being shown each day for a week. If it goes it will be repeated for another week and as long as it pays off. Most items are early ones. His "The Silence" got fine reviews and is doing well here . . . Terence Young, after his two hit James Bond pix in Britain, "Dr. No" and "To Russia With Love" (UA), prepping part of an international sketch pic "Cold War," a John Wayne action pic and the 16th century picaresque tale of a femme's adventures "Moll Flanders." He dreams of Liz Taylor or Shirley MacLaine for the role . . . Robert Aldrich's "Four for Texas" (WB) opening in seven firstrun houses with oke biz seemingly in store . . . A 20-year-old script girl, Francine Vainer, was pressed into service as actress when a suitable girl could not be found for Antoine D'Ormesson's "Les Faux Pas" (The Mistakes). Since pic is being made as it goes along, with many story changes, Miss Vainer's part grew till she now is as important as stars Jean-Claude Pascal and Dominique Paturel. She still doubles on script . . . "The Longest Day" (20th) had a firstrun Paris gross of $1,618,342 in 82 weeks while "West Side Story" (UA), in only one small house, in 109 weeks has taken in $1,515,000 . . . A recent study shows that 9% of the people living in Paris and its suburbs never go to see films . . . Stage actress Elvire Popesco comes back to films in Yves Allegret's new pic about a mother who uses her son for robbing and killing purposes. Son will be played by Michel Serrault.

Rome

Norman Wooland plays Saul in DePaolis Film's "Saul and David" currently sole tenant at Cinecitta' Studios . . . Pia Lindstrom set for two pix in week: "Zorba the Greek" and "Marriage, Italian Style," latter current in Naples under Vittorio DeSica's direction . . . Joseph C. Glotz, Embassy Pictures sales exec, off to Athens and Mid-East on sales tour . . . Aldo Pugliosi, discovered by Pietro Germi for "Seduced and Abandoned," signed with Marilu Tolo for Ponti-Levine pic, "Marriage, Italian Style" . . . Hungarian Film Week in for three shows at Fiammetta Theatre, with Unitalia hosting affair on reciprocal deal with curtain visitors.

"Mondo Nudo" (Naked World) released by Fida Film seized by court at Lodi, Italy because of its alleged "eroticism" . . . Princess Soraya of Iran perfecting her English and role in upcoming "The Secret" under coach Rhodelle Heller . . . Edward Dein scouting local locations for pic in mind . . . Jorgen Bitsch, Danish picmaker to Congo for pic filming o.o. . . . George Cukor given mass Rome press turnout by Warner Brothers even though "My Fair Lady" can't get Italo release before Dec. 1, 1964: the Italo version of stage play may still be running until then . . . Stewart Granger here for pic conferences . . . Akim Tamiroff left town . . . Anton Karas here for pic scoring stint, staying at Hilton.

Madrid

Spain seat on the Cannes Film Festival jury goes to Spanish ASCAP chief Joaquin Calvo Sotelo . . . Uniespana is sending "Nina de luto" (Girl in Mourning) to compete at Cannes . . . Filming of "Treasure of the Amazons," a Produsa coproduction, continued normally under the direction of Eugenio Martin on Brazilian locations during recent government upheavel . . . "This Sporting Life" is a last-minute entry at Valladolid, adding England to the dozen nations in contest . . . "Miss Jude" will locate on the Costa Brava instead of Minorca Island, according to producer Alan Brown, who sends the U feature before cameras first week in May. Richard Thorpe directs . . . Christian Jacques attended opening of "The Black Tulip," Alain Delon-starrer that marks first Spanish preem in 70m, though Agata Films coproduced with France . . . Gijon's mid-summer Festival of Children's Films broadens this year to include specialized tv fare for youngsters . . . Security producers Les Sansom and Bernie Glasser will roll "Crack in the Earth" on April 21 with two units. Janette Scott and Kieron Moore have starring roles under Andrew Marton's direction . . . Ministry of Information opened award competition of $25,000 for a film feature and $5,000 for a film script that best promotes Spain's booming tourist trade . . . David Lean, who spent months in Andalucia and Almeria filming "Lawrence of Arabia," recently scouted norther Spanish locations (Leon, Asturias) for the Carlo Ponti production, "Dr. Zhivago" . . . Backing Mel Ferrer in his title role on "Monsieur La Salle" are Spanish stars Vicente Para, Fernando Rey, Fernando Cebrian, Amelia Latorre, Mabel Karr, Endique Diosado and Roberto Camardiel with Luis Amadori helming.

Berlin

"Cleopatra" (20th) now in its sixth month at Delphi Palast. After 20 weeks the take amounted to about $160,000 . . . Frank Wisbar's "Durchbruch Lok 234" was Germany's feature entry at Buenos Aires Film Fest. Pic depicts the flight of East Germans into West Berlin based on authentic happenings . . . Michael Pfleghar's "The Dead One of Beverly Hills," Germany's entry at upcoming Cannes Festival, had its German preem April 3 . . . Eugen York, of whom nothing had been heard for quite some time, is directing "Nebelmoerder" (Murderers in the Fog) for Nora release in Baden-Baden . . . Melodie-Film is prepping filmization of "Uncle Tom's Hut" which Geza von Radvanyi will direct . . . Lineup of reissues includes such pix as Warners' "Rio Bravo," Metro's "Blackboard Jungle" and Disney's "Bambi" . . . Hans Helmut Kirst's novel, "Night of the Generals," reportedly was purchased for filming by Anatole Litvak and Sam Spiegel . . . Rudi Flatow's RCF-Film which successfully dedicates itself to the production of short and documentary pix observed its 10th anni . . . Actor Paul Dahlke celebrated his 60th birthday . . . The new managing committee of SPIO, top organization of West German film industry, includes the name of American Leon Feldun, United Artists manager for Germany. Feldun and Walter Proehl (Munich) take care of SPIO's distribution matters.

OPERETTA FILM RIGHTS FOR SCANDIA ONLY

Copenhagen, April 21.

Merry Film, Nordisk Film and indie producer and top-drawer comedian Dirch Passer have bought the film rights of the Austrian operetta "Summer in Tyrol" from the book's author Eric Charell, but the film rights are only for Scandinavian countries.

"Summer in Tyrol" will be shot in and around Salzkammergut in the Alps in June by an all-Danish cast and camera crew. The film will be in color, and the director will be Erik Balling of Nordisk Film.

Religious Fest

Continued from page 11

fluence in modern society and as "an insuperable instrument of education and culture."

In the battle for man's mind and soul, Rev. John Burke, International Catholic Film Office (OCIC) delegate to Valladolid, cited pix like "Diary of a Country Priest," "Rome, Open City" and "On the Waterfront" as evidence that the Church has something to say and the courage to say it, while mentioning such films as "Going My Way," "Bells of St. Mary," "St. Francis of Assisi" and the biblicals as inocuous, film fare that does not express Catholic concern with advancing the divine word in film production, and among Christian filmgoers.

Little Influence on Pix

The Church, Rev. Burke stated, has avoided the problem film and its concurrent moral issues while displaying a bit more tolerance for those entertainment films paying a conventional tribute to Christian thought or personalities. As a result, Catholic cinetastes have contributed little influence in motion pictures during the past 25 years of OCIC existence.

Speakers and delegates felt the Vatican Council's schema on communications media justified a more direct and tolerant approach to the cinema, but some thought the Council did not sufficiently delineate practical measures to achieve a more fruitful involvement.

Major resistance to Vatican film pronouncements, according to several young members of Catholic orders, comes from church dignitaries who have traditionally held motion pictures suspect as a seven-headed source of peril to man's soul.

Opinions Vary

Illustrating the divergence of opinion within the Church on motion pictures was the widely-commented statement issued by the Archbishop of Valladolid in advance of film week, recalling vigorous prohibitions for diocese clergymen to enter local cinemas, including those which show films recommended for spiritual or religious values, and limiting film-viewing to Catholic film halls in religious colleges, schools and parochial buildings.

Statement exceptionally granted clergy the right to attend only the religious pix screened during the film week. Visiting priests, authorized to attend, were permitted to attend all screenings, previously approved by official censors.

Finally, the Archbishop counseled clergymen as a general rule to desist from any of the film week's late film sessions.

Valladolid has the potential of becoming a vast forum for the clarification of Christian and Catholic relationships with the world of cinema. The film week could also serve as a springboard for film-making more closely identified with moral and religious themes. But without the approval and support of the Church fathers, Valladolid will remain a limited, but lively assembly of religious film specialists dedicated to the task of extricating moral values and positions from modern films, where the Church sees little evidence of God and religion.

'Yeah, Yeah, Yeah'

London, April 21.

Brian Epstein, manager of The Beatles, was paying his first visit to the 21 Club in Mayfair as guest of the VARIETY man in London.

As he left the restaurant the waiters, in an unrehearsed scene, chanted in unison, "Yeah, Yeah, Yeah."

Gloria Films of Denmark Absorbs Local Eagle-Lion Distribution

Copenhagen, April 21.

As of May 1, Gloria Film Inc. of Denmark swallows up the Eagle-Lion Inc. that has existed in this country as an independent release company since 1945, when it was founded as a Danish outlet for most of the films produced in England by the J. Arthur Rank organization.

Gloria Film is under the management of Tage Rasmussen. It distributes all Walt Disney product in Denmark along with such art films as the Japanese "Harakiri" and similar production. Rasmussen is a canny bidder.

In the future Gloria Film will distribute the British films that remained the specialty of Eagle-Lion under its 19 years management by Ingolf Madsen who now retires entirely from the film scene. At the same time, Gloria Film has also signed with Samuel Bronston Productions of Madrid for Danish distribution of Bronston recent films, "Fall of the Roman Empire" and "Circus World."

Japan's Film Export Goal Is $4,650,000

Tokyo, April 14.

Target for Japan's export earnings in new fiscal year, which began April 1 was set at $4,650,000 by the Export Council's Motion Picture Committee of the Ministry of International Trade and Industry (MITI).

Export earnings in fiscal annum just concluded was reported as $3,935,439, a record high, but still below expectations. Target for the past year was $4,650,000.

Philipsen Joins Danish TV To Roll a Theatrical Film On Danes' Defeat in 1864

Copenhagen, April 21.

Biggest production of the season in the Kingdom of Denmark will be Preben Philipsen's "Time," based on a Danish novel by Herman Bang. A script, written by Knud Leif Thomsen, was originally bought by Palladium for production, but Palladium shelved the entire thing when Danish State TV started doing a teleplay on "Time."

"Time" takes place in 1864, the year of a Danish-Prussian war that ended in Danish defeat. Television here wanted to commemorate the centenial but found the undertaking too difficult which brought Preben Philipsen into the picture.

Philipsen, who makes most of his money making German films, likes to do an occasional prestige picture in his own country. Shooting has started under the direction of Knud Leif Thomsen and with Lone Hertz, a leading Danish character actress and only a recent graduate from the pin-up stage, in the title role.

KARMARK TO PARIS FOR FUTURE FILMS

Copenhagen, April 14.

Hot on the heels of Bent Christensen, regarded as Denmark's film leader, Henning Karmark of the ASA enterprises has left Denmark for good. He is heading for Southern France where he plans to live in the future. And he hopes to stay in the film business. One of his first enterprises will be production of tele films just outside Nice.

With another Danish show biz ace, Aage Stentoft, who now lives as an expatriate in Spain, Karmark expects to be doing much film work in the future. Karmark stated he did not run away from the burden of personal taxes since he had taken such a loss on his crop of films during the last two years.

But Denmark, the filmmaker stated, has no healthy working climate for a film industry right now, and maybe it is not all the fault of the amusement tax. Denmark's output of feature films has been an average of 20 a year, possibly too many for a country of only about 4,000,000 population.

Two years ago, Karmark stepped down as chairman of his own ASA distribution company, but he remains on the board.

British Film Institute Picks Stanley Reed

London, April 21.

Stanley Reed, secretary and deputy director of the British Film Institute, has been named to succeed James Quinn as director, effective next July 1. Quinn disclosed his resignation some weeks ago.

Reed, who was chosen from 80 applicants, has been actively concerned in developing the Institute's work in film appreciation, has written and lectured widely on the cinema. He also has broadcast frequently on radio and tv.

Ebbe Langberg Film

Copenhagen, April 21.

Indie producer and actor Ebbe Langberg, perhaps Denmark's most popular young film hero, will soon start shooting a film version of Mogens Brandt's Danish crime comedy "Curtains Up For Murder."

10 More Films Released In France During 1st 3 Mos. Than Last Yr.

Paris, April 14.

First three months this year saw 19 films getting underway here, which is about the same as last year. The use of color and scope, one and seven each, also was unchanged with coproductions for about one-third of the total.

Some 91 pix got firstrun airings during this period, 10 more than 1963, with 57 dubbed films, 21 Yank and 23 French and French majority coproductions.

Pix grosses stayed about equal to last year, with 14 films doing more than 75,000 admissions at firstruns, which usually sets the overall pace. These pix were nine French majority coproductions, four American entries and one Italian.

U.S. pix were "Rampage" (Par), "The Victors" (Col), "McLintock" (UA) and "Johnny Cool" (UA). French items had 20th-Fox bankrolled, via Belstar, "La Bonne Soupe," Luis Bunuel's "Le Journal D'Une Femme De Chambre," also taken for distrib by 20th as well as another acquisition by the same company, "Les Parapluies de Cherbourg" (The Umbrellas of Cherbourg). There were also more foreign pix released in subtitled versions.

'ST. JOAN' APPLAUDED BY PARIS CRITICS

Paris, April 21.

Plays by the late George Bernard Shaw are done fairly often here, but the first version of "Saint Joan," presented since the war, looks to be one of the most successful Shavian entries in some time. At the Montparnasse Theatre, it should finish the season easily and maybe spill over into the next.

Unskimpingly produced by Gueville Productions and G. Herbert, it stars Daniele Delorme who gives the saint a mixture of girlish stubborness, deep unyielding belief and dash. Critics all concurred on the play's fine production and ensemble acting with particular prise for Miss Delorme, as well as Pierre Franck's knowing staging and the gothic sets of Pierre Simonini.

Big nut of about $100,000 will be hard to cover due to its late season start and small $3.50 top. This is Miss Delorme's first stage appearance in two seasons. New adaptation by Georges Neveux also helped.

Capetown's Competition

Capetown, April 21.

A prize of $2,788.25 is being offered in an "art film" competition organized by the Department of Education, Arts & Science's National Advisory Council for Adult Education in South Africa.

There is no entry fee and the competition will be in three sections—narrative and documentary pictures—and they can be black and white or color, silent or sound, and 16 or 35m.

A 'Trailer' For Joe Levine

'Commercials' From Exhibitor Leaders of Two Theatreowning Trade Assns.

By JOHN H. STEMBLER
(President, Theatre Owners of America)

What this industry needs is more Joe Levines.

Mr. Levine, I am proud to say, started in the motion picture industry as an exhibitor, with a single theatre in New Haven. I like to believe that it was this grassroots beginning that gave Levine his feeling for what the public wants in the way of motion picture entertainment.

I believe, too, that his experience in exhibition made him aware of the exhibitor's need for pre-sold product. In these days of lightning communication, coast-to-coast, it is possible to pre-sell a motion picture nationally more effectively than ever before. But this takes effort and money and, most of all, daring—the willingness to gamble a certain amount of money in order to make many times that amount.

I am not certain that "gamble" is the right word—certainly the recognition that a substantial money investment is required to pre-sell a motion picture thoroughly can hardly be termed a gamble. But let's say that it requires daring to back this recognition with cold, hard cash without any certainty of return.

It took time, effort and—most of all—money to make "Hercules" an unprecedented success. Before the picture came to our theatres, it was pre-sold to everyone in the land. We all know, because it has become industry legend, that many times more money went into the pre-selling of "Hercules" than into its production.

"Hercules" could have fallen flat on its face. There is never any guarantee that the public will buy any picture, no matter how much it is advertised in advance of showing. But the man who distributes a motion picture has a responsibility to himself, his company and his customers to go all out in pre-selling it—really all-out, in national publication, the trades, newspapers, and on tv and radio—not just to go through the motions.

If the picture is worth making, it is worth pre-selling. If it is worth pre-selling, it is worth the most honest, most thorough pre-selling job possible. This is a lesson the great showmen of America have been teaching us for a century—from P. T. Barnum through Cecil B. De Mille through Mike Todd and Joseph E. Levine.

Levine is carrying on a unique and great tradition in fathoming what the public wants in the way of entertainment and then shouting to the hemispheres that he's got it. He has demonstrated that he understands the exhibitor's needs for more quality product. I know he is making every effort to see that more fine motion pictures are delivered to our screens—no matter where they are made, or who makes them.

In recent years, Levine has contributed mightily toward broadening the horizons of American moviegoers through his release of pictures created by international talents. He has pre-sold these attractions as if they were money-in-the-bank epics—and a number of them turned out to be money in the bank for many exhibitors.

Not every picture released by Joe Levine is automatically sure of success, but, at the very least, every one gets the showman's try, and his track record is impressive.

Because there is a great need in our industry at this time of showmen like Mr. Levine, we can expect many more like him in the future. Let us hope they show up in great numbers soon.

As I said, what this industry needs is more Joe Levines.

By JACK ARMSTRONG
(President, Allied States)

"There isn't a theatre in the world where a good, firstrate motion picture can't play!"

The showman who said that was Joseph E. Levine, president of Embassy Pictures, who insists that pictures must be thoroughly merchandised to exploit their maximum potentials at the boxoffices. Behind Levine's statement is an object lesson for every exhibitor.

American motion picture exhibitors, faced, over the past decade, with meeting the changing desires and needs of their public for entertainment, have, perhaps, as Levine holds, placed undue emphasis on the "product shortage" and given too little attention to exploiting those pictures that are available to them.

Certainly exhibition has been confronted with a product shortage but, as Levine points out, Hollywood's curtailed production activities have driven out the mediocre. Moreover, the need for product has made exhibitors more receptive to imported pictures of high quality. Needless to say, the public is accepting pictures of quality, both Hollywood and foreign-made, in great numbers.

Behind every successful motion picture today is a great deal of promotional effort. In a word, "showmanship." To speak of showmanship necessarily is to speak of Joseph E. Levine.

It is readily understandable why we, of National Allied, named Joseph E. Levine "Producer of the Year" in 1962, and why he has been cited many times by other organizations and civic officials for his outstanding contributions to the motion picture industry. Levine is a man of action. He is indeed "Mr. Showman" himself, as his record indicates.

When exhibitors look at the overall industry picture in the past five years alone, they recognize a singular driving force in Levine's unending effort to attract more audiences into theatres. While some others contract their efforts, Levine continues to expand his horizons in the fields of production, distribution and exhibition.

Backing every Levine project is a whirlwind of promotional excitement that sweeps up not only the general public, but the rest of the industry as well.

A real producer, in every sense of the word, Levine is doubtlessly the strongest, hottest, most dynamic personality on the international motion picture scene today. To the exhibitor, he has brought a wider variety of films, foreign and domestic, of all types, to offer the moviegoing public. He speaks our language, whatever facet of this industry we are in, the language of showmanship.

Presidents Anonymous

By LEONARD LIGHTSTONE
(Executive V.P., Embassy Pictures)

Success is many things to many people. It can be riches or fame. It can be connections or the courage of your convictions. It can be the ability to look at the past as a shape of the future.

To a banker, success might be a well-insulated balance sheet.

To a motion picture producer, success might be the amalgamation of diverse talents and temperaments into a completely unified and saleable entity.

To a motion picture distributor, success might be getting the right house at the right time and at the right terms.

To a motion picture exhibitor, success might be continuing sidewalk crowds.

Success is as illustrative as it elusive. To us, at Embassy, it has nothing to do with size or form or any of the status symbols in vogue today.

Our single symbol is the chief executive officer of our company who recently told 1,500 delegates to the National Association of Broadcasters in Chicago, "The motion picture industry creates entertainment trends and we are not about to surrender that enviable position."

He is the same person who had his entire life revealed in a five-page Fortune magazine story last month, which stated, "His old-time showmanship and ballyhoo have given the movie business a much-needed lift."

He is the same person who told a meeting of the New York Bookers Club, "This industry is peopled with doubters and doers and you know where I stand."

If material things are a symbol or harbinger of success then we can point to the fact "Zulu" is currently smashing every boxoffice record in England.

Or we might point up the fact that "The Carpetbaggers" broke a 30-year, non-holiday, first week at the Paramount Theatre, Denver.

Or we might mention that "Yesterday, Today And Tomorrow" is smashing records in New York, Los Angeles and Washington, the only three cities where it has opened.

It's difficult to write about our president without getting sticky, so as an alternative we have stuck with the facts.

As an indication of restraint, we haven't once mentioned his name. That's because his name and Embassy are synonymous.

Producer Sees Italo-Russo-U.S. Film As Climax To Triumvirate

By LIONELLO SANTI
(Head of Galatea Films)

Rome.

I would like to emphasize the existence of my friendship with Joe Levine.

This friendship was cemented by the dates when he distributed, or plans to distribute, three of my films: 1957—"Hercules"—a true international success, marking the beginning of the "mythological series"; 1961 — "Divorce-Italian Style"—which won the Oscar for best subject and best setting; 1964—"Italiano Brava Gente"—filmed in Russia.

Back home in Italy, we have a proverb that says "things come in groups of three" and I think it can be applied, particularly, to the films I have produced to be distributed by Joe Levine.

Take the last named. For the first time in the history of the cinema, a troupe composed of American actors (Arthur Kennedy, Peter Falk), Italian actors (Raffaele Pisu, Andre Checchi, Riccardo Cucciolla, Nino Vingelli and Gino Pernice) and Russian actors (Gianna Prokhorenko, Tatiana Samoilova, Grigori Mikhailovic, Lev Prygunov) have played in a picture filmed entirely in Russia. It was easy to obtain the cooperation of the Russian cinema authorities, as the film represents one of their important victories, while for us it stands as another example of courage in a universally important human event.

"Italiano Brava Gente," in the same way as "The Longest Day," picks the theme and tells the story of a great war: the retreat of 300,000 Italian soldiers during the winter of 1942, the worst winter to hit Russia in the last 70 years. The film took almost one year to film, as the story develops with the four seasons, spring, summer, fall and two winters, those of 1941 and 1942.

Russian cooperation was indispensable to achieve a truly grand movie, a gigantic "painting"—indeed, we had to shoot the film in exactly the same places where the Italian army had fought (from Rikovo to the mouth of the Don).

Following the neo-realistic experience, we find today that it is possible to recreate dramatic atmosphere only where the events actually took place. For example, we filmed "Salvatore Giuliano" in the same town and in the same houses where the famous Sicilian bandit actually lived, and we obtained an exceptionally dramatic effect.

Furthermore, it was necessary to use great masses of soldiers, armoured tanks and cavalry, and the Russians lent us those. The results of this fusion of various elements (actors of different tongues and nationalities, Italian and Russian technicians, different mentalities and systems of work) was fully satisfactory.

It took $4,000,000 to produce "Italiano Brava Gente."

Now, the film is being edited under the direction of director De Santis and, in a few months, it will be ready for the public around the world to see. I hope it will represent the third successful film to cement a good working relationship with Joe Levine and my admiration for him.

Director's Idea Of Typecasting

By VITTORIO DE SICA

Rome.

Every time I see Joe Levine, I say to him, "Joe, why don't you let me put you in a movie?" He jokes with me and says, "You must give me a million dollars and the choice of my own leading lady."

Seriously, I would like very much to use Joe Levine in a film. I would not cast him in the role of a movie tycoon but as a "pater familias." He is such a marvellous type for it. Maybe one day he will let me do it.

To like and admire Joe Levine is very easy. Though I speak little English and he understands little Italian, it is easy to communicate with him because of his good nature and enthusiasm.

From a director's point of view he is a perfect producer. He is understanding and respectful of creative talent and never interferes with the director's artistic concept. He is, above all, a born showman.

But what I like most about Joe Levine is that he is a gambler, as all successful producers must be. He is not afraid to gamble in what he believes. He is not afraid to gamble in what he believes the public wants. He believes in himself as well as in others.

There is a new motion picture audience emerging all over the world. It is an audience that wants to see intelligent, well-made and

(Continued on page 15)

A Handshake Deal That Paid Off

By STANLEY BAKER

London.

Sometimes the best insight into a man is an anecdote. And the story which I think best illustrates the traits that have made my friend and associate, Joseph E. Levine, the success he is today, started a couple of years ago.

I was working as an actor in a film called "Sodom and Gomorrah" when Joe visited Rome to see the rushes. On the way out of the screening room he shook my hand and, although up until that moment we had been complete strangers, he said, "Stanley, if you ever have a project of your own, bring it to me."

It so happened I did, and I told Joe about it. It was titled "Zulu" and it was a re-creation of the historic battle of Rorke's Drift in 1879 when 104 heroic British soldiers stood off a highly-trained, well-disciplined army of more than 4,000 Zulu warriors and in the process earned 11 Victoria Crosses, the most ever given for one action.

Joe was interested and asked to see a script. Again, it just so happened that I had a script, one on which John Prebble and my partner, Cy Endfield, had labored for three years.

I gave Joe the script on Saturday. On Sunday, he called me from his hotel. We met again and Joe extended his hand.

"I like it. We have a deal," he said, and we shook on it. The papers were not signed until 18 months later, but we indeed did have a deal, and from the moment we shook hands I had Joe's continued support and assistance without any accompanying interference.

Two years have gone by now and the film is playing in London. Joe's Embassy Pictures will release the film in late spring in the United States and Canada, with Paramount distributing in the rest of the world.

Those two years were spent on minute preparation, planning and execution, an almost Herculean task. After all, we were working with Joe Levine's money, and the least we could do, in exchange for his confidence, was to give the project everything we had.

6,000 Miles From Blighty

This careful preparation, I'm happy to say, paid off for all of us. Cy Endfield and I tried to anticipate every possible contingency that might arise in the making of a film like "Zulu," 6,000 miles away from our London base, on location in Natal.

We had to build virtually complete studio facilities in Africa to supply the best possible working and living conditions, and also leisure-time activities, not only for our imported cast and 63-man crew, but also for the local actors, the thousands of extras and the hundreds of laborers we hired in Africa.

It was this careful planning that allowed us to bring "Zulu" in on schedule and under budget—no mean accomplishment, when dealing with the kind of distances and the vagaries of weather and other complications incident to any such venture.

Since, after all, the Battle of Rorke's Drift, which is the subject of "Zulu," is somewhat akin for the British to what the Alamo is for Americans, every detail had to be just right. Not only did we want to give the British a true picture of this glorious battle, but we had a chance to let the rest of the world get to know about a feat of valor which, though less well-known, outranks the charge of the Light Brigade in British history.

Through it all—and perhaps this is what gave Cy and me our greatest peace of mind—we had several visits and many conferences with Joe Levine. But they were just that: visits and conferences. Constructive, helpful suggestions, yes but otherwise a free hand to produce our pictures as we had planned, without hindrance—that was what Joe provided us.

And now, in the post-production period, as we prepare for the American premiere of the picture, we are finding the same kind of cooperation. All of Joe's vast showmanship experience, his efforts and his organization are at our disposal. And we feel we couldn't be in more helpful or more competent hands.

I started by saying that a story sometimes provides the best insight into a man's character. My story, I think, shows Joe Levine for what he is—a man of his word, a man with instinctively good gambling sense, a man with faith in the future of films.

BEEFCAKE, ART TO BIG B.O.

Par's Commercial for Joe Levine's Showmanship: A $30,000,000 Bankroll

By GEORGE WELTNER
(Executive Vive-President, Paramount Pictures Corp.)

It is my feeling that Joe Levine is far from the zenith of his success, popularity and influence. Paramount is so sure of this that it now has commitments with Joe for eight pictures budgeted at over $30,000,000. These eight films — "The Carpetbaggers," "Where Love Has Gone," "Zulu," "Nevada Smith," "Imperial Woman," "A House Is Not A Home," "The Sands of Kalahari" and "The Idol"—represent the largest number of pictures an individual producer has committed to a major company within a 15-month period.

This unprecedented deal demonstrates not only our admiration for but confidence in Joe Levine's tremendous force and energy which already have revitalized every area of the motion picture business.

He has developed to an art what I like to call "risk showmanship." Because he is not afraid to go out on a limb, he has opened up a whole new area in motion pictures. He has staked enormous sums on stories, actors, producers, directors and writers whom others in his position might have considered poor business risks. Happily, he has been right more times than wrong and these risks have paid off handsomely.

Joe's contributions to our industry go far beyond the monetary. For one thing, he has helped us to grow up. The many fine foreign films he has brought to this country, such as "8½" "Divorce Italian Style," "Two Women," "Boccaccio '70," "Yesterday, Today and Tomorrow," and others, have shown us that the American audience is far more adult and sophisticated than we had ever given it credit for. The tremendous success of these pictures here has led our own filmmakers into injecting more honesty and realism into their pictures, something that has helped us not only in this country but also in the key markets abroad.

We are indebted to Joe for reawakening us to the tremendous importance of showmanship. With offbeat pictures like "The Sky Above—The Mud Below" and "Women of the World" and with some "epics" that had more muscle than entertainment, he has enjoyed greater success than anyone before him. Why? Because he has put his heart and soul into merchandising them. Twentyfour hours a day, he has personally stimulated "want-to-see" for his pictures even if it has meant going out on the road himself to meet every man, woman and child that might buy a theatre ticket.

He is doing this now for "The Carpetbaggers" and he will do it for all of his succeeding Paramount releases. When you remember that he is doing this in addition to his functions as the president of Embassy Pictures, you get some idea of the energy of Joe Levine.

'Euripedes' & The Establishment

Film Producer Puts His Money Where His (Legit) Enthusiasm Is

By SYBIL BURTON

The first time I met Joe Levine I was a little worried. For ages my friend Stanley Baker, who had just finished making "Zulu" for him, had been telling me what an interesting man he was, how he never interfered once he gave you the go ahead and so on and on.

Around this time a group of us including, Peter Cook, David Balding and myself, were working on setting up a theatre. It was a brainchild of Cook's and we called ourselves "The Establishment Theatre Company." The idea was to have the theatre above The Strollers Club in Manhattan and have the plays run there only for 10 to 12 weeks. If a play was very successful, we planned to move it to another off-Broadway house, because we wanted our theatre to have an aura of excitment about it —to have people saying "I wonder what's on at the New Theatre?" That was to be the name of the theatre. We would do both new plays and classics and special projects on Monday nights.

We had all this planned last autumn but we needed a great deal of money. When I heard that Joe Levine was interested in the theatre, as well as in films, I thought he would be the perfect person to go to,to ask for help. So I rang up his office to explain to his top associate, Leonard Lightstone, the gist of it and Lightstone arranged for an interview between us all within days.

The most interesting thing about Joe's office is the marvellous atmosphere. That first time when Cook, Balding and myself were being shown into Levine's office, Carlo Ponti was coming out of the door, hugging Joe and saying goodbye. When we went in the first thing we saw was a larger-than-life cardboard cutout of Sophia Loren standing in the corner, pregnent and saluting.

Joe absolutely made us at ease in a flash. In explaining our project to him we told him that we were raising the money in units of $1,500 and had indeed raised the money needed but our big worry was that he might offer to buy only one unit! We hadn't been able to work out the best way to say that we wanted more, but we needn't have worried. When we finished the story there was a little silence and Joe said. "Well, obviously you three are not sitting here wanting me to buy one unit! How much do you want?" We knew so well and had discussed it so often that we all answered together and in perfect unision. He agreed. Just like that.

Since that time he has always been tremendously interested in what we are planning and every week we write or call him to let him know what has happened. He calls the group "Reservoir of Talent" and I think that is Levine's greatest quality. He recognizes and uses talent.

So, our first production is to be "The Knack" by Ann Jellicoe and it goes into rehearsal at the beginning of April and we are thrilled to have Mike Nichols to direct it.

We of The Establishment Theatre Company are very, very grateful to Joseph E. Levine.

'Typecasting'

Continued from page 14

honest films. It is a sophisticated and curious audience well aware of the world in which it lives. It is an audience that is ever changing, and the films we make for it must change with the times and styles. Joe Levine understands this, and is courageous enough to lead audiences instead of being led by them at a time when so much is changing and uncertain in the cinema world. He is not afraid to take the risks in being the first to recognize change, and for this reason he has become one of the new leaders and forces of the new motion picture industry.

LEVINE RANGES ALL FILM TYPES

By ABEL GREEN

Boston, once called the Athens of America when its scholars' and divines dominated native culture, has produced a Barnum known as Joseph E. Levine. Nor is he, having moved to New York, an obscure product of the Hub. Within a few short years Levine has orbited into bigtime national and international show biz prominence to become a legend in his own time.

With his office in his head and the world his "studio," and with no studio overhead to give him headaches, Levine has commuted the Atlantic with almost the regularity of a commercial jet pilot and piled up packages of pictures and personalities to decorate global screens.

Levine first jet propelled himself only five years ago. He did it circuitously. From Boston to Rome to Hollywood, and New York was the cinematic trajectory. He started with the Roman gladiatorial spear-and-sandal muscle men, segued to the earthy Via Veneto femmes, wheeled-and-dealed in the Continental market places, and today is a top Hollywood "Carpetbagger."

A complete extrovert, Levine's design for the cinematic spotlight was showmanship and merchandising. He has the innate flair which is a tangible intangible that has been recognized from Cinnecita to the Brown Derby belt, from the West End to New York's west side. In his own terms an unabashed sentimentalist, he is alternately a "pater familias" and a shrewd gallant gambler. Levine's "smell" of a boxoffice title and/or the

(Continued on page 99)

THE 'O' AND JOE

By RICHARD SALE

Hollywood.

It took over three years to write "The Oscar" and from the very beginning, I knew that it was going to take guts to do it, and that after it was done, it was going to take more guts for a motion picture producer to flash it on the movie screens of the world. In Hollywood, when they heard the subject matter, the tar was warmed up, and the chicken feathers were carefully plucked from Granny's old pillows in the attic. My fair-weather friends suddenly found that there was a nimbus cloud over my head. Right then, although I had never met him, I prognosticated that Joe Levine was the only man in our industry who would shoot "The Oscar."

I turned out to be a pretty good seer.

Levine walks in where angels fear to tread, and Joe is no angel. But he is a shining example of the kind of man who made the movies great: the fearless showman. It was joes like Joe Levine who plucked jerky one-reelers from the fusty tin-walled nickelodeons, and with courage and imagination, not to mention a daring instinct for garnering loot, created an industry which became the greatest entertainment and communications medium in our time—and without commercials and station breaks and Nielsens.

Joe Levine came in late. It may be that his achievement, in view of the morbid competition of television, H-bombs, bowling, boating and boredom, may prove more significant than the frontrunners who had a brand new toy. When Joe entered, it was Act II, and the play was sick. It was sick because it was loaded with dry-roters, and status-seekers, and cannibals who were eating the business alive for their own pleasure and vanity and bankroll. Many of them did not even know how to make a movie, so they didn't care what happened

(Continued on page 97)

Levine Lusts After Big Features; Frets Meanwhile About His Image & Embassy as 'One-Man Army'

By EDDIE KALISH

A man's success, in the film business or anywhere else, is cumulative. Showmen too often demonstrate an alarming instinct for error, but Joseph E. Levine has shown a sense of what will go and how to get it there. The best businessman in the world he isn't, or so he says. But good deals or bad (and he's made his share of both) Levine is rarely if ever lacking enthusiasm and the showmanly instinct.

It is perhaps enthusiasm which has been his greatest asset. Whatever he does, Levine mobilizes himself all the way. He's Mr. Total Involvement and this is often quite taxing on those who work both for and with him. His speech and actions are often colorfully in keeping with this glandular drive.

When Levine began to move his Embassy Pictures from the limited field of sales and into the more challenging, dangerous but more financially rewarding area of production he did so with a zeal that had friends and associates asking: "Where's the fire, Joe? What's your hurry?" He didn't get started in production on his own until mid-1963 and already has six pix either in release or ready to go. His "big six" he calls them and carries a list of them around in his pocket. In addition there are two others completed and six more being readied for production. Besides these there are another 10 in various blueprint stages. There are also four tv series. That's enthusiasm.

Over First Jump

As Levine began to spend more and more for production, having already laid out other coin purchasing foreign product for his sales force, talk of fiscal over-extention began. But the critical period is past, Levine says. From here on out things look just fine to him. There is no doubt in his mind that 1964 will be his and Embassy's (the two are virtually the same) biggest year ever. His indebtedness to banks, which are the sole source of his financing, is reasonable by industry standards and the anticipated revenues from "Carpetbaggers," "Zulu" and "Yesterday, Today and Tomorrow" will be more than enough to cover his entire annual operating nut and put him in the profits column. He estimates, in fact, that his 50% share in "Carpetbaggers" alone could cover half that nut.

But even with this firmly-established solvency, Levine is constantly holding up a mirror to himself, often using the eyes of those around him to judge his progress. Impulsive, he is an emotional person, operating on instinct and sensitive to what is written, said and (suspectably) thought about him. He has sold himself well but is troubled by the fact that Embassy is basically Joe Levine. He claims that it isn't a one-man company but also proudly admits that it owes its place in the sun to him and the magic he's created about himself. But Embassy is all Levine in other ways. If the company goes bust so does he. "Everything I've got is tied up in my company," he confides.

Making It

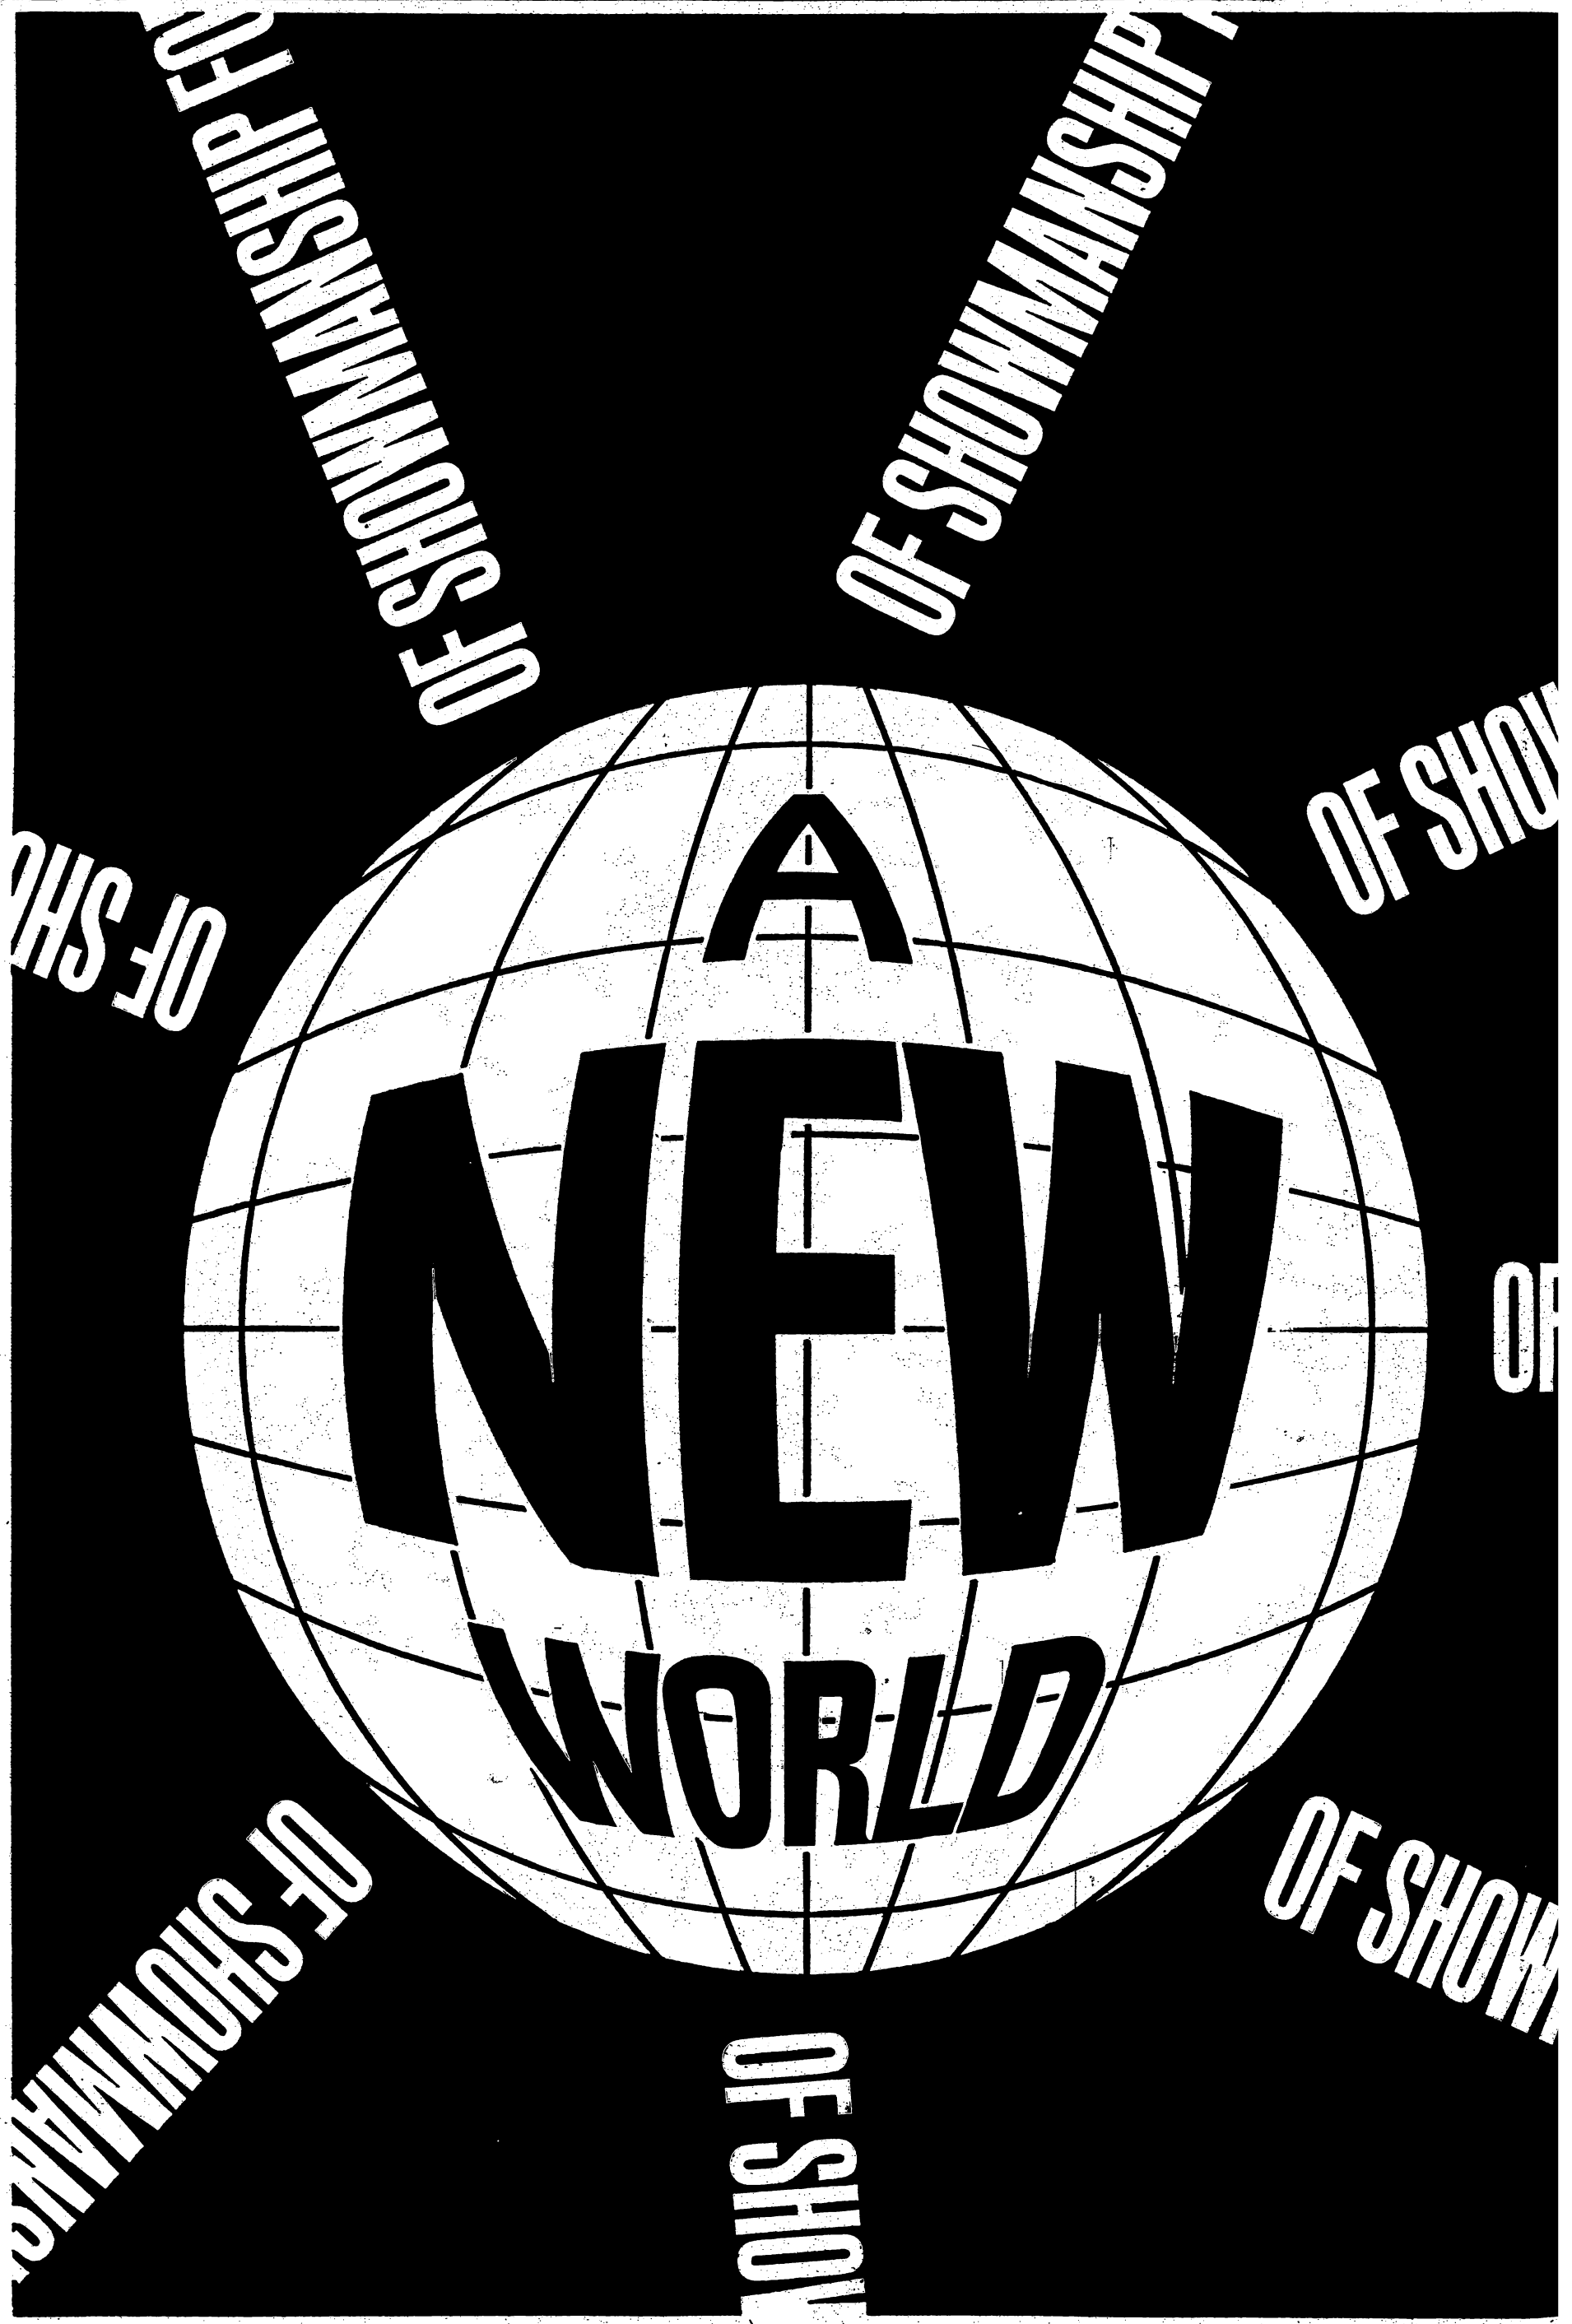
Having steered Embassy into production waters, Levine finds an immense sense of satisfaction. "Our hopes, dreams and hard work have become realities, he glowingly reports. "We believe the thing we are best suited for is the production and development of pictures," he says of Embassy. There is no plan to abandon sales now that production looms large but rather to use production to further Embassy's sales activity. "We can't go backward," Levine states. "In order for me to support my sales force I hope to get more U.S.-made and commercial pictures."

He will continue his dealings with Paramount, with whom he already has deals involving eight pictures. This relationship started for reasons of "financial expediency," Levine commented recently, but it has grown into more than that. He remains cautious on the subject of merger, however, still uneager to give up the autonomy that has build himself and his company. He presently has 10 uncommitted projects and plans to retain at least U.S. and Canadian rights to many of these "in order to let my sales organization function as I want it to." Another factor is Levine's estimation that "by the end of the year our cash flow will be the greatest ever."

Simplifying his thinking, the prez says there's just no way we can stay out of distribution." Although he considers U.S.-style commercial pix the prime fuel for his sales machine, Levine will not forsake the foreign sources which have been so good to him either. Embassy will continue both to buy and coproduce abroad, continuing relationships such as that shared with Carlo Ponti over the past year through which Levine and the Italian produced "Yesterday, Today and Tomorrow," "Empty Canvas" and "Contempt," with a fourth, "Casanova," yet to be made. The duo also recently pacted to make "Marriage—Italian Style" which is now lensing.

Withal, Levine firmly believes that "the strength of the business is production." He makes no distinction between film and tv production. "We believe in making pictures for theatres and tv, he states, lumping tv series production with filmmaking. Of tv series making Levine says "we need it, they need it, and we want it." Television is also an important revenue producer and Levine estimates that Embassy can wind up with $5,000,000 eventually out of the "Hercules" series he's to make in color in Italy for ABC-TV. Of the syndication field, he relates that "having the 33 pictures we've sold to tv brought us in several million dollars," $5,000,000 at one estimate.

Hollywood Strategy



As part of the production thinking Levine says he plans "to establish a beachhead in Hollywood, I believe that I should have a bigger working force in Hollywood," he said recently, and I'll probably set up a production office in our present distribution quarters (at Paramount)." An important, in fact "vital," factor in film company operation today is inventory, he feels, for both theatres and tv. "I'm still making westerns quietly in Yugoslavia," he commented.

Of Embassy and its future Levine has this to say. "I think this company is as powerful as any company in the business. We have stability. This is no get rich quick operation now. The banks go along with us. (He owes them about $6,000,000). Every day we get stronger and stronger. We own our pictures and own 'em in perpetuity. We haven't even tried to sell world rights of pictures to television." As for his plans, the prez says "I'm gonna make any kind of picture wherever it can be made, as many as I can dream up." In line with this and his Hollywood schemes, Levine noted that he intends adding a sizable production staff between now and the first of 1965.

105 on Payroll

Embassy currently has 105 employees and an annual operating nut considerably under $3.000,000. It is cramped into office space in various places in the Time & Life Building and Levine keeps talking about getting new offices. He is bristling with enthusiasm these days and confident of his and Embassy's future. His "Success—Italian Style" days are over and the once-noisy little indie has be-

(Continued on page 97)

A NEW WORLD
OF SHOWMANSHIP

MANSHIP FOR SHOWMEN OF THE WORLD

SHOWMANSHIP FOR SHOWMEN OF THE WORLD

MANSHIP FOR SHOWMEN

JOSEPH E. LEVINE
IS PROUD TO BE ASSOCIATED WITH
PARAMOUNT PICTURES
IN THE PRODUCTION OF THESE MOTION PICTURES—

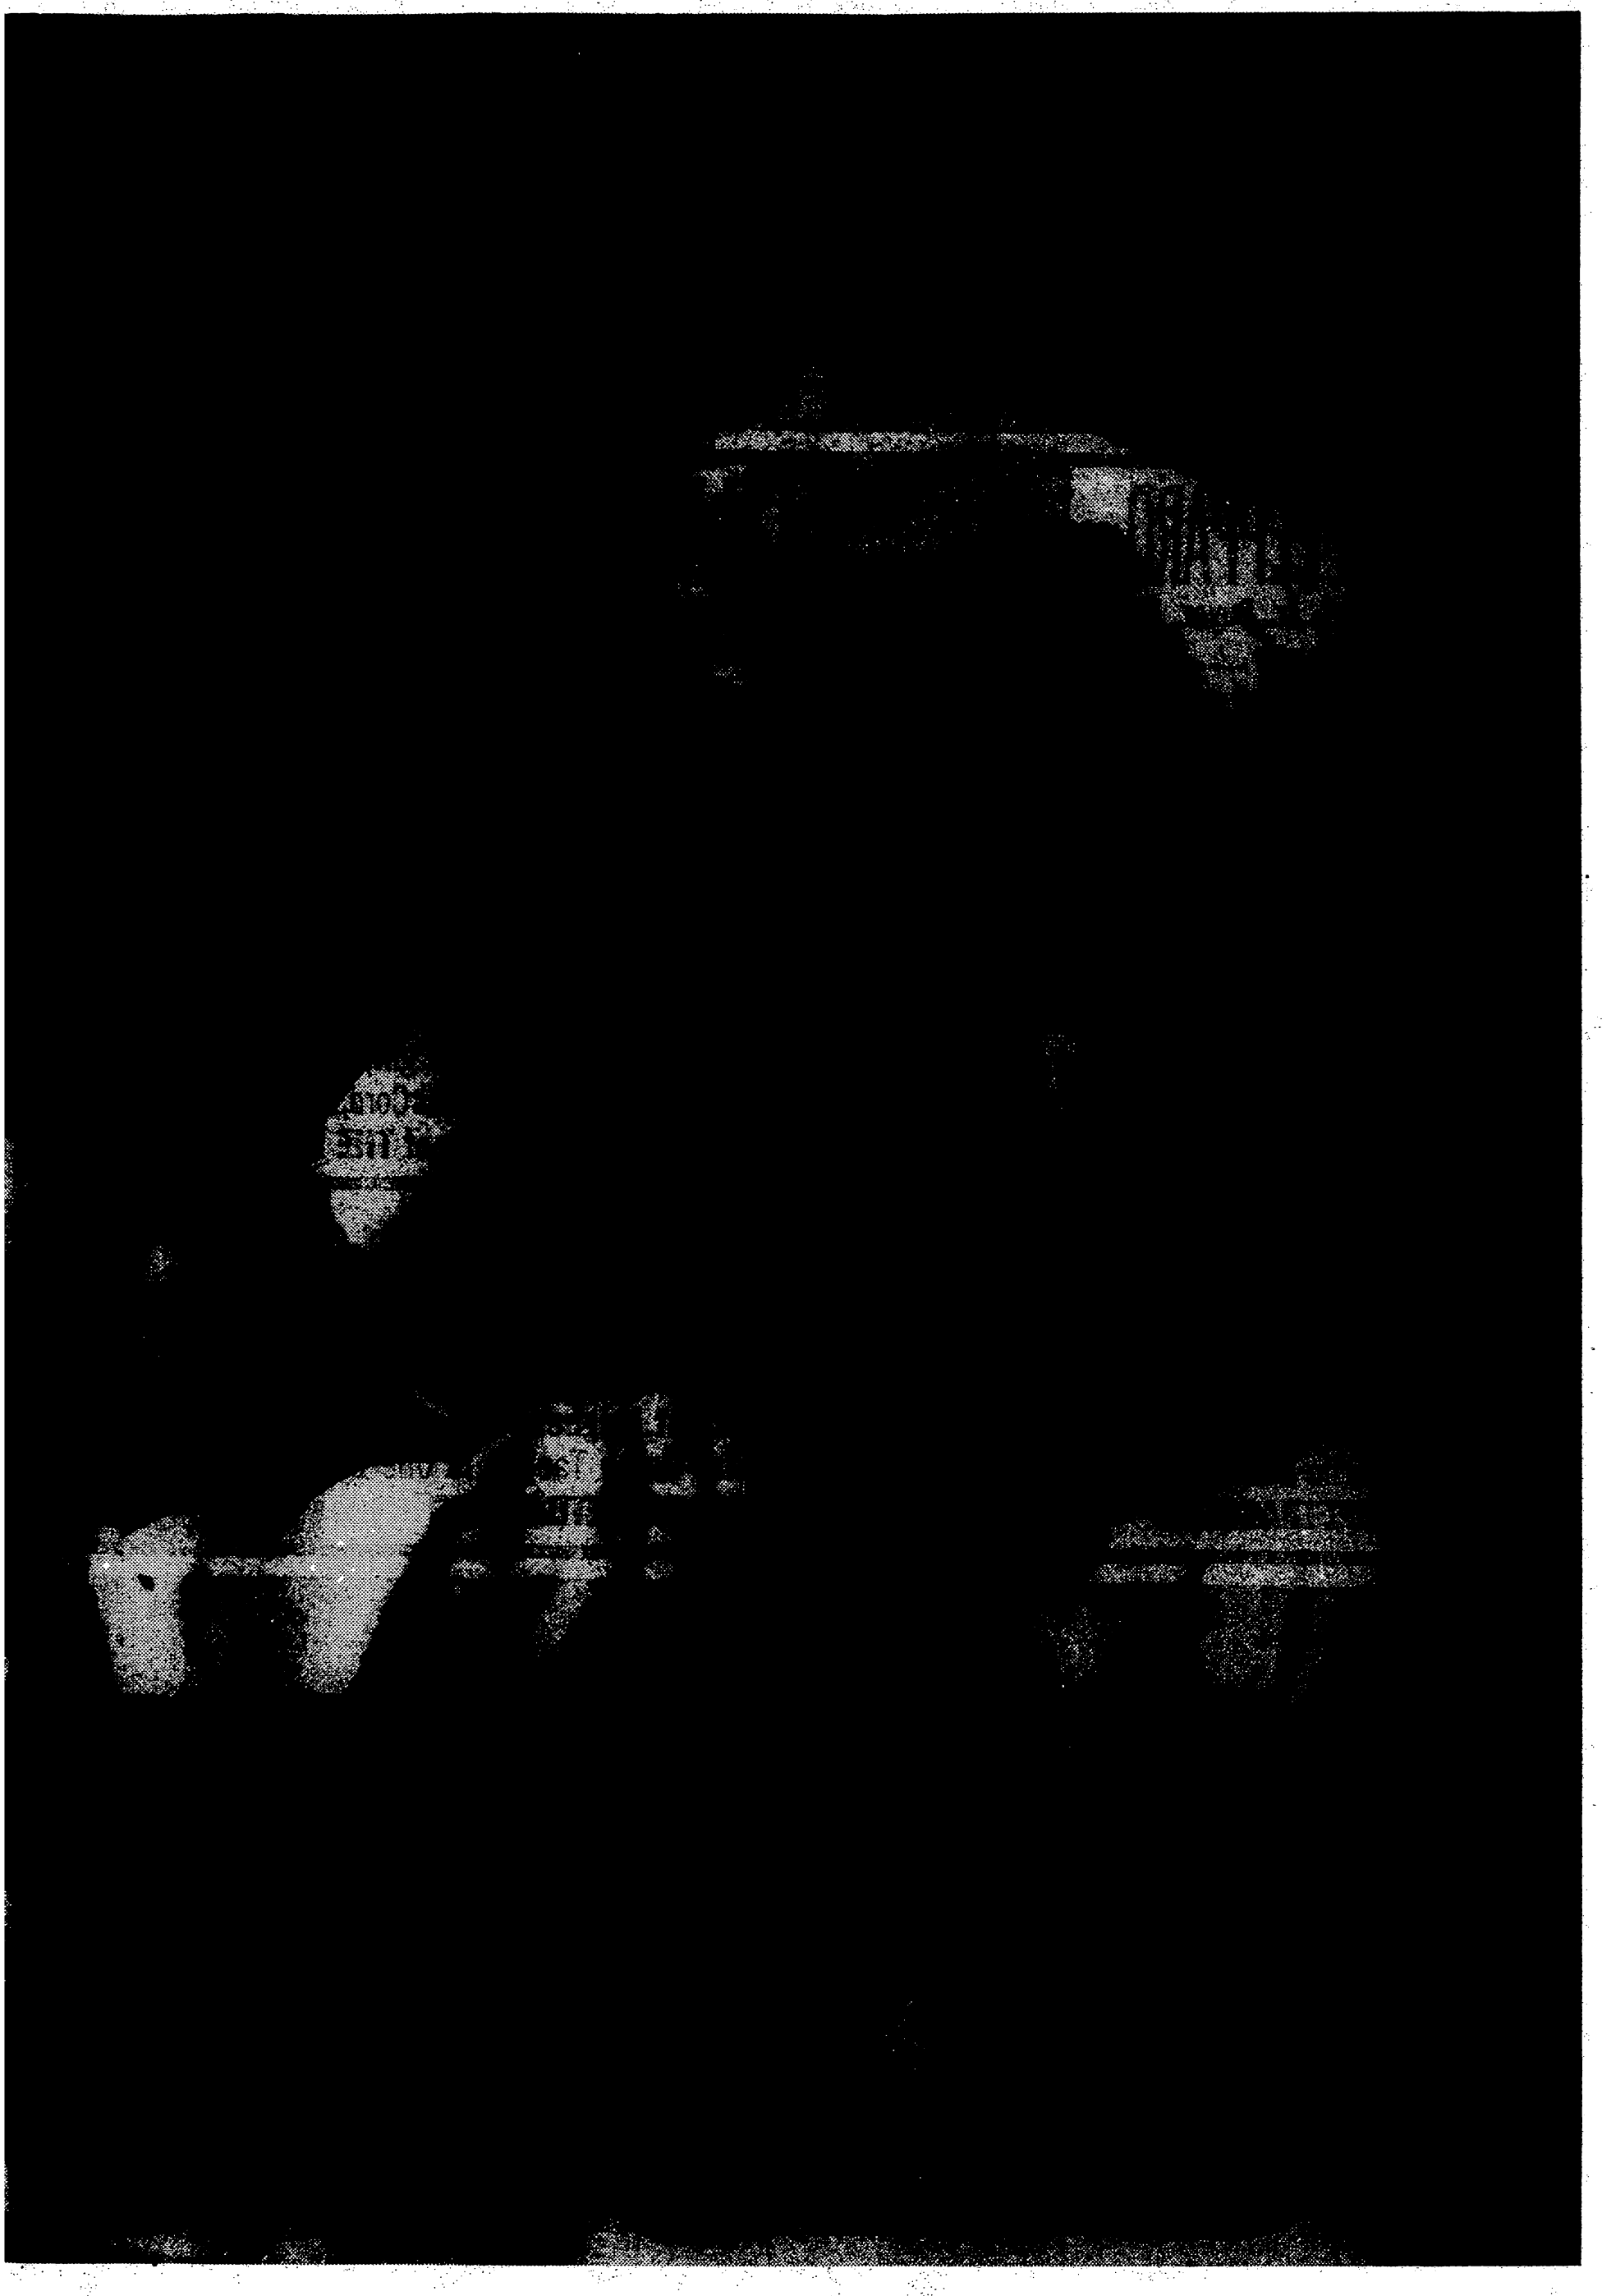
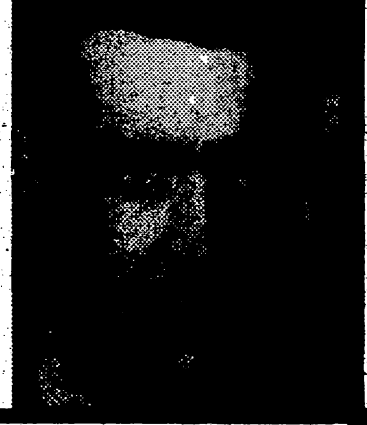
Paramount Pictures



®

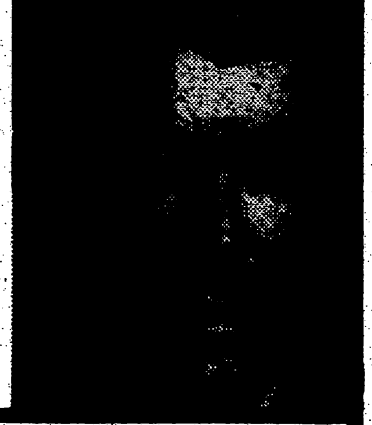
"THE CARPETBAGGERS"
"ZULU"
"WHERE LOVE HAS GONE"
"NEVADA SMITH"
"IMPERIAL WOMEN"
"A HOUSE IS NOT A HOME"
"THE IDOL"
"THE SANDS OF KALAHARI"

it is unlikely that you will experience in a lifetime all that you will see in...



JOSEPH E. LEVINE presents

THE CARPETBAGGERS



GEORGE PEPPARD as

Jonas Cord, Jr. Buyer, Seller, Builder, Destroyer . . . Cheater and Charmer, Lover and Louse! George Peppard is one of THE CARPETBAGGERS

ALAN LADD as

Nevada Smith Man who keeps Jonas' secrets and Jonas' women . . . Quiet man with guts enough to kill! Alan Ladd is one of THE CARPETBAGGERS

MARTHA HYER as

Jennie Denton Good-looking in furs, better looking without them . . . Nice girl—until she was fifteen! Martha Hyer is one of THE CARPETBAGGERS

ELIZABETH ASHLEY as

Monica Winthrop Rich man's daughter, rich men's plaything, nice girl, wild girl . . . wild Mrs. Jonas Cord, Jr.! Elizabeth Ashley is one of THE CARPETBAGGERS

MARTIN BALSAM as

B. B. Norman The big man, the big loser . . . because he was the second smartest man in Jonas' world! Martin Balsam is one of THE CARPETBAGGERS

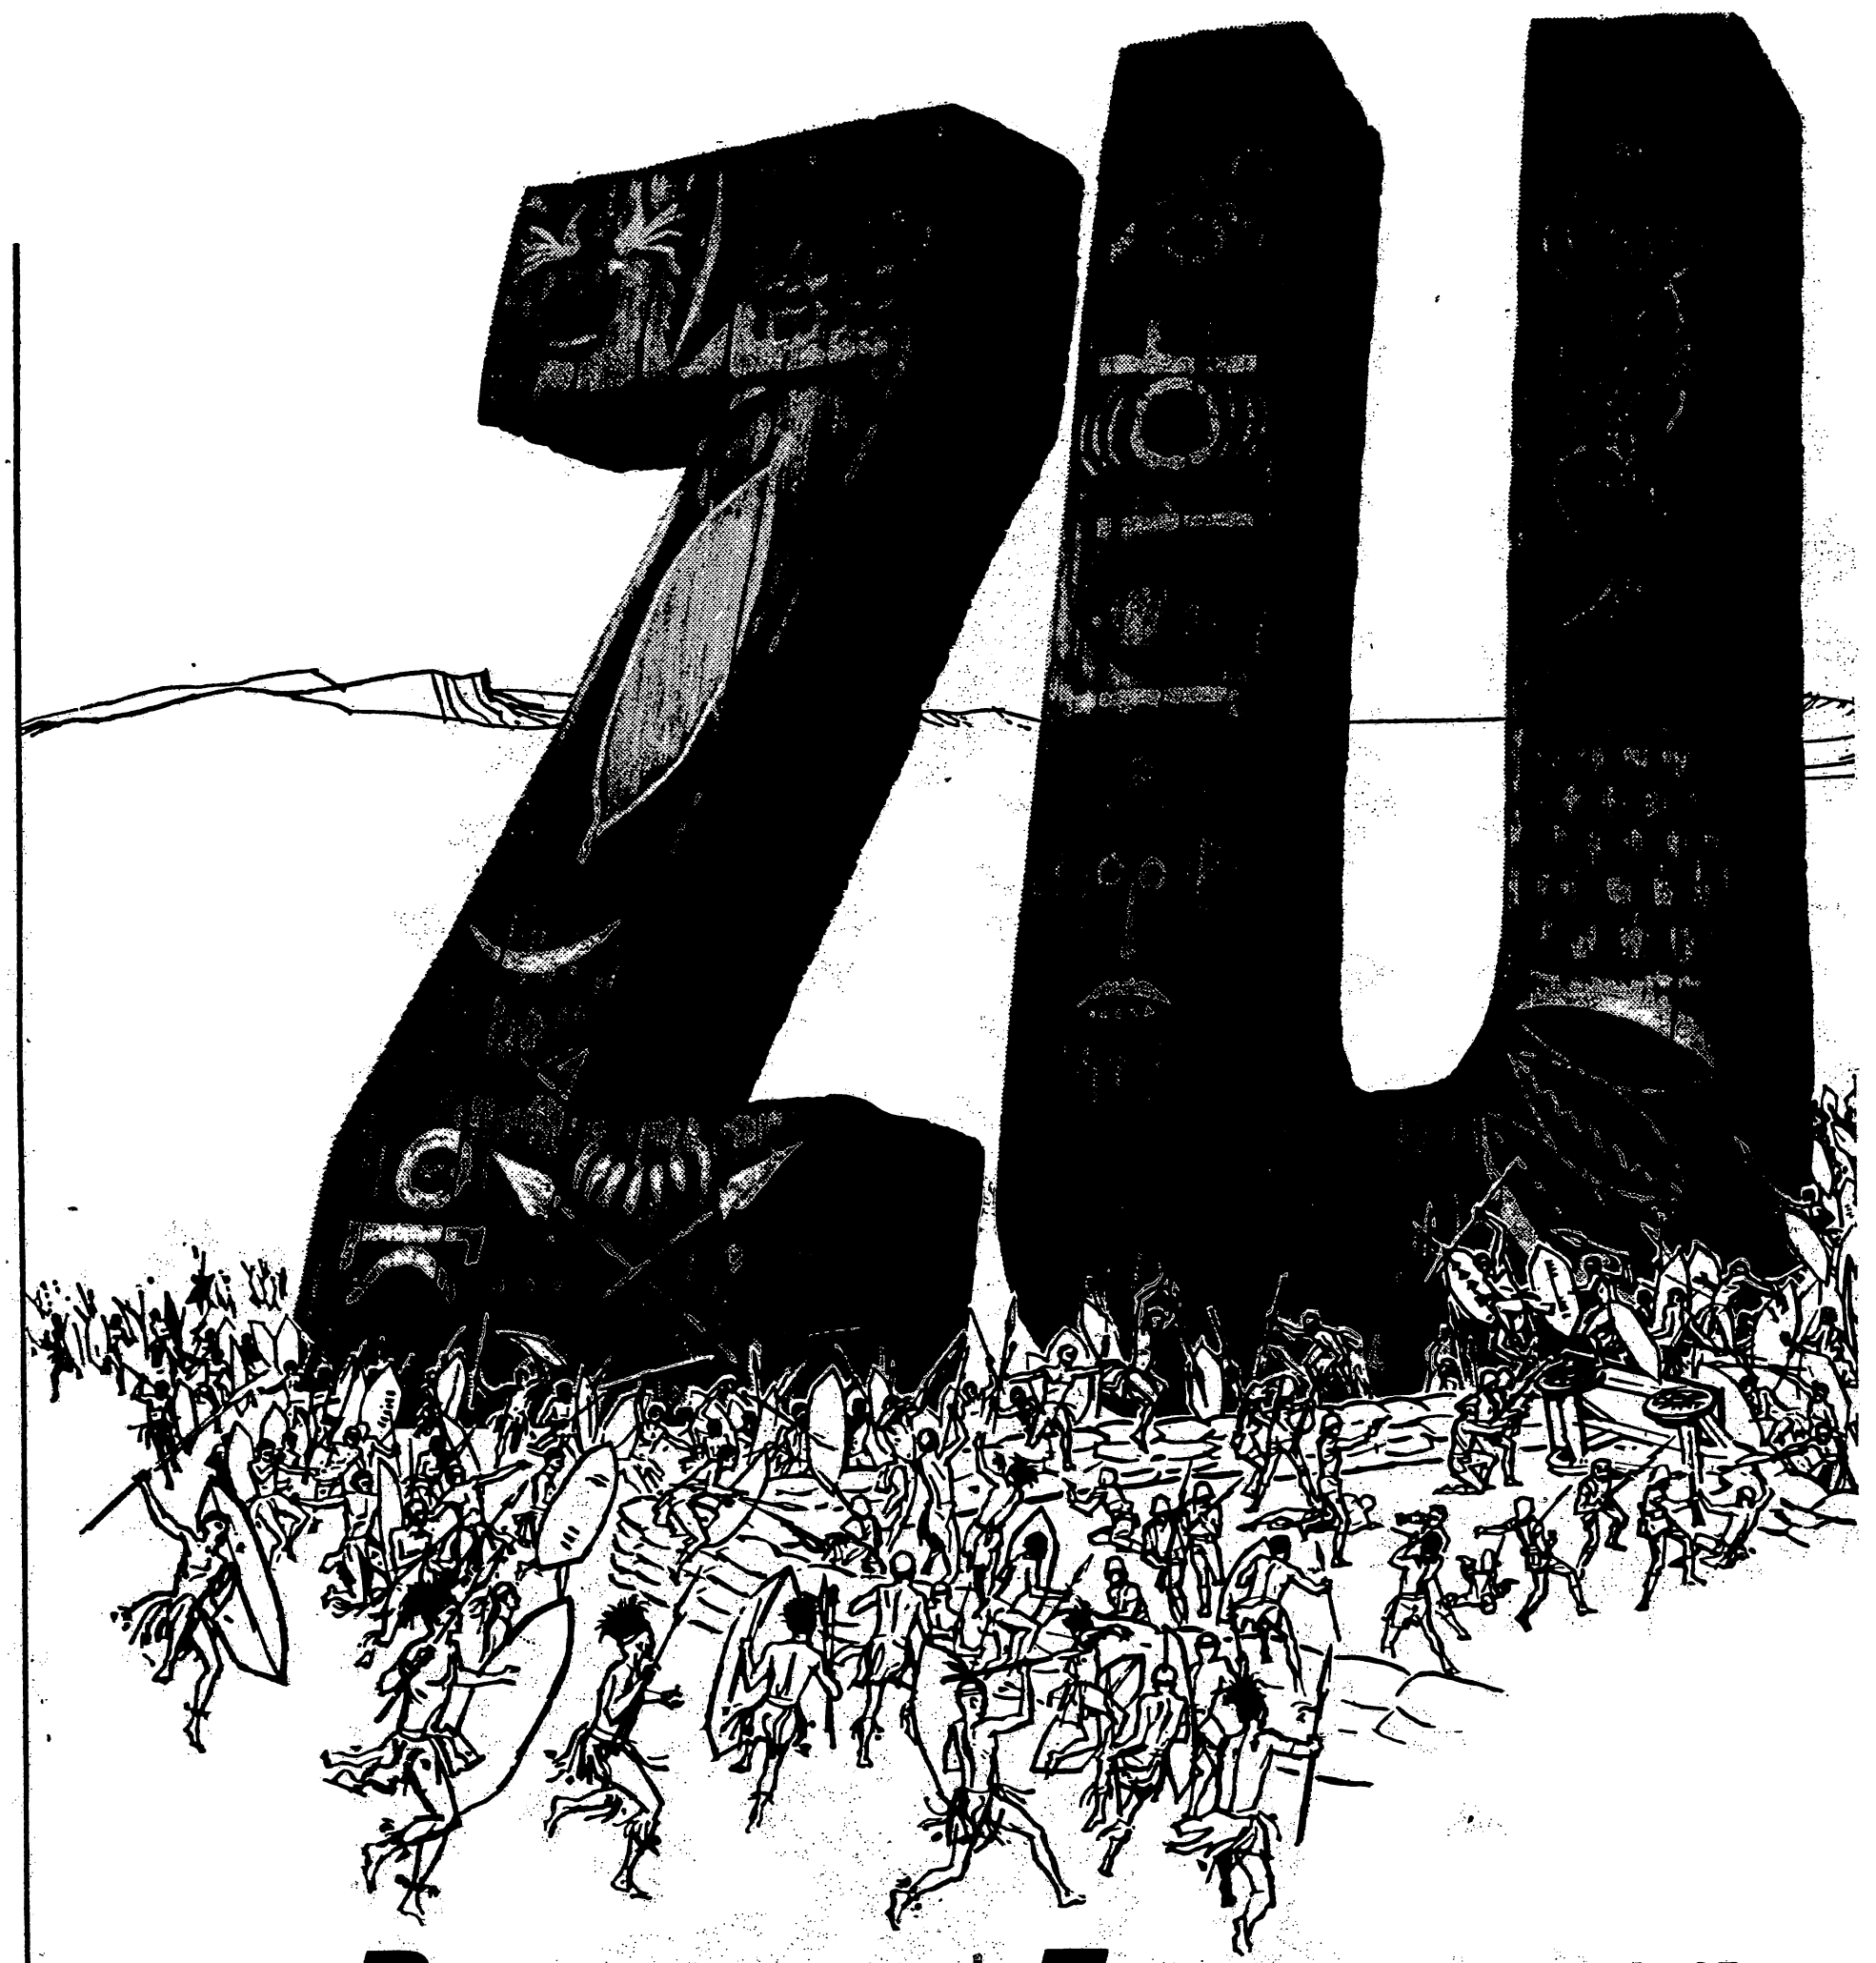
RALPH TAEGER as

Buzz Dalton The pilot who went along for the ride . . . the fastest, highest ride of his life! Ralph Taeger is one of THE CARPETBAGGERS

PARAMOUNT & EMBASSY PICTURES

BOB CUMMINGS.
Dan Pierce Fast talker, fast fast taker... Buys lives with a screen test, sells them with a lie! Bob Cummings is one of THE CARPETBAGGERS
LEW AYRES.
McAllister Brilliant man, broken man... pay enough for his brains and you get his soul for nothing! Lew Ayres is one of THE CARPETBAGGERS
ARCHIE MOORE.
Jedediah Giant of a man, gentle, loyal... God help all of them if he told just part of what he knew! Archie Moore is one of THE CARPETBAGGERS
A NEW WORLD
BOOK IT NOW FROM PARAMOUNT
CARROLL BAKER. RINA
Rina Marlowe Legend in a low-cut dress... bigger than life, better than love, bolder than lust! Carroll Baker is one of THE CARPETBAGGERS
THIS IS ADULT ENTERTAINMENT

NOW! SMASHING RECORDS



PARAMOUNT THEATER, DENVER!

SHATTERING ALL BOX-

$583,400 | $155,000 IN 9 WEEK
$428,400 IN 2 WEEKS

PARAMOUNT & EMBASSY put the

OFFICE RECORDS IN ENGLAND

FIRST RUN AT PLAZA, LONDON!
OF LONDON CIRCUIT RELEASE AT 29 ABC THEATRES!

Starring
Stanley Baker
Jack Hawkins
Ulla Jacobsson
James Booth
Michael Caine

Screenplay by John Prebble and Cy Endfield · Suggested by an Article Written by John Prebble
Directed by Cy Endfield
A Diamond Films Ltd. Production
An Embassy Pictures Release
Foreword Spoken by Richard Burton

A Stanley Baker-Cy Endfield Production

TECHNICOLOR® TECHNIRAMA®

BOOK IT NOW FROM EMBASSY
FOR THE UNITED STATES
AND CANADA
AVAILABLE THROUGHOUT
THE REST OF THE WORLD
FROM PARAMOUNT PICTURES

A NEW WORLD OF SHOWMANSHIP FOR SHOWMEN OF THE WORLD

How in Showmanship

The blistering bestseller boldly brought to the screen by the makers of "The Carpetbaggers"!

JOSEPH E. LEVINE presents

SUSAN HAYWARD · BETTE DAVIS

WHERE LOVE HAS GONE

...It's gone wrong!
...It's gone wild!

AVAILABLE NOW FROM PARAMOUNT PICTURES

A NEW WORLD OF SHOWMANSHIP FOR SHOWMEN OF THE WORLD

co-starring
MICHAEL CONNORS · JOEY HEATHERTON

TECHNICOLOR® TECHNISCOPE®· Screenplay by JOHN MICHAEL HAYES
Based on the novel "Where Love Has Gone" by HAROLD ROBBINS
Directed by EDWARD DMYTRYK · Produced by JOSEPH E. LEVINE

Hear Kapp Records' JACK JONES sing the new hit, "WHERE LOVE HAS GONE"

A PARAMOUNT PICTURES RELEASE

PARAMOUNT & EMBASSY put the HOW IN SHOWmanship

A BLISTERING MOTION PICTURE FROM A BEST-SELLING BOOK!

WHERE LOVE HAS GONE is the hot, new novel by Harold Robbins, author of
THE CARPETBAGGERS
Now in its 5th printing.

WHERE LOVE HAS GONE
has already sold more than 2 million copies.
On sale now,
wherever Pocket Books are sold.

WHERE LOVE HAS GONE
has just completed shooting
in Hollywood.
The studio,
the producer,
the director and the writer that brought
THE CARPETBAGGERS
to the screen will present

WHERE LOVE HAS GONE with a star-studded cast headed by
SUSAN HAYWARD
BETTE DAVIS
MICHAEL CONNORS
and
JOEY HEATHERTON

READ THE BOOK!
SEE THE FILM!

Joseph E. Levine presents
SUSAN HAYWARD and BETTE DAVIS
in
WHERE LOVE HAS GONE
co-starring
MICHAEL CONNORS
JOEY HEATHERTON
Technicolor®—Techniscope®
Screenplay by
JOHN MICHAEL HAYES
Based on the novel
"Where Love Has Gone" by
HAROLD ROBBINS
Directed by EDWARD DMYTRYK
Produced by
JOSEPH E. LEVINE
A Paramount Pictures Release

COWBOY–KILLER–LEADING MAN–LADY'S MAN–

JOSEPH E. LEVINE presents

NEVADA

BASED ON THE CHARACTER CREATED BY HAROLD

Screenplay by JOHN MICHAEL HAYES Produced and Directed by HENRY HATHAWAY

Executive producer JOSEPH E. LEVINE

TECHNICOLOR® and PANAVISION®

PARAMOUNT & EMBASSY put

CATTLE KING–CONVICT–AND MUCH, MUCH MORE!

SMITH

a PARAMOUNT PICTURES release ★★★★★

Paramount Pictures ®

ROBBINS IN "THE CARPETBAGGERS"

STARTS SHOOTING IN JUNE
AVAILABLE THROUGHOUT THE WORLD
FROM PARAMOUNT PICTURES

the HOW IN SHOWmanship

A NEW WORLD OF SHOWMANSHIP FOR SHOWMEN OF THE WORLD

Concubine! Empress! Goddess!
The fabulous pageant of the last Empress of China based on the best-selling novel by the brilliant Nobel prize winner Pearl S. Buck!

PARAMOUNT & EMBASSY put the

JOSEPH E. LEVINE PRESENTS PEARL S. BUCK's

IMPERIAL WOMAN

ASSOCIATE PRODUCER TAD DANIELEWSKI

STARTS FILMING SOON

Pictures

a PARAMOUNT PICTURES release

How in Showmanship

A NEW WORLD OF SWINGING FOR SHOWMEN OF THE WORLD

Africa's Kalahari...one third of a million square miles of nothing but sand-Soon the location for one of the most exciting films ever to be made!

JOSEPH E. LEVINE
presents

SANDS OF

BASED ON THE PRIZE WINNING NOVEL BY WILLIAM MULVIHILL TO BE PRODUCED BY STANLEY BAKER-CY ENDFIELD WHO HAVE JUST COMPLETED
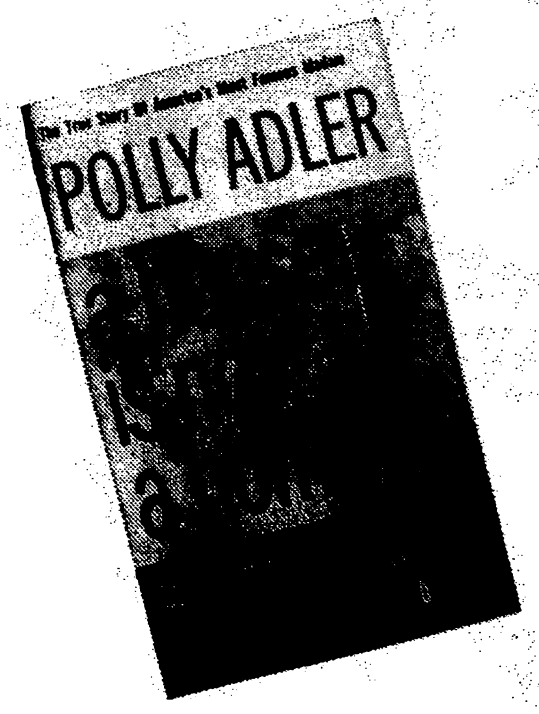
"ZULU" WHICH IS BREAKING ALL BOX OFFICE RECORDS IN ENGLAND.
DIRECTED BY CY ENDFIELD
PRESENTED IN ASSOCIATION WITH JOSEPH M. SCHENCK ENTERPRISES, INC.

KALAHARI

A PARAMOUNT PICTURES RELEASE

Paramount Pictures



PARAMOUNT & EMBASSY put the HOW IN SHOWmanship

Polly and her girls want dates for August

JOSEPH E. LEVINE presents

A HOUSE IS NOT A HOME

PARAMOUNT & EMBASSY put the HOW IN SHOWmanship

A NEW WORLD OF SHOWMANSHIP FOR SHOWMEN OF THE WORLD

BOOK IT NOW FROM EMBASSY
FOR AUGUST RELEASE
FOR THE UNITED STATES AND CANADA
AVAILABLE THROUGHOUT
THE REST OF THE WORLD
FROM PARAMOUNT PICTURES

starring
SHELLEY WINTERS as Polly Adler
MICKEY SHAUGHNESSY KAYE BALLARD RALPH TAEGER
Guest Stars
BRODERICK CRAWFORD as Harrigan
CESAR ROMERO as Lucky Luciano and co-starring
ROBERT TAYLOR as Frank with POLLY'S GIRLS

Written by RUSSELL ROUSE and CLARENCE GREENE Based on the book by POLLY ADLER

Produced by CLARENCE GREENE Directed by RUSSELL ROUSE An EMBASSY PICTURES Release

JOSEPH E. LEVINE presents

A NEW WORLD OF SHOWMANSHIP FOR SHOWMEN OF THE WORLD

One of the most shattering and provocative pictures you will ever experience!

STARTS FILMING IN SEPTEMBER
AVAILABLE FROM EMBASSY
FOR THE UNITED STATES
AND CANADA
AND THROUGHOUT
THE REST OF THE WORLD
FROM PARAMOUNT PICTURES

PARAMOUNT & EMBASSY put the HOW IN SHOWmanship

TIME

TIME

TIME

JOSEPH E. LEVINE AND EMBASSY PICTURES PROUDLY PRESENT A PREVIEW OF OUTSTANDING MOTION PICTURE PROPERTIES THAT WILL START PRODUCTION THIS YEAR!

century ago,
the most controversial figure in England was Richard Francis Burton. He was, variously, and often simultaneously, a scholar, a poet, a world traveller, a distinguished explorer, a prolific writer, a soldier, a great pistol shot, a superb swordsman, an adventuresome lover, an expert horseman, a brilliant linguist, a unique literary translator, a military undercover agent, a doctor, a psychologist, a botanist, a geologist, a British consul and a knight of the British Empire.
He was the first non-Moslem to enter the forbidden Mecca.

"Half-god, half-devil."

A girl fell in love with him at a distance. She was Isabel Arundell, born of an aristocratic English Catholic family. Isabel was brought up and educated in an elegant and refined atmosphere. Everything in her life separated her from Richard Burton by an enormous chasm, but she bridged it with persistence and love, and walked across.

She was sacred, he was profane.

On the surface, two more unlikely people could hardly have come together. The wild and the tame. The satyr and the virgin. The proper and the improper.

But they came together, stayed together until death parted them.

John Michael Hayes

JOSEPH E. LEVINE presents

ISABEL and BURTON

Original Screenplay by JOHN MICHAEL HAYES

Produced by JOHN MICHAEL HAYES

Executive Producer JOSEPH E. LEVINE

To be Filmed on Location on Three Continents
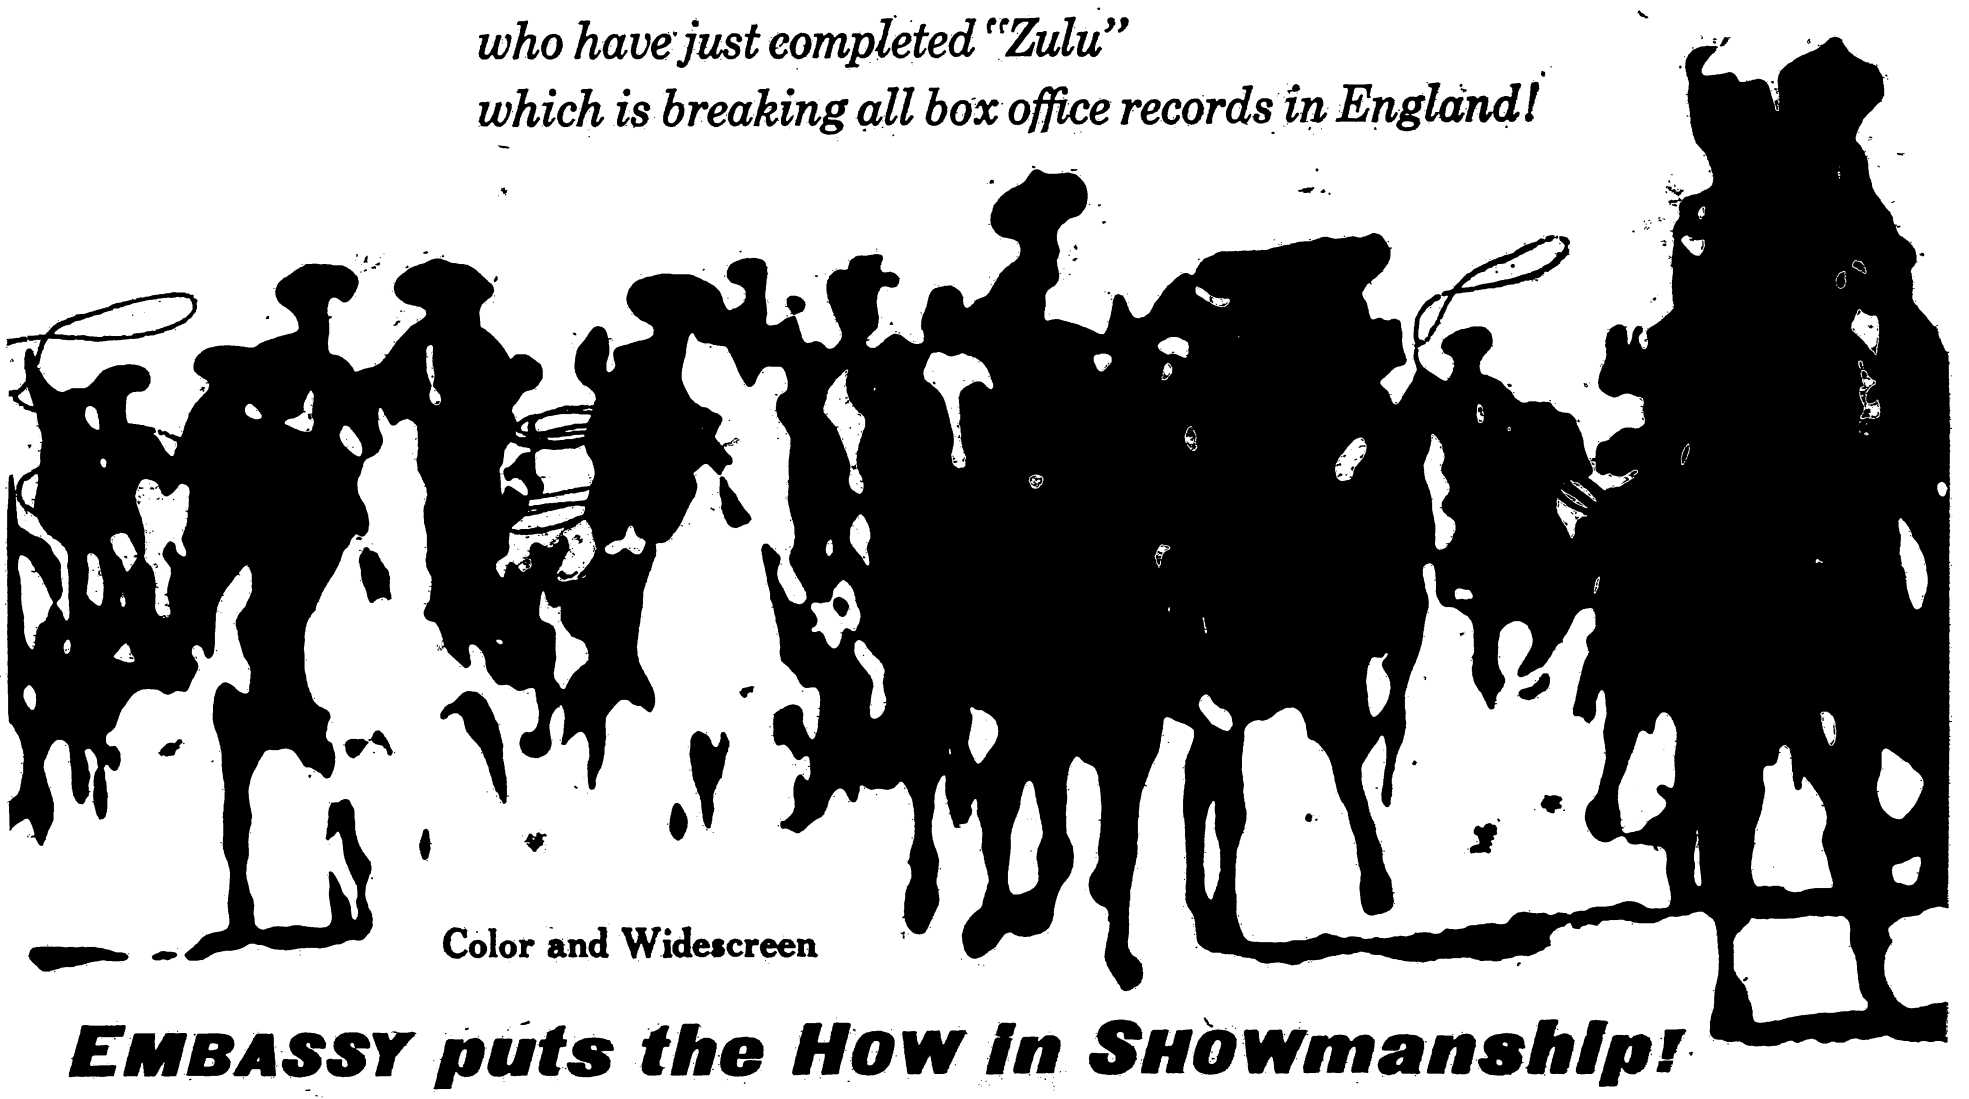
in Color and Widescreen.



EMBASSY puts the HOW in SHOWmanship!

JOSEPH E. LEVINE presents

THE WAR HORSES

To be filmed on the Great Plains of Africa and the American West by the sensational new producing team—
STANLEY BAKER and CY ENDFIELD who have just completed "Zulu" which is breaking all box office records in England!

Color and Widescreen

EMBASSY puts the HOW in SHOWmanship!

Will Adams came to Japan as a ship-wrecked sailor.
Immediately upon landing, he was indicted for a capital crime and sentenced to be executed.
Single-handedly, through his strength, his sexual charm and the open honesty of his heart, he not only saved his own life but rose to a position of immeasurable influence. Although his loyalty to his queen never wavered, he alone stood at the side of the ruler of all Japan. His ability, wit and character carried him through political intrigues and bitter wars and he became the first white Samurai.

JOSEPH E. LEVINE presents

Wild Adams

Produced by JOSEPH E. LEVINE and EUGENE FRENKE

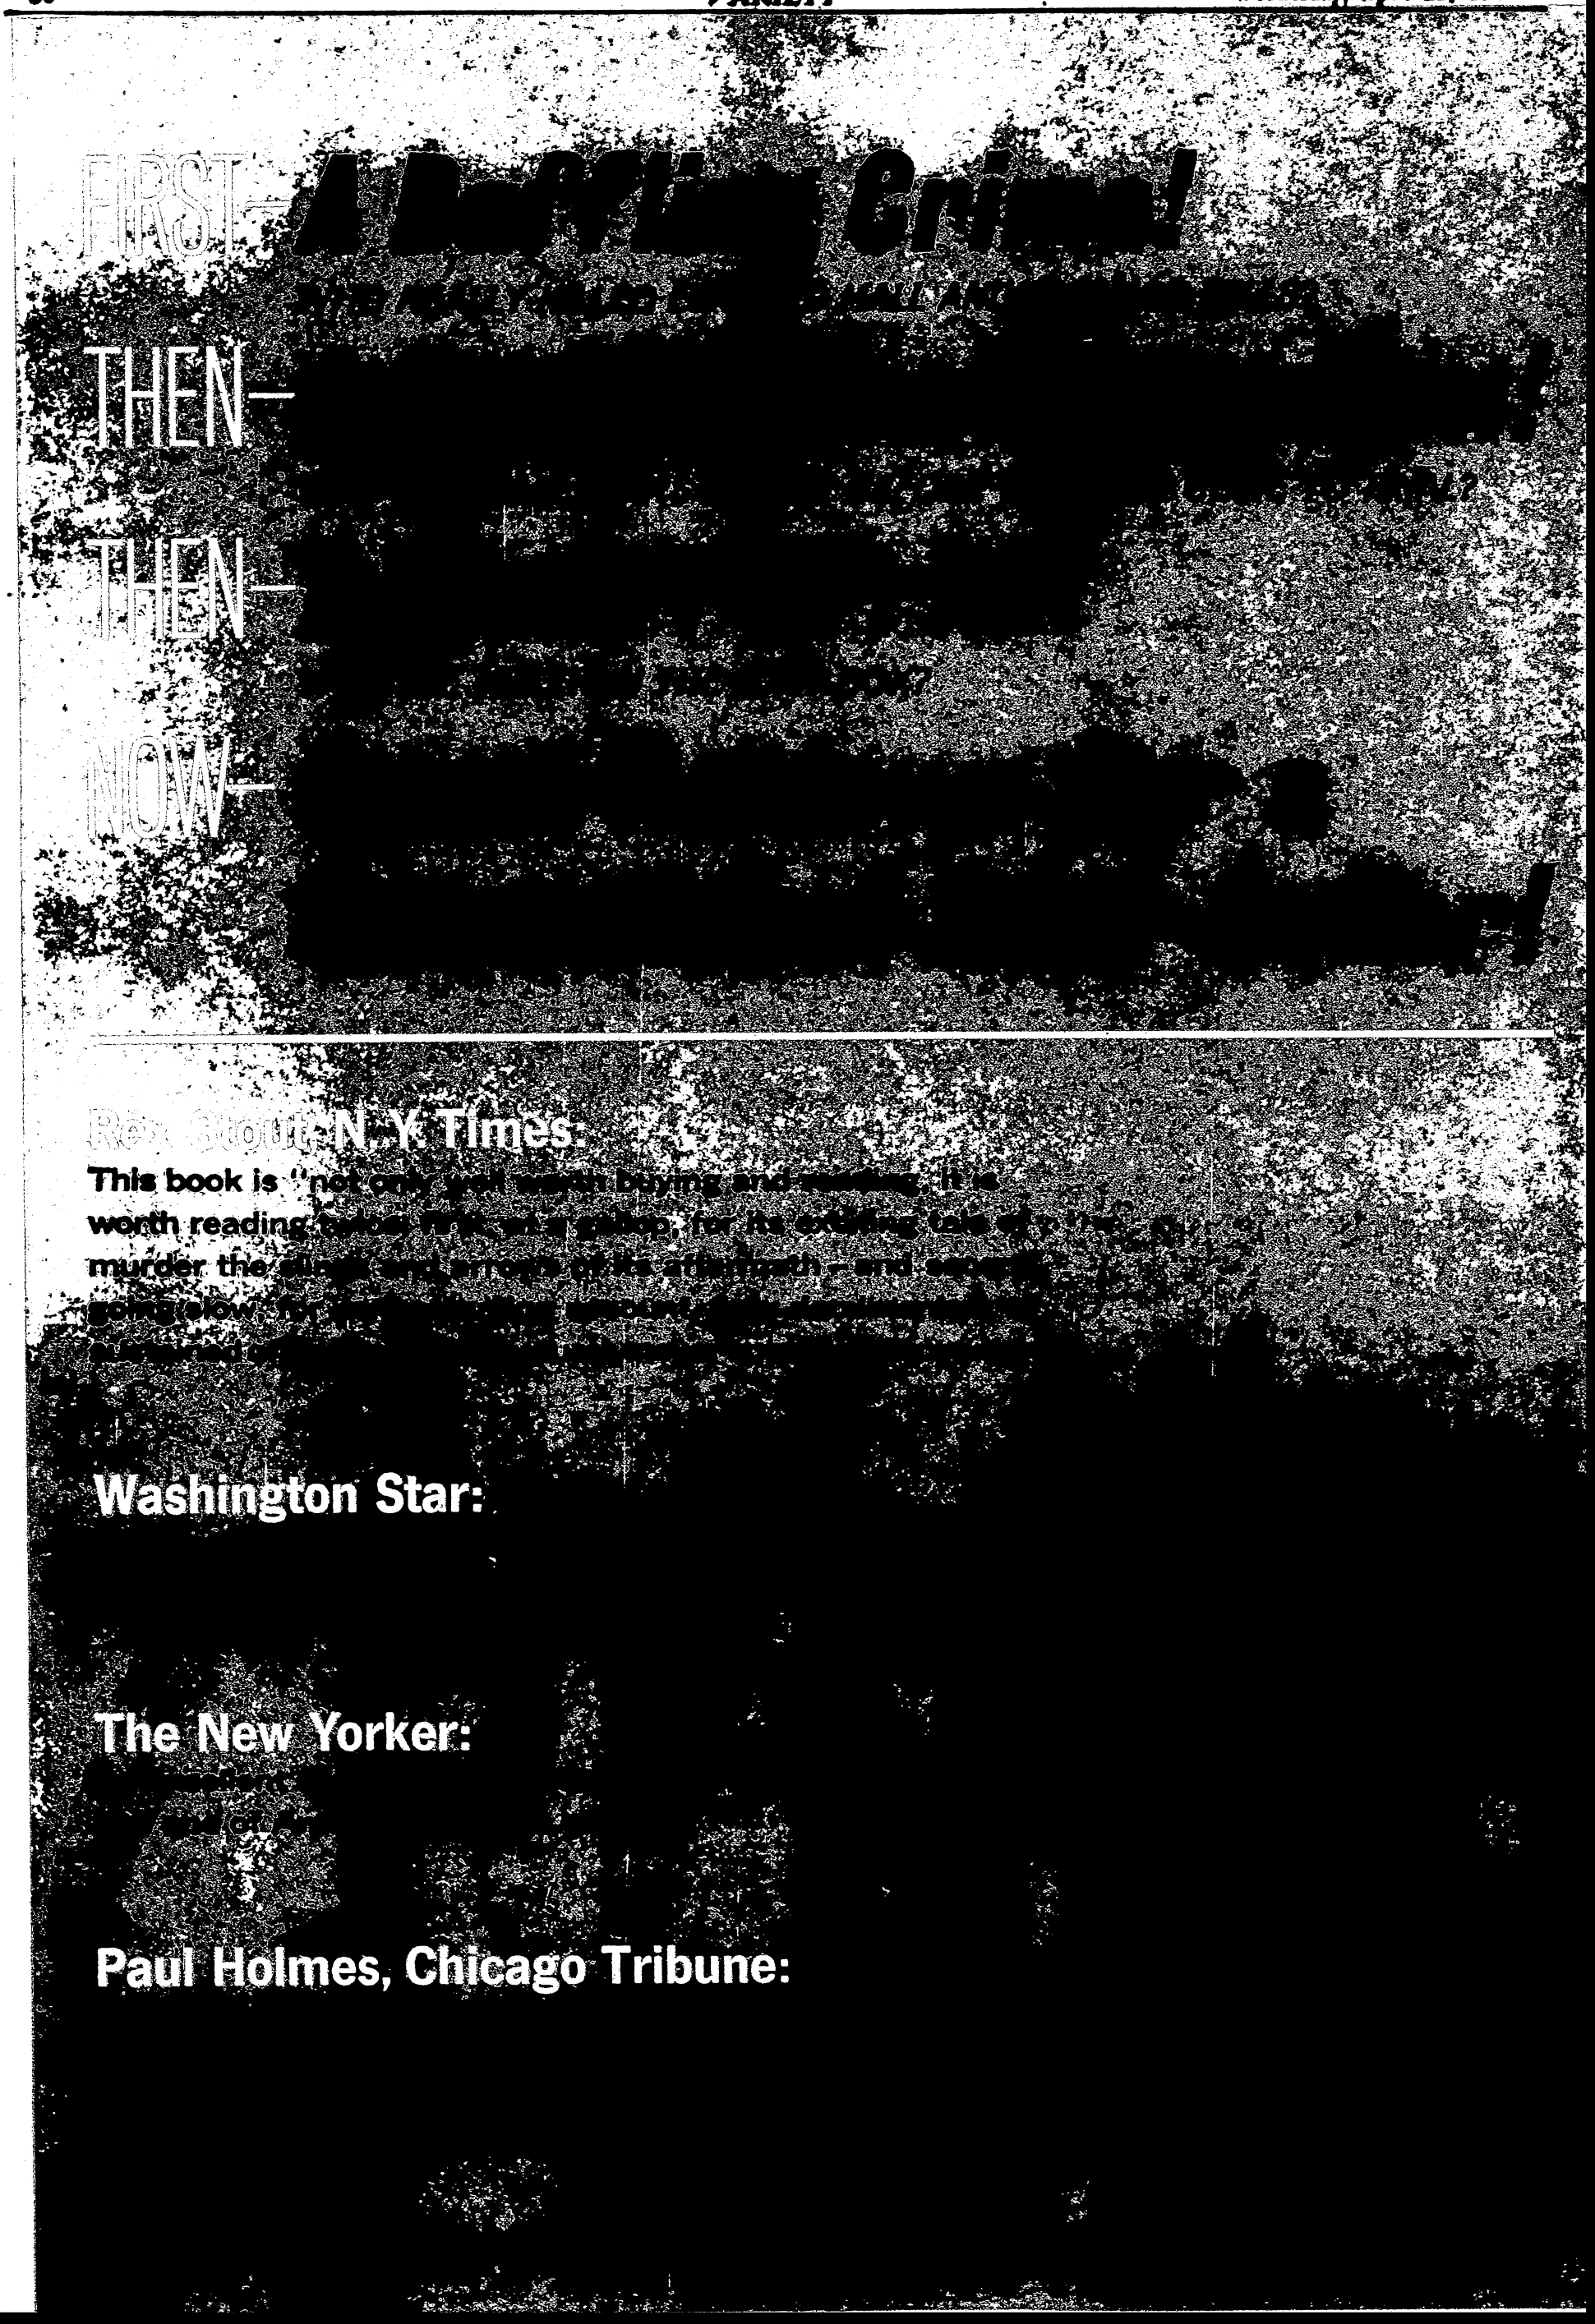
Original Screenplay by DALTON TRUMBO to be filmed in Japan and Hollywood in Color and Widescreen

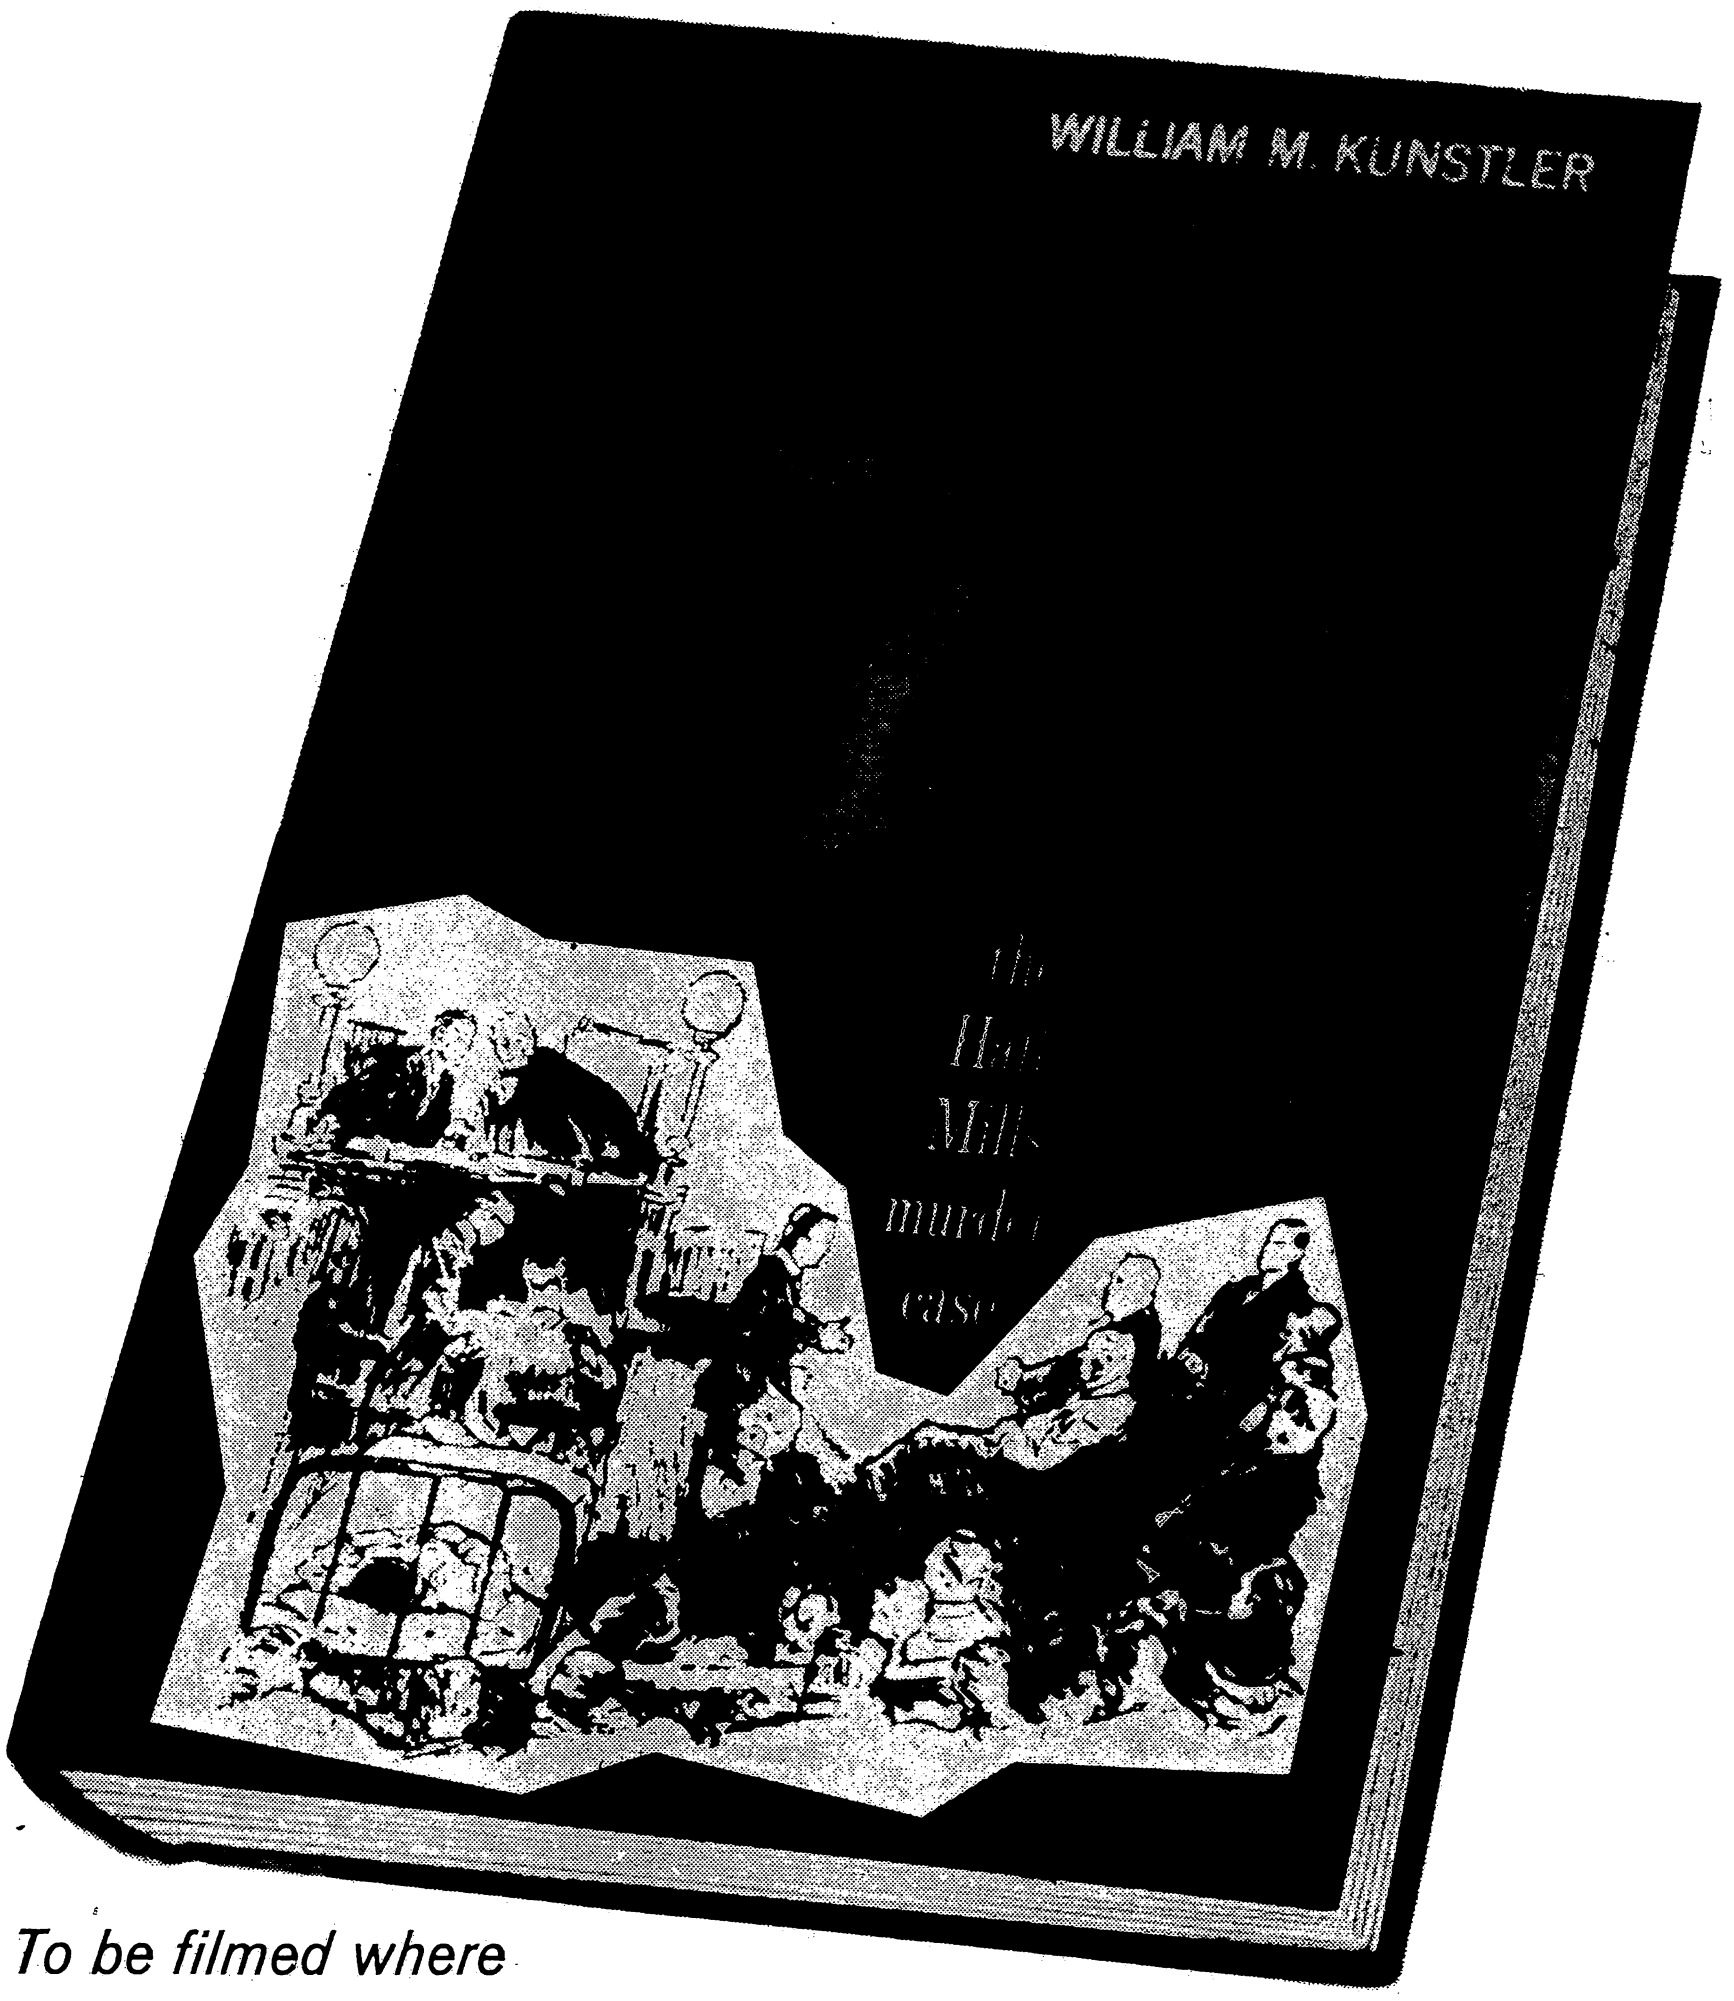
10

The novels of Harold Robbins have sold more than 40,000,000 copies and have been translated into 29 languages. His position as one of the world's most successful authors is undisputed.

In THE ADVENTURERS Harold Robbins tells of the new breed of international playboy. He is the man with one hand on the girl's waist and the other in a man's pocket. His friends are statesmen and gangsters. He looks and lives like a millionaire; usually he's broke.



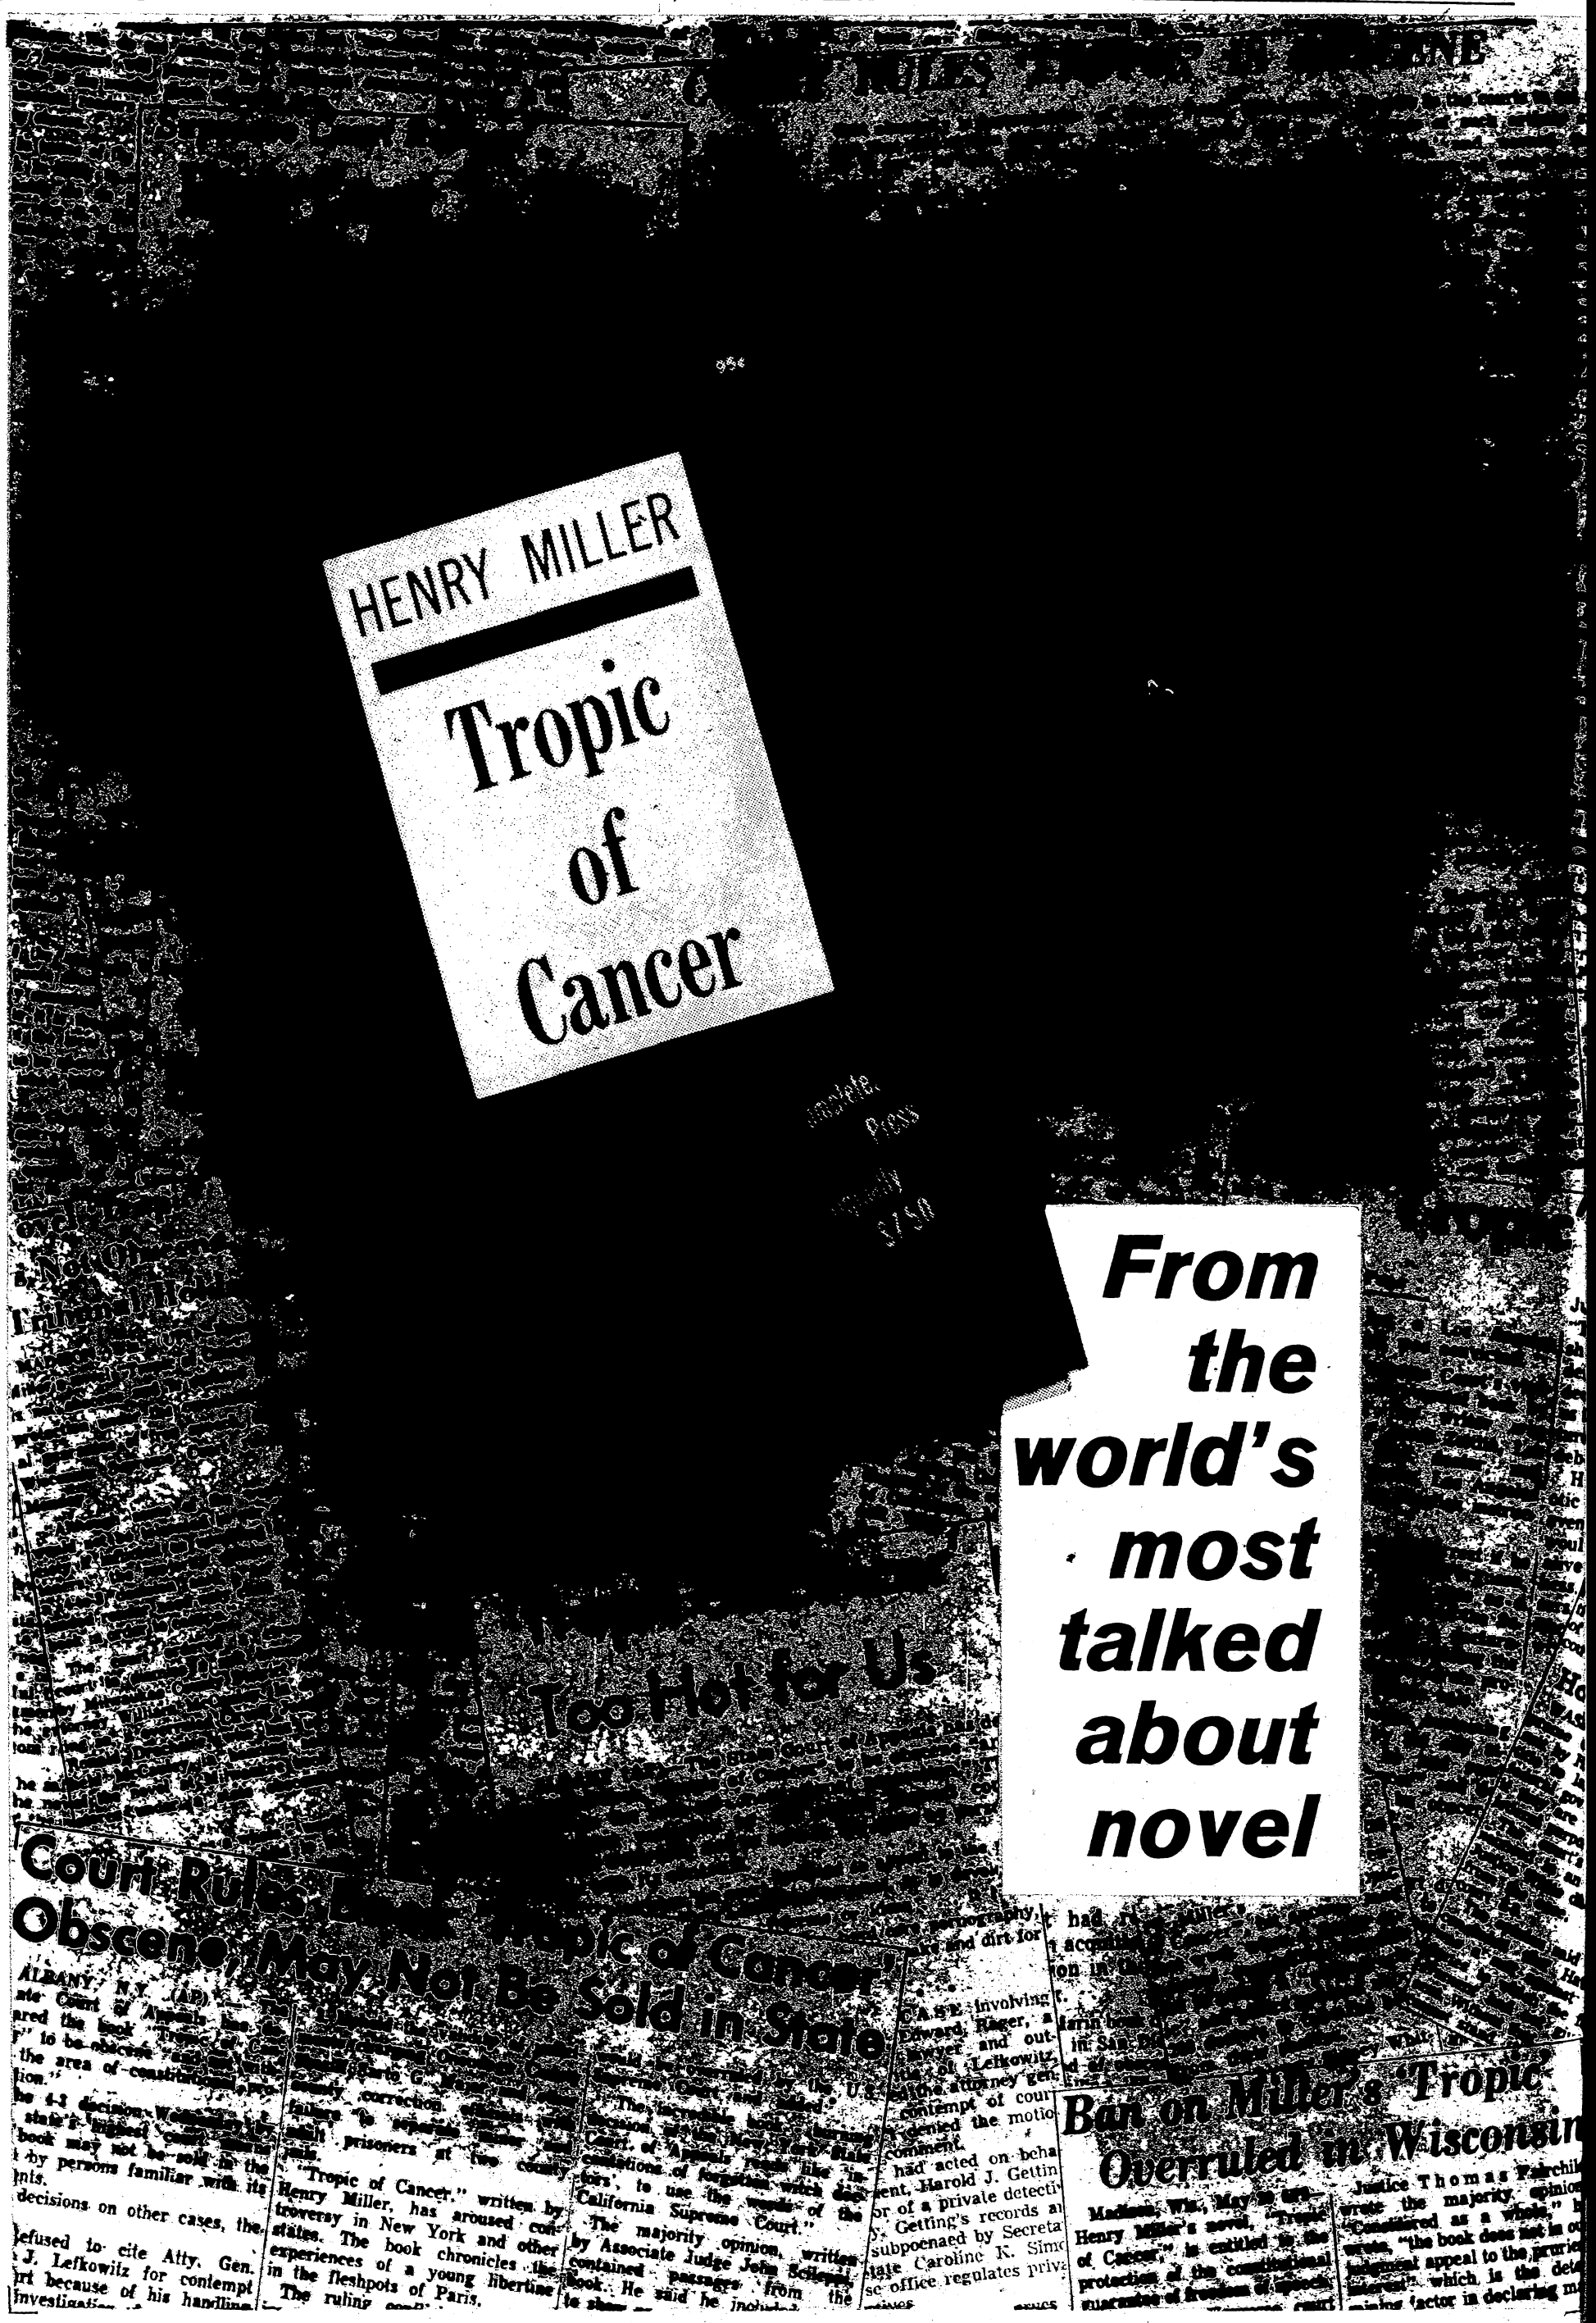
He has many dimensions. He is hard to figure out and almost impossible to understand. Harold Robbins understands him and his world. So will you, when you see



Joseph E. Levine presents

ntur ers

To be filmed in Color and Widescreen in the Jet Capitols of the World



EMBASSY puts the HOW in SHOWmanship!

FIRST—
A brilliant crime!
THEN—
THEN—
NOW—
Rex Stout, N.Y. Times:
This book is "not only worth buying and worth reading;
murder the going slow
Washington Star:
The New Yorker:
Paul Holmes, Chicago Tribune:

To be filmed where it actually happened.
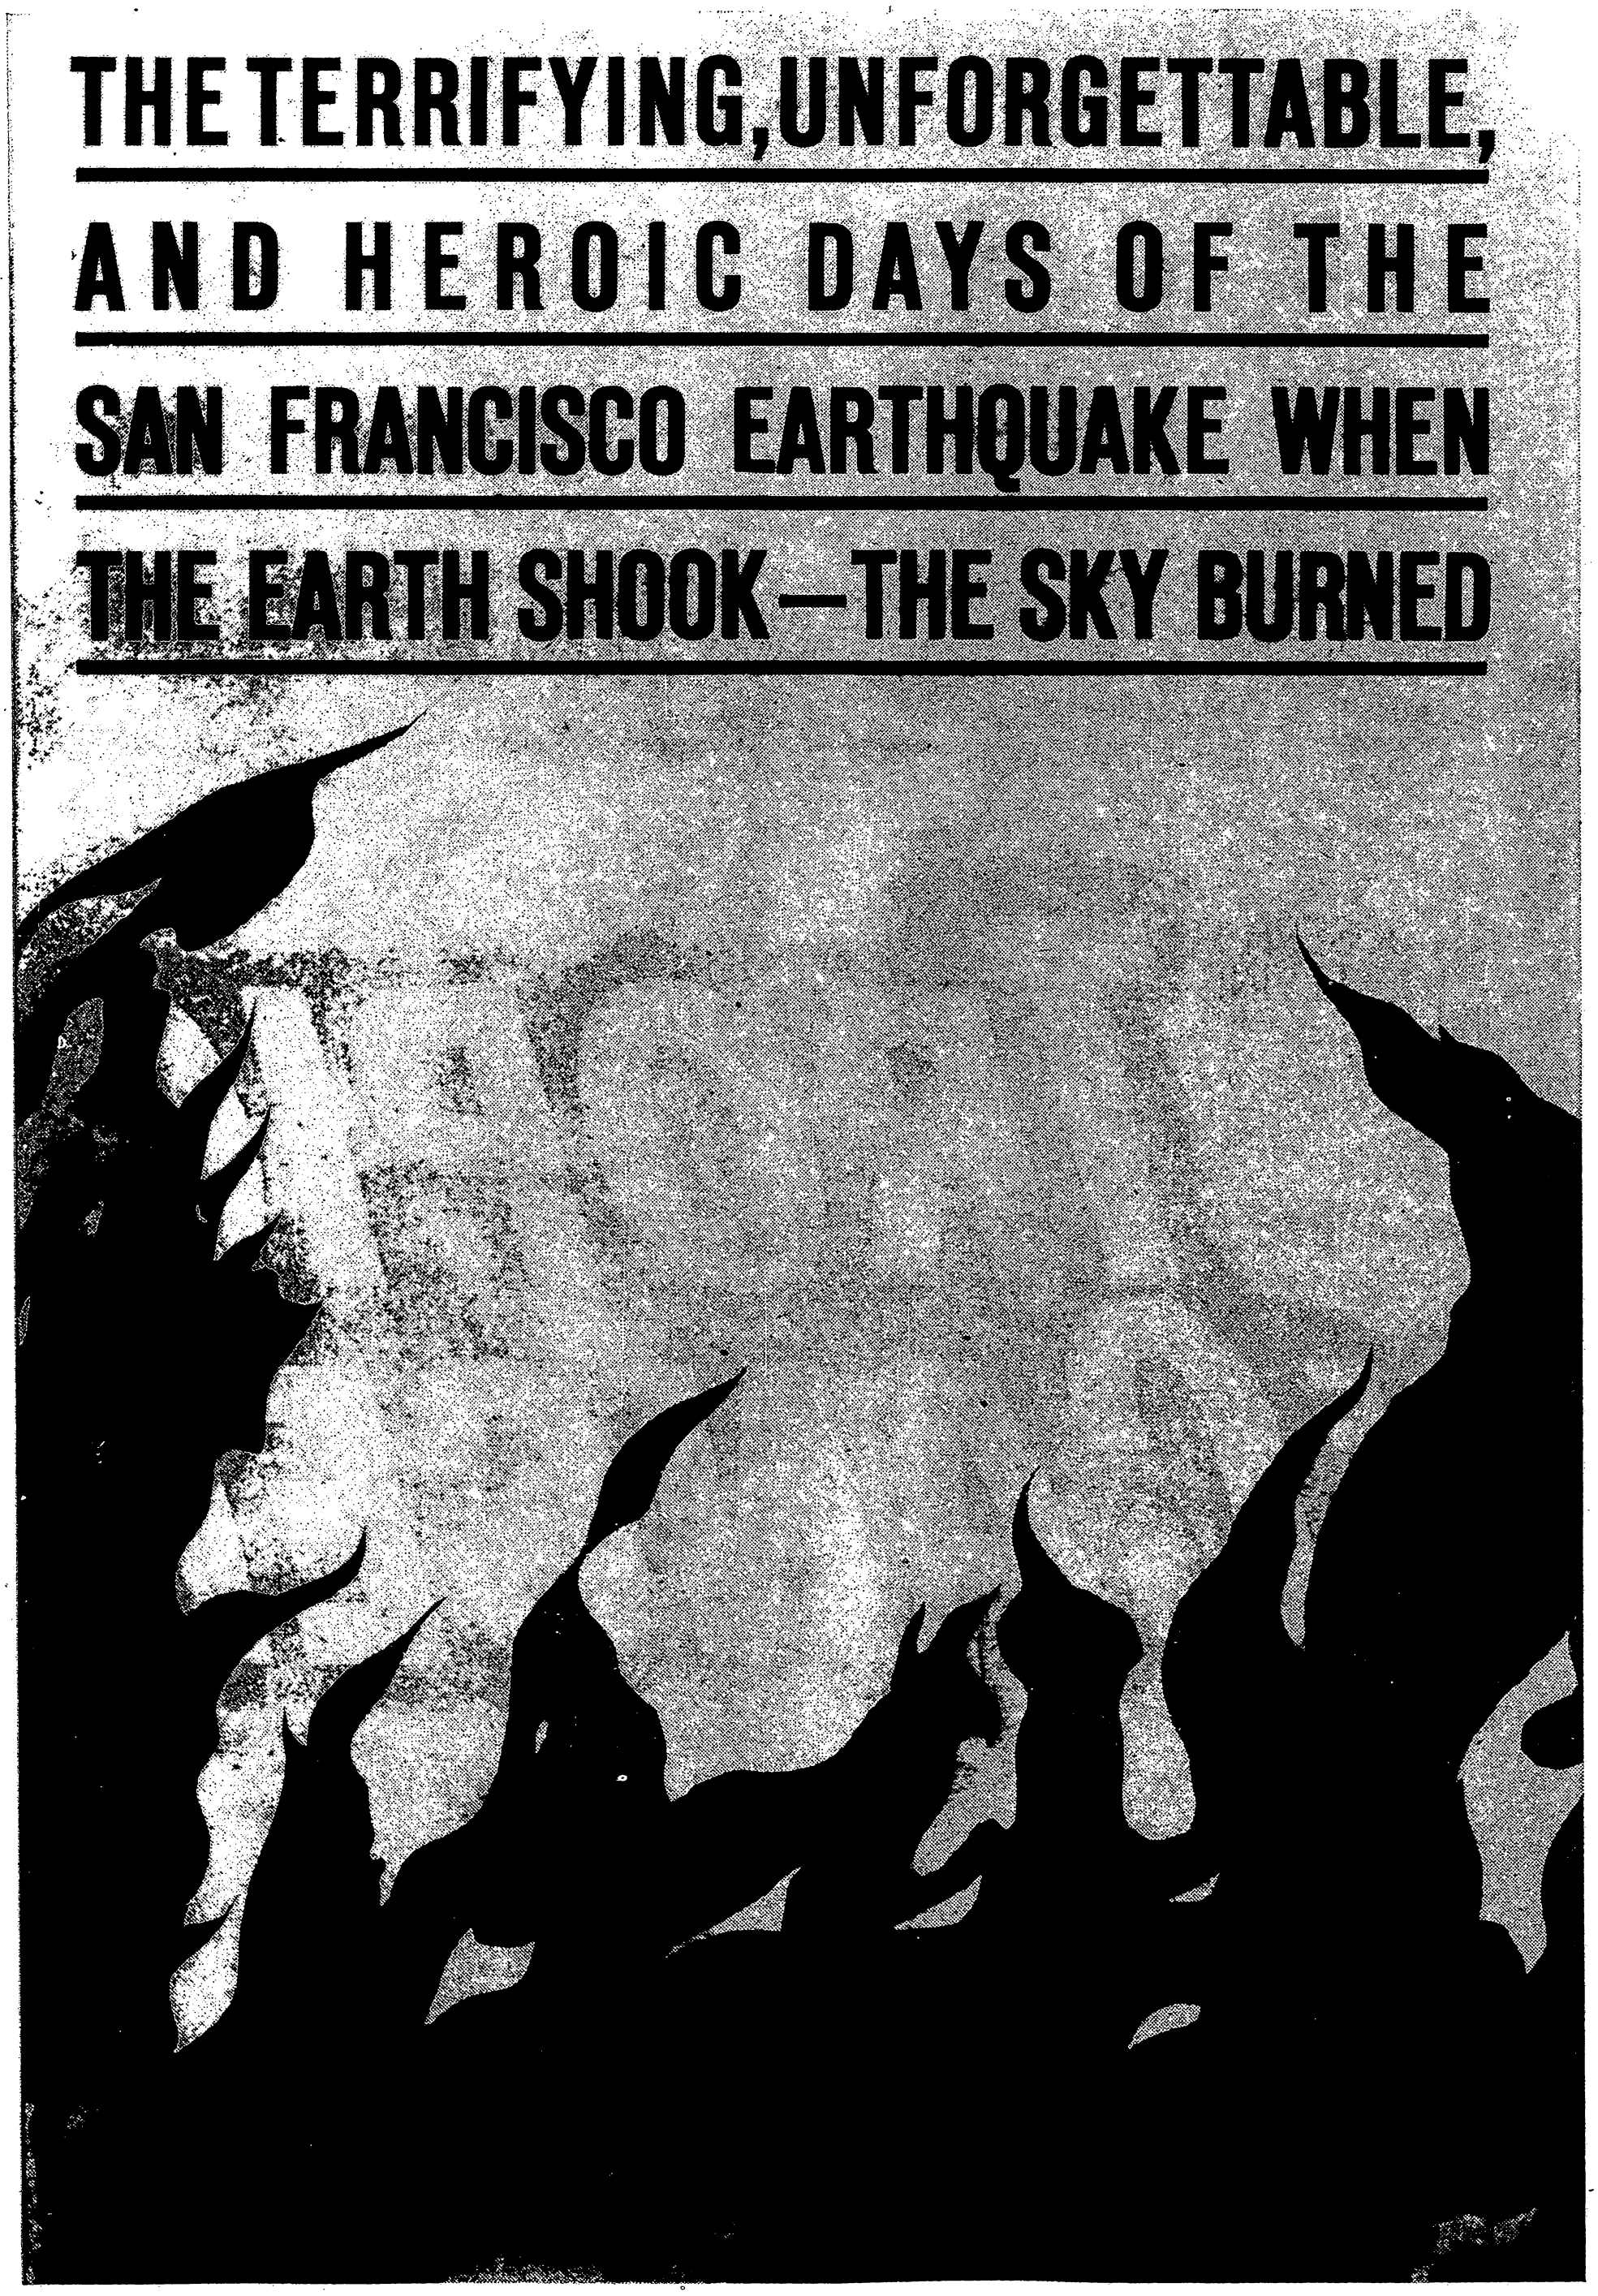
To be written, produced and directed by RUSSELL ROUSE and
CLARENCE GREENE who are now filming "A HOUSE IS NOT A HOME"

EMBASSY puts the HOW in SHOWmanship!

HENRY MILLER
Tropic of Cancer
From the world's most talked about novel
Too Hot for Us
Court Rules 'Tropic of Cancer' Obscene, May Not Be Sold in State
Ban on Miller's 'Tropic' Overruled in Wisconsin

JOSEPH E. LEVINE
presents



TROPIC OF CANCER

to be filmed in Paris

EMBASSY puts the HOW in SHOWmanship!

Color and Widescreen

10

THE TERRIFYING, UNFORGETTABLE, AND HEROIC DAYS OF THE SAN FRANCISCO EARTHQUAKE WHEN
THE EARTH SHOOK—THE SKY BURNED

JOSEPH E. LEVINE presents

THE EARTH SHOOK THE SKY BURNED

To be Filmed on Location in Color and Widescreen

ORIGINAL SCREENPLAY BY NIVEN BUSCH

10 is a dramatic and explosive story about Hollywood's most glittering prize, set against the glamour of the movie world–the fast drives to Palm Springs, the gambling rooms at Las Vegas, the luxury yachts moored off Catalina, the pervading odor of big money and instant fame–and the constant lure of the biggest prize of all, the Oscar, and the climactic night of its award.

It is the story of five world-famous actors who have been nominated for the award...a tough, ruthless, slum-bred young man, ambitious and corrupt;

an arrogant Method actor, self-righteous and cynical, who has made good in Hollywood;

a Grand Old Man of the screen, legendary king of actors, twice winner of the Oscar,
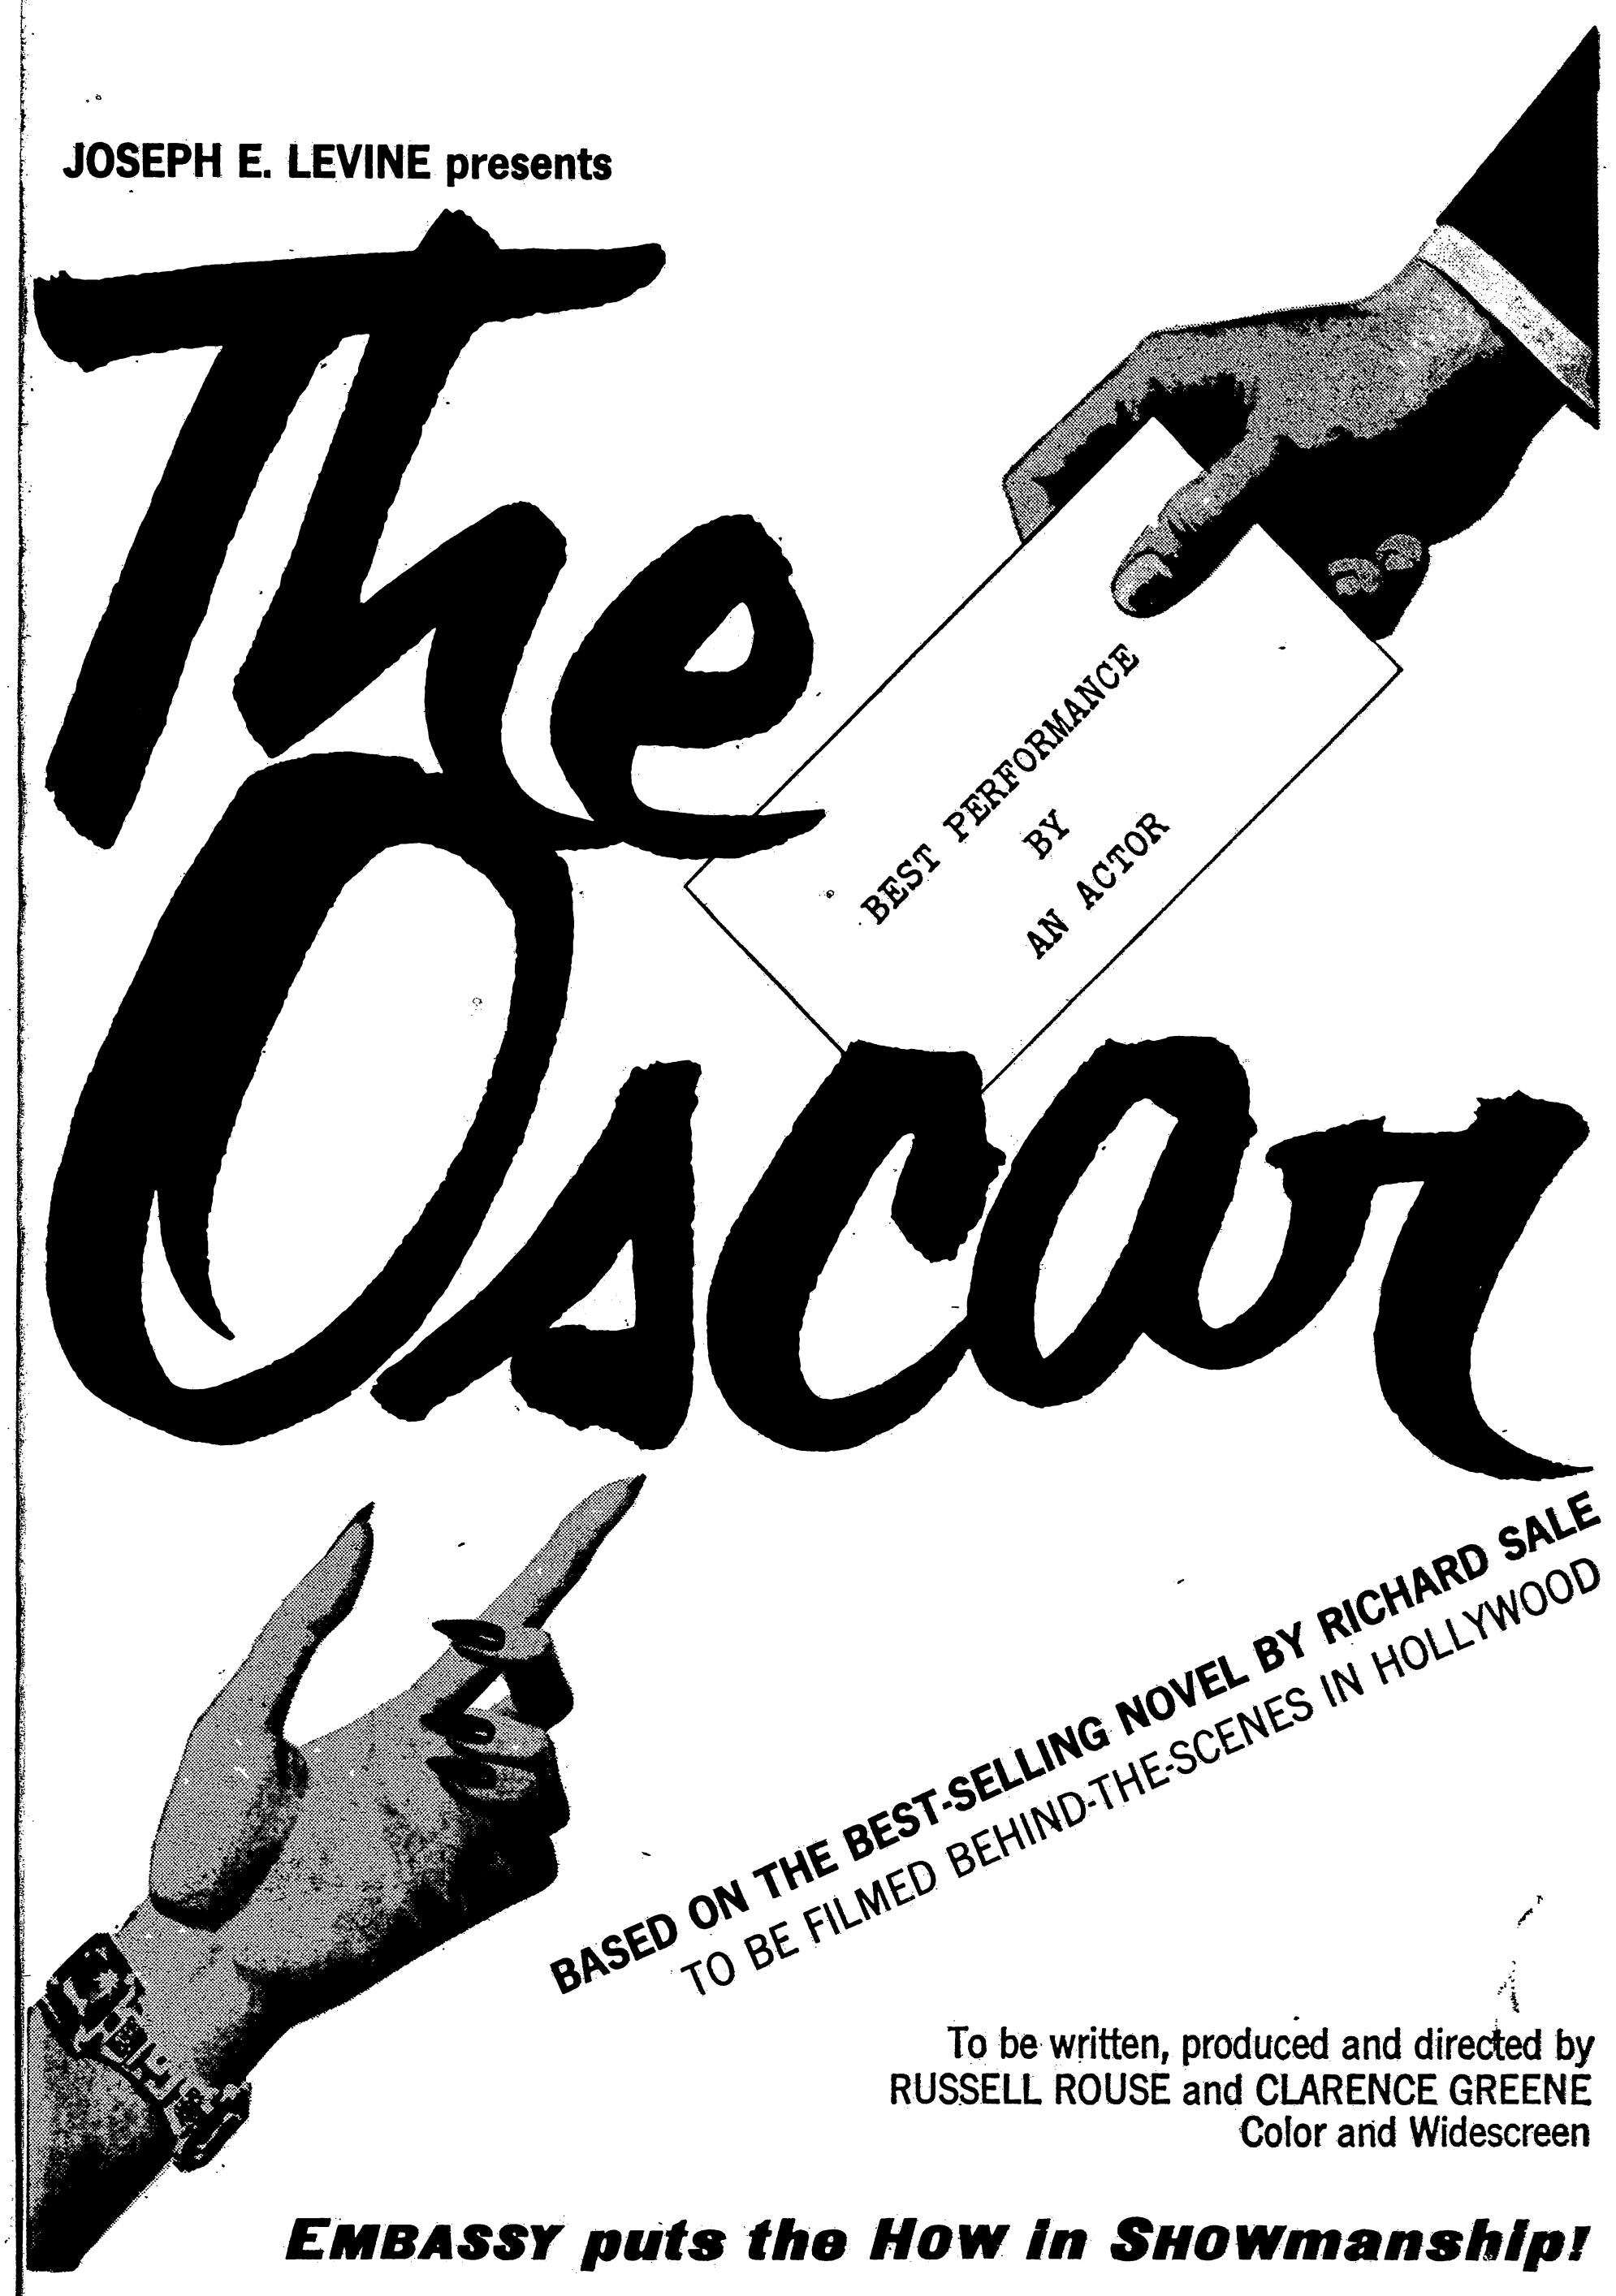
now a jaded drunk;



a flag-waving, right-wing superpatriot, who has made millions playing the hero in war movies despite his record as a draft dodger;

a talented actor from England, legendary for his charm and well known in movie circles for his homosexuality . . .

Pitted against each other in a cutthroat competition for the Oscar, they are plunged into a campaign of blackmail, scandal and innuendo, as each seeks to secure his chances.

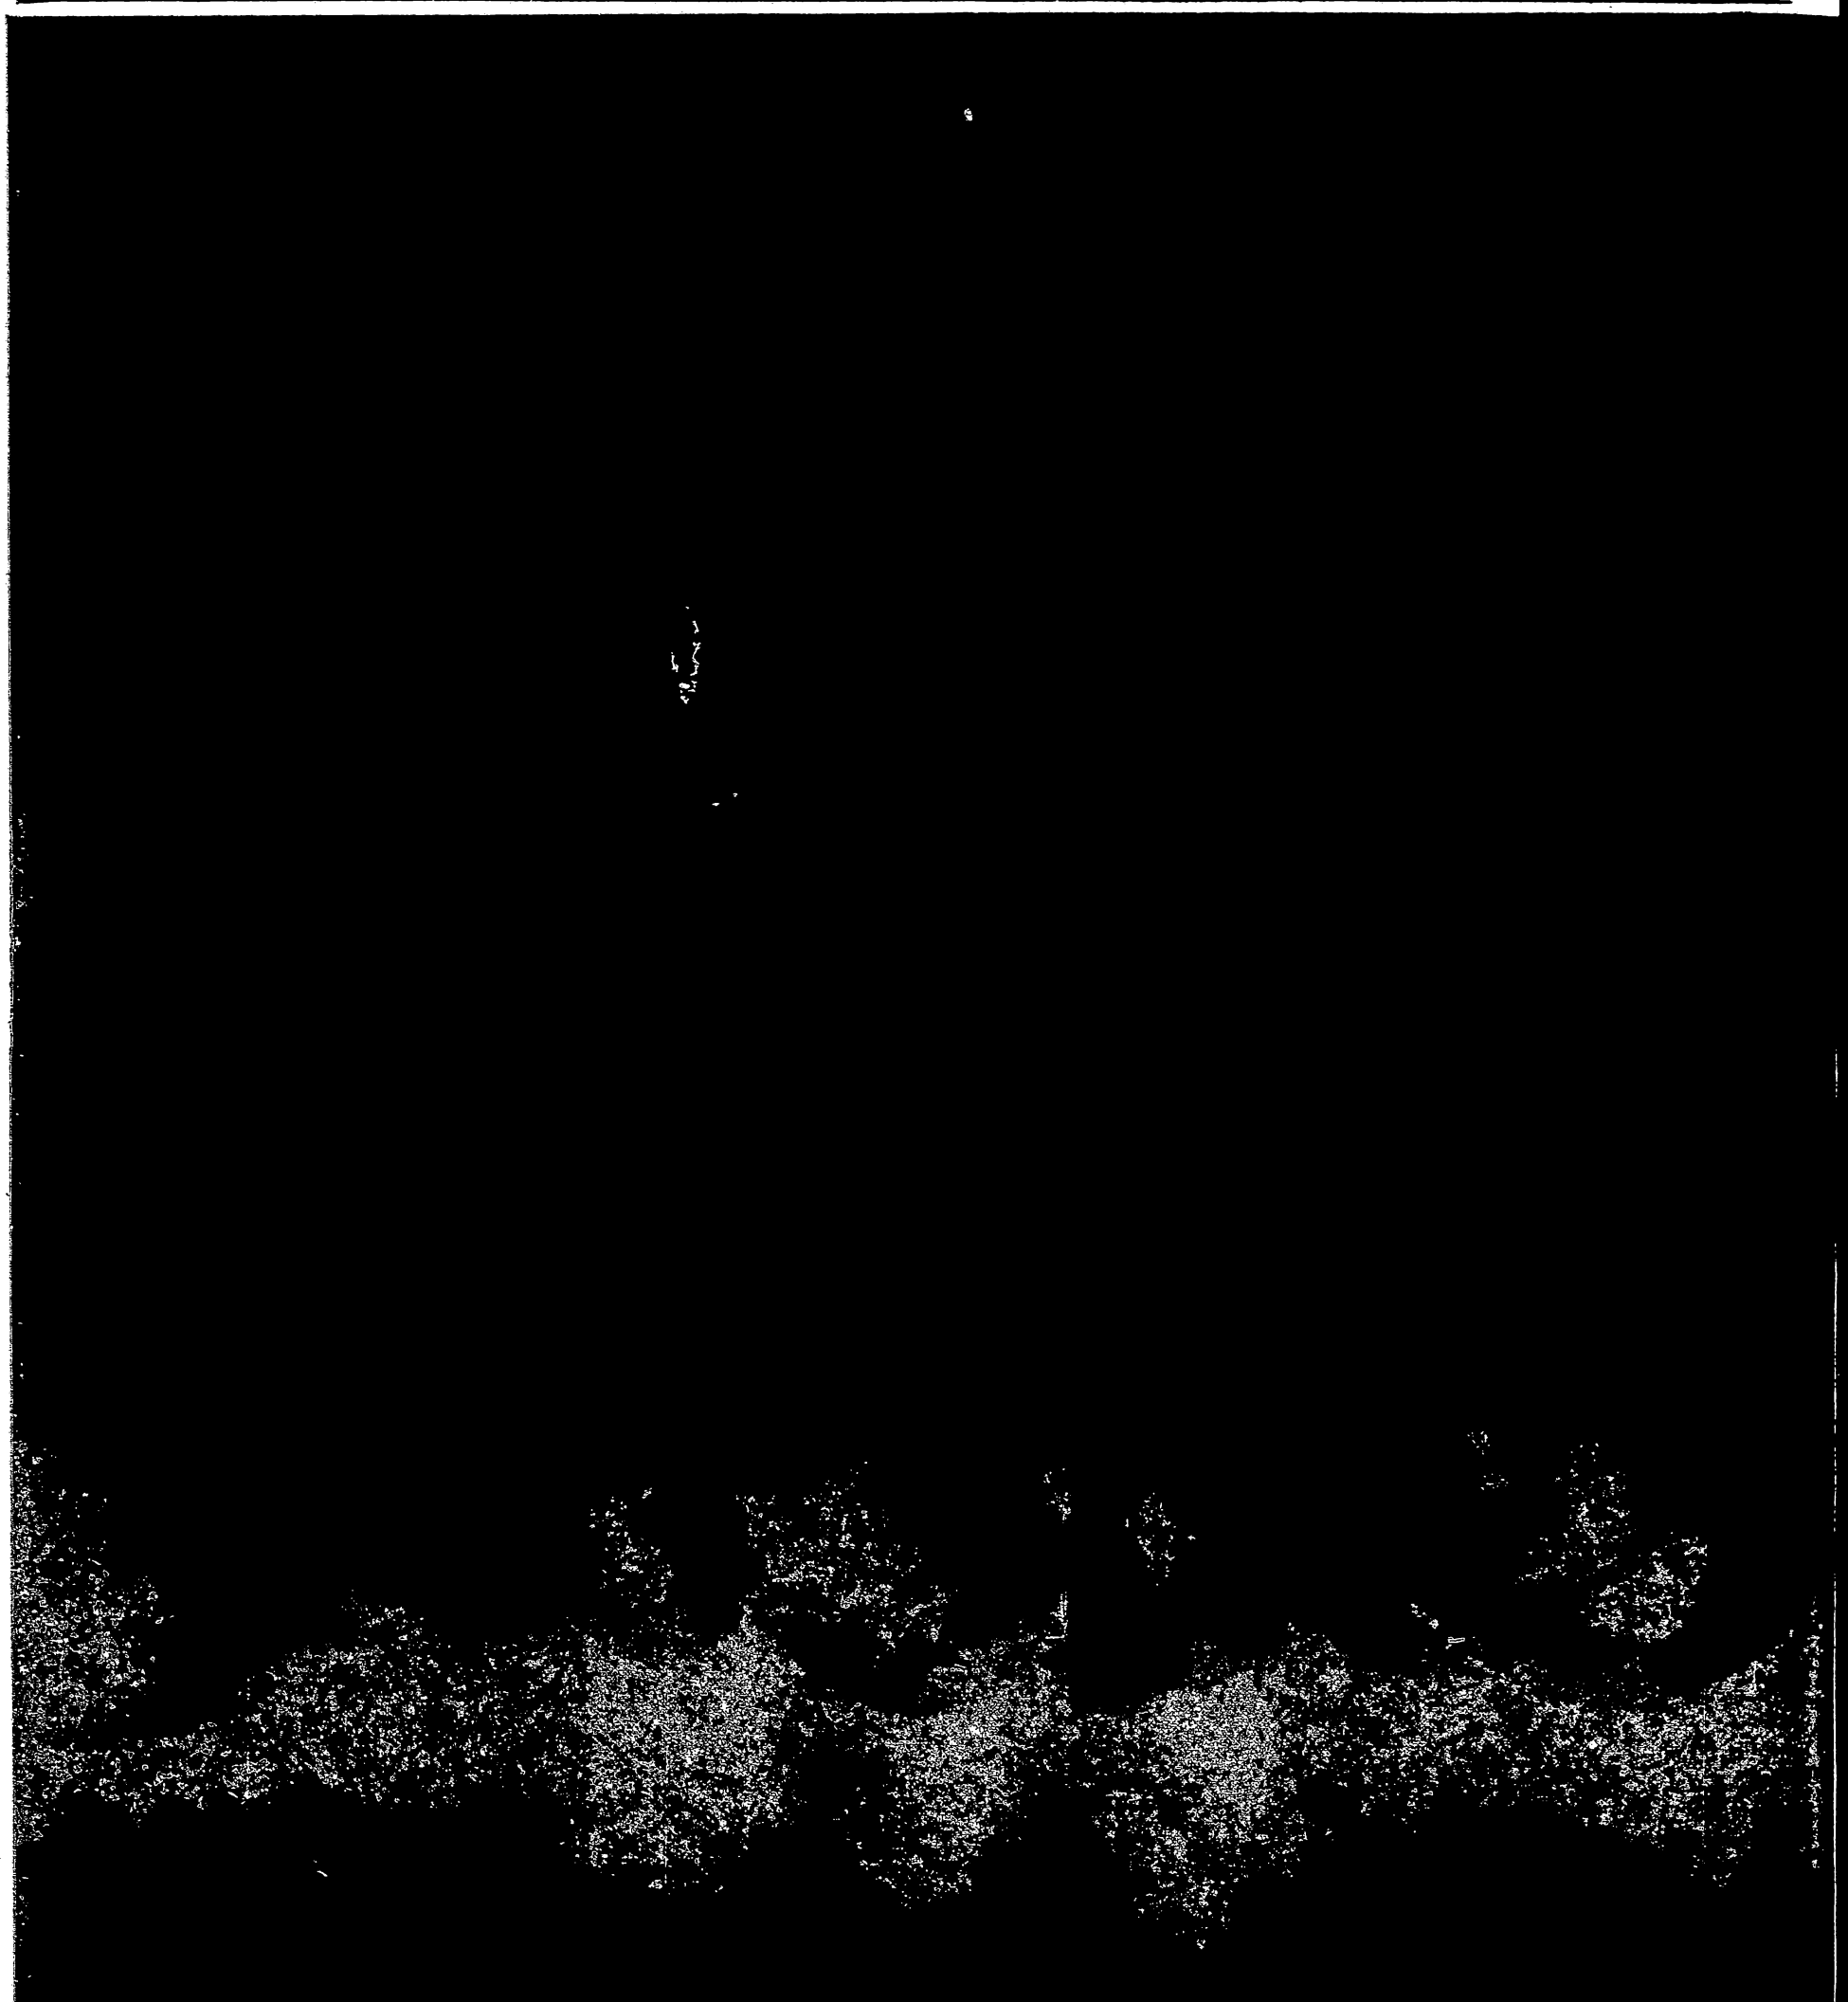
JOSEPH E. LEVINE presents



The Oscar

BASED ON THE BEST-SELLING NOVEL BY RICHARD SALE TO BE FILMED BEHIND-THE-SCENES IN HOLLYWOOD

To be written, produced and directed by RUSSELL ROUSE and CLARENCE GREENE
Color and Widescreen

EMBASSY puts the HOW in SHOWmanship!

...From the production team that brought you "TWO WOMEN", "BOCCACIO '70" and this year's record-breaking hit
"YESTERDAY, TODAY AND TOMORROW"!

...and starring
the greatest team since
GILBERT and GARBO,
GABLE and HARLOW!

JOSEPH E. LEVINE presents

SOPHIA Loren MARCELLO Mastroianni

EMBASSY

in Vittorio De Sica's

Marriage Italian Style

PRODUCED BY Carlo Ponti

SCREENPLAY BY EDUARDO DE FLIPPO

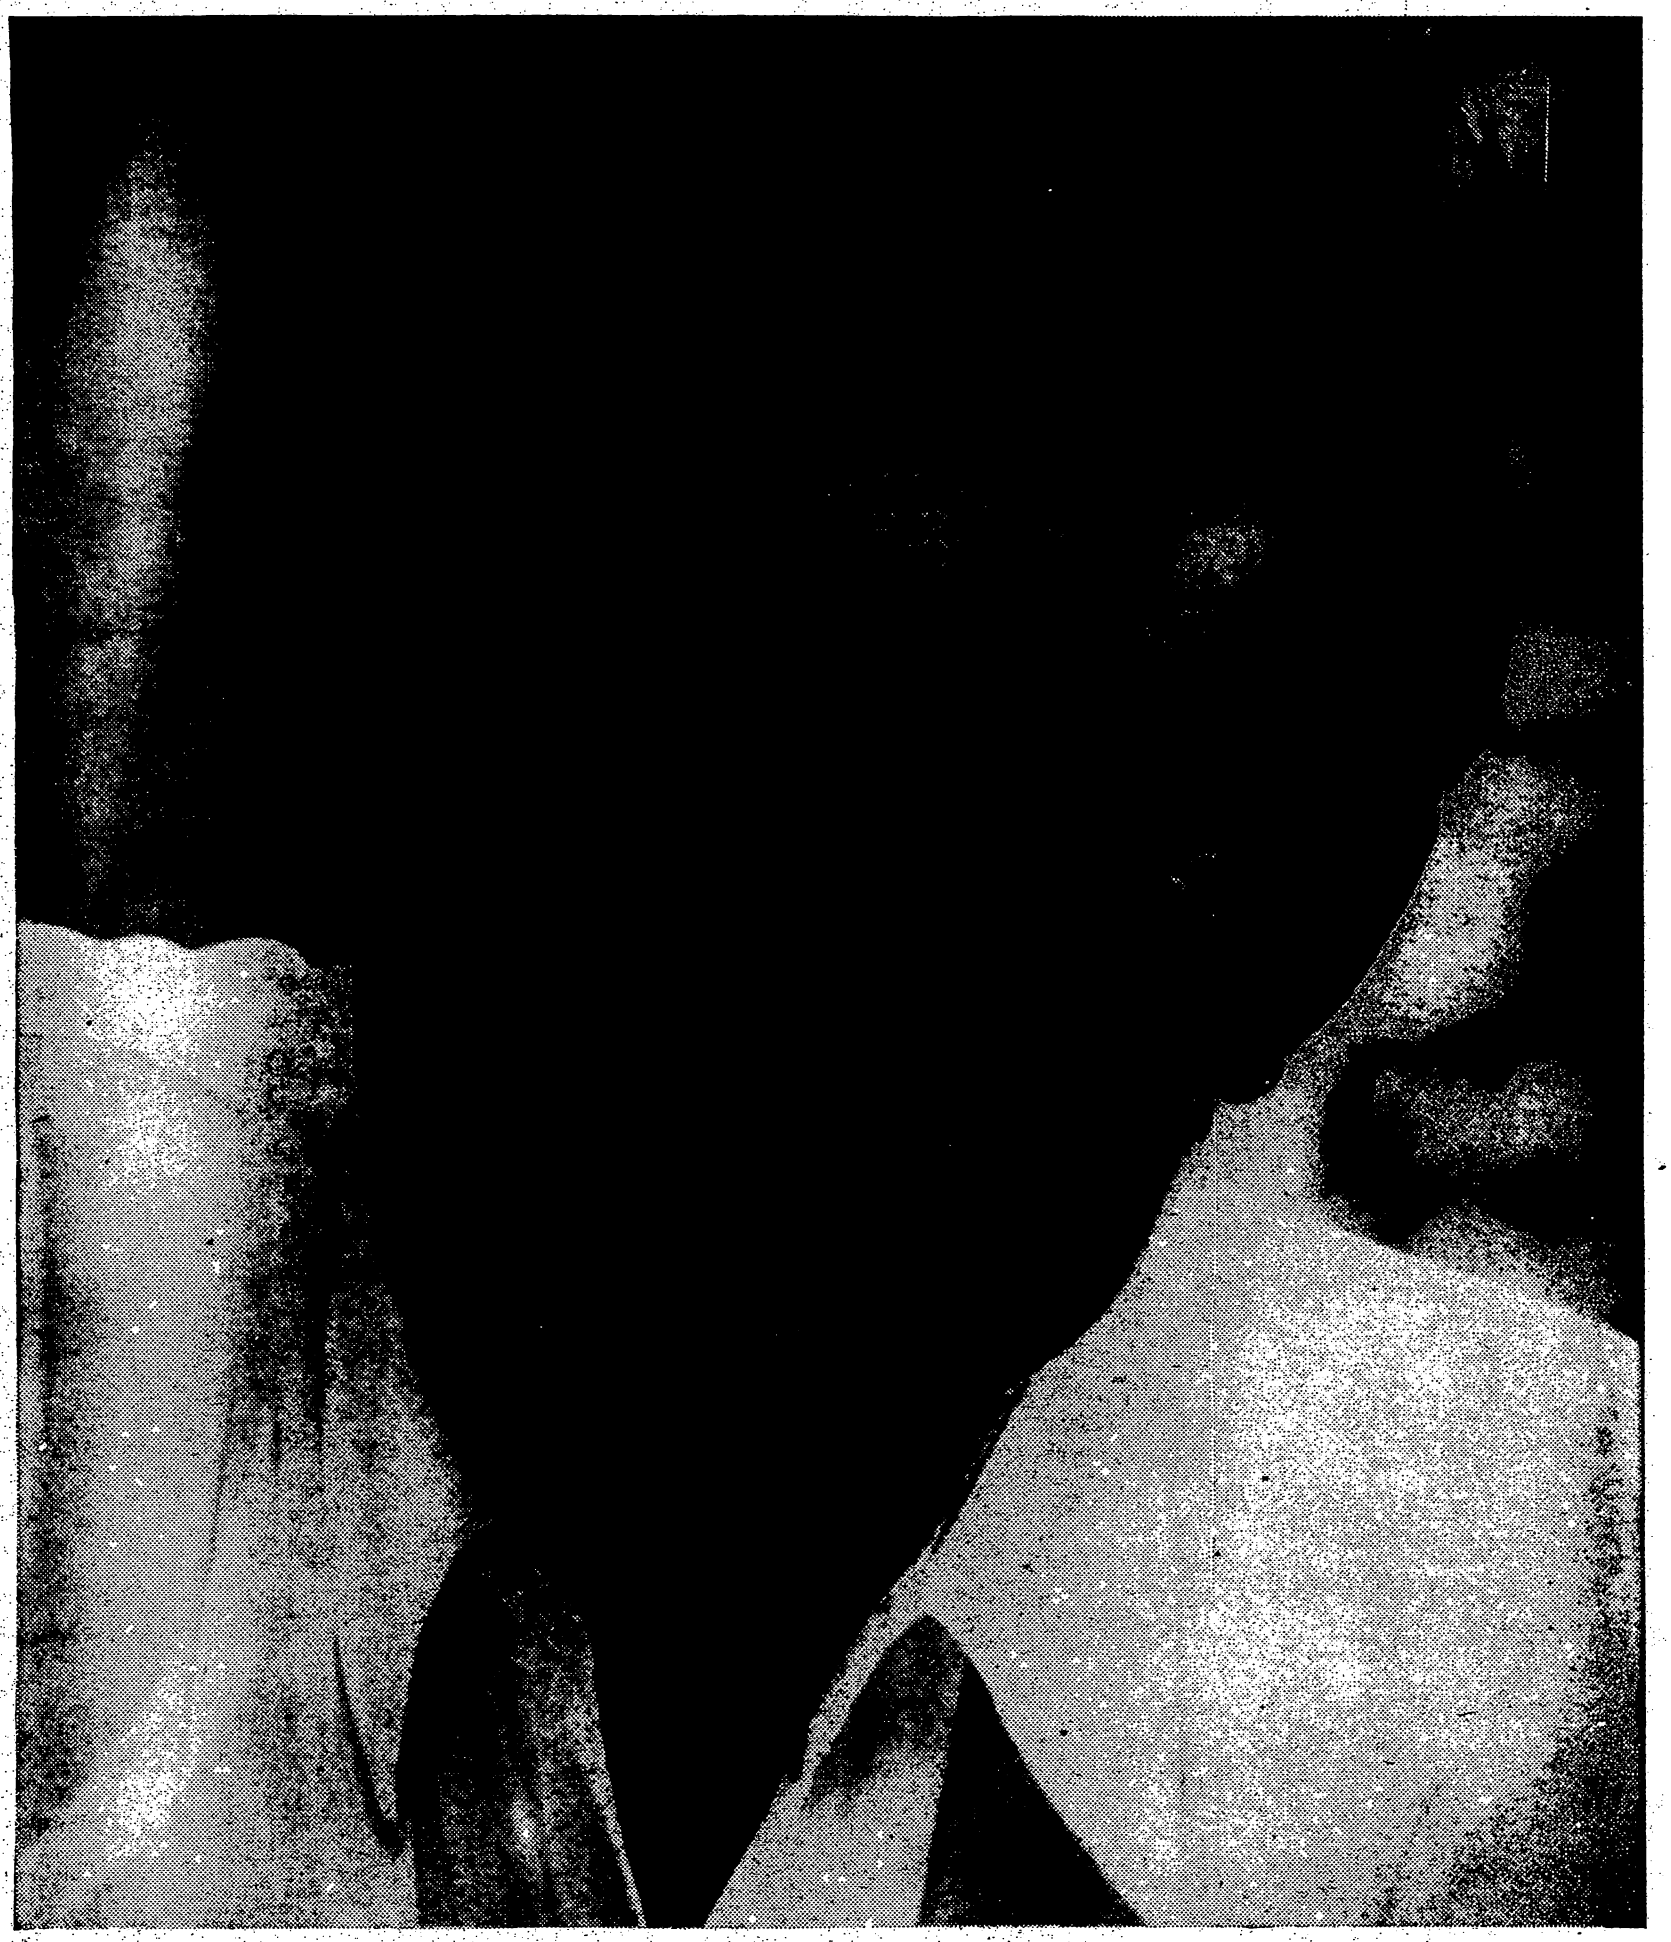
COLOR and WIDESCREEN



NOW FILMING IN ROME AND NAPLES

AVAILABLE FOR CHRISTMAS RELEASE

FOR THE WHOLE WORLD FROM EMBASSY puts the How in Showmanship!

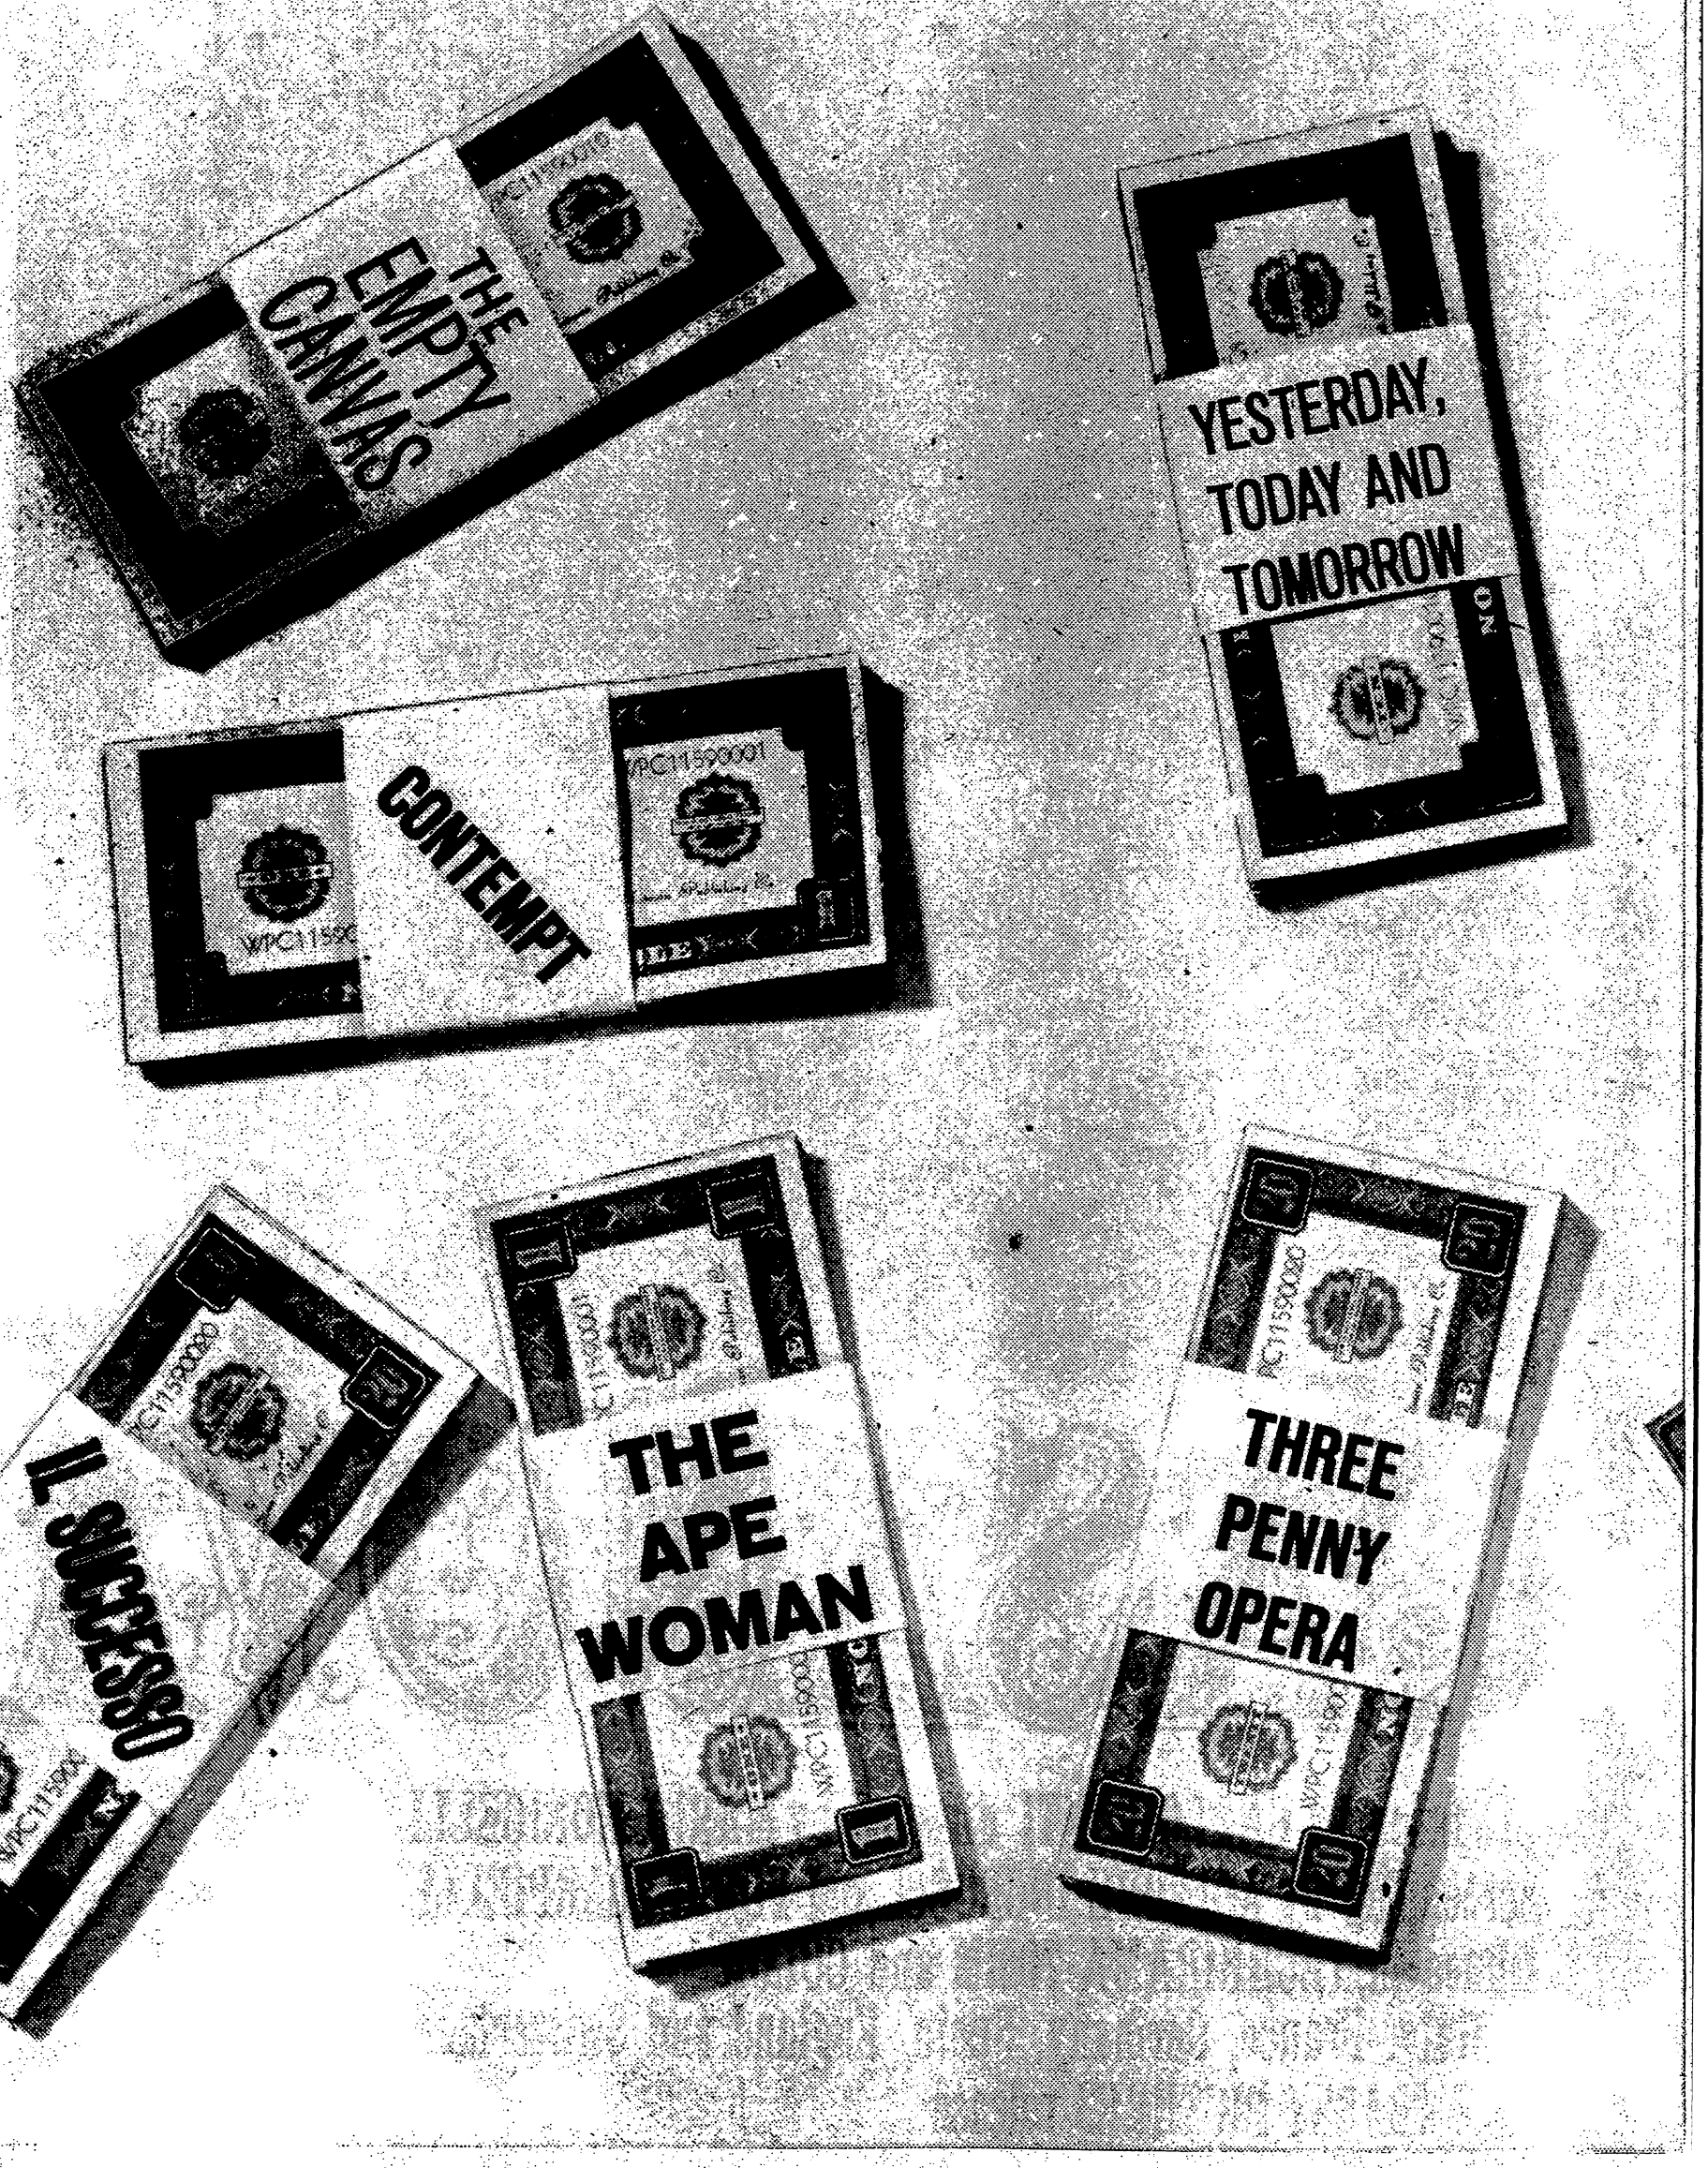
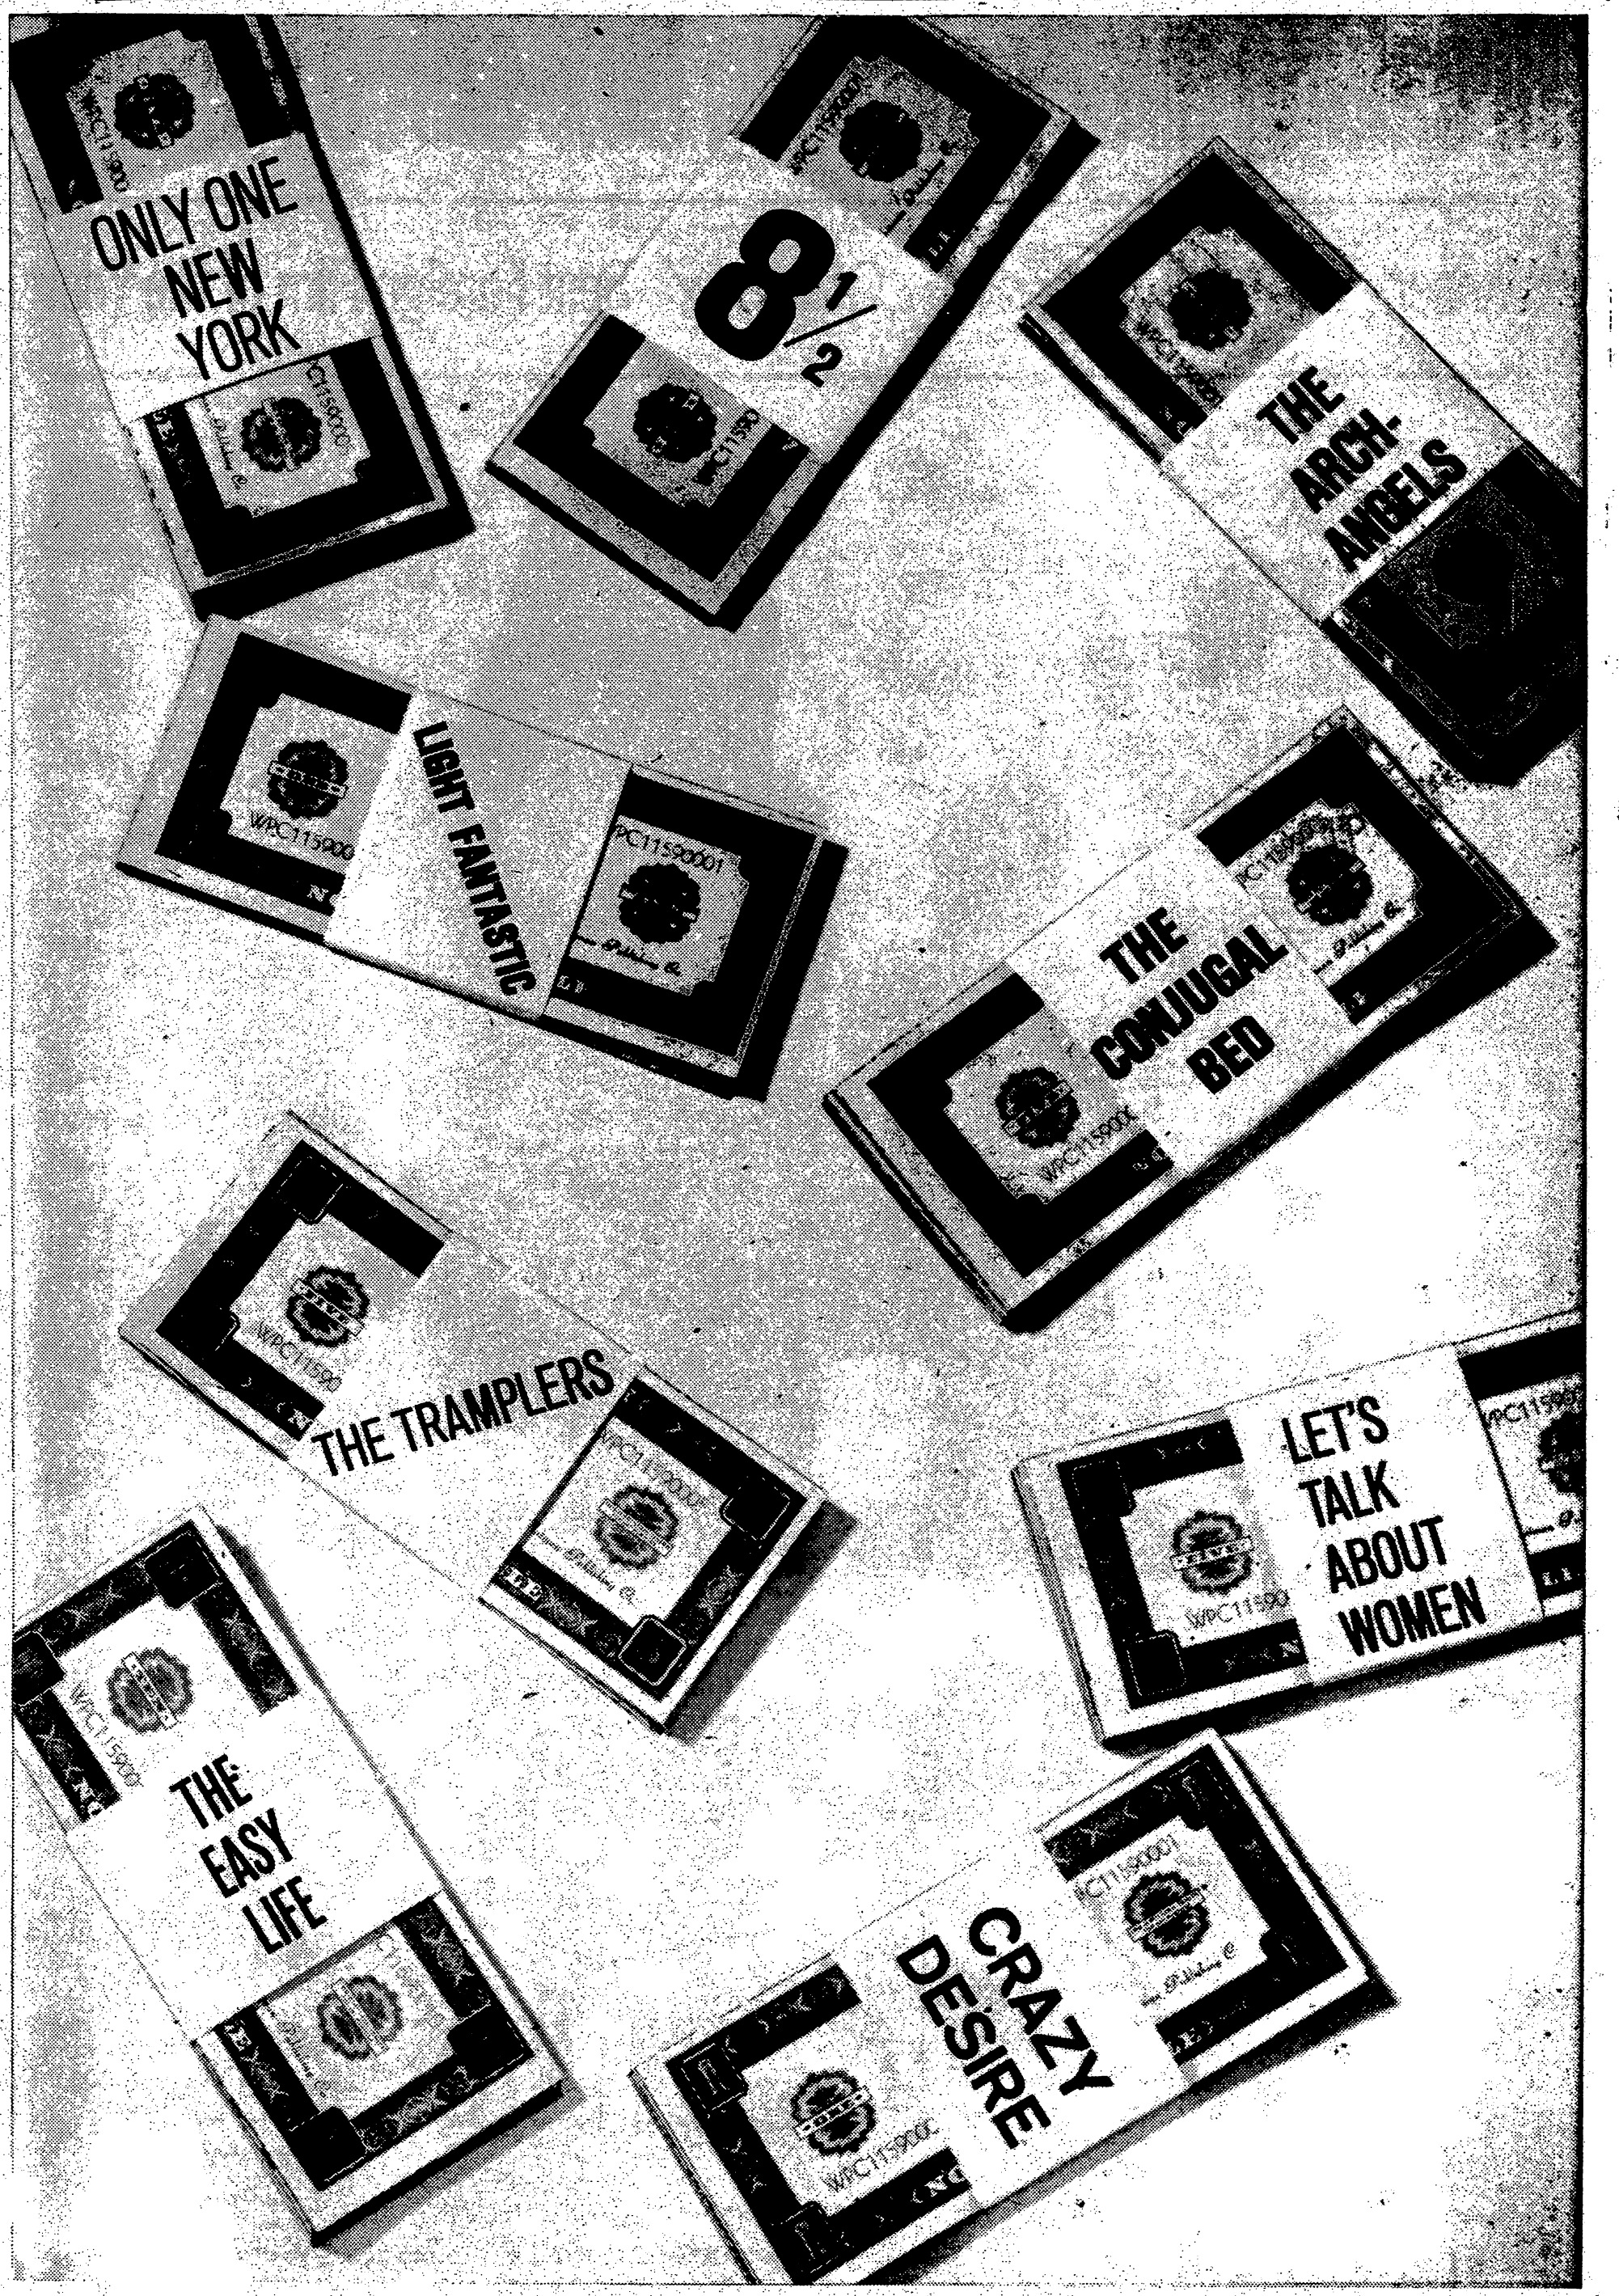
STARTS FILMING JULY 1ST





CASANOVA

produced by CARLO PONTI directed by MARIO MONICELLI screenplay by AGINORE INCROCCI and FURIO SCARPIELLI filmed in TECHNIRAMA 70MM and COLOR in Italy, France, Germany, Spain, England and Switzerland
an EMBASSY PICTURES release

A NEW WORLD

of box-office entertainment from Joseph E. Levine!

ONLY ONE NEW YORK
8 1/2
THE ARCH-ANGELS
LIGHT FANTASTIC
THE CONJUGAL BED
THE TRAMPLERS
LET'S TALK ABOUT WOMEN
THE EASY LIFE
CRAZY DESIRE

Breaking every existing box-office record

Winner–Golden Globe Award–Best Foreign Film of the Year

A NEW WORLD
SHOWMANSHIP FOR SHOWMEN OF THE WORLD

AVAILABLE NOW FOR THE WHOLE WORLD

JOSEPH E. LEVINE presents

SOPHIA LOREN AS THE COURTESAN, THE WIFE, THE MISTRESS...

MARCELLO MASTROIANNI AS THE LOVER, THE LOVER, THE LOVER...

in VITTORIO DE SICA'S

YESTERDAY, TODAY AND TOMORROW IN COLOR

Produced by CARLO PONTI

Screenplay by ALBERTO MORAVIA, CESARE ZAVATTINI, EDUARDO De FILIPPO

A CHAMPION-CONCORDIA FILM • AN EMBASSY PICTURES RELEASE

In New York, Washington and Los Angeles!

"'Yesterday, Today and Tomorrow' is a wonderfully elaborated burlesque... the details had better go undescribed, because they defy description. Miss Loren is a female of dazzling temperament and Mr. Mastroianni is hilarious as a hot voluptuary, Italian style."

— Bosley Crowther, N. Y. Times

"SEX SEX SEX! You can now spend two hours wallowing in Sophia Loren's lavish and wonderful charms as she cavorts in various stages of undress, pregnancy and promiscuity, climaxed by a final strip-tease that sets the screen a-sizzle!"

— Judith Crist, Herald Tribune

"ONE OF THE MOST SCREAMINGLY FUNNY PICTURES OF ALL TIME!"

— James O'Neill, Jr., Washington Daily News

"IT WILL BE WISE TO LOOSEN THE GIRDLE OF THE NEW EASTER FINERY WHEN YOU SET DOWN TO LAUGH WITH 'YESTERDAY, TODAY AND TOMORROW.' Sophia Loren lets down her hair and bodice to show just how thoroughly the right girl can take over a picture! Laughter is the tone of the picture, but there is variety enough to permit Sophia to romp from rowdy, raucous, violence all the way to (for her) quiet subtlety. It is a merry carnival of fun with Sophia always the queen!"

— Alton Cook, World Telegram

"Loren and Mastroianni are the day's most dynamic film actors!"

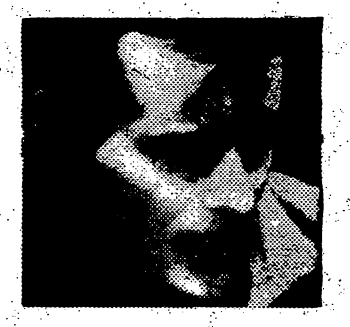
— Richard L. Coe, Washington Post

"Rowdy, earthy, full of laughs!"

— George H. Jackson, Los Angeles Herald Examiner

"HILARIOUS!"

— Time Magazine



EMBASSY puts the HOW in SHOWmanship!

In a villa...in a garret... couch...on a beach...there is the most startling film

A NEW WORLD OF SHOWMANSHIP FOR SHOWMEN OF THE WORLD

Joseph E Levine presents

HORST BUCHHOLZ

CATHERINE SPAAK

and Miss BETTE DAVIS

in

THE EMPTY CANVAS

AVAILABLE NOW FOR THE WHOLE WORLD

in a car...in a park...on a are six reasons why this that you will ever see!!!

Based on the novel by Alberto Moravia

Produced by
CARLO PONTI

Directed by Damiano Damiani

A Champion-Concordia Film

An Embassy Pictures Release

EMBASSY puts the How in SHOWmanship!

A NEW WORLD OF SHOWMANSHIP FOR SHOWMEN OF THE WORLD

Bardot at her bold, bare and brazen best!

EMBASSY puts the HOW in SHOWmanship!

JOSEPH E. LEVINE
presents

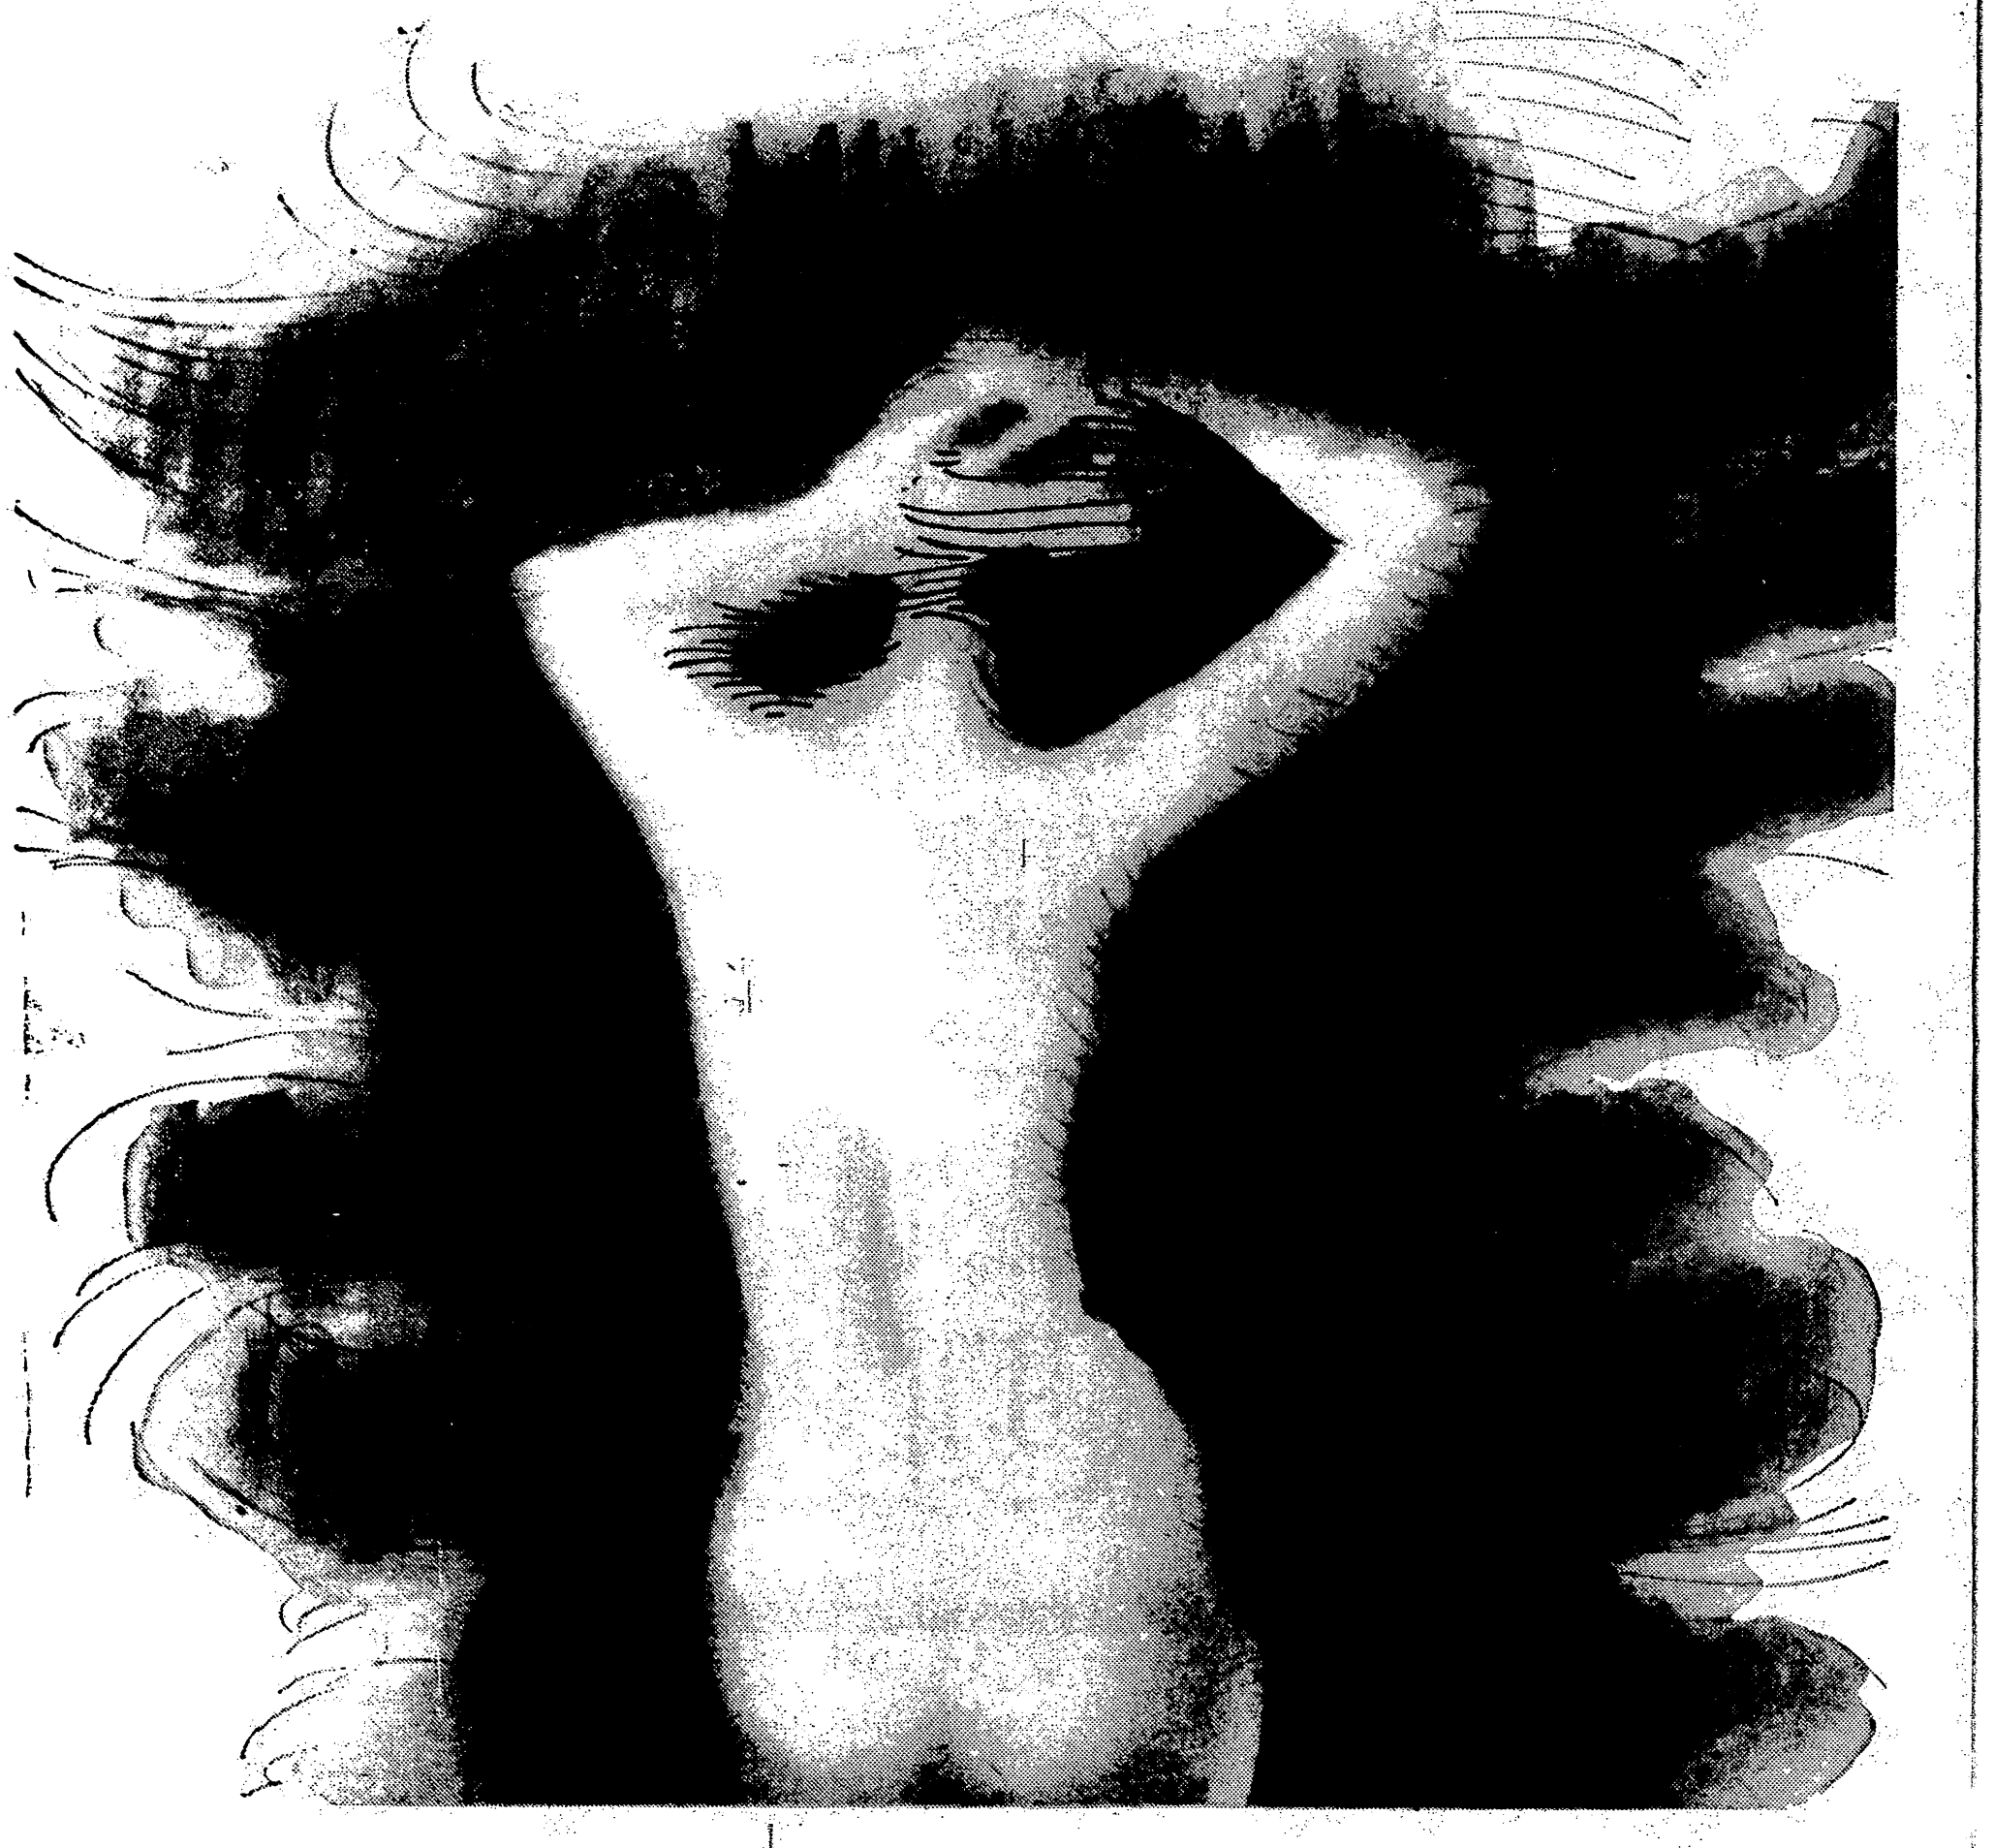
BRIGITTE BARDOT
JACK PALANCE

Contempt!

Co-starring MICHEL PICCOLI · GEORGIA MOLL · FRITZ LANG

Produced by CARLO PONTI

A Film by JEAN-LUC GODARD



Based on the novel by ALBERTO MORAVIA

IN COLOR AND FRANSCOPE

AN EMBASSY PICTURES RELEASE

A NEW WORLD OF SHOWMANSHIP FOR SHOWMEN OF THE WORLD

No other woman looked like her, felt like her, loved like her

AVAILABLE NOW
FOR THE WHOLE WORLD

JOSEPH E. LEVINE
Presents

The Lye Woman

Starring

UGO TOGNAZZI
ANNIE GIRARDOT

Directed by

MARCO FERRERI

Produced by

CARLO PONTI

STORY AND SCREENPLAY BY RAPHAEL AZCONA & MARCO FERRERI
A CHAMPION-CONCORDIA FILM · AN EMBASSY PICTURES RELEASE

EMBASSY puts the How In SHOWmanship!

THE GIRLS ALONE ARE WORTH THE PRICE OF ADMISSION!

The saga-in-song-and-sin.....of Mack the Knife and Madam Jenny
Mack the Knife and Innocent Polly
Mack the Knife and the Sheriff's Daughter
Mack the Knife and ALL the girls at Jennie's Place
Mack the Knife, etc., etc., etc., etc., etc.,

A NEW WORLD OF SHOWMANSHIP FOR SHOWMEN OF THE WORLD

EMBASSY puts the HOW in SHOWmanship!

AVAILABLE NOW FOR THE WHITE MOVIE

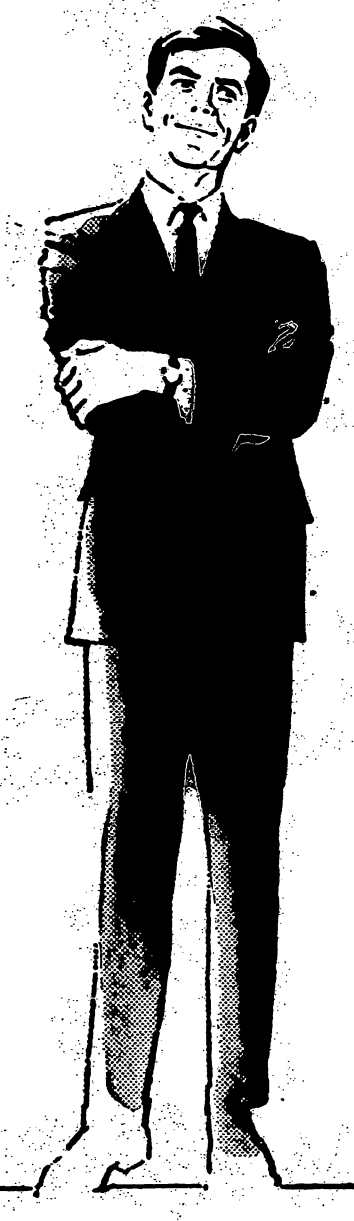
JOSEPH E. LEVINE
presents

ONLY ONE NEW YORK

A NEW WORLD OF SHOWMANSHIP FOR SHOWMEN OF THE WORLD



AVAILABLE NOW FOR THE WHOLE WORLD

written, directed
and photographed by the Academy Award creator of "THE SKY ABOVE—
THE MUD BELOW," PIERRE-DOMINIQUE GAISSEAU

Her name is Beverly

Today
she is going to fall in love for the very first time

JOSEPH E. LEVINE presents

Light Fantastic

AVAILABLE NOW FOR THE WHOLE WORLD

starring
DOLORES McDOUGAL • BARRY BARTLE • JEAN SHEPHERD

PRODUCED BY ROBERT GAFFNEY • DIRECTED BY ROBERT McCARTY A SENECA PRODUCTION • AN EMBASSY PICTURES RELEASE

Hear EYDIE GORME Sing
"THE THEME From LIGHT FANTASTIC"
on Columbia Records.

EMBASSY puts the HOW in SHOWmanship!

Their behavior is often shocking, but because they have risen above the society that bred them, they are called...

A NEW WORLD OF SHOWMANSHIP FOR SHOWMEN OF THE WORLD

a wickedly witty view of...

The Queen Bee

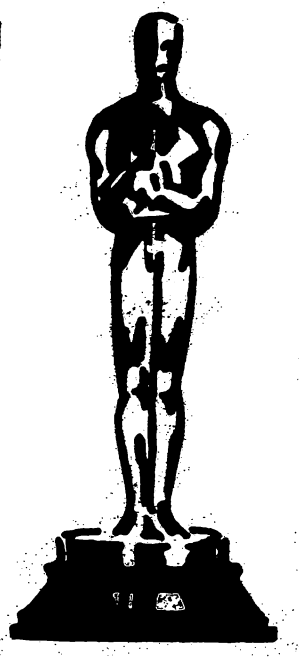
JOSEPH E. LEVINE PRESENTS

UGO TOGNAZZI MARINA VLADY

Best Actress – Cannes Film Festival, 1963

"The Conjugal Bed"

DIRECTED BY MARCO FERRERI WITH WALTER GILLER AND RICCARDO FELLINI ACHILLE MAIERONI IGI POLIDORO



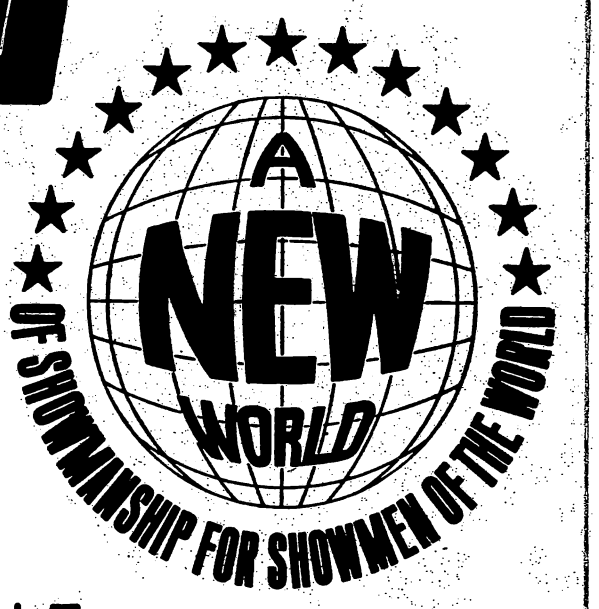
STORY AND SCREENPLAY BY RAPHAEL AZCONA AND MARCO FERRERI PRODUCED BY HENRYK CHROSCICKI AND ALFONSO SANSONE

FOR SANCRO FILM, ROME – LES FILMS MARCEAU, PARIS AN EMBASSY PICTURES RELEASE

EMBASSY puts the How in SHOWmanship!

WINNER 2 ACADEMY AWARDS
BEST FOREIGN FILM

BEST COSTUME DESIGN



Joseph E. Levine presents

FEDERICO FELLINI'S

IN RELEASE

with

MARCELLO MASTROIANNI · CLAUDIA CARDINALE
ANOUK AIMEE · SANDRA MILO · ROSSELLA FALK · BARBARA STEELE

Produced by ANGELO RIZZOLI · Story by FEDERICO FELLINI · ENNIO FLAIANO
Screenplay by FEDERICO FELLINI · TULLIO PINELLI · ENNIO FLAIANO · BRUNELLO RONDI · AN EMBASSY PICTURES RELEASE

"BRILLIANT! A 'TOM JONES' WITH JETAWAY!" —Time Mag.

"A MARVELOUS COMEDY!" —The New Yorker

JOSEPH E. LEVINE presents

the Easy Life

(TITLED IN ITALY "IL SORPASSO")

starring

VITTORIO GASSMAN CATHERINE SPAAK

JEAN LOUIS TRINTIGNANT

Directed by DINO RISI

Produced by MARIO CECCHI GORI

AN EMBASSY PICTURES RELEASE

EMBASSY puts the HOW in SHOWmanship!

JOSEPH E. LEVINE presents

VITTORIO GASSMAN

in

Let's Talk About Women

with

SYLVA KOSCINA

ELEONORA ROSSI DRAGO

ANTONELLA LUALDI

JEANNE VALERIE

GIOVANNA RALLI

WALTER CHIARI

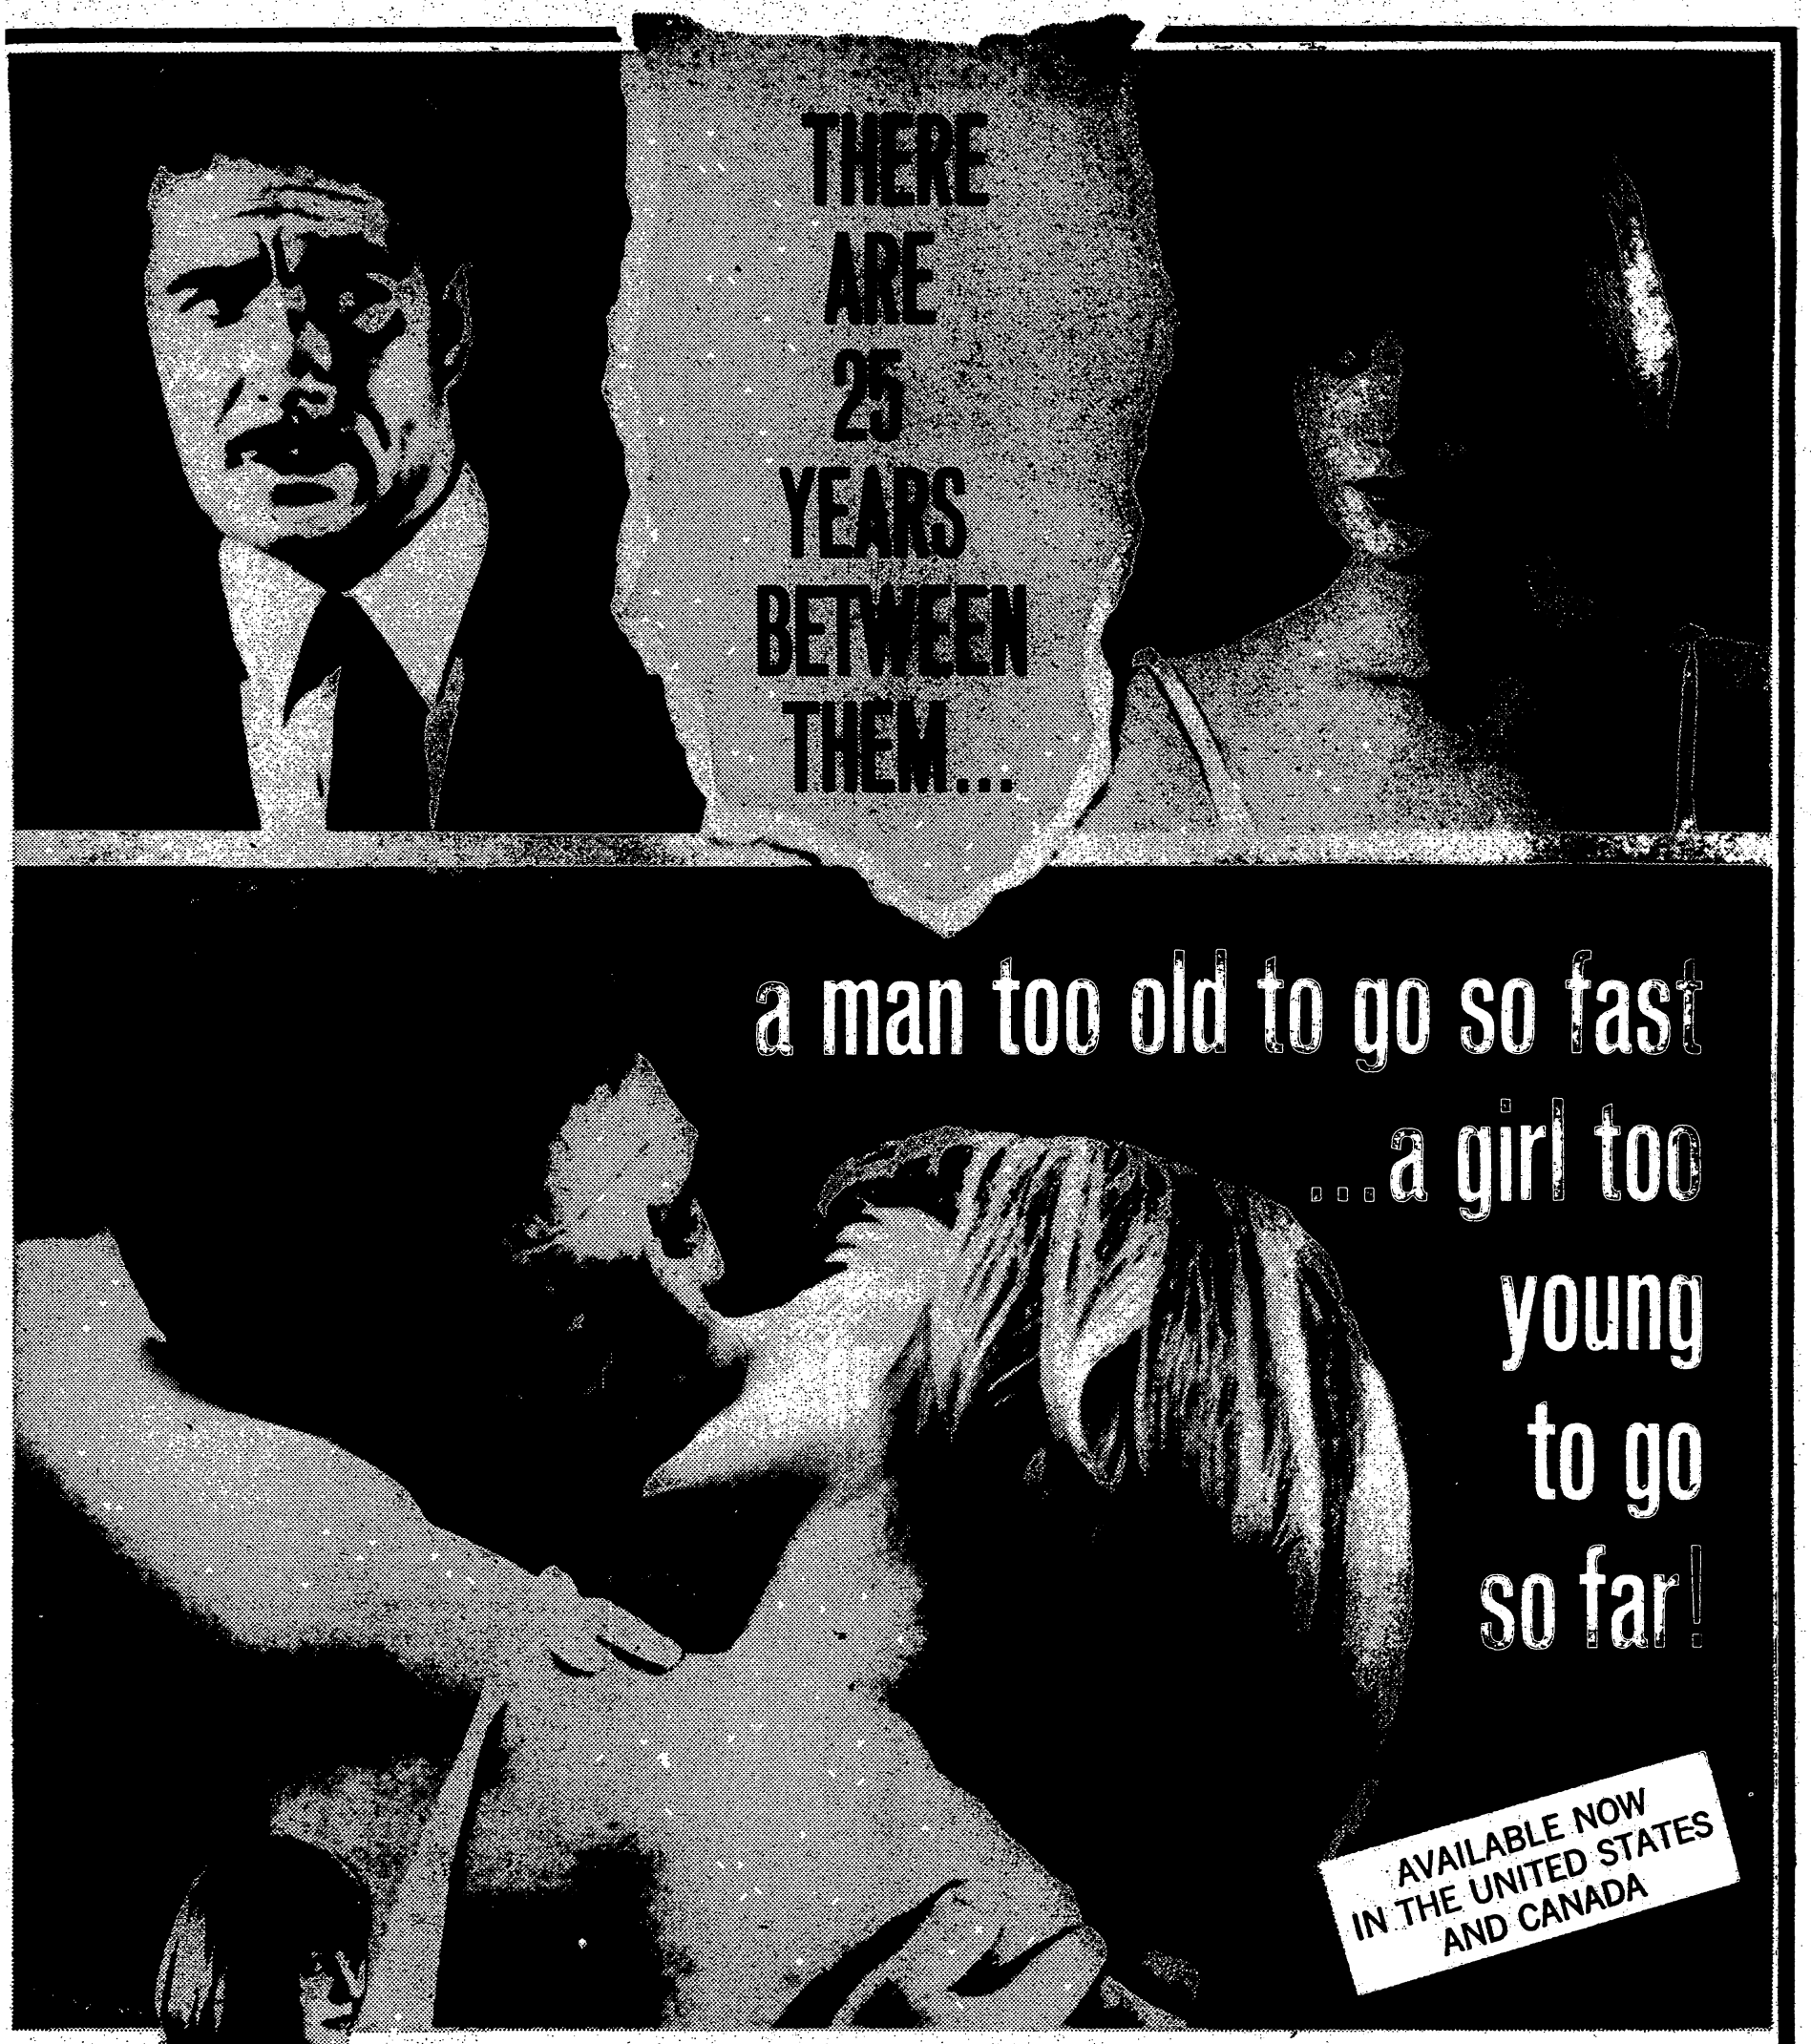
Directed by

ETTORE SCOLA

Produced by

MARIO CECCHI GORI

for



FAIR FILM

in cooperation with

CONCORDIA FILM—PARIS

TO BE RELEASED SOON

A NEW WORLD OF SHOWMANSHIP FOR SHOWMEN OF THE WORLD

THERE ARE 25 YEARS BETWEEN THEM... a man too old to go so fast
...a girl too young to go so far!
AVAILABLE NOW IN THE UNITED STATES AND CANADA
THEY MEET IN THE PASSION OF...
JOSEPH E. LEVINE presents
CRAZY DESIRE
starring UGO TOGNAZZI · CATHERINE SPAAK
Produced by ISIDORO BROGGI and RENATO LIBASSI Directed by LUCIANO SALCE AN EMBASSY PICTURES RELEASE
EMBASSY puts the How in Showmanship!

TO BE RELEASED SOON

Joseph E. Levine presents

Vittorio Gassman
Anouk Aimee
Jean Louis Trintignant

in IL

Successo

(TENTATIVE TITLE)

with Riccardo Garrone Cristina Gaioni Filippo Scelzo

directed by Mauro Morassi story and screenplay by Ettore Scola and Ruggero Maccari produced by Mario Cecchi Gori for Fair Film Incel Film

Mountfluor Film (Roma) Cinetel (Paris)

A NEW WORLD OF SHOWMANSHIP FOR SHOWMEN OF THE WORLD

EMBASSY puts the HOW in SHOWmanship!

PRODUCTION STARTS IN AUGUST

JOSEPH E. LEVINE
presents

THE TRAMPLERS

(Tentative Title)

starring

JAMES MITCHUM

Produced and Directed by ALBERT BAND
Based on the novel
"Guns of North Texas" by Will Cook
CINEMASCOPE and EASTMAN COLOR

EMBASSY puts the HOW in SHOWmanship!

Societe Cocinor
10 Rue Hamelin
Paris, France

is pleased to be associated with Joseph E. Levine and Embassy Pictures Corp. We will distribute "The Empty Canvas" in France and Belgium—and "Yesterday, Today and Tomorrow", and "Contempt" in France.

Paul Kijzer
Amsterdam, Holland

is happy to continue his association with Joseph E. Levine and Embassy Pictures Corp. by distributing the following pictures:

The Empty Canvas, Bluebeard, The Conjugal Bed, Contempt, Casanova, Yesterday, Today and Tomorrow, Three Penny Opera, Long Day's Journey Into Night, Boccaccio '70, Only One New York, The Ape Woman and Marriage Italian Style.

Nippon Herald Motion Picture Co., Ltd.
Osaka Building
No. 1, 2 Chome, Uchisaiwai-Cho
Chiyoda-Ku, Tokyo, Japan

is delighted to be associated with Joseph E. Levine and Embassy Pictures Corp. We are distributing the following pictures in Japan, Okinawa, South Korea . . . . . Contempt, The Empty Canvas, Yesterday Today and Tomorrow, Casanova, and The Ape Woman.

Alo Films
Huerfanos 812
Santiago, Chile

considers it an honor to be associated with Joseph E. Levine and Embassy Pictures Corp. We are distributing the following pictures in Chile ....Bimbo The Great, Bluebeard, Boccaccio '70, Casanova, Constantine and the Cross, The Empty Canvas, Contempt, Yesterday, Today and Tomorrow, Three Penny Opera, Sky Above-Mud Below, and Long Days Journey Into Night.

Sven Nygren
Ralambsvägen 27
Stockholm, Sweden

is delighted to be associated with Joseph E. Levine and Embassy Pictures Corp. in the distribution of "Yesterday, Today and Tomorrow," and "Contempt" in Sweden.

Ster Film-Import (Edms.) Bpk. (Pty.) Ltd.
99 Polly Street
Johannesburg, South Africa

is pleased to distribute the following motion pictures in South Africa for Joseph E. Levine and Embassy Pictures Corp.

South Africa ..... Boccaccio '70, Casanova, Constantine and The Cross, The Empty Canvas, Contempt, Light Fantastic, Madame, The Conjugal Bed, Yesterday, Today and Tomorrow, and Three Penny Opera.

Ocean Films S. A.
Lavalle 2190
Buenos Aires, Argentina

takes pride in its association with Joseph E. Levine and Embassy Pictures Corp. to distribute the following pictures in Argentina .... Bluebeard, Casanova, The Empty Canvas, Contempt, Yesterday, Today and Tomorrow, and The Conjugal Bed.

Paraguay ..... Bluebeard, Casanova, The Empty Canvas, Contempt, Yesterday, Today and Tomorrow, and The Conjugal Bed.

Uruguay .... Bluebeard, The Empty Canvas, The Conjugal Bed, Yesterday, Today and Tomorrow, Casanova, and Contempt.

Paris Israel Films Ltd.
10 Pinsker Street
Tel Aviv, Israel

takes pleasure in its association with Joseph E. Levine and Embassy Pictures Corp. We will be distributing the following pictures in Israel ..... ..Casanova, The Empty Canvas, The Conjugal Bed, Yesterday, Today and Tomorrow and Contempt.

Commonwealth Theatres of Puerto Rico, Inc.
Box 9537
Santurce, Puerto Rico

is happy to be associated with Joseph E. Levine and Embassy Pictures Corp. We will be distributing the following pictures in Virgin Islands ..... Bluebeard, Sky Above-Mud Below, The Gentle Art of Murder, Strangers in the City, Divorce-Italian Style, The Love Makers, Boccaccio '70, Long Days Journey Into Night, The Bear, The Conjugal Bed, Light Fantastic, The Empty Canvas, Love At Twenty, Face In The Rain, Three Penny Opera, Constantine and The Cross, and Contempt.

Puerto Rico ..... Bluebeard, Sky Above-Mud Below, Divorce-Italian Style, The Gentle Art of Murder, The Lovemakers, Boccaccio '70, Long Days Journey Into Night, The Bear, Love At 20, Face In The Rain, Three Penny Opera, Constantine and The Cross, The Conjugal Bed, Light Fantastic, The Empty Canvas, Strangers in the City, and Contempt.

Blake Films Pty. Ltd.
Adam's Chambers
482-484 George Street
Sydney, Australia

proudly announces its association with Joseph E. Levine and Embassy Pictures Corp. We will distribute the following pictures in Australia ..... ..The Conjugal Bed, Divorce-Italian Style, Boccaccio '70, The Lovemakers, Bimbo The Great and The Fabulous World of Jules Verne.

New Zealand .... .....Divorce-Italian Style, Bimbo The Great, The Lovemakers, Boccaccio '70, The Conjugal Bed, and The Fabulous World of Jules Verne.

A. Russell Graham
A. Russell Graham Film Agency
12 Slipe Road
Kingston, Jamaica

takes pride in the association with Joseph E. Levine and Embassy Pictures Corp. to distribute these motion pictures in Jamaica ..... .....Bluebeard, Casanova, The Empty Canvas, Contempt, Light Fantastic, The Conjugal Bed, Yesterday, Today and Tomorrow, and Three Penny Opera.

Producciones Sotomayor, S. A.
Atletas No. 2
Apartado Postal 26465
Mexico 21, D. F.

is proud to be associated with Joseph E. Levine and Embassy Pictures Corp. and distribute "Constantine and the Cross" in Mexico.

United Producers De Colombia Ltda.
(a partnership of Ricardo Canals
and Edward Sarlui;
Ricardo Canals,
Manager)
Apartado Aereo No. 14219
Bogota, Colombia

considers it a privilege to be associated with Joseph E. Levine and Embassy Pictures Corp. for the Distribution in Colombia of . . .

The Bear, Bluebeard, Face in the Rain, Light Fantastic, Long Days Journey into Night, Three Penny Opera, Strangers in the City and The Conjugal Bed.

Dollar Cedca S.A.L.
Ayas Building-Allenby Street
P. O. Box 544
Beirut, Lebanon

is delighted to be associated with Joseph E. Levine and Embassy Pictures Corp. We will be distributing the following pictures in Egypt, Sudan, Syria, Lebanon, Transjordan, Ethiopia, Iraq and Saudia Arabia ..... Boccacio '70, Yesterday, Today and Tomorrow, and Casanova

Iran ..... Yesterday, Today and Tomorrow, and Casanova

National Films (West Indies) Co.
12 Film Centre St. James
P. O. Box 968
Port-of-Spain, Trinidad takes honor in being associated with Joseph E. Levine and Embassy Pictures Corp. to distribute these films in

The West Indies.. ..... Bluebeard, Boccaccio '70, Casanova, Constantine and The Cross, The Empty Canvas, Contempt, Light Fantastic, The Conjugal Bed, Yesterday, Today and Tomorrow, Only One N. Y., and Three Penny Opera

The most exciting company in Entertainment presents the most exciting feature films in Television!

One year ago Embassy Pictures quickened television's pace and sharpened its taste for adventurous entertainment with 35 point pulling feature films. Spectacles like HERCULES, HERCULES UNCHAINED, ATTILA, MORGAN THE PIRATE, WONDERS OF ALADDIN and other pre-sold action titles. With the help of imaginative programming and show-wise exploitation methods, these blockbusters broke rating records in markets all over the country. The trend was set. Audiences responded to action adventure films. 79 markets among the nation's top 100 contracted for the pictures during the first year.

This first exciting year Embassy also introduced 13 "Sons of Hercules" features, all in color. These are offered both as full length adventures for prime-time programming, specially prepared with "see-part-two" end titles, recaps and narration-over flashback sequences. Among the leading stations—63 have already leased the series. The results have been excellent: larger and more satisfying shares of audience.

A NEW WORLD OF SHOWMANSHIP FOR SHOWMEN OF THE WORLD

Now Embassy offers 26 NEW WORLDS OF EXCITING ENTERTAINMENT

26 ACTION-ADVENTURE-COLOR SPECTACLES FILMED IN DIFFERENT PARTS OF THE WORLD! THE MOST EXCITING STORIES OF ALL TIME!

Great Titles: The Mongols, The Trojan War, Cartouche, Helen of Troy, Triumph of Robin Hood, Devil of Paris, Lion of St. Mark, Joseph And His Brethren and many others . . .

Great Stars: Jack Palance, Anita Ekberg, Robert Morley, John Drew Barrymore, Jill Haworth, Gordon Scott, Lex Barker and many others...

Already Stations Sold Prior To General Release

WOR-TV	New York, N. Y.	KHJ-TV	Los Angeles, California
WXYZ	Detroit, Michigan	KBOI-TV	Boise, Idaho
KTVT	Fort Worth, Texas	KHVH-TV	Honolulu, Hawaii
WTTV	Indianapolis, Indiana	WKZO	Kalamazoo, Michigan
KOIN-TV	Portland, Oregon	KATC-TV	Lafayette, Louisiana
WWL-TV	New Orleans, Louisiana	KLAS-TV	Las Vegas, Nevada
KONO	San Antonio, Texas	WTEV,	New Bedford, Massachusetts
WNEP-TV	Scranton, Pennsylvania	KAKE-TV	Wichita, Kansas
KXLY-TV	Spokane, Washington	WOW-TV	Omaha, Nebraska
WHEC-TV	Rochester, N. Y.	KDKA-TV	Pittsburgh, Penna.
KPIX	San Francisco, California

Thrilling, romantic costume melodrama with sword, pistol, cannon, mace, lance, crossbow ...Passion and politics, heroes and heroines, derring-do and daring-duels in the dashing, flashing style of the screen's greatest ADVENTURE films!

HERE ARE 26 REASONS FOR LOOKING TO EMBASSY FOR RATING LEADERSHIP IN 1964!

13 NEW HERCULEAN FEATURE FILMS FOR TV!

A NEW WORLD OF SHOWMANSHIP FOR SHOWMEN OF THE WORLD

SPONSOR Magazine reports: "Track records of spectacle-type films on tv such as Joe Levine's HERCULES have proved ratings blockbusters." Now Embassy offers 13 full-length action spectacles, styled in the same epic manner as HERCULES and ATTILA—styled to score the same record breaking ratings!

Each of these 13 exciting feature films is available two ways:

1. As full length features for prime-time programming. 2. As one hour versions for "cliff-hanger" programming, specially prepared with "see-part-two" end-titles, recaps and narration-over flashback sequences.

ALL IN COLOR
ACCESSORIES INCLUDE:
Trailers / Slides / Ad Mats / Stills

EMBASSY puts the HOW in SHOWmanship!

'By His Tearsheets You Know Him'

By MARTIN DAVIS
(Ad-Pub V.P., Paramount)

"By his tearsheets shall you know him."

This might well be the motto of Joseph E. Levine. In a few short years, his name has become legend in an industry that thrives on "names."

I am sure that everyone who has worked with him has his own favorite "Joe Levine Story" to tell. My favorite about Joe is that, unlike other company presidents who call for the box-office reports first thing every morning, he calls for the daily newspaper tearsheets.

To this observer, the key to Joe's success has been his phenomenal ability to break into print. Although he will be the first one to admit that this has not been done without the help of some of the best pressagents in the business, there is still something about the man himself that commands attention and recognition.

Be it warmth, showmanship, business sense and all other values that build an image of a man, the result has been that he has been able to acquire the cream of the international films and many outstanding exploitation pictures. He is also now in the front rank of American producers with some high-calibre pictures destined to be top grossers.

Ottawa Photographer's Prose Impressions of Joseph E. Levine

By YOUSUF KARSH

Although I had been doing interpretive photography for Joseph E. Levine in Morocco during the filming of "Sodom and Gomorrah," it was not until some months later that I felt the full impact of the Levine dynamism. As we met face-to-face in my New York apartment, where he had come to be photographed, among his first remarks were, "I'm going to go broke giving away your book, 'Portraits of Greatness' to all my friends."

My first impression of him was of a benign Roman conqueror in a Savile Row suit coming home victorious to Rome.

His bubbling enthusiasm could hardly be contained within the confines of his stocky person. As I was manipulating my lights, Levine explained to me how he would like to promote his then forthcoming "Boccaccio '70" by having the three leading ladies, Sophia Loren, Anita Ekberg and Romy Schneider, photographed with the director responsible for their particular sequence. I confided to him that when I photographed Anita Ekberg, my assistant, overcome by her obvious charm, placed the same film back in the camera, and we ended up by having several double exposures. Levine countered by remarking that double exposures were especially suited to Miss Ekberg's particular brand of allure. When Levine left my apartment he said that we should meet again and again.

It was not too long after that he telephoned me in Ottawa to ask if I had the following May free to go to South Africa where "Zulu" was being filmed. This was a complete departure—and a welcome change for me. "You can do anything you want," Levine said, "as long as it spells 'Zulu'."

And, indeed, this policy of "you can do anything you want"—giving his creative people free rein, and having faith in their ability, is one of the joys of working with Joe Levine. He assumes that you know your job, and he is wise enough to let you work out your own particular problems and challenges for yourself.

But the beginning of May found me still in Moscow, and when I finally tracked down Levine in Rome to explain that I would be somewhat delayed in getting to South Africa, I was amazed at the freshness with which his voice came over the long-distance wire—and it was then only six in the morning, Rome time. Levine told me that he had just returned from South Africa, and that it would be nice if I got there in time to film the "Dance of the Virgins."

Boffo In Africa Also

When I arrived on location at the Royal Natal National Park, the effect of Levine's recent visit still lingered among the cast and crew. Although this was one of the smoothest-running productions I had ever seen, Levine's visit left a warm glow among the group virtually isolated at Mont Aux Sources in the Drakensberg Mountains, and seemed to provide the additional motivation for them to continue harmoniously.

Michael Caine, who plays "Captain Bromhead" in "Zulu," spent one whole afternoon while we drove to Durban telling us about "Uncle Joe" and how encouraging he had been to this young actor just beginning his film career. He also related the tale, perhaps apochryhpal, but characteristic of Levine, of how Levine had received the script of "Zulu" from Stanley Baker on a Friday, and on Monday, called Baker to tell him he was buying "Zulu" and wanted to begin filming as soon as possible. "You liked the script that much," Baker asked incredulously. "I haven't had time to read it," Levine replied, "but I like the title."

ROUSE-GREENE'S 'OSCAR' SET FOR JOE LEVINE

Joseph E. Levine has purchased Richard Sale's Hollywood tome, "The Oscar," and has pacted Russel Rouse and Clarence Greene to make it for his Embassy Pictures.

Duo is currently winding its chores on "A House Is Not a Home" which initiated a three-pic deal with Levine. They were to have gone on to a filmization of "The Minister and the Choir Singer" as their next project for Embassy but this has been postponed so that they can immediately begin "Oscar" as soon as it is ready. The script is almost completed.

No cast has yet been signed but this will be attended to shortly as production is due to start in the near future at Paramount. "Oscar" is the second Hollywood looksee novel Levine will make, "The Carpetbaggers" presently playing its world preem engagement in Denver at the Paramount Theatre.

The 'O' & Joe

Continued from page 15

to pictures. Joe Levine did. And he did something about it.

Most non-readers of "The Oscar" consider it an attack on the industry. But Joe saw it for what I meant it to be, an attack on the teredos and parasites and hangers-on, and phoney flacks, avaricious beatniks, pseudo-angry young men and the ilk, who were chipping at the honesty and integrity of the Academy, and slowly reducing the stature of Oscar to a Singer Midget, all over the world. Naturally, when you expose the enemy, he starts shooting because you are putting rocks in his soft touch. It is not a good way to make friends and influence people. But, after all, they were the wrong friends and the wrong people.

I know that when Joe Levine finishes shooting "The Oscar," Hollywood is going to feel all cleaned up, Oscar will be a bright and shining symbol of the highest attainment in our industry, and the fringe deadwood will be on its swift way out to the Pacific where all good flotsam floats serenely, without getting in the way of honest artists, and courageous showmen, and men of good will.

Who knows? Joe Levine might even win an Oscar for making "The Oscar."

Director's Findings: Good Drama Made for Strong Merchandizing

By EDWARD DMYTRYK

Making two motion pictures for Joseph E. Levine during the past six months has convinced me that the values which make for good drama almost invariably have strong advertising and exploitation appeal.

During the planning and preparation stages of "Carpetbaggers," I had quite an extended conference with Levine during the course of which he gave me the full benefit of his conclusions regarding what he felt were the qualities the public would want in our picturization of Harold Robbins' novel.

He made it a point, more than once, to let me know that he was only commenting on the picture's sales values and that the creative end of the job was entirely in my hands. At the end of the discussion we shook hands and Levine said, "I know you'll give us a fine picture."

During the shooting of "Carpetbaggers" I didn't see him again, except for rare occasions when he dropped in on the set, usually with visitors, until we ran the first rough cut. Invariably, however, while we were shooting I found his ideas valid and always in keeping with the story's dramatic values.

Even so, I had no idea what his reaction would be. After we ran the rough cut his comments were brief. He turned around and, again, shook hands.

"Thanks," he told me. "It's even better than I'd hoped. We'd like to have you direct our second Robbins story, 'Where Love Has Gone.' We've got Susan Hayward and Bette Davis for it. How about it?"

Well, my experience with Levine was repeated. Again we had a thorough and enjoyable meeting of minds on how the novel should be treated on the screen. And again I found his suggestions helpful. He's a good producer in that he gives a director complete freedom and autonomy and I must say that I've never enjoyed directing more.

Open Letter to Joe Levine

By FEDERICO FELLINI

Rome.

Dear Joe:

I need your advice. VARIETY has asked me to write an article about you. I wish they had asked me to make a film instead; you know I'm no good at writing. Especially things that are supposed to make logical sense on paper.

Or how could I tell anybody in an article what happened the afternoon of the opening of "8½" in New York, when you and I went to check the projectors at the new Festival Theatre? They put on the first reel of the film as a test, and you sat there waiting, and when the first images appeared without sound, you got very excited and said to me: "Don't tell me that's how it starts!"

How could they understand how much this little slip of the tongue endeared you to me? How could they understand what I felt when I realized that you bought and released my film absolutely on faith? This had never happened to me before.

Or how can I tell people in a serious article that one of the main reasons I like you is because you remind me of a fellow I used to go to school with when I was a kid? Tita (that's his nick-name) Benzi and I used to go and see American movies every afternoon, and when we got out from the cinema we'd play at being the heroes of those films. In the thirties, our heroes were Barton McLane and Joseph Calleia, John Carradine, and people like that—fast shooters, happy livers, quick eye-twinkling gangsters who had the world in their hands. Tita and I had this game, where we'd say "boom" and the other would have to fall down wherever he might be. Of course we'd pick the most awkward moments. How can I explain our game was invented because we were hungry for the free, open, loud spirit that said "America!" to us out of those old gangster films? And how can I seriously say that today you represent the same spirit of your country to me?

You know, for years I used to have this image of the American movie mogul: fast, decisive, magnanimous, maybe a little fat, maybe a little impatient, maybe a little sentimental, but a real human being.

Then I came to the States and saw that those men had disappeared. I was a big disappointment, believe me. Now it seems to me that I've found one that meets my image. Thanks, Joe!

Affectionately,
Federico

FLUKE ADMITS 'MUSCLE' COPY TO STERN PAPERS

Minneapolis, April 21.

It's the policy of the jointly owned local daily newspapers, the morning Tribune and evening Star, to exercise strict censorship advertisement to annoyance of theatremen and distributors.

Accordingly, there was much surprise in film circles here when last week on the opening day of "Muscle Beach Party" (AIP) at the loop State theatre there appeared in both newspapers rather racy large ads with art showing both sexes in scanty swimming attire and engaged in intimate posture.

Until it became bruited about that the ads had brought many readers' complaints to the newspapers, exhibs were hoping that the sheets finally were letting down the bars, as local theatre-owners have felt they should be doing.

Harold Hughes, the newspapers' advertising manager, indicated to VARIETY that readers' complaints against the ads had "poured" in.

"The ads went through due to an oversight," said Hughes "There was a mistake somewhere along the line and we'll try to see it doesn't happen again. We have an advertising department committee pass on all theatre movie ads and this one, for some unknown reason, escaped it."

For its first State week the picture garnered a surprisingly big $12,000 week, although scaled at only $1-$1.25. Large part of the credit for this undoubtedly goes to the opening day newspaper ads. It, of course, now is a holdover.

STEPHEN BOYD SAYS TONY MANN POWDERED

Los Angeles, April 21.

Stephen Boyd, charging breach of contract in Superior Court suit filed against Tony Mann and latter's Benton Film Productions Ltd., asked $250,000 damages. His Boyd Productions Co., was a co-plaintiff.

Actor claimed he was to have gone to work April 1 in England and Norway under an oral agreement, in Mann's "The Battle of Telemark," but said agreement was repudiated, according to complaint.

Levine's Multi-Pronged TV Thrust

By MURRAY HOROWITZ

Joe Levine's Embassy Pictures tv division has spread its wings, flying from straight pix-to-tv sales to the loftier heights of new programming, for both network and syndication.

Embassy, too, has filed a declaration of intent to operate a UHF station in Suffolk County, L. I., N. Y.

Jonny Graff, tv topper, carrying out the Levine dictum of "we're in show biz, whatever the medium," has grossed about $5,000,000 to date. The gross represents sales on Levine pix to tv stations. Levine and Graff, looking toward wider horizons, have had hurdles with Associated Television of the United Kingdom looking toward coproduction. Embassy, in the ATV deal, would retain artistic control.

Embassy, on the network level, has sold a projected "Hercules" one hour series to ABC-TV, the filming of which will be done in Italy and in color. It's slated for telecasting in '65-'66. (ABC-TV is understood to have anted up a mighty $200,000 for the pilot.)

The Embassy-ATV project involves three possible series, "Men from Lloyds," "Casanova," and "I Married a Psychiatrist." Under the projected deal, ATV would pick up one more of the series for telecasting on its English channel. This would give Embassy a sizeable lay-off in the important English market. Embassy, then, would have a smaller nut to write off in the U. S. market. Thinking on each of the series is to have an American cast and off-camera America talent, with production based in England.

Graff said that group station operators in the U. S. are so perturbed by the lack of first-run vidfilm product that representatives of three key group stations have evidenced an interest to have a financial stake in the Embassy-ATV project. There was a period in syndication— about seven years ago—when station operators in order to trigger first-run production would financially back series. Apparently, Levine's boxoffice reputation has induced group station operators to once again think along the lines of cofinancing.

Levine, who had his baptismal of fire at the recent National Assn. of Broadcasters convention, is becoming more active personally on the tv side of the biz. He has a scheduled meeting shortly with American Broadcasting-Paramount Theatres prexy Leonard Goldenson and ABC-TV prexy Tom Moore. Graff has been in the midst of negotiations with NBC-TV on the possible American adaptation of "Steptoe and Son," a hit British tv series, bought for U. S. adaptation by Embassy.

In still another field, Embassy has staked out a property, this one in the cartoon category, titled "Adventures of Dodo." To be produced in England, this six-minuter about a boy with tv antennas for ears is in the science fiction, fantasy vein. "Dodo" will be available to stations in September.

Embassy pix packages include the initial group of 35, "Son of Hercules," "Adventure 26." There will be another package of Levine pix in '65 for telecasting in '66 and thereafter, depending on the timing of the finish of theatrical release. The upcoming group of pix will include "Easy Life," "Zulu," "Yesterday, Today, Tomorrow," and "8½."

One Man Army

Continued from page 15

come a full-fledged production-distribution company, operating in such divergent parts of the world as England, Italy, South Africa, the U.S. and elsewhere.

"You gotta bring things to a head, make things happen," Levine says. In so doing he has logged more hours in the air and jammed more meetings, spending and ballyhoo into the few short years of Embassy's life than most men do in a lifetime. It has been an exciting and jam-packed few years for Levine and the film biz. It isn't likely that either will ever get over the other.

Golden Ducats Awards at Cannes Hint French Exhibs' Festival Debate

Paris, April 21.

The Syndicate of French Film Exhibitors' presentation of its Golden Ducat awards at next week's Cannes film fest—to the French and foreign features most likely to succeed at the boxoffice—brings up once again the old discussion about what constitutes a truly boxoffice film. The exhib prizes obviously are prompted by the idea that films which win regular fest prizes are not necessarily boxoffice.

What are the facts? Fest exposure and prizes helped such pix as "Flying Cranes," "Black Orpheus," "The 400 Blows," "Last Year in Marienbad," which might have been sluffed by exhibs, but went on to healthy b.o. returns. On the other hand, many multi-prized pix have proceeded to lay eggs at the ticket windows.

Local feeling re the Golden Ducats seems to be that it may be a good thing to see once and for all whether exhibs are any more adept at picking b.o. winners than fest juries and critics, who make artistic evaluations.

The pix which win the Ducat prizes are assured exposure in top French houses, in any case, plus sturdy backing by some foreign exhibs. It's felt here that if the winners do not do particularly well at the b.o., that might pave the way for a certain easing in attitude towards fests on the part of those who now feel they're too artsy-craftsy.

General Aniline (And Film) Status

A record first-quarter in both sales and net earnings after taxes was reported to stockholders of General Aniline & Film Corp. by Dr. Jesse Werner, president at company's annual meeting last week.

Sales for first quarter of 1964 were $47,490,000, compared to same period's $45,124,000 last year.

Net earnings for the quarter were 2,357,000, compared to$2,258,000 for 1963s first quarter—equal to $2.95 per common A share, and up 12c per share from last year.

Werner told stockholders that sales had continued to increase in most product lines and that company was achieving many improvements in its overall picture.

General Aniline directors have approved construction of multi-million pound facility at GAF's Dyestuff Chemical Division's plant, Calvert City, Ky. to produce three methylamine chemicals which had previously been purchased. Operation is expected in early 1965. Photo & Repro Division's Binghamton, N.Y. plant is also undergoing $6,000,000 expansion for Ansco photo facilities.

Other projects and products commented on by Werner were P&R Division's new medical x-ray system, a new Ozalid diazo machine and paper system (replacing ammonia with heat), Class I Microdensitometers and Ansco color negative film and color positive print paper.

Referring to agreement between U.S. government and Interhandel, a Swiss holding corp., on sale of company's majority stock, vested in 1942, Werner said that imminence of sale has increased operating difficulties but that GAF is accustomed to operating effectively in spite of the "ownership situation."

Ohio Indie Exhibs Say: Nothing Set on Fusion

Columbus, O., April 21.

Next convention of the Independent Theatre Owners of Ohio is tentatively scheduled for late February or early March, 1965 at the new Columbus Plaza motor hotel here.

Herb Armstrong, president of Allied States, told members of the ITOO Board of Directors in meeting here that no commitments have been made anent possible creation of a single national exhibitor organization. Armstrong stated that a new organization would be formed rather than a consolidation of TOA and Allied States and the members thus would have equal standing.

Schoolman on 16m May Throw More Fuel On Exhibitors' Vexation

In a foreword to David Mallery's "The School and the Art of Motion Pictures," the Committee on Research of the National Assn. of Independent Schools states that it has sponsored the report "in the hope that it will be useful in emphasizing some of the opportunities available to schools for significant educational experiences beyond the printed word."

Beyond the admitted danger that the report is entirely the experiences and evaluations of an individual, heavy emphasis on the use of 16m films, almost always with the connotation that they will be used outside the commercial motion picture theatre, makes the booklet additional fuel for the fire that is already raging against 16m usage in exhibition circles. To Mallery's credit, he makes a definite point of emphasizing the relationship between the school and the local theatre—"Surely it is time for school administrators and teachers to take some initiative in establishing a relationship with film exhibitors and theatre managers. There are obvious advantages in this relationship for the theatres, but there are far more advantages for the schools."

Comparing non-theatrical and theatrical film viewing, he also says "16m rental for special school afternoon and evening programs has many advantages, but the experience of seeking and getting the best at the motion picture theatre is worth having and developing."

Much of his 101-page booklet consists of lists of recommended films, divided into such categories as "Art of the Film," "The Novel Becomes A Film," "From Stage to Screen," "Shakespeare," etc. There are some errors in titles and spellings but they're few. Well worth considering by all teachers and film students. "The School and the Art of Motion Pictures" by David Mallery, published by National Assn. of Independent Schools—$1.00 (101 p.) Robe.

MCA Pays 37½c

MCA board of directors last week declared annual dividend of 37½c per share on its convertible preferred stock to stockholders on record June 19.

Dividend is payable on July 1.

Marlon Brando into Aaron Rosenberg production, "Morituri," at 20th-Fox.

U.S. TELLS RUSSIANS ABOUT NATALIE WOOD

Washington, April 21.

Natalie Wood is in for some Soviet side puffery.

The puff came in a picture story about her in America magazine, published in Russian language for Soviet consumption by the U.S. Information Agency.

The mag said Miss Wood "continues to dazzle a large public with her fresh, contemporary portrayals on screen—and off screen, as a glamorous movie queen in the old Hollywood tradition."

Miss Wood was guided to acting by her Russian born mother. According to the mag, Miss Wood admits, "I will never play Lady Macbeth."

'Merger' Without Death of Either TOA or Allied?

Minneapolis, April 21.

Members of North Central Allied, this territory's national Allied unit, are being assured that the sort of "merger" being contemplated by national Allied and Theatre Owners of America will not mean the dissolution of either body. Retaining their present identities, AS and TOA will continue also as separate organizations, this area's exhibs are advised.

When he was here recently for the NCA annual convention, Jack Armstrong, national Allied president, made this clear to Ray Vonderhaar, NCA head.

What the two exhib organizations contemplate is a kind of "side" closing up of theatreowner ranks so that via an "agreement in principle" common objectives can be realized better, Armstrong assured Vonderhaar and other NCA officers and board members.

Premiere Showcase Sites Used for U Re-Releases

Doubling up two earlier Cary Grant successes, Universal has started a one-week re-release engagement at 16 "Premiere Showcase" theatres in the metropolitan area—"Pillow Talk" and "Operation Petticoat."

Houses participating are RKO's Palace and 86th St., Skouras' Academy and Riviera in Manhattan; RKO Fordham and Skouras' Pelham, the Bronx; RKO Albee, Randforce's Ridgewood, in Brooklyn; RKO Alden, in Jamaica; Skouras' Midway, Forest Hills and Astoria, Queens; B.S. Moss' Central, Cedarhurst; Skouras' Calderone in Hempstead, Squire in Great Neck and Valley Stream; RKO Proctors, New Rochelle.

Hard Statistics Back to 1954 Key to Excise-Tax Relief

Washington, April 21.

House Ways and Means Committee chairman Wilbur Mills (D.-Ark.) unwrapped the plans for his upcoming look-see at excise taxes, including the box office admissions and cabaret levies. He expects the exploratory hearings to open in mid-June. A definite date will be disclosed later. There are five criteria in mind:

(1) How do the taxes fall on different economic groups and is the product taxed a "luxury" or a "necessity."

(2) What effect does a specific excise have on the sale or production of a good.

(3) How many of these taxes represent business costs and how does this affect the competitive position of the industry taxed.

(4) How sensitive is the revenue garnered from the tax to a change in business conditions and income.

(5) What administrative and compliance problems does collection of the tax provide the government, and the business paying it.

The Chairman stressed the need of interested groups to back up their pitches for reduced taxes with hard statistics, especially from 1954 on. General information will not be "particularly useful," he averred.

The hearing will be divided into three portions. First expert and government witnesses will testify on excises generally to be followed by general labor, industry and consumer groups.

Finally, special interests—and there will be scores of them—will have their chance to talk.

Mills advised interested groups and persons to select one witness to deliver their pitch for reduced or repealed excises. Written statements can be filed in lieu of personal appearances.

Deadline for requesting time is June 1.

The look-see hearing marks the first step in what possibly could lead to lowered box office, cabaret and other excises. The Ways and Means Committee won't begin any work on legislation until at least next January when a new Congress reconvenes and any laws would probably not come until late 1965 or early 1966 if then.

With a horde of industries requesting repeal or reduction, the Committee will have to decide which ones will get the benefits since an across-the-board appears almost out of the question.

New York Sound Track

George Weltner, Paramount exec v.p., back from a Florida holiday . . . David Picker, UA v.p., returned to his Gotham desk last Monday (20) after a quickie bit of relaxation following the Oscar show last week at which he accepted the "Tom Jones" best pic award (appropriately, since it was he who brought the film to UA) . . . Carmen Capalbo supervising the English soundtrack dubbing for Joe Levine's "Threepenny Opera," having scored the show for its off-Broadway longrun success a few seasons back.

Robert Weston actively steps into his new post at Embassy Pictures as v.p.-exec assistant to exec v.p. Leonard Lightstone this week, following completion of some carry-over duties from his former post as ad-pub veep and some staff realignments in that department . . . if ever a mid-afternoon lift is sought, just drop in on the exec ad-pub offices at UA. The boys have one of the best collective repertoires of comic bits in the business . . . Harold Rand felled by the flu bug last week but back at the Embassy pub helm again this frame.

In VARIETY's list of Buenos Aires Fest winners last week (15), "Love With the Proper Stranger" was listed as a Warner pic, of course, its a Paramount . . . UA has finally come up with a title for its now-lensing Beatles starrer—"A Hard Day's Night" . . . Robert Mitchum profiled in the May issue of Esquire . . . Dell Publishing is issuing a "movie classic" comic book pegged to Samuel Bronston's "Circus World" . . . Embassy overseas sales exec Joseph C. Goltz in the Near East this week completing a foreign sales tour for the company.

Frank Capra is producing a film to be shown at the World's Fair Hall of Science, titled "Reaching For the Stars," a portrayal of men meeting in space . . . also at the Fair, the Kodak Exhibit will run trailers of Metro's "Unsinkable Molly Brown" for four weeks starting today (Wed.), opening day . . . Peter de Fazio appointed Pittsburgh branch manager for Par Distributing replacing Kip Smiley who resigned to enter exhibition . . . UA's Peter Sellers starrer "The Pink Panther" follows the British actor's "World of Henry Orient" into Radio City Music Hall tomorrow (Thurs.) . . . Embassy Pictures has moved its Philly branch offices to 1225 Vine Street.

Maurice Silverstein, Metro International prez, arrives back in New York Friday (24) from an Australian-London looksee . . . Louis Gilbert set to direct "Khartoum" for producer Julian Blaustein and UA . . . MGM's "Night of the Iguana" opens at the Beverly (Hills) Theatre July 29, one of the first dates for the much-touted pic . . . Robert Mitchum & Co. have wound lensing of "Mister Moses" in Kenya for Frank Ross and UA . . . Marilu Tolo and Aldo Puglisi into Joe Levine and Carlo Ponti's "Marriage—Italian Style," now lensing in Naples.

Alfred Katz, UA foreign sales veep, in Buenos Aires for confabs with Argentine and Chilean company execs . . . Camille I. Rifino, secretary to Metro ad-pub chief Dan Terrell, engaged to Pat Johnson, engineer for Gruman Aircraft . . . Jerry Goldsmith set to score "Satan Bug" for John Sturges, the Mirisches and UA . . . Otto Preminger has inked Stan Goldsmith as production manager and Dan McCauley as first assistant director for his and Par's "In Harm's Way" . . . Anna Quayle will make her pic debut in the Beatles pic for UA, "A Hard Day's Night."

Sidney Poitier back in New York, with his best actor Oscar . . . Connie Gilchrist a late signing for "A House Is Not a Home" . . . Red Buttons cast in MGM's Hank Williams biopic "Your Cheatin' Heart," for which Hal Belfer has been tapped to create a special dance number . . . Popular Library will publish a paperback novelization of Luther Davis' original screenplay for Par's "Lady In a Cage," also plugging the pic in its fan mags Silver Screen and Screenland . . . Walter Grauman set to direct the film version of John O'Hara's "A Rage To Live" for the Walter Mirisch & Co., with a June 1 starting date now skedded.

Martin Ransohoff back to Hollywood after huddling with Metro execs on promotion plans for "Americanization of Emily" and confabs re his next three pix for the studio, which include "The Loved One" and "The Cincinnati Kid" . . . Sophia Loren has copped W. Germany's "Bambi Award" as most popular foreign actress for the fourth consecutive year . . . Sam Bronston's "Fall of the Roman Empire" opens in Kansas City and Indianapolis this week, bringing the number of U.S.-Canadian playdates to 17.

Albert R. Glaubinger named UA central division manager, effective May 4, succeeding D. J. Edele who recently became sales chief at Embassy Pictures . . . David Rose will score Metro's "Quick, Before It Melts" . . . Fred Alexander, circus trapeze headliner, inked by A. C. Lyles for "Young Fury" at Paramount . . . Metro's "The Prize" is among the company's all-time grossers in the New York area for a non-roadshow entry, having taken in nearly $1,800,000 to date in the area. It opens this week in 90 nabe houses.

Rod Taylor into title role of "Young Cassidy," the biopic of playwright Sean O'Casey which Sextant Films will make for Metro with John Ford directing. A July 13 start has been skedded, location work to be done in Ireland and interiors at the MGM British studio . . . Pan Arts' "The World of Henry Orient," which exits Radio City Music Hall tomorrow (Thurs.) after a successful Easter plus run, given the "Medal Movie" tag by Ingenue mag in May. Pic's star, Peter Sellers, incidentally, is reported showing steady improvement in Hollywood following the serious heart attack he suffered there three weeks ago.

Photographic Society of Malaysia (Singapore) handed Honorary Patronage to Dato Loke Wan Tho, chairman of the Cathay Organization, which operates a chain of 60 first-run cinemas throughout Malaysia, and modern hotels and nightclubs in Singapore and the Fiji Islands. Dato Loke is a photographer. He recently presented from his private collection more than 5000 copies of photographic masterpieces from all over the world, to the National Art Gallery in Kuala Lumpur.

Martin Hyer lined up by American International for lead in "Bikini Beach," which started filming Monday (20) . . . Universal made it in May issue of "Seventeen" with "Chalk Garden" mag's picture of the month, plus Hayley Mills' footprint bit in "Teen Scene" section. Also plugged are "I'd Rather Be rich" and "The Brass Bottle."

Stanley Warner's current series of h.o. confabs with zone managers are to outline theatre policy and operation for coming season. Zone managers participating are Herbert Copelan, west coast; Henry Burger, midwest; Frank J. Damis, Philadelphia-Washington; Harry Feinstein, Pittsburgh and Ohio; Albert Reynolds, Texas; Charles Smakwitz, Newark and James Totman, New England.

Hammer horror combo of "Evil of Frankenstein" and "Nightmare" set for multi-run key city openings starting May 20. Already booked are Cleveland, Philadelphia, Youngstown, Toledo and Chicago.

Name gremlins were at work last week, causing the VARIETY television review of the Academy Awards telecast to make Irving Thalberg Award winner Sam Spiegel come out in print as Sol Siegel.

Actor Albert Finney was off Waikiki in Hawaii sailing on Henry J. Kaiser's huge catamaran while the Academy Awards broadcast was on air April 13. Later he told dockside interviewers he wasn't at all disappointed he didn't get the Best Actor award. "I saw Sidney Poitier in "Lilies of the Field" and feel his performance was perfectly beautiful," he said.

William Bendix into Par's "Young Fury" for a cameo . . . Stringer Davis has joined his actress-wife Margaret Rutherford in Metro's "Murder Ahoy" . . . Author John Le Carre, whose "Spy Who Came In From the Cold" will be made for Paramount by Martin Ritt, into New York from London this coming weekend on a promo trip . . . German actor Werner Peters in Hollywood to start "36 Hours" for MGM . . . Anthony Quinn inked for "The Centurions" which Mark Robson will produce and direct Columbia under his indie Red Lion Productions banner . . . Technicolor is helping to promote Par's "Becket" and "Fall of the Roman Empire" via brochures inclosed in all outgoing orders from labs to consumers.

Long Face Of the Serious Humorist Worn By Newcomer Marty Engels

By ROBERT B. FREDERICK

"I know not what source others may fake but as for me, I'm machine fed," replies Marty Ingels when asked what makes him a clown. His machine, however, is no perfect instrument, he said last week. It's a thing inside him that compels him to be funny.

Fortunately, it usually succeeds but there have been times when it just stops cold, Ingels confesses, citing a Jack Paar show guestint. "Nothing came out and I was dead." On the other hand, it can start pumping at the wrong time, maybe while walking along the street, and he has to fight a compulsion to grab a passing stranger and ask, "Wanta hear a story?"

Ingels, here to promote Universal's "Wild and Wonderful," in which he's featured, considers himself a clown. His machine, he explains, started operating when he was four and found that he could get grownups' attention by playing the buffoon . . . he has been "on" ever since. "But I don't own the machine. It owns me. That's terrible but true—Marty Ingels, machine-fed clown."

What really does upset him, however, is the apparent absence, in his opinion, of new talent in the clown field. To him, a clown is a visual comic in the vein of Jerry Lewis, Red Skelton and Sid Caesar. That type has been replaced, he believes, by "white collar" comedians who don't have to be seen to be funny.

"Where are the clowns?" he asks. Is it that the public doesn't want them or that they don't exist? Jerry Lewis, he says, is proof that the public does want them, but his popularity hasn't encouraged many new funnymen to emulate Lewis. In Hollywood, Ingels believes, they're virtually zero.

Asked why such concern as this leaves the field clearer for him, he replied that every professional keeps close tabs on his competition and that all the younger comedians today are in the intellectual or sophisticated categories. None are clowns.

Neither the intellectual Shelley Berman, Mort Sahl, Bob Newhart species nor such sophisticates as Jack Lemmon, Tony Randall or Gig Young are potential clowns. The latter are actors who play comedy well. "Their machines work different—they don't have the clown's compulsion to be funny."

Decline of Borscht

One former source, the borscht circuit, isn't any more as the current success of Catskill hostels enables them to book, at top prices, name comedians who used to work the same spots for room and board—and press notices.

After a small success on radio and tv and a large failure in Las Vegas, Ingels decided to quit and return to N. Y. His return was via L.A. and a parting shot at the studios. Right down the list he went with highly predictable failure. "It was like they all knew I was coming and left town together." He even got the brushoff from the Hollywood office of his own agency.

On his last day, he clicked—Paramount, Jerry Lewis, "Ladies Man." During the following months he experienced what evidently befalls every successful performer at some stage in his career. After an interview and test he was signed by a major studio, the offer, evidently based on what he had demonstrated during the test.

"Then he turned me over to the personality department . . . I though he said the personnel department . . . for a new corporeal image. What came out wasn't me. It took weeks to repair the damage."

Ingels, while he deplores the fact that apparently no producer is trying to correct the shortage of comedy talent, believes that if anyone does do it, it will probably be Leonard Stern, producer of the "I'm Dickens, He's Fenster" tv series.

If he ever wondered who made up his own particular following, he found out, he said, when he and John Astin started this series. They both received loads of fan mail but individually, not as a team.

"John's were always typed, heavy bond paper, wide margins, words like 'capable,' the whole bit. Mine were scribbled with crayon, chalk, pencil, anything, on grocery bags, scratch paper, even Raby Ruth wrappers. I reasoned that I was reaching the youth of America or some very unusual adults."

During his period with "Dickens", Ingels learned the promotional values (and personal rewards) of doing p.a.'s and interviews. His many trips invariably provided opportunities to use visual comedy, to play the clown. About the retarded success of "Dickens" (in syndication, it is apparently a bigger hit than the first time around), he's amazingly cheerful.

After "Dickens," he did a pilot in which he played a fireman—"Duncan, Be Careful." Today he writes it off as experience—"It didn't come out as great as it should have."

When the tour bit for "Wild and Wonderful" ends (in the film he, Tony Curtis and Larry Storch are a jazz combo. Ingels on bass—"I play it phonetically."), he'll do Ivan Tors' "Birds Do It" (plenty of visual comedy) for Metro release. Other fords in his future he'll cross as he comes to them, with such current possibilities as a film for "Panic Button" producer Ron Gorton and a confab with Joe Levine.

All these could go by the board if Tony Curtis yells "Come play with me—again" as Ingels' unabashed admiration for Curtis is akin to that of Curtis for Cary Grant.

Damian Rosa's Features; Plan Three, One About Puerto Rican Regiment

Damian Rosa, president of Drent Inc. of San Juan, passed through Manhattan last week returning to Puerto Rico after three weeks in Mexico City. It was another of his trips to that city for tint printing of modest budget films shot in Puerto Rico for the Spanish language market.

Latest features to be processed at the Laboratories Mexicanos bear the titles (1) "Romance in Puerto Rico" (2) "Belo Amanecer" and (3) "Lamento Borincano." All have island and Mexican talent. "Lamento" includes the Puerto Rican television comic Machuchal who, at the moment, is shooting a feature film of his own on the island, as recently reported in VARIETY.

Rosa cites $76,000 as the negative cost on "Lamento" and $52,000 as the negative cost on "Belo Amanecer."

Upon his return he will devote his energies to another three features, now in the planning stage. These will be, respectively, "Mientras Duerme" (When The City Sleeps), "El Jibarito, Rafael," based on the career and music of a native composer, Rafael Hernandez and, lastly, a film dealing with military indicents in Korea and Germany involving Puerto Rican troops. Proposed title is "Nuestro Regimento."

From Beefcake and Art—

Continued from page 15

earthy ingredients that spell boxshowman, a personal softie and a office have been supported by commercial stat stics.

Italian Ties

In the segue from his "Italian cycle" to the American production plateau, especially in recent months in partnership with Paramount, indications augur a complete welding of the two. At the moment Par's Barney Balaban and George Weltner concede they're "engaged" but Joe Levine behaves like an unwilling bride. Embassy Pictures' exec veepee Leonard Lightstone likens Par's relationship to owning a Cadillac or renting one.

Meantime Par and Levine's Embassy are going steady on pictures and properties while Levine, independently, has set up sub-unit operations that range from Russell Rouse-Clarence Greene and John Michael Hayes to Stanley Baker & Cy Endfield, from Carlo Ponti to Sophia Loren, Marcello Maistrioni and Federico Fellini. In between he is back in legit production with David Susskind (musical) which is an encore on a previous legit flyer with Peter Ustinov in a straight play. And he is syndicating herculean oldies for American screens and producing new vidpix series based on further exploits of Hercules, Casanova and D'Artagnan. Interspliced are such mundane items as "Our Man From Lloyd's" (globally situated and shot); "I Married a Psychiatrist"; a remake of the popular British vidseries titled "Stepcoe & Sons" to which he owns the title for U.S. remake; and assorted commitments from film stars and filmmakers in England, France and Italy.

Fortune Profile

Fortune, the tycoon's handbook, last month gave Joe Levine the Fort Knox treatment with "The Supercolossal—Well, Pretty Good—World of Joe Levine." It was a Luce leaf-through of the Boston Barnum's success story. Katharine Hamill, the byliner, accented "his old-time ballyhoo and showmanship (which) have given the movie business a much-needed lift." Story traced Levine's Steve Reeves "cornucopia of corn" (viz., "Hercules") to last fall's banquet hailing him as "the master showman of the world," at which Attorney-General Robert F. Kennedy—another Boston boy who made good—was the principal speaker.

In his Boston-to-the-Tiber career, Joseph E. (like in "Euripides") Levine did not bat a thousand. He experienced a few duds but in the meantime had veered his sights from the Via Veneto to the Hollywood environs. The 1962 season's downbeat was offset by a reversal of the tide in 1963 and the jackpot looms for the '64-'65 semester.

Levine's mobility is the not-so-secret ingredient as to why he chooses to retain his autonomy and independence from the protective parenthood of a powerhouse like Paramount. By so doing he is free to continue splinter deals, whether for further indie picture production and the acquisition of foreign properties for the global import and export markets. In this Levine's Lenny Lightstone has a free hand. As he traverses the festival circuits, be it Cannes or Berlin or Venice, Lightstone unloads and in between acquires miles of celluloid in regional and hemispheric wheeling and dealing. This is where Paramount perhaps benefits from renting the Cadillac.

The same jet speed has characterized the many-faceted Levine, from merchandising innovations to lavish parties, from importer of exploitation pictures to sensitive catalyst of "Two Women" which made Sophia Loren one of the three or four non-Hollywood Oscar-winners.

Dynamic Joe

Joe Levine's dramatic expansion in face of a contracting industry adds up to a noteworthy trade achievement. The showman's dynamism generated a built-in customer acceptance that proved pleasing to his customers (faced with product shortage) and his burgoning distribution organization. Intratrade he has been saluted by colleagues and competition alike for having galvanized a sagging industry on all levels.

In the Joe Levine saga, be it a banquet headed by the U.S. attorney-General or at a picture preem, the "pater familias" (as Vittorio Desica puts it) is to the fore. The paternalism is interpreted on two fronts—his wife, Roz, and the their children, and in his relations with his stars and personalities, be it the Hollywood brand or the Carlo Pontis (Sophia Loren) and the other Roman satellites. It is in these perspectives that Levine also proves that nice guys don't have to finish last. Right now he's riding the b.o. crest.

New Rank and Terrain For William Trambukis

William Trambukis, manager of Loew's State, Providence, has been promoted to northeastern division manager. He'll supervise circuit's houses in New Haven, Boston, Providence, Rochester, Syracuse, Buffalo, Springfield, Worcester, Waterbury, Hartford and Bridgeport. A 22-year vet, he started with Loew's as an usher in Providence.

Also appointed was Herbert Brown as midwest district manager. He'll h.q. in Cleveland with supervision also over houses in Toledo, Akron, Columbus, Dayton and Indianapolis. Brown has been city manager in Syracuse for Schine interests for past six years.

Argentina Forces Partnership; Yanks' Chief Trading Argument Is B.A. Theatres' Product Need

By VINCENT CANBY

Buenos Aires, April 21.

America's Motion Picture Export Assn. has signed a 90-day extension on its two-year Argentine film pact which officially expired March 31. The signing thus continues the status quo and does not immediately resolve any of the problems which face Yank distribs in this market, and indirectly, in such other key Latin American territories as Mexico and Brazil.

Under terms of the extension, the Yank distribs will get 50 import licenses, one-quarter of their previous annual total of 200. One of the main points gained by Robert Corkery, the MPEA's Latin American veep who has been here three weeks attempting to negotiate an agreement, was the Foreign Ministry's okay for the use of these 50 new licenses after the current 90-day period should the MPEA member companies so desire. Problem is that some companies may have no product they want to bring in right away, but will have a short time later.

Still unresolved is the position the Yank distribs will occupy in this market over the longterm period. At the moment the government of President Illia is studying several proposals for a drastic revision of the 1957 film law. Also, still on the books, but as yet not being enforced, is the decree that Yank distribs must handle one local pic for every six imported, and another decree requiring that all printing and subtitling be done here. Both decrees are examples of the Argentine industry's protectionist yearnings which have been building up over the last several years.

Forced Partnership

The six to one decree is regarded by the Yanks as particularly onerous since its application here would prompt similar moves in Mexico, maybe Brazil, to say nothing of other nations around the world trying to promote local film industries. While on the surface it might not look so bad, Yanks feel that they obviously would not get the best Argentine pix to handle, rather, they'd get the dogs. For this reason, the law would have the effect of requiring the Yanks to enter into coproduction deals in order to assure themselves of getting some kind of "releasable" product. Coproduction, in fact, is the cry which was heard most often here during the 10-day Argentine Film Fest which wound Saturday (11) night.

It remains to be seen whether or not the Yanks will fight the six-to-one decree to the extent of pulling out of Argentina entirely. In this market, however, they have some powerful allies fighting the decree in the local exhibs. The privately owned Argentine theatres need the U.S. product to survive and they don't relish a Hollywood famine. In this respect, the Argentine situation is somewhat brighter for the Yanks than it is in Mexico, where the vast majority of the theatres are government-owned and can thus sustain continuing b.o. losses without undue strain.

The Yanks, however, seem to have no local allies in their fight against the local printing degree.

The shape the new film law might take is impossible to ascertain at the moment, though it is bound to be somewhat more protective than the one now in force. Because the various segments of the Argentine industry could not earlier agree on various proposals for the law, the government has formed a Commission for The Promotion of Argentine Films to corrolate points of view, if possible. Commission is separate from but operates under the Ministry of Education, to which the Argentine Film Institute, which governs all segments of the industry under the present law, also answers.

One dark likelihood (dark, from the Yanks point of view) is that the new law will specify that future film agreements between the MPEA and the Argentines will be handled by the Ministry of Education instead of the Foreign Ministry, as is now the case. This possible switch makes the Yanks uneasy because the Foreign Ministry, being concerned with all aspects of foreign relations, is not about to okay measures which will (1) either work to the detriment of Argentina in other fields, or (2) are patently unlawful because of Argentina's membership in GATT and its various bilateral trade agreements. The Foreign Ministry, in fact, has yet to answer the MPEA's formal protest against the six to one decree for the simple reason, according to the Yanks, that it runs counter to a basic GATT tenent outlawing such discriminatory practices.

On the other hand, the Ministry of Education, it's felt, being totally concerned with domestic affairs, would not hesitate to attempt to enact protective measures, as long as they were locally popular.

Outside the range of the MPEA-Argentine film industry talks, reps of the Argentine labs have been trying to persuade reps of Mexican labs, where most Yank tele product is now dubbed for the latino market, to voluntarily agree that a certain percentage of that business should be given to Argentine labs. It's a question of "let's you and me share your cake." It seems highly unlikely that the Mexicans would ever agree to such a course.

Want State of Ohio To Refund Censor Charges Paid Under Protest

Columbus, O., April 21.

Echo of Ohio's state film censorship, outlawed in 1954, is being heard by the State Sundry Claims Board. Eight film distributors have presented claims totaling $747,615 for censorship fees they paid under protest between 1952 and 1954.

The U.S. Supreme Court declared a New York film censorship law unconstitutional in 1952 and two years later, based on that decision, the Ohio law was ruled invalid. One film company sued for recovery of their 1952-54 fees but the Ohio Supreme Court denied the claim and suggested the proper redress was to present the claim to the Sundry Claims Board. Firms presenting claims and the amounts:

Paramount Film Distributing Corp., $55,846; Twentieth Century-Fox, $133,721; RKO Teleradio Pictures Inc., $27,689; United Artists, $29,821; Warner Brothers, $26,181; Universal, $90,763; Columbia, $46,814 and Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, $336,766.

Another Film Situation Joins Shoppers' World

Boston, April 21.

General Drive-In Corp., biggest shopping centre theatre circuit in U.S., opens its Cinema II at Shoppers' World, Framingham, Mass., May 13, adding a new auditorium to the existing Cinema there.

With the opening of Cinema II, the two auditorias will contain more than 2,100 (combined) seating capacity.

Cinema at Shoppers' World was the first shopping center theatre opened by General Drive-In in 1951. Through the years, President Richard A. Smith reports it regularity has increased to such proportions that seating on weekends, particularly Saturday nights, had become "utterly inadequate."

Optimists Justified

Minneapolis, April 21.

Some months ago the Cooper Foundation, showing "How the West Was Won" (MGM) in its Minneapolis, Denver and Omaha Cinerama theatres, publicly declared that the picture would exceed 1,200,000 patrons in total patronage. But this week will find the figure soaring to 2,000,000 after a theatre party of 500 from a nearby Minnesota town attends the Cooper here

The picture is in its 57th stanza at the Cooper and last week racked up a remarkable $13,500 gross Of course, there's no end of its local run in sight yet.

Emerging From the Long Fog-Bank, U.S. Films Face New Rainbow—Hetzel

Members of the Motion Picture Assn. of America were told (Wed.) by acting president Ralph Hetzel that the American film industry is continuing to emerge from a five-year plateau on U.S. revenues.

The general decline in revenues that started in 1947 leveled off from 1957 to 1962. The first important increase, more than 5% was made last year and, according to MPAA, preliminary reports for 1964's first quarter indicate a substantially greater increase than in the same period last year.

Early reports, said Hetzel, indicate that the number of features released by MPAA's eight member companies may exceed 1963's total of 151. Based on plans for first six months, new feature distribution should increase substantially this year.

Because of expanding market potentia', American films have an excellent opportunity to make important gains in the next five or six years, Hetzel noted, and called particular attention to the forecast that the young adult group, ages 20-29, will expand by 24% between 1955-70.

Motion picture theatre ticket sales reported by the Dept. of Commerce continue to account for two-thirds of the U.S. expenditure on spectator amusement. American films occupy 60% of screen time abroad, said Hetzel, and foreign revenues of major distributors should continue at a $300,000,000 annual level, accounting for 50-55% of world gross of member companies.

The MPAA chief said that successful pictures of 1963's last quarter were characterized by more variety in type and a new vitality, making it appear that a rejection of formula-type production exists.

He also called to attention of members the major modernization of Hollywood facilities of many companies, particularly MCA (Universal) construction plans and the Columbia-Metro-Fox projected center in Malibu. Theatre building is currently undergoing a boom, Hetzel said, with 320 new houses finished or started in 1963, with expenditures of $97,411,500.

'BECKET' HARD DUCAT IN SHOPPERS' THEATRE

Philadelphia, April 21.

First hardticket attraction to play a suburban neighborhood house in this area is Hal Wallis' "Becket." It goes into the Cheltenham at the Cheltenham Shopping Center on June 17.

"Becket" will be shown 10 times weekly on a reserved seat basis with a $2.50 top, according to Frank J. Damis, zone manager for Stanley Warner Theatres. While Philadelphia has had as many as three, and even four reserved seat pictures running at once, hard ticket productions were previously restricted to firstrun midtown theatres.

In last two years, circuit has added two outlying firstruns, Lane and Yorktown Theatres, for introduction of art films in area.

'STRANGELOVE' IN KNOXVILLE

Theatre Gives No Figures But Says Tops By 32%

Knoxville, April 21.

"Dr. Strangelove" topped existing gross record at the first-run Capri Cinema, a suburban house here. Manager Hugh Rainey reported the picture grossed 32% above any previous booking. Actual dollar figures not given, as is charactistic. Capri seats 1,000. It's owned by Simpson Operating Co. of Atlanta.

"This is the most profitable product we have shown in years—holding over for a three-week stand," Rainey added.

Dutch Go For It, Too

Amsterdam, April 21.

Kriterion Theatre, here, registered 19,700 guilders ($5,316) for second week of "Dr. Strangelove" (virtually same as first week).

Very big for Holland.

Alberta Sex Bans

Edmonton, Atla., April 21.

Adultery, youthful fornication and life in a brothel were the themes of three movies banned in Alberta last year.

The Alberta censorship board viewed 1,827 films and made 263 cuts from 88 movies.

"The Chasers," a French film, was banned because its theme dealt with youngsters prowling the streets of France seeking sexsation. The board's ruling was not appealed.

A specially-appointed appeal board upheld the censor's rejection of a British film, "The Wild and Willing." The board felt this film's portrayal of promiscuity and adultery on a university campus, interspersed with obscene language, was offensive and not indicative of reality.

An American release, "The Balcony," was rejected for its ridicule of moral and religious standards and for many sequences in a "gadget-equipped" brothel.

Rochester Dem-Chronicle Autopsy on Oscarcast: Expired From Boredom

Usual autopsy on Oscar began immediately following the ABC telecast of the Academy Award ceremonies. Not many daily newspapers, however, made it the subject of an editorial as did the Rochester, N.Y. Democrat & Chronicle.

Headed "The Oscar Flop," it belabored the motion picture industry for failure to present the show "in an even halfway acceptable manner." Its final paragraph made a complete about-face and said that "choices for Oscars were superb," with individual plugs for Sidney Poitier ("overdue since his performance years ago in "Porgy and Bess") and Margaret Rutherford ("most magnificent old feminine rake in the movies").

The Democrat & Chronicle got in a second rap in its "Point of View" column, accusing show of being guilty of "stilted gaudiness, lack of imagination and an over abundance of commercials."

New Film Companies

Albany, April 21.

Paramount Columbia Films of Hong Kong Ltd. has been dissolved, according to a certificate filed with the Secretary of State in Albany by George G. Hoff, Paramount International Films Inc.

Judith Rutherford Marechal Productions Inc. has been formed to conduct a business in motion pictures, television films and theatricals with New York offices. Capital stock consists of 200 shares, no par value. Litvinoff & Singer are attorneys.

Ballade Pour Un Voyou Corp. has been chartered to distribute motion pictures, with offices in New York. Capital stock consists of 40,000 shares, 50c per value. Robert Hugh Davis, of Sommerfield & James, was filing attorney.

Del-Sego Drive-in Theatre Inc. has been authorized to conduct an outdoor theatre business in Oneonta, Otsego County. Capital stock consists of 200 shares, no par value. Lawyer is Frank W. Getman.

Joel Amusements Inc. has been authorized to conduct a motion picture business in New York. Address is c/o Julius Joelson, Manhattan. Capital stock consists of 200 shares, no par value. Jacob Leff, attorney.

Hal Roach Inc. has been formed to operate studios for the production of motion pictures, with New York offices. Capital stock consists of 50 shares, at $100 par value. Lynne A. Warren, Upper Nyack, recorded the papers at Albany.

Palace Lockport Corp has changed its name to St. Regis Motor Inn, Inc. Schine Realty Corporation of Gloversville, filed the certificate at Albany.

Kaufman - Clarens Productions Inc. has been formed to conduct a motion pictures, motion picture film and television film and programs business in New York. Capital stock consists of 200 shares, no par value. Litvinoff & Singer, attorneys.

Distribution Management Representatives Inc., of New York, has changed its name to Producers' Management Inc. Certificate filed by Attorney Arthur J. Klein.

Modern Film of West Africa Inc. has been authorized to conduct a motion picture business, with offices in New York. Capital stock consists of 1,000 shares, at $5 par value. Mervin C. Pollak, attorney.

Henry Strauss in Italia Inc. has been authorized to produce and deal in motion pictures and other attractions, with New York offices. Capital stock is 200 shares, no par value. Alexander J. D. Greeley the attorney.

Inside Stuff—Pictures

Marking 30th anni of its National Legion of Decency, the Roman Cathouic Church has issued an 18-page statement — "30 Years of Christian Witness—A Review and Preview." This group is one of 42 global Catholic film offices. Created in 1934 because the Church even then felt that the 1930 American Film Industry's Production Code had lost its "original thinking . . . and any real effectiveness in application."

The origin Legion pledge formula, issued in April 1934, was revised late the same year. This version was used, generally, until Pius XII's encyclical. The text, as modified then, is commonly used used today. It requires free commitment, devoid of all coercion.

When it comes to evaluating films, the Legion's national exec staff is assisted by "many competent and qualified reviewers, including lay and clerical educators from every branch of education; film critics; parish priests; student counsellors; husband-wife teams; and the Motion Picture Dept. of the International Federation of Catholic Alumnae.

Any film of consequence is analyzed and received written consideration as many as 30 to 40 reviewers.

Davis Film Distributors in Boston, distributors of "Passion Holiday," explained the "sudden cancellation" of the showing of the film at the Ritz, Lewiston, Me., after the leading anti-obscenity crusader in the area reported receiving complaints about it.

Mel and Stan Davis, brothers who own Davis Film, said the Irving Cohen, manager of the Lewiston theatre pulled the picture voluntarily after he had received two telephone calls from Laurier T. Raymond, the county attorney. The official up to this time had concentrated his efforts on ridding newsstands in the area of objectionable magazines. It was his first attack on films.

The Davis brothers pointed out: "The county attorney suggested that the film not open on the fifth day. It has already played four record breaking days. This official had never viewed the film. Lewiston had never exhibited a nudie film previously."

Metro's biggest-ever British production schedule, with an overall budget for the year ranging between $20,000,000 and $25,000,000, was finalized in London by president Robert H. O'Brien and international vice prez Maurice Silverstein. The program teed off when filming started on "The Yellow Rolls Royce" and will continue through to the end of the year when production starts on "Dr. Zhivago."

O'Brien said the size and importance of the production lineup had not in any way been conditioned by the potential Eady coin, though he admitted that money, when it came in, was quite handy. The company, he declared, had never made a picture in Britain just because of the levy possibilities, but because it was right to do so.

An Editor of Commonweal Draws Fire For Rapping Legion's Ways to Laity

Troy, N.Y., April 24.

Criticisms and comments which John Leo, associate editor of The Commonweal, had made before the Newman Association of Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute here, in general advocating "a more active role for Catholic layman" in Legion of Decency ratings, and other matters, has drawn retort from Rev. Donald L. Starks, assistant pastor of St. Patrick's Church, Albany, and chaplain of the Newman Club at State College of Albany.

On the Legion of Decency, the priest said: "It is not necessary to belabor the work of the Legion. It is only meant to be a spiritual health department, sending out its official warnings of danger or contamination according to age and condition."

Leo had acknowledged the Legion's usefulness to parents in the selection of motion pictures their offspring should and should not see. But he was Mr. Dubious on the more tricky ratings "condemned in part" ("morally objectionable in part for all"). He wondered how Shakespear's great work would fare and whether the ultimate effect would not, or could not, be a multiplication of Disney-type films. He was disbelieving that "you will go to hell" for viewing Legion-disapproved films.

The Evangelist, official weekly of the Albany Diocese, in an editorial (16) titled "Leo the Rash-Hearted," declared: "There are some self important individuals who have the conceited notion of being marked for the 'apostolic' mission of setting the Church straight on its personnel matters. Apparently, John Leo, the young Commonweal associate editor, is obsessed with this notion. He certainly sound as if he considers himself spokesman for the lay family of the Church, which, in his estimation, is badly abused and unappreciated . . ."

"Many will concur that public relations, Madison Avenue style, is not totally without merit for better efficiency and effectiveness, but not to the ridiculous degree that Mr. Leo recommends," continued the editorial. "If he conducts a perpetual 'open house' at his office and is out of his chair to glad-hand every Tom, Dick and Harry who come calling, then Commonweal should give him some work to do."

"Important for young crusaders, like Mr. Leo, intoxicated by progressiveness, is to keep in sight that which is the first requisite for progress in things that pertain to God. 'Madison Avenue' has no substitute for personal sanctity."

Patriotic Trailer

Council of Motion Picture Organizations has written heads of all exhibitor groups, urging use by member theatres of trailer on which "Star Spangled Banner" is played over a pictorial background. Action was taken at request of Under Secretary of the Navy Paul B. Fay Jr.

Request particularly suggested use of trailer, which National Screen is distributing, on May 29, birthday of late President Kennedy.

Theatre Owner's Query: Scratch a Kid Audience, What Have You Got Left?

Regina, Sask., April 21.

Film censorship was the basis of a statement in a recent issue of the Melville (Sask.) Advance by H. C. Vassos, theatre owner in that city.

"Restricted pictures are amongst our poorest grossers, and I'm sure 90 percent of the theatre owners in this province will agree wholeheartedly," he said.

"When you eliminate the largest segment of theatregoers, which happens to be students and children, you can't help but suffer at the boxoffice. I'm prepared to back this statement up with figures. Give us a good family comedy or action picture anytime to perk up ticket sales.

"Why bother with restricted pictures, then, if they're not profitable? Any exhibitor who is interested in the money aspect only will not bother with them (with the odd exception of a picture that is given national prominence, such as 'Tom Jones,' by receiving 10 Academy Award nominations). A good theatre exhibitor, however, who is interested in catering to the entertainment tastes of the whole community, will try to keep his programs varied.

"It's impossible to please everyone, but it's our job to try. A picture that some people will leave the theatre raving about, others will go out holding their noses.

". . . The thing that disturbs me most is that the theatre is the only medium of entertainment whose audience can be regulated or controlled and it's the only medium that is being censored while other mediums that are available to all ages are permitted complete freedom. Does this make sense?

"If a movie is put into a restricted category, it should be seen by adults only with no exceptions. I agree wholeheartedly that everything should be done to protect the morals of our youth, but I also feel strongly that once a person has become an adult they should be able to choose what they wish to hear and see, and what they hear and see at this point will change their morals not one iota.

"Leading psychiatrists throughout the world support this view.

"There is no question that everything that falls into a restricted category could not be considered 'artistic' or even entertaining, and that some of it would be outright trash. However, I have a high enough regard for the intelligence of the adults in Saskatchewan to believe that they can determine this for themselves. A movie is like any other product, if it's inferior it just doesn't sell."

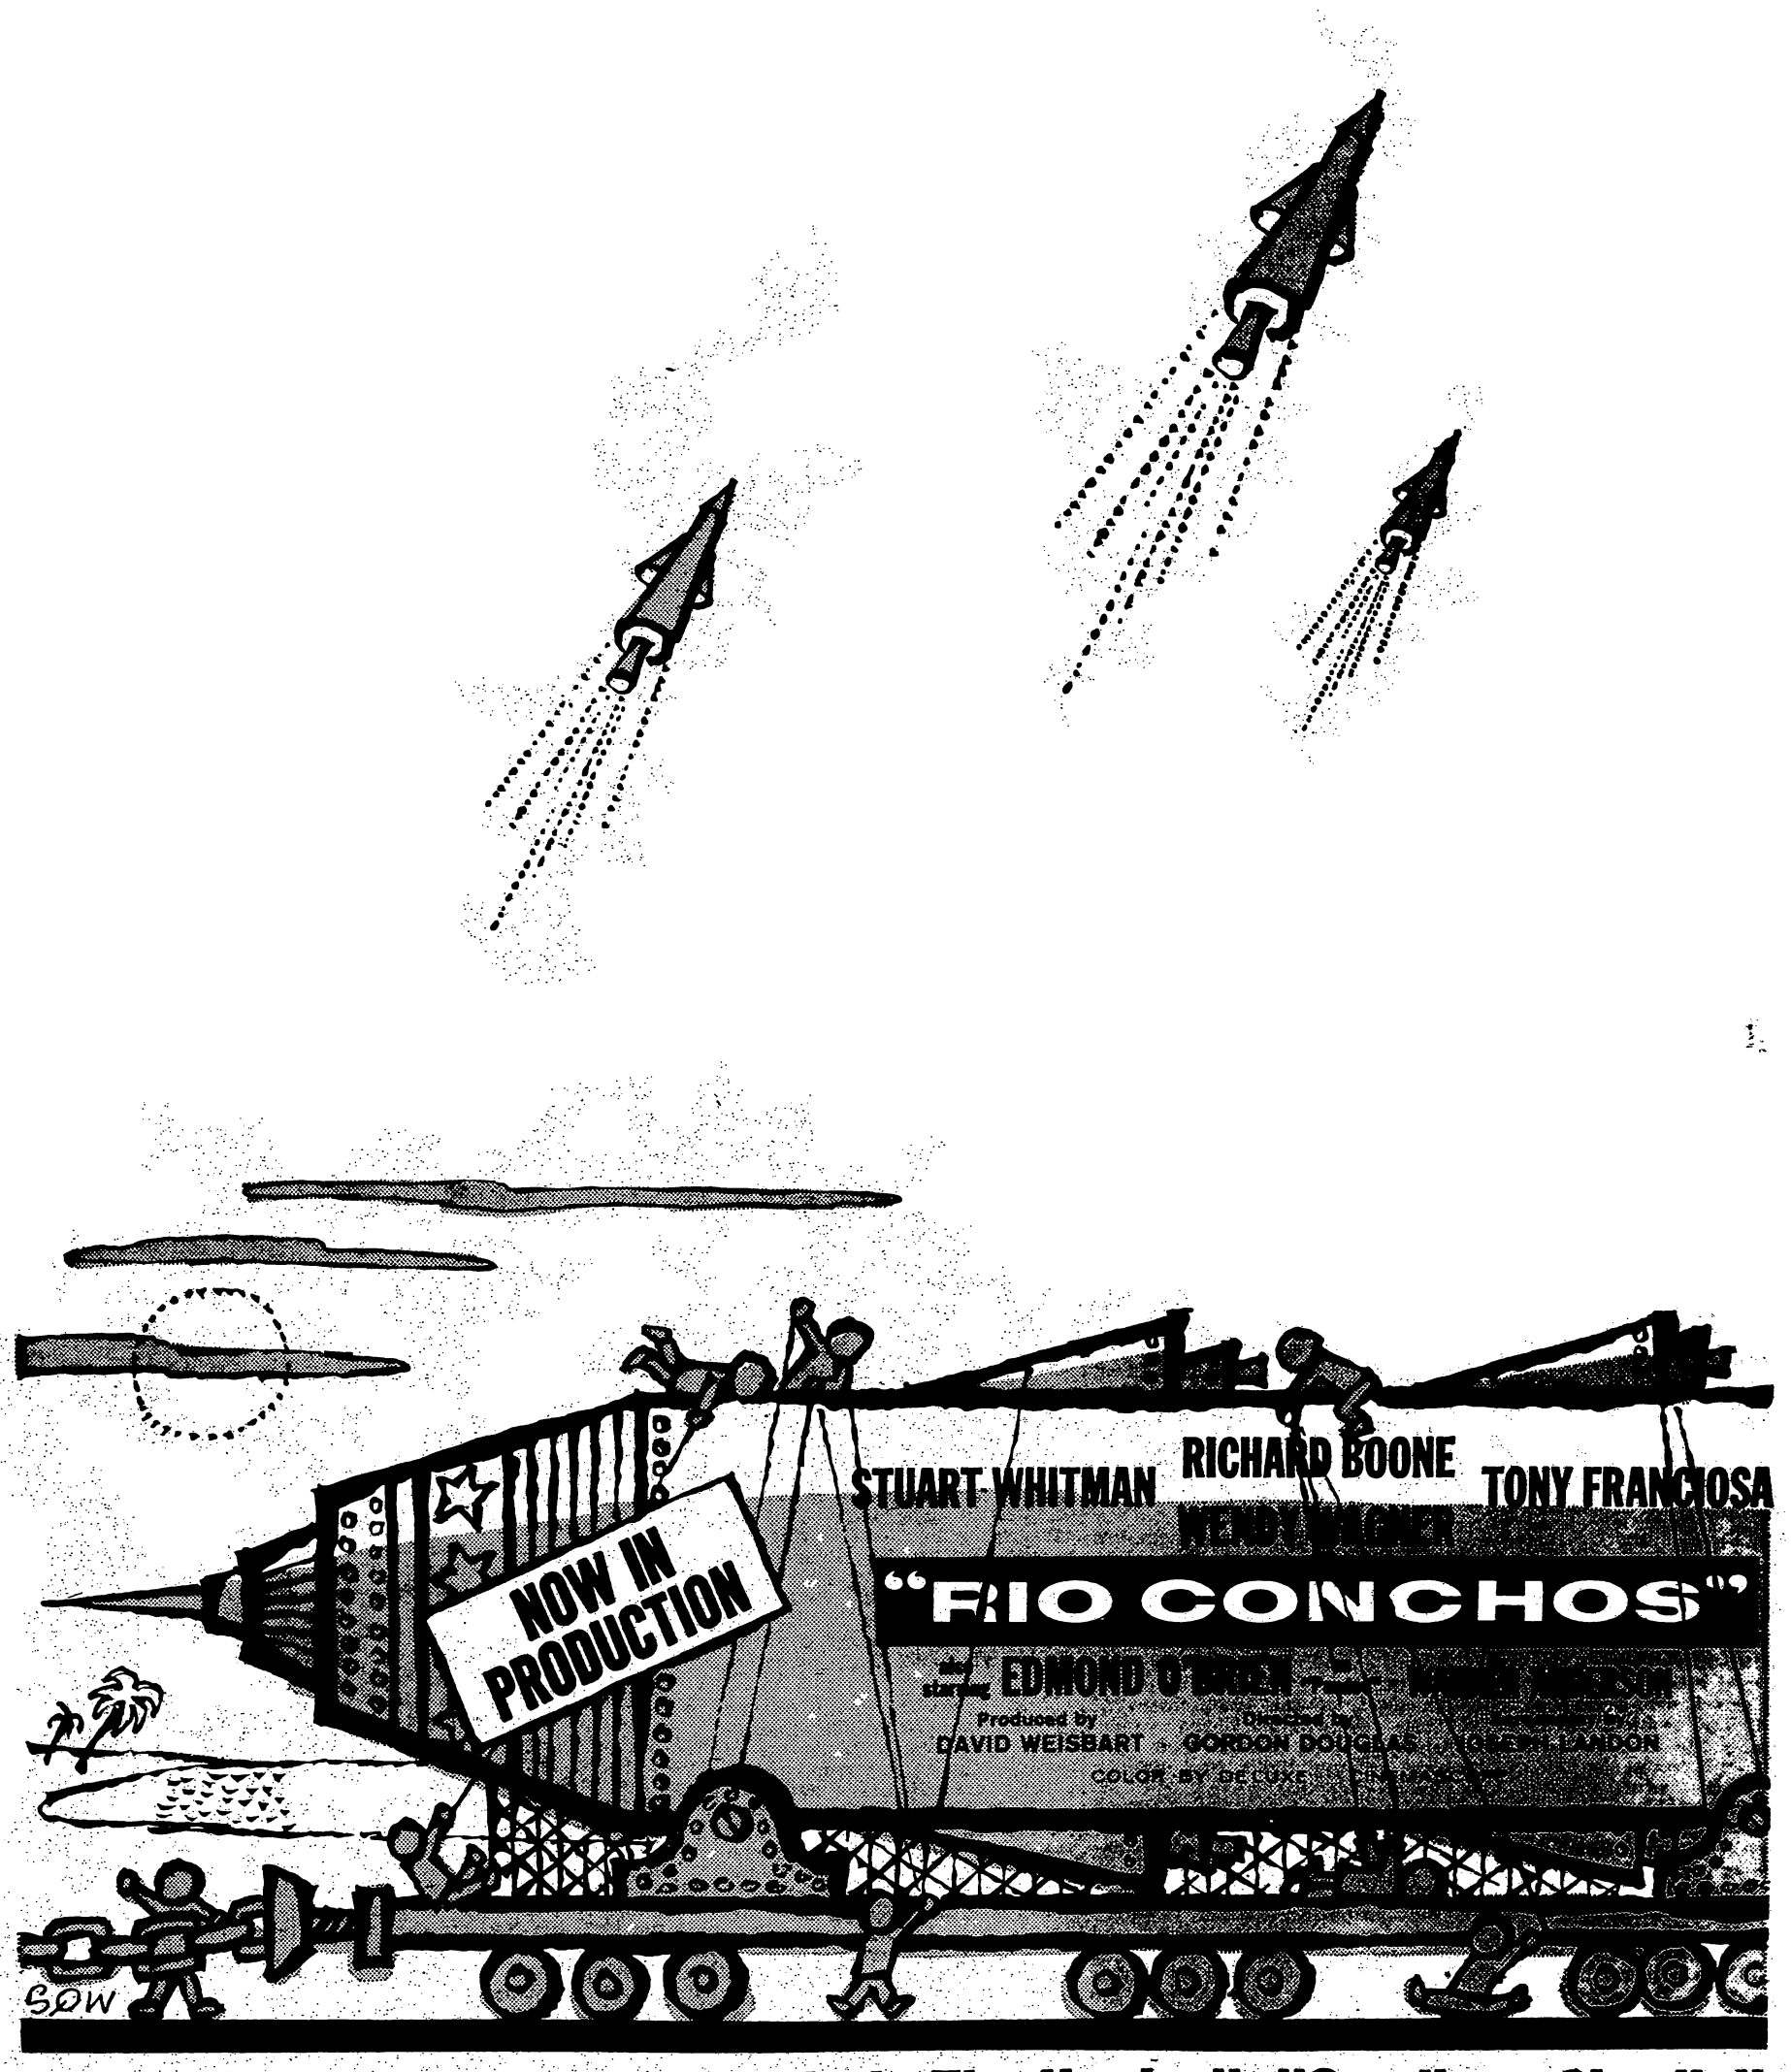
Cooper Unloads Pair

Lincoln, Neb., April 21.

Cooper Foundation Theatres has sold its houses in Pueblo and Grand Junction, Colorado, to the Aircadia Investment Corp., effective May 1. Effective same date, the houses have been leased by Aircadia to Westland Theatres, Colorado Springs.

As part of purchase price, said Cooper president E. N. Thompson, Cooper Foundation Theatres will receive full title to the Chief Theatre Building, Greeley, Colorado, and will sell it to Bob Reese Motors, a Greeley-based real estate holding company, with a leaseback of the theatre by Cooper for an indefinite period.

ANYONE FOR JERRY?



Par Takes Bids Now For Lewis' Christmas Picture

Paramount's perennial booking of Jerry Lewis features for summer and Christmas playoff seemingly don't need a foot of film to sell 'em. Exhibs are already being asked to bid for Lewis' Xmas pic for 1964, "The Disorderly Orderly" which hasn't been near a camera yet. Some exhibs call this type of thing blind booking but Paramount calls it great.

Lewis' "The Patsy" was booked for summer playdates the same way. The interesting thing about the system is that one never hears exhibs scream about this type of blind booking. They only gripe about the commodities they are unfamiliar with. Lewis has been bread and butter for Par and exhibs almost every time out so they just buy.

Another item on Par's annual list is Elvis Presley for Thanksgiving. Although the rocker makes pix for other companies, Par keeps him for turkey time. His "Roustabout," which is also not in any form to be seen although it is being filmed at present, is also being sold already. Exhibs are a little more resistant with Presley than Lewis since the rock 'n' roller's track record isn't as secure. But they buy all the same.

another one off to the launching pad—from 20th!

and already in orbit—"Fate Is The Hunter", "Goodbye, Charlie"
"John Goldfarb, Please Come Home"

Film Reviews

Continued from page 6

The Evil of Frankenstein

girl, the local Burgomaster and the police, but keeps a fairly stiff upper lip throughout.

John Elder's dialog occasionally raises unintented laughter and John Wilcox's lensing is adequate. A great deal of the artwork smacks of backcloth and models. Peter Woodthorpe, Sandor Eles, Katy Wild, David Hutcheson, Caron Gardner and Duncant Lamont form the main support for Cushing, while Kiwi Kingston is the Creature, an uncomfortable role through which he shuffles with macabre aplomb. Rich.

La Mort D 'Un Tueur

(Death of a Killer)
(FRENCH)

Paris, April 14.

Comacico release of Copernic-Citedial production. Stars Robert Hossein; features Marie-France Pisier, Simon Andreu, Robert Dalban. Directed by Robert Hossein. Screenplay, Hossein, Louis Martin, Claude Desailly, Georges and Andre Tabet; camera, Jean Boffety; editor, Marie-Sophie Dubus. At Triomphe, Paris. Running time, 75 MINS.

Massa ..... Robert Hossein
Maria ..... Marie-France Pisier
Luciano ..... Simon Andreu
Albert ..... Robert Dalban
Tony ..... Jean Lefebre

Actor Robert Hossein sometimes turns to writing and directing. This one has him combining all. It's still his penchant for trying to make arty gangster pix. Too much posing, farout psycho plotting with incestuous angles and slow pacing make result pretentious rather than probing. What might have been an okay actioner becomes a plodding affair. Mainly for playoff in France.

Hossein comes back from the jug convinced that a friend turned him in. He also has had an unhealthy interest in his pert sister which is shown in a series of flashbacks as he stalks the old friend who is now living with the sister.

So it appears he mainly hates this man for having won over his sister. Comes the showdown with a Russian roulette contest between him and his ex-friend via each trying a shot at the other with one bullet in a revolver. He wins but is turned in by his sister and shot down by the police.

There is even a symbolical girl, played by the actress who does the sister, who has a wordless affair with Hossein while some rich people ogle strippers and exotic dancers in another room. Hossein is stolidly acceptable as a thesp but too predictable as scripter-director. He alternates long shots and close shots for each scene with long pauses that make little dramatic effect.

Trying for tragedy there is not the requisite depth of characterization or relentless situation which is necessary. Mosk.

Mishpahat Simchon

(The Simchon Family)
(ISRAELI)

Noy Productions Ltd. presentation of Shlomo Nouman and Yair Pecker. Starring Meir Margalith. Directed by Yoel Zilberg. Script by Leo Filler and Yoel Zilberg; camera, Marco Yocovlevitz; editor, Helga Cranston; music, Dov Seltzer. Reviewed at the Allenby, April 12. Running time, 88 MINS.

Noah Simchon ..... Meir Margalith
Zira ..... Shoshana Kotler
Gabi ..... Oded Katler
Na'ava ..... Rina Ganor
Orna ..... Tikva More
Zwirn ..... Zalman Levinah
Eddie Calvert & band

This story, scripted from a popular radio series that was broadcast for almost two years, trice weekly, has local coloring, familiar scenes and faces. It used to react to actual and topical problem and reflected everyday life in each installment. As a film it retains the local quality but fails notwithstanding the bright personality and warm humor of its star, Meir Margalith, to make the satirical points that might have added general interest in the story. It is shallow when criticising the artificial high standard of living. The only scene in which director Yoel Zilberg managed to convey this is the nightmarish reception held at the vague African State, upon installation in a diplomatic career. It brilliantly spoofs local cocktail parties and other ostentatious affairs.

Technically the picture is of varying quality. Standard shots and crude prints achieve neorealistic nature in a comedy that is anything but neorealistic. Zilberg's direction and Helga Cranston's editing (she used to edit Laurence Olivier's pictures) help make the series of scenes into a quick-lough-getting film. The director also managed to supervise cleverly Meir Margalith's first film assignment. This legit actor, long an outstanding comedy star of Moliere, Schweik and other standard works, comes across naturally in this film. Zilberg should also be credited for good supporting performances by Shraga Friedman and Elisheva Michaeli, as accomplices of Simchon in furnishing the penthouse.

Some of the other actors, young and old, give credible and natural performances, and only crude scenes (like the photo studio and the nightclub set) expose the film's weaknesses. These are not made up for by Dov Seltzer's score, into which he incorporated his local hit, "Speak to Me With Flowers," and two twist tunes.

Because of its professional shortcomings, the film deserves a lesser success than is evident at the boxoffice. It is the younger set, who have been listening to the radio series, who crowd the cinemas in all three major cities joined by the people who are going to watch Meir Margalith, who had been awarded, on Independence Day, the highly respected Israel Prize for his lifework in the Israeli theatre.

For audiences abroad this "B" picture holds limited interest, mainly as a way of seeing the changed scene of Israel, still associated by many as a land of pioneers, idealistic and romantic human beings. Watching "Mishpahat Simchon" might give them a view of other Israeli scenes, not necessarily the most important or telling ones. Port.

Paradis Retur

(Paradise and Back)
(DANISH)

Copenhagen, April 7.

Nordisk Film production and release. Stars Poul Reichhardt, Lise Ringheim, Elsebeth Reingaard, Christoffer Bro. Directed by Gabriel Axel. Story, screenplay by Peter Ronild; camera, Jorgen Skov; music, Bent Fabricius-Bjerre. Reviewed at Palads Theatre, Copenhagen. Running time, 90 MINS.

Tonnemann ..... Poul Reichhardt
The Lady ..... Lise Ringheim
Mona at 11 ..... Nina Larsen
Mona at 16 ..... Elsebeth Reingaard
Mona at 36 ..... Winnie Sorensen
Tom at 11 ..... Henning Olsen
Tom at 16 ..... Christoffer Bro
Tom at 36 ..... Poul Clemmensen
Borge ..... Kjeld Jacobsen
The Actor ..... Preben Lerdorff Rye

Peter Ronild is bogged down by his social selfconsciousness but lifted by this true poetic spirit in this loose-jointed story about offbeat people who have either chosen or been fated to live in shacks near a vast Copenhagen city dump. It is in a marshy region next to an army shooting range. Ronild's screenplay has practically no outer drama, but Gabriel Axel has directed with a firm eye for whatever dramatic scraps he finds among the spoils.

"Paradise" is an earnest attempt to make a film that remains true to its intentions. Unfortunately, the intentions are more often naive than rawboned. Several sequences are handled in an experimental style that by now must be considered rather oldhat, newsreel shots frozen in the middle of the action and attempted take-offs on the syle of the silents.

But no audience can help but feel sympathy towards this collection of misfits. There's Poul Reichhardt, the man with the dreams of travels on the high seas; Kjeld Jacobsen, who during the war had found security in a Nazi uniform; the children are just children, still innocent of the predicament of their surroundings; the youngsters, groping toward their various guiding lights and desires. Latter two are played with exceptional restraint by Elsebeth Reingaard and Christoffer Bro.

There is no direct action, but a certain pattern gradually is formed. War is always a threat, but peacetime society threatens even more with its inertia and ignorance. Reichhardt had joined the resistance movement during the last World War but hates the dirty gun work. The children, even in the city dump of a welfare state, pursue their schooling towards various careers.

The film cannot make up its mind how and when to end, and so it has five different endings, all of them seemingly pessimistic. Even though this is in black and white, the film is not without its touches of color. It looks like respectable business looms at some art theatres for this pic. Kell.

Life of Oharu

(Japanese-English subtitles)

This KOI-Shintoho production had its U.S. preem Monday (20) at the Toho Cinema 12 years after it was shown at the Venice Film Festival. Of the film, directed by Kenji Mizoguchi, Mosk., in the Sept. 17, 1952 VARIETY, wrote "an overlong adaptation of a 17th century classic. Kinuyo Tanaka outstanding as Oharu, a girl who goes from courtesan to prostitute to beggar. Blessed with fine imagery and thesping but too slow for general-run. Lensing is excellent . . . editing is weak."

Toshiro Mifune is seen in small part in beginning of film but is being advertised as one of leads. Amazingly, present running time of 137 minutes is same as when reviewed at Venice.

The Silent Playground

(BRITISH)

Above-average low budget second feature, featuring new blood. Merits enthusiastic reception.

London, April 16.

British Lion release through BLC of a Focus Film Production. Stars Jean Anderson, Bernard Archerd, Roland Curram. Produced by George Mills. Written & directed by Stanley Giulder; camera, Martin Curtis; editor, Peter Musgrave; music, Tristram Carey. Previewed April 15, '64 at British Lion Private Theatre. Running time, 75 MINS.

Lacey ..... Roland Curram
Duffy ..... Bernard Archerd
Mrs. Lacey ..... Jean Anderson
Mavis ..... Ellen McIntosh
Alan ..... John Ronane
Dr. Green ..... Desmond Llewellyn
Jane Wilson ..... Rowena Gregory
Sgt. Clark ..... Basil Beale

Brought in in 24 days at a modest $75,000, with entire location shooting and a little known cast, this is one of British Lion's frequent recent attempts to prove that the dualler can be top level product in entertainment and technical content. This exciting little drama amply proves the distributors' point. It is a quality production which scores heavily against some of its loftier rivals. Writer-director Stanley Boulder has had documentary experience but this is his first essay in feature work. His screenplay is taut, economic and natural in dialog and his direction is unfussy and alert. Technically he has smart aid, with crisp cutting, an evocative unobtrusive score by Tristram Carey and fine lensing by Martin Curtis which not only captures the atmosphere of the London suburb in which the pic was shot but produces some really attractive, bleak photography in river and snow sequences.

The story, which has a useful reminder to parents and moppets, "never take sweets from a stranger," concerns a mentally retarded youth who loves kids. Returning from the hospital where he is an out-patient he hands out highly colored barbituate tablets to youngsters in a cinema matinee queue. End of show finds a number of unconscious children slumped in their seats. All are dangerously ill. Then begins the patient fight for their lives at the local hospital, while the police hunt for the donor of the tablets. The two themes are neatly married, with the tracking down of the hapless youth having mounting tension.

Jean Anderson, who plays the half-wit's worried mother with dignity, is the best konwn name in the cast, though Bernard Archard, a brisk, credible police officer, is a w.k. tv thesp. Newcomer Roland Curram is a pitiable creature as the quarry and looks full of promise. Ellen McIntosh and John Ronane provide a slight, but likeable romantic interlude, Miss McIntosh being the widowed mother of three key children being hunted by the cops before they take the tablets. Desmond Llewellyn, Rowena Gregory and a bunch of others, including several talented moppets, form a solid supporting cast.

The film never seeks sensationalism or the mawkishness that could have arisen through the time of action, which is immediately pre-Christmas. Despite a lack of marquee bait, "The Silent Playground" booked with another carefully chosen film demands keen attention from exhibs. Rich.

Il Polo Nel Mondo

(Go, Go, Go, World)
(ITALIAN)
(Color)

Rome, April 7.

Atlantica release of a Marco Vicario production. Directed by Renato Marzi, Anthony Dawson. Camera (Eastmancolor), Giovanni Raffaldi, Giancarlo Lari, Marcello Gallinelli; editor, Mario Morra; music, Nino Oliviero. At Capranica, Rome. Running time, 95 MINS.

Latest in Italian documentary-feature skein of the "Mondo Cane" genre is one of the better ones, rising head and shoulders over the mass of exploitation items which have drugged the market in recent months. Elegant lensing, rather than some of the cheap pickup stuff used in many other similar pix, gives it the flash of class. And a witty, ironic commentary (in the Italian version seen, at least; an English language and French version are also ready) add to film's plus points. It should find a suitable market in many areas.

But it must be added that the rash of previous pix along these lines has severely limited possibilities of originality for this one. There are, to be sure, several interesting, colorful, and sensational bits. But there are also many not so entertaining.

Blood, gore and folklore are musts here, too, and there are the now-familiar bits showing strange Eastern eating habits, Southern Italian religious ceremonies, tribal customs and the oft-seen shots of aged Yank tourists cavorting in Hawaii, lensed with ridiculous intent and here definitely over-indulged and in bad taste.

Other musts are the Spanish bulls running through a town, exploitable strip numbers, the U.S. Bowery, the Cannes bikini bit, Hong Kong sampan poverty row, etc. Effective windup with a moral is montage of the Italian auto mania, followed by clean, free zooming of a brace of jet planes into and beyond the Italian Alps.

Mario Morra's editing plays part in making this latter bit, and its adroit in most other transitions from sequence to sequence.

Nino Oliviero's musical score provides a major assist in general tone of lushly outfitted production. Incom Studios have fashioned some very effective animated titles. Hawk.

La Calda Vita

(The Warm Life)
(ITALO-FRENCH)

Rome, April 5.

Unidis release of a Jolly Film-Les Films Agiman co-production. Features Catherine Spaak, Gabriele Ferzetti, Jacque Perrin. Fabrizio Capucci. Directed by Florestano Vancini. Screenplay, Vancini, Fondato, Bartolini. Camera (Eastmancolor), Roberto Guardi. Music, Carlo Rustichelli. At Modernissimo, Rome. Running time, 97 MINS.

Uneven pic. Some good human and physical values. But basic lack of warmth, hence low believability prevents ultimate satisfaction. Cast names will help in Italy, but elsewhere, release is on its own, with iffy chances.

Two youngsters on the make take a young girl along on an island vacation. She's basically game, but can't decide between the introverted Jacques Perrin and extroverted (but slightly neurotic) Fabrizio Capucci. Eventually she falls for older third man who happens by, Gabriele Ferzetti. At windup, however, and after introvert has committed suicide, gal decides not to get involved with anyone and goes off alone.

Catherine Spaak is once more easy to look at, acts with professional aplomb despite so-so material, and also provides exploitable fotage along the way. Vancini's direction is technically fine, but he fails in bringing his characters to life, at least in case of two youngsters, resolving sequences involving them with almost endless staring and brooding (on the part of Perrin), and cavorting or pouting (by Capucci). Closing part of pic, mostly between Miss Spaak and Ferzetti, are on different plane and ring true, thanks also to a solid performance by thesp. There is a definite feeling of stylistic influence, conscious or not, by Michelangelo Antonioni and his "Avventura"—also because of island setting.

Camerawork in splendid Sardinian settings is a technical plus. So is Carlo Rustichelli's musical scoring. Miss Spaak also sings song (Non e M'eute), over titles in her now-characteristic effective style. Hawk.

B.A. Fest Reviews

El Demonio En La Sangre

(Demon in the Blood)
(ARGENTINE)

Buenos Aires, April 14.

Columbia Pictures presentation of a Sergio Kogan production. Features Rosita Quintana, Arturo Garcia Buhr, Ubaldo Martinez, Wolf Ruvinski, Pinky, Ernesto Bianco, Lidia Lamaison. Directed by Rene Mugica. Screenplay, Augusto Roax Bastoe, Tomas Eloy Martinez; camera, Ricardo Younis, Oscar Melli; music, Rodolfo Arizago. At Buenos Aires Film Festia, April 10, '64. Running time, 75 MINS.

Director Rene Mugica's technical but not story virtuosity is evident throughout this three-part Argentine episodic pic detailing various ways in which evil takes hold of rather ordinary people. Unfortunately for the viewer, evil (and/or the devil) doesn't seem to be too inventive. The first episode is made up of the hallucination of a near-mortally wounded Negro boxer, who has a vision of his manager hypnotizing him into destroying all the people who have been good to him. The second is a sort of watered-down "Tell-Tale Heart," in which a murdered wife comes back to haunt her husband and his mistress. The third is an ironic tale of a puritan husband, his bored wife and a stranger, who may or may not be the devil and who sets out to seduce the wife. Anby.

His Own Blood

(RUSSIAN)

Buenos Aires, April 14.

Lenfilm presentation. Stars Evgueni Matvie, Via Artmane, with Anatoli Papanov, Vladimir Ratomski, Igor Seliuzhonok, Yura Fisenkov, Tania Doronina, Vera Povetnika, Andrei Danilov, Kola Morozov. Directed by Mijail Ershov. Screenplay, Fiodor Knorre; camera, Oleg Kujovarenco; music, V. Basner. At Buenos Aires Film Festival, April 10, '64. Running time, 92 MINS.

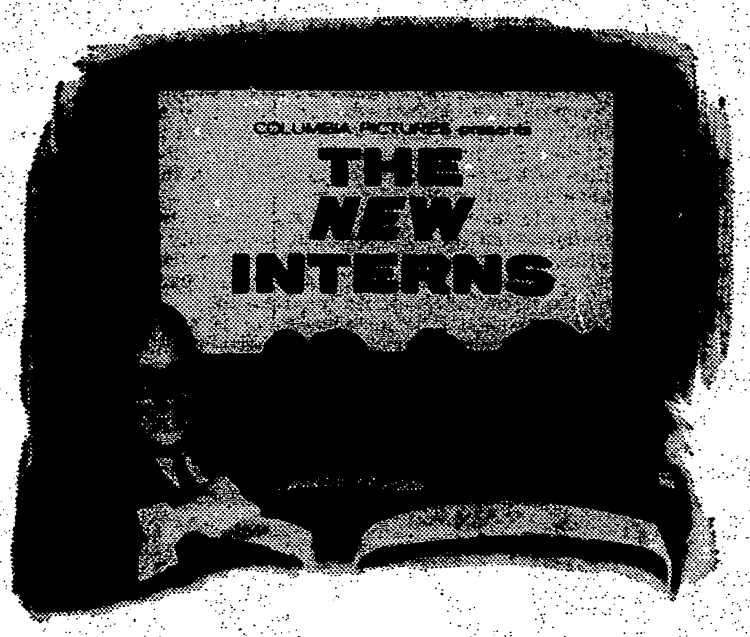
Honesty of emotion and simplicity of treatment are the virtues of "His Own Blood," an appealing love story set in the closing days of World War II. Pic, however, does not seem to possess the kind of dramatic distinction which might create boxoffice interest in the international market.

Story concerns a returned soldier and his "courtship" of a sweet young woman who, with her three small children, has been abandoned by her husband. The soldier eventually persuades the woman to bring her children and set up housekeeping with him. Title derives from the contest over custody of the children between the stepfather and the real father which ensues when the woman dies suddenly during an emergency operation (for reasons never specified, at least in the Spanish subtitles seen by this reviewer).

Central roles are nicely played by Evgueni Matvie and Via Artmane. Anby.

Mount Venus

(GERMAN)



Buenos Aires, April 9.

A Gala Selection release, produced by Franz Seitz and featuring Marissa Mell, Nicole Radal, Monica Flodquist, Ina Duscha, Claudia Marus, Christine Granberg and Jane Axell. Directed and written by Rolf Thiele. Director of Photography, Wolf Wirth. Camera, Rudolf Schloemp. At Buenos Aires Film Festival. Running time, 92 MINS.

Though this "Mount Venus" may look like an art film at first sight, it is in reality arty. Photography is beautiful, even exciting and certainly difficult, from a technical point of view. Each frame is carefully balanced; a great many shots are made against the light of large windows and there are also some near-high key effects. Wolf Wirth and Rudolf Schloem certainly deserve credit for their excellent work.

The same can not be said for director Thiele, who handles his actresses as if they were models and even, in some cases, fails to individualize them properly. Stylistically the film is beautiful to look at; in content it is empty and, worse, pretentious. A sort of femenine "Waiting for Godot," that is not only heavyhanded but lacks humor. Godot in this case is not a mysterious entity, but a gynecologist named Alphonse. It would appear that all the vapid symbolism of this pic adds up to the simple fact that woman needs man and that lesbianism is not an easy way out. It certainly seems a roundabout way four estabishing such a truism.

"Mount Venus," might stand a chance at art-houses delving in the seudo-erotic and arty. Chile.

"Remember what I told you about THE INTERNS?"

Before anyone else saw it, after screening a rough cut, I told you showmen to cash in on the tremendous boxoffice appeal of that great Columbia film, and I know you weren't disappointed. Now, I just saw a new film that is even bigger, bolder and more exciting! It's called "THE NEW INTERNS," and believe me, this new picture has more comedy, more hard hitting realism, more suspense than "THE INTERNS." It's just the greatest entertainment that I have seen in years. "THE NEW INTERNS" stars a brilliant cast of wonderful young, attractive people and audiences everywhere are going to love them. I can't begin to tell you how high I am about this film, which was produced by Robert Cohn, the same man responsible for "THE INTERNS." But, this I will tell you. "THE NEW INTERNS" is going to be a big, big winner, and you can't afford not to share with Columbia in the successful summer business this film guarantees. Prints of "THE NEW INTERNS" are now available in all our branches, so, see for yourself why I'm so excited about this picture and why once again I say to all my exhibitor friends...here is tremendous boxoffice!

Rube Jacker

Vice President and General Sales Manager

Columbia's Biggest Year!

THE NEW INTERNS MICHAEL CALLAN · DEAN JONES · TELLY SAVALAS · BARBARA EDEN · STEFANIE POWERS

KAY STEVENS · and INGER STEVENS as Nancy · introducing GEORGE SEGAL Written by WILTON SCHILLER · Based upon characters from the novel "The Interns" by RICHARD FREDE

Produced by ROBERT COHN · Directed by JOHN RICH

Hints Producer Disloyalty to Films In Theatres, Hypocrisy Re Toll

Dallas, April 21.

Philip F. Harling, asst. to the president of Theatre Owners of America and chairman of the Motion Picture Industry Joint Committee Against Pay TV, told delegates to the Inter-State Theatres conference Thursday (16) that motion picture distributors were guilty of hypocrisy in selling exhibitors their product when, at the same time, they "have a beam in their eyes to sell that same product for Pay TV purposes."

Harling said that the studios must be either with or against the exhibitors and from where he stood it did not appear "they are with us."

He stated that newspapers and magazines had kept three myths alive over the past several years—(1) that motion picture theatres are a dying business; (2) that Pay TV is a magic panacea that will shortly sweep the country; and (3) that CATV systems are necessary for Free TV.

"They are myths—pure and simple, and utterly and conclusively ridiculous."

Harling said that TOA is not opposed to a CATV system, per se, but it is opposed to any system which includes the right to use it for Pay TV purposes. He advised that any CATV system application should be scrupulously studied and unless it contained a prohibition for using it for Pay TV, it "should be fought to a standstill."

He suggested that any exhibtor hearing of a CATV application should report it immediately to his home office and be guided by steps taken to oppose it.

In answer to "doomcriers" prediction of the early demise of film business, Harling said, in view of an average of 50,000,000 weekly attendance, that "movies are the healthiest invalid I ever knew." He did say that films were going through a tremendous period of adjustment, partly because of tv, fewer theatres, change in film-going habits, etc. He admitted that hardtop theatres had decreased by 6,000 since 1950 but that close to 4,000 driveins had taken their place. He endorsed the trend by the larger circuits of closing houses that were failing so as to concentrate on units with earning potential.

The apparent success of theatres in shopping centers was cited by Harling, saying they were sought by site developers because they were not only rent-paying tenants, they drew people to other merchants in the center. He estimated that the average shopping center theatre had a drawing power of between 12-15,000 people per week. As a result, banks and insurance companies had lifted "unwritten bans" on theatre construction financing.

Noting that "we are not entirely out of the woods," Harling spotlighted the major enemies — tv and Pay-TV, fingerpointing as chief proponents — Telemeter, Phonevision and STV. Telemeter's claim to 3,500 subscribers was questioned. Harling credits STV with being smartest of the trio and, with tie-up of the Giants and Dodgers baseball games, the number one enemy.

He lauded efforts of the Citizens Crusade for Free TV in California in their fight against the system and believes that more than three times the necessary number of voters will be counted.

Insisting that pay tv is not in the public interest and that he is sure it will fail, Harling also predicted that during any testing period, both motion pictures and free tv could be seriously injured.

Harling wound by suggesting that delegates write their Congressmen, as the question of Pay-TV must ultimately be ruled on by Congress.

Gene Markey's 'Women' Looms Likely for Pix

Gene Markey's "Women, Women Everywhere" (Bobbs-Merrill; $4.50) is a long, elaborate spoof of contemporary sex fiction. It's not likely to set bookstalls ablaze, but if a couple of spoofers like Billy Wilder and Jack Lemmon happened to take it in hand they might get quite a picture out of it—maybe even an American "Tom Jones."

The story is a singularly schoolboyish exercise in erotic imagination, conceivably an enlightened updating of a manuscript found in an old Markey trunk. It traces the bedroom experiences of a sheltered young man from a small town in Wisconsin whose wordly grandfather has left him $4,000,000 subject to the condition that he "visit all those countries where the women play footie instead of canasta and let them teach you something about making love."

On a swift world tour in company with a surviving crony of his grandparent the young man romances an even dozen females in as many nations, before being caught up with his pursing mother and the plot. Credit Markey for packing more dalliance into the given number of pages than his closest competitor without resorting to the four-letter vocabulary.

As a book for reading, "Women, Women Everywhere" adds no lustre to the several fames of its author. It does nothing at all for the dignity of a Rear Admiral in the U. S. Navy. And its off-hand, make-do construction discounts the known talent of a distinguished "in" member of the great Zanuck production cabinet of old. But as a book for filming, it could go a long way. Weav.

Bob Hope cast by Edward Small as star of producer's UA release, "I'll Take Sweden," slated to location in that country.

Royal Chain to Waikiki; 900-Seater Facilities For Concert and Other Uses

Honolulu, April 21.

Royal Theatres has started work on its long-planned Royal in Waikiki, a 900-seater that should be opened by July or August. Involves an expenditure of $700,000, of which $200,000 is earmarked for fixtures, draperies and floor coverings.

It will be the circuit's first outlet in booming Waikiki, where the Consolidated circuit owns and operates two first-run houses.

Steel frame exterior will be highlighted by fountains and stone planting baskets, many of them hanging down from the walls. Entry to the lobby, to be decorated in Hawaiian tapa and fern-patterned wood panels, will be via a courtyard of pools and gardens.

House will have Century model JJ projectors, adjustable from 35 to 70m, and Kollmorgen optical system. Screen will measure 28 by 61 feet. Multiple sound, six-track or four-track magnetic and single-track optical, will be serviced through Century solid state transistorized amplifier system. Altec Lansing speakers will handle both stereo and monaural sound. Panavision lenses will be installed.

The theatre, about 200 yards away from the rear of the Princess Kaiulani hotel, will have stage facilities for concerts, lectures and conventions and a series of adjoining specialty shops is planned.

MARDA NOW ODEON UNDER J. B. BARRON

Calgary, Alta., April 21.

The 13-year-old, 750-seat Marda theatre has been sold to Odeon Theatre has been sold to Odeon gary partner, J.B. Barron, at a secret price. New name is Odeon, and staff changes have been made. Former manager was Stan Corrins.

Barron, president of Barron Enterprises, is part owner of two other Odeon houses in Calgary, the Uptown and Grand, has a 50% interest in Odeon's 17th Avenue drive-in, and becomes managing director of the newly-acquired theatre with the same share interest.

There are nine theatres in Calgary, including drive-ins.

Barron said increasing attendance at his other theatres resulted in the negotiations for the Marda. Air-conditioning will be installed and other renovations made at a cost of $40,000 to $50,000.

The theatre was associated with seven adjacent stores which will continue under lease by the new management.

Odeon Theatres Canada Ltd., is a division of the British J. Arthur Rank Organization.

The new Odeon will show first-runs, some of them moved over from the Uptown and Grand.

'West's' 42-Week Run; Third Best for Omaha

Omaha, April 21.

Metro's Cinerama release, "How the West Was Won," at Indian Hills completed the third longest run in Omaha film history last week. It went 42 weeks.

"South Pacific" ran 65 weeks and "Ben-Hur" 48 weeks, both at the Cooper. "West" established an all-time record for patrons with an estimate by manager Jack Klingel at 275,000. No cash gross is disclosed.

Indian Hills closed for a week and will reopen with United Artists' "Mad, Mad World," the Cinerama comedy.

Mel Fein, former radio announcer, is new manager of Alan V. Iselin's 9-G Drive-in at Poughkeepsie, N.Y.

Exhibs' Ideas for Curbing Toll

London, April 21.

By a majority vote, the Cinematograph Exhibitors Assn has endorsed proposals for safeguards for theatre in areas affected by the upcoming tollvision experiment as presented by the joint committee of the five trade associations.

CEA has said it is prepared to go along with the paysee trial on the following conditions:—

— that no feature film will be shown on pay tv until 12 months after termination of its cinema run in the locality of a paysee trial, unless otherwise agreed with all exhibs in the area.

— that pix should be subject to an after bar of three weeks following the termination of its theatre run.

— that there should be no advertising of a cinema film to be shown on pay tv until after a seven day period following termination of a theatrical run.

— that there was an adequate compensation scheme for exhibs hurt by the feevee trial which should not in any way be dependent on films being shown on paysee prior to cinemas. And also, it was additionally agreed, the compensation fund should not be limited to a proportion only of the tollvision receipts.

Coming Clearer As to Toll Tests

Licenses Due in Next Ten Weeks as British Experimentals Ready Their Plans

London, April 21.

As the date for the issue of licenses by the Postmaster General to the five companies which have been awarded pay television franchises in Britain approaches, the terms and conditions under which they will be allowed to operate are gradually becoming clarified. It is expected that the licenses will be issued within the next 14 to 21 days, with an understanding that all companies will have to start transmissions within a year of that date. Licenses will be for a three-year experimental period.

Most of the companies concerned are confident they will be able to get on the air with their piped pay services well within the 12 months span. Indeed, they are confident that they will be able to start regular transmissions some time between October and December this year.

In the negotiations and discussions with various trade interests, both the Postmaster General and the Board of Trade president found that the biggest area of dispute concerned the exhibiting industry, with the independents as the most vocal force.

Having attempted and filed to play a Canute-like role, the theatremen then agitated to keep general release pictures off the payvee screen for as long as possible. Their "minimum" demand was for a 12-month lapse between the end of general release and the showing on the payvision network. In that event, the PMG has decreed that the time gap will be six months from the first showing in the area—and this could mean within a week or two of the end of general release. So far as the London area is concerned, West End firstruns are excluded from the arrangement.

Theatremen also made a big pitch for potential loss of business, and in this regard have met with a sympathetic reaction from the payvision companies, which have agreed to pay up to five percent of their income into a common pool, to help the theatre owner whose business has been hit by this new form of opposition. The ministers backed the principle of compensation in view of the fact that this rival form of entertainment was being introduced by Government decision.

In principle, the payvision companies have accepted the recommendation to fulfill the British theatrical Quota of 30% and pay Eady levy on filmed programs. The amount of levy and the method of calculation has yet to be determined; and there has yet to be an official endorsement of the 30% Quota figure, in view of a recent Films Council recommendation that the Quota should bear some relation to the existing Quota for commercial television, which runs at around 86%.

The draft terms and conditions, as agreed between the PMG and the tollvision companies, makes it clear that the restrictions are limited to the experimental period. What happens at the end of the three-year trial will be a matter for negotiation—if the Government of the day agrees that the services should be put on a regular basis.

More Foes Hit Toll

Minneapolis, April 21.

Minnesota, North and South Dakota and western Wisconsin independent exhibitors have added their declaration against pay television. This followed North Central Allied. Delegates were convinced that toll constitutes a threat to the continued existence of most theatres because if it obtains its desired foothold top pictures will go to it ahead of the showhouses.

Convincing at the convention was done by Jack Armstrong and Milton London, Natiinal Allied president and executive director, respectively, and Arnold Childhouse, California Crusade for Free TV chairman.

Hear . . . Hollywood Commentator

DICK STROUT

ON Over 800 STATIONS IN AMERICA

Wearers of CONTACT LENSES!

Don't wait until you lose your Contact Lenses.
Get a SPARE PAIR now for only $35 or register for future duplication for only $5. Original fittings at a substantial savings also.
Write or call for FREE booklet.

DUPLICATE CONTACT LENSES, Inc.

33 West 42nd St., New York City 36
Suite 1631A
LA 4-4928

"Wacky hilarious journeys on board the fictional s.s. Flying Wind..."*

There You Are, But Where Are You?

"MIRVISH IS WONDERFUL!"

A Novel by ROBERT F. MIRVISH

at concocting funny episodes that get even funnier as they develop. He is a master of the running gag. Very entertaining. *Publishers' Weekly

"...Down to Earth Pleasure!" —Bert Lahr Star of "Foxy"

DUTTON $3.95

Sardi's East
123 East 54th St. New York
PLaza 1-6655

Sardi's
234 W. 44th ST. NEW YORK
LA 4-0707

JAKE TRUSSELL'S AFTER HOURS POETRY:

Written from a background of experiences as a combination amusements columnist, jazz disc jockey, sportswriter, radio commentator-sportscaster, managing editor, band leader, and Associated Press correspondent. Nothing else in the world like it. For your copy send $1.00 to Jake Trussell, P. O. Box 951, Kingsville, Texas.

New York Theatres

RADIO CITY MUSIC HALL
Rockefeller Center • PL 7-3100
DAVID NIVEN • PETER SELLERS
ROBERT WAGNER • CAPUCINE
in "THE PINK PANTHER"
and with CLAUDIA CARDINALE As The Princess
ON THE GREAT STAGE "FANTASY and FUN"

HAIG & HAIG

The oldest name in scotch is the right name for the best

BLENDED SCOTCH WHISKY, 86.8 PROOF • RENFIELD IMPORTERS, LTD., N.Y.

CAN KINTNER STAY OUT OF 3d?

CBS-TV's $200,000,000 Daytime

So bullish are the networks on sales prospects for '64-'65 that they're already talking about a $200,000,000 daytime season at CBS-TV, where clients have literally been standing in line for months to gain admittance. The upped billings (from approximately $165,000,000 for the current season) will get an assist from the approximate 20% rate hike upcoming in the fall, but so fabulous is the daytime success story around the CBS precincts (with its "12 out of Top 12" Nielsen breakdown) that even the $1.10 cost-per-thousand (as opposed to the present 95-cent cost-per-thousand) will still invite the client queue-up.

Further evidence of network happy-days-ahead bullishness:

NBC-TV's "Tonight" show, which netted $16,000,000 last year, will probably wind up netting $20,000,000 this year.

The CBS-TV 12-out-of-12 (first time) daytime coup breaks down as follows:

As The World Turns	14.9
Password	13.6
House Party	12.8
To Tell The Truth	11.7
Guiding Light	11.4
Search For Tomorrow	11.1
Edge Of Night	10.9
Love Of Life	10.7
CBS News 3:25	10.2
Secret Storm	10.0
Pete & Gladys	8.9
CBS News 12:25	8.7

'That Was the Cast That Was' As NBC Plans Fresh Show For Fall

By BILL GREELEY

NBC-TV's satirical half-hour, "That Was the Week That Was," will have a whole new cast of fresh young faces when it returns next fall—with the probable exception of singer Nancy Ames. This should come as no surprise to observers who have been watching this odd (by the standard) entry record one of the nuttiest show careers in tv history.

Besides Miss Ames, the only likely starter for fall at this point is Englishman David Frost of the original BBC "TW3" who came to the U. S. to do the first three Leland Hayward-NBC shows. Plans call for signing him as a regular cast member. Others will be selected later.

These plans for drastic revisions were made as "TW3" was showing steady gains in popularity with Nielsen's wired homes that nobody expected it would. Although the show slipped back to third in its Friday night timeslot in the National Nielsen book out this Monday (20), it was close to first in the previous country-wide report, and a shoe-in in the 30-market MNA's. Latest National showed "TW3" averaging about a 16 rating, a fraction of a point behind ABC's "Price Is Right" with CBS' "Twilight Zone" at a little over a 19 average for the two weeks.

But in the March 13 National,

(Continued on page 120)

Armour & P&G TV Plums Eyed

Chicago, April 21.

The three network scramble is on here for two sponsor plums, the still uncommitted Armour coin (totalling some $5-$6,000,000) for next season and a $3,300,000 jackpot of Procter & Gamble summertime coin which Leo Burnett is handling for the various P&G agencies. Armour, via Foote, Cone & Belding, has had a long-time relationship with ABC-TV in prime time and last year bought a scatter plan there plus a schedule in NBC daytime. This year, however, it's been slower making up its mind.

All three networks relish the dangling third quarter P&G biz, but Burnett's requirements are so stiff this late in the buying season that each of the webs is having trouble putting togther a package. There are 11 brands involoved in the buy and, of course, the usual competitive product restrictions and the CPM factor. But the chief problems is that some 60% of the blurbs the soap company wants to place are piggybacks, and Burnett is insistent (1) on isolated postions so that there be no triple spotting, and (2) that no other sponsor uses a piggyback in the same half-hour segment. That makes it rough.

'STOP THE CAMERA' LIVE WOLPER ENTRY

Hollywood, April 21.

David L. Wolper Productions has organized a live tv division, in line with diversification of the firm's activities. In association with UA TV, new game, quiz and panel shows will be developed and produced by the new branch for the 1965-66 season.

Initial live entry is "Stop the Camera," created by Harry Salter and Nat Ligerman, a nighttime panel show involving celebs, planned to originate from Hollywood.

Salter has been signed by Wolper as consultant, and to work on the new project.

ABC's Tom Moore Projects 2-a-Week Baseball 'Format'

Tom Moore, expositing ways to enhance the wedding of bigtime sports and tv, wants to make major league baseball a two-a-week attraction, and thereby a summerlong commodity for network display that would put the socalled national pastime on a "much sounder" fiscal footing. For one thing, it would toss a few folks out of work, like some pitchers.

The ABC-TV president, in his role of revolutionist this past Monday (20) before the Hollywood Ad Club, addressed himself to changes in the conduct of collegiate football and pro golf, as well, all intended to better adapt these sports for homescreen consumption and resultant cash klondike.

His most radical proposals, however, relate to baseball. He would cut the big league schedules back to 60 games a season—two weekend contests a week, to be telecast nationally except for blackouts in the metro areas where the contests are staged.

Moore makes the point, with some cogency, that only baseball among major U.S. athletics has declined in attendance since 1948—chargeable, says the exec, to overexposure.

Under the "Moore Plan," teams would be able to reduce their rosters, fielding only their best manpower. "A team would need only three or four of its best pitchers. I believe this would increase attendance at the games, greatly increase television audiences of baseball, and put the game on a much sounder financial basis."

This is Moore's "unsolicited ad-

(Continued on page 120)

'64-'65 BURDEN RESTS WITH MCA

By GEORGE ROSEN

Television, like sports, politics or Wall St.— is always rife with big questions which add zest and suspense to the interest that constantly attend these dynamic fields. If the big question in sports revolves around Yogi Berra's Yankee pennant odds, or in politics Lyndon Johnson's choice of a running mate on what now is assessed as a "sure winner" ticket, or in Wall St. Norton Simon's desire and chances to take over Canada Dry and ABC, the big question in tv these days is focussing new and sharp attention on the sixth floor of 30 Rockefeller Plaza.

For within and without these NBC executive suite precincts, industry experts and observers are asking if the web's prexy, Bob Kintner, can prevent NBC from slipping into third audience position in '64-'65.

Inside NBC, for all its well-recognized poise, pride and complacency, and particularly in the keen and astute mind of Kintner himself, there is a belated realization, if not a premonition, of this imminent threat to its status, billings and prestige.

Indeed, this growing feeling of concern was more than slightly obvious at the recent NAB convention in Chicago, where there were tacit, and, among some old-line NBC affiliates, openly expressed forebodings of audience declines.

Meantime, this season, as the Madison Ave. and Michigan Ave. advertising agencies are well aware, the NBC Nielsen-measured audience curve has been moving down. And at 485 Madison Ave., where CBS-TV prexy Jim Aubrey mas-

ABC Does It

Newest National Nielsens (first April report) which arrived this week gives ABC-TV No. 2 status after several weeks of running a dead heat with NBC. On average weekly prime time audience, CBS has 21.3, ABC 17.4 and NBC 16.6. CBS takes five nights of the week with NBC winning Friday and ABC Thursday. On half-hour wins, CBS takes 26, ABC 13 and NBC 11.

Perhaps most revealing is the Top 30 status in the three-web competition, with CBS winning 17, ABC 10 and NBC three.

terminds his two-front war, in which he has conquered new audience and billings salients on both the NBC and ABC fronts, there's been a growing awareness that, in '64-'65, ABC is "the enemy to watch."

The one man, however, most keenly aware of the serious and fundamental NBC slump is Kintner himself. While his associates were foregathered at the recent affiliate confabs at the NAB Windy City convention, Kintner remained in his New York apartment, with a virus that kept him away from his busy office but not from a constantly tuned tv set.

The quality of the entertainment shows, both day and night, as viewed on Channel 4 (the web's flagship) did not relieve the pain or discomfort of his illness. Indeed, key NBC execs, to whom he dramatically relayed his reactions —in picturesque and unmistakable language—speculate that the NBC programming "raised his temperature, blood pressure and pulse."

Be that as it may, Kintner promptly recovered from the virus, but not from his evaluation of NBC's programming and overall "look." Within the agencies, however, there are some doubts as to even the Kintner abilities to effect meaningful improvements now that the '64-'65 schedule is locked in and the vast bulk of advertiser money has been committed. As one agency wag put it, "Kintner may have the

(Continued on page 122)

TV Networks' $32,000,000 Stake In '64-'65 Film Features; ABC's $9,000,000 Deal for 30 From 20th

TV's Cost-Per-Word

Chicago, April 21.

Alberto-Culver prexy Leonard Lavin, who says his firm plays the television game like stockbrokers, calculates his investments in tv so carefully that he's able to break down the costs on a per-word basis. To prove it, he submits that each commerical word in a prime network show costs Alberto-Culver about $330.

He calls television time "indecently expensive." But even so, he continues to be a big spender in the medium and figures to up the A-C ante to $40,000,000 next season.

Chevy's Detour On Nancy Wilson As Com'l Spieler

General Motors, which stirred the wrath of civil rights groups when it recently tried to force NBC-TV to shelve a "Bonanza" episode featuring Negro actress Ena Hartman, has reportedly followed the action by "holding up indefinitely—very indefinitely" on a deal the Chevrolet division had made to use Negro singer Nancy Wilson in a Chevy commercial.

While the network stood firm and the "Bonanza" seg featuring Miss Hartman will be aired, John Levy, Miss Wilson's manager blames the "controversy" over the NBC show for GM's backdown on the use of Miss Wilson in a blurb. He says that execs of the Chevy division caught the singer during a Detroit appearance and liked her enough to start negotiations on the commercial work. Miss Wilson was actually signed for the blurb role, says Levy, in a deal made between the Charles Stern talent agency in Hollywood and the Coast office of Chevy ad agency Campbell-Ewald.

Levy says that the GM and agency exec "indicated that they would rather soft pedal Miss Wilson's commercial at this time because of the controversy." Meanwhile, GM's New York publicity office, upset because VARIETY last week said the company had "reportedly" answered the angry wire sent to GM board chairman Frederic Donner by NAACP president Roy Wilkins re the Ena Hartman affair, has forwarded the following blow-by-blow account:

"The General Motors reply, signed by Louis G. Seaton, vice president in charge of personnel, was transmitted from the Detroit Western Union office to New York at 8:25 p.m. on April 3. The NAACP office in New York closes at 4:30 p.m. Following standing orders from NAACP, Western Union had delivered the telegram to the NAACP office on Saturday morning, April 4. When the NAACP office reopened on Monday, April 6, the telegram was sent to Mr. Wilkins' office where it was received by Muriel Outlaw, Mr. Wilkins' secretary."

Reinsch's 40th Anni

Washington, April 21.

Rep. Charles Weltner of Atlanta had some good word for a constituent—Cox stations exec Leonard Reinsch.

Weltner noted Reinsch was observing his 40th anni in broadcasting and told the House he has "grown with the industry to a place of paramount importance."

Weltner praised the medium as well as man averring it has brought entertainment, education and new understanding to Americans "far removed from the centers of national activity."

In a deal negotiated personally by Spyros Skouras, 20th-Fox board chairman, the film company has sold a bundle of 30 features (many of them made within the past five years) to ABC-TV for $9,000,000 for showing on the network's Sunday night 9 to 11 pix showcase and subsequent run on o&o stations.

It's a two-year deal, allowing for a two-time network exposure for each pic, and thus putting ABC-TV in the Sunday night movie exhibition business for at least a two-year period. There's little likelihood that the 20th features will be exposed during the '64-'65 season, since the network's purchase of the United Artists bundle is for one-year only and would thus necessitate their two-time runoff within that span.

Deal with 20th is unusual in that it involves a $7,500,000 purchase for the network exposure alone; plus an additional $1,500,000 on a subsequent seven-year leasing of the same 30 pix for the ABC owned-and-operated stations.

The six hours of weekly film features on ABC and NBC next season (Sunday nights on ABC and Wednesday and Saturday nights on NBC) represents an investment of some $32,000,000. All told ABC paid some $17,000,000 for the UA and 20th features while NBC paid about $15,000,000 for the Metro and Paramount features. (Initially NBC had an option for the 20th films but permitted it to lapse when it acquired the Metro features).

Skouras had also been in negotiation with Eliot Hyman (Seven Arts) for a $15,000,000 seven-yea. lease on all the 20th post-'50s. Whether he's still interested, now that ABC has siphoned off the cream entries, is problematical.

Following are some of the titles in the 20th-Fox acquisition: "Call Me Madame," "Song of Bernadette," "Farewell to Arms," "From the Terrace," "High Time" (Bing Crosby); "North to Alaska," "Anastasia," "Tender Is the Night," "Carousel," "Inn of the Sixth Happiness," "Streetcar Named Desire," "The Hustler," "Sound and the Fury," "Best of Everything," "Compulsion," "Carmen Jones" and "Journey to the Center of the Earth."

Travellers Ins. Off 'CBS Reports'

Travellers Insurance, which was the principal bankroller of "CBS Reports" this season, won't be back on the key CBS-TV pubaffairs series next season.

Reason for Travelers bowout was budgetary in nature and there's a liklihood that the insurance company, after the first of the year, may return as principal sponsor.

Insurance company, on the last outing of "CBS Reports," the documentary on the cigaret-health controversy, elected to stay out. Decision wasn't because of the content of the show, according to a spokesman for the company. Spokesman for Young & Rubicam, agency for Travellers, explained that client this season has been sponsoring alternate outings of "CBS Reports." Travellers had sponsored April 1 and April 8 outing of "CBS Reports," in addition to picking up the tab for CBS-TV's "Masters Golf Tournament. Travellers also will sponsor a "CBS Reports" two-parter on DeGaulle and the upcoming 90-minute documentary on Eisenhower and D-Day. It was purely a budgetary and marketing decision, according to the Y&R spokesman.

Three sponsors of the cigaret-health hazard "CBS Reports" were Polaroid, U. S. Rubber and Kiwi Shoe Polish.

FCC Initiates Far-Flung Probe Into TV Stations' Community Antenna Buys

Washington, April 21.

FCC further stirred the CATV cauldron disclosing it will initiate an inquiry into the purchase of community antenna television systems by tv stations.

Announcement of the probe was tied to the Commission's decision not to act on the proposed sale of a corporation owning 37 CATV systems to an RKO General subsidiary.

It also comes hot on the heels of FCC Chairman E. William Henry's promise for CATV action and amidst the flap over Capital Cable Corp., the CATV system allied to Mrs. Lyndon Johnson's Austin tv outlet KTBC.

Revealing its proposal for a far-flung inquiry, FCC averred it had to discern what impact such purchases would have on multiple ownership rules and "other public interest policies."

The multiple ownership issue was "brought into focus," FCC said, with the contemplated buy of such a large CATV group by RKO, one of the biggest multiple owners. H&B American Corp. wants to sell H&B Microwave Corp. (operator of 37 CATV systems in 12 states) to Video Independent Theatres Inc., a wholly owned subsid of RKO.

Commission first wants to find out how many CATV systems tv stations own in and out of their Grade B contours.

It also wants industry response on the number and manner of CATV systems originating programming and commercials for their subscribers.

On the multiple ownership score, FCC listed several points of inquiry:

1. Should CATV interests be considered as television broadcast interests under multiple ownership rules?

2. Should such classification be based on whether a CATV system originates programming furnished subscribers?

3. Under what conditions should a tv station be allowed to hold CATV interests outside its area?

4. Should special significance be attached to ownership by stations of CATV systems carrying their programs into other communities.

In a separate category, FCC wants to decide if stations should own or hold interest in CATV systems in their own cities.

Aside from the multiple ownership issue, FCC averred its interest in learning if tv station ownership of a CATV system raises "any question of conflict of interest detrimental to the public interest in television broadcasting."

Comments from stations, CATV groups and interested parties are due by June 19.

Henry Ain't Sayin'

FCC head E. William Henry plays it somewhat close to the vest than his immediate predecessor when it's for public consumption.

He's been a circumspect bureaucrat on the few tv shots he's had since taking the Commission reins last June, and another demonstration of his politesse came last Sunday (19) on ABC-TV's youth-angled "Science All Stars."

A teen interviewer wondered about his favorite program, to which Henry responded: "It's not an unfair question, but I am set up as a regulator not as a censor, so I really don't like to comment on what my favorite program is. I watch tv more now and I like all the good ones."

NBC-TV Eyeing '65-'66 Entries: WB-Hugh Benson Comedy, MG's 'Roberts'

With the fall schedule locked in, NBC-TV exees have already plunged into plans for the '65-'66 season with several pilot and step-by-step programming deals already in negotiation.

Web programmers are already very high on a new Warner Bros. offering that production company got when Hugh Benson came back in the fold. Comedy show, with a script in the hopper, concerns the adventures of a bachelor (with a young daughter) who is going to college under a string of aliases and who has several side deals going. It's sort of a "Fugitive" with laughs, and a pilot deal is very likely.

MGM and NBC are negotiating on an adaptation of "Mr. Roberts" to series comedy form, a step deal that is pending the clearing of "Roberts" rights re the book, play and screen versions.

The programmers are equally busy in the negative. Already considered and nixed is another Warner Bros. proposal, a series based on the adventures of Phinneas Fogg, the Jules Verne "Around the World in 80 Days" character.

GILL TAPPED FOR KEY JOB AT ATV

London, April 21.

Robin Gill, 36, has been appointed deputy managing director of Associated Television. He replaces Ed Roth who recently quit the company and has since joined one of the prospective payvee outfits, Tollvision.

Gill, who founded Border-TV as managing director in 1959, takes up his new post on July 30, date when ATV gets its new contract from the Independent Television Authority. He will be working in close association with ATV's managing director Lew Grade who introduced him to a select press luncheon last Wednesday (15).

Number of British TV Viewers at Any Given Moment: 16,000,000

London, April 21.

BBC-TV, whose audience has been running lower than commercial web's since the fall, by its own admission has lost some 600,000 viewers when audience totals for the past January-March quarter are compared with a year previous.

With an average audience of 8,400,000, BBC's share of the ratio of viewing (among those able to chose between it and commercial telecasts) was 46% compared with the Indies' 54%, where a year ago it was a 50-50 split, says BBC. It is pointed out, though, that BBC has about 1,000,0000 viewers not counted in the above figures because they cannot receive both services.

According to BBC's audience research statistics, 1,000,000 more people made up the tv public in the past quarter than in the same quarter of 1963. And viewers now number 44,500,000, or nearly 90% of the population aged over five.

Report has it that on average, just over 37,000,000 Britishers viewed some tv daily during the quarter—nearly half of them used both channels, but about 750,000 more people viewed one or more BBC programs than one or more commercial tv programs.

The number of viewers at any given amount averaged 16,000,000.

CBS 'Discovers' Midwest in Big Client Romance

Chicago, April 21.

The midwest, representing at rough estimate something like $200,000,000 in potential network tv billings (taking in Minneapolis-St. Paul, Battle Creek, St. Louis and Milwaukee, in addition to the big one, Chicago) is getting a sudden romancing from sales and related brass of CBS-TV.

A procession during the past two weeks of key network stripers from New York, each making the handshaking rounds of agencies and clients, suggests a desire on the part of the CBS homeoffice to establish a closer rapport with the spenders of the central sector, abetting the already effective efforts of midwest veep Roy Porteous and his sales crew. Odd as it may seem, these strictly good-will junkets have been few and far between by any of the networks in recent years.

First to take to the hustings was Tom Dawson, CBS-TV veep of national sales, who came in on April 6 for three days worth of agency rounds both here and in the Twin Cities. Joe Curl, the veep

(Continued on page 122)

LBJ Sees No TV 'Conflict'

Washington, April 21.

President Johnson said he sees "no conflict" between his job and the broadcast holdings his wife has put in a trusteeship.

The President was questioned at his Press Conference about Mrs. Johnson's Austin station KTBC-TV and the option agreement it has with CATV operator Capital Cable Co. in the same city.

First off, the President said he personally had not interest or stock in any government regulated industry. He noted Mrs. Johnson's properties were in an irrevocable trust and that she no longer participated in any decisions made by the LBJ Co.

"In any event, if she did participate, the President wouldn't have anything to do with it," he continued.

Referring to FCC's demand for Capital Cable to hand over its option agreement with KTBC, Johnson said the Commission "has made no request of me or of my family for anything."

"We are perfectly willing to comply, I am sure the trustees would be, with any request that they did make. There is not anything that we have to secrete in any manner, shape or form," he averred.

The President said Mrs. Johnson worked at her broadcasting profession "with pleasure and satisfaction until I forced her to leave it when I assumed the Presidency."

He noted any decision of the trustees to sell or leave the outlet is subject to Commission approval.

"Even if you tried to sell it, you would have to have their approval. But I see no conflict in any way," he said.

CBS Stockholders' Meet in Chi Set to 'Beautiful Green Music'

Chicago, April 21.

As might be expected at a stockholders meeting where the annual report showed a whopping profit increase of 41% over 1962 plus a new record first quarter in 1964, the investors in CBS Inc. last week wanted to talk about diversification.

Board chairman William S. Paley assured the shareholders that Columbia was anxious to expand in the general field of communications and indicated that it had some acquisitions in mind, but he carefully etched the point that the company had no intention of getting back into the manufacture of tv receivers or components. More than that Paley didn't say on the subject, but reliable word has it that CBS has a yen to get into publishing and has been flirting with the notion of buying a major publishing house.

The annual stockholders meeting, held this year in a studio of the CBS Chicago plant (WBBM-TV and WBBM Radio), was uneventful compared with some of recent vintage; but probably never has the president's report played such beautiful green music. Year 1963 was far the most prosperous in the corporation's history, with revenues of $564,818,039 from all seven divisions realizing a net income of $41,811,476, or $2.27 a share. That's an 8% growth in sales from 1962, continuing a 15 year trend for CBS in annual sales increases, but more important a 41% growth in profits.

Profits for the first quarter of this year were up 20% over the same period in 1963 on a sales increase of 10%, based on preliminary figures. Sales reached $156,000,000 during the quarter, compared with $141,213,861 for the comparable quarter last year. Net income grew to about $12,000,000

(Continued on page 122)

Aubrey's 27,000 Shares

Chicago, April 21.

A female shareholder asked CBS board chairman William S. Paley at last week's stockholder's meeting why CBS-TV prez Jim Aubrey owned only 20 shares of stock in the corporation, as shown in the proxy statement. Answering for himself, Aubrey revealed that he had exercised his stock option in January, after the proxy statement had been published, and that he bought a "substantial" number of shares.

Paley, being more explicit, put it at 27,000 shares. "He's not only a substantial stockholder," Paley said, "but also quite wealthy." Other sources say Aubrey purchased 28,500 shares. Whichever, at $45 or $46 per share, that puts Aubrey's corporate holdings in the general neighborhood of $1,250,000.

Goldberg Appeals To Sponsor to Get Behind Push on Rating Clear-Up

Washington, April 21.

NAB's research veep Melvin Goldberg exhorted advertisers to throw their support behind plans to clear up ratings.

He frankly admitted to the Women's Advertising Club of Baltimore that without advertiser and agency support "very little will be accomplished."

The premise of his appeal, however, was based on an assumption which Madison Ave. has up to now brushed aside. Said Goldberg, "You the advertiser and you the advertising agency, must want and use and pay for this better information."

If NAB could convince ad folk that such were true, it would go a long way to transforming its rating proposals into reality

NBC-TV's Summer Sked 100% Rerun

NBC-TV's summer schedule this year will be 100% rerun, with the only changes from the fall-winter schedule coming in a half-hour mystery series and a half-hour variety series—both reruns.

Last year the network and Ford Motor replaced "Hazel" with Vic Damone and "The Lively Ones," but Ford this year has dumped a lot of dough in the New York World's Fair Ford exhib and will go the summer with "Hazel" repeats.

The World's Fair was to be the location of the network's one live, change-up entry for the summer, a half-hour variety spread from the grounds Friday nights. But NBC gave up the idea when production logistics appeared out of hand with a snarl of inside and outside craft union grabs in the offing.

Two shows fresh to the summer slate are "Moment of Fear," half-hour repeats of the old Schlitz and GE dramas, and "On Parade," variety shows off the Canadian Broadcasting Co. The whodunits take over Tuesdays in the slot that "TW3" will occupy come fall, and the variety shows go in Friday nights where "TW3" is now situated between Bob Hope and Jack Paar.

FTC Up To Its Butts on Cig Issue

By MIKE MOSETTIG

Washington, April 21.

Proposals for labeling cigaret advertising have gone behind a cloud of smoke at the Federal Trade Commission and no one is quite sure when and in what form they will emerge.

Making their initial splash and creating Madison Ave. flutters with a high powered hearing, the Commissioners are now charting the best possible course for walking the politically and economically potent minefield they have laid.

The Commission gave itself an additional month when last week it extended the deadline for filing written comments from April 15 to May 15. Under normal circumstances this would mean rules would not be issued until at least June.

But FTC is not operating in this instance under "normal circumstances." First off, its function to protect the public against fraudulent advertising has been expanded to a new jurisdiction of guarding the nation's health.

This departure alone necessitates longer deliberations with thought to be given on covering newly imprinted tracks.

Of course the Commission is dealing with a multi-million dollar issue and the possibility it could throw a monkey wrench into the economy. Not only does it have to worry about affecting business, the FTC must also take note of business psychology, the trickiest item in the ciggie milieu.

Likewise the ciggie issue is up to its butts in politics and any type of Commission action will stir a Capitol Hill brouhaha.

Some straws are already in the wind on this score. Only last week, Sen. Maurine Neuberger (D-Ore.) added her volley to the liberals' fusillade fired on the American Medical Assn. for joining the ciggie boys in opposing the proposed labeling rules.

By holding back on its rules, however, the Commission is losing some psychological points. Already the cigaret scare created by the U.S. Surgeon General's report is beginning to wane, as recent upbeat cig sales figures nationwide have indicated. Essential to support for the Commission's rules is the wave of public indignation and demand to protect the nation against illness and sin.

Through an informal selection Commissioner Phillip Elman will be the man in charge of the ciggie rules.

Elman, it will be remembered, asked "Why should we shrink from this?" when a hearing witness warned the rules could lead to the demise of ciggie advertising.

No Colorvision In Britain Till '67

London, April 21.

Postmaster General Reginald Bevins, minister in charge of broadcasting, has elected to defer his decision on choice of color tv system until after the next meeting of the International Radio Consultative Committee in Vienna next April.

If that meet fails—as did the last—to decide on a common tint tv system for all Europe, then Bevins is prepared to give the okay for Britain to go it alone. In the latter event, the U.K. will have colorvision by 1967, and it's a 6-5 on bet that it will be the American NTSC method that is chosen, with the French SECAM and German PAC systems running as outsiders.

Bevins decision to wait for Europe but to move to ensure that Britain had a tint service by 1967, is in line with the recent recommendations of the Television Advisory Committee (comprising manufacturers and broadcasters).

BRITAIN'S STEPPED-UP VIDFILM

Global B'casting on Com'l Basis

Washington, April 21.

FCC told the Communications Satellite Corp. it could build its proposed synchronous communications satellite system. The setup could lead to global broadcasting on a commercial basis by 1965.

The proposed satellite system will hover over the Atlantic Ocean in contrast to Telstar and Relay which continually spin around the earth.

But before it gets there, it will need several more FCC okays.

Comsat wants to launch two satellites from Cape Kennedy, Fla., in early 1965. It will need FCC approval both for the shot and for a ground station in the U.S. to be used with the satellite.

Once the vehicle is airborne, Comsat will again have to ask FCC for an okay for commercial operations from the system.

Approving the construction bid, FCC said it expected Comsat to continue its research and development program into the various phases of satellite operation.

Lew Grade's 'How to Cope With BBC-2' in Stepped-Up Production

London, April 21.

Even though the commercial television companies failed in their bid for an immediate second network, the major companies are intensifying their plans to meet the challenge of BBC-2, which scheduled transmissions in the Greater London area for tonight (Tues.). One of the independent majors taking the initiative in this activity is Associated TeleVision, and just a few days before the new channel went on the air, Lew Grade announced first details of new program plans for the coming season. These include new filmed projects, three new series, documentary programs and the signing of James Mason in his first British tv starring role.

The ATV managing director was confident that the commercial audience would not suffer unduly through the advent of the new network. He based his opinion on the premise that there were approximately half a million receivers in the Greater London area which were not capable of receiving the commercial programs, and he believed that the overwhelming majority of these viewers would, sooner or later, be making a switch to new sets. Once that happened, the commercial program companies could reasonably hope to regain audiences lost to BBC-2.

Grade indicated that they aimed to have 104 hours of tv filmed programming a year. Existing skeins, such as "Danger Man" and

(Continued on page 122)

CBS-TV Spruce-Up For Studio Center

Hollywood, April 21.

Studio Center, former Republic studios now under option to CBS-TV, is upping its new construction program, with a plan in the works for a new exterior green set, to cover several acres. This will be supplementing previous studio improvements, which include construction of a new, 14,000 foot sound stage, now in progress. New stage gives studio 20 stages plus one for process.

Improvement will cost in excess of $750,000, with Rep picking up the tab for the stage, and CBS-TV the remainder of the bill. Work is being done under supervision of John T. Reynolds, senior veepee of CBS-TV in Hollywood.

Construction on the new green set will begin within the next 30 days, and it will include a lake and other exterior areas. In process also is updating and modernizing of the producers' building.

Studies are under way for completely modernizing the sound department, a move which would cost another $500,000. CBS-TV will complete its first year of operation at Studio Center the end of this month.

Reynolds commented, "the results indicated after the first year of CBS operation of the lot have been extremely gratifying. As a result of the CBS control, we have been able to produce better product, and have more of our costs show up on the screen."

ABC-TV's $3,900,000 Current Season Biz

ABC-TV last week rang up $3,900,000 in new business for the second and third quarters. Total represents seven advertisers in primetime participation buys, including the Ron Cochran and Bob Young news strips.

Commitments came from General Electric, General Foods, Frigidaire, Mennen, Pepsi-Cola, Pharmacraft and WTS Pharmaceuticals.

Major Reshuffle For Screen Gems; Cassavetes' Job

Hollywood, April 21.

Major reshuffling in production personnel is under way at Screen Gems, with a number of new executives being brought into the telefilmery, and a few departing. New SG coast chief is Jackie Cooper, who has been confabbing with exec producer Harry Ackerman on the personnel realignment.

John Cassavetes has joined the telefilmery as a producer-director and creator. Deal has been finalized for Richard Alan Simmons, formerly with Four Star, to join SG as a producer, also to produce pix for Columbia.

Bob Claver, formerly associate producer on "Ensign O'Toole" and "The Gertrude Berg Show" at Four Star, has been signed to develop new properties, and as a producer-director. Stan Kalis joins the company as head of Vincent Edwards' tv production firm, turning out pilots for SG.

Deal is being finalized for Bob Raphaelson to join as a producer. He last produced "The Greatest Show on Earth" at Desilu.

Cooper is in negotiations for Robert Altman to join SG as a producer-director, also Stuart Rosenberg, Elliot Silverstein and Hy Averback, the later with Four Star. A number of deals being dickered include commitments with Columbia.

Cooper is also negotiating for David Swift to join the company as a creator-producer, and this deal like some of the others would also involve work for Columbia.

Status of Fred de Cordova, hired several months ago by ex-SG coast topper Bill Dozier and put in charge of new projects, has been revised. Instead, he will produce and direct for SG.

Winston O'Keefe, who produced "Grindl," which has been canceled, has departed, also his associate producer, Charles Tannen. Also gone is Stan Sheptner, who had been involved in new project development.

Basic philosophy behind all these maneuvers is to build up SG's exec manpower in the dramatic area. Company has been strong in comedies, where Ackerman is exec producer, but weak on dramas, and has none on the air.

FLOCK OF SERIES GOING INTO PROD.

London, April 21.

The way things are shaping, Britain appears to be in for its busiest ever summer of vidfilm activity. Counting firm production plans, there should be at least a half dozen film series rolling between June and the fall, but including the strong probabilities, there could be 10 series on the production belt.

As in previous years, Associated Television through its wholly-owned subsidiary ITC, is in the vanguard of film production. Outfit already has two one-hour shows in the works—the Patrick McGoohan starrer "Danger Man" and the Roger Moore series "The Saint." Former is at Metro and the latter at Associated British.

Joining "The Saint" at Associated British next month is the third ITC series "Gideon's Way," being produced by Bob Baker and Monty Berman, who brought in the Moore series.

Three shows together guarantee that ITC will be in production for the next 12 months.

Also at Associated British is the Ronald Kahn-United Artists show "The Human Jungle" which was initially sparked by ABC-TV a year back, but has now been acquired by UA. ABC-TV, however, will run the series in Britain but will not this time be contributing to production costs.

Lined up for Pinewood or Shepperton this summer is Harry Fine's first lone attempt at vidfilm production, "The Further Adventures of Tom Jones." So far series has not found a British web to take it, nor has an international release been set. But producer Fine expects to be rolling this summer with both previous factors signed-sealed. "Jones," it's said, may be shot in color.

Another probable starter is a Bill Luckwell-Anna Neagle series dealing with a women's prison. Inquiries have, however, failed to reveal a studio booked to take the show. Twickenham studios has had enquiries from producers with a view to making a vidpic (not the Luckwell-Neagle skein) which may well come into fruition later this year.

Along with the latter more speculative starters are the prospect of series arising out of Columbia's Eve Arden show pilot, which was made at Metro, and also out of the ITC-facilitated puppet mouse show Topo Gigio.

Reportedly, Joe Levine will be making three series in this country, two hour shows and one half hour skein. Plans for the Levine skeins —which apparently will involve predominantly American actors and directors—are not known.

In addition to the increasing activity at the big British film studios, AP Films Ltd., the indie outfit run by Gerry Anderson is readying a third film puppet show "Stingray," which will be marketed globally by ITC.

Brit. TV Ad Levy Tab: $42,000,000

London, April 21.

In accordance with stated policy, the 11% television advertising duty currently imposed on Britain's commercial tv contractors (but which has been passed on to advertisers) has been lifted in this year's budget. From the end of July, the tv ad duty will be replaced by an ad levy, geared to commercial stations' advertising income, and operating on a sliding scale.

Yield to the Exchequer of the 11% duty was in the region of $22,000,000 per annum. The ad levy is calculated to bring in well over $42,000,000 in the first year even though five of the smaller stations will be exempt.

Coming Up: $25,000,000 in 3-Web 'Scatter Buys' After 3-Week Lull & Even CBS-TV Gets Into the Act

Although the past three weeks has witnessed a lull in sales activity around the three tv networks (cumulatively speaking, there's something like 50% of a network still unsold for the fourth quarter of '64), the webs are anticipating a $25,000,000 deluge in minute buys in the next 10 days.

With the major budgets already committed, clients are now getting their second wind. This is "scatter business" time and the sponsors with still uncommitted coin are shopping. Procter & Gamble has some more money to spend; so have the drug companies. The tobacco boys are coming in full steam ahead. Some of the scatter buying has already started, as for instance Sunbeam's $2,000,000 fourth-quarter ABC commitment; Miller High Life's $1,000,000, with the bulk of it channelled into "12 o'Clock High"; Polaroid's $500,000 ABC buy; S. C. Johnson's praically-pledged $2,000,000 to CBS.

But unlike previous seasons, this time out it's a three-way scatter platter, with CBS also in the act. That makes it tougher for the other webs, particularly ABC, which never in the past reckoned on CBS as a competitor when it came to scatter biz. But Tom Dawson and his sales boys, also feeling the pinch of the three-week lull in activity, are peddling like mad, with such items as Jackie Gleason (where you can buy eight minutes with continuing rights), "Rawhide," "Reporter" and "Defenders" on the scatter buy agenda. NBC is training its scatter guns on "TWS" and the Monday night 90-minute "Bristol Court."

For all the current availabilities, all three networks are extremely bullish on the ultimate outcome on sales for 64-65 and generally it's anitcipated that billings will reach new high levels, both daytime and nighttime.

Tap Bob Cummings For CBS 'Living Doll'

Hollywood, April 21.

Bob Cummings has been signed to star in "Living Doll," opposite Julie Newmar.

Half-hour comedy series produced by Jack Chertok will debut on CBS-TV next season. Cummings previously starred in three series, last of which was for Revue studios several years ago.

Ford & GM Coin Ride Mex Spread On World's Fair

Ford and General Motors are cosponsors of NBC-TV's 90-minute New York World's Fair special in a live feed tonight (22), 7:30 to 9 p.m., to Mexico's Telesistema Mexicano for telecast on 18 Mexican stations. By delay, the special also will be seen in three other countries, with negotiations current for more, via sales by NBC International.

One of the prime reasons for Mexico's pickup of the NBC special is participation by Cantinflas, the country's leading film comedian, who will host the tour of the Fair's International sector.

Manila and Germany will get a direct positive kinnie of the show, picked up on the Coast during the broadcast and flown to these countries. At the same time, Tokyo will get a color tape rushed by air.

In other sales last yeek NBCI peddled "Cuba: The Missile Crisis" to the BBC, London; "Way of the Cross" to Televis Eire, Dublin; "Paris: The Story of High Fashion" to Oy Mainos, Helsinki; "Perspectives ond Greatness" to Oy Tesvisio, Helsinki (the segment on the late Gen. Douglas MacArthur); three more hours of "The Dick Powell Show" and three more of "87th Precinct" to Denmark's Radio, Copenhagen; an hour of "The Richard Boone Show" to Sveriges Radio, Stockholm; "Greece: The Golden Age" to RAI, Rome, and "Our Man in Andorra, San Marino, Monaco, Lichtenstein and the Sovereign Military Order of Malta" to Nederlandse Televisie Stichting, Holland.

'BURKE'S LAW' TOP 10 STATUS IN BRITAIN

London, April 21.

Following a successful promo visit here by Gene Barry, star of Four Star's "Burke's Law" which goes out on the entire commercial network (but at different times in different parts of the country), the April 3 edition scored a No. 1 spot on the London Top 10 ratings list and dittoed on Southern-TV, a large regional station.

Show which in the aforementioned areas scored ratings well over 60, also made the Top 10 shows on stations such as TWW, Westward-TV, Border-TV and Ulster-TV.

Chrysler Taps Berman

Hollywood, April 21.

Bertram Berman, formerly with Y&R as a tv producer, has joined the production staff of the Bob Hope-Chrysler theater series at Revue as executive administrator.

Berman at one time was with CBS as head of daytime programs, and moved to the coast some time ago as producer of "The Verdict Is Yours." He had also been an exec producer with P&G.

Detroit As ABC Spawning Ground

As perhaps no other ABC o&o, Detroit's WXYZ has been a fertile spawning ground for executive talent in the network echelons.

Grads from the Motor City include Jim Riddell, western division veep; John O. Gilbert, in his freshman term as WABC-TV, N.Y., steward; Harold Neal Jr., prez of the radio o&os; Ben Hoberman, g.m. at KABC Radio; Jim Dunbar, program chieftain for KGO, San Francisco; and Leo Collins, ad-pub-promo director at WABC-TV.

The Detroit o&o has been impressive, too, as a talent springboard, among the past and present headliners being Danny Thomas, Mike Wallace, Doug Edwards, Soupy Sales and the late John Hodiak. As a wag cracked, the town's either a great place to work —or to leave.

Joshua Shelley's Pact With Talent Associates On Project Development

Joshua Shelley, producer last season of NBC's "Shari Lewis Show," has signed on at Talent Associates-Paramount with primary responsibility for development of new projects. This is part of what is described as the expansionist ferment at the Dave Susskind-Dan Melnick shop.

Shelley's planting himself by preparing the pilot for a half-hour comedy projected for the 1965-66 tv semester, but the new exec will also be active in developing properties for stage and screen.

He was most recently with Placebo Productions, N. Y., and directed Langston Hughes' "Simply Heavenly" on Broadway last season.

New Fears of Parliamentary Control Over Canada B'casting

By CHARLES LAZARUS

Montreal, April 21.

Recent disclosure by Secretary of State Maurice Lamontagne about still another federal probe of the Canadian broadcasting industry, has raised new fears of parliamentary control.

Lamontagne's statement couple of weeks ago actually was designed to focus attention on a number of problems which have been haunting the industry—both government-owned Canadian Broadcasting Corp., and privately-owned stations—for many years, and more specifically, since 1958 when federal legislation established the Board of Broadcast Governors whose function, ostensibly, is to regulate all broadcasting, both CBC and private.

At the time of its birth, the BBG's role was seen as similar to that of the Federal Communications Commission in Washington; however, unlike the FCC, the BBG has an area of conflict and confusion in that it must, with the CBC, serve the same master: The Canadian people as represented in Parliament.

As one of the reasons for the new probe, Lamontagne cited confusion in the 1958 law:

"On the question of the board's (BBG) authority, for instance, certain clauses of Part 1 of the Broadcasting Act can be interpreted to mean that the BBG has complete jurisdiction over all Canadian broadcasting, but other clauses in Part 2 can be construed to mean that the CBC is independent of the BBG in certain instances."

Lamontagne was apparently referring to this clause of Part 1 which says on the one hand that "The board (BBG) shall . . . regulate the establishment and operation of networks of broadcasting stations in Canada and the relationship between them, and provide for the final determination of all matters and questions in relation thereto;" and a clause in Part 2 which, on the other hand, allows the CBC to "make arrangements or agreements with any organization for the use of any rights, privileges or concessions that the corporation may consider useful for the purpose of carrying out its objects."

The fear of parliamentary control, particularly over CBC programming which, in fact, has been one of the world leaders in broadcasting in the presentation of daring and experimental programming, arises because the government-owned network has long been a target for members of parliament who don't quite dig its far-out cultural pursuits and documentary subject matter.

Since the probe would possibly be made up of members of parliament, there is considerable apprehension that the let's-not-offend fraternity will have a field day and influence the probers.

There's no objection—in fact, the Lamontagne announcement was welcomed—for the government to set up a Committee on Broadcasting to clarify once and for all the precise role and power of the BBG—a subject for constant wrangling between the BBG, CBC and Canadian Association of Broadcasting.

The worry arises over the question of control and, in broader terms, whether members of parliament will start feeling free to attempt jurisdiction over the question of Canadian culture.

Lamontagne also pointed out that "Since 1867 (the year of Canadian Confederation), we have left our cultural life also exclusively to personal initiative and private organizations. As a result, the body of our national culture has remained relatively anemic; and to the extent of their development, our principal cultures, French-and English-speaking, and even our other cultures have grown up in isolation . . .

". . . I am convinced that our cultural life needs both protection against impoverishment and stimulus to improvement, and that a deliberate effort to these ends, in which government must have a large role, is not only justified but is most urgently needed."

Just how large a role the government hopes to have in broadcasting, one of the dynamic components of Canadian culture, Lamontagne did not say, and that is where the rub lies.

HARDIMAN RESIGNS SG FOR CBS POST

Hollywood, April 21.

James W. Hardiman, for the past four years publicity director of Screen Gems, has been named director of public information for CBS-TV in Hollywood by Charles S. Steinberg, veepee in charge of the tv network's publicity corps. As successor to Ernest E. Stern, who died three weeks ago, he reports early next month.

Last December Hardiman signed a new five-year deal with SG but was given his release by the Columbia tv arm. It marks a return to CBS for Hardiman, who served the network as director of special projects in '58-'59. His next stop was at Walt Disney studio, where for a year he was in charge of radio and tv production. He joined SG in 1960.

NFL Championship To CBS-TV in 2-Yr. Deal for $3,600,000

CBS, in another sports coup, agreed to pay a record $1,800,000 per game for the National Football League championship games in '64 and '65. Deal includes radio as well as tv rights.

The $1,800,000 price was nearly double the $962,000 that NBC paid for the '63 championship game. CBS negotiated the two-year deal only three months after it had made a winning bid of $28,200,000 for tv rights to NFL's regular-season games in '64 and '65. This will be the first time CBS will carry the NFL championship games. In prior years, although CBS had the NFL regular season games, the championship games went to NBC, which in '63 paid the then record of $926,000 for a one-day sports event.

The CBS deal caught broadcasting and sports circles by surprise. It was assumed that NFL would entertain bids for the championship game from the three networks. However, Pete Rozelle, NFL commissioner, took cognizance that ABC-TV has the American Football League's schedule of games this season, and NBC-TV has the AFL games for the next five years. For this reason, Rozelle said negotiations for the NFL playoff games were limited to CBS.

Said Rozelle: "It is considered the best interests of the National Football League to keep its championship game free of any possible conflict of interest, especially in the area of promotion. In 1961 and 1963, the two times the NFL championship game was awarded on the basis of network bids, there were no other professional football commitments among the bidding parties."

It's also reported that the original asking price for the game by the NFL was $2,000,000 and that, had it gone to bidding, NBC was prepared to spend that much. The tv receipts alone will cover the player pension fund commitment of the league.

CBS Inks Participation Deals on Current Segs

In a roster of participation deals for this season, CBS-TV signed Bristol-Myers for a saturation campaign on "Mister Ed," "East Side, West Side," "What's My Line," "Chronicle," "Suspense Theatre," "Great Adventure" and "Route 66."

Salada Foods inked for participations in "ESWS," "Perry Mason" and "Alfred Hitchcock Hour." Calusa Chemical Co. bought participations in "Great Adventure," "Rawhide," "ESWS," "Mister Ed," "Nurses," "Hitchcock." Procter & Gamble, in a saturation deal, bough Garry Moore, "Rawhide," "Adventure," "Celebrity Game," "What's My Line" and "Suspense."

Norton Simon Gets Dry Retort From Canada Dry

Industrialist Norton Simon (Hunt Foods) is a man with a yen that seemingly nobody wants to satisfy.

First he hoped for representation on the AB-PT board. Now he's been rejected by Canada Dry.

Simon recently acquired 20% of the stock in the soft drink company, whose prexy, Roy W. Moore Jr., is quoted as being pleased to have him as a shareholder. But not on the board; nor, says Moore, is there any intention "of merging in any way the interests of Canada Dry with the enterprise that Mr. Simon heads."

That Tanner Travelling Tote Board Projects Some Oren Harris Enthusiasm

Washington, April 21.

Rep. Oren Harris (D-Ark) thinks there may be hope in the new ratings gizmo undrapped at the NAB Convention in Chicago.

Harris said Jim Tanner's device, which when driven through a neighborhood can determine channel settings on television sets within a 300-yard radius, will be a "very worthwhile" contribution.

If rating firms don't use it, broadcasters and advertisers will, he said.

In a newsletter to his constituents, Harris tossed some barbs at the ratings system averring:

"The rating figure is the idol of the broadcasting industry, the rating book its scripture, and its theology is propounded by statisticians, pseudo-statisticians, and other soothsayers who count salesmanship among the accomplishments."

Referring to "ratingism" as a cult, Harris said its followers are propelled by the masses, not their own convictions.

NBC-TV ORDERS TWO 2-HOUR REVUE FILMS

Hollywood, April 21.

Revue studios has received an order for two two-hourlong telefilms for next season from NBC-TV, with an option for additional shows.

Riding herd on the extra-longies for Revue is Dick Lewis.

Revue originally filmed a two-hour show based on Ernest Hemingway's "The Killers," for the web, the vidventure actually a pilot for a contemplated series. Network frowned on violence and sex in the picture, and instead it is being released as a theatrical film by Universal, which with Revue is an MCA subsid. Don Siegel was producer-director of "Killers."

It's reported NBC-TV plans to insert the Revue-produced two-hour films occasionally in its vintage theatrical film programming.

Pact Burl Ives For GE Pre-Yule Special

Burl Ives, long absent from tv (save for late-show exposure), is set to return by way of a pre-Xmas General Electric hourlong special, "Rudolph the Rednosed Reindeer." It's down for next Dec. 6, and will preempt GE's "College Bowl" on NBC-TV.

Show is being produced in color by Videocraft Productions, and will mark a first-time on network television for its "Animagic" dimensional process. Videocraft puts the show's cost at about $500,000, and will dub it into German, French and Spanish for the foreign markets.

Berns Back to Skelton

Hollywood, April 21.

Seymour Berns, who recently departed the Red Skelton show as director, is returning as producer. He replaces Cecil Barker, with whom he exited two weeks ago along with Ed Simmons, head writer. Simmons will produce the Martha Raye-William Bendix comedy series on CBS-TV under his own banner.

Barker is still unattached.

TV-Radio Production Centres

IN NEW YORK . . .

NBC News boss William R. McAndrew returns from European tour of webs news bureaus May 4 . . . Chet Huntley back from Bahama vacation . . . NBC's pubaffairs mgr. George Heinemann speaks at Westchester Panhellenic Board luncheon May 7 . . . Jonathan Winters wings to coast for shooting on next Fall NBC-TV specs . . . Fran Warren and Julius La Rosa sing on "Today" Friday (24) . . . Bill Jersey produced, directed and wrote "Incident on Wilson Street" for NBC-TV's DuPont show of the week May 3 . . . NBC News producer Lucy Jarvis won Golden Mike Award for her work on "The Kremlin" . . . Fess Parker, NBC-TV's "Daniel Boone" next season, will be guest of honor at commissioning of Navy's ballistic sub Daniel Boone tomorrow (23) at San Francisco . . . Paul Archinard, manager of NBC News' Paris bureau, retires end of this month after 25 years with net . . . Howard Gardner named manager of eastern sales for NBC Radio . . . New York's educational station WNDT-TV and the New York Board of Education have renewed the pact for instructional video for the new school year . . . Ernest Pintoff, producer of blurbs and theatrical animated shorts, has done a 70m animated sequence for DuPont's World's Fair exhib . . . Mutual web account exec James McElroy speaks to an advertising group at the University of Bridgeport April 22 . . . Frank Zuzulo, MBS pr director, back at his desk after a bout with pneumonia . . . Mutual Affiliates Advisory Committee meets April 26-30 at the Dunes Hotel, Las Vegas.

Charles Steinberg, CBS-TV v.p. of public information, back from fortnight visit to Coast . . . Morey Amsterdam of "Dick Van Dyke Show" to Columbus for personal appearance . . . Jim Lavenstein, manager of program liaison for CBS-TV, back from Utah vacation . . . Radcliffe College freshman Ida Picker, daughter of CBS-TV press staffer Julian Picker, had her second one-act comedy of the season produced at Harvard's Loeb Experimental Theatre last week . . . WWRL to present musical show at Appolo Theatre for a week, starting Friday (24). Show is first in a series of "Hello to New York" welcomes scheduled by the new WWRL management . . . Ken Harris named program director of WVIP, AM FM, Mount Kisco, Westchester, N.Y. Ray Walston, who stars in "My Favorite Martian" takes a starring role in Billy Wilder's feature, "Kiss Me, Stupid," replacing Peter Sellers, who suffered a heart attack . . . Architectural League of N.Y. presents the Michael Friedsam Medal to CBS prexy Frank Stanton Tuesday (28) at a dinner in his honor at the Plaza . . . Arlene Francis turned over her WOR Radio mike to tv comedienne Charlotte Rae yesterday (Tues.) for a discussion of mental illness in children . . . Bette Davis guests on "Jack Paar Show" in NBC-TV Friday (24) . . . Saul J. Turell, Walter Reade-Sterling prexy, off to Europe . . . Donald Buka finishing his fourth appearance on CBS-TV's "As the World Turns" today (Wed.) . . . E. G. Marshall will host the "International Hour" series on the five CBS o&o tv stations.

Robert Riger, artist-photog last with Sports Illustrated, joining the Sports Programs (ABC) staff . . . Harold Klein, exec v.p. at ABC Films, o-o'ing the European markets . . . Jim Lowe spelling vacationing Marty O'Hara on WNEW's "Milkman's Matinee" . . . Michael B. Mosher, son of NBC's Paul Mosher, sporting a Phi Beta Kappa at the Albert Einstein College of Medicine . . . Tony Bennett guests Tuesday (28) on Red Skelton's show . . . Comic Ronnie Martin, brother of comic Corbett Monica, taped his second Ed Sullivan shot for summer exposure . . . Don Allen fronting ABC Radio's "The World of Space and Science" . . . WNEW's Wally King on a two-week holiday . . . Guesting with Fred Robbins (WNEW) this week are Julie London, Farley Granger, Carol Lynley and Louis Armstrong . . . ABC Radio will air the entire Notre Dame grid schedule next fall for the seventh straight year . . . Don Garrett, Screen Gems p.r. director, on the Coast to line up a replacement there for Jim Hardiman, who just switched to CBS-TV as press info director . . . Edward P. Morgan of ABC News spoke Monday (20) at Brandeis Univ. on "Public Policy and Public Opinion. On Friday (24) he and co-star Howard K. Smith address the U. of Miami's annual conference of communications arts dinner.

IN HOLLYWOOD . . .

Breena Howard will have her "Day in Court," a stopover for young actresses making the rounds . . . Joseph Stefano wanted more time to develop "Haunted" for CBS-TV so he pulled out as producer of ABC-TV's "Outer Limits," which went temporarily to Ben Brady in his new assignment with United Artists-TV as developer of new shows which UA provides the financing . . . Everett Freeman told by CBS-TV's Hunt Stromberg to get busy on a new comedy in addition to supervising the web's fun shows out of Hollywood . . . Cecil Barker, ex-producer of the Red Skelton show, making the radio and tv rounds in N.Y. to plug his new book, "The Olive Winked Back." It's the story of his wild experiences in the last world war . . . Stan Brady set up his own production company for tv documentaries and put Betty Teich in charge of his N.Y. office. For the past seven years his "Teen Age Trials" have been televised on local network stations . . . Hunt Stromberg has ordered all new CBS-TV shows for next season to stop production after two or three segs so he and his staff can study their content and make possible changes. It has won the commendation of ad agencies, who'd rather not wait until the fourth rating to know whether they're headed in the right direction . . . Bob Finkel will produce five Andy Williams shows for next season and then take off with the Hal Kemps for three weeks of relaxation in Hawaii.

IN CHICAGO . . .

Box score on the local Emmy nominations reads nine for WBKB, seven for WGN-TV, six for WNBQ, five for WBBM-TV and four for WTTW. It's WGN's turn to do the awards telecast on May 21; Bud Ellingwood is producing and Mike Murphy directing . . . WNBQ ad-promo director Chet Campbell busted his collar bone and some ribs in a fall from a horse . . . Ted Kavanau coming in from Boston to join Hal Wallace's documentary staff at WBBM-TV . . . Bill Corley and Con O'Dea, news directors of WNBQ and WBKB respectively, take part in a WGN-TV "Your Right to Say It" panel on May 2 with the Trib station's news chief, Bruce Dennis. Topic is television's role is reporting the news.

Second City bossman Bernie Sahlins will produce a satirical series on Chicago crime at WTTW for the National Educational Television web . . . Sterling (Red) Quinlan will make his first public address since joining Field Enterprises Inc. at the Sigma Delta Chi regional conference this Saturday (25) . . . Ev Aspinwall, bureau chief for ABC-TV News here, got hitched over the weekend to Ron Cochran's former secretary . . . WLS hired Bill Miller as capital correspondent in Springfield . . . Tom Leahy, ex-WCBS-TV, New York, joined the CBS-TV sales staff here . . . Irv Kupcinet and Frank Reynolds will address the station reps' Timebuyer of the Year award luncheon tomorrow (Thurs.) . . . WMAQ's Jack Eigen notched 17 years with his latenight interview stanza which had its origins at the Copa in N.Y. . . . Jerry Dhesse, ex-Walter Schwimmer, joined Peter De Met Productions in p.r. and industrial film writing

IN LONDON . . .

Screen Writers' Guild applied and was accepted as an affiliate of the Trades Union Congress . . . BBC Radio celebrated Sir John Gielgud's 60th birthday with a 30-minute portrait . . . BBC-TV's new skein

(Continued on page 116)

20% 1st Quarter Hike for AB-PT

First quarter net earnings of American Broadcasting-Paramount Theatres (ABC) reached $2,865,000, or 63c. per share, compared to $2,389,000 or 52c. a share in the like 1963 period. That, emphasizes corporate prexy Leonard Goldenson, is a 20% increase.

Earnings including capital gains were $2,983,000, or 65c. a share compared to $2,512,000 or 55c. a share for last year's quarter.

The upbeat reflects improvements in both broadcasting and theatre operations, and reduced taxes under the revised impost law. Goldenson is bullish about continuation of improved earnings in the second quarter.

On the broadcast side, exec pointedly specified only one performance—the 27% audience increase for Ron Cochran's evening news strip. The reference reemphasizes the importance attached to the buildup of ABC News as a serious contender in the three-network news rivalry.

REVUE BUILDING UP PRODUCTION STAFF

Hollywood, April 21.

Arthur Nadel has been named by exec producer Frank P. Rosenberg as a producer of some segments of Revue studio's "Kraft Suspense Theater" series on NBC-TV for next season. Nadel produced some segs of same studio's "Arrest and Trial" series this semester, a series on which Rosenberg was exec producer.

Rosenberg is also bringing "A&T" execs Jon Epstein and James McAdams into his "Kraft" production lineup, to serve in the same capacities they hold on "A&T." Epstein will continue as assistant to Rosenberg for stories and writers.

Joel Rogosin, who is exec assistant to Roy Huggins, exec producer on the "Kraft" series this season, will join Rosenberg's staff in an overall creative capacity for the 1964-65 semester. Huggins, Revue veepee who is supervising filming of the initial season of the series, is branching out into wider areas of activity for Revue.

Mitgang in N.Y. Times Exit to Join Friendly

Herbert Mitgang, who has been with the N.Y. Times the past 18 years, joins CBS News as assistant to the president Fred Friendly and executive editor. Appointment is effective May 1.

In his newly-created post, Mitgang will serve as creative coordinator for Friendly acting as liaison with producers and production units within CBS News. At the Times, Mitgang served as editor, writer and critic. Among his tv credits, Mitgang worked in conjunction with CBS News' production staff in the upcoming 90-minute Eisenhower D-Day special.

Huston to Meg Wolper's Marilyn Monroe Biopic

Hollywood, April 21.

John Huston has been signed by exec producer David L. Wolper to narrate "The Legend of Marilyn Monroe," Wolper Productions' hourlong tv special on the late star.

Huston directed the film that first brought Miss Monroe to some prominence, "The Asphalt Jungle," and also directed her last motion picture, "The Misfits," Wolper also signed Theodore Strauss, former story editor of 20th-Fox, to script "Legend of Marilyn Monroe," which is being produced and directed by Terry Sanders.

Storer's New Veepees

Miami, April 21.

Directors of Storer Broadcasting, at their April meet, elected three new vicepresidents and named Arno W. Mueller, budget director, as assistant treasurer.

The new stripers are Lawrence M. Carino, g.m. of WJBK-TV, Detroit; Harry A. Steensen, company tresurer; and Abiah A. Church, trustee, and Hinckley is a trustee of the Noble Foundation, with its potent bloc of shares, and of course aligned with Goldenson in the latter's efforts to fend off Simon and other outsiders seeking board representation.

A test of management strength will come at the special meeting called for 10 a.m. May 19 (an hour before the regular holders meet) when Goldenson & Co. hope to have enough proxies to repeal the cumulative voting by-law and thereby make it tougher for foes to land a rep on the board.

Group W's Trump Card: The Bard

By GEORGE ROSEN

London, April 21.

On the theory, to which it has long since subscribed, that scholarship is rarely harmed by a touch of show business, Group W has once more demonstrated its flair for the imaginative and the unusual.

A few years ago, Group W (ne Westinghouse Broadcasting) harnessed its programming energies to perhaps the most ingenious, inventive and emotion-packed stunt in public service broadcast annals. This, of course, was the John Brown at Harper's Ferry re-creation which served as a fitting climax to the WBC Public Service Conference in Baltimore. Thus it wasn't surprising that, on the occasion of the commemoration of the Shakespeare quadricentennial, it was left to Group W last week to top itself.

Since just about everyone who is anyone in the American Shakespeare world will be going to Stratford-on-Avon for this spring and summer's festivities and hoopla, Group W decided to do a bit of gun-jumping and on the eve of this week's official "Shakespeare 400" commemoration flew a dozen or so tv critics and journalists to Britain, and the place where it all began.

Since Shakespeare is having a thin time of it in the U.S. this month, Group W practically had the play all to itself. With New York's usual native ingenuity for whoopups trained in the direction of Flushing Meadows and the opening of the World's Fair, there's been little of the Bard on the festive card. An NBC repeat of a year-old tv production, the Broadway premiere of Richard Burton's "Hamlet," the bow of the Royal Shakespeare Co. in Washington, and that's about it. In terms of broadcasting doing something unique and distinctive, it was Group W's "baby."

What, of course, lent considerable spice and appropriate grandeur to the Group W pilgrimage was the fact that it was so neatly and adroitly tied up as a "Frank Baxter package." For to the man who far and away knows Shakespeare the best was entrusted the task of shepherding the U.S. journalistic flock, giving scope and definition to chapter-&-verse in last week's exploration of the Shakespearean countryside, a look-in at a dress rehearsal of "Henry IV (Part 2)" at Stratford-on-Avon and a visit to that corner of the City of London where the Bard lived and worked (and where, starting tomorrow, the Mermaid Theatre pays tribute to the Shakespeare Quadricentennial with an 18-week season of Elizabethan and Jacobean plays).

An Authority

Since Baxter is indisputably the world's champ on "Beat the Bard" and probably the only man alive who knows where the ghost of Hamlet's father currently reposes, to have him as guide and mentor for such an occasion is an experience not soon forgotten. As Shakespeare's man for all seasons, he brings a dedication and devotion to his verbalizing that infects the listener and viewer with the good and learned doctor's charm and simple exposition.

The event, appropriately, was double-pronged, for it was at Stratford that the visiting group "sneak-previewed" Dr. Baxter's "The Fair Adventure: Readings in the Plays of Shakespeare." This is the series of 56 television and 26 radio half-hours hosted by the hep and entertaining teacher and lecturer, which officially premieres this week on Group W's 11 stations and which will be syndicated to stations throughout the country as well. They're designed to instruct and entertain young people and their families in the plays of Shakespeare and invite closer scrutiny of his writings. (All the tv and radio programs were produced at Group W's KPIX in San Francisco with the assistance of the Univ. of Southern California and the Shakespeare Birthplace Trust in England).

The series is essentially a one-man show. Dr. Baxter is something more than a host. Through ingenious self-made props, figures and models, he brings the Shakespeare dramas into sharp and vivid focus. The Battle of Agincourt comes to life by means of his own miniature foot soldiers and horsemen. Again, the battle of the sexes is visualized Shoe Polish.
in a large heart-shaped boxing ring with each of the sexes in opposite corners. The Bard's comedy of manners is demonstrated by a demure lady and a polite gentleman balanced to their respective intricate degrees in opposite pans of a weighing scale.

Since Group W is also unique among group broadcasting operations in the whole area of news, with its own large-scale European news setup headed by Rod McLeish that encompasses bureaus in London, Paris, Brussels, Rome and Berlin (from which points the correspondents fan out), it was also an opportunity for the visitors to get a first-hand briefing. Young, energetic, knowledgable (they're all, incidentally, Americans who have spent most of the post-war years in Europe), they made a deep impression on the U.S. critics.

Also in tow, to help liven up the contemporary scene (theatre, dinner parties, etc) were Roland Tooke, the genial Group W administrative factotum, and Bob Blake, pubrelations chieftain.

If anything, "Operation Shakespeare" proved beyond question that the Westinghouse programming contribution in the exacting area of public-service (as helmed by its imaginative programming leader, Dick Pack), far from being a myth, is something distinctive and rare.

Simon as Single Largest AB-PT Stockholder? Await May 19 Proxy Showdown

Because of the sundry ways to mask stock ownership, it's not certain but thought likely that industrialist Norton Simon (Hunt Foods) is now the largest single shareholder in American Broadcasting-Paramount Theatres. This distinction, to emphasize, applies to individuals, since a far larger bloc of shares—226,223—is held in charitable trust by the Edward John Noble Foundation, named for the late Life Savers head and chief of the Blue Network at time of its 1953 merger with United Paramount Theatres, out of which emerged AB-PT and ABC.

Simon's purchase, as revealed some weeks back, is said to have totaled over 100,000 shares. As disclosed last week by the company's proxy statement, AB-PT prez Leonard Goldenson holds 70,000 shares of common, which amount includes a recent stock-option purchase of 13,530 shares. He has option to another 27,061 shares, according to the proxy statement, which option can be exercised in installments after next Sept. 20 and prior to Sept. 21, 1966, at a price of just over $23 per share.

Second to Goldenson in stock holdings on the AB-PT board of directors is exec vice-president Simon B. Siegel, with 10,819 shares. His portfolio includes 4,059 shares of recent acquisition under stock-option terms, whereby he can pick up 8,118 additional shares on the same basis applicable to Goldenson.

Other members of the board, all of whom comprise the management slate for reelection, are A. H. Blank, Alger B. Chapman, John A. Coleman, Everett H. Erlick (v.p. and general counsel of the corporation), E. Chester Gersten, Jack Hausman, Robert H. Hinckley, Robert L. Huffines Jr., Walter P. Marshall, Joseph A. Martino, James G. Riddell (vice-prez of ABC), and David B. Wallerstein.

Chapman is exec director and a

Jennings Lang As Revue's Prod. VP

Hollywood, April 21.

Jennings Lang, head of new projects, has been named senior veepee in charge of all tv production at Universal City studios (Revue), replacing Alan Miller.

Lang joined the studio in 1950 and started the new projects division which developed such tv shows as "Wagon Train," "Virginian," "McHale's Navy," "Arrest and Trial" and NBC-TV's "90 Bristol Court" for the coming season.

Universal says Miller will produce feature films for the company.

METROMEDIA GROSS UP BUT NET DOWN

An upbeat in first quarter gross at Metromedia was marred by a decline in net income. Profit erosion was attributed to higher depreciation and interest charges because of diversified acquisitions in the latter half of 1963, chief among which were the Ice Capades and General Outdoor Advertising properties in various parts of the country.

Corporate gross revenue for the first 13 weeks ended March 29 rose to $21,648,383, compared to $13,527,470 for the comparable period last year. Net income came to $513,512, or 27c. per common share, compared to $703,283 or 40c. per share in the '63 quarter.

ABC Radio's 'Theatre 5' Geared to Restore Drama As Art Form; Set Aides

By JACK PITMAN

ABC's scheme for reviving original nighttime radio drama got a production nucleus beefup last week with the addition of Jack Wilson as story editor, and Warren Sommerville and Frederick (Ted) Bell as directors.

This is the syndication project, now titled "Theatre Five," first voiced more than a year ago by ABC Radio prez Bob Pauley as a pet undertaking, but only recently implemented with the hiring of Ed Byron as exec producer. The format is five-a-week 25-minute anthology.

As to concept, Byron is explicit. "We're not trying to bring back anything. We want new scripts in contemporaneous terms." By which he means the project is geared to a comeback of radio drama as an art form, with new plots—not the restoration of memorable creations from the radio heyday.

The going script rate for "Theatre Five" is to be $400 per, and eight (authors undisclosed) are now "in the works," according to Byron. This is regarded as attractive recompense for radio, or as story editor Wilson puts it, the writer who can't produce within a week isn't with it.

Wilson began earning his script spurs back when the old Authors League was parent of the several scribe guilds in the entertainments, and was an NBC writer-editor from 1943 to 1958. Of the age when radio drama was in full flower, he asserts there were "amazingly few" topnotch dramatists in the medium—"maybe a dozen or so" who between them monopolized the choice assignments.

He thinks the talent pool has been considerably enlarged by tv as the insatiable maw, and also because "more people are writer-oriented today." Radio scripting, of course, is an orientation unto itself; and the 25-minute format imposes demands different yet from the standard half-hour. Still, he expresses confidence that the project will attract a sufficiency of eligible scripts.

Byron states there is no target date as such for getting the pro-

(Continued on page 120)

Big Purex Splurge On Tap at ABC-TV

The Purex relationship with ABC-TV has ripened into a hot and heavy romance, partly at the expense of NBC, with the advertiser's tv coin now committed in toto to the ABC schedule.

The splurge mapped out for Purex includes underwriting an impressive sked of news-pubaffairs programming through the 1964-65 semester, plus extensive primetime allocations this summer and sponsorship of the daytime "Tennessee Ernie Ford Show."

The switch of allegiance involves some $4,000,000.

This is over and above the seven Dinah Shore specials previously hooked by the web, four of said specs to be nighttime variety displays and three as daytime dramatic or documentary entries angled for the hausfrau.

Over the past couple of seasons, Purex's main daytime thrust had been on NBC-TV with hour telementaries focussed on the American woman.

In the current season, Purex has been repped on ABC-TV with Lisa Howard's mid-afternoon five-minute news strip. Though not announced by the net, Miss Howard is expected to front some pre-convention news specials angled primarily for the distaff audience. Otherwise, Purex will bankroll a number of pubaffairs specials starting early next year, and the web's coverage of the presidential inauguration in January.

Foote, Cone & Belding is agency on the Dinah Shore specials, while the other buys go through Edward H. Weiss.

ATV'S 'WARD 10' SALE TO AUSSIES

London, April 21.

In a $70,000 deal, Associated Television has sold to Australia, 52 segments of its twice-weekly hospital soaper "Emergency Ward 10.'" Buyer is the upcoming Aussie vid circuit Austarama which will be operating stations in Sydney, Melbourne, Adelaide, Brisbane and Perth.

ATV is preparing to telerecord the shows from the end of May—with Australian star Chips Rafferty being brought in to give the first segments a local Aussie interest—and will be shipping prints Down Under through June and July for an August preem.

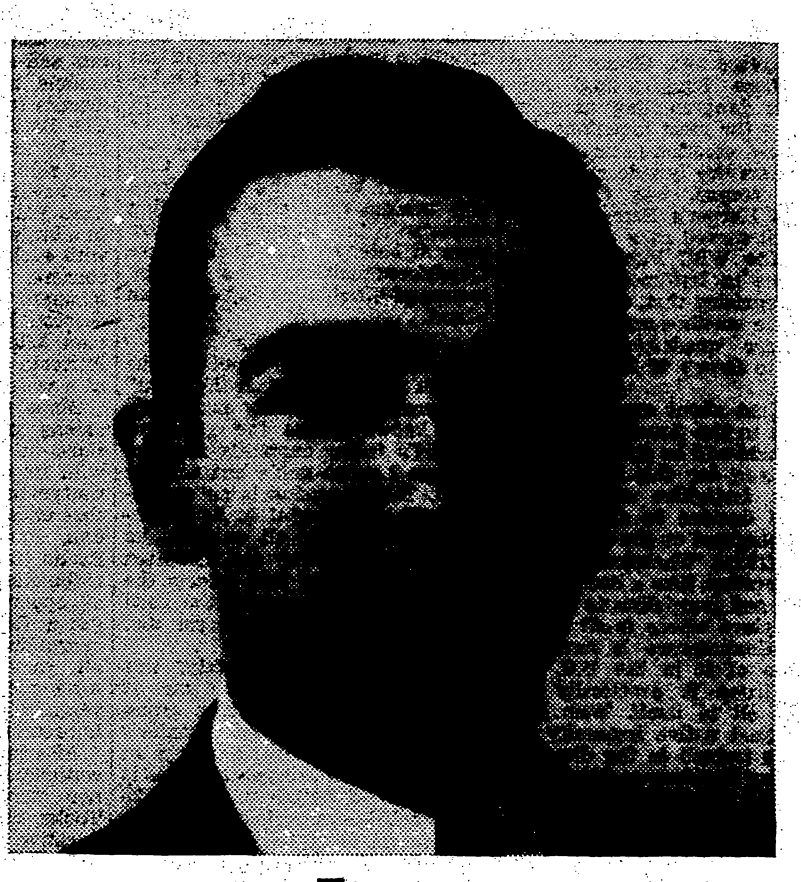
As in the U.K. the "Ward 10" segments will be shown on a twice-weekly basis and thus the initial buy will last for six months. Should the series take off in Aussie further deals will be made.

Too Much Drinking On TV, Scot Femmes Beef

Aberdeen, April 21.

Television companies in the U.K. were called on here to play down the drinks angle in dramas and serials.

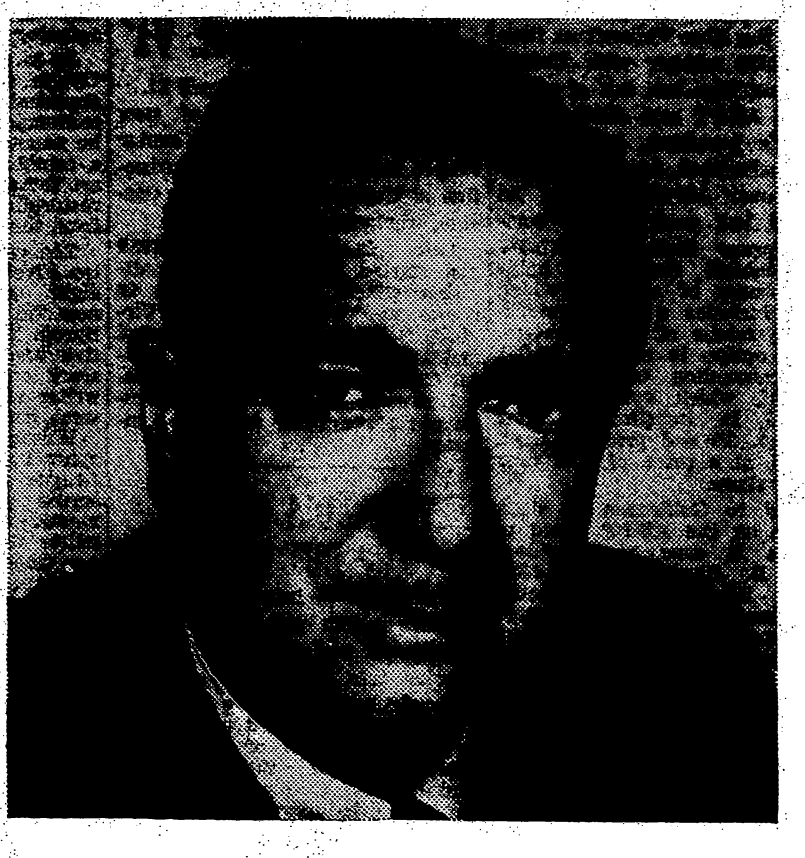
Annual confab of the Scottish Council of the British Women's Temperance Association called on both the British Broadcasting Corp. and the Independent Television Authority to help in their campaign.



Delegates criticized both bodies for giving the impression, in plays and other programs, that drinks taken in rapid succession had no effect on speech and behavior. "This is in direct contradiction to reality," said a resolution, unanimously adopted.

They called on the television companies not to undermine the efforts of the Ministry of Transport in quickening the public conscience on the relationship between drink and road accidents.

Kelly's MM Slot



Donald J. Kelly has been named assistant to John Kluge, prez and chairman of Metromedia.

Kelly joined the chain in 1962 as program manager for KMBC, Kansas City, and latterly has been program consultant for WCBM-AM-FM, Baltimore.

As a cub reporter Walter Cronkite was always there with the big story.

He hasn't changed a bit!

It was a routine afternoon in a press-service bureau in Dallas–March 18, 1937. Suddenly a teletype machine began to tap out the fragmentary report of a school explosion in tiny New London, Texas. At the bureau a young reporter noted the bulletin and, without consulting anyone, took off for the scene of the explosion–150 miles away. Three hours later he was picking his way through the rubble of a major disaster: exploding gas had killed 427 children and teachers. He was the first press-service reporter on the scene.

This was Walter Cronkite's first big story. Today, 27 years later, he is involved in covering the biggest stories of an election year: the primaries, the conventions, the campaign, and the Election returns.

In the years between, Cronkite has never stopped going after the big story. He was first among war correspondents to fly on a bombing mission over Germany. He covered the first landing on Normandy beach. He reported the Nuremberg trials. The first television news broadcast to span the U.S. was his report on the Japanese Peace Conference from San Francisco in 1952. He accompanied Presidents Eisenhower and Kennedy on their state visits abroad. His reporting of the first American orbital flight in 1962 was a milestone in television journalism. (After greeting her son, Mrs. Glenn said there was one celebrity she was dying to meet, Walter Cronkite.) As CBS News anchor man, he has been the only television reporter to cover every Presidential and every off-year election since 1952.

In sum, Walter Cronkite combines a rare knack for anticipating fast-breaking news with an authority that inevitably thrusts him into the center of the great events of our times. These qualities stem in part from an incredibly wide range of sources acquired over a generation of leg-work; in part from meticulous research; and in part from an insatiable curiosity about people and places.

This year CBS News will fuse these remarkable resources with the efforts of an Election Unit which for 17 months has been preparing the most comprehensive coverage of primaries, conventions and elections ever undertaken for television. With the support of this unprecedented news-gathering organization, Walter Cronkite will again provide the kind of lucid information and commentary that explains why more and more people are turning to CBS News for the reporting of major events. You can pick up the thread of the big election-year story on his broadcast tonight. CBS News

Baruch: Too Great An Upswing In Prices for U.S. Shows in Japan

By DAVE JAMPEL

Tokyo, April 21.

Ralph M. Baruch, v.p. of international sales for CBS Films cautioned distribs and agents handling American telefilms against squeezing too hard to extract the ultimate dollar when dealing with Japanese stations.

Such action, he warned, could choke off at least part of the market.

"In visiting the stations here I found all of the executives to be gravely concerned with the fact that prices of American shows are going up very quickly," said Baruch. "Their concern is the same as ours in the United States. Their sponsors say they can't afford it—although they usually end up buying in anyway."

Baruch stipulated he is not against price increases, but that they should be kept in hand.

He pointed out that in number of sets, Japan is second only to the U.S., with some 15,000,000 registered receivers and a monthly hike of from 200,000 to 250,000.

"So we feel our prices should go up," Baruch submitted. "But the rate of increase has to slow down. If not, our shows will not be competitive with Japanese productions and we will force the Japanese to make more."

Baruch noted that the five major Japanese motion picture studios are all now making telefilms and that the bulk of their feature libraries have not yet been exposed on tv. "And when the public gets used to so many Japanese shows, we'll have more problems," Baruch said.

"As with features, American and Japanese tv film production have to live said by side," he added. "One cannot tip the scale completely."

Baruch said that during his two weeks here he explained to Japanese tv execs that Yank production costs are climbing at what he termed "a fantastic rate." He offered, "Already the authors are getting a percentage of overseas gross sales.

"So on the one hand we are being pressured not to increase our prices and on the other pressed to increase them.

"I sincerely hope at one point the prices here will become stabilized so that we can negotiate on a formula of a basic price plus consideration for increase in production costs and accounting for the circulation."

Baruch doesn't agree with recent statements claiming there is less demand here for American shows.

(Continued on page 116)

Lebhar's Prexy Status

Bertram Lebhar Jr., stockholder and exec veepee of WEAT-TV, West Palm Beach, Fla., has been hired to serve as president of Gardens Broadcasting and continue as general manager of the radio and tv stations.

At the same time, Lebhar has acquired 49% of the stock in the properties, with 51% owned by Royal American Industries.

Global Sales For SG's 'My Friends'

Screen Gems' "My Friends Around the World," series of seven-minute travel pix from the point of view of children, has been sold in Argentina, Mexico, Venezuela, Brazil, Australia and Japan. Additional deals are said to be pending.

The 39-seg series is a coproduction with Pacific Film Productions, Melbourne, and the TBS Network in Japan. First 13 episodes have already been filmed.

According to Lloyd Burns, v.p. at Screen Gems, additional agreements are in negotiation for Britain, Germany and France. Ultimate expectation is for a lineup of more than 40 o'seas markets.

Top 50-Market Spread For Col Post-'48 Pix

Screen Gems reports it's now in all top 50 tv markets with the Columbia post-48 package of 210 pix, with total sales to date numbering 153.

Latest deals were made with KHOU-TV, Houston; WBZ-TV, Boston; WJZ-TV, Baltimore; KATV, Little Rock; KMBT-TV, Twin Falls; WSBT-TV, South Bend; WAVE-TV, Louisville; KCHU-TV, San Bernardino; KBES-TV, Medford, Ore.; and WCAX-TV, Burlington, Vt.

The package, first and largest released from the Col vault, include "On the Waterfront," "Caine Mutiny," "Death of a Salesman" and "The Last Hurrah."

Budd Lynch Asks 125G For Breach of Contract

Detroit, April 21.

Vet radio announcer Budd Lynch has sued the Detroit Race Course Inc. for $125,000 on a charge of breach of contract, claiming the company did not honor his five-year contract.

The company, in cancelling the contract last January, asked the courts for a $55,000 judgment on the grounds that Lynch overspent his budget and had not devoted sufficient time to his job.

Lynch, for many years, has called the play-by-play of Detroit Red Wing hockey games.

'Tall Man' Syndie Entry

With the webs next season failing to program one half-hour western, MCA-TV lifted "Tall Man" from its vaults and placed it along "Wells Fargo" for a syndication ride.

In an unrelated move, MCA-TV also put 26 episodes of "Calvin and the Colonel" in the syndication hopper.

First sales of "Tall Man" and "Calvin" were made to KHJ, Los Angeles. "Calvin" also has been sold to KNTN, Seattle. New sales also were chalked up on "Wells Fargo" and Leave It to Beaver."

'Lawbreaker' Sales

"Lee Marvin Presents — Lawbreaker" has been sold to 13 countries by United Artists Television's international division.

Series has been sold to WKAG, Puerto Rico; ATN-HSV, Australia; Associated Rediffusion, Hong Kong; Tokyo Broadcasting System, Japan; Philippines, Thailand, Venezuela, Argentina, Guatemala, among other countries.

Capital Cities Up 42% 1st Qtr.

Net profit of Capitol Cities Broadcasting in the first quarter rose by 42% over the same period a year ago, prez Frank M. Smith reports, adding that April sales orders indicate continued gains.

Net income for the quarter was $603,363, equal to 44c per share, as compared with $424,063, or 31c a share, in the comparable earlier period. Income before taxes was $1,241,623, compared with $893,884 for the 1963 first quarter.

Net broadcast revenues in the quarter hit $4,416,265, compared with $3,982,987 for the year-ago quarter.

UNFAIR LABOR RAP SLAPPED ON KFSA

Washington, April 21.

The National Labor Relations Board slapped unfair labor practices charges on KFSA-AM, Fort Smith, Ark. and ordered it to bargain with controller-announcers and engineers organized by the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, Local 1304.

A three-member panel of the Board upheld a Trial Examiner's decision which charged the station threatened reprisals for employees joining the union.

Voting to pin the charges on licensee Fort Smith Broadcasting Co. were NLRB Chairman Frank McCulloch and members John Fanning and Howard Jenkins Jr.

D.C. GROUP BIDS FOR 'U' IN TWIN CITIES

Minneapolis, April 21.

The Twin Cities of Minneapolis and St. Paul, which adjoin each other, and except for their main downtown business sections being 10 miles apart, are like a single city, now have five television stations, three of which are network, one independent and the other non-commercial educational. But this isn't deterring a Washington, D.C. group of four men from wanting to come here and start a sixth which would be the Twin Cities' first UHF station.

With this in mind the group has filed an application for Channel 23 and the matter is pending with the FCC.

It's announced that the new station's proposed programming would rely heavily on movies. The station would not go on the air until 3:30 p.m. daily and would sign off at 11 p.m. On Saturday at 7 p.m. the station would have a half-hour program titled "You and Your City," a discussion of public issues.

Church Asks FCC To Lift Licenses Of Miss. Stations

Two Jackson, Miss., tv stations were charged with racial discrimination by the United Church of Christ, which filed a petition with the FCC seeking a denial of license renewal for WLBT and WJTV.

Licenses of WLBT, operated by Lamar Life Broadcasting, and WJTV, operated by Capital Broadcasting, expire June 1. Rev. Dr. Everett C. Parker, director of the church's Office of Communication, said similar moves of monitoring other stations, both north and south, may be made, depending on FCC's action in the Jackson case.

The unprecedented petitions charged alleged failure to serve the Negro population in the area, estimated at more than 40% of viewers; alleged failure to provide the community, white and Negro, with adequate religious and other pub-affairs programming; alleged failure to use the courtesy titles of Miss, Mrs. and Mr. for Negroes although such titles are used for white persons; alleged discrimination against Negroes in the presentation of news and announcements and selection of program material; alleged discrimination in the presentation of controversial issues, especially in the field of race relations; alleged failure to use Negro entertainers and other participants in "live" programs and to announce Negro community affairs; alleged excessive periods of time devoted to commercial announcements.

In the case of one station, it is also alleged that the general manager is a member of the local Citizens' Council, alleged to be devoted to opposing enforcement of constitutional rights of Negroes in Mississippi. Joining in the petition were two local residents of Mississippi, both Negroes, one of them prexy of the state's National Assn. for the Advancement of the Colored People.

United Church of Christ, which had its inception in the U. S. with the churches of the Pilgrims, claims to be one of the largest Protestant organizations in the U. S. with membership of 2,057,000.

L.A.'s Nippon FMer

Hollywood, April 21.

KHOF-FM in L.A. has begun airing three hours a week programming in the Japanese lingo, first FM station in the continental U.S. to do this.

Nippon Broadcasting Co. of L.A., under the leadership of Osamu Ghoto, is producing a large portion of the three hours, also landing biz for the station, commercial manager-p.r. director Ralph Samford said.

Initial programs include educational, news, discussions, femme features, music and religioso segs. Future plans include use of programs produced in the Orient, to be aired on an exchange basis with locally produced portions.

Gospel According to NAB Gets New Mexico, Mississippi Talkup

Washington, April 21.

Two NAB officials were tub-thumping in Mississippi and New Mexico spreading the gospel of self-improvement.

NAB's new radio veep Sherril Taylor was in Albuquerque where he said radio stations could increase their revenues by 50% if they would air better programs.

In Biloxi, Miss., NAB Radio manager Charles Stone urged broadcasters to take more of a hand in their stations' activities and rely less on ratings and audience polls.

Addressing the New Mexico Broadcasters Assn., Taylor said that despite the general "upbeat" feeling in radio there is an "inexplicable lethargy" among far too many of the brethren.

In far too many cases, he averred, salesmanship has been better than programming. The radio industry should be pulling in 50% more in advertising dollars with more creative programming appealing to a larger segment of the audience, Taylor said.

Stone, speaking to the Mississippi Louisiana Broadcaster Assns. said broadcasters should approve of his station's product, not merely offer it "because it sells."

He said many broadcasters have found the advantages in committing themselves and "taking a stand."

Mulcahy: L.A. to S.A.

Hollywood, April 21.

Jack Mulcahy, who heads Wolper Productions' audio-visual division, leaves for South America in two weeks to research future segs of "The Story Of" and "Biography" vid series.

Mulcahy, who will tour south of the border for six weeks, will also seek new Latin American markets in the education film field.

NET 'Shrimp Boat' For Prix Jeunesse

Athens, Ga., April 21.

"Shrimp Boat," a television program produced by the Georgia Center for Continuing Education and WGTV, Georgia's pioneer educational tv station, for National Education Television, has been selected for entry in the Prix Jeunesse of 1964 to be held June 5-12 in Munich, a project of the Free State of Bavaria, the City of Munich and the Bavarian Broadcasting Corp.

Hill Bermont, production and program director of the University of Georgia station, located on campus here, produced and filmed the program off the coasts of Georgia and Florida.

WGTV's David Fisher edited the film and narration and directed the tape transfer.

Program was distributed nationally by NET as part of its "What's New?" series.

Jim Small Departs Knoxville for Mich.

Knoxville, April 21.

WSJM-radio, St. Joseph, Michigan, in the Benton Harbor area, has appointed Jim Small program manager effective this week. Small, late of WNOX-radio in Knoxville, took over "sound" responsibilities of this southeastern Michigan market of 115,000 Monday (20).

Small originated the "Hot Line," a popular local conversation program carried at prime late evening time. WMOX, a Scripps-Howard outlet, increased ratings to number one in the area during Small's tenure. He acted variously as program director, newscaster, disk jockey and promotion man.

WMOP 175G Sale Gets FCC's Okay

Washington, April 21.

The $175,000 sale of WMOP-AM-FM, Ocala, Fla. from Andrew Letson to WMOP Inc. was approved by FCC's Broadcast Bureau.

James Kirk is owner of the buying company.

Seven Arts Sales

The sales pace at Seven Arts continues brisk.

Over the past week or two, it dealt its volume 8 package of 42 features to WNEM-TV, Saginaw, Mich.; KVKM-TV, Monahans Tex.; WTRF-TV, Wheeling; and KGW-TV, Portland, Ore.

Distrib also ticked off scattered sales for its "Out-of-the-Inkwell" five-minute cartoons, "Churchill, The Man," half-hour special; and "En France," series of 26 half-hour French language-instruction programs.

KFMG to Preem

Des Moines, April 21.

KFMG, new Des Moines FM radio station with 7 a.m.-to- midnight schedule of music and public service programs is slated to start May 1. Effective range is 50 miles. Power is set at 5,000 watts.

This new corporation is headed by Herbert Burton, Lincoln, Neb. as president and Wm. Plymat, Des Moines as secretary-treasurer and station manager will be John Graham, formerly of Lincoln and New York.

Jack Paar Station Buy Gets FCC OK

Washington, April 21.

FCC voted 6-2 to approve Jack Paar's $3,675,000 purchase of WMTW-TV, Poland Spring, Me. and WMTW-FM, Mt. Washington, N.H.

Stations were actually sold by Mt. Washington TV Inc. to a new corporation of the same name. Controlling holding company of the buying outfit is Dolphin Enterprises Inc., owned 50-50 by Paar and his wife.

Chairman E. William Henry and Commissioner Kenneth Cox opposed the buy.

Favoring the transaction were Commissioners Rosel Hyde, Robert Bartley E. Lee, Frederick Ford and Lee Loevinger.

AAT's Key Market Sales On Billy Budd Package

On the heels of the NAB convention, Allied Artists Television scored sales in key markets on its new package, "Calvacade of the 60's, Group III" (known as the Billy Budd package).

Deals were closed with WOR-TV, N.Y.; KHJ, Los Angeles; KOIN, Portland, Ore.; KONO, San Antonio; WTEV, New Bedford; WKZO, Kalamazoo; WLOS, Asheville, N.C.; WHEN, Syracuse; WTVJ, Miami; and WFGA, Jacksonville.

"Calvacade of the 60's, Group 1" (40 features) went to WBRC, Birmingham; WQAD, Moline; KSL, Salt Lake City; WTVJ, Miami; and WFGA, Jacksonville.

"Calvacade of the 60's, Group II," was sold to KONO, San Antonio; KUTV, Salt Lake City; WTVJ, Miami; WFGA, Jacksonville; WQAD, Moline; and WBRC, Birmingham. Other sales were racked up by on the seven Bob Hope features, science fiction pix, et al.

De Met's Billiards Sale

Chicago, April 21.

Peter De Met Productions racked up its first sale for a new Chicago-produced series, "Pocket Billiards Tournament of Champions," which features the vet cuestick artist Willie Mosconi as commentator. WOR-TV, New York, will initiate the series on April 21.

The series, shot in color, consists of 13 hourlong matches in an elimination tournament auspiced by the Billiard Congress of America. The producing firm, headed by Sid Goltz, is handling the sales itself.

NEW BREED OF SYNDICATOR

Soft Sell on Hard Liquor

Of the first two hard liquor advertisers pacted (for 13 weeks each) by WQXR, N.Y., neither is using the station to sell whisky. Not for the present, at any rate.

Shortly after the brouhaha touched off by the station's announcement that it was giving the liquor boys sesame, McKesson & Robbins, as one of the two "charter" sponsors, decided to pitch a liqueur instead of its Muirhead Scotch.

Now Schenley Industries, which began its schedule Monday (20) in the 11:30 p.m. to midnight period, is making no mention of its alcoholic line, but instead is using its three 50-second blurbs for pubservice.

Approximately 40 seconds of each spot plugs New York area culture, entertainment or "little known facts" about the town. Final 10 seconds states that the program ("Nightcap") "is brought to you nightly by Schenley Industries and its dealers." Schenley sponsors the half-hour musicale Monday through Saturday. Agency for the distiller is Norman, Craig & Kummel.

Tempest sparked by WQXR (owned by the N.Y. Times) was not because its action was precedental in broadcasting, but because the prestigious station thereby opened the Gotham market to hard liquor.

FCC Turns Down Barry & Enright On Renewal of Fla. Radio Station

Washington, April 21.

FCC refused to renew the case of Jack Barry and Daniel Enright for WGMA-AM, Hollywood, Fla., averring their tv quiz show doings were "patently and flagrantly contrary to the public interest."

Voting 5-1 to overturn a controversial recommendation by a Hearing Examiner last Spring to renew the license, FCC said the station had until June 20 to wind up its affairs. Commissioner Robert E. Lee was the dissenter.

Commission charged Enright practiced "prolonged deception" and Barry acquiesed in it in rigging the "21" and "Tic-Tac-Dough" quiz program.

FCC said action alone warranted a denial of renewal.

In an Initial Decision last May. Hearing Examiner Elizabeth Smith favored renewal for Melody Music Inc. Her recommendation which brought some sizzling press criticism averred the station aired outstanding programming and rendered commendable public service as the only station in Hollywood.

"Steel which has been through the crucible of a fiery furnace is stronger than before," she opined then.

The Commission's fellings were apparently more on the premise that such "steel" is better to clout one with.

Voting to nix renewal were Chairman E. William Henry and

(Continued on page 116)

Graff's Graphic Dissent vs TFE

One of the dissenters from the Television Film Exhibit, Jonny Graff, of Embassy Pictures, spoke freely of why he didn't join TFE-'64 in Chicago. "I must think of myself as a broadcaster," he said, "and anything that divides me from the broadcasters I don't want to join."

It was Graff's view that TFE has become a divisive organization, separating itself from the main body of broadcasters of the N.A.B. Graff said next year he hopes to be with the NAB. He would rather be a full-fledged member of NAB, but would settle for associate membership. As a source of programming, Graff said he must think as a broadcaster, if he is to be successful. It was this stress, he said, that led him away from TFE. Graff, in '64, may have been away from the thinking of the 16 syndication houses which formed TFE recently in Chicago. Next year, though, the syndication TFE firms are thinking of coming under the NAB umbrella, if terms and conditions can be worked out amicably with the NAB.

Graff, too, had some opinions on how to make the NAB convention itself less unwieldy. He proposed the use of closed-circuit television by the NAB to conduct various working meetings, with the NAB annual conclave itself limited to the most important functions.

Primary Embarrassment

Chicago, April 21.

WBBM-TV did a yeomanlike job of covering the Illinois Primaries last Tuesday (14) but suffered some embarrassment for it the following morning. For that extra-added showman's touch, the CBS station had featured former Illinois governor William Stratton throughout the evening as its political expert.

Next morning, Stratton was indicted by the federal government for income taxe evasion.

BBC Enterprises' 30-Program Deal For Cuba Market

London, April 21.

BBC-TV Enterprises, the program buying and selling limb of the BBC video network, has opened up the Cuban market in a 30-program deal bringing the number of markets to which BBC has sold shows to 110.

The Cuban sale, which comprised segments from BBC's exploration series "Adventure," the science skein "Eye On Research" and the cultural show "Monitor," plus four locally-oriented documentaries, was pulled off by BBC-TVE's global sales rep Sandy Callum, following the visit last month of a looksee delegation of Cuban tv execs.

Program sales stride of BBC-TVE, pioneered by Ronald Waldman, but now under aegis of Dennis Scuse, who toiled for years in the BBC's Yank office, is rapidly increasing. Figures just compiled by the sales hq reveal that during the year ended March 31, 1964, the web had sold abroad some 6,975 programs in 95 markets. This compares with the previous year's program sales of 4,357 in 83 markets.

In the four years (to March) that the buy-sell limb has been operating, it has sold 15,332 programs to offshore stations throughout the world.

Fines Slapped on Two Lauderdale Stations

Washington, April 21.

Two Fort Lauderdale, Fla., FM stations were notified by FCC of $500 and $250 liabilities for overmodulation.

Slapped with a $500 forfeiture liability notice was WFLM, licensed by Findlay Publishing Co. Receiving a $250 notice was WWIL, licensed by Florida Air-Power Inc.

Action marks the first time stations have been fined for only a modulation violation.

Outlets have 30 days to pay or seek a lower penalty for the alleged repeated violations.

'IMPRESARIOS OF ENTERTAINMENT'

By MURRAY HOROWITZ

Syndication is breeding a new type of tv exec, a new class of topper who thinks and functions in broad areas of entertainment, even outside the limits of the tv medium.

There's a Joe Kotler of Warner Bros., functioning on the network level, as well as in syndication; there's Jonny Graff, of Embassy Pictures, wheeling and dealing for muscle pictures; there's Bob Morin, of Allied Artists Television, whose counsel is sought by Allied Artists management on other than tv matters.

Kotler, too, is one of the active forces behind Warner Bros. move to get into full-scale UHF operation. Associated Television's U.S. arm, Independent Television Corp., under the Mike Nidorf-Abe Mandell management, is on the lookout in the U.S. and in Canada for all type of investments—even outside the entertainment area.

"We should think of ourselves as entrepreneurs involved in entertainment. The means network, syndication, tv, theatre, sports is part of the approach, according to WB television's Kotler. "I think of myself as an impresario of entertainment," Kotler said, echoing the sentiments of many in the industry.

How the Kotler approach paid off—and there are other instances—is illustrated by the WB cartoon story. WB dumped the company's cartoons in Kotler's lap and said go. Kotler, if he only wore his syndication hat, could have taken the cartoons and gone the station route. It could have meant a payoff of over a $1,000,000, but instead Kotler, wearing what he calls the proper hat of entertainment, deduced that WB should build a cycle of cartoon production which would take known theatrical cartoons to tv, some for first-run network exposure, then off-network for syndication, in addition to just-for-syndication cartoons.

Building such a cartoon edifice may eventually lead to a $10,000,000 tv yield with time and luck. Kotler secured a renewal on ABC-TV of "Bugs Bunny" for Saturdays and inked "Porky Pig" for a half-hour Sunday morning ride on the same web. With the network corner of the pyramid set, Kotler moved ahead on the station-to-station front. He utilized WB cartoons "Sylvester" and "Tweety" to build a half-hour syndication show. In addition, he has 100 WB theatrical cartoons, including the off-network "Bugs Bunny," for syndication.

To feed this multi-pronged tv cartoon approach, WB is understood to be planning new cartoon production for theatrical release for eventual payoff in the tv market.

Kotler snorts at the departmentalization of television, unrecognized by the public, and a crippler of creative business thinking. "We need cross pollenization," avers Kotler.

WABC-TV's 'New Faces' Quest as Sat. Showcase

Where does young talent get exposure nowadays? Come next season and one answer will be WABC-TV, the ABC o&o in New York, which is blueprinting a "new faces" display Saturday nights in the 10:30 to 11 p.m. period now occupied (and SRO) by "Car 54" reruns.

The show apparently is an overnight brainstorm. At any rate, it has neither title, format nor host as yet. Objective as stated by station execs is to showcase (a) nonentitics and (b) those with some public identity but whose exposure has been limited. Emphasized is that amateurs need not apply.

For the nonce, talent applicants will be auditioned by Seymour Horowitz, the station's program director.

McDermott's Major Diversification; 'Can't Exist on TV Income Alone'

By DAVE KAUFMAN

Hollywood, April 21.

An economic revolution which has taken place behind-the-scenes in television the past four years has made it impossible for any major vidpix production company to survive anymore on tv income alone. That is the assertion of Four Star prexy Tom McDermott, who said that as a result the major vidfilmeries have had to enter other areas for income—syndication, music pubberies, even record companies, as well as theatrical film production, to supplement their income.

Four Star has gone into all of these diversified areas, in line with the economic changeover in the telebiz, the exec stated.

McDermott said the change began about four years ago, and crystallized three years ago, that it actually began with the advent en masse of the hourlong series.

Contributory reasons are new pacts signed with the unions, with actors, writers and musicians, during that period. Five years ago the telefilm companies could use canned music; today they can't, the result is a budget hike on all series, he said. Additionally, performing talent prices have skyrocketed during that period, he added, pointing out $10,000 for a guestar in a teleshow is fairly commonplace these days, that it was virtually unheard of five years ago. We're back to the old motion picture days of paying the performers high salaries, instead of paying more for scripts," said McDermott, who has headed Four Star for five years.

When tv programming switched from the half-hour to the hour form, and even the 90-min. form, it cut down the available time slots for production companies to fill on the three networks. This increased and heightened competition for the fewer slots, upping production costs in the process as each company tried to outdo the other, he remarked.

"I would say most companies go over their budgets because of their anxiety to stay on the air with their series. A lot of shows—particularly flops—don't even go into syndication distribution because the residuals are so heavy, the company involved can't come out.

"Companies going over budget rely on syndication income to get

(Continued on page 128)

How to Lick the Nags

Industry horse players will save money — and so will WNBC-TV — this summer as the station has decided to forego its annual junket to Monmouth race track down the New Jersey shore.

For past nine years, WNBC-TV has hosted agency, client, press and food broker guests on the annual junket, which travelled to Jersey and back by boat with a day at the races in between. There were 300 guests on the trip when it started 10 years ago. Last year, two Circle Line ships carried 1,200 passengers on the outing.

This year's cancelled trip was slated for June 25.

Battered 'Image' Of Dallas Given A WBAP Perk-Up

The battered "image" of the city of Dallas and the state of Texas got a boost in New York last week.

WBAP-TV, the Dallas-Ft. Worth NBC-TV affiliate, hosted 500 ad agency and broadcast industry folk at a couple of luncheons in the new New York Hilton. Format was standard for this kind of promotion—groceries and a pitch for the market. But this time the visiting firemen (starters?) came through with a film presentation that, for visual excitement and tasty sound, was better than taking a break at the Grand Central shorts bijou.

WBAP is the station that six months ago trimmed up its visual and sound image with "Ikonogenics." Under guidance of an industrial designer, Crawford Dunn (of Dallas), the station cut away all the leftovers of feature pix and radio, the sight and bric-a-brac and sonorous sounds that clings to tv's billboards, logos, soundtracks and sets, shaping everything to fit the communications purposes of the newest mediums.

The presentation film reflected the new look and sound. Created by Keitz & Herndon (film) and Pams (music), the 16m color film was a knockout from its hip, excellently executed jazz scoring to its brilliant photographic sequences on the good life in Dallas and Ft. Worth.

In sharply edited sequences, the film exploited the southwestern location and its people most graphically, and included just about everything but the Dallas police force.

Without overdoing it, the film got into Ikongenics per se, with a typical scene showing the old set for the women's show and how, under the design shapeup, the fake fireplace and overstuffed furniture had been tossed out for a clean set featuring the talent and sparse, functional trimmings.

Station manager Roy Bacus was chief host. And to prove the exciting sights and sounds were not just film magic, he brought Linda Loftis, a former Miss Texas, along in the flesh.

$1,000,000 Expansion For Crosley's WLW-C

Columbus, April 21.

WLW-C, Crosley outlet here, began a million-dollar expansion project (16) that will more than double the station's physical plant, add a full line of color equipment and provide live color programs.

Scheduled for completion within a year, the station's building will be enlarged from 14,500 square feet to 35,000 square feet. The new structure will contain two large 40 by 60 studios, completely equipped for local live colorcasts. Station currently is celebrating its 15th anni.

WBC Sales On 'The Advocate'

Syndication sales arm of Westinghouse Broadcasting has sold its taped version of the Broadway drama, "The Advocate," dealing with the Sacco-Venzetti cause celebre, to four stations, with deals for 10 other markets pending.

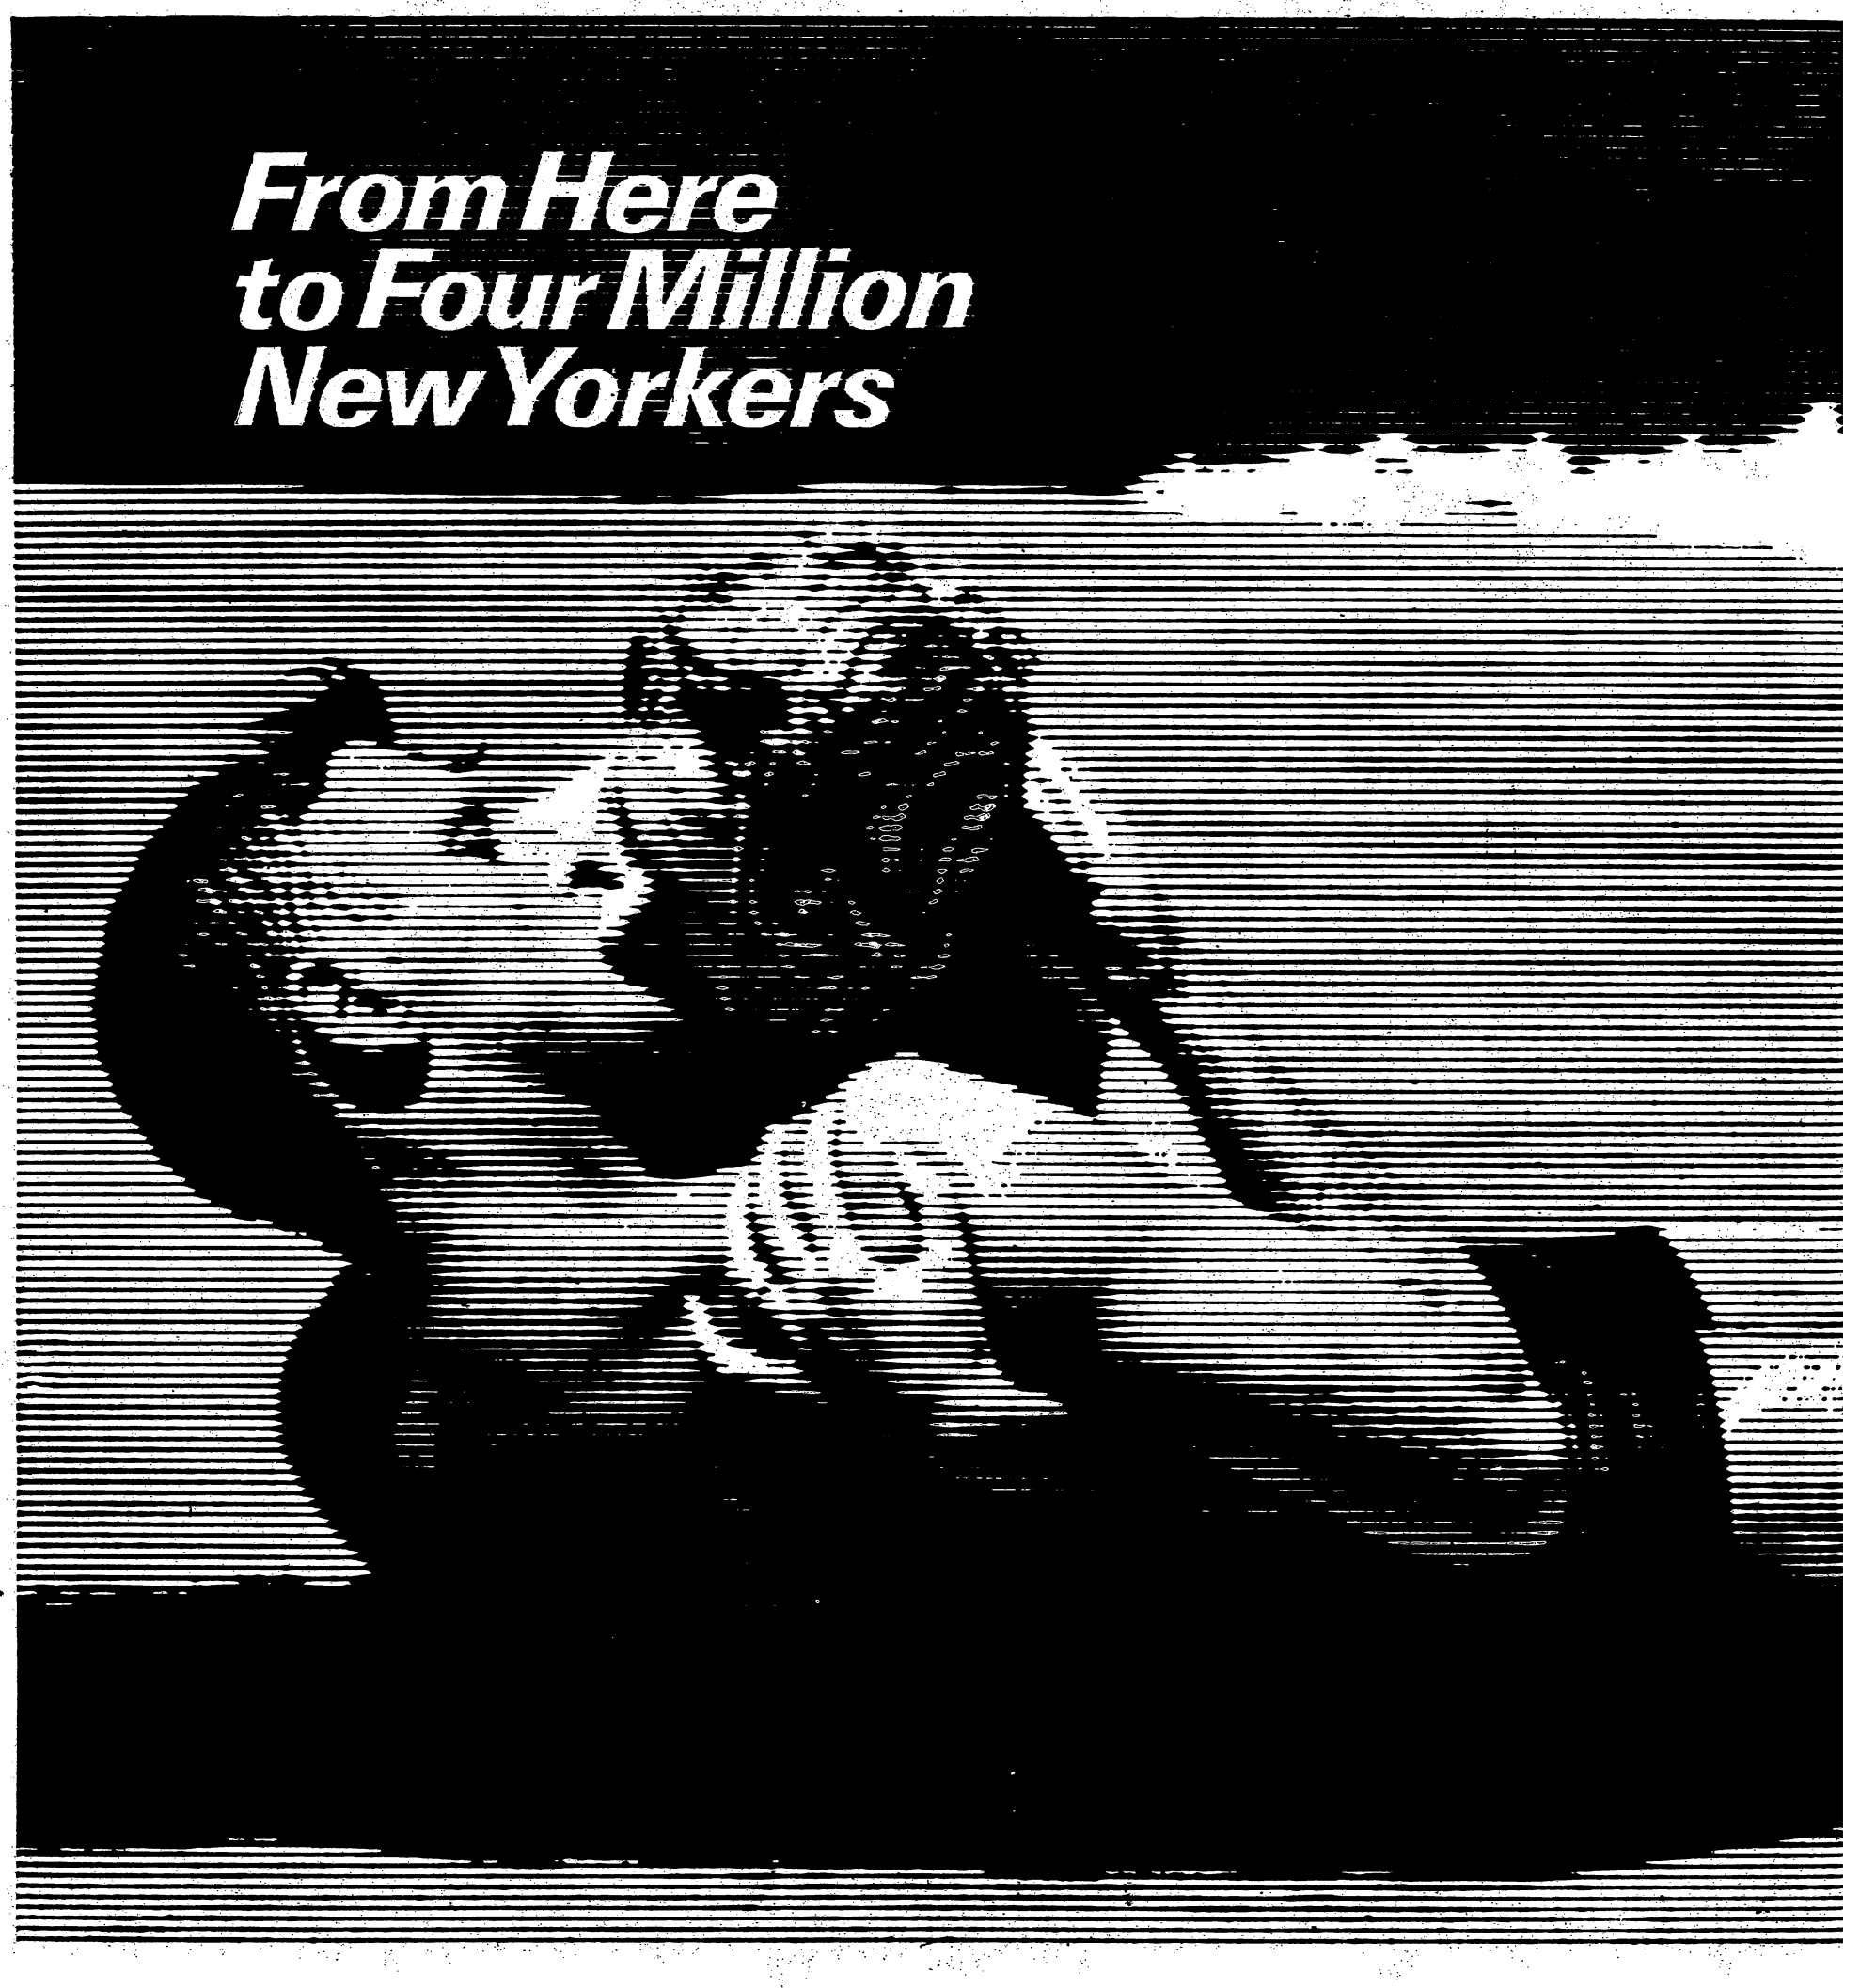
The two and a half hour production was telecast by the five Group W stations last Oct. 14, same night the play opened on Broadway (for a short run) with James Daly starred.

First four sales, all concluded at the recent NAB meet, were to KCOP, Los Angeles; WFAA-TV, Dallas; KBTV, Denver; and WTVN-TV, Columbus.

Ira Gottlieb Set To Helm N.Y. for Wolper

Hollywood, April 21.

To further expand and diversify its operations, Wolper Productions has established exec offices in N.Y. and appointed Ira Gottlieb as head of the new east coast headquarters. Gottlieb had been prexy of Flamingo Telefilm Sales.



Gottlieb, associated with Flamingo for the past 10 years, also has been named a v.p. of Wolper Productions. He arrived in Hollywood for a series of confabs with Wolper.

The highest rating ever for a feature film on New York television! (In fact, among all programs this year, network or local, only the Beatles and Academy Awards scored higher.) Undeniably, movies on Channel 2 are bigger than ever.

Channel 2's April 11 showing of From Here to Eternity on Schaefer Award Theatre (11:20 pm to 1:30 am) scored a record-shattering 45.6 average rating, with an 85% share of audience. In other words, long after usual prime-time viewing hours, more than 4 million New York television viewers kept their eyes on Channel 2 to watch this Columbia blockbuster from Screen Gems.

Where do we go from here? Young Philadelphians, Man in the Gray Flannel Suit, Auntie Mame, Pajama Game are just a few coming attractions which guarantee that audiences throughout the New York area will continue to be where they have always been, tuned to CBS Owned ◉WCBS-TV

From Here to Four Million New Yorkers

Based on NSI television estimates, subject to qualifications which WCBS-TV will supply on request.

From The Production Centres

Continued from page 108

"Detective" rocketed to seventh place in the national ratings on its first outing . . . Ulster-TV set up a new production committee comprising Colin Lechy-Thompson, A. Finigan, F. Corbett, J. Scholz-Conway, P. F. Scott and F. A. Brady. Chairman is R. B. Henderson . . . Maurice Lindsay switching from Border-TV to Scottish-TV as producer-interviewer . . . Rediffusion planning first educative vidseries for "backward" children entitled "You And The World". . . Deputizing for comedian Bernard Braden on his late night one-man satirical show, "On The Braden Beat," was his wife, Barbara Kelly, who filled in while Braden rested from "tremendous fatigue". . . Rediffusion planning a hot news drama skein called "Page One Playhouse," which will feature teleyarns based on news stories . . . Anglia-TV in dickers with the U.S.S.R. for exchange deal re "Survival," British station's natural history program.

IN WASHINGTON . . .

John Hayes, president of Washington Post-Newsweek stations, elected to Board of Trustees of National Urban League . . . Maury Povich, who formerly helped Bob Wolff broadcast Washington Senators and Minnesota Twins baseball games, was upped to sports director at WWDC-AM-FM. Son of Washington Post sports editor Shirley Povich, he has been on station's news staff . . . CBS "Face the Nation" producer Ellen Wadley vacationing in Rio de Janeiro after producing seg with Gov. Carlos Lacerda, a leader in the overthrow of the Goulart government in Brazil . . . Hilmer Robert Baukhage, who broadcast first news from White House about Pearl Harbor, signs on as commentator and analyst with WMAL Radio News . . . Ella Harllee named winner of McCall's "Golden Mike" award for producing WRC-TV series "Focus on World Affairs". . . For ninth straight year WWDC radio received National Safety Council Public Interest Award . . . CBS News correspondent Dan Rather to address annual Alumni Assn. dinner at Univ. of Houston, Saturday (25).

IN BOSTON . . .

Lou Dumont, news editor WBZ-TV, arranging showbiz interviews for upcoming strawhat season . . . WBZ radio given special award by United Community Services "for outstanding service to the Greater Boston community" through broadcast editorials on social welfare issues. Group W area veep Bill Swartley accepted award at UCS annual meet Thursday (16) before 500 leaders in health social welfare field . . . WBZ-TV's "Odyssey" program set for Sunday (26) features chamber groups from Greater Boston Youth Symphony . . . Mike Todd Jr. guested on "David Alan Show" on WNAC-TV and "Bill Hahn Show" on WNAC radio . . . Don Trageser, CBS veep and general manager WEEI; Tom Young, sales manager; Joe Cullinane, promosh manager, back from special meetings with CBS radio spot sales reps at Pheasant Run Lodge, Chicago . . . WTEV studios taped R.I. college modern dance troup for a special dance preview on Channel 6 . . . WBZ radio personalities and WBZ's remote trailer made the "Shrewsbury Day" activities and dedication ceremonies on Route 9 in Shrewsbury and Carl deSuze, Bruce Bradley and Jefferson Kaye, station's featured personalities helping the women's club in selling "Shrewsburies."

IN SAN FRANCISCO . . .

"The Great Shake," documentary on city's famous quake and fire of '05, on for annual repeat April 18 . . . Dave Sacks, KGO-TV general manager, on three-week vacation tour in Europe . . . KTVU helping teach journalism by letting youngsters from Elcina High in Alameda accompany their news lensmen on assignment . . . Arnold Michaelis, a Peabody Award winner, signed by CBS as special correspondent for its Spectrum 74 . . . Channel 7 logo to be displayed in "Trademarks U.S.A.," an exhibit of the Society of Typographical Arts in Chicago . . . KRON expanding its Green Thumb gardening session, with Norvell Gillespie, to a twice-a-week schedule . . . Stanley J. Cole, formerly of Baltimore, appointed business manager and assistant to the station manager of KRON . . . E. F. Hutton, brokerage, celebrated refurbishing of its Oakland offices with a special broadcast of its daily Wall Street news show from the new layout . . . KTVU's "Magilla Gorilla," a younger set session, cited by Volunteers of America as good stuff for kids . . . Prof. Lewis Feuer of U. of Cal. featured in "For Thou Art With Me," a locally produced religious show, which describes the life of Jews in modern Russia . . . Al Heimso, news director at KTVU, representing western U.S. on Associated Press-Radio Television's Assn.'s Wirephoto-Photofax committee . . . Mel Torme back on Dick Stewart's KGO bash the week of April 28.

IN PHILADELPHIA . . .

Joey Bishop, current at Sciolla's, cited by the Television Radio Advertising Club of Phila. (21) . . . Genevieve playing her first nonsinging role in "The Play's the Thing," which opens at the Bucks County Playhouse (May 2) . . . Bill Bennett, WCAU-TV farm director celebrates eighth anni with station . . . Lawrence M. C. Smith, pres. of WFLN ("good music" station) received a special award from F. T. van Urk, honorary consul of the Netherlands. Occasion for award was the programming of a set of 13 sessions "Dutch Forklore Relived". . . WHAT promotion manager and folk music deejay Gene Shay exiting station in favor of public relations . . . WCAU-TV news director J. Robert Holland, appointed eastern regional chairman of the 1964 Associated Press Wire-Photofax study committee.

Walter M. Erickson veepee of Gray & Rogers named director of the agency's radio and tv department . . . WCAU-TV's stanza on air pollution, "Take a Deep Breath," wins the Walter F. Donaldson award of the Pennsylvania Medical Society . . . Bill Bailey, Philly radio and tv exec, on the staff of NBC in New York for 10 years, has opened his own ad and publicity agency here. Bailey is also renewing his association with Bishop Fulton J. Sheen's broadcasting activities. The bishop recently completed a tv series of 52 programs of tape, and Bailey has been named east Coast rep for their sale and distribution . . . Marciarose, producer- moderator of WRCV-TV's "Speak Up," wins the Villanova's St. Augustine Award, making her the first woman and non-Catholic to be so cited.

IN TORONTO . . .

CBC crews are shooting around Toronto and Montreal railway stations these days, getting footage for their upcoming serial "Train of Murder." The cast includes Charmion King, Don Francks, Beth Morris, Gillie Fenwick, Cosette Lee and Christopher Newton . . . Pierre Berton, moderator of a late night panel show, read his poetry at the Inn in the Parking Lot, a beatnik coffee house. He got good reviews from the newspapers and attracted SRO crowds . . . William F. Buckley Jr., editor of the conservative National Review, was Berton's guest Monday . . . As part of the Shakespeare year, Toronto actor Barry Morse, who plays Lt. Girard on "The Fugitive," Thursday talks from the Stratford Festival stage about Shakespeare and his relevance to today. His remarks will be carried on the CBC program "The Observer". . . Singer Joyce Sullivan reminisces about her career on the show "Take 30" next Monday. In addition to singing, she recalls her discovery by the late Dr. Leslie Bell and the seasons she costarred on tv with Robert Goulet.

Interviewer George Ronald travelled across Canada and went to Europe interviewing D-Day veterans for a program commemorating the 20th anniversary. Included in his interviews are a number of Germans who defended the Canadian sector for Juno Beach . . . Multi-billionaire Cyrus Eaton recently put his three horse troika team (a gift from Nikita Khrushchev) through their paces for CBC cameras which were doing a profile on him

IN CLEVELAND . . .

Westinghouse partied Dr. Frank Baxter as intro to Shakespeare kickoff . . . Dex Card ankled WERE disking . . . WEWS honored by Catholic diocese for winning Catholic Broadcasters Gold Bell . . . Bob Lissit, Chi-NBC, setting up network coverage for primary election in week-long visit . . . Sanford Sobul, WJW-TV news, honored on 61st birthday . . . Specs Howard rounded out 10 years as deejay at 1100 spot on the dial . . . Jim Stagg, KYW radio, doing "Music Man" at Player's Theatre cafe . . . WCLV doing hour-long 10 p.m. documentary on city's Negro families with Chuck Crouse narrating . . . Joseph Weber, ex-WAKR-TV, named associate director, KYW-TV . . . Sid Stadig, in charge of Westinghouse engineering, installed elaborate remote facilities for coverage of public affairs and NBC pickup of "Game of the Week". . . Bill Gordon's three-year 9 p.m. to midnight gab stint on "Apt. 13" over WERE ended (16) as night ball game coverage took over. He may be back in the fall.

IN DETROIT . . .

Michigan Associated Press Broadcasters' Assn. annual awards went to WWJ-TV, four first place awards; WJBK, two first places; WXYZ, two first place awards, and WDTM-FM, won an award for outstanding news commentary . . . Former Michigan Gov. John B. Swainson joins the WJBK-TV news team that will cover the Democratic National Convention in Atlantic City . . . WJR has assigned news director Frank Tomlinson to the Democratic convention, with William Harris, news editor, handling the Republican show in San Francisco . . . WWJ and WWJ-TV won National Safety Council public interest awards . . . WJBK-TV show world reporter, Shirley Eder, back from the Academy Award presentations with a bag full of tapes of interviews with more than a score of stars . . . WJBK-TV introducing a new movie series, "Masterpiece Movie" in the 7:30 p.m. Friday spot . . . UAW prexy Walter Reuther will discuss union goals in this summer's auto contract talks on WWJ-TV's "Town Meeting". . . Robin Seymour, CKLW-TV's "Teen Town's" host, will feature a 10-year-old, blind piano prodigy—redhaired Russell Allgaier.

IN CINCINNATI . . .

WCPO-TV the first Cincy station to dine and award tri-state all-star high school football and basketball players selected by their coaches . . . Crosley's Ruth Lyons honored as "outstanding woman of radio and tv for '63" by McCall's Magazine for the children's Christmas fund benefits raised on her WLW-T and radio weekday shows. At same time WLW-Radio received the tenth consecutive National Safety Council Award and WLW-T singer Marian Spelman was invited to initiate the New York World's Fair opening day festivities by leading in rendition of "The Star Spangled Banner" . . . Jack Remington, vet announcer, upped to general manager of WKRC-Radio, succeeding Nick Bolton, upped to g.m. of WDAF-Radio, Kansas City, recently acquired by Taft Broadcasting. Ted McKay advanced from chief announcer to WKRC program director . . . New announcers at WCKY are Richard King, via KGB, San Diego, and Lee Leonard, formerly of WANN, Annapolis and radio and tv stations in Norfolk, Va., and Lima, Ohio.

IN PITTSBURGH . . .

KDKA is negotiating with GAC to sponsor the Pitt visit of the Beatles at the Civic Arena in September . . . The kid show of Ricki Wertz on WTAE is now in its sixth year . . . Virginia Bartlett's first special on WIIC, entitled "Women and Politics" will have the 10 p.m. slot tonight (Wed.), preempting "Eleventh Hour" . . . Nick Perry is back again hosting "Greater Pittsburgh Championship Bowling" on WTAE for the fifth consecutive year . . . KDKA-TV has bought a series of 13 "Hercules" type films . . . Jean Connelly and Carl Ide of WTAE will take a camera crew to the World's Fair next month to gather material for special telecasts . . . The emotionally distrubed teenager will be studied on KDKA-TV's "With These Hands" with Pitt actors Richard Galuppi, Doris Hackney, Carol Willard and Enrico Bello participating. Dr. Morton I. Berkowitz, psychiatric consultant to Pittsburgh public schools, okayed the technical end of the show. Show is on film and will be shown at 1:30 p.m. on Saturday (25).

IN MINNEAPOLIS . . .

WTCN-TV newsman Art Michelson has new hourlong discussion program, "Michaelson at Large." Show which follows the David Susskind format is a late Sunday eve offering . . . You can't please 'em all—even when they're in the same family. St. Paul Dispatch columnists Bill Diehl and P. M. Clepper took opposite views of last week's Academy Awards show which Clepper described as "long and slow" and Diehl called "nearly perfect". . . CBS correspondent Richard C. Hottelet here last frame to address women's annual UN rally . . . CBS newscaster Eric Sevareid received North Dakota's Theodore Roosevelt Rough Rider award last stanza. Award is given to persons who have brought distinction to N.D. Sevareid was born in Velva, N.D. . . . WTCN weatherman Stuart A. Lindman represented National Department of Disabled American Veterans at ceremonies honoring Gen. Douglas MacArthur. Lindman who received Purple Heart while serving under MacArthur in the Philippines is DAV national junior vice commander . . . Joseph McDermott, director of special projects for KTCA-TV, Twin Cities educational tv station, named veepee for sales and development by Empire Photosound, Minneapolis film outfit.

IN BALTIMORE . . .

Gerry Wheeler, WJZ-TV's "Lorenzo the Tramp" will film a few shows at the World's Fair . . . Ann Mar, sales coordinator for WBAL-TV, helped Sales and Marketing Executives of Baltimore select winner in Annual Junior Achievement contest . . . Baltimore Chapter of Big Brothers has selected WJZ-TV as recipient of its Francis X. Shevlin Award for "outstanding help in forwarding the Big Brothers movement". . . John Armstrong has joined news staff of WCBM Radio, replacing Art Lane who has moved to night news shift. Armstrong was formerly with WCTC in New Brunswick, N.J. . . . WJZ-TV weatherman Jim Smith has signed a new five-year contract with the station . . . Bill Gardner, WJZ-TV sportscaster, will cover 11 Baltimore Bullets basketball games to be telecast by station during 1965 . . . Carlton G. Nopper has gone from chief engineer to director of En-

IN ST. LOUIS . . .

KMOX radio's J. Roy McCarthy won top honors in a "Celebrity Cake Baking" contest at the St. Louis Modern Living Show last week. Other tv-radio celebs who participated were Doug Eason of KATZ; Lois Witzig of KTVI-TV; Jack Donnell and Jerry Brown of KWK; Jim Butler and Gene Kelly of KMOX; Otto Schultz of WIBV and Ron Lipe of WEW . . . KSD-TV will cover the Squirt Open of the Ladies Professional Golfers Association to be played at the Glen Echo Country Club on May 9-10. Ed Macauley will do the commentary . . . Rev. Walter C. Loeber joined radio KFUO as supervisor of the station's religious programs department . . . Clif St. James' "Night Music" show on KSD copped one of the top awards presented by the National Federation of Music Clubs for the second year in a row . . . KTVI-TV has booked an hourlong Sunday eve show of highlights of play by the St. Louis U. soccer team . . . Gene Krupa a guest on Russ David's "Playhouse Party".

Baruch

Continued from page 112

He noted that with the new Channel 12, there are now seven stations in Tokyo; six with affiliates that make them key network stations. At the same time, he disclosed, there is a shortage of U.S. product. In the coming season there will be only a total of 48 hours of tv film on American webs—and not all of those shows are suitable for Japan, Baruch said.

"So there is more demand and a shrinking availability," he affirmed. "This drives the prices up."

The CBS official guessed that the basic price for an hourlong U.S. episode here might level off at around $7,500 within a few years. "I think producers who may get $8,000 or $9,000 now are out of their minds," Baruch said. "They may get it for a year, but they would be damaging the market for years to come. CBS is in for the long run and we will sell at a fair, competitive price."

Baruch observed that the upward swing in costs has led sponsorship patterns here to follow those in the U.S. He pointed out that it is becoming increasingly difficult for Japanese sponsors to carry entire shows. "They are now moving more toward buying only pieces of shows or complete shows on alternate weeks," Baruch said.

He discovered too that "everything here is based on ratings." Baruch added, "The way it is being done is a very serious mistake. The rating systems take samplings only in the two major cities of Tokyo and Osaka. That's certainly not typical. Those cities have seven and six stations. But as you get into smaller markets, where there are only three or four channels, the ratings naturally go up. So the national averages should be much higher."

Regarding American shows on vidtape, Baruch said, "We can sell very few of them abroad because of the payments we would have to make to talent. They are covered by different unions than filmed shows. And if the film unions start making the same kind of demands, they'll get a fine contract and no money," Baruch continued. "I say let's all get a small share of something rather than a big share of nothing."

Baruch mentioned that he heard about one U.S. series being boycotted by the Japanese stations because its agent tried to squeeze too big a price boost. He said, "We won't tolerate any such action. We don't have to sell at any price and we will never give in to pressure.

"It has to be a goodwill relationship—reasonable business negotiations without undue pressure on either side."

Baruch returns to his New York office after a week in Australia for an extension of what he described as a "courtesy visit" to reacquaint himself with the territories. It was his first visit here in three-and-a-half years.

Barry & Enright

Continued from page 113

Commissioners Rosel Hyde, Robert Bartley, Frederick Ford and Lee Loevinger. Commissioner Kenneth Cox did not participate.

The majority did not even consider the points mentioned in the station's favor by the Hearing Examiner noting they were not "entitled to substantial weight."

The evidence WGMA offered in this regard "affords little assurance that the same level of operation will be continued after the application is granted."

Commission said in view of Barry's and Enright's "propensity for deception," it was not "disposed to subject the public to the risk" that such misconduct might occur again.

In his dissent Commissioner Lee averred that convicted criminals are given the right to rejoin society and he could see no reason for treating Barry and Enright worse than criminals. He noted neither was convicted of perjury and that they had suffered enough for their misdeed of five years ago.

Cincinnati — Richard King and Lee Leonard have joined the staff of WCKY here. King, formerly with KGB, San Diego, takes over the early morning deejay seg, and Leonard, formerly with WANN, Annapolis and Norfolk and Lima, O., stations, takes over the nighttime disk hours.

Foreign TV Reviews

NO HIDING PLACE
(Who Takes the Blame?)
With Raymond Francis, Johnny Briggs, Michael McStay, Jon Rollason, Reg Pritchard, Christine Collins, Edward Evans, Julie Milton, Peter Gill, Philip Voss, others
Director: James Ormerod
Writer: Guy Morgan
60 Mins., Mon., 8 p.m.
Rediffusion, from London

The high rating—it rarely leaves the top 10—enjoyed by this cop-skein is the result of addiction rather than quality, and there is no reason to suppose that it will slump in favor this time around. The departure of Eric Lander, who shared the shenanigans with Raymond Francis, has led to regular employment for two thesps instead of one. Johnny Briggs and Michael McStay are recruited as sergeants, and, in the segment caught, had little to do but react to the orders of Superintendent Lockhart, played by Francis.

The tale was both awkwardly written, and clumsily directed. It concerned the death of a loose-living gal in a Welsh village, and Lockhart's methodical elimination of a list of suspects. Despite a certain zest from the regional accents, both the dialog and the plotting were cumbrous, and the story, instead of increasing in excitement, almost died of a palsy. The glib goings-on were directed by James Ormerod, with many crude transitions from scene to scene. Raymond Francis exercised his familiar authority with usual aplomb, and supporting performances were adequate.

Otta.

TAXI!
With Sid James, Ray Brooks, Toke Townley, Clare Kelly, Myrtle Reed, Janet Kelly, others Producer: Douglas Moodie
Writers: Harry Driver, Jack Rosenthal
45 Mins., Sat., 6:30 p.m.
BBC-TV, from London

BBC-TV's cozy cop skein, "Dixon of Dock Green," takes its seasonal siesta, and "Taxi!" replaces it with a similar concoction, riddled with humanity. The series of 13 should have a good rating for this early-evening spot, and the opener was an improvement on the general standard it maintained last year. Scripters, Driver and Rosenthal have provided many "Coronation Street" segments, and know their way around the easy yocks and the facile hearttugs of this kind of caper, and the crusty personality of Sid James is likable and endearing.

The deft tale involved Sid and his pal Terry (Ray Brooks)—the regular cab-driving team—with a couple who decide to wed in church after 25 years of marriage; the first ceremony had been in a register-office. Main ingredient was the difficulty of getting the husband to the church on time, for Sid and Terry took him out on a traditional bachelor-party pubcrawl and lost him. He'd got loaded, and, instead of hopping into Terry's taxi, went to Birmingham, 100 miles away, in the back seat of an automobile. All was saved by his hitching a lift back on a truck, and the genial proceedings came to a smiling close.

The script was, as expected, capable, with nice character touches, and Douglas Moodie's sure production kept it boiling pleasantly. The bickering partnership of Sid James and Ray Brooks came over agreeably, though it would have benefited from more wit in the verbal exchanges. Clare Kelly scored as the wife, with a grownup daughter, anxious for a parson's blessing, and Toke Townley was fine as the amenable spouse. Otta.

THE DEVIL IN THE BACKLANDS
Producer, Director: Adrian Cowell
25 Mins., Fri., 10 p.m.
BBC-TV, from London

Adrian Cowell, who copped a deserved Screenwriters' Guild award for his "Destruction of the Indian" documentaries, came up with an equally memorable initialler of three programs devoted to the poverty-stricken backlands of Brazil. Its theme was the primitive fanaticism of the dour and underfed people, cowboys who compensate for their miserable existence with a curious, harsh faith. It was a compound of Old Testament wrath and pagan ritual, and had as its centre a dead saint, disowned by the Catholic Church. They expected his reincarnation in 1970, and now celebrate him in fiery dances and dogged prayers.

The series, which has unexpected topicality from the political upheavals in Brazil, shapes up as a brilliant feat of interpretation, with superb photography by Jesco van Puttkammer and Cowell's own lucid narration taking in quotations from the vengeful pronouncements of the fanatics and their idols. Highspots were scenes of the voodoo rites, and of crowds of wanderers cramming the churches in search of consolation.

But perhaps most memorable were the transported faces of the pilgrims, who clung to superstitious beliefs rather than taking political action to remedy their hardships, much to the chagrin of the communists. The skein, slotted in to BBC-TV's enterprising "Adventure" spot, should be in the running for any prizes going.

Otta.

LOVE STORY
(The Human Element)
With Frances Cuka, Jeremy Kemp, Marjorie Rhodes, George A. Cooper, others Producer: Stella Richman
Director: Josephine Douglas Writer: Stan Barstow
55 Mins., Tues., 9:50 p.m.
Associated TeleVision, from London

The title of the package might suggest the mass-circulation mush purveyed for distaffers, but producer Stella Richman sets her sights much higher than this. "Love Story," in fact, is notable for the general shrewdness of its scripting, and its return to the schedules will be welcomed by more than shopgirls. After an opener written by novelist Edna O'Brien, this second segment was authored by Stan Barstow, whose "Kind of Loving" was adapted into the successful loeal movie. It had the ring of truth, with accurate observation and a good ear for idiomatic dialog.

The substance was little more than a timid courtship between the solitary Harry (Jeremy Kemp) and his landlady's ungainly daughter, Thelma (Frances Cuka). One clinch on a picnic, and Harry found himself engaged and buying a house to accommodate them. The romance was sundered by a tiff, and the two came together again when Harry couldn't abide living alone in his new house.

On this slight framework, Barstow's script, Josephine Douglas's fluent direction, and the performances of Jeremy Kemp and Frances Cuka combined to make a touching and worthwhile little tale. Kemp, who registered as a "Z-Cars" regular, is showing increasing range and sensitivity, and Miss Cuka judged exactly the mixture of propriety and amorousness in Thelma. Otta.

CHOICE
With Derek Hart, James Douglas Henry
Producer: Paul Bonner
Director: Edward Mirzoeff
25 Mins., Fri., 6:35 p.m.
BBC-TV, from London

This unique program could only emanate from BBC-TV, for it took an objective look at consumer goods, basing its judgments on a monthly report available to members of the influential Consumers' Association. The skein returned with a lively and instructive initialler that examined both the relative merits of washing machines and the direct-selling tactics of one John Bloom, who sells his own appliances door-to-door.

A filmed report by concealed camera showed one of Bloom's salesmen working over a housewife. She'd answered an advertisement that announced a $112 machine, but the guy arrived with both this and a more expensive $168 job. The excerpt didn't prove that switch-selling was encouraged by Bloom's organization, but, when the woman insisted on the cheaper model, the salesman showed few signs of elation. Figures showed that, although Bloom's advertising prominently features the low-priced machine and tucks the other one away in small print, he sells four at $168 to one at $112. Bloom himself fast-talked his way out of all accusations, explaining also that his high interest rates on hire-purchase, many times greater than those of the state electricity boards, was due to his need for private finance-house backing. Emcee Derek Hart did not, perhaps, press hard enough, but the item was a valuable means of enlightenment, and left viewers with a caution before plunging into the market.

The report on all brands of washing-machine, ably given by James Douglas Henry, recommended four as "best buys," but also named and dismissed a dozen as potentially dangerous. "Choice" was also more clearly presented than on earlier outings, lucid use being made by director Edward Mirzoeff of graphics. It's a fine and valuable public service; ignored by most of those newsheets and commercial tv outfits that rely on consumer advertising.

Otta.

SERGEANT CORK
(The Case of the Two Poisons)
With John Barrie, William Gaunt, Barry Justice, John Glyn-Jones, Graham Crowden, Annette Andre, others Producer: Jack Williams
Director: Dennis Vance
Writer: Michael Pertwee
60 Mins., Sat., 10:10 p.m.
Associated TeleVision, from London

"Sergeant Cork" has previously proved itself superior to the common run of cop skeins, and it returned to the schedules with its form unimpaired. It has a piquant flavor from its Victorian atmosphere of gaslight and whiskers, and other plusses include the convincing partnership of John Barrie and William Gaunt as the stolid sergeant and his more impetuous assistant and the general standard of scripting.

Indeed, this opener, from Michael Pertwee, was a highly professional job, with lively characterization and purposeful dialog. The crime being probed was the suspected poisoning of a gardener, whose wife Mary was having an illicit affair with the son of the house. She came under suspicion, and her lover brutally deserted her, causing her suicide. But the truth emerged when Cork uncovered the liaison. The gardener had swigged the poison when drunk, and it was the innocent Mary who had been,

(Continued on page 126)

Television Reviews

LUCILLE BALL COMEDY HOUR
With Miss Ball, Bob Hope, Jack Weston, Gale Gordon, Max Showalter, John Dehner, others Producer: Ed Feldman
Director: Jack Donohue
Writers: Richard Powell (from original play by Sherwood Schwartz with additional material by Arthur Julian)
60 Mins.; Sun. (19), 8 p.m.
CHEMSTRAND; LEVER BROS.
CBS-TV (film)
(Doyle Dane Bernbach; J. Walter Thompson)

For her Ed Sullivan preempting special, Lucille Ball enlisted Bob Hope to join in a laugh-loaded comedy which, for all its frothiness, was really making a sharp comment about the current predicament of the television industry. The stanza was a slickly written and sharply played romp in which Miss Ball, as the precariously perched head of a major studio, persuades Hope to join her in a Mr. and Mrs. tv series which requires them to fake their marital status with all the attendant complications about maintaining their image as America's sweethearts.

Obviously, this fictional plot intersected reality at several points and provided some extra charge for the trade. Most importantly this show told the truth, albeit in gag form, about the life-and- death significance of the rating figures and to what lengths the ad agencies will go to keep their clients happy. The gimmick on this show of using Miss Ball as a promotion for her series was, of course, lifted from the star's own experiences on her "Lucy" show. Other parallels with her true biography were also detectable.

The mass impact of the show, however, stemmed from the comedy style which is actually the beau ideal for the whole industry. A snapper was tucked away virtually in every line and each laugh was projected by Miss Ball and Hope with a skill born out of numberless such performances. It was the kind of assignment which both stars could perform brilliantly while blindfolded.

They received excellent support from Jack Weston, as the frantic manager who tries to keep the whole charade together, Gale Gordon, as one of the studio execs; and Max Showalter, as Miss Ball's boy friend. Herm.

CUBA AND CASTRO TODAY
With Lisa Howard, others
Producer - Director - Writer: Harry Rasky
60 Mins.; Sun. (19), 5 p.m.
ABC-TV (film)

ABC News' Lisa Howard has shown the enterprise of doing first-hand accounts of a news story. On the tv screen, she looks more like a society matron than an aggressive news hen, which she is. Whatever the faults of "Cuba and Castro Today"—and there are many—the hourlong documentary had the merits of fresh film footage, of Miss Howard and her camera crew spending weeks in Cuba, gathering material, interviewing the high and low of Cuban society.

There were many sequences of the Maximum Leader, glad-handing the peasants, calling for a normalization with relations with the U. S. For Miss Howard's cameras, he showed his best face—at least the one he felt would please U. S. audiences. There were other interviews—with a Cuban Communist leader who expressed ignorance about Castro troubles with the Russian Embassy; with onetime prosperous natives who are now fearful, with teenage ardent supporters of Castro, with prostitutes participating in a government rehabilitation program

There was humor and bite in some of the sequences. Castro, wielding his big cigar, contended that those who are fearful may be paranoic. One Communist leader mugged it dumb when he was asked to comment on Castro ousting a Russian Embassy official from Havana in 1962. Castro, enthusiastic, asked the cameramen to film a bull in an experimental farm. "You have such bulls in Texas, in King's Ranch," advised Mr. Director.

For all its fresh footage, though, it didn't have much of an impact. Too much of the commentary was on the superficial side. For the most part, Miss Howard never succeeded in piercing the public relations image presented by Castro. The hour was loosely edited. On occasion, the on-location sound track was difficult to understand.

Miss Howard, to her credit, however, returned tv news coverage of Cuba to where it belonged; her base was Cuba itself, not Miami.

The hour was replete with nonpaying commercials, network show plugs, et. al. One was for the International Rescue Committee, seeking aid for the victims of "Castro tyranny." Horo.

THE POLO GROUNDS: REQUIEM FOR AN ARENA
With Horace McMahon, others Producer: Howard Cosell
Director: Lou Volpicelli
Writers: Howard Tuckner, Jack Jack O'Grady
60 Mins., Wed. 10 p.m.
PARTICIPATING
WABC-TV, N.Y.

If New York suffered for legends it would doubtless augment the supply with inventions, for nowhere in the land is legend pursued with more relish. Happily, however, the town is well-stocked with nostalgia. The rich mine includes its ballparks, one of which, the Polo Grounds (which catered at one time or another to everything but polo), is going the way of Ebbets Field as urban renewal spreads.

Shortly before the wrecker's ball was put to it, the ABC flagship put a crew to work, which turned out an affectionate, entertaining, classy cavalcade of great moments in the PG's history. In weaving its thrall, the hour had the underpinning virtue of doing so without resort to the mawkish, that omnipresent pitfall for the sporting gentry.

Amid the memorable harkback footage, the special included some fascinating remembrances by, among others, Frankie Frisch, Jack Dempsey, Carl Hubbell, Bobby Thomson, and Ralph Branca. Most revealing was the ex-Dodger pitcher, expressing anew his "why me? why me?" remorse at serving up that 1951 pennant-deciding

(Continued on page 126)

Tele Follow-Up Comment

Bob Hope Show

The annual TV Guide Awards hitched a ride on Bob Hope's Chrysler special last Friday (17) and didn't get very good mileage from it. The arrangement might not have been quite so bad if the Hope stanza had been more satisfying than it was; but for 45 minutes the comedy had leaned on the desperate side, and where a strong payoff was needed to redeem it all, in the final quarter hour, up came the magazine awards. It was a tough spot to fill, and digest-sized ceremonies simply weren't equal to it.

The ritual of scanning the nominees, tearing open the envelopes and handing out the trophies was performed in a hurried and businesslike fashion, making it not only a poor sister imitation of the Oscar-Emmy rites but also costing it something in glamor and suspense. Nominees sat in the humble bleacher environs of a television studio and seemed overdressed for the occasion and even a little embarrassed by it. With eight categories to be accommodated, the gratitude speeches were quick and conventional and no one had time to emote or even trip on the wires.

For the record, "Dr. Kildare," "Winter Olympics," "Fugitive," "Huntley-Brinkley Report," and "Tiger Tiger" were the shows that won. Favorite performer awards went to Inger Stevens and David Janssen, and the three networks each got a special citation for distinguished service during the national tragedy last November.

Hope scored with a few quips both after the awards and in his opening monolog, but in between the laughs were in short supply. Martha Raye, Tony Randall and Jack Jones were Hope's collaborators in some broad and often tasteless routines. Les.

CBS Reports

In forthright, vigorous style, "CBS Reports," which seems to have a monopoly on doing documentaries on the cigaret-health controversy, returned again to examine the issues raised by "coffin nails."

Wednesday's (15) telementary was titled "Cigarets: A Collison of Interests," an apt title describing the ciggie situation three months after the U.S. Surgeon General's Report on Smoking and Health. Why the documentarians on the other networks leave the field open on the ciggie issue to the exclusivity of "CBS Reports," is to the credit of that crack CBS pubaffairs unit, now helmed by Arthur D. Morse.

All the networks covered the Surgeon General's report in depth as news specials, but it remained for "CBS Reports" to do the pioneering and the follow-up. Issues covered and raised by this documentary ranged from the morality of tv commercials, to the position of the Federal Trade Commission, to the economic stakes of the tobacco industry, et. al. In the final analysis, narrator Harry Reasoner said the ciggie issue posed the question of whether a solution could ever be secured within the framework of a free enterprise system.

Narrator Reasoner and writer Morse minced no words. Neither did the people, prominent and small, representing many points of view. Morse, who also produced, filmed sequences in Washington, Newton, Mass., N.Y., London, Miami, and Winston-Salem, N.C.

People interviewed represented a "who's who" in the controversy. They included: Dr. Luther Terry, U.S. Surgeon General; Paul Rand Dixon, FTC chairman; LeRoy Collins, National Assn. of Broadcasters prexy; George V. Allen, Tobacco Institute prexy; David Ogilvy, of Ogilvy, Benson & Mather; Fairfax Cone, of Foote, Cone & Belding, R. Peter Straus,

(Continued on page 128)

THAT BRINKLEY TOUCH

ON POVERTY:

"With President Johnson's new war on poverty, a committee under direction of Sargent Shriver has been set up to work on the problem. It has now got its telephones set up in a building downtown. Today, when their phones were dialed, a girl answered and said: 'Poverty.'"

ON SPENDING:

"All Americans who work for a living have been given a new patriotic duty, and it is to spend money.

"The first pay checks showing the new, lower tax rates were handed out today. And President Johnson has put it forward that the least a responsible citizen can do is take the extra money and get out there and spend it.

"Thrift used to be called a basic American virtue. Our folklore is full of it, from Horatio Alger to Benjamin Franklin to aging millionaires fond of telling and re-telling how they got started by working hard and saving their money. Now, the new American virtue is to spend the money. The idea, of course, is to spend money and stimulate business and create jobs, which is a good idea, no doubt.

"And the implication now is that anyone who gets the extra money and doesn't spend it is somehow slightly subversive. Well, that is a major change in the Basic American Ethic; it has been sprung on us rather abruptly; and it is good that neither Benjamin Franklin nor Horatio Alger is alive to see it."

ON SEGREGATION:

"The House has spent nine days talking about civil rights, and voting for or against the bill's various sections, clauses and amendments. Some of the debate has sounded like the conversation around a cast iron stove in a country store, but most of it has been responsible and to-the-point.

"When they were talking about the public accommodations section—the one requiring all stores and restaurants to serve anyone who walks in—an amendment was offered. It would have made the law apply only to business places on interstate highways, and not to those serving neighborhood trade, or those in small towns.

"That caused Representative Udall of Arizona to compose, and recite on the House floor, a little poem, for the edification of the Congress. It went like this:

In Mississippi or Wisconsin
You can dine with Howard Johnson;
But if you're on a country mission
You can count on malnutrition."

ON ZONING:

"The Russian Embassy in Washington is in an old mansion on Sixteenth Street, that was built as a residence for George Pullman, of the sleeping car fortune. It was bought from him by the Czarist Government, later turned over to the Communist Government, and is still in use. The decor inside is Early Robber Baron Baroque—red velvet, gilded stairways, fat angels painted on the ceilings, and the air is like the air in an old Pullman car. It's over-crowded, and the Russians want more room, so they went out roaming around Chevy Chase, with a real estate agent, looking for land. Chevy Chase is an upper-middle-class suburb right on the city line. It's the oldest suburb in the United States, settled, prosperous, old houses and big trees, and tends to like things the way they are. There, the Russians found an estate called Bonnie Brae, owned by the heir to a department store fortune, and up for sale. They bought it, on condition the zoning board would approve a new embassy building there, modern in style. The Chevy Chase Citizens Association erupted in outrage. But the zoning board, under pressure from the State Department and the White House, voted to allow the new Embassy, built in place of the house now standing.

"The Federal Government favored it because it wants a new Embassy in Moscow, and thought this might help get it. But the Citizens Association went to court.

"Now, the court has overruled the zoning board. It found two board members were Government employes, hardly able to resist White House and State Department pressure, so it declared their zoning order null and void.

"So, the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, population 223 million, area eight and a half million square miles, has been defeated by the Chevy Chase Citizens Association."

ON SEN. SMITH:

"The best known products from Skowhegan, Maine, are textiles, paper, and Senator Margaret Chase Smith. She used to be a telephone operator there, back in the days when they said, 'Number please.'

"Her husband went into politics, ran for office 48 times, got elected 48 times. When he died, Mrs. Smith went into politics and she's never lost an election either. She went first to the House, and then to the Senate.

"Now, for some time, she's been going on about running for President, but keeping her decision to herself. Today, at the Women's—not the men's—the Women's National Press Club, she announced her decision: she will run.

"She did not offer a long, dull and wordy list of programs and policies as candidates usually do, saying only that she will run on her record. Her record includes that of being the first

This is the sort of news broadcasting that has made David Brinkley one of the two most celebrated correspondents in the history of electronic journalism. See

Senator to speak out against McCarthy, support of civil rights bills, support of the Taft-Hartley act, and a vote against the nuclear testing treaty. She calls herself, as most politicians do, a moderate middle-of-the-roader.

"If everyone is in the middle of the road who says he is, it must be getting pretty crowded."

ON UNIFICATION:

"Washington frequently is horrified, or entertained, or both, with stories about the Armed Forces spending X million dollars because the Army, Navy, Air Force and the Marines can't get together and agree on one kind of black necktie, or white sock, or shirt button, or something like that. And it is true they all buy their own clothes, slightly different in many cases, and the cost is great.

"Well, in December, 1961, Secretary McNamara said there certainly was one thing they could all agree on and save a lot of money, and that was belt buckles. Now, more than three years later, we are indebted to the Army-Navy-Air Force Journal and Register for the information that it didn't work. Or hasn't worked yet, and that they're still buying four different belt buckles.

"Nobody knows exactly what that costs, but it certainly costs a lot, because in the Pentagon, everything does. The Journal and Register concludes it is not yet certain which will happen first—landing a man on the moon, or settling on a military belt buckle."

ON WEATHER:

"Every time it snows here, Washington is, perhaps undeservedly, held up to national scorn and ridicule for excited and irrational behavior, sometimes bordering on a city-wide panic.

"The trouble is that people persist in believing this is the south, where it doesn't snow. But it snows every winter, and every time it does, it is seen as a great surprise and something of a dirty trick.

"And there are scenes of human suffering—stuck cars, dead batteries, pile-ups on slippery hills, hoarse shouts and curses—the Government is let out early, so they can get snarled in traffic at 3 p.m. instead of 5 p.m.

"Well, it snowed yesterday, last night and today, and it's still falling, the second big snow of this winter. And there were some small, faint signs the town was getting used to it.

"Traffic was snarled, but it did move, and government employes who thought they might get out early, didn't. The White House decided government offices could stay open until the usual time, and all that happened was that the traffic jam came late instead of early."

ON CIVIL RIGHTS:

"The House is voting tonight on the civil rights bill, the most comprehensive bill since the days after the Civil War. It's been debating and voting on sections of it for nine days, and it is clear now it will pass the House. No one knows what will happen to it in the Senate, nor when.

"Here, briefly, is what it does:

- Sets up new court procedures to help Negroes to register and vote.
- Requires nearly all public places to serve anyone, regardless of color.
- Allows the Government to go into court and sue for integrated schools, parks and other public places.
- Allows the President to hold back Federal money from any program that discriminates by race.
- And makes it illegal for employers or labor unions to deny jobs or membership because of race.

"If all that gets through the Senate intact, Congress may never see another civil rights bill, because there will be nothing left to pass a bill about. Otherwise in Congress, President Johnson sent a message asking passage of a bill to pay for hospital and nursing home care for older people, financed through Social Security, sometimes called Medicare."

ON TOURISTS:

"The U. S. Travel Service has the job of inducing tourists from other countries to visit the United States, partly because they bring money, and partly because it is generally thought to be a nice thing to do. Congress seems not to care much, because it appropriated very little for money for the Service last year, and this year even less.

"Anyway, the Travel Service is still going, and it does seem to have drummed up some business for the transportation companies, hotels, restaurants and the post card racks. Now it says today the thing foreign visitors like most is to be invited into American houses.

"And once they're inside, it says, they most want to see the kitchen machines and gadgets, so it urges Americans entertaining foreigners to be sure to take them into the kitchen.

"It also says to be careful with jokes, because they may not think they're funny. To get them singing around the piano if you can, or, if you can't, take them out to see a supermarket, or a drive-in hamburger stand."

ON MARRIAGE:

"Finally, a report from the Negev desert, in Israel.

"A Bedouin tribesman traded off his daughter in marriage in exchange for a fourth wife for himself. His sons were furious, because they intended to trade her for wives for themselves.

"Now if they want wives, they will have to pay bride money. That used to be ten dollars. But now it's one hundred. We don't know why, unless it's supply and demand.

"Anyway, they're so furious they've moved out of their father's tent. And our correspondent reports difficulties like this are causing many young Arabs to turn Communist."

Look to NBC for the best combination of news, information and entertainment.

him and Chet Huntley every Monday through Friday on The Huntley-Brinkley Report, year after year the nation's most watched and honored news program.

VARIETY - ARB SYNDICATION CHART

VARIETY's weekly tabulation based on ratings furnished by American Research Bureau, highlights the top 10 network shows on a local level and offers a rating study of the top 10 syndicated shows in the same particular markets. This week four different markets are covered.

Both the network and syndication study features the total area homes reached and the metro area ratings on each show. The total area homes reached reflects the audiences on the basis of the total market area examined. The metro area ratings are based on the metropolitan markets within the total area examined. Top 10 shows, both network and syndicated, are listed on the basis of their showing in the total area homes barometer.

Various branches of the industry, ranging from media buyers to local stations to syndicators will find the charts valuable.

Over the course of a year, ARB will tabulate a minimum of 247 markets. The results of that tabulation will be found weekly in VARIETY Coupled with the rating performance of the top 10 network shows, on the local level, the VARIETY-ARB charts are designed to reflect the rating tastes of virtually every market in the U.S.

NEW YORK

STATIONS: WCBS, WNBC, WNEW, WABC, WOR, WPIX. SURVEY PERIOD: FEBRUARY 1 - 28, 1964.

RK.	Top Network Shows	Sta.	Total Area Homes Reached	Metro Area Rtg.
1.	Ed Sullivan	WCBS	2,231,500	43
2.	Bonanza	WNBC	1,640,100	30
3.	Candid Camera	WCBS	1,637,600	31
4.	Beverly Hillbillies	WCBS	1,509,400	29
5.	Lucy Show	WCBS	1,442,400	27
6.	Dick Van Dyke	WCBS	1,436,100	28
7.	What's My Line	WCBS	1,414,900	27
8.	Danny Kaye	WCBS	1,391,200	28
9.	Andy Griffith	WCBS	1,390,800	26
10.	Danny Thomas	WCBS	1,389,500	26

RK.	Top Syndicated Shows Day & Time	Sta.	Dist.	Tot. Area Homes Reached	Met. Met. Rtg.
1.	Top Cat (Sat. 7:00)	WNEW	Screen Gems	959,100	19
2.	Astro Boy (Sat. 6:30)	WNEW	NBC Films	921,000	18
3.	Magilla Gorilla (Thurs. 7:00)	WNEW	Screen Gems	882,600	18
4.	Mickey Mouse Club (Mon.-Fri. 6:30)	WNEW	Buena Vista	674,200	13
5.	Phil Silvers Show (Tues. 7:00)	WABC	CBS Films	598,900	12
6.	Bat Masterson (Sat. 4:30)	WNEW	UA-TV	595,600	12
7.	Rifleman (Wed. 7:00)	WABC	Four Star	588,500	12
8.	Jungle Jim (Sat. 5:00)	WNEW	Screen Gems	584,100	12
9.	Superman (Mon.-Fri. 5:30) (Sun. 5:00)	WPIX	Flamingo	532,400	11
10.	Sea Hunt; LBJ (Sat. 7:00)	WCBS	UA-TV	523,300	11

Top Competition	Sta.	Total Homes
LBJ; Sea Hunt	WCBS	523,300
News	WCBS	654,800
Evening Report	WCBS	718,600
CBS News	WCBS	630,800
Evening Report	WCBS	715,000
Olympic; Bowl Tour	WABC	495,200
Evening Report	WCBS	773,100
Early Show	WCBS	434,700
Early Show	WCBS	501,700
Kingdom; Return Oz	WNBC	557,400
Top Cat	WNEW	959,100

CHICAGO

STATIONS: WBBM, WNBQ, WBKB, WGN. SURVEY PERIOD: FEBRUARY 1 - 28, 1964.

1.	Bonanza	WNBQ	985,000	45
2.	Candid Camera	WBBM	868,700	40
3.	Andy Griffith	WBBM	844,900	39
4.	Ed Sullivan	WBBM	804,100	38
5.	What's My Line	WBBM	799,900	38
6.	Dick Van Dyke	WBBM	792,900	37
7.	Beverly Hillbillies	WBBM	786,000	36
8.	Danny Kaye	WBBM	715,200	34
9.	Lucy Show	WBBM	704,400	32
10.	Petticoat Junction	WBBM	680,800	31

1.	Yogi Bear (Tues. 6:00)	WGN	Screen Gems	467,500	21	6:00 Rpt; Standpoint	WBBM	240,500
2.	Huckleberry Hound (Mon. 6:00)	WGN	Screen Gems	452,800	20	6:00 Rpt; Standpoint	WBBM	247,400
3.	Woody Woodpecker (Thurs. 6:00)	WGN	MCA-TV	406,200	18	6:00 Rpt; Standpoint	WBBM	219,500
4.	Rocky and Friends (Wed., Fri. 6:00)	WGN	PAT	378,500	17	6:00 Rpt; Standpoint	WBBM	215,100
5.	One Step Beyond (Fri. 8:00)	WGN	ABC Films	365,300	17	Bob Hope	WNBQ	443,900
6.	Fractured Flickers (Sat. 9:30)	WBKB	Desilu	324,800	15	Gunsmike	WBBM	535,500
7.	Magilla Gorilla (Mon. 6:30)	WGN	Screen Gems	319,100	14	Outer Limits	WBKB	399,500
8.	Lippy The Lion (Tues. 6:30)	WGN	Screen Gems	290,100	13	Combat	WBKB	518,000
9.	Superman (Sat. 11:00) (Sun. 10:00)	WGN	Flamingo	240,900	11	Bugs Bunny	WBKB	194,300
						News Rpt; Better Biz	WNBQ	10,600
10.	Dobie Gillis (Mon. 7:00)	WGN	20 Fox TV	232,000	10	I've Got A Secret	WBBM	457,300

PHILADELPHIA

STATIONS: WRCV, WFIL, WCAU. SURVEY PERIOD: FEBRUARY 1 - 28, 1964.

1.	Ed Sullivan	WCAU	842,200	44
2.	Bonanza	WRCV	792,900	38
3.	McHale's Navy	WFIL	715,900	41
4.	Combat	WFIL	714,700	39
5.	Beverly Hillbillies	WCAU	705,700	36
6.	Donna Reed	WFIL	705,300	34
7.	Dick Van Dyke	WCAU	669,800	36
8.	Candid Camera	WCAU	668,100	33
9.	Fugitive	WFIL	637,100	34
10.	My 3 Sons	WFIL	592,700	33

1.	Death Valley Days (Mon. 7:00)	WRCV	U.S. Borax	456,300	20	TV 10 Big News	WCAU	239,200
2.	Rescue 8 (Wed. 7:00)	WRCV	Screen Gems	396,400	20	TV 10 Big News	WCAU	203,100
3.	Sea Hunt (Sat. 7:00)	WCAU	UA-TV	365,800	21	Ripcord	WFIL	220,700
4.	Hennesey (Fri. 7:00)	WRCV	NBC Films	354,500	15	TV 10 Big News	WCAU	238,800
5.	Wyatt Earp (Thurs. 7:00)	WRCV	ABC Films	321,600	15	TV 10 Big News	WCAU	222,700
6.	Battle Line (Sun. 10:00)	WFIL	Official	291,500	17	Candid Camera	WCAU	668,100
7.	Woody Woodpecker (Tues. 5:30)	WFIL	MCA-TV	279,000	14	Early Show	WCAU	242,900
8.	Yogi Bear (Mon. 5:30)	WFIL	Screen Gems	272,600	13	Cheyenne	WRCV	219,600
9.	Popeye Theatre (Mon.-Fri. 5:00)	WFIL	UAA, KING	269,100	15	Early Show	WCAU	191,800
10.	Huckleberry Hound (Thurs. 5:30)	WFIL	Screen Gems	262,700	12	Cheyenne	WRCV	202,200

SEATTLE-TACOMA

STATIONS: KOMO, KING, KIRO, KTNT, KTVW. SURVEY PERIOD: FEBRUARY 1 - 28, 1964.

1.	McHale's Navy	KOMO	217,900	38
2.	Bonanza; Hockey	KING	196,000	34
3.	Donna Reed	KOMO	191,800	34
4.	Lawrence Welk	KOMO	187,100	32
5.	My 3 Sons	KOMO	184,800	33
6.	Ben Casey	KOMO	177,900	32
7.	Hollywood Palace	KOMO	175,700	29
8.	Wagon Train	KOMO	172,700	29
9.	Ed Sullivan	KIRO	166,400	32
10.	Patty Duke	KOMO	165,500	32

1.	Death Valley Days (Wed. 7:00)	KING	U.S. Borax	175,900	30	Northwest Travel; Mov.	KIRO	69,000
2.	Expedition (Mon. 7:00)	KOMO	ABC Films	143,000	24	Law and Mr. Jones	KING	102,800
3.	Leave It To Beaver (Tues. 7:00)	KOMO	MCA-TV	124,900	22	Hennesey	KING	100,600
4.	Law and Mr. Jones (Mon. 7:00)	KING	Four Star	102,800	19	Expedition	KOMO	143,000
5.	Hennesey (Tues. 7:00)	KING	NBC Films	100,600	17	Leave It To Beaver	KOMO	124,900
6.	M-Squad (Sat. 7:00)	KING	MCA-TV	100,400	17	Jubilee; Clark Mayor	KOMO	97,600
7.	Champ. Wrestling (Sat. 6:00)	KIRO	Paramount	95,800	18	Wide World Sports	KOMO	86,600
						Weekend Edition	KING	102,700
8.	Across The 7 Seas (Thurs. 6:30)	KOMO	Crosby Prod.	94,200	16	Early Edition	KING	144,600
9.	Probe (Sun. 4:00)	KOMO	NTA	91,700	16	World of Golf	KING	40,300
10.	Lawbreaker (Thurs. 7:00)	KING	UA-TV	91,100	15	Exploration; Fishing	KOMO	133,100

'That Was The Cast That Was'

Continued from page 105

"TW3" beat "Price" and was chasing "Twilight" hard for both weeks covered in the report. And n the 30-market report, reflecting the show's continual popularity in the metropolitan cities, "TW3" took the race in hand with a 22.7 rating for 35% share of audience against "Twilight's" 18.4 rating for 28.7 share. "Price" was a sorry also ran with a 14-plus rating for 23 share.

Now with these numbers going for it, "TW3" is a current sellout. Participators include Brown & Williamson, Spiedel, Standard Brands, Clairol, Mennen, Polaroid and Abbott Labs. It's a good buy at $36,000 a minute.

But how does "TW3" stand with Madison Ave. for fall? Zip. Only one of the above mentioned bankrollers is taking a flyer. That's Spiedel, and the watchband maker is only in for 13 minutes.

Big reason for the Madison Ave. freeze, of course, is the new timeslot NBC has saddled "TW3" with for the fall. Show goes in Tuesday nights against CBS-TV's numbers-busting "Petticoat Junction." Against bucolic low comedy (which cover the CBS schedule like a rich fertilizer), "TW3" is a long shot, indeed, but it still could surprise—as its done so far. It should be remembered that Nielsen is, however slowly, revising his sample. The changes in the 10-year-old audimetered homes should favor the more hip entries. Network execs will admit the sample as it stands favors programs for the older viewers, such as Mitch Miller's singalong and Lawrence Welk's two-step music.

Then there are the controversial aspects to "TW3's" brand of comedy. When the show was previewed with a bright hour last winter, the Madison Ave. nabobs were on the phone to NBC sales execs with congratulations, enthusiasm and promises. But knowing observers figured, and rightly, that the ad men would eventually display their traditional lack of stamina in such matters. One initial enthusiast left the fold when President Kennedy was assassinated with the observation that with the Kennedy clan out as a mark for the show's satire, there was nothing left in the world to laugh about, or at.

If the ad men have cooled, the critics have grown hot. "TW3" has suffered the paradox of doing okay with the general public while generally disappointing the wouldbe cognizanti. But who in his right mind would expect a show surrounded by the pressures of affiliates, advertisers and a network with 50 veepees to come off week after week like "The Establishment," "Second City," "Beyond the Fringe" or the nitery comedians of political-social bent? "TW3" still has comedic aims—and potential—that could outstrip the situation-comedy grind and village-bumpkin norm of primetime by a country mile. In its way, it is every bit as important a flicker in the night as a "CBS Reports."

Outstanding on "TW3" have been some of the guest shots, and almost any week has had some good writing flashes in the skits. This show, it should be remembered, is harder to do than a Donna Reed half-hour.

'Theatre 5'

Continued from page 109

ject airbone—just "as soon as possible," hopefully by June but probably not before July.

Byron's own radio credits are extensive, his prime distinction perhaps having been the captaincy of the longrun "Mr. District Attorney" series. His career genesis harks back to WLW, Cincy ("the nation's station" when it was still a 500,000 watt blanket), where, in the thirties, he staged a latenight poetry opus, "Moon River." It was one—perhaps the forerunner—of a breed that could accelerate libidinal response, or as Byron remarks: "I was a contributor to the delinquency of several generations."

Somerville and Bell have both been with ABC Radio for some years as producers-directors, currently co-directing the net's "Flair Reports."

Of actor availability, Byron's only fear of shortage is among the current crop of moppets, very few of whom have the savvy of standing up to a floor mike in an age when broadcast drama is derivative in form. Maybe there just won't be too many kid roles to create concern.

Byron seemingly had some doubts in the heyday as to whether radio was a worthy medium for the writer. He recalls an incident, pointing up the tantalizing challenge radio presents the writer, that assertedly dispelled any questions for him.

The scene was a very intimate cellar bar in Manhattan, a haunt of scribes. Off to a corner sat Somerset Maugham, being interviewed by a gal from one of the cerebral magazines. Overhearing them, especially the author's resonance, was no problem. The journalist got around to asking Maugham what he would do if he had it to play over.

According to Byron, the heartwarming response from the novelist went: "I'd write for radio. Why? Because it's the only form of minstrelsy left."

Tom Moore

Continued from page 105

vice" to the diamond sachems, hammered out with an assist from Sports Programs (ABC) topper Roone Arledge. Coming in the wake of those staggering bids for bigtime football rights, the Moore expression further dramatizes the mating potential between broadcasters and athletics. The current tv semester, in fact, finds the networks with a sports programming inventory that aggregates some $93,000,000 as the webs step up their hot pursuit of the major attractions.

Moore's visualization of a baseball boom has the validity experienced by other sports wed to the medium——the crushes developed for pro football, bowling, etc. Nor is video's appetite for sports limited to bluechip attractions, as the anthologies of recent vintage have demonstrated. Recalled, for instance, was ABC's coverage a couple years back of something called the Lumberjack Bowl in Wisconsin.

Pointedly remarked in the Moore speech is television's domination of leisure hours in the U.S. Calculations say it's about 45 hours a week for the average home—a "way of life" for the hoi polloi, and thus motivation for sports commerce to make an unequivocal allegiance to the medium.

THE POLICE COMMISSIONER
CITY OF NEW YORK

April 13, 1964

Mr. David Susskind
Talent Associates -
Paramount Limited
444 Madison Avenue
New York, New York

Dear Mr. Susskind:

Please accept my thanks on behalf of the members of the New York City Police Department for the time and effort you devoted on Sunday to the work and problems of the police.

Your skillful and brilliant questioning covered almost every facet of police work and I am certain, brought a new understanding of the members of the force to millions of people throughout the nation.

Please extend my thanks to Miss Jean Kennedy for her grasp of a complicated subject, and to Jack Perlis, whose imagination and energy made the program possible.

In my estimation, it was the best television program ever broadcast concerning this department and should accomplish much in bringing greater public confidence and respect for law enforcement.

Sincerely yours,

Michael J. Murphy

Michael J. Murphy
POLICE COMMISSIONER

jjl

DAILY NEWS, MONDAY, APRIL 13, 1964

TV What's On? RADIO

Great Work of Our Cops Described on Open End

By BEN GROSS

New York City's Police Department was portrayed on last night's Open End program (WPIX, 9:30 to 11:30) as a vast semi-military force of hard-working men and women with only one aim: to protect the persons and the property of the millions who inhabit our metropolis. And this, at the risk of life and often as the target of unjustified attacks.

Conversing with host David Susskind, almost every phase of the department's work was touched on by its articulate spokesmen.

Deputy Chief Inspector George McManus denied emphatically that minority groups, such as Negroes and Puerto Ricans, are "persecuted" by the police. He said that such charges are largely propaganda.

And Lt. Arthur Schultheiss, holder of more than 20 citations for bravery, denying reports of "police brutality," emphasized that forced or "third degree" confessions are valueless in court.

The force's activities in dealing with narcotics sales, homicides, pornography, robbery and other crimes were described in graphic terms. Also the fair handling of civil rights demonstrators was highlighted.

More than 1500 important personalities have appeared on the nationally syndicated and internationally acclaimed "OPEN END" series during the past six years...

Producer: JEAN KENNEDY
Director: ED COOPERSTEIN
Associate Producer: MICHAEL BURTON

JACK PERLIS
Consultant on Informational Media

Can Kintner Stay Out of 3d?

Continued from page 105

facilities and resources of the New York Yankees, but next season he's stuck with the player's roster of the Mets."

But back at NBC, Kintner was hard at work with all the drive, dedication and fervor of one who's convinced that there's still time "to make silk purses out of sows ears."

To accomplish this, Kintner will need the complete support of his executive staff, reliably reported to be under unprecedented pressure to recover this season's lost ground, but also the "understanding, sympathy and support" of NBC's chief program supplier, MCA.

Indeed, the latter, while far less susceptible to the Kintner blandishments, can be expected to provide the definitive answer as to whether Bob Kintner & Co. will finish second or third next season.

Thus, while MCA's Messrs. Wasserman, Werblin and Schreiber may not feel constrained to react to the Kintner "whip" with the alacrity of a Walter Scott or a Mort Werner, it is to the MCA trio that Kintner must direct his search for audience-building support. For it is MCA, not NBC, that will determine the budgets, the script excellence, the production quality of the pivotal shows whose Nielsen-measured audience acceptance will spell the difference between second and third for NBC next year.

"90 Bristol Court," the new MCA trilogy of back-to-back half-hour comedies on NBC Monday 7:30 to 9 will determine whether or not NBC will be a Monday night contender. If it turns out to be another "It's a Man's World," the Nielsen disaster that was scheduled early Monday evening two years ago, the Kintner efforts to stay out of the celler would be seriously damaged.

A lesser, but still important, factor will be the general excellence (or lack of it) which attends the Hitchcock anthology, whose MCA track record has veered unevenly from high to low Nielsens depending on the budgets and effort that the producer has elected to put behind it. Next year, from an NBC standpoint, will be no time to relax.

"The Virginian," produced by MCA and one of NBC's two shows in the Top 15, faces a new threat as "Beverly Hillbillies" moves to 8:30-9 p.m., opposite the program's final 30 minutes. Its sponsors are naturally worried about the millions of homes that have switched from the "Virginian" and NBC to "Hillbillies" and CBS at 9 this season. Will those same homes, next season, commence their Wednesday viewing with ABC's "Ozzie and Harriet" and "Patty Duke Show" and then switch to CBS, in order to avoid switching from "Virginian" when the show is two-thirds through? Or can MCA make next year's "Virginian" so compelling that it will hold its audience all the way through the program and on into the Wednesday Night Movies? This is simply another multi-million dollar question which only MCA can answer.

And what about the future of the MCA-produced "Kraft Suspense Theatre," not to mention the future and valued status of the Kraft account, now that the Thursday 10 to 11 hour falls below an 18 Nielsen? If the Kraft ratings have proved indifferent against the weak competition of a Sid Caesar-Edie Adams 8.7 Nielsen, what will happen when it faces, as it will next year, Jimmy Dean on ABC and "Defenders" on CBS, each of which now outrate Kraft in the time periods from which they are being removed?

And what about the MCA-produced Chrysler Theatre, which will need far more than those Bob Hope "host" lead-ins when it faces CBS' "Entertainers" (with Carol Burnett, et al) in next season's competitive sweepstakes?

In short, how well MCA perform when it delivers Bob Kintner almost one-third of his prime time programming?

And what about the other two-thirds? Can Fess Parker be as good as Daniel Boone in the 20th-Fox series in the critical Thursday 7:30 to 8:30 period as he was a Davey Crockett for Disney 10 years ago?

How good will "Mr. Solo" be, particularly opposite Red Skelton?

Will the Bill Dana show, now garnering a 7.7 Nielsen on 125 NBC stations (78% coverage factor) at 7 on Sundays, really do that much better on a long P & G lineup against such tougher competition Sundays at 8:30?

Meantime, the behind-the-scenes drama at 30 Rock, with Kintner the indisputable leader and strategist, is replete with the most kinetic activity and "pull up your socks" laborings that has gripped any tv network in several years.

TV's Key Role In Post-Grad Medical Study in Scotland

Glasgow, April 21.

Use of television for post-graduate medical study is being actively pioneered here by Scottish Television Ltd., program company for commercial tv in Central Scotland.

The station's 12th program in the series has just been produced.

Like previous subjects, it is being seen by medicoes in five other regions of Scotland and England. Telerecordings of "Post-Graduate Medicine" have gone to Switzerland and Australia for instructional purposes, and other copies are now en route to Japan and Mexico as well as the U.S.A.

The programs arose from a Scottish Television outside telecast from the Western Infirmary, Glasgow, two years ago, during an educational television confab. As a result, the program company was invited by the Glasgow medical school to undertake a "Post-Graduate Medicine" series on a monthly basis.

Radio Review

CONTACT
With Harv Morgan, Gordon Hall
Producer: Dave Babbitt
85 Mins., Mon.-Fri. 10:05 p.m.
KYW, Cleveland

Harv Morgan, holder of three Press Club awards in radio, puts on a stimulating 85-minute gab session with personalities whose controversial stands provoke listening appeal. On the stanza caught, Gordon Hall, noted "Hate Fighter," took on all phone-callers in his studio appearance and successfully put the skids to the Birchites, etc. When name guests are not available for studio phones, "Contact" utilizes long distance lines.

Averaging about 50 calls per evening, the stanza clicks along with Morgan maintaining peppery pace and reflects the capability of nipping dialog when it becomes pompous and threatens to spill over into boredom. Of course, quality of the guest lends greatly to the program's charm and in Gordon Hall, the stanza had a top-notcher who not only knew his field, but was an excellent radio personality. Production got a capable assist from engineering. Mark.

Ottawa—Robert S. Macpherson has been upped from promotion manager to director of information of CTV Television Network.

Low Grade

Continued from page 107

"The Saint," would be supplemented by a new program of 26 one-hour shows based on the character of Commander Gideon, created by John Creasey. Also on the slate was a new series starring Stanley Baker, which, it was hoped, would go into production next December, so as not to interfere with the star's film commitments. This was subject to script agreement, and the first screenplay was now in preparation.

Three new series were on the stocks, including "Front Page Story" and "The Sullavan Brothers." The first, which would be under the control of Lewis Greifer, would be based on a fictional news story and would be given a slick journalistic treatment. "The Sullavan Brothers" was being developed by Ted Willis around four brothers who were legal eagles. A third series, due to start in July, will star Alfred Marks in "Firecrackers," which is set in a small and forgotten village fire station, while the "Plane Makers" will return to the schedules in the fall.

The new drama project, in which James Mason will star, is "The Tall Stalwart Lancer," written by Gerald Vaughan-Hughes. This would be taped in the summer for transmission later in the year.

A new emphasis on documentary programming is featured in the new ATV lineup. Sir Kenneth Clark is to visit Venice in June to start a major feature on St. Marks Cathedral, which is scheduled to be transmitted in the fall. Dennis Mitchell has started preliminary research on a major feature devoted to the tv medium; Lord Francis Williams has joined the station in a creative capacity and his first program will deal with the history of trade unions; on June 10 the network will screen "Horses For Courses," a program dealing with the training of race horses; a month later, on July 8, there will be a study of mass acclamation of entertainers called "The Road to Beatlemania"; and in celebration of the Shakespeare quartercentenary there will be four half-hour shows under the title of "Man of the Year" on a weekly basis, starting May 11.

Grade predicted that "Sunday Night at the Palladium" would continue for another 10 years at least, and so would "Emergency Ward 10." The former has been on the air since the start of commercial television in September 1955, and the other has been a top rating show on a twice-weekly basis for several years.

BBC-2 Bow Deferred

London, April 21.

BBC-2 failed to open last night (Mon.) due to a power failure which blacked out half of the London area.

The premiere attraction, "Kiss Me Kate," was postponed until tonight (Tues.).

CBS 'Discovers'

Continued from page 106

in charge of daytime sales, followed immediately for two days in a similar "getting to know you" spirit. Then, after the weekend, research director Jay Eliasberg made the tour and, following him, Fred Friendly to gather votes for CBS News. And finally came Herb Carlborg, the CBS director of program practices, who makes the N.Y.-to-Chi run fairly regularly.

The presence also of chairman William Paley, corporate prexy Frank Stanton and network topper Jim Aubrey, plus other top echelon brass for the stockholders meet last week could not help but add to the general impression that CBS has discovered the midwest.

Columbus — Bert Charles, general manager of WVKO- radio for the past 15 years, has been appointed v.p. of the Skyway Broadcasting Corp., station operators. Charles also was reelected to the Board of Trustees. Irene Hirsch, daughter of the late Gustav Hirsch, founder of the station, was reelected board chairman.

SCOTS HOPE BBC-2 WILL INCREASE JOBS

Glasgow, April 21.

There's hope yet for Scot actors and performers, driven south across the England-Scotland border because work in theatre and television here has dropped to an incredible low.

This assurance was given here by James Millar, Head of BBC Programs, Scotland, at an unofficial opening of a new $2,250,000 extension to the BBC-TV studios. A new tv center adjoining the old Queen Margaret Drive radio studios is the first outside London to be equipped for either 405 or 625-line operation. According to the local BBC topper, it is hoped that Glasgow will become a new and vital center for tv drama in Scotland.

New studio is already stockpiling programs for BBC-2, the new channel which will operate on 625 lines. One of the first productions to go out from London later this month, "Madame Bovary," has been taped here, and several major series are due to be recorded, including "Anna Veronica," by H. G. Wells.

Three tv spectaculars starring Andy Stewart, Scot minstrel-comedian, are also being produced here.

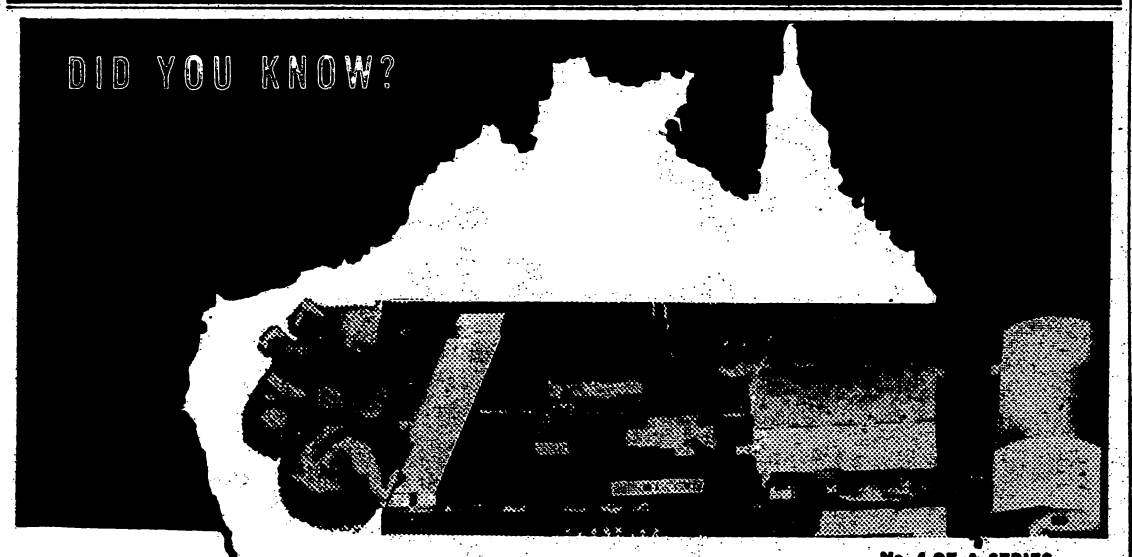
CBS Stockholders

Continued from page 106

from the $10,175,001 registered in the period in 1963.

The CBS prosperity extends to all divisions, prexy Frank Stanton said, although Columbia Records and the Owned Radio Stations division were the only two not showing first quarter increases this year. He noted, however, that the record company's dropoff last year was consistent with that of the rest of the recording industry and that it continues to dominate its field. "We regard this dropoff as temporary," Stanton said, "although its effect was still being felt in the first quarter. The decline in dollar sales was caused by a combination of inventory readjustment and price concessions at the manufacturer-distributor level." Retailers were overstocked in 1962, he said, and this contributed to an abnormal return of records for credit last year.

CBS-TV and the Owned Television Stations division both reached their highest level in 1963, and the CBS Radio network made a comeback after a two-year slump with its sales increasing "a full 50%" last year over 1962. CBS Films Inc. topped its domestic sales with international sales for the first time, and CBS International registered first quarter sales this year "almost half again as large" as those of the same period last year.



For a finale, Stanton illustrated the financial accomplishments of CBS Inc. over the past 15 years. Net sales have increased some 600% since 1949, net income by about 900%, net income per share by about 600%, and net worth by around 550%.

'Mickey' Rolls in July

Hollywood, April 21.

Production will begin the first week in July on "Mickey," new Selmur Productions series starring Mickey Rooney, to bow on ABC-TV next season.

Bob Fisher and Arthur Marx are producers of the half-hour situation comedy series.

No. 4 OF A SERIES

FACILITIES

★ Sound Stages at Artransa Park are 102ft. x 75ft. x 34ft....61ft. x 36ft. x 25ft....30ft. x 24ft. x 14ft....and 28ft. x 20ft. x 10ft.

★ Camera equipment includes Mitchells . . . Arriflexes . . . Auricons . . . Debries.

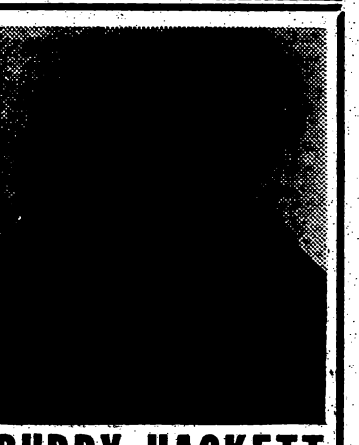
★ Lighting is Australia's most complete . . . enough (literally!) to light 3 full-length movies at one time.

★ Sound equipment includes Westrex . . . Nagra . . . Magnasync plus a full range of microphones....completely equipped record ne Theatre.

. . . AUSTRALIAN WEATHER & SCENERY ARE IDEAL FOR LOCATION WORK!

The industry's main bogy of location work . . . uncertain scenery and inclement weather have been reduced to a minimum by U.S. producers who have come "down-under" to shoot location scenes in Australia.

The Continent offers every conceivable type of scenery . . . from arid desert to lush, green valleys, rich bushlands and sweeping inland and coastal valleys. Best of all . . . it's only fourteen hours from the West Coast.



If you are planning location shooting and wish to avoid monotony of over-used areas . . . if you want to be sure of long periods of consistent weather plus the availability of world-standard equipment, contact Artransa Park Studios — Australia's largest Studios for feature and television films.

ARTRANSA PARK TELEVISION PTY. LIMITED

WARRINGAH ROAD, FRENCH'S FOREST, SYDNEY, AUSTRALIA Tel: 40.9311

NEW YORK OFFICE: 229 WEST 43RD ST., NEW YORK 36, N.Y. Tel: LA 4-9058

APV/4

BUDDY HACKETT

Mgt.: FRANK FASKE

450 Broadway, Brooklyn, N. Y.

EV 4-6000

CARMEL QUINN

Scores Again!!!

VARIETY
Wednesday, April 8, 1964

Drake Hotel, Chi
Chicago, March 31.
Carmel Quinn, Jimmy Blade Orch; $2.50-$3 cover.

Carmel Quinn was in rare form in her hour-long opening night show at the swank Camellia House. Always a performer of freshness, grace and charm, she now rates with that handful of intimery top-liners capable of creating the sort of party spirit and electricity that goes with only the bluechip supper club acts.

Miss Quinn has subtly graduated from a pert chirp with a basic Gaelic gambit to a well-rounded entertainer with a maturely beguiling way with an audience. There is in her turn a blend of naturalness and know-how that will keep her in demand for a long time to come.

While her act is essentially molded of tunes from the ould sod, it is considerably enhanced by her engaging patter and byplay with the audience. For instance, on night caught she treated several tables partially cut off from the stage by a pillar with several numbers sung at their table, chatting with on-mike and bringing them into the show.

Her ability to disarm patrons was also evident in her medley of old tunes which brought forth one of the better singalong responses heard in this room.

Miss Quinn's Irish numbers were all well-received, among them "Look To the Rainbow," a roistering rendering of "Mick McGilligan's Ball," a wistful handling of "Turn Around" and, of course, "When Irish Eyes Are Smiling." A special nod goes to accompanist Joe Merman, whose zest for playing is exceeded only by his skill in backing Miss Quinn. Mor.

Just Concluded
DRAKE HOTEL
Cameilla House
Chicago

★

SRO Concert (Mar. 14)
CARNEGIE HALL
New York

★

ED SULLIVAN SHOW
CBS-TV (Mar. 15)

★

PRESIDENT JOHNSON
Democratic Congressional Dinner, Wash. D.C.
(Mar. 19)

★

"THE PRICE IS RIGHT"
ABC-TV
April 28th thru May 4th

★

"MATCH GAME"
NBC-TV
May 25th thru May 29th

★

May 4 (2 Weeks)
QUEEN ELIZABETH HOTEL
Montreal, Canada

★

May 25 (1 Week)
MONTICELLO INN
Framingham, Mass.

★

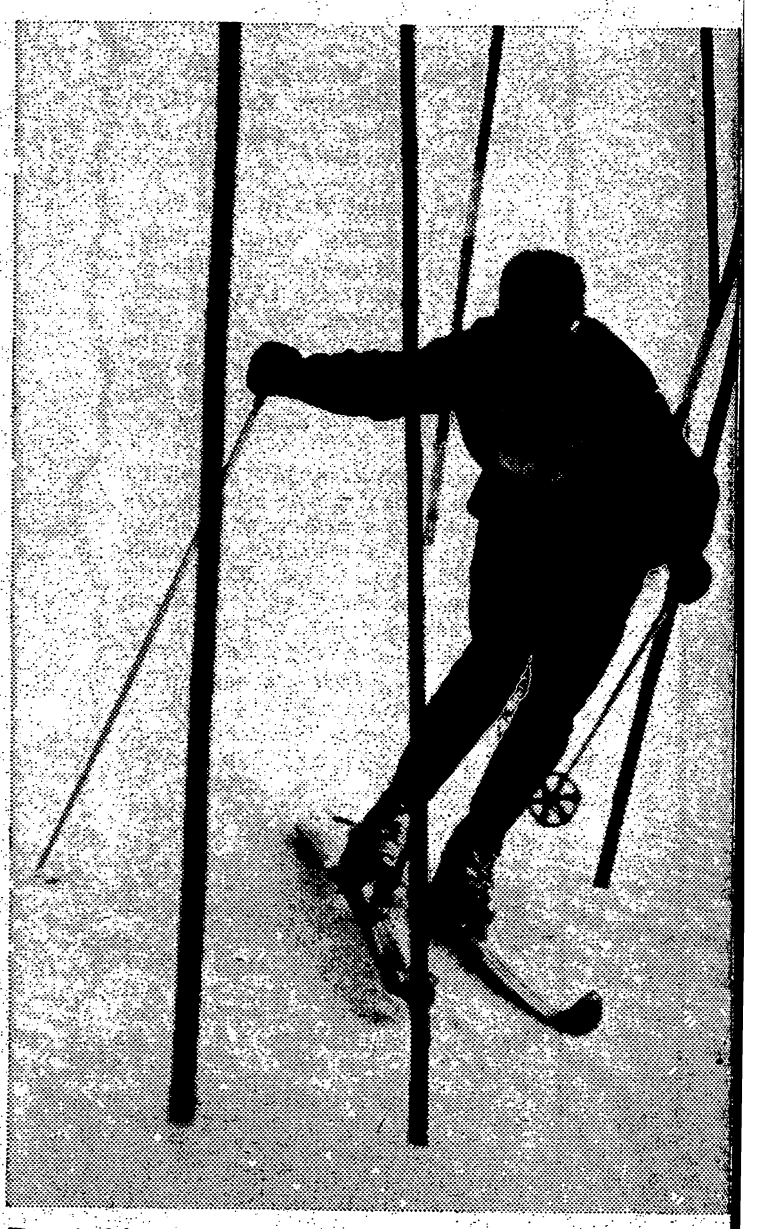
Summer Stock
"THE SOUND OF MUSIC"
Starring Role
Winnipeg, Canada

★

Aug. 21 (2 Weeks)
CANADIAN NATIONAL EXHIBITION
Toronto

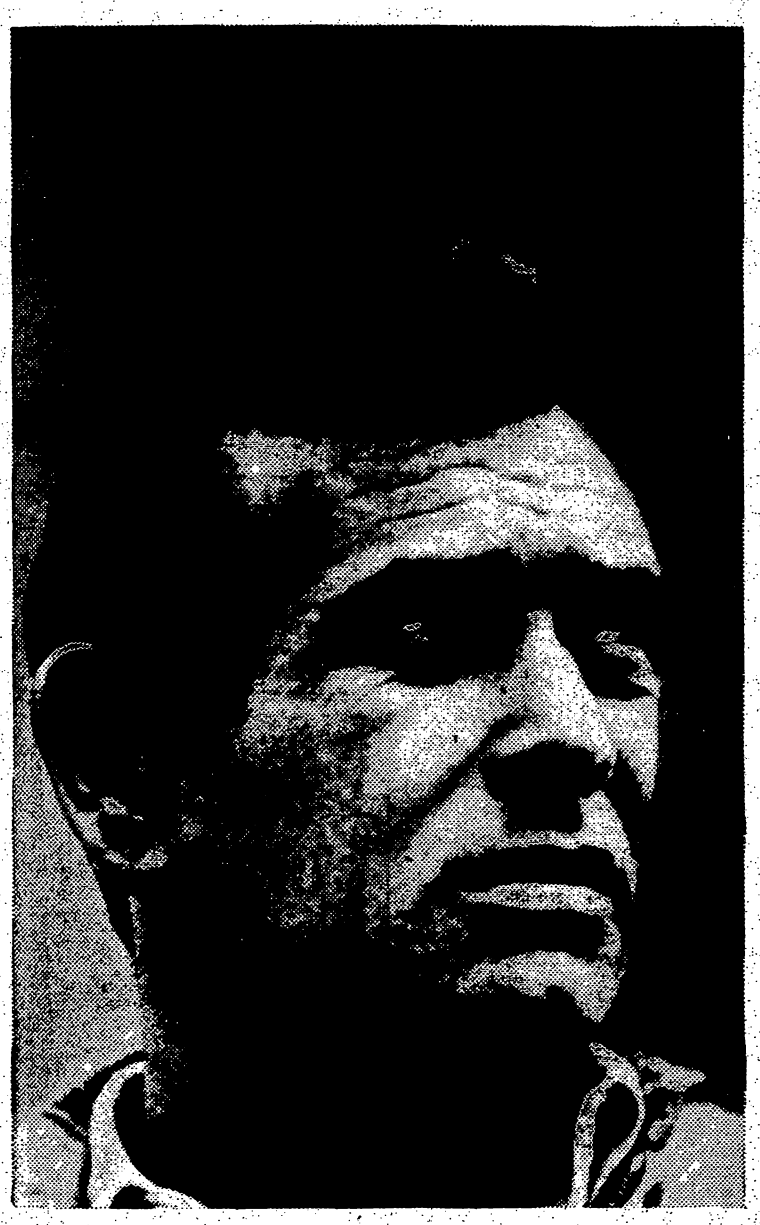
WILLIAM MORRIS AGENCY

HEADLINE RECORDS



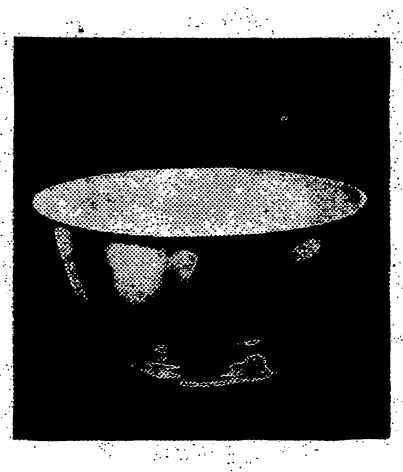
Public Relations: REGGIE RICCARDI
135 West 55 St. — Circle 7-1235

To the American viewing public:



Thank you for voting ABC Television 4 of this year's 7 TV Guide Awards

Favorite New Series
THE FUGITIVE



Best Single News
or Information Progam
WINTER OLYMPICS

Favorite Male Performer
DAVID JANSSEN
The Fugitive

Favorite Female Performer
INGER STEVENS
The Farmer's Daughter

Last Friday night TV Guide announced the favorite programs and stars of the 1963-1964 season, selected by the American television viewing public in the Fifth Annual TV Guide Awards. The ABC Television Network is grateful for this nationwide vote of confidence which gave us winners in four of seven categories, as well as the nominations for Combat! (Favorite Series), Patty Duke (Favorite Female Performer) and The Patty Duke Show (Favorite New Series).

ABC is also proud to share the Special TV Guide Award given to all three networks for their coverage of the events surrounding the assassination of our late president, John F. Kennedy.

ABC Television Network abc

Foreign TV Reviews

Continued from page 117

more or less, killed by the callousness of her highborn bedmate.

The plot was adequate for its purpose, though somewhat predictable to addicts of this kind of thing. Dennis Vance directed Jack Williams' production slickly, with due average thesping from Annette regard to atmosphere, and above-Andre, John Glyn-Jones, Graham Crowden, and Barry Justice supported the first-rate principals. Otta.

BOLD AS BRASS
With Jimmy Edwards, Beryl Reid, Jill Hyem, Bill Treacher, Stephane Grappelly, Gordon Franks Orch
Producer: Philip Barker
Writers: David Climie, Ron Watson
25 Mins., Sat., 8:50 p.m.,
BBC-TV, from London

A recent play by Ron Watson, "Man o' Brass," teamed Jimmy Edwards and Beryl Reid as the Briggs, he dedicated to the euphonium, she a long suffering listener. A further episode in the Briggs saga will be featured in this fortnightly comedy series, which takes its title from the play and might have had the courage, like "Steptoe," to stick to a single situation throughout its running time. For the proceedings that lead up to it are somewhat scrappy, and are carried solely by the informal ease of Edwards, relaxed, jocular, and broad, and the more waspish sharpness of Miss Reid.

They combined for the "I Remember It Well" duet from "Gigi," and sparred verbally in a graceful sort of way. Edwards also gets a small chance to show his musical expertise, by a brief display as a conductor, and a guest spot was filled by violinist Stephane Grappelly, a good and unusual choice, in smoothly swinging accounts of "How's About You?" and "The Lady is a Tramp."

The Briggs item was a good sample of domestic, North-country farce, with Edwards having forgotten a wedding anniversary through his addiction to his brass band. Philip Barker's production could have been tighter here, although it was okay elsewhere. The opener, in fact, hopped agreeably from point to point, and somewhat dissipated its impact. The star personalities, however, will make a novel blend, when they find the right material mixture. Otta.

Mgt.: William Morris Agency

BAXTER ON TRAVEL
With Stanley Baxter, June Whitfield, Christine Child, Cameron Hall, Edwina Day Producer: Michael Mills
Writer: Ken Hoare
25 Mins., Sat., 8 p.m.
BBC-TV, from London

Scottish Stanley Baxter once carved a nifty niche for himself as a sophisticated parodist, mainly seizing on tv skeins as his targets. This new series promised to let him loose on travel topics, but the initialler was pretty nerveless, largely witless, and lacked a cohesive format.

Baxter appeared as a lecturer, introducing filmed items with a voyaging theme. Unluckily, the lengthiest were the weakest, and Baxter could extract little from a sketch that had him as a sleeping car passenger on the Paris train, overhearing a crime play from an adjacent radio and taking it for true. The mistaken climax had Baxter, in a variety of feminine getups, poking mild fun at Elizabeth Taylor's evocation of London; he spouted odes in and around Liverpool, but the idea largely misfired. Maybe nothing could be funnier than the original.

Lesser gags were better and swifter, but they were swamped by the more cumbersome pieces, one of which had the able June Whitfield in a bleak ditty about Neapolitan holidays, while irate natives invaded her rented villa. Michael Mill's production was quite deft, but the show disappointed. Otta.

Baltimore—John Armstrong has joined the news staff of WCBM here, replacing Art Lane who has moved to the night news shift.

Armstrong was night news editor of WCTC, New Brunswick, before joining WCBM.

U.S. ENTRIES HOT ON SCOTTISH TV

Glasgow, April 21.

American series continue to hold a high place in local television ratings, both for the Central Scotland and North-and-North East Scotland areas.

"The Alfred Hitchcock Hour," "Naked City" and "Route 66" are all in the Top 10 placings in the Central region. "Beverly Hillbillies" and "Rawhide" are in the North Scotland Top 10, according to Television Audience Measurement Ltd.

"Burke's Law" is in the Top 10 in the Border Television area, covering southern Scotland as well as northwest England.

See TV in Israel Within Four Years

Tel Aviv, April 21.

Robert Graham, of the Canadian Broadcasting Corp., left Israel after completing a survey requested by the Israel (government-controlled) Broadcasting Service, in anticipation of the arrival of television in this country. Graham prepared a plan for instructing present broadcasting personnel in television and recommended the distribution of present manpower in a way to secure flawless continuation of the broadcasting service as well as the preparation of the required cadre for the operation of a smooth beginning of general television.

Graham met with Teddy Kolek, head of the Prime Minister's office, in charge of radio, H. Givton, head of Kol Israel's broadcasting and the education television which is planned to begin servicing schools next year. He also met heads of this educational television project, Ruo (representing Lord Rotchild of Britain, sponsoring the project) and Zvi Zinder, its administrative director, discussing the possibilities that could be made available for training Kol Israel's staff on the educational television's equipment.

Graham's suggestions would be considered by the local authorities in planning grants and trips of local personnel for training abroad. His report would also be forwarded to the French television authorities who had expressed their interest in aiding Israel's television which expected to materialize, despite present opposition by various factors, within the next four years.

NAB's Program Meets

Washington, April 21.

NAB disclosed it will hold four programming meetings in September.

The pilot projects, for NAB's program service initiated by prexy LeRoy Collins will be in Palo Alto, Calif. (18th); Omaha, Neb. (21st); Memphis, Tenn., (23rd) and Tarrytown, N.Y. (25th).

If the clinics are successful, NAB might permanently establish the studies and give programming dope to stations, NAB radio veep Sherril Taylor averred.

Maximum attendance for each clinic is 125.

Portland, Me.—Eugene W. Wilkin has been named a director of the Guy Gannett Broadcasting Services, which operates the WGAN television and radio stations here. Wilkin joined it in 1961 after serving as sales manager of WPRO-TV in Providence, R.I.

TV Reviews

Continued from page 117

homer to Thomson, and wondering of the moral justice of it considering he had been one of the more "clean-living" players on the Dodger club.

Producer Howard Cosell couldn't have chosen more wisely in booking Horace McMahon as guide-narrator. The vet actor somehow looked the part of a wistful Polo Grounds habitue. The show reflected much distinction all around, and especially on Lou Volpicelli's direction and Ed Deitch's film editing. It was an assignment lovingly and artfully handled. Pit.

OUR SCHOOLS HAVE KEPT US FREE
With Alexander Scourby
Director: Lee R. Potter
30 Mins., Sat., 12:30 p.m.
WPIX, N. Y. (film)

This show, based on a Life mag article by historian Henry Steele Commager, is the fourth educational special for tv release by the National Education Assn.

Produced by Vision Associates, the film cogently presented its case that "Our Schools Have Kept Us Free." With a script that used the words of Washington, Jefferson and other notable Americans, the film took the viewer through a history of the country's free educational system via stills for the historical aspects and most effective location footage for the current scene. At the outset, there is emphasis on Ben Franklin's written concepts of a free educational system. The follow-through shows, in broad strokes, will show how those concepts were activated and what it meant to America's millions of immigrants and ultimately to the welfare and growth of the nation.

For dramatic effect, the commentary was interspersed with renditions of fitting folk songs which were matched to striking effect by location camera work around the country.

Earlier productions of NEA have reportedly played as many as 400 tv stations, and this one (available from the Association) should have equal success. Bill.

MICHELSON AT LARGE
With Art Michelson, others Producer: Michelson
Director: Norm Osteroviak
60 Mins., Sun., 12:20 a.m.
WTCN-TV, Minneapolis

Minneapolis-St. Paul area has never had a locally-originated, late night discussion program, although both "Open End" and "Kup's Show" were seen here via syndication some years back. WTCN-TV has corrected the situation with the installation of "Michelson at Large" in a post-midnight spot following the late Sunday movie.

Format includes the w.k. round table littered with coffee cups, but there's no other way to seat six or seven guests comfortably. Like all shows of this genre, the strength of the program depends entirely on the guests, and the initial offering had a number of articulate speakers.

Host Michelson, depite the late hour, came up with a lively lineup which included Minnesota Gov. Karl Rolvaag, Minneapolis Mayor Arthur Naftalin, Bradley Morison Jr., Tyrone Guthrie Theatre public relations director; Barrett Prettyman, ex-White House aide here for the Kennedy Library, and James McDonald, director of the State Commission against Discrimination.

After a slow start, Michelson turned the panel loose on a discussion of the meaning of the previous week's primary election results in Wisconsin and escalated it to a review of the total civil rights problem. All panel members got their licks in; not surprising, none came out against civil rights.

Hostings chores are in good hands with Michelson who well acquainted with the political scene hereabouts. He's also well aware that his main task is to get talk moving, not to dominate the air himself. Production in general was adequate and practice will make it better.

Considering potential excitement of a program like this, the station should reschedule it to Saturday and preferably at an earlier hour. Post-midnight Sunday is hardly peak viewing time in any city, let alone this one. Hugh.

Charlotte, N.C.—A three-story, $225,000 building is being planned for a site near Charlotte to house a new restaurant and the studios and offices of WIST.

Loren's Status As Jaffe Producer

Hollywood, April 21.

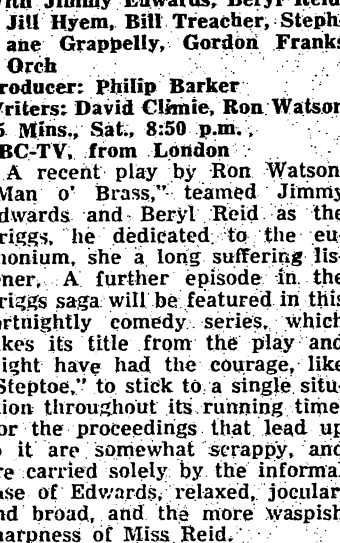
James Loren has revamped his contract with Henry Jaffe Enterprises, moving from post as vice-president to independent producer status.

Under new deal Loren will produce seven one hour tv specials involving Dinah Shore, with three of them marking Miss Shore's entry into daytime dramatic television.

Loren has set Dinah to hostess three hourlong dramas for ABC daytime airing. Properties have not yet been set, although writers John Furia Jr., John T. Dugan, Norman Lessing and Paddy Schweitzer have been signed to develop five treatments, from which three will be selected.

Entire package, including the four night time ABC-Dinah specials, have been purchased by Purex, with $1,000,000 alotted for the seven shows. Daytime specials have been set because Loren feels purse strings are held by women and there is a major daytime femme audience that is wasted with current daytime programming.

Shows will go under the Sewanee Production banner, joint company involving Jaffe Enterprises and Miss Shore's Winchester Productions. Jaffe will be exec producer. Taping is set for May.



Loren also produced the "Cyril" pilot, starring Cyril Ritchard and Jack Mullaney, which hasn't yet sold. Currently, he is prepping series "The Farmer From Palermo" and, with Furia, "The Legend Hunter."

OKAY KTWR-FM SALE

Washington, April 21

FCC's Broadcast Bureau okayed the $20,000 sale of KTWR-FM, Tacoma, Wash. from Thomas Wilmot Reed to Tacoma Broadcasters Inc.

Buyer owns KTAC-AM, Tacoma.

4th in the NATION!
in retail sales per household*

That's Minneapolis-St. Paul, with retail sales of $4,649 per household. In this key market, KSTP-TV is the first television station serving 810,800 homes.

KSTP television 5
100,000 WATTS • NBC
MINNEAPOLIS • ST. PAUL

NAKED CITY

GREAT GUEST STARS . . .
WEEK AFTER WEEK!

Eli Wallach, George Maharis, Suzanne Pleshette, Eric Portman, Felicia Farr, Claude Rains, Peter Falk, Roddy McDowall, Sam Jaffe, Abby Lane, Sylvia Sidney, Keenan Wynn, Lee J. Cobb, Geraldine Fitzgerald, Luther Adler, Eddie Albert, Hume Cronyn, Mickey Rooney

. . . and many, many more!

For details contact
SCREEN GEMS, INC.

COST-PER-THOUSAND:

Computerfixen watchenfolkerjugglen groupencost

We love to play the numbers.

We win!

That's what's so different about ABC in Milwaukee.

WITI-TV!

Prime-time looks great. Consistently. Number us among your friends.

Go ahead — compute. We compete!

witi-tv
Milwaukee
A STORER STATION
abc

SHOWMEN • ARENA OPERATORS • THEATER OWNERS

One-Time Opportunity, May 14th:

FREEDOM SPECTACULAR

For the Benefit of the NAACP

Two hour, closed-circuit production, starring the greatest array of talent ever assembled in the most significant entertainment event ever produced.

Never before and never again!

In observance of the tenth anniversary of the U.S. Supreme Court ruling on school segregation.

Starring:

(listed alphabetically)

CANNONBALL ADDERLY
ED BEGLEY
HARRY BELAFONTE
TONY BENNETT
LARRY BLYDEN
RICHARD BURTON
GODFREY CAMBRIDGE
BILL COSBY
DOROTHY DANDRIDGE
JAMES DARREN
OSSIE DAVIS
SAMMY DAVIS, JR.
RUBY DEE
MIMI DILLARD
DUKE ELLINGTON
LON FONTAINE DANCERS
GLORIA FOSTER
JACKIE GLEASON
DICK GREGORY
LENNIE HAYTON
LENA HORNE
MAHALIA JACKSON
CAROLYN JONES
BURT LANCASTER
PIPER LAURIE
AGNES MOOREHEAD
RODDY McDOWALL
SIDNEY POITIER
ROBERT PRESTON
DELLA REESE
EDWARD G. ROBINSON
ELIZABETH TAYLOR
CAMILLA WILLIAMS

Already Booked: Madison Square Garden, New York
Sports Arena, Los Angeles

AKRON
ALBUQUERQUE ATLANTA
BALTIMORE
BOSTON
BUFFALO
CHARLOTTE, N.C.
CHATTANOOGA
CHICAGO
CINCINNATI
CLEVELAND
COLUMBIA, S.C.
COLUMBUS
DALLAS
DENVER
DES MOINES
DETROIT
GRAND RAPIDS
HARRISBURG
HARTFORD
HOUSTON
JACKSON, MISS.
KANSAS CITY, MO.
LAWTON, OKLA.
LITTLE ROCK
LOUISVILLE
MILWAUKEE
MINNEAPOLIS
NASHVILLE
NEWARK
NEW ORLEANS
OAKLAND OMAHA
PHILADELPHIA
PITTSBURGH
PORTLAND, ORE.
RICHMOND
ST. LOUIS
SAN ANTONIO
SAN FRANCISCO
SAN JOSE
SEATTLE
TUCSON
WASHINGTON, D.C.

NOW AVAILABLE

FOR SHOWING IN THEATERS AND ARENAS IN OTHER LOCATIONS ALL OVER AMERICA AND CANADA.

If you have booked another closed-circuit attraction during the 30-day period before or after May 14th, substantial savings are possible in cable, loop and equipment charges.

For Information and Terms
Telephone — Write — Wire

FREEDOM NETWORK, INC.

OLIVER A. UNGER, President

NEW YORK CITY:
1776 Broadway, 6th Floor
212: CI-6-6500

BEVERLY HILLS, CALIF.:
233 S. Beverly Drive
213: BR-2-3006

TV Followup Comment

Continued from page 117

WMCA prexy, among many others.

Credit Morse with retaining interest throughout all the talk by fine cutting and exciting pictorial displays.

Horo.

DuPont Show of the Week

"A Day Like Today," was a meller which did little more than fill the time between the many blurbs for DuPont's synthetic fabrics Sunday night (19) on the NBC-TV "DuPont Show of the Week."

Apparently DuPont ran out of synthetics, because this Stanley Greenberg script never did really end. Star Art Carney was left gasping in his livingroom, headed for his final reward after starting the hour by grabbing the wrong bottle from the medicine closet. It looked as though not even NBC knew when this thing was supposed to end. In what was probably meant to be the climactic scene between Carney and his secretary (discovered love), the web mistakenly dropped in the voice-over of the blurb for the next "Show of the Week," completely garbling the scene.

Carney, who was called upon to choke and gag between flashbacks of a very tough day at the office that preceded his grabbing the poison from the medicine closet, had few effective moments. The technique of running the sets together for the flashback sequences would have been a good idea with a stronger story.

Okay under the circumstances were Kathleen Maguire as Carney's secretary; Janice Hanson as his daughter and Dennis Cooney as his son. But of all the copouts tv scripters have used this season ("we leave it up to you, viewer, to finish the story") this was the most contrived.

This one was out of the Talent Associates Paramount hopper, with Jacqueline Babbin producer and Tom Donovan director.

Bill.

Eye on New York

Today's (Wed.) opening of the N.Y. World's Fair was preceded by a trailer last Tuesday (14) night on WCBS-TV, N.Y. The trailer, featuring Fair impressario, Robert Moses, and shots of the upcoming of Flushing Meadows, failed to engender any excitement on the home screen.

Fault of this outing and others on "Eye on New York" this season is that they resemble industrial films, full of puffery, rather than documentaries, replete with insights. It was as if exec producer Ned Cramer and producer writer Bernard Beame looked on their calendar, saw the World's Fair opening one week away, and said lets do the Fair a favor and do an audience come-on show. Only trouble with that orientation—a guess based on the results—is that it leads to dull show.

CBS News correspondent Bill Leonard played straightman to Moses. Leonard said his people estimated that the Fair could cost $54 to anyone wanting to see all the paying attractions. Moses responded that 75% of the Fair exhibits are free. Leonard asked Moses if he had worries about the Fair. "I wouldn't tell you if I had," Moses replied in effect.

News pegs like the threatened stall-in by the Brooklyn chapter of CORE were ignored in the program. There were some interesting shots of the Fair. Information and insights, though, were held to a bare minimum.

Horo.

McDermott

Continued from page 113

off the hook," said McDermott pointing to Four Star's formation of its domestic syndie company two years ago and foreign syndie operation about a year ago. It's very difficult to survive without a distribution company," commented McDermott, adding his firm's domestic syndie branch has grossed $7,500,000 to date, and the foreign syndie arm over $2,500,000. Four Star has a backlog of 1,465 films, he said. Only 30% of the backlog has been funneled into syndication to date.

Four Star had six series on the networks only two years ago, only to lose them all, yet "ironically, we're in the best position we've ever been," said the prexy, attributing this to the success of the company's syndication division; two hourlong series ("The Rogues" and "Burke's Law") firmed for next season; two live series set; plus theatrical film production, "The Out-of-Towners," starring Geraldine Page and Glenn Ford, in association with Martin Manulis Productions, a Warner Bros. release, also other pix upcoming.

In syndication, the writers' guild's conversion from residuals to the royalty plan has not aided the picture too much and won't "until the actors and directors go for royalties," observed McDermott. "Until the other guilds go for the royalty plan, and are willing to share in the gamble, it doesn't mean a helluva lot," he said. But pending similar action by the other guilds, the royalty plan can't be meaningful," he added.

Summing up, McDermott opined that "the day of the small indie producer is virtually extinct," that the vidpix biz has gotten "too big" today.

He pointed to the sucessful Danny Thomas-Sheldon Leonard comedy operation, and said this could not have been started today —the mushrooming from a one-show firm into an empire in telepix. Thomas-Leonard combine today has ownership participation in six half-hour comedy series. It would be possible for one or two shows, but not for as extensive an operation as the partners have, under today's changed economic background, he maintained.

'McMillan Bounce' Gives Rediffusion A Brit. TV Facelift

London, April 21.

Rediffusion, the London commercial tv station which operates the plum Monday-to-Friday franchise and has a potential audience of more than 10,000,000, is being given a face lift. The "new skin" is the first fruits of a new policy set generally to streamline the station's operation.

Now under the aegis of general manager John McMillan, Rediffusion has turfed out the old station identification system—the famous, but dated, clock with heraldic animals, etc. has been donated to the Science Museum and replaced by a modern timepiece—and introduced several new features to the schedule.

McMillan has started, for example, local news flashes for London in addition to the existing news specials which emanate from the Independent Television News setup.

Cyril Francis, program planning exec under controller Lord Windlesham, says: "'We are now going out for a larger audience earlier in the evening." A move which will bring Rediffusion in line with Granada-TV, a weekdays-in-the-North indie, which is scoring 40-50 ratings from 6 p.m. onwards.

Among the new light entertainment attractions planned by the station (which, incidentally, is increasing its light entertainment output by approximately 10%, according to Elkan Allan, station's variety topper), is a new special with The Beatles. Skedded for May 6, spec will be written round the group and produced by Jack Good, who is being flown in from the U.S. to handle the chore.

Among the early evening new children's series is the splitting of the popular "Five O'Clock Club" into two separate shows, the first retaining the name and the "party atmosphere" of the original, the second becoming a more informative show called "Know How." New local p.m. kiddie show slated is "The Drawing Machine" which bows May 4. Station has also picked up "The Littlest Hobo" for pre-prime time beef.

For prime time, Rediffusion has inked in a 13-segment naval comedy outing called "HMS Paradise." And it is retreading the "Dickie Henderson Show" and "Our Man At St. Marks" with Donald Sinden.

On the more serious side, outlet is prepping a controversial doc "Black Marries White" (about mixed marriages), an educative skein called "Towards 2000—The Britain We Make" which traces the U.K.'s scientific growth from Shakespeare's time until now, and then looks forward. It's bringing in a midweek religious series called "Why I Believe" featuring w.k. local names who give reasons for their faith.

Additionally, Rediffusion is readying a new schools program for backward children in an attempt to help them adjust to the idea of an adult world. Also in the works is an interview skein, "The Young Tigers,' featuring Britishers who have made their mark before the age of 35.

Among the drama ambitions of the company is a Shakespearean project, "A Midsummer Night's Dream," which will be broadcast on June 24 (midsummer day), plus another major production, Dostoyevsky's "Crime and Punishment," and groups of plays on related themes, adaptation of works by Pirandello, Henri de Montherlant, Nigel Balchin and H. E. Bates. Station's click "No Hiding Place" continues and it will continue to contribute to the all-web "Play of the Week" play skein.

One new action series on the drawing board is a one-hour show called "Professor Smith," dealing with pathology and forensic medicine.

Foster's London-to-U.S.

London, April 21.

Agent Harry Foster, who has a sizable stake in the British tv packaging business, is preparing a three-week trip to the U.S. on Thursday (23).

He is expected to huddle with William Morris execs and is on the lookout for more shows to bring to the U.K. Foster visits New York for the first week of his flip, then he moves to Hollywood.

Inside Stuff—Radio-TV

Storer Broadcasting gross revenues for the first quarter of 1964 hit a record $10,238,100 while net earnings dipped to a figure below the profits for the similar period of 1963.

Net after taxes for the first quarter of '64 was $1,594,800, $32,400 less than the profits of $1,627,200 earned in the first quarter of '63. Group prexy George B. Storer Jr. said the main factors in the decline were the $111,000 increase in interest expense on bank loans and a return to normal operations in New York and Cleveland (where first quarter earnings were inflated through newspaper strikes in 1963).

The total gross revenues for the first quarter of 1964 were up 4.8% over the same period in 1963.

"Ensign O'Toole," the half-hour comedy which had an NBC-TV run and is getting a spring-summer rerun for ABC-TV Thursday nights, was torpedoed good in its third outing after having preemed with a Nielsen rating that topped the competition, "Dr. Kildare" on NBC-TV and "Perry Mason" on CBS-TV.

Week of April 6-12 (Thursday, April 9), NBC-TV's medic hour was up to a 22.8 rating for 35% share in the 30-market MNA's (the rating in which "O'Toole" scored initially while "Mason" had climbed back to a 17.9 rating for 27 share. "O'Toole" was sunk to a 13.6 rating and a 21 share.

"Kildare" actually took over the lead again in the second week of "O'Toole," while the Navy comedy still managed to slightly top "Mason."

ABC apparently is the only web to be repped by talent at this week's annual meet of the American Assn. of Ad Agencies at White Sulphur Springs.

The net's news heavyweights—Howard Smith, Ed Morgan and Bill Lawrence—are booked for Saturday's (25) windup session to stage a panel discussion on "Politics: 1964."

It's part of a heavy sked of personals by Smith and Morgan, prompted by their new co-starring roles as pundits for ABC News.

Richard D. Heffner, former v.p. and g.m. of New York's educational station WNDT and now a communications consultant, has signed with Simon & Schuster for a book dealing with the role of broadcasting in American life.

Heffner, who taught history at Univ. of California, Rutgers, Columbia and Sarah Lawrence, has been a producer-moderator with NBC and director of special projects at CBS-TV. Among his current clients as communications consultant are Time, Inc., Western Electric and the American Assn. for the Advancement of Science.

KOMO Broadcasting (AM-FM-TV) has purchased the Kansas City-based electronics engineering firm, Audio Communications Inc., for an undisclosed sum. The firm is engaged in the sale, installation and servicing of commercial sound equipment and closed circuit tv.

Max Williams will serve as general manager of both Audio Communications Inc. and KCMO Business Music Services. Art Wearth will report to him as sales manager of the former, and Rick Drew as sales manager of the latter. KCMO is one of the stations in the Meredith Publishing Co. group.

Charles Collingwood, European correspondent for CBS News, will do the series of political portraits of English leaders for Associated Television, not for Independent Television Authority, as erratumed.

ATV requested Collingwood, seeking a non-political correspondent for the scheduled interviews. Request was okayed by CBS News.

Appearing LAST night on the JACK BENNY SHOW

ELIZA ROSS THORNE

New York's largest specialists in motion picture & TV insurance
(cast, film, weather, liability, cameras, props, plagiarism...)
WINKLER ASSOCIATES, LTD.
120 W. 57 St., New York 19, Circle 7-3366

MOVIES, TV, STAGE, MODELING TALENT HUNT
ROBERT GRAHAM, Mgr.
Personal Representation of BOYS AND GIRLS (age 4-16)
Send Resumes & Pictures to
ROBERT GRAHAM
130 East 18th St. New York 3, N.Y.

REAL ESTATE

BEAUTIFULLY RESTORED 1780 COLONIAL HOME
11 rooms • 5 bedrooms • 4 baths • maid's room
2 acres on wooded hillside • very easy to maintain! Fast commuting from Stamford or New Canaan. $75,000 professional appraisal
REDUCED TO $59,000 FIRM!
Send for illustrated folder → R.W. COWAN
424 CASCADE RD., NORTH STAMFORD, CONN.
OR PHONE NEW CANAAN-203-966-2362

FIRE ISLAND RENTAL
AT SEAVIEW
June thru Sept. Featured in New York Herald Tribune. Location rental. Spring and Fall.
High set—lush island and bay views from wrap-around deck terrace. 24' duplex raftered LR-all-electric house sleeps 8. 5 sleerooms, 2 baths.
Fireplace and luxury builtins.
A showplace for showpeople at SW corner Bayview and Ivy.
ARTISTS AND WRITERS—PL 7-6300 NYC

FURN. APTS.
10 mins. to TIMES SQUARE
HOTEL MAYFLOWER, 65 Tonnele Ave. (Journal Square), Jersey City. 1½ and 2½ rooms, no lease, no security, hotel and maid service. C & E, Elevator, $30 per week and up.
DIAL 201 HE 5-0121

TRANS-LUX TELEVISION CORP.
presents
Mack and Myer for Hire
Write, wire or phone today for Audition Print!
625 Madison Ave., N.Y.C.
Phone PL 1-3110
© MCMLXIII Trans-Lux Television Corporation

AFM ROCKED BY CHI RACE ROW

State Dept.'s Cultural Exchange Omits Folk Music But Leventhal Fills Gap

American folk music, which has been omitted from the official cultural exchange program of the U.S. State Department, will be moving into Russia and other Communist countries as a private enterprise under impresario Harold Leventhal.

Just back from a trip to Moscow, where he joined Pete Seeger for his concert dates there. Leventhal has been given the go signal by governmental bureaus in the Soviet and Poland to bring over additional folk packages next year.

Although a private enterprise, there isn't much monetary profit in this venture for either Leventhal or the artists since the Russians do not permit coin of their realm to be exported. However, the Russians indicated that perhaps next year there would be some modest percentage of cash permitted for the upcoming folk packages.

In any case, the artists can enjoy an all-expenses once over of Russia for themselves and their families. Seeger is seeing the Soviet with his wife and children at no cost.

Leventhal already has set a tour for Leon Bibb in Russia starting in August. Bibb will also take his family. Next spring, the Leventhal packages will consist of a maximum of five folk singers and instrumentalists.

The bid to Leventhal was made after Seeger's click in Moscow, where the folksinger had the Russians joining in an American-type community-sing. Leventhal reported that the Russians are particularly interested in American guitar and banjo music.

Because of Russia's heavy accent on its own ethnic music, Seeger's concerts soft-pedal the "folksong" billing. Instead, he's been promoted as a singer of blues, ballads and cowboy songs.

Seeger, who has been the center of considerable political controversy in this country, was invited to Russia "as an artist and is being treated strictly as an artist," Leventhal said.

VICTOR'S LP TIEIN WITH GINN & CO. PUB FIRM

In cooperation with one of the country's leading textbook publishers, Ginn & Co., RCA Victor has launched a new children's educational series titled "Dance-a-Story." Initial release of four packages is aimed at the age group of three to 12 and has been developed with schools, dance studios, libraries, etc. as the potential market.

Anne Lief Barlin, a Coast dance educator, conceived the idea of the series. Each package contains a seven-inch LP containing original and story narration plus a printed illustrated text. First titles are "Noah's Ark," "The Magic Mountain" and "Balloons."

Texts have been written by Paul and Anne Barlin with music by Paul Schoop. Ray Sacher, manager of Victor's educational sales, is handling the merchandising operation.

Cap Ups Bob Taylor, Other Staff Shuffles

Bob Taylor has been named to the new post of eastern rack sales manager for Capitol Records Distributing Corp. He had been sales manager of Cap's branch in Boston.

In other staff appointments, Bob Keels was promoted from regional manager to service manager of the national sales department. Dick Miller succeeds Keels in the latter's former south-midwest territory.

George Osaki was upped to art director for Capitol, supervising the label's album covers.

German Disk Best Sellers

Frankfurt, April 21.

Darling Caroline (Telefunken)	Ronny
Hold Your Hand (Odeon)	Beatles
You Can't Forbid Me (CBS)	Spier
When Cowboys Dream (CBS)	Kilius
Lady Music (RCA)	March
Red Lips for Kissing (Columbia)	Richard
She Loves You (Odeon)	Beatles
America (Reprise)	Lopez
Place Beside Me (Polydor)	Distel
Mama (Telefunken)	Manuela

WMCA's Labunski Blasts Detractors Of R&R Formula

Who listens to the rock 'n' roll music on the formula music-and-news stations? According to many broadcasters who do not program music according to the bestselling charts, the audience for the popular music stations are teenagers and moppets who may have the power to swell rating figures, but do not pack much weight as customers.

Stephen B. Labunski, v.p. and general manager of WMCA, N.Y., one of the leading exponents of programming according to the charts, charges the conception that audiences of pop music stations are limited to "unruly kids or underprivileged adults," has never been established. Labunski, in fact, said that it was propaganda by those "broadcasters who have supported the mythology about popular music stations for competitive reasons."

Speaking last week before the New Mexico Broadcasters Assn. in the city of Albuquerque, the WMCA exec advised these broadcasters to "forgo the rabbit punches and concentrate on selling their own brand of radio."

Labunski warned the broadcasters that the radio industry lacked "the kind of margin which can assure us of uniform prosperity and strains of another 15 years of civil war" among station operators. False propaganda about the nature of the radio audience, he added, has been responsible for costing radio millions of dollars.

(Research data made by the disk manufacturers indicate that rock 'n' roll has an audience dispersed among all age groups, but the heaviest concentration of purchases of teen beat music takes place around the age of 16 and younger.)

Labunski asserted that the critics of the popular music stations have been resorting to all sorts of verbal gimmickry in trying to make their raps stick. "In many instances," he said, "name calling and instant labelling of radio stations is an easy substitute for precise definitions."

Vanguard Preems New Lowprice Longhair Line

Vanguard Records has launched a new line of lowpriced classical disks under the label of Everyman Classics. LPs will sell for $1.98 for monaural and $2.98 for stereo.

First release consists of five LPs featuring conductor Sir John Barbirolli and additional reissues of works conducted by Mogens Woldike. Vanguard is planning six more releases by Barbirolli as well as some additional reissues next fall.

LOCAL 10 CHIEF BLASTS KENIN

By MORRY ROTH

Chicago, April 21.

The metaphors flew fast last week as Barney Richards, prexy of Local 10, Chicago Federation of Musicians, girded for a showdown fight with American Federation of Musicians chief Herman Kenin on the issue of a national "order" delaying until 1966 a merger of Local 10 with Chi Negro Local 208.

In a press conference at the CFM h.q., Richards accused Kenin of "pulling the rug out from under union integration hopes" and "putting Local 10 out on an integration limb and sawing it off." Richards plans to make a floor fight of the issue at the AFM national convention in June at Portland, Oregon.

The issue was joined April 1, when after 15 months of merger negotiations in Chi, both Windy City locals sent detailed proposals to the AFM national office, presumably for Kenin to arbitrate those issues that had not been resolved a the bargaining table.

Instead, Kenin, on April 8, sent back a merger plan of his own that delays the start of integration of the two locals until 1966 and which will not be completed until 1972. It's considered a certainty by Local 10 execs that the "compromise" will make for eight years of sniping and infighting between the half-wedded locals.

The Kenin order is considered to be a victory for Harry Gray, longtime head of Negro Local 208. Gray, who almost saw his 62-year-old local swallowed up in the integration wave of a year ago, has won two more years of autonomy and an additional six years of mandatory executive board power in the merged local.

Calls Move 'Political'

Richards told reporters that the Kenin order was a political move. "Kenin is stalling in order to buy votes for the next national election, which by no coincidence is before the start of the merger proposal," the Chi tooter chief said.

"Kenin is trying to placate those Negro locals who are protecting vested interests and those white locals who don't want to 'integrate,'" Richards charged. He added that the AFM, according to the national bylaws, had no authority to "order" the terms of the merger, but could only recommend.

One potentially explosive item that came from the news conference was a statement by Francis Heisler, Richards' attorney, that Kenin had admitted that the mandatory Negro membership on the board of the merged local was illegal under existing labor laws, but that Kenin had "discussed the matter with the U. S. Attorney General's office and they will stay out of the matter."

The Kenin delayed-action merger order applies the needle to Local 10 in its first paragraph. In calling the merged local "Chicago Federation of Musicians' Protective Union, Local 10-208, A.F. of M.," it gives equal billing in perpetuity to the 11,000-member Local 10 and the 1,000-member Local 208. This undercuts Richards' assertions to his own members that they would suffer no loss of identity in the merger.

The order sets up a Joint Executive Advisory Committee consisting of the prexy, veepee, recording secretary and financial secretary if Local 10 and the president, vee-

(Continued on page 134)

BULGARIA BIDS YANK DISKERIES JOIN EXHIBIT

The Bulgarian government, behind the Iron Curtain, is inviting American disk manufacturers and distributors to participate in an international exhibit "of all genres of Music" at Varna, Bulgaria, during June.

The U.S. legation in Sofia is handling requests for information from U.S. disk companies.

Court's Denial of Indie TV B'casters' Bid for Syndie & Film Show License Exemption Gives ASCAP Decisive Win

British Disk Best Sellers

London, April 14.

Can't Buy Me Love (Parlophone)	Beatles
World Without Love (Columbia)	Peter & Gordon
I Believe (Decca)	Bachelors
Little Children (Parlophone)	Dakotas
Just One Look (Parlophone)	Hollies
Not Fade Away (Decca)	Rolling Stones
I Love You Because (RCA-Victor)	Reeves
Tell Me When (Decca)	Applejacks
Girl Belongs Yesterday (United Artists)	Pitney
Bits and Pieces (Columbia)	Clark Five

Kaye Dissects Anatomy of His 'Charade' Disclick

"Never give up in the contemporary music business" is a motto that is paying off for Sammy Kaye, veteran danceband leader whose last big disk hit occurred before the advent of rock 'n' roll. But after a long lockout from the best-seller lists, he is coming up strongly with a single hit in "Charade" for Decca.

Kaye's impact with "Charade" developed despite the fact that over two dozen versions of this tune were on the market before his hit, including one by composer Hank Mancini. But where the other disks were done in waltz tempo, Kaye's arranger, Charlie Albertine, came up with a fox-trot slice that is picking up the action.

Kaye concedes that since he couldn't beat the rock 'n' rollers, he joined them, partially at least. For "Charade," he added some guitars and an additional drummer to his orch to get the kind of beat which the teenagers are buying. He said that the only instrumental sound today is "guitar and drums and more guitar and drums."

He hopes the parlay of his more polished arrangements with the teen sound will provide a wedge for the comeback of classier music. "But I'm through making predictions about good music coming back," Kaye opined after long experience with rock 'n' roll's capacity for survival. "Maybe if my next record also comes up as a hit, we can take that as a sign of better things to come."

In the meantime, Kaye's click on "Charade," has already perked action on his personal appearance tour which started Friday (17) in Memphis and will run for several months. The tour was lined up before the disk broke through, but the bandleader has been receiving numerous inquiries from promoters and disk jockeys about his availabilities.

The launching pad for Kaye's "Charade" can be pinpointed at KCOP, Hollywood, on Lloyd Thaxter's music judging show. The slice was then picked up in San Francisco and then spread to the midwest. It's now in the process of moving into the eastern Top 40 charts.

Chiefly responsible for putting out the record was Milt Gabler, Decca's artists & repertoire chief, who cut an album session with Kaye and saw extra single potential in the "Charade" sound.

The American Society of Composers, Authors & Publishers won a signal victory in N.Y. Federal Court last week when the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals dismissed a bid by the independent tv broadcasters to compel ASCAP to issue per-program licenses that would exclude syndicated and film shows, which constitute about 68% of tv's non-network programming.

Ruling represents a decisive strengthening of ASCAP's position against the whole field of broadcasters who are besieging the Society currently for lower blanket license rates and new forms of per-program deals.

While the three-man court agreed that a strict literal reading of the antitrust consent decree would require ASCAP to qoute a fee for any type of license requested, "such a reading ignores both context and good sense." the tribunal held. The only specific requirement, according to the court, is that ASCAP give a "genuine economic choice between per-program and blanket licenses."

The court ruled, however, that nothing in the decree "requires a license which excludes programs recorded by producers or, for that matter, distributed by networks." Network programs are however, excluded from ASCAP's deals with individual stations since the webs arrange for the performance rights on network-originated shows.

The court said that the consent decree orders ASCAP to grant licenses that will "permit" networks and producers to clear at the programming source. This ASCAP has done. The indie tv stations now, however, are demanding a license which, as a practical matter, would "require" the producers to clear music at the source, the court noted.

Perhaps of paramount importance to ASCAP was the section of the opinion which appeared to give some support to the Society's contention that the broadcasters' bid for this type of per-program license would help ASCAP's arch foe, Broadcast Music Inc.

The bench said, in rejecting the bid of the tv broadcasters: "We are faced with ASCAP's answer that the relief sought by appellants (broadcasters) would be seriously detrimental to independent music writers and would itself adversely affect competition by facilitating the activities of BMI, a music licensing and publishing organization controlled by the combined television and radio broadcasting industry." (Actually, BMI gave up its publishing operations several years ago).

CBS Radio's bid, meantime, for a per-program license will await a meeting with ASCAP in N.Y. Federal Court May 20. At that time, both parties are to submit memoranda detailing the economic basis for their various claims.

COL GROOVES 'WHISTLE' DESPITE SHOW'S FOLD

Despite the fast fold of the Broadway musical, "Anyone Can Whistle," Columbia Records proceeded to put the show into the groove last week under direction of the diskery's prexy, Goddard Lieberson.

A similar decision was made in 1956 when Columbia released the cast album of "Candide" despite a short run on Broadway. Latter LP has since turned into a solid catalog item despite the fate of the original show.

Columbia Records invested $50,000 in the "Anyone Can Whistle" production. An equal amount was tup up by Williamson Music which publishes the Stephen Sondheim score.

'High Spirits' Cast Set, Kai Winding, Christy Minstrels' 'Today,' Atkins, Stafford, Valente Top New LPs

BEATRICE LILLIE - TAMMY GRIMES - EDWARD WOODWARD: "HIGH SPIRITS" (ABC-Paramount). This label's first original cast album looks like a big hit at the boxoffice and will undoubtedly repeat over the counter. A brightly swinging score by Hugh Martin and Timothy Gray gets a standout performance by the cast principals. Tammy Grimes has excellent numbers in "You'd Better Leave" and "Something Tells Me." She also turns up in some fine duets with Edward Woodward on "I Know Your Heart," "Forever And A Day" and "What In The World Did You Want." In the special material vein, Beatrice Lillie contributes high spots with her savvy renditions of "The Bicycle Song," "Go Into Your Trance" and "Talking To You." Woodward and Louise Troy also have excellent numbers in "If I Save You" and "Where Is The Man I Married."

KAI WINDING: "MONDO CANE NO. 2" (Verve). This is a solid followup to Kai Winding's click with "More," the background theme from the film, "Mondo Cane." Once again, Winding has come up with a nifty instrumental session. The title song's a driving beat sets the general rhythmic format as this set rocks through a dozen numbers. Standout are "Till," "The Moldau," "Portrait of My Love," "Blue Star" and "The Struggle." Winding's work on the high-pitched ondioline instrument is conspicuously featured.

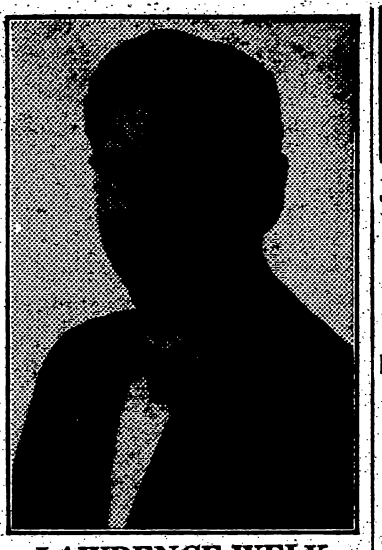
NEW CHRISTY MINSTRELS: "TODAY" (Columbia). This collection of folk songs has been taken from the MGM film, "Advance To The Rear," which features the New Christy Minstrels on the soundtrack. It's a rollicking songalog with a heavy accent on marching motifs, such as "Company of Cowards," "Whistlin' Dixie," "Company Q Whistle March" and "This Ol' Riverboat." A very pretty ballad, "Today," has potential as a pop single.

"THE BEST OF CHET ATKINS" (RCA Victor). The boss of RCA Victor's Nashville operation, Chet Atkins, also happens to be one of the best guitar players in the business. Although country-born, he has developed into a very sophisticated instrumentalist capable of generating a striking number of effects out of his instrument. In this set, he runs through a superb program, including "The Jitterbug Waltz," "Peanut Vendor," "Swedish Rhapsody," "Vanessa," "Malaguena," "Meet Mister Callaghan" and "Main Street Breakdown." He's supported by various combos and orchestral ensembles.

JO STAFFORD: "SWEET HOUR OF PRAYER" (Capitol). Back again with Capitol, Jo Stafford has come through with a fine religioso songalog. Backed by a large choir and organ, Miss Stafford delivers with a straightforward, sincere style that is perfectly tailored to these hymns, both traditional and contemporary. Standout are "When The Roll Is Called Up Yonder," "Sweet By and By," "The Ninety and Nine," "How Great Thou Art" and the title song.

CATERINA VALENTE: "SONGS I'VE SUNG ON THE PERRY COMO SHOW" (London). This is a nice array of ballads and uptempo items from a familiar sonbag, dished up pleasantly by chirper Caterina Valente. Johnny Keating has arranged and conducted the session deftly, providing some fine backings for the singer which keep her firmly in the spotlight. Miss Valente delivers with savvy as she warbles such as "Make Someone Happy," "Blue Moon," "Falling In Love With Love" as well as other faves and some Spanish items. All register strongly, setting the LP up for nifty sales potential.

BARBARA CARROLL: "HELLO, DOLLY" & "WHAT MAKES SAMMY RUN" (Warner Bros.). Jazz pianist Barbara Carroll has a solid session going for her with this tune array from the Broadway shows "Hello, Dolly" and "What Makes Sammy Run." Backed by an orchestra under the baton of Glenn Osser, who also arranged the set, Miss Carroll displays her light touch on the 88er with swinging ease and the orch backs handsomely making this a solid musical slice. Tunes include "Friendliest Thing," "Room Without Windows," "My Home Town," "Hello, Dolly," "It Only Takes a Moment" and others.



BOOTS RANDOLPH: "HIP BOOTS" (Monument). This is a swinging set showcasing Boots Randolph's sax within the context of a small combo. This is not at all far-out jazz, but neither is it square. Randolph strikes a good balance, aiming for a wide audidence with his pleasing ensemble sound and a solid beat. The group hits a good level on such numbers as "Stack of Dollars," "Relaxin'," "Crazy Rhythm," "Three To Get Ready," "This Here" and "Gravy Waltz."

"POINT OF ORDER" (Columbia). Taken from the soundtrack of the current film made from television's coverage of the Army-McCarthy hearings of 1954, this disk is a brilliant audio documentary about one of the great turning points in American history. The personalities in this case are vividly projected in this LP in the cross-play of the testimony. Eric Sevareid's narration and some astute editing have turned this LP in a highly dramatic political play.

HARRY JAMES: "25th ANNIVERSARY ALBUM" (MGM). One of the holdovers of the swing era, Harry James' brand of trumpet-playing is still highly listenable. In this set, he has collected a dozen of his top records featuring his own virtucsity against a well-disciplined big band. Included are such familiar numbers as "You Made Me Love You," "Ciribiribin," "Sunday Morning," "Take The A Train," "King Porter Stomp" and "The Jazz Connoisseur."

"THIS IS JUDY BRIGHT" (Dot). Judy Bright is a promising young songstress in the folk genre. She has an excelelnt voice which gives her considerable range and flexibility. But lacking at this point is recognizable style. In her debut album, Miss Bright attempts a flock of folk songs, including several from overseas, in which her personality gets lost in the variety of the material. By far the best piece in the set is "Jane, Jane."

DICK ROSMINI: "12 STRING, SIX STRING AND BANJO" (Elektra). Dick Rosmini is a savvy musician who gives a nifty display of folk and blues interpertations on guitar and banjo with this session. As the title indicates, he strums both 12 string and six string guitar, as well as the banjo. He handles each with dexterity, making this a spirited and often-exciting album. His technique is quick and sure and the melodic content of his playing is likewise strong, making this a fine musical outing which should enjoy solid response among string instrument fans.

LAWRENCE WELK
Presents His New Hit DOT ALBUM
"EARLY HITS OF 1964"

Band Review

ROCKY ROBERTS & AIREDALES (6)
Keur Samba, Paris

Doug Fowlkes created an r&b Twist and rock outfit while in the U.S. Navy and won a prize at a French fest on the Riviera in 1961. On discharge he formed his present group and bowed out as a player. His original outfit was racially mixed, but this one is all-Negro.

Fowlkes helped intro various Twist numbers here after leaving the Navy. Then he returned to the U.S., where he assembled his present group and did only the managing and arranging. Crew played the Roundtable, N.Y., for 27 weeks before coming over last October and going into a local boite, the Keur Samba.

On Barclay disks here, the group has begun selling. Band is also making an impact with a heavier and meatier r&b sound that is not too well known here where twist and rock are more prevalent. Two saxes, an electric bass, an organ and drums comprise the instruments.

Rocky Roberts, the orch's vocalist, has a piercing, deft style and rhythm backed by expert stance. Crew also gives out with a pocket 26-minute show that has ballads but mostly solid r&b numbers plus Roberts' fine vocalizing and terping with some help from the band. Roberts can also do well by a ballad even if his forte is r&b.

Band has Roberts on vocals, Eddie Taylor and Hank Hooks on saxes, Wess Johnson on bass, Jesse King on organ and Mel Glover on drums. They hail from Philadelphia, Birmingham and Norfolk. Fowlkes is from Virginia. Group will play the Palm Beach Casino in Cannes during the coming Cannes Fest, then return to the Keur Samba before some more European dates before heading stateside again. Mosk.

GARNER'S COLLEGE TOUR

Pianist Erroll Garner kicks off his college concert tour Friday (24) at West Virginia U., Morgantown, W. Va., after making several tv appearances.

GAC booked the tour, Garner's first since returning from Europe a couple of months ago.

Longplay Shorts

Leonard Pennario, who recorded for Capitol for 12 years before joining RCA Victor in 1962, has passed the 1,000,000 mark in LP sales for Capitol for which he cut over 40 albums . . . Ed Thrasher has been named art director for Warner Bros. Records . . . WB label has acquired the soundtrack to the film, "Yesterday, Today and Tomorrow". . . RCA Victor will record a concert version of Wagner's "Lohengrin" with the Boston Symphony next year with Leontyne Price debuting in a Wagnerian role.

Nancy Ames, of NBC's "That Was The Week That Was," cutting a Spanish album for Liberty Records . . . Andy Williams' newest LP, "Call Me Irresponsible," released by Columbia shortly after the title tune copped the Oscar as 1963's best picture song . . Peter Nero flying back to New York, between concert dates, to work on his next album for RCA Victor . . . Tony Bennett recorded a performance at the Sahara Hotel, Las Vegas, for Columbia release this summer. It'll be a double-LP package.

Paul Anka returning to Germany to record a German language LP for Victor . . Pickwick International has launched a low-priced country & western label, Hilltop Records, with an initial release of 12 LPs . . . Tony Martin at Carnegie Hall released by 20th Century-Fox this week . . . Franc Records, a Washington, D.C., label, setting up a national distribution system . . . Edie Adams cutting her current act at the Waldorf-Astoria, N.Y., for a Capitol LP . . . Don Costa traveling from coast to coast to produce albums for Reprise, United Artists and Reprise.

Top Singles Of The Week

(The 'Best Bets' of This Week's 100-Plus Releases)

JULIUS LaROSA . . . . . JE
(Cadence) . . . . . Gonna Build A Mountain
Julius LaRosa's "Je" (Fanka) is a topdrawer piece of swinging material with a socko lyric which this singer belts in a style that could move him back into the bestseller lists. "Gonna Build A Mountain" (Ludlow†) gets a strong performance.*

* * *

PETER & GORDON . . . . . A WORLD WITHOUT LOVE
(Capitol) . . . . . If I Were You
Peter & Gordon's "A World Without Love" (Northern Songs) represents another high-flying British combo's try at the U.S. best-seller lists. This is a neat rocking ballad with a definite Beatles' sound. "If I Were You" (Noel Gay) shapes up at an okay ballad slice.*

* * *

TRINI LOPEZ . . . . . YA YA
(Reprise) . . . . . What Have I Got Of My Own
Trini Lopez's "Ya Ya" (Frost-Jonware†) is a catchy novelty slice delivered in this singer's customary appealing style for big pop returns. "What Have I Got Of My Own" (Sawtell & Herring) is a rocking ballad with an interesting lyric.*

* * *

THE BEATLES . . . . . LOVE ME DO
(Tollie) . . . . . P.S. I Love You
The Beatles' "Love Me Do" (Beachwood†) spotlights the British combo on still another rocking number. It should cash in on their current popularity even though these sides were cut some time before they moved on the Capitol label. "P.S. I Love You" (Beachwood†) also is in the same commercial groove.

* * *

CHRIS CROSBY . . . . . ALL I DO IS DREAM OF YOU
(MGM) . . . . . Tomorrow
Chris Crosby's "All I Do Is Dream of You" (Robbins) shapes up as a nifty rocking version of this standard by a young singer who fits the current market pattern perfectly. "Tomorrow" (Four Star†) is a lilting ballad side with good potential.*

* * *

CHAD MITCHELL TRIO . . . . . BARRY'S BOYS
(Mercury) . . . . . What Did You Learn In School Today
Chad Mitchell Trio's "Bary's Boys" (B.F. Wood) is a deceptively goodnatured rib of Barry Goldwater's politics. But this deflating type of humor, if the number catches on, may seriously cut into the Republican Senator's bid for the White House. "What Did You Learn In School Today" (Teena*) is another clever piece of social commentary. Both sides are extracted from the Mitchell group's LP, "Reflection."*

* * *

WAYNE NEWTON . . WHEN THE SAINTS GO MARCHIN' IN (Capitol) . . . . . Bill Bailey
Wayne Newton's "When The Saints Go Marchin' In" (T.M.†) gives this traditional number a rousing workover that could send it winging high on the pop lists. "Bill Bailey" (T.M.†) is another much recorded oldie in a bright new rendition.

* * *

BRUCE STEEG . . . . . MANHATTAN FIESTA
(Syse) . . . . . Concerto For Swingers
Bruce Steeg's "Manhattan Fiesta" (Music, Music, Music) registers as a colorful instrumental entry with some attractive melodic ideas dished up sharply by this pianist with orchestral support. "Concerto For Swingers" (Music, Music, Music*) also makes the grade as a classy instrumental.*

* * *

MICHEL LeGRAND . . . COME RAY AND COME CHARLES
(Philips) . . . . . Monkey Business
Michel LeGrand's "Come Ray and Comes Charles" (Dundee†) is a standout instrumental tribute to Ray Charles, impressing with its hard-driving beat and some shimmering violin effects for contrast. "Monkey Business" (Dundee†) changes pace with an easy-tempoed instrumental slice.

* * *

SKEETER DAVIS
GONNA GET ALONG WITHOUT YOU NOW
(RCA Victor) . . . . . Now You're Gone
Skeeter Davis' "Gonna Get Along Without You Now" (Reliance) is a nifty ballad with a lilting beat and a lyric which this songstress aims right at the teenage market. "Now You're Gone" (Moss Rose†) is a good country-flavored entry.*

* * *

ROOSEVELT GRIER . . . . . FOOL, FOOL, FOOL
(R.I.C.) . . . . . Since You've Been Gone
Roosevelt Grier's "Fool, Fool, Fool" (T.M.†) showcases this football professional as a savvy blues singer on a strong piece of material with rhythm & blues as well as pop potential. "Since You've Been Gone" (T.M.†) is also an interesting ballad well handled

* * *

BIG AL DOWNING . . . . . I'M JUST NOBODY
(Columbia) . . . . . All I Want Is You
Big Al Downing's "I'm Just Nobody" (Blackwood-Kansoma†) moves in a smoothly swinging groove as a fine rhythm number showcasing a singer in the Brook Benton genre. "All I Want Is You" (Valley Publishers†) is another interesting side with a bluesy quality.

* * *

BIG TINY LITTLE . . . . . TOM CAT
(Coral) . . . . . Hootenanny Granny
Big Tiny Little's "Tom Cat" (Ryerson†) shapes up as a clever entry with an infectious beat and a sharp lyric neatly arranged for chorus and piano lead. "Hootenanny Granny" (Brookhaven†) is an okay parlay of some ragtime and folk motifs.

* * *

MIKE SHELDON . . . . . OH, YOU BEAUTIFUL DOLL
(20th Century-Fox) . . . . . Bring Back The Girl
Mike Sheldon's "Oh, You Beautiful Doll" (Remick) comes across as one of the old-time, rooty-toot-toot slices which periodically pop up high on the bestseller lists. "Bring Back The Girl That Made Me Cry" (Silver Dollar†) is another brightly arranged rhythm entry.* Herm.

ASCAP. †BMI.*

VARIETY

SINGLE RECORD T.I.P.S.

(Tune Index of Performance & Sales)

This Wk.	Last Wk.	No. Wks. On Chart		Label
1	1	3	CAN'T BUY ME LOVE Beatles	Capitol
2	3	6	SUSPICION Terry Stafford	Crusader
3	2	6	TWIST & SHOUT Beatles	Tollie
4	4	8	HELLO DOLLY Louis Armstrong	Kapp
5	5	3	DO YOU WANT TO KNOW A SECRET Beatles	Vee Jay
6	6	5	CROOKED LITTLE MAN Serendipity Singers	Phillips
7	9	6	SHOOP SHOOP SONG Betty Everett	Vee Jay
8	17	3	BITS & PIECES Dave Clark Five	Epic
9	16	5	NEEDLES & PINS Searchers	Kapp
10	7	13	SHE LOVES YOU Beatles	Swan
11	8	8	GLAD ALL OVER Dave Clark Five	Epic
12	23	3	WHITE ON WHITE Danny Williams	UA
13	15	3	SHANGRI-LA Robert Maxwell	Decca
14	33	3	MY GUY Mary Wells	Motown
15	18	5	DEAD MAN'S CURVE Jan & Dean	Liberty
16	19	6	MONEY Kingsmen	Wand
17	10	8	MY HEART BELONGS TO YOU Bobby Vinton	Epic
18	21	3	FOREVER Pete Drake	Smash
19	28	3	YOU'RE A WONDERFUL ONE Marvin Gaye	Tamla
20	13	6	THE WAY YOU DO THINGS Temptations	Gordy
21	35	3	THAT'S THE WAY BOYS ARE Lesley Gore	Mercury
22	12	10	PLEASE PLEASE ME Beatles	Vee Jay
23	11	14	I WANT TO HOLD YOUR HAND Beatles	Capitol
24	14	9	FUN FUN FUN Beach Boys	Capitol
25	31	5	THINK Brenda Lee	Decca
26	30	3	THANK YOU GIRL Beatles	Vee Jay
27	27	3	ROLL OVER BEETHOVEN Beatles	Capitol of Canada
28	39	3	EBB TIDE Lenny Welch	Cadence
29	25	8	HI HEEL SNEAKERS Tommy Tucker	Chess
30	24	9	KISSIN COUSINS Elvis Presley	Victor
31	26	3	HEY. BOBBA NEEDLE Chubby Checker	Parkway
32	46	2	IT'S OVER Roy Orbison	Monument
33	29	8	STAY Four Seasons	Vee Jay
34	—	1	AIN'T NOTHING YOU CAN DO Bobby Bland	Duke
35	22	11	DAWN (Go Away) Four Seasons	Philips
36	38	2	DON'T LET THE RAIN COME DOWN Serendipity Singers	Philips
37	32	5	NADINE Chuck Berry	Chess
38	20	14	JAVA Al Hirt	Victor
39	37	3	HIPPY HIPPY SHAKE Swinging Blue Jeans	Imperial
40	47	2	RONNIE Four Seasons	Phillips
41	34	3	ALL MY LOVING Beatles	Capitol of Canada
42	—	1	COME TO ME Otis Redding	Volt
43	—	1	WRONG FOR EACH OTHER Andy Williams	Columbia
44	42	3	TELL IT ON THE MOUNTAIN Peter, Paul & Mary	W. B.
45	—	1	COTTON CANDY Al Hirt	Victor
46	48	2	MAKE ME FORGET Bobby Rydell	Cameo
47	43	6	I SAW HER STANDING THERE Beatles	Capitol
48	41	10	PUPPY LOVE Barbara Lewis	Atlantic
49	44	8	FROM ME TO YOU Beatles	Vee Jay
50	36	2	T'AINT NOTHIN' TO ME Coasters	Atco

BRITONS DIG PP&M IN 1ST LONDON CONCERT

London, April 21.

Britisher's feeling for folk music, which may not be as pronounced as that of an American college campus crew, was sufficient for presenters John Coast and Donald Langdon to post the SRO notices at the Royal Festival Hall for a Sunday (12) afternoon concert by Peter, Paul & Mary.

Thunderously received, the trio unwound a score of folksy numbers and lightened the mix with some smart comedy in a two-hour bash that was an ample feast for even the most ardent folk fan.

Standout were such numbers as "Blowin' In The Wind," "Tell It on the Mountain," "This Is Your Land" and "Don't Think Twice." Of marticular musical merit was Peter's solo "The Pacifist," which he rendered en francais.

Ably abetting PP&M in their first London concert was British bassist Peter McGurk who blended effortlessly into the guitar rhythms spun by the trio.

Watt.

Col Shifts Rosner

David Rosner has moved over to Columbia Records' publishing subsidiaries as administrative assistant to Davis Kapralik, general manager of the April-Blackwood firms.

Rosner had been merchandising manager of single records for Columbia for the past two years.

Legal Guide

Continued from page 2

quickly find the one you want. Lawyers and other contract technicians in the entertainment field are usually too hectic (it's the nature of the biz) to have their own forms neatly cataloged and ready to hand, nor can many (if any) of them have so comprehensive and excellent a set.

Lindey also includes sections giving advice in the fields of entertainment, publishing and the arts to the practicing attorney, as well as helpful references to decided cases and authorities dealing with the questions and problems covered by the forms. Most of his advice to lawyers is excellent, particularly that contained in his introduction, entitled "Let's Write Better Contracts."

Since, of course, nothing is perfect, the work is in some minor aspects lacking. The legal references are quite condensed—so that they may lead to some confusion. Some of the annotations could be a little more complete. For example, the statement that "a copyright can be transferred only as a whole" certainly is not true for tax purposes. Discussion of taxes is the big omission in this otherwise excellent book. All of these deals must, as a practical matter, be evaluated with tax consequences in mind.

Nothing is perfect but this comes close. Book contains legal blueprints for most of the deals VARIETY readers live by. In the words of Tin Pan Alley, "Who can (or should) ask for anything more?"

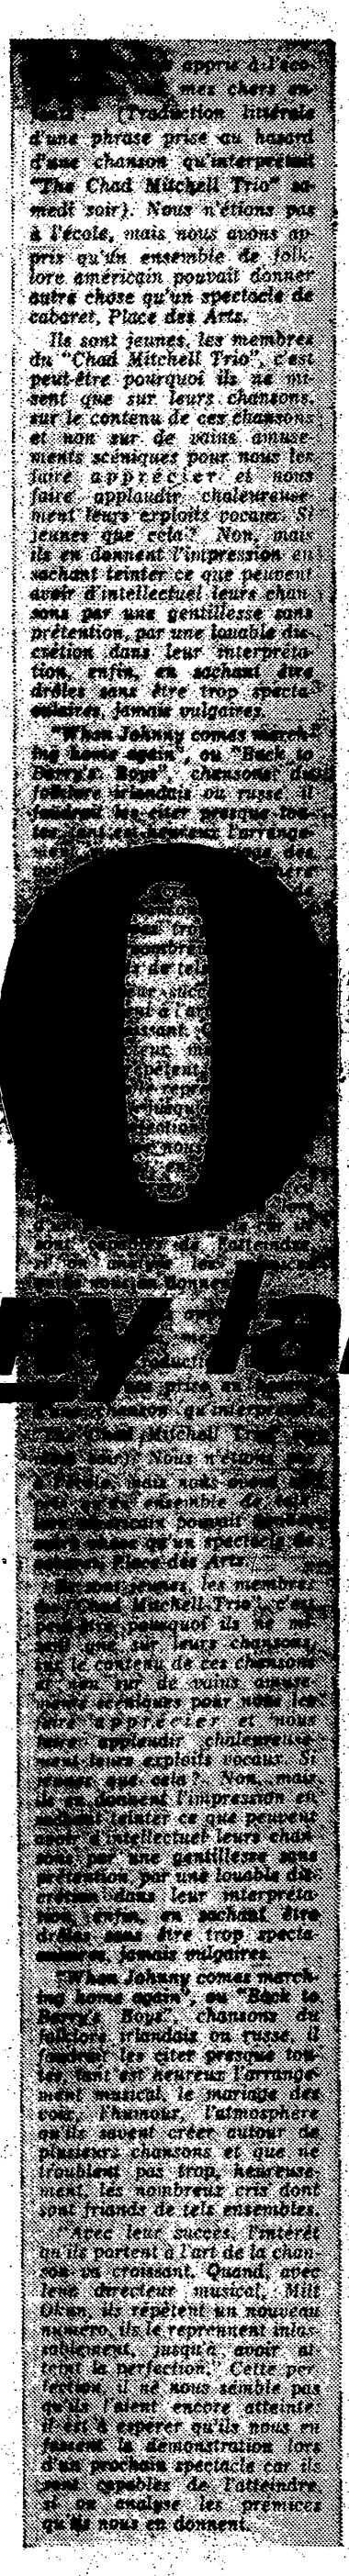
'Kelly' Musical

Continued from page 2

will most likely be an Embassy release, when and if made.

The producers are undertaking the project as individuals and not via their companies, Susskind and Melnick being partnered in Talent rights, a $500 payment having been made to secure same and the pic Associates-Paramount and Levine being prez of Embassy. They and Columbia Records are the principal investors along with some six others, names kept secret.

Roulette Records, which had been in on the financing of the show when Padula had it, is no longer involved. British actor Richard Harris, who had been mentioned for the lead under the prior administration, is also out. No cast or director signed.



Both Levine and Susskind have produced on Broadway but "Kelly" will be the first musical venture for either. Levine coproduced "Photo Finish" with Alfred de Liagre Jr. He is also the principal backer behind the Establishment Theatre Co., an off-Broadway project directed by Sybil Burton, actor Peter Cooke and producer Ivor David Balding.

VARIETY

ALBUM BESTSELLERS

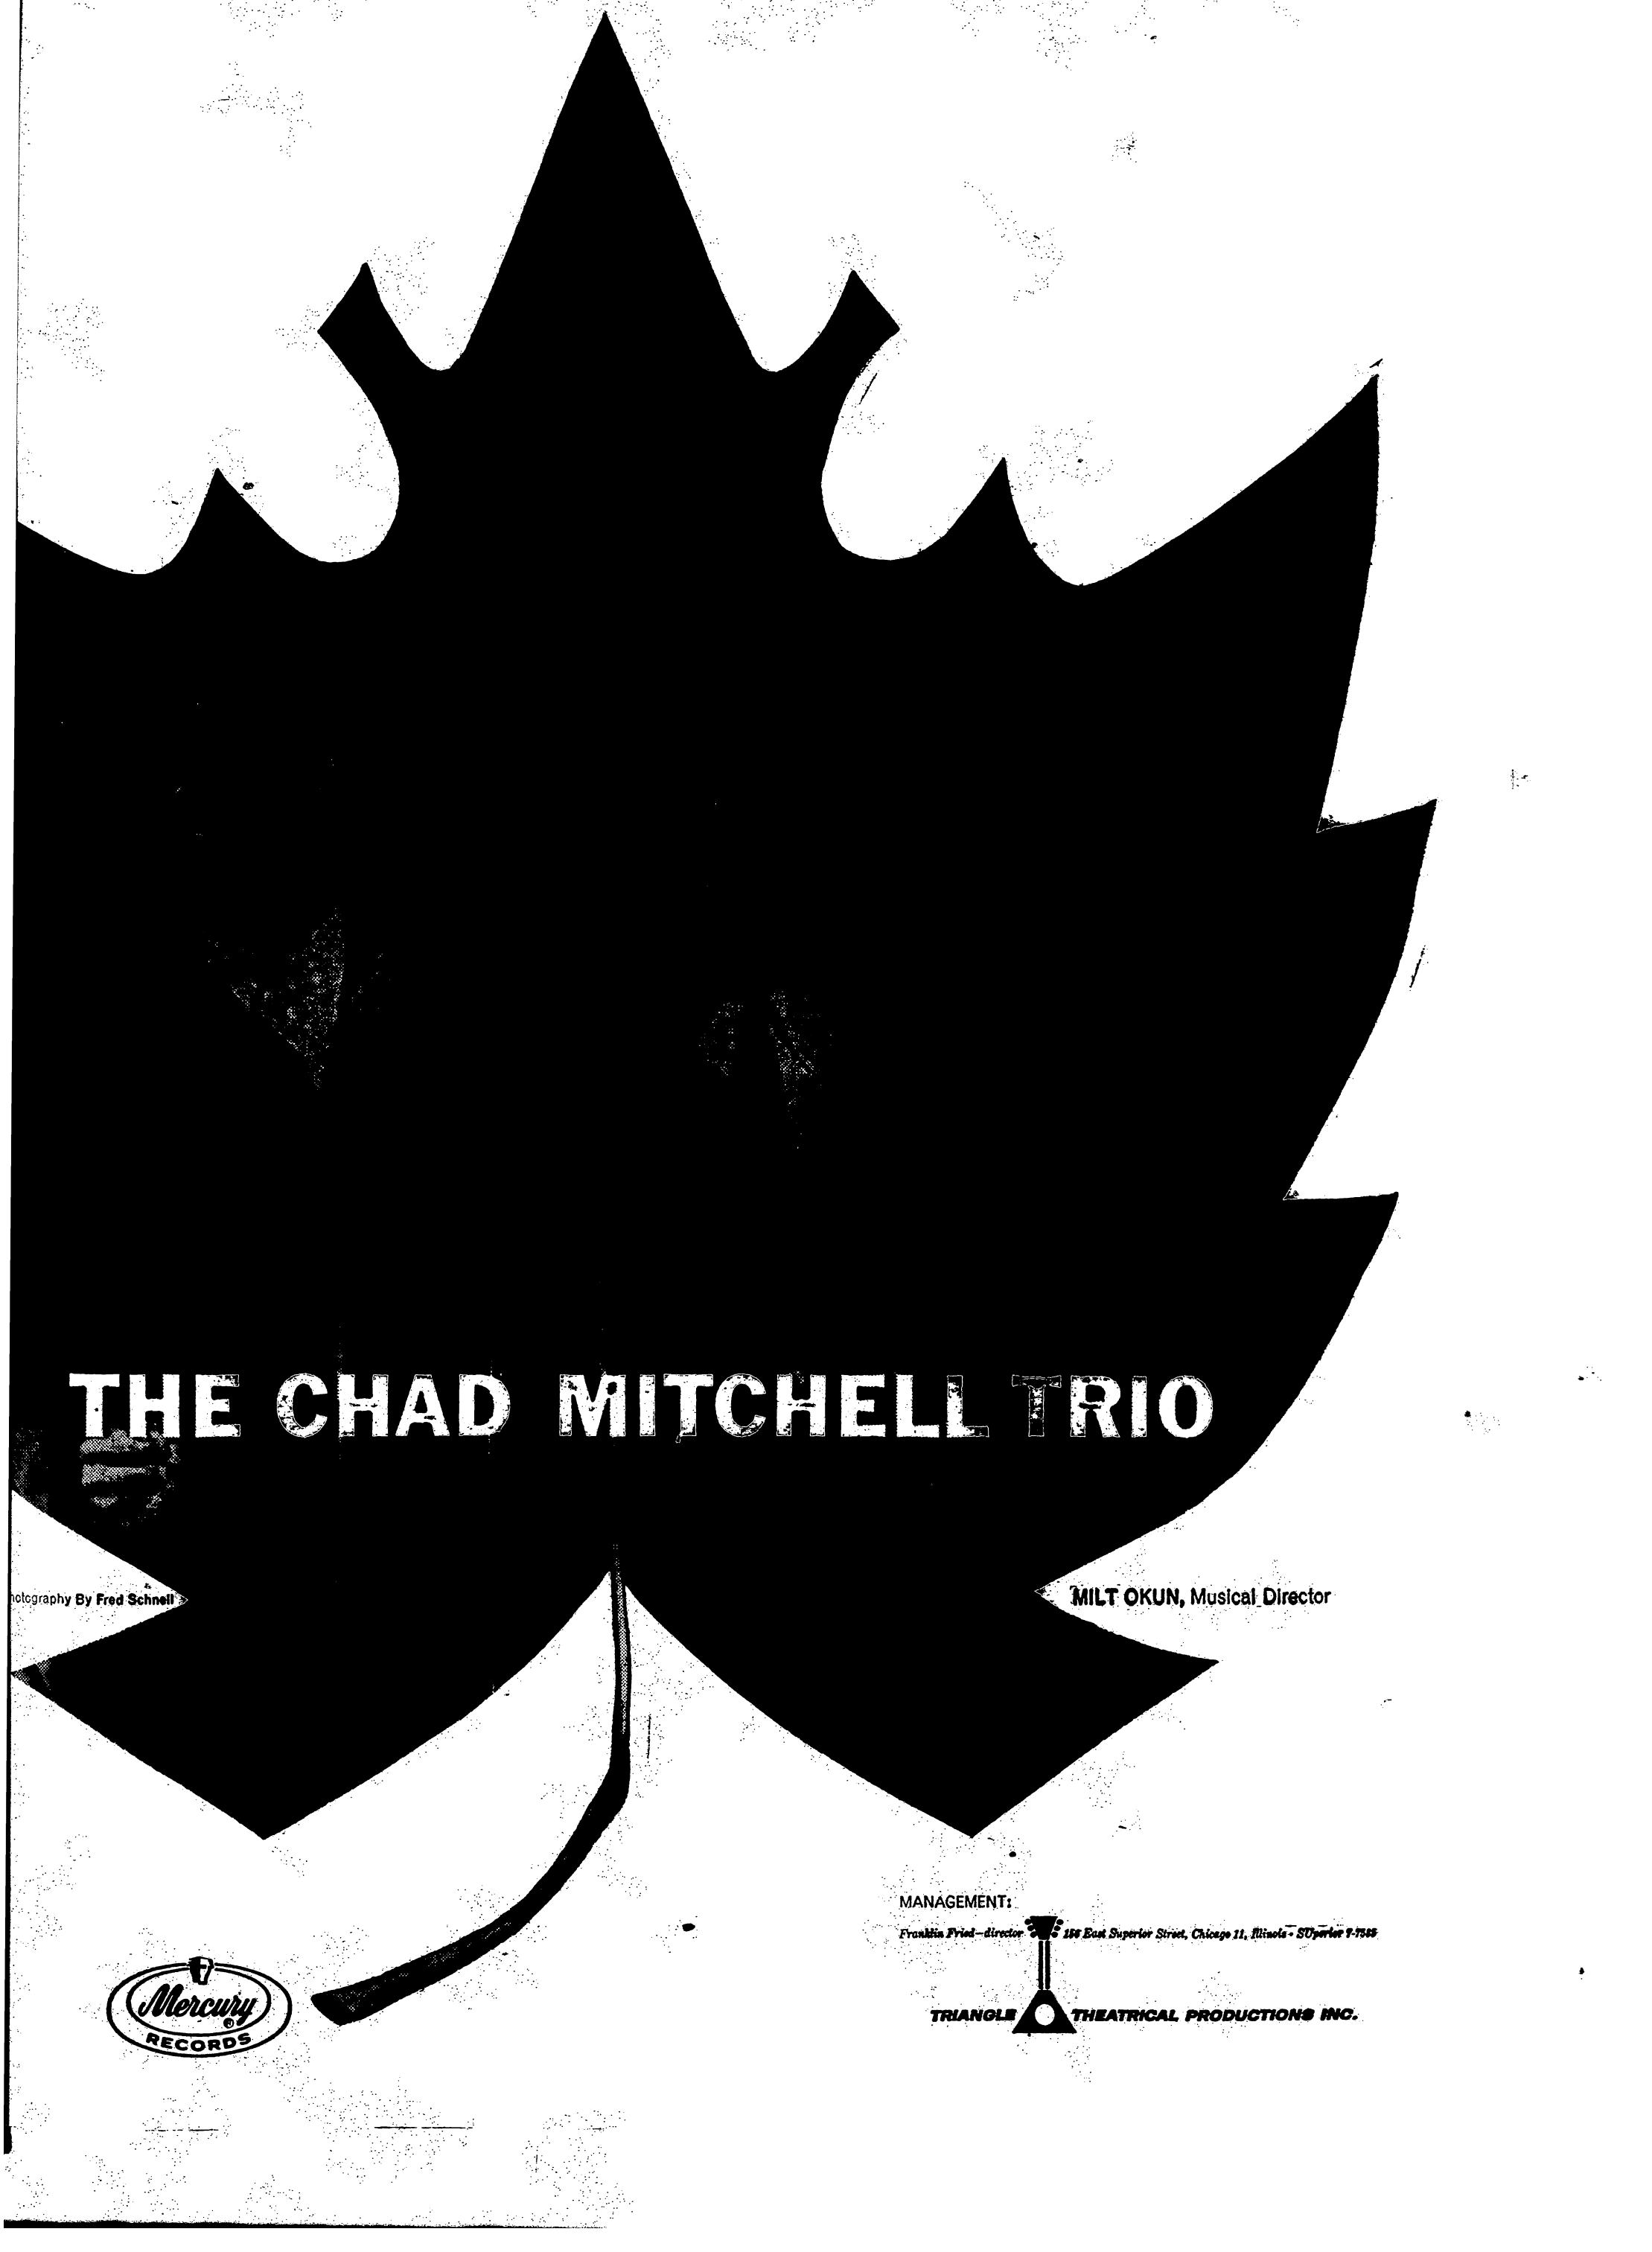
(A National Survey of Key Outlets)

This Wk.	Last Wk.	No. Wks. On Chart
1	1	13	BEATLES (Capitol) Meet the Beatles (T2047)
2	4	11	HELLO DOLLY (Victor) Original Cast (LOCD 1087)
3	2	24	AL HIRT (Victor) Honey in the Horn (LPM 2733)
4	5	8	BARBRA STREISAND (Columbia) Vol. III (CL 2154)
5	6	18	HENRY MANCINI (Victor) Charade (LPM 2755)
6	3	10	BEATLES (Vee Jay) Introducing Beatles (LP 1062)
7	7	27	PETER, PAUL & MARY (Warner Bros.) In the Wind (W 1507)
8	10	2	BEATLES (Capitol) Second Album (T 2060)
9	13	10	NANCY WILSON (Capitol) Yesterday's Love Songs (T 2012)
10	12	6	JOHN GARY (Victor) Encore (2836)
11	18	3	SERENDIPITY SINGERS (Phillips) PHM (200-115)
12	16	3	ELVIS PRESLEY (Victor) Kissin' Cousins (LPM 2894)
13	9	13	ANDY WILLIAMS (Columbia) Wonderful World of (CL 2137)
14	8	37	JOAN BAEZ (Vanguard) Vol. II (URS 9094)
15	11	11	AL MARTINO (Capitol) Living A Lie (T 1975)
16	22	2	DAVE CLARK FIVE (Epic) Glad All Over (LN 24093)
17	14	31	BARBRA STREISAND (Columbia) Volume II (CL 2054)
18	25	13	KINGSTON TRIO (Capitol) Time to Think (T 2011)
19	17	8	ROGER WILLIAMS (Kapp) Solid Gold Steinway (KL 1354)
20	49	4	NEW CHRISTY MINSTRELS (Columbia) Today (CL 2159)
21	39	23	JOHN GARY (Victor) Catch a Rising Star (LPM 2745)
22	21	128	WEST SIDE STORY (Columbia) Soundtrack (OL 5670)
23	26	5	RAY CHARLES (ABC-Par) Sweet & Sour (480)
24	20	6	BOB DYLAN (Columbia) Times Are Changing (CL 2105)
25	19	3	LAWRENCE WELK (Dot) Early Hits of '64 (DLP 3572)
26	—	1	ALAN SHERMAN (Warner Bros.) In Wonderland (W 1539)
27	15	13	JACK JONES (Kapp) Wives and Lovers (1352)
28	—	1	FUNNY GIRL (Capitol) Original Cast (VAS 2059)
29	40	2	JERRY VALE (Columbia) Till the End of Time (CL 2116)
30	29	9	JOHNNY MATHIS (Mercury) Tender Is the Night (MG 20890)
31	48	14	LAWRENCE WELK (Dot) Wonderful Wonderful (DLP 3552)
32	33	2	BOBBY VINTON (Epic) There I've Said It Again (LN 24081)
33	27	2	BEACH BOYS (Capitol) Shut Down, Vol. II (T 2027)
34	34	3	CHAD MITCHELL TRIO (Mercury) Reflecting (MG 20891)
35	—	1	TOM JONES (UA) Soundtrack (UAL 4113)
36	—	51	HOW THE WEST WAS WON (MGM) Soundtrack (1E5)
37	—	1	SHANGRI-LA (Decca) Robert Maxwell & Orch. (DL 4421)
38	23	2	FOUR SEASONS (Philips) Dawn (PHM 200-124)
39	38	11	KINGSMEN (Wand) Louie Louie (657)
40	42	5	AL HIRT & ANNE-MARGARET (Victor) Beauty & the Beard (LPM 2690)
41	28	23	THE SINGING NUN (Philips) Soeur Sourire (PCC 203)
42	44	54	ANDY WILLIAMS (Columbia) Days of Wine & Roses (CL 2015)
43	24	19	SMOTHERS BROS. (Mercury) Curb Your Tongue, Knave (MG 20862)
44	36	55	ROY ORBISON (Monument) Greatest Hits (MLP 8000)
45	47	25	SWINGLE SINGERS (Philips) Bach's Greatest Hits (PHM 200-097)
46	31	2	HENRY MANCINI (Victor) Pink Panther (LPM 2795)
47	37	2	WHAT MAKES SAMMY RUN (Columbia) Original Cast (KOL 6040)
48	32	2	JOHNNY CASH (Columbia) Ring of Fire (CL 2053)
49	30	19	ELVIS PRESLEY (Victor) Fun in Acapulco (LSP 2756)
50	35	13	VENTURES (Dolton) In Space (2027)

[redacted] apprit à l'école, [redacted] mes chers enfants." (Traduction littérale d'une phrase prise au hasard d'une chanson qu'interprétait "The Chad Mitchell Trio" samedi soir). Nous n'étions pas à l'école, mais nous avons appris qu'un ensemble de folklore américain pouvait donner autre chose qu'un spectacle de cabaret, Place des Arts.

Ils sont jeunes, les membres du "Chad Mitchell Trio", c'est peut-être pourquoi ils ne misent que sur leurs chansons, sur le contenu de ces chansons et non sur de vains amusements scéniques pour nous les faire apprécier et nous faire applaudir chaleureusement leurs exploits vocaux. Si jeunes que cela? Non, mais ils en donnent l'impression en sachant teinter ce que peuvent avoir d'intellectuel leurs chansons par une gentillesse sans prétention, par une louable discrétion dans leur interprétation, enfin, en sachant être drôles sans être trop spécialisés, jamais vulgaires.

"When Johnny comes marching home again", ou "Back to Derry's Boys", chansons du folklore irlandais ou russe. Il faudrait les citer presque toutes, tant est heureux l'arrangement musical, le mariage des voix, l'humour, l'atmosphère qu'ils savent créer autour de plusieurs chansons et que ne troublent pas trop, heureusement, les nombreux cris dont sont friands de tels ensembles.



Avec leur succès, l'intérêt qu'ils portent à l'art de la chanson va croissant. Quand, avec leur directeur musical, Milt Okun, ils répètent un nouveau numéro, ils le reprennent inlassablement, jusqu'à avoir atteint la perfection. Cette perfection, il ne nous semble pas qu'ils l'aient encore atteinte: il est à espérer qu'ils nous en fassent la démonstration lors d'un prochain spectacle car ils sont capables de l'atteindre, si on analyse les prémices qu'ils nous en donnent.

their musicology is sharp-- their beat is great and they are provocative to say the least.

SOLID

in any language!

THE CHAD MITCHELL TRIO
Photography By Fred Schnell
MILT OKUN, Musical Director
MANAGEMENT:
Franklin Fried—director 188 East Superior Street, Chicago 11, Illinois • SUperior 7-7588
TRIANGLE THEATRICAL PRODUCTIONS INC.
Mercury RECORDS

On the Upbeat

New York

Jimmy McHugh and Dorothy Wayne commissioned to write the official Massachusetts State song . . . Gene Krupa opens a two-week stand at the Metropole May 4 . . . Disk jockey Murray Kaufman en route to England for personal appearances under arrangement of Brian Epstein, manager of the Beatles . . . Luciano Virgilli, Italian baritone, giving two performances at the Brooklyn Academy of Music Sunday (26).

MGM singer Johnny Tillotson playing the Three River Inn, Syracuse, through April 30 . . . 13-year-old blind harmonica player Stevie Wonder set for Ed Sullivan show May 3 . . . Glen Yarbrough, formerly with the Limeliters, signed a personal management deal with Kragen-Carroll . . . French composer-arranger Paul Durand, who arrived in the U.S. Sunday (19), headquartering at Mills Music . . . Composer Joseph Penna named music editor for E. B. Marks Music . . . Earl Wrightson & Lois Hunt booked for Plac Des Arts, Montreal, May 15.

London

Set for a big kickoff next month is Johnny Gregory's album of traditional Japanese tunes which has been released on Fontana in the U.S. . . . Lionel Conway of Leeds hospitalized . . . EMI releasing a Lena Horne album coincident with thrush's current Palladium visit . . . Hal Shaper, who recently set up his own outfit, Sparta Music, pacted with Jeff Kruger to handle all the new material on the Ember label.

R & B Disks, blue beat waxery, readying a new label called King . . . Ella Fitzgerald cut her first disk here for EMI. Norman Granz supervised, Britan's Johnny Spence arranged the numbers . . . Now an independent record producer is ex-Rolling Stones publicist Andrew Oldham . . . Brian Epstein writing his life story . . . Ex-pubber Max Diamond now managing a couple of beat groups, the Blackhawks and the Aristocrats . . . In dickers for a Soviet tour are British rhythm & blues exponents, The Animals.

Philadelphia

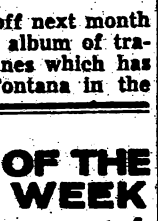
Johnny Mathis at the Latin Casino, Cherry Hill, N.J. through April 26 . . . Attorney Bob Borden presenting the Chad Mitchell Trio at the Academy of Music Friday (24) . . . The Searchers recorded Jimmy Wisner's "Don't Throw Your Love Away" . . . The Bill Black Combo into Dick Lee's today (Tues.) . . . Fats Domino at the Erie Social Club April 25-26 . . . Bobby Rydell opens at Sciolla's April 27 . . . The Four J's, formerly the Fabulous Four (Fabian's backing group) waxing for Jamie . . . Booker Nat Segall coordinating talent for the "Mark of Jazz," on WHYY-TV . . . Charlie Gracie held over at Curry's Clock.

Arthur Prysock current at Pep's, followed by Dizzy Gillespie, April 27-May 2; Michael Olatunji, May 4-9; Cannonball Adderley, May 11-16; Joe Williams, May 11-16; Maynard Ferguson, May 18-23. Jack Goldenberg, co-owner of the South St. jazz showcase, recuping from surgery in Hahnemann Hospital . . . The Clancy Bros. and Tommy Makem at the Academy of Music April 25.

Cameo-Parkway Records retrenching, and out in a shakeup are 10 staffers headed by Herman Caplan, national sales manager and Red Schwartz, national promotion chief . . . Al Alberts, just back from a European tour, slated to take off for Japan again . . . Attorney Bob Borden presenting the Chad Mitchell Trio at the Academy of Music, April 27 . . . Ray Charles set for Convention Hall May 1 . . . Ethel Merman opens at the Latin Casino, Cherry Hill, N. J., April 27 . . . Fats Domino works the Erie Social Club April 25-26 . . . The Four J's, formerly the Fabulous Four (Fabian's backing group) waxing for Jamie Records . . . Booker Nat Segall coordinating talent for "The Mark of Jazz" on WHYY.

Hurok's Symph Imports

Two first-time-in-States symphonies due for next season are the Japan and the British Broadcasting Co.'s ensembles. Both will tour for the Sol Hurok establishment.



A third foreign orchestra handled by Hurok will be the Warsaw Philharmonic, here once before in 1961.

The HIT! OF THE WEEK

GINNY ARNELL
SINGS
I WISH I KNEW WHAT DRESS TO WEAR
and
HE'S MY LITTLE DEVIL
K 13226

M-G-M Records

LOU POSEY ENTERTAINMENT
A.G.V.A. — A.F.M.
Top Agency for
- FINE BANDS
- FLOOR SHOWS
- CONVENTIONS
- TV STARS

"Want to hear directly from 'name' acts, bands, combos, pianists, jazz stars or your agent."

Representing TOMMY HENRICH'S and many top midwest clubs, conventions, concerts and industrials.

1822 Woodcrest Rd.
COLUMBUS 27, OHIO

THE DIAMONDS

March 11th thru April 7th—RIVIERA HOTEL, Las Vegas, Nev.
April 9th thru 11th—MATHER AFB, Sacramento, Calif.
April 17th thru 30th—WAGON WHEEL, Lake Tahoe, Nev.
June 19th thru 28th—CACTUS PETE'S, Jackpot, Nev.
August 3rd thru 16th—ROARING 20'S, Albuquerque, N. M.
August 17th thru September 6th—WORT HOTEL, Jackson, Wyoming
October 5th thru 17th—ISY'S SUPPER CLUB, Vancouver, B. C.

BOOKED EXCLUSIVELY BY ASSOCIATED BOOKING CORPORATION
JOE GLASER, President
50 WEST 57 STREET, NEW YORK 19 JUdson 2-7700
CHICAGO • MIAMI • BEVERLY HILLS • LAS VEGAS • DALLAS • LONDON

WOODY ALLEN JOINS COLPIX; OTHER PACTS

Woody Allen, young comic who has been playing the class nitery circuit after many tv appearances, has been signed to an exclusive deal by Colpix. Allen's recent performance at Mister Kelly's in Chicago has already been put into the groove by Colpix for release in June just prior to his taking over the host slot on the NBC-TV show for a week while Johnny Carson is vacationing.

Request: Little Singers of Tokyo

Little Singers of Tokyo, a children's group which has been touring the U.S., have been signed by H. J. Lengsfelder's Request Records. He's speeding up production of an LP to hit the market before the chorus of 31 boys and girls leave the country. They recently were received at the White House.

Epic: Godfrey Cambridge

Godfrey Cambridge, legit actor and comic, has been signed to Epic. His first LP will be released shortly.

Highwaymen Detour Live Dates June 1 to Pursue Fresh Vocational Goals

The Highwaymen, folksinging combo of the United Artists label, are winding up all live appearances June 1 but will continue to record together. Move was dictated by the fact that each member of the unit is striking out in new directions.

Bob Burnett is entering Harvard Law School; Steve Butts is working for his Ph. D. at Columbia U.; Charles Daniels is studying to become an actor; Gil Robbins is turning soloist; and Dave Fisher will be arranger-producer for GLG Productions.

International Talent Associates has been handling bookings for the group which is managed by Ken Greengrass.

Tin Pan Valley

By RED O'DONNELL

Nashville, April 21.

Pubbery-disk exec Wes Rose off to Hollywood this week for confabs with MGM execs in re "Your Cheating Heart," a biopic of late Hank Williams, with George Hamilton in starring role. Acuff-Rose tunes will be featured in film.

Brenda Lee (Mrs. Ronnie Shacklett) home from hospital, but prematurely-born daughter, Julie LeAnn, remains in hospital nursery, where she is showing daily improvement. Decca thrush is scheduled to resume personal apperances in July, according to present plans. She's set for four-week tour of England, starting Sept. 19.

Arranger Bill McElhiney to New York next week to go over material with Connie Francis, who'll do an MGM lp with Hank Williams Jr.

Young Hickory artist Kris Jensen, who has been ailing for past month with lung infection and ticker trouble, is on the mend sufficiently to resume his career.

Dallas Cowboy gridstar Buddy Dial due here Friday (24) to talk platter plans with Columbia a&r staffers Don Law and Frank Jones.

SHORT SHOTS

Leon MacAuliffe incoming for Capitol sesh . . . Singles production on the slow-speed at local studios, but a whole-lotta album cutting going on.

Skeeter Davis guests on Jimmy Dean's ABC-TVer April 30 . . . ASCAP's jill-of-all-trades in Nashville, Juanita Jones, elected treasurer of local chapter of American Women in Radio & Television . . . Smash released, "Fia, Fia" via Bill Justis, co-authored by Teddy Bart and Paul Wyatt.

Actress Joan Crawford arrives Saturday (25) for three-day visit. Nope, she isn't going to record! . . . Pete Fountain a sellout at Ryman Auditorium Friday (17) . . . All-night gospel sings (Fridays) doing SRO biz.

SESAC signed 10 pubberies: Continental, Maricopa, Bronze, Canyon, Circle, Santella, Two-B's, Poker, Peach and Musical Window . . . Owners-operators involved include artists Ferlin Husky, Wilburn Bros., Jimmy C. Newman, Dave Dudley, Peter Drake, Tommy Hill, Marty Robbins, Billy Walker and Buster Doss.

AFM Rocked By Chi Row

Continued from page 129

pee, secretary and treasurer of Local 208 to oversee the gradual integration.

It orders that neither Local 208 nor Local 10 shall induce or accept membership applications from persons who presently are members of the other local. Local 208 had protested throughout the negotiations that it was being "raided."

Membership Rules

The national mandate then states that from January, 1966, until January, 1969, three of the eight members of the executive board of the combined locals will be voted upon only by members of Local 208. The other five will be voted upon only by Local 10 members.

The order also sets up the office of administrative vice-president, a new office to be voted upon only by Local 208 members. Delegates to the national convention are to split evenly between the large and small locals.

The order requires that Local 10 hire two of the Local 208 business agents and two office staff members of the Negro local.

For the period Jan. 14, 1969, to January 10, 1972, the mandatory Local 208 membership on the board of the merged local drops from three to two, while Local 10 retains the same five seats.

Richards attacks the proposal at all levels. He maintains that, according to the AFM bylaws, the national office cannot "order" the terms of a merger, but only recommend. He claims that it sets up a segregated membership within the framework of a "so-called" merger, that it violates national and state anti-segregation labor laws, and that it contradicts the stated wishes of the general memberships of both locals for a "bona-fide merger at an early date."

Dual Member's Rap

Perhaps the bitterest indictment of the AFM order came from James Mack, a dual member of both Locals 10 and 208, and chairman of the Chicago Musicians for Harmonious Integration, the Negro group pressing for an immediate merger. Since his position is ex-officio as far as the union is concerned, his pronouncements were far more scathing than Richards' guarded but obvious anger at the situation.

"I find it offensive that the American Federation of Musicians would attempt to provide Negro officers to represent Negro members," he said. "There is no more justification in ordering 'guaranteed' representation by Negroes than ordering guaranteed representation by Irish, Italian, or Jewish members of the union."

When Mack was asked by reporters why the two locals weren't able to work out their differences in more than a year of negotiations, latterly under the supervision of Hal Davis, AFM chief in Philadelphia, Mack dismissed the Kenin-appointed mediator as "someone" who himself comes from a 'segregated' local."

Later conversations with Richards and an aide indicated that the rift between the national AFM leadership and that of the third largest local is deeper than just the merger issue. Richards is convinced that the merger order is an attempt to undermine his position with the members of his local.

Richards Vs. AFM Chiefs

He feels that the retribution stems from his unwillingness to participate in the inside politicking that marked the long career of his predecessor James C. Petrillo. At one juncture he said pointedly: "We are loyal to the American Federation to a point, but it must also be remembered that we are a registered Illinois corporation." The go-it-alone implication was obvious.

Whether justifiable or not, Richards thinks that his style of stewardship is threatening to the AFM leadership. Where Petrillo ran the local with an iron hand for three decades, Richards defeated him on a promise of union democracy and has pretty much delivered on his promise.

It has not been without difficulty, however, as the at-times conflicting interest of the sidemen, the symphony players, the studio musicians, the jobbing men, the location men, and other segments met head-on. Frequently, his solutions of differences proved the political axiom that a compromise is defined as a decision that suits no one.

Now, Richards maintains, the AFM is worried that the libertarian spirit prevailing in Local 10 might lap over into the politics of the national union.

Richards is also suspicious that Kenin "negotiated" the merger order with Local 208 chief Harry Gray at the same time as the bargaining was going on here. In this climate of mistrust, Richards will have to show his own membership that he hasn't been "taken."

There are elements in Local 10 (and 208) that would like to see a showdown fight now between Richards and Gray with Richards using using his considerable informal power over job distribution to force Gray to capitulate. Local 10, for instance, has control over the contracts with the radio and tv networks, with the Chicago Symphony, with the Lyric Opera orchestra, with the blurb filmeries, the Grant Park free concerts, and with the summer North Shore Ravinia Festival.

More likely, Richards will direct his members' anger at Kenin. If so, then he will have to step out of his role as The Great Compromiser and wade into Kenin at the National convention in June.

DONNA LYNN
New CAPITOL
Special Release
"JAVA-JONES"—(Java)
b/w "THINGS THAT I FEEL"
Management
JACK WOLF and "BUGS" BOWER
JU 6-5577

THIS YEAR'S ACADEMY AWARD WINNER
CALL ME IRRESPONSIBLE
PARAMOUNT MUSIC CORPORATION

What makes Sammy run and run and run?

A Room Without Windows
The Friendliest Thing
My Hometown.

Original Cast Album
Columbia
Barbara Carroll Album
Warner Bros.
Clark Terry Album
20th Century Fox

MMMMM

Two From Top Albums
BEE-BOM
"The Shelter of Your Arms"
SAMMY DAVIS JR.
(Reprise)
•
CARAVAN
"The Many Moods of Tony"
TONY BENNETT
(Columbia)
MILLS MUSIC, INC.
New York, N. Y. 10019

Opening April 21st

The new RCA Victor Recording Center in the Heart of Hollywood's Music Industry

6363 Sunset Boulevard

New Executive Offices and Sound Studios Will Co-ordinate All Planning, Recording and Manufacturing Operations on the West Coast. Soaring 9 stories above Hollywood's best address, RCA Victor's new West Coast headquarters is an ultra-modern addition to the local scene—both musically and architecturally. From its textured "floating tower" to its distinctive glass-enclosed lobby, it displays a luxurious feeling of light and space both inside and out—and incorporates today's most advanced concepts in studio design, equipment and sound. It will accommodate recording assignments of any size, from a soloist to a symphony, and is conveniently located at the hub of Hollywood's business community, within a few blocks of RCA's record manufacturing plant. We invite you to stop by and inspect our new home—the heart of Hollywood's music business.

RCA Victor

THE MOST TRUSTED NAME IN SOUND

Tahoe Fears Economic Downbeat If Cal-Neva Doesn't Renew Gambling

By ART LONG, JR.

Reno, April 21.

Whether the Cal-Neva Lodge on the north shore of Lake Tahoe will reopen for the summer season is the big question in the local gambling circles.

A check with the Navada Gaming Control Board, the agency charged with policing the state's lucrative gambling business and investigating potential licensees, reveals no applications are on file for a license at the Cal- Neva and "no overtures have been made" to the board indicating anyone is interested in operating the lodge.

The Cal-Neva, under the aegis of Frank Sinatra during the 1962-63 summer seasons, was shuttered late last September by the Nevada Gaming Commission (the control board's parent agency) on charges Sinatra "hosted" Sam Giancana, identified as an overlord of the Cosa Nostra, at the lodge in July, 1963.

Prior to a scheduled hearing on the license revocation issue, Sinatra announced he was discontinuing all his gaming interests (he also held a percentage in The Sands in Las Vegas) to devote all his time to other business ventures.

As of Jan. 3 Sinatra was no longer officially associated with The Sands as a gaming partner. The Bank of Las Vegas, officials reported, advanced money for other parties to purchase Sinatra's interest on that date.

No records are on file in Washoe County indicating any change in ownership of the Cal-Neva Lodge or any escrow transaction.

Historically, the Cal-Neva has operated from May to late September.

Investigations and legal procedures to obtain a gaming license in Nevada normally require from 60 to 90 days if the applicant has never before been licensed by the state. For a person already licensed, the time requirement to obtain a permit to operate at a different location is usually 30 days.

Ergo, should an applicant file for a Cal-Neva license immediately, the club could not possibly open before late in May.

And, as noted, there have been "no overtures" to state officials from anyone interested in obtaining a license for the club.

The club could, however, open its bars, restaurants and showrooms without gaming. But without the wins from the tables it would questionable business venture at best.

The other gaming houses at the North Shore of Tahoe (the Nevada Lodge, Crystal Bay Club, North Shore Club-Hotel) have already booked entertainment for the summer season.

If the Cal-Neva, the largest operation on the North Shore and booker of the biggest show biz names, remain shuttered it is expected the economy on that end of the lake will suffer.

There have been many rumors that Cal-Neva has been sold (with several show biz names speculated as buyers, notably Eddie Fisher) but there's nothing on the official record suggesting it is not still under the ownership of Frank Sinatra.

AG'CY BROKE EVEN ON CONDON JAPAN TOUR

Tokyo, April 21.

A spokesman for Victor Artists of Japan said the agency broke even on the recent seven-concert tour by the Eddie Condon All Stars. The unit, toplined by Pee Wee Russell, Vic Dickenson, Buck Clayton and blues belter Jimmy Rushing, worked in Nippon en route home from an Australian tour.

The three Tokyo concerts by Condon and his clan were sold to Art Rotary and their single Kyoto date was dealt to Onkyo, another large organization which buys out houses for its members. Concerts in Osaka, Sapporo and Chitose were presented by local promoters.

The Victor spokesman said the turnouts could have been better if the show had been booked with more advance time, allowing for a more penetrating publicity campaign.

Next up for Victor is the Dave Brubeck Quartet for eight concerts in early May.

Shindler to the Sands

Las Vegas, April 21.

Ben Shindler has been named executive manager of The Sands. He recently resigned a similar post at the Roney-Plaza Hotel, Miami Beach, and had been with El Rancho Hotel, Port au Prince, Haiti, prior to that.

Jack Entratter, president, and Carl Cohen, exec veepee, are busy mapping a building program which will increase its capacity from 563 rooms to 800 suites and rooms.

Phoenix Co. Plans $2-Mil Vegas Inn Via Security Sale

Washington, April 21.

Roman Holiday, a resort firm, told the Securities and Exchange Commission it wants to register 2,850,000 shares of stock and build a luxury hotel on the Las Vegas Strip.

Of the total 2,250,000 would be common shares and the 300,000 $10 par preferred.

Company wants to make a public offering of the preferred holdings and 300,000 of the common selling them at $10.10 per. Offering will be made by Policare Securities Corp. of Phoenix.

Proceeds from the sale will be used to repay loans of $42,000 from promoters, buy the land for $345,400 and build the hotel for $2,000,000.

Ralph Swenson is president of Roman Holiday and William Hawkins is secretary. The company has five other promoters. The seven have been given options on 300,000 shares.

A 42,672 option has been given to underwriter Policare, headed by Robert Policare who was listed as one of the promoters.

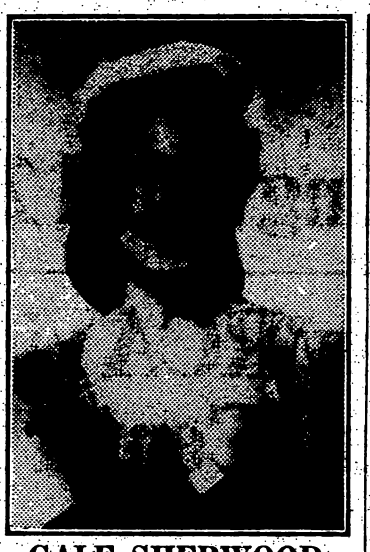
Balto Solons Stampede Over Humane Society's Protests Against Rodeo

Baltimore, April 21.

The first rodeo ever to play Baltimore's Civic Center, has been given the go sign by City Solicitor Joseph Allen who said there was no legal reason for Civic Center Commission to cancel rodeo.

Humane Society of United States has protested the rodeo saying it involves cruelty to animals and said it would sue Center officials if event was not cancelled. Allen said Commission would not be liable, that even if cruelty to animals really did take place, commissioners would not be legally responsible. Responsibility for the rodeo would rest with WBMD Artists Bureau, promoters of rodeo, Allen said.

Humane Society had said that electric prodding, beating of animals, twisting of tails and roping of cattle are part of rodeos. Carl Brenner of WBMD, said that no prods are used, no animals are beaten, no tails are twisted and no cattle are roped. He also said special halters would be used, that calf-roping would be performed in accepted way and animals would not be mistreated.



Allen said director of Civic Center could stop show if rodeo violates state laws. Humane society stood firm saying "it is our unqualified position that inhumane acts will take place at the Civic Center rodeo because without mechanical devices, the animals cannot be prodded into activity."

Moore Reining Hawaii Inn

Honolulu, April 21.

Leslie H. Moore Jr., manager of the Caneel Bay Plantation resort hotel in the Virgin Islands since 1956, is due here next month to become manger of Laurance S. Rockefeller's $12,000,000 Mauna Kea Beach Hotel on Hawaii island.

Luxury resort complex, which includes a golf course, is slated to open in March, 1965. Hotel will have 154 rooms and suites, an auditorium, cocktail lounges and shops.

GALE SHERWOOD

Begins her 12th year as NELSON EDDY'S partner. Closing in Tucson, opening at the Shamrock-Hilton, Houston, SIXTH Time. "An apparently irrepressible comedienne."—Melbourne Age. "A joyous, naughty-eyed comedienne."—Sydney Sun. "Chante comme un rossignol."—Petit Journal, Montreal. "Une splendide femme, plein de vie et d'etrain."—La Patrie, Montreal.

A.P.A., Inc., handles

Meader Would Buy Blue Angel

Vaughn Meader, whose career was aided by his showings at the Blue Angel, N. Y., has declared that he's trying to buy the spot from its present owner Max Gordon. Meader said that he would like to take over, along with his personal manager, Buddy Allen.

Meader presently feels that he would like to initiate a policy for display of comedy talent at this spot along the old Club 18 lines.

The Blue Angel recently petitioned for reorganization under Chapter XI of the Federal Bankruptcy laws listing $126,230 liabilities and $36,446 assets.

NAT COLE HITS WHAM $33,000 IN VANCOUVER

Vancouver, April 21.

Nat King Cole's "Sights and Sounds of '64" drew a maximum $33,000 and 8,370 customers to the 2,800-seat Queen Elizabeth Theatre here in a three day stand (14-16). House was scaled to $5 top and sold out well in advance of opening night.

Vancouver engagement marked opening round of a Northwest tour under aegis of Zollie Volchok-Jack Engerman's Seattle-based Northwest Releasing Corp. and was promoted locally by Famous Artists' Hugh Pickett.

Ariz. Fun Park's 155G Loss in 1st 7 Months

Tucson, April 21.

Legend City, a huge new amusement park located between Phoenix and Tempe, Ariz., lost $155,127 in its first seven months, prexy Louis E. Crandall said last week.

He told a stockholders meeting, however, he feels the coming summer season should be successful because of reduced overhead and the benefit of a year's operating experience. He said the park will be open daily from May 30 to mid-September.

MARIO AGUERO AGENTING

Mario Aguero, former Cuban agent and onetime manager of the Montmartre, Havana, has formed a talent agency in conjunction with Omar Vaillant, which will specialize in bookings in South and Central America.

The office is now booking entertainment for Channel 13 in Buenos Aires, and Channel 8, Caracas. They're operating out of Miami Beach.

Start 2½ Mil Ohio Motel

Columbus, O., April 21.

Construction has begun on the $2,500,000 Holiday Inn motor hotel, first unit in the multi-million-dollar Market-Mohawk urban renewal area adjacent to the downtown theatre and business district.

The motor hotel will have 252 units in 12 stories.

Beatles Kick Off Far West Tour Aug. 19 With 25G Guarantee vs. 60% of Gross

Hollywood, April 21.

The five concerts the Beatles will do in the Far West on their late summer U.S. tour have been firmed by General Artists Corp. agent Fred Dales, and out of them emerge some new faces in bigtime one-nighter promotion.

Trek tees Aug. 19 at Frisco Cow Palace, act getting $25,000 guarantee against 60% of gross in 17,000-seater. Promoter is Paul Catalana, who operates Safari nitery in San Jose and who has also promoted fights upstate.

Promoter at Hollywood Bowl Aug. 23 is KRLA disk jock Bob Eubanks, who also operates string of three teenage niteries, Cinnamon Cinders here. Fee will be $25,000 vs. 60%. For the Aug. 20 date in Las Vegas' convention hall promoter is Stan Irwin, also entertainment director at Sahara there. It marks one of few big money one-nighters ever booked into show biz-brimming Vegas.

Shelly Davis, operator of Crescendo and Interlude niteries here, tried to nab local booking, was passed up for Eubanks and nailed down Seattle Aug. 21, at $20,000 against 60%.

Dale reports GAC had so many bidders it sifted them to try to "get those who would do the big selling jobs in specific areas awarded them." A Vancouver booking rounds out the Beatle's western bashes and GAC's Jerry Perenchio, out of New York, has firmed eastern and midwest dates. Among them is two-nighter, Aug. 28-29 at Forest Hills (L.I) Tennis stadium at $40,000 vs. 60% for the twinbill.

Not surprisingly, Concerts Inc., largest one-nighter promoter on Coast, did not bid. Concerts Inc. is a subsid of National General Corp., which theatrecast tape of Beatles' bash in Washington last winter; four showings of tape were made; four are yet to go under the contract. As yet the remaining four have not been booked amid continuing, mixed reports as to national b.o. done in the theatres.

Glasgow's Mail SRO

Glasgow, April 21.

The Beatles will play to two SRO houses at the Odeon Cinema here April 30, without tickets ever having been officially on sale. Fans, anticipating an all-postal sale ruling, sent thousands of written applications to the management. Many came from England.

"All 6,000 tickets have gone," manager George Chantry told VARIETY. "Two have been distributed per application." Thousands of letters seeking tickets were returned to disappointed fans.

Atlantic City One-Nighter

Atlantic City, April 21.

George A. Hamid Jr., managing director of the Steel Pier here, has inked The Beatles for an Aug. 30 one-nighter in the Convention Hall's main auditorium. Hamid noted that the quartet will play the city-owned facility instead of the Steel Pier since the former can handle 20,000 patrons.

Local date will be The Beatles' first "in-person" appearance on

(Continued on page 138)

Ray Katz Heads Mgrs.

Ray Katz, partnered with Bullets Durgom in a personal management firm, was elected president of the Conference of Personal Management East last week. Al Bruno (Shiels &) was named veepee; Mel Shayne (Scandore &), treasurer, and Bob Coe, secretary.

Elected to the board of directors ars Chuck Taylor, Walter Gould, Lenny Ditson and Dick Gabbe. Installations will take place at the June meeting.

Behave or Else! Balt. Civic Center Warns Rockers

Baltimore, April 21.

Douglas Tawney, director of the Civic Center, warned backers of rock 'n' roll shows that these presentations won't be allowed to play the Center in the future if there is repetition of violence that attended the James Brown All Star show last Sunday (12).

The Brown show is set to return to the Center May 17, and Tawney said that if extra police personnel assigned that night can't keep order "something will have to be done."

That "something" would mean no more r&r shows at the Center. The Brown show, which played to a capacity house (about 12,000) as it did a few months before, erupted into violence shortly before it ended. It began with a scuffle. Police broke it up and as they did, a 18-year-old boy pulled a pistol and fired at one of the patrolmen.

There were other incidents throughout the audience but the worst came when the crowd started leaving the Center. At this point two youths were stabbed and a third was shot in the arm.

Tawney said, "It's not that we want to curb all rock 'n' roll shows or entertainment for youth, but we must also take into consideration the safety of our patrons.

"We will insist," he added, "that even more police be on hand at the May 17 show." Tawney admitted that there have been incidents at the arena before but not "of such a violent nature."

Brian Epstein to Dicker American Talent for His Sunday London Concerts

London, April 21.

On his next U.S. trip, skedded for May 1 (when he accompanies Gerry & the Pacemakers who are set for a couple of "Ed Sullivan Show" exposures), Brian Epstein will, among other things, be dickering for American talent to import into Britain. Epstein controls a powerful pop singing stable which includes The Beatles.

Idea is to bring over American popsters for his string of concerts which he will present on Sundays at the Prince of Wales Theatre throughout the year from May 3.

Marking his bow in West End presentation—albeit he staged a successful nabe "Beatles Christmas Show" at the Rank showcase, Astoria, Finsbury Park—Epstein has already set an impressive lineup of local artists for the first seven shows.

These include The Beatles, The Searchers, Billy J. Kramer, Brian Poole & the Tremeloes, Freddie (Garrity) & the Dreamers, Eden Kane, Roy Orbison, Gerry & the Pacemakers, Dusty Springfield, the Tony Meehan Combo, The Applejacks, Kenny Lynch, and the Mojos.

Resident supporting groups are the Vernons Girls, Lorne Gibson Trio, the Chants, the Harlems, and Cliff Bennett and the Rebel Rousers.

Hawaii Eatery Tests Flesh

Honolulu, April 21.

Elliott's Chuckwagon, midtown restaurant, is giving live entertainment a trial to see if it can bolster weekend restaurant patronage.

New policy is launched with Phil Freed, a folk singer.

NO ADS, BUT BEATLES LOOM A CHI SELLOUT

Promoter Frank Fried doesn't have to worry that the Beatles might turn stone cold next September when he has them booked for a concert at the 13,500-seat International Amphitheatre. Despite the fact that he has not taken out a single ad, he expects to be sold out for the Sept. 5 date (at a $5.50 top) within two weeks.

Off the publicity alone, a few mentions here and there on the entertainment pages, Fried has had to add three girls to handle an avalanche of mail. For the first three days after the date broke in the papers Fried's switchboard was so jammed that it was impossible to reach him by phone.

Fried was reluctant to give the dollar figure of his guarantee for the Beatles, but said that it was the largest he had ever paid out. Other sources say that the Chi fee is $25,000 against 60% of the gross.

ERA OF PUSH-BUTTON THEATRE

Spain Spending $6,000,000 at Fair Exhibit, Hopes for Goodwill & $

Madrid, April 21.

High society benefit gala, opening the Spanish Pavilion tomorrow (Wed.) will mark the first leg of Spain's heavy investment and enthusiastic effort to make Quitoeland a must for Fairway visitors. It also sets the stage for a burst of shoot-the-words showbiz and longhair programming that goes far beyond the everyday peseta budget of a low income economy.

Dollar spending to date hovers between $5-$6,000,000. Calculated recuperation from three restaurants, art museum, souvenir sales and the pavilion theatre will nonetheless leave a hefty deficit and write-off to better trade, cultural and entertainment relations with the U. S.

Cortes, Castilian boniface of Madrid's top-drawer Jockey Club will run the pavilion's Granada and Toledo Restaurants with a total capacity of around 400. Cooks and waiters were finecombed and planed to N. Y. to handle a menu of some 150 Spanish regional dishes. Hermanos Heras will run the third dinery. Madrid, in the more popular free-swinging, floor littering informality of the savory nabe pubs back home.

Spain's young Fair commissioner, Miguel Garcia de Saez, campaigned tirelessly to send Greco's "Burial of Count Orgaz" as the diadem of an art collection (including Velasquez, Goya and Zurban) Fair visitors could gladly pay $1 they claim to see. Experts counselled proud Spaniard to leave the art treasure in its St. Tome Church niche at Toledo. Saez then pressed for "Las Meninas" from the Prado Museum. Whatever the Beaux Arts toppers pick, they figure it will be one to justify the $1 entrance tab to the museum, where art buffs will also see the best of the Spanish moderns (Picasso and Miro) and the way-out contemporaries.

Gala opening entertainment for 1,000 socialites and public figures —among whom will be Mrs. Gary Cooper, Gardner Cowles, Angier Biddle Duke, Sen. Javits and Sen. Humphrey—will spotlight the full La Zambra Flamenco company, gypsy-hoofer Antonio Gades and group and Los Chavales de Espana. Orchestras will be under the batons of Meyer Davis and young Peter Duchin.

La Zambra and Gades are under contract for six months. The formers is a complete ensemble of 23 dancers, guitarists and singers, topped by the famous Rosita Duran, from the gypsy cabaret in Ma-

(Continued on page 138)

New Mexico State Fair Inks Andy Williams For Record-Breaking $22,500

Albuquerque, April 21.

Television-record headliner Andy Williams has been inked for the 1964 New Mexico State Fair, for one of the largest cash outlays ever contracted for a two-day stint at the yearly expo.

Singer's contract will give him $22,500, plus 60% of the receipts over $42,500, for three shows on the opening two days of the 1964 fair—Sept. 17 and 18.

Williams is the first name signed for this year's 11-day exposition. He'll headline shows, sandwiched in between regular rodeo competitions in the fair's 11,000-seat Tingley Coliseum. As part of the contract, singer will also bring in the Osmond Bros. from his NBC network tv show, plus Candy Candido.

Among previous highs for large cash outlay for talent for the Albuquerque fair was the $15,000 paid Red Skelton for two shows on final days of the 1961 expo. Same year, Andy Griffith got $11,000 for two-day booking.

This is the first year since 1958 that a name act has been given a percentage of the gate. Starting in 1959, talent was booked for a flat fee, averaging about $4,000 per day.

Ray Charles, Aznavour Mop Up for Hal Zeiger

Hal Zeiger had a singularly successful week with promotions in Chicago, Santa Monica and San Francisco. Ray Charles' three night shindig at McCormick Place, Chicago, was his topper with a strong $60,097, while he promoted French chanteur Charles Aznavour for a combined $18,000 in two nights.

Charles played his three-night stand which ended Sunday (19) to a new McCormick Place record. Aznavour, making his concert bow for Zeiger scored $9,400 at the Santa Monica Civic Auditorium Friday (18), and did $8,600 at the San Francisco Opera House the following evening.

Sporty Atlanta: Big League Site For Bats, Punts

Atlanta, April 21.

Atlanta-Fulton County Recreation Authority, within one week's time has cleared the way for construction of a 55,000-seat, $18,000,000 big league sports stadium overcoming builders' reluctance to guarantee completion of project in time for opening of 1965 baseball season. Stadium authority had a big league baseball team ready to sign on the dotted line and move south at the end of this season.

Contractor is committed under threat of heavy penalties to have stadium ready within 12 months so Atlanta will have major league ball by time 1965 season opens.

A National Football League team has made a firm verbal commitment to move its franchise to Atlanta in time to open the 1965 season here.

YONKERS ASKANCE ON MINSKY'S PRODUCTION

The Yonkers City Council has directed Public Safety Commissioner Daniel F. McMahon to bar "obscene and immoral entertainment." Action was aimed chiefly at the Harold Minsky production, "Life Begins at Minsky's" which has been a longrunning lure at the Westchester Town House. There are other places in the area under scrutiny.

The City Council also directed McMahon to establish standards for costumes, dances and dialog for entertainment spot in the city's jurisdiction. The city's corporation counsel was also ordered to draft legislation which would require entertainment spots to get a $100 license and every employe who contacts customers to be fingerprinted and take out a $5 license.

Jack Benny to Emcee K.C. Hall of Fame Fete

Kansas City, April 21.

Jack Benny is scheduled to emcee the forthcoming fund-raising dinner for the Agriculture Hall of Fame and National Center here May 16. Event is to be a $100-plate dinner in the American Royal Building, and begins a series expected to take place in other metropolitan centers to benefit the hall.

Hall of Fame and Chamber of Commerce officials are looking for an attendance of 2,500 at the affair. This would get the Hall off the drawing board in suitable style, according to Kenneth Krakauer, CC president and downtown merchant.

BIG BIZ BARNUMS KEY NEW VISTAS

By JOE COHEN

The era of push-button theatre is being ushered in today (Wed.) with the opening of the N.Y. World's Fair. The Flushing Meadows expo may be the blueprint of the theatre of the future with computers governing every movement of stages, actors and audiences. Tomorrow's theatre may also provide greater fusion of all the arts.

The direction of tomorrow's entertainment may be seen from the shows put on by the big business Barnums of industry in "Four for the Fair," an outing in which a quartet of layouts were previewed last week before an invited audience. General Electric, Electric Power & Light, DuPont and Coca-Cola combined in a single day to show their WF entertainments. Three of the shows blueprinted what could be the shows of tomorrow, while the fourth, Coca-Cola, presented a charming walk-through that was an ultimate in the art of atmospheric make-believe.

The major show in this collection was the GE Progressland conceived by Walt Disney, who may take more bows for his WF shows than probably any other theatrical craftsman. His Progressland is highlighted by complete theatres that move from one setting to another with the various tableaux enacted by "performers" made of plastic, but whose words are synched by computers so that a lifelike representation is made.

At the preview, there were bugs

(Continued on page 138)

Nitery Owners' New Mouthpiece?

Godfrey Schmidt, the attorney who has been battling the American Federation of Musicians, will be principal speaker at the three-day meeting of the Associated Night Clubs of America to be held in Los Angeles starting Sept. 9. Whether this indicates that Schmidt will be retained by the nitery owners to fight the American Guild of Variety Artists as well as the musicians hasn't yet been determined.

Bill Newkirk, operator of The Tidelands, Houston, and on the nitery group's board, declined to comment. Schmidt was one of the speakers at last year's confab held in New York, and at that time, several officers of the group indicated that he might be retained.

PROTEST MOSES BAN OF RELIGIOUS FILM

Chicago, April 21.

Banning by N.Y. World's Fair president Robert Moses of a motion picture produced for the Protestant Council of the City of New York was condemned today by film producer Fred A. Niles.

"Parable," a 22-minute color film, in pantomime, was produced by the Fred A. Niles Communications Centers. On April 9, according to Niles, Moses wrote to the Protestant Council's board and questioned the "propriety, good taste and validity" of the film and asked them not to show it at the Fair.

Calling the action premature and arbitrary, Niles said that Moses hasn't even seen the film. "What he said about our picture is a mis-statement in terms of content and purpose. We feel it provides a means for stimulating introspection among members of the audience into their own religious beliefs. It is nonsectarian. The Council asked us to produce a motion picture that would stimulate true religious thought. We think we accomplished that purpose."

Silver Slipper, L.V., Facing Parlay Of Crooked Dice & Deck Charges

Las Vegas, April 21.

The State Gaming Control Board has reopened a year-old cheating charge against the Silver Slipper casino alleging that authorities spotted a blackjack dealer "bunching" the cards in March, 1963, it was revealed Friday (17) in a notice of defense filed with the gaming commission.

The notice was filed in conjunction with the April 3 charge which closed the casino for purportedly operating a "cheating and deceitful" dice game.

The second charge stems from action which alleges that Gaming Control Board agents spotted a blackjack dealer cheating on March 20, 1963. The year-old charge was not made public until now.

It came to light recently when gaming authorities followed up an emergency order—which originally closed the casino earlier this month —with a formal order slapped against casino authorities. The emergency order was served on casino manager Anthony (Tony) Canino.

The notice of defense, filed with State Gaming Commission Chairman Milton Keefer by the Slipper's attorney, Thomas Foley, noted that Canino, part owner of the club, and another owner, Robert O. Schulze, were advised by gaming officials that a dealer had been observed handling a deck of cards "to indicate that he was 'bunching' small cards that had previously been dealt."

Foley has contended in the notice of defense that "the alleged commission of the charges are more than one year old, therefore barred by the statute of limitation." However, Foley claims, he has been directed to defend the year-old charge. "We are not hiding behind any statute," he asserted.

The notice categorically denies the charges by the Gaming Control Board.

Referring to the charge a year ago, the defense action admits that two of the casino owners were "called on the carpet" by gaming authorities to give them a warning. They were called to the office of the gaming control board and advised that agents had observed the blackjack dealer "bunching" the cards while there was only one player present.

It also contended that the player at the table at that time was a shill employed by the house. It said that the dealer was terminated a few days later in an attempt to "comply with the wishes of the gaming control board."

When the casino was closed

(Continued on page 138)

Belfry, Chi, Again Folds; Spot a Two-Time Loser

Chicago, April 21.

The Belfry, the cabaret theatre that took over the site of Julius Monk's short-lived Chi venture, has tossed in the towel. It floundered for six weeks after its preem revue, "Noises In The Theatre," received negative critical notices.

It's reported that the producer of the show, the press agent, musicians and the cast have organized a group to sue for money allegedly owed them.

Monk's show lasted about six months at the same spot a year ago. The house is considered one of the handsomest intime theatres around, but must now labor under the stigma of being a two-time loser.

Power Snafu Does Ditto for Disney & Two Other Shows

Walt Disney may ultimately have four hit shows running at the New York World's Fair. Once all his layouts are ready, it's discernible that they will be toprated items in the land of Moses (Robert). But so far, he has a fairly low average. Only one of his four layouts (Ford) was completely ready in time

Disney's latest disappointment came with the preview of his Lincoln (saga) at the State of Illinois exhibit. Several items plagued the installation. After its arrival in New York on Saturday (18), the heroic-sized figure of the Great Emancipator was caught in the kingsized traffic jam that made history in New York. It took a complete working day to get the figure to the exhibit. After that an 18-hour power failure plagued the workmen. Temporary power was installed, but since this was fed in spurts into the IBM computer governing the sounds and movements of Honest Abe, it was impossible to get a smoothly functioning exhibit.

Disney feels rather strongly about the Lincoln he created. He sounds like he considers it one of his masterpieces and one which he would rather not show unless it was in perfect working order.

Thus, on the dedication of the Illinois exhibit before an invited audience which included Gov. Otto Kerner of Illinois, former Illinois Governor Adlai Stevenson, now the U.S. Ambassador to the U.N., Disney announced his regret at being unable to exhibit Lincoln.

Disney's other shows at the fair include General Electric's Progressland, in which the lifelike figures were slightly off synch at its unveiling, and Pepsi-Cola, which won't be ready for a while.

The Illinois building, designed by Skidmore Owings & Merrill, is one of the more solid structures at the Flushing show. It's made of bricks fired in Illinois kilns. It's an ingeniously designed edifice made to handle crowds easily. A kingsized screen in the lobby shows views of Illinois in postcard fashion, while the crowd on the inside sees and hears Lincoln uttering statements that he wrote during his lifetime that have applications today. A wide variety of Lincolni-

The power failure which stymied the Illinois exhibit, also will prevent "Les Poupees de Paris" and the Meyer Davis-Leon Leonidoff Show "Wonder World" from preeming today (Wed.). No opening time has been set as yet. However, the Texas Pavilion's "To Broadway With Love" preems per schedule.

Blackpool Preps For Another Summer; Pact Dave Clark Five, Kayes

Blackpool, Eng., April 21.

The Dave Clark Five, currently high on the British disk best-seller's, is pacted as guest act in George & Alfred Black's "Five-Star Family Show," opening June 20 for a summer run at the Winter Gardens Pavilion here. Layout will feature Dick Emery, English comedian; the Kaye Sisters, Eddie Calvert and Clinton Ford.

Major Blackpool summer production will be "The Big Show of 1964," teeing off June 27 at the Opera House, and starring Ken Dodd, English comedian. Featured acts include Dennis Spicer, Joe Henderson, and the Barry Sisters, English threesome.

Another George & Alfred Black presentation will be the new comedy, "What a Joyride!" starring comedienne Hylda Baker, opening at the Grand Theatre June 20. It also stars Glenn Melvyn and Danny Ross, and features Lauri Lupino Lane, with Duncan Macrae, Scot actor, as guest star.

Play, by John Waterhouse, deals with the attempts of a stationmaster and his femme to keep open a railroad station declared redundant in the U. K.

Era of Push-Button Theatre

Continued from page 137

in the machinery. The synch hadn't yet been perfected, but it was a fraction of a second off and showed indications of being okay by today's (Wed.) preem. Also, his figures are extremely lifelike. They age from one scene to another, since there are about 20 years difference in the various sets depicted, and the illusion could be perfect. GE takes the viewers into the kitchens of yesterday and today, and also sheds light on other mores of life as seen through the years. Script and music is good.

GE and DuPont

Also in the GE domain are two other theatres. This time, the customer has to walk. The domed theatre projects astral scenes on the ceiling for a fanciful presentation in space. Directly underneath, there is an atomic demonstration. There were times that the sound of both interfered. There will have to be some screening arrangement in this instance.

The Electric Power & Light exhibit, was mechanically in bad shape and militated against a proper showing. The viewer remains stationary and is conveyed from one scene to another. The muffled sound and the kingsized bugs caused many in the audience to abandon this trip.

The DuPont Theatre also takes place in several sections. The major show is a production by Michael Brown who fuses film and stage into an artful and entertaining concoction, which could be a major hit if some of the commercials were toned down.

Brown has three casts of live talent working together with filmed sequences. There are some excellent bits, such as a rose being passed through the hands of both filmed and live characters. The synchronization is lifelike. There are conversations between live and filmed actors and there is entertainment in both media. It's a small and intimate show in which the selling job should be toned down for optimum institutional effect. But maybe they don't want institutional sells.

In another part of the DuPont show is a live demonstration of products and processes, and many of the man-made wonders. Much of the accomplishments of this firm could not have been demonstrated by any other process than live actors. An orchestra punctuates the points made on stage.

The finale in the foursome is the Coke's walkthrough. Opening with a street in Hong Kong so lifelike that one is tempted to ask where Suzy Wong hangs out, the atmosphere is rich and the details are authentic. Aiding this illusion is some of the more artful theatrical lighting seen at the Fair. An Alps scene complete with yodelers, a walkthrough in India (with Taj Mahal overtones), on a cruise ship outside of Rio, a walk in the jungle of Cambodia provide an amusing interlude. The temperatures change consistent with the climactic differences. One of the major features of the Coke display is a Carillon tower capable of being heard for 25 miles.

All these shows represent a fusion of old and new show biz, and possibly a wave of the future. But for the present, it's a glittering bit of public relations.

BRIT. MOSS EMPIRES' NET DIPS TO $366,800

London, April 21.

Moss Empires, which operates the U.K.'s most prominent chain of vaude-music hall theatres, has recorded a fall in earnings for the second year running. Before tax, the company made $826,000 last year, some $117,600 less than in the previous year. Tax, which was $14,000 higher at $456,400, left net profits down from $501,200 to $366,800.

Dems' $4-Mil.

Continued from page 1

ington. Gregory Peck will introduce acts in both cities. In New York, he will be assisted by Rock Hudson and Johnny Carson; in Washington by Gina Lollobrigida and Allan Sherman.

The cast for both performances will include the New York City Ballet, Mitzi Gaynor, Joan Baez, the Peter Gennaro dance group, New Christy Minstrels, Ward Swingle Singers, Bill Cosby and Mace Barrett.

$1.50-Admish Teen Haven, New Soft-Drink Broadway Terpery, Tees Off Okay

The newly opened Teen Haven, on Broadway and 48th, operated by Jack Barone intends to provide a spot where the kids can have some fun at a reasonable price $1.50) admission) and they can buy food and cola at fairly reasonable rates. No liquor, natch.

The kids are their own best show. They seem to listen attentively to the groups providing the entertainment. They sing along with them, applaud, and then suddenly the yen to dance makes itself felt and they yell out their desires to the management. It's little use trying to buck that sentiment.

Besides, the dancing provides the best part of the show, should there be any adults present. In fact, were there more space, a gallery for adults should be built. It would get a lot of customers. The kids, girls predominating, do a variety of dances related to the Twist. The flying derrieres cut a wide path. There's joyousness in their behavior which communicates itself to adults present (presumably as chaperones). These dances do not require much space. They allocate a tiny portion of the floor and proceed to cut up. Sometimes, several couples combine into a group, and in those instances, choreographers could get some ideas in ensemble operation.

The same lure that made the Twist famous at the Peppermint Lounge seems to predominate in this room. The kids' terping is the major item.

There were some kids wearing high heels that, presumably, big sister doesn't know about. The girls greatly outnumber the lads but that's of little consequence. The girls dance with each other and they seem unhampered by scarcity of masculine company.

The spot doesn't empty out too late. They plan on 12:30 closings at the latest, and since the girls travel in groups, it's fairly safe to assume that they'll get home okay.

The no-liquor policy makes social, if not economic sense. With a capacity of about 350, and with little likelihood of a turnover, it's gonna be hard to extract enough bucks to make the spot a prosperous venture. Broadway rentals run rather high.

The weekends will have several live groups. Opening were The Madisons, Five Fashions, Soul Bros. and the DeKala Singers. Each one of them had musical ideas worthy of expression, and with development could be around the rock 'n' roll scene for a while. Weekdays, only one live group will be on hand, and disks will provide the dance incentive.

Just as the Palladium provided a viewing point for non-participants in the mambo movement, and the Peppermint Lounge brought adult in for the Twist, the Teen Haven can provide another show of a different kind for adults. Jose.

Beatles

Continued from page 136

the East Coast. Their stint will be only three days after the Democratic national convention in the giant municipal hall.

Scot House Alerts

Edinburgh, April 21.

Some of Scotland's huskiest-looking males are being recruited by the ABC Regal Theatre here to act as guards at one-night concerts topped by recording artists. More than 20 have been signed for the cinema, where The Beatles are set to star April 29.

But, according to manager Les Lovell, there is no question of "strong-arm" tactics.

Latin Quarter

Continued from page 1

ber of cafes will be decimated further because of the continued silence by the department as well as the character of the law.

Loew told the Commissioner that biz can be and is discussed in a nightclub. He pointed out that even with entertainment, tabs in niteries are frequently cheaper than in class restaurants, and a businessman is handicapped by the regulation. Loew also asked the Commissioner to come to the Latin Quarter to see for himself.

World's Fair Spanish Exhibit

Continued from page 137

drid. Gades took Spain by storm this year with outstanding Flamenco dancing in "Los Tarantos," a Carmen Amaya-starrer of gypsy love and live among the clans outside Barcelona.

Ballet Groups

Four other ballet groups—Mariemma's Alberto Lorca's, the Manola Vargas company and the Ballet Gallego—will come in for six-week runs at the theatre. Next year, two top ballet groups headed by Antonio and Pilar Lopez will terp at the Fair.

All performing artists must pay Stateside minimum of $150 to the American Guild of Variety Artists, with the exception of two non-professional folklore groups — Ballet Gallego and Coros y Danzas. AGVA finally agreed to let the aficionados in at $35 a head.

At the Fair office here, aides pointed out there are no restrictions or special fees on Yank talent traffic to Spain. AGVA payments raise costs by around $20,000 —forcing the organizers to boost theatre admission to $4. However, almost all performing groups expect to pick up tv, concert and cabaret slots in N. Y. and outlying areas.

Spain is also sending the Maria Guerrero national theatre company, but will lease a B'way house rather than stage at the Fair. Decision to send only Maria Guerrero is said to have motivated the resignation of Cayetano Luca de Tena as director of the Teatro Espanol, stage centre of the Spanish classics. Pending possible last-minute changes, Jose Luis Alonso will direct the Maria Guerrero state players in a repertory of contemporary Spanish works from mid-June to mid-July on B'way.

Diplomat's Daughter

Continued from page 1

chief of mission at the U.S. Embassy here.

In the show that features a unit of Japanese dancers, Miss Emmerson does a songalog of 14 Broadway show tunes. She leaves Tokyo soon and will audition for the St. Louis Municipal Opera Co.'s summer season.

Miss Emmerson, 25, an attractive brunet, has been singing professionally for less than two years. She has appeared in Coast productions of "Three Penny Opera" and "West Side Story" and also in the "South Pacific" presentation at the Thunderbird, Las Vegas.

Silver Slipper

Continued from page 137

earlier this month, it was the aftermath of a "routine dice pickup." Agents of the gaming control board picked up five dice from the tables on March 27. After examining them, authorities said, the dice were found to be "shaved," known as percentage dice in gaming circles.

The defense action contends that the dice could have been placed on the table in three different ways: by the casino management; by sleight-of-hand methods from the outside; an employe without the knowledge consent or acquiescence of management.

"The latter two such possibilities," the casino contends, "are much more probable than the brash assumption on the part of the gaming control board that it was done with the knowledge of the casino management."

Keefer said he would make every effort to get a hearing by today (Wed.) (22) in Carson City. He also advised Foley and Attorney John C. Goff, a counselor for the Slipper from Los Angeles, that the hearing might have to be delayed.

"The device described as edgework (on the dice), if employed by a licensed casino, upon discovery by a player, could be utilized to the detriment of the casino in that he would then be able to bet the back line and play the field in which double six and double ace pays double odds," the action contends.

Foley said that it is "highly improbable" that the casino, with an investment in excess of $3,000,000, would employ a style of dice which could be equally beneficial to a player as it would be to the house.

7G HONOLULU CAFE HEIST

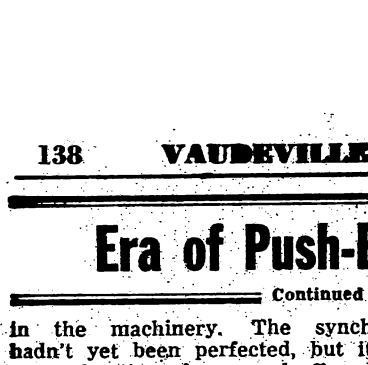
Honolulu, April 21.

Safecrackers broke into Hutch's Supper Club, nitery and restaurant operation near the airport, and walked off with a reported $7,000, mostly in cash.

Arthur Hunt, owner, and police figure entry was through a rear door, with the burglars using crowbars to pry open the safe.

Liz & Burton

Continued from page 1



derly, Della Reese, Bill Cosby, Jimmy Daren, Carolyn Jones, Dorothy Dandridge, Mimi Dillard.

Entire show, one hour originating in New York and the other in Hollywood, will be vitaped and projected on the large screen at Madison Square Garden and Los Angeles Sports Arena, as well as in halls of from 45 to 50 cities.

The "Freedom Spectacular" will observe the 10th anni of the Supreme Court decision outlawing segreated schools.

Handling the staging in the east is Bob Banner. Steve Allen is doing the same job on the Coast.

The two-hour show is reported to have been sold to Associated Television for telecasting in England. ATV, in return for the show, agreed to make a $50,000 donation to the NAACP.

ROBERT BERNARD

CHARACTERS — COMEDY — DIALECTS

PL-7-2780—or Lambs Club

Thanks to Guber-Ford-Gross Past 4 Seasons

'Fanny' — Escartifique. 'Sitting Bull' — Annie Get Your Gun. Sebastion—'Call Me Madam'. 'Pop'—Gypsy.

Original 'Pisoni' — Song of Norway. Ali Hakim—'Oklahoma'. Senator, 'Lil Abner'. Hassel — 'Pajama Game'. Kandel—'Wish You Were Here'. Apopolous. 'Wonderful Town' — 'Sister Eileen' — 'Paint Your Wagon' —Ruder —'Great Waltz' — 'Stalag 17' — 'The Shrike' — 'Student Prince' — 'Great Waltz,' etc.

BILLY GLASON'S FUN-MASTER PROFESSIONAL COMEDY MATERIAL

For every branch of theatricals

"WE SERVICE THE STARS!"

35 Gag files $15, plus $1 postage

FOREIGN: 35 for $30

- 3 Parody Books, per Bk. ... $10
- 5 Blackout Books 1-2-3 Each $25
- No. 4 for $35—No. 5 for $30
- Minstrel (white face) Budget $25
- "How to Master the Ceremonies" $3 PER COPY NO C.O.D.'s

BILLY GLASON

200 W. 54th St., N.Y.C. 10019 CO 5-1316

(We TEACH M.C'ing and COMEDY) (Let a real Professional train you)

THE INTERNATIONAL ENTERTAINER

FAIRFAX

Now Appearing

THE NEW YORK HILTON

Valencia Room

With His

"Feats of magic at your table"

Personal Rep — WILLIAM A. BURNHAM JR.

IMPERIAL ARTISTS, 630-5th Ave., New York CO 5-6578

BOSTON SMASH HIT

THE GLAMOROUS NEW HOTEL

AVERY

Show folks are raving about the all new Hotel Avery. All new, large, beautifully furnished deluxe rooms with private bath, television & radio. Air conditioning.

AVERY & WASHINGTON STS.

"THE COMEDIAN"

The Only Real Monthly PROFESSIONAL GAG SERVICE

THE LATEST — THE GREATEST — THE MOST-UP-TO-DATEST

Now in its 160th issue, containing stories one-liners, poemettes, song titles, hecklers, audience stuff, monologs, parodies, double gags, bits ideas, intros, impressions and impersonations, political, interruptions, Thoughts of the Day, Humorous Views of the News, Vignettes, etc. (20 Pages)

$25 YR.—SINGLE ISSUES $3

Foreign

$35 YR.—SINGLE ISSUES $4

No C.O.D.'s

BILLY GLASON, 200 W. 54th St. New York City 10019, CO 5-1316

RICKI DUNN IS A THIEF!

Dir.: Harry Greben, 203 N. Wabash Av. DEarborn 2-0996, Chicago, Illinois

BUCK BUCKLEY

QUARTER WIT

Currently Touring West

with VEGAS VARIETIES REVUE

Direction: CARLSON ARTISTS CORP. Birmingham

THE NEW DARCEL...

Just Concluded
LIVING ROOM, NEW YORK

VARIETY
"The major surprise of the evening is Miss Darcel. For she has acquired new strength and new dimension. For example, she has developed a lovely high register, and apparently is paying attention to lyrics and music.

"It's a new delightful Darcel. She gives vigor and roundness to her numbers. Now she approaches a mature artist." Jose

NEW YORK HERALD TRIBUNE
ROBERT SALMAGGI
"Paris' Denise Darcel, as French as the Seine and twice as overflowing (in the right places) is launching her new act at the Living Room. She paces the act well, doing a few ballads, some joie de vivre swingers and a couple of novelties, including a gay salute to Chevalier. Voici une fun gal."

NEW YORK JOURNAL-AMERICAN
JACK THOMPSON
"Miss Darcel has plenty of co-la-la in a scarlet-sequinned sheath. She is genuinely something for the boys.

"She sings, with the greatest good humor, in all the languages and really belts out 'Rockabye Your Baby With a Dixie Melody' in French, yet!"

DAILY NEWS
ED SULLIVAN
"Denise Darcel a Living Room click."

BILLBOARD
JOHN HAYS
"France's Denise Darcel introduced a soupcon of Gallic spice and a good measure of joie de vivre to the Living Room. Revealing some talents kept pretty well under wraps in the past, she proves to be a disarming entertainer of exceptional charm.

"Her act is well paced and varied. She seemed to be enjoying herself and, consequently, so does everyone else.

"In a French woman's impression of a Frenchman singing in English, she does a rather funny bit with a medley of Chevalier tunes. Bringing a song into a strong personal frame and concentrating on the lyric value, she manages to give a new look to a group of old ballads."

SAN JUAN DIARY
TONY BEACON
"Gallicharming Denise Darcel, who proved to a cheering audience that 50 million Frenchmen were RIGHT! Sheathed in a midnight-blue sequin gown with a plunging neckline Denise displayed all the lighthearted sexiness for which the French are so famous."

BELL McCLURE SYNDICATE
HAROLD STERN
"Miss Darcel has a very listenable voice and a plentitude of charm. Her songs are French or English or a combination. Denise is worth an evening's time."

DENISE DARCEL

Television: ED SULLIVAN SHOW • JOHNNY CARSON SHOW • COMBAT

Hotels, Nightclubs: WALDORF-ASTORIA, New York • SHERATON BLACKSTONE, Chicago
QUEEN ELIZABETN, Montreal • CRESCENDO, Hollywood
GRAND BOLIVAR, Lima, Peru • CHI CHI, Palm Springs, Calif.
SHERATON HOTEL, San Juan, Puerto Rico • LIVING ROOM, New York

Direction: WILLIAM MORRIS AGENCY

Copacabana, N. Y.

Jan Murray, Pat Woodell (with Tommy Oliver), Copa Girls, Joe Mele and Frank Marti Orchs; $6.50-$7.50 minimum.

If there's little new in Jan Murray's gag file, it's somehow reassuring to have him in the flesh lining out the jokes he couldn't tell on tv. One or two of his yarns could stay censored, but otherwise he's a palatable gent and it's just a case of each tabler for himself as to which lines are the funniest.

Murray's brand of monology is from the exaggerated premise, which means he's got to have the snappy second line, or the topper to the topper. With him it comes out best in a medical routine, and one on family values then and now. When the lulls come, and they do, his seasoned ad-libility usually pays off. He may not be among the more creative, but he remains resourceful enough to keep the average tippler happy.

Making her New York preem on the bill is singer Pat Woodell of tv's "Petticoat Junction" cast, and to her credit she doesn't trade on this. A well-chiseled gal, her dinnershow bow was in black, neck-high and smart. To further accent the assets, she has a strong and true voice and deports herself for simpatico returns.

What Miss Woodell still has to develop is a distinction of style or libretto, or both. At the moment, her songbook is too diverse for a focal identity, from resurrecting "My Buddy" through "Hello Dolly" to an "I'll be Happy."

She offers some dramatic soliloquizing with "I Wish I Were a Kid Again," but at this date the effort is tacky when she would be better served by a script with some ginger. And for the Copa run, Tommy Oliver, her maestro, could tone down the accomp.

The Copa Girls give a brisk, coordinated account of themselves; and, apart from the volume problem, Joe Mele's orch showbacks with per usual finesse. Ditto for Frank Marti's cha-cha tempi.

Come April 30 it's Sammy Davis Jr. Pit.

Flamingo, Las Vegas

Las Vegas, April 16.

Juliet Prowse, Smothers Bros. (2), Harry Blackstone Jr.; Russ Black Orch (13); presented by Morris Lansburgh; lighting by Hugo Granata; $5 minimum.

Juliet Prowse brings back the act which has been so successful here before. Produced and staged with fluidity by the inventive Tony Charmoli, the turn showcases the shapely Miss Prowse as a brilliant dancer, a pleasant chirp, and an excellent comedienne.

Highlight of the bash is her spoof of Lady Godiva, Catherine The Great, Camille, and Cleopatra, as those femmes would appear in filmusicals. Star gets able assistance from song-and-dance teammates David Nagy, Norman Edwards, Phil Laughlin, Marc Wilder, and Lance Avant, latter scoring with a song and guitar bit on "They Call The Wind Maria." Andy Thomas conducts the Russ Black orch, Dick Sternberg backbones on drums. Hugo Granata handles the lights, musical arrangements are by Jerry Fielding, costumes by Ray Agahayan, and the special material is by Sammy Cahn and Jimmy Van Heusen.

The Smothers Bros. (2) make their Las Vegas debut on bill, got hearty yocks from first-nighters with their humorous attack on folk music. Much of the team's w.k. tv material is repeated to good effect; emphasis is on comedy with the songs (which are rarely completed) secondary.

Harry Blackstone Jr., assisted by his attractive wife, initials program with some uncanny sleight-of-hand. He puts her in a cabinet which is pierced by long thin burning light bulbs; the preem audience seemed disappointed that his time was held down to 15 minutes.

Program, presented by Morris Lansburgh, in until May 14 when Joe E. Lewis and Leslie Uggams open. Duke.

Fairmont Hotel, S. F.

San Francisco, April 17.

Bill Dana (Jose Jimenez), Ernie Heckscher Orch; $3.50-$4 cover.

Jose Jimenez may be starting to wear a little thin, but Bill Dana, happily, is emerging as a pleasant, engaging comedian.

Jimenez, however, is still the bread-and-butter half of the one-man team's third nightclub outing and he's a good thing played to the hilt—the cringing, frightened, saucy bumbler customers have to sympathize with.

The material is relatively fresh with, surprisingly, some good, low-keyed political yocks thrown in. The totally confused Latin Santa Claus is trotted out, as a must, along with the terrified astronaut.

The format remains in the old Steve Allen tradition—the short, disjointed, almost one-liner bits set up by the Allen-type square interviewer (well-done by Andrew Duncan.)

It's effective when the timing is tight and fast, but opening night in the cavernously elegant Venetian Room caught both straight man and Jimenez a little off. But that'll improve during the two-week date.

Dana came out more swinging. Without his Latin alter ego and the straight man rhythm, he is more relaxed, able to develop and milk the bits to greater laughs.

The material, again, is fresh and just the right side of approved supper-club pale blue. And as Bill Dana, of course, he can discuss the weird, wild life story of Jose.

The Ernie Heckscher orchestra provides fine backing. Louis Nye opens Wednesday (29). Dick.

Le Caprice, N.Y.

Bobby Short Trio, Otis Clement; $2.50, $4 minimum.

Herbert Jacoby is back in the midtown sector with the opening of Le Caprice on the site of the straight eatery formerly known as Malmaison. Jacoby, a former partner in the Blue Angel, has opened a tastefully decorated spot which looms as one of the intimery hits of the season. The decor, by Stewart Chaney, is done in gay reds and whites. The atmosphere is cheerful and smart.

The major entertainment is by Bobby Short, who also has an interest in the spot. Short has played virtually every eastside boite of distinction and seems to be able to take a sizeable segment of the population with him no matter where he relocates. In his present stand, he seems to be in business for himself, and his demeanor off and on-stage takes cognizance of his heightened status.

Short remains one of the more literates and articulate exponents of the musicomedy tune. The Negro pianist-singer has one of the most extensive repertoires of legit musical tunes extant. There's hardly a Broadway show that he can't trot out at a moment's notice. What's more, his catalog grows annually, which gives him a fresh act every season. Short's Steinwaying is potent and his backing of drum and bass give him added strength. The relief music is by pianist Otis Clement.

Le Caprice's opening attracted a chi-chi crowd. It's likely to get that kind of attendance in volume, during its promising eastside career. Service staff is headed by Pasquale, long the maitre d' at the new Cotillion Room of the Hotel Pierre. Jose.

Troubadour, L.A.

Los Angeles, April 14.

Hoyt Axton, Ted Markland, Fred Neil; $2 admission.

Current month-long bill at Doug Weston's folknitery features two singers and a comic, each entirely different in performing characteristics, thus providing an evening of contrasts for the audience.

Fred Neil, the opening act, is a folksinger who does his ballads and work songs with quiet intensity via a pleasant voice especially rich in its lower register. Ted Markland, the comic, reflects the concern, almost obsession, of the younger generation over the kind of horrid world they are inheriting from their elders.

Markland falls roughly into the category of the modern breed of comic-monologist who's not really a comedian at all but rather a cross between a preacher and a philosopher. His work is marred by too many references to varied sexual deviations.

No question but that balladeer Hoyt Axton is the top attraction. He has a powerful and pliable voice, while acompanying himself deftly and expressively on guitar. In addition to his fine straight work ("Saturday's Child," "One More Round, Mankind," etc.), he does a funny takeoff on a rock 'n' roll record star.

Show is in through May 3. Tube.

Square East, N. Y.

Charles Rubin, Murray Sweig and Al Weinstein's presentation of Second City's "The Wrecking Ball," with Roger Bowen, Jack Burns, Bob Dishy, Mina Kolb, Dick Schaal, Avery Schreiber, Mitzie Welch; music, Tom O'Horgan; scenes and dialog created by the Company; theatre and set design, Ralph Alswang; director, Dishy; lighting, Dan Butt. At Square East, N.Y.; $3 admission.

To a first-timer, the antics performed by the zanies of the Second City are pretty hilarious but reaction of "regulars" among the opening-night audience for "The Wrecking Ball" was considerably more reserved. Evidently there isn't enough new and different this trip.

There's no denying the performers' talent. Holdover Bob Dishy and his friends Avery Schreiber, Mitzie Welch, Roger Bowen, Jack Burns, Mina Kolb and Dick Schaal proved that at Wednesday's opener (15). The fault is not in the stars but in their material which seems dragged out and generally uninspired.

Another drawback is the unequal distribution of opportunity among the group. As all of them display plenty of talent, if not in equal degrees, it could be a challenge to their improvising skill if they were to rotate frequently.

Particularly outstanding are Avery Schreiber, a bear of a man sporting a most luxuriant hirsute appendage, and Mitzie Welch, a pretty blond clown with a wonderfully flexible face and voice. The pair, along with brunette Mina Kolb, hit an improvised peak with their "The Butcher and the Landlady" done in Kabuki style (a "suggestion" from the audience).

The first half, or planned part of the program, gets the show away fast with a blackout using the stage's one prop, a rather imperfect rose. From then on the septet has a ball (if not a "wrecking" one) with their short takes but bogs down on some overwritten sketches.

Jack Burns and Schreiber get yocks with a conventioneer-cab driver routine. Some of the most successful skits evolved from improvising on song titles provided by the audience—"I Fell Off The Philippine Mountains and Broke My Knee," the Kabuki bit or "I Burned My Feet on the Boardwalk" (done as a tarantella).

A major assist to the actors, especially in the song-title bit, is the fast improving of both music and sound effects by Tom O'Horgan. Robe.

Harrah's, Lake Tahoe

Lake Tahoe, April 14.

Tony Martin, Cyd Charisse, Moro-Landis Dancers (17), Leighton Noble Orch (17); presented by Bob Vincent.

As a single, Tony Martin has always proved a potent marquee lure on the Reno-Tahoe circuit. Augmented in a "Two Act Revue" by Cyd Charisse, there's no question the Mr. & Mrs. offering will prompt big turnout in their debut as a double in the swank South Shore Room.

The revue, produced and directed by Robert Sidney and under the musical direction of Hal Borne, is heavily laced with audio and visual appeal; i.e., Martin's polished professionalism in the vocal department, and Miss Charisse's impressive talent for choreography.

Re the distaffer, that beautiful face and the perfectly proportioned stems cannot be ignored—by either gender. Also a big attention winner is her gowning, five changes on show caught.

Martin takes a brief bow with a few lines of "There's No Tomorrow," then brings on his partner (backed by four boy dancers) for a warmup to "Let's Dance," followed by her terp interpretation of "I Love All of You" from MGM pic, "Silk Stockings" which co-starred Fred Astaire and Gene Kelly.

After essaying a special-lyric bit themed around nursery rhymes, Miss Charisse hits the high point carboning Sadie Thompson. It's a clever sketch, smartly staged, showcasing her as one of the best dancers in the business.

Backed for most of his turn by a quartet of two males and two femmes (with enough talent on their own to rate top bookings), Martin includes a wide variety in his catalog. Titles range from "Best Things in Life Are Free" and "More" to "Fly Me to the Moon."

Singer bridges the titles with a few observations on booze, his drinking friends of the film colony, and a spoof of the new young singers who are not noted as "noteholders."

Exit has the couple together in a home scene rehearsing the act. They cap the routine with a bit of soft shoe and a cheek-to-cheek in "It's the Last Dance."

The Martin-Charisse revue rates plaudits for staging and presentation. It's a class act for any situation.

The Moro-Landis Dancers turn in the usual capable performance, this time accenting the fandango, with appropriate choreog and costuming. Backstopping is the well-rehearsed Leighton Noble Orch.

Andy Griffith Show comes in April 23. Long.

Queen Elizabeth, Mont'l

Montreal, April 16.

Jose Greco & Spanish Ballet (17), Nick Martin Orch (12), Salle Bonaventure Trio; $2.50 cover, $3 Saturday. No Sunday show.

On costuming alone, Jose Greco and his troupe are a smash hit at the Salle Bonaventure, drawing solid biz for the dinner shows particularly. The company, of course, has a ready-made audience, But Greco, despite the fact that he's been here before and did a stint at the Place des Arts just prior to his opening at this poshery, leaves nothing to chance.

The entire turn is a tour de force performance, except for the first few minutes after the opening when there seems to be a slight letdown in pace, and when one of the gal singers roams the floor, skirts twirling, but without a mike. This harms the effect of her song, and at least some of the audience are lost.

After that, however, it's smash all the way. With the size of this troupe, Greco can supply the full measure of authentic Spanish songology and terpology. Three numbers are particularly standout: a bolero which kicks off with a ballet version then high gears into two couples doing various versions which are authentic espagna; four males excel in their precision bit; and a young couple does an unusual boy-girl turn.

Greco's shrewd showmanship is also used to good advantage with excellent staging and mixing the various combinations into many different songs and dances, all adding up to a begoff finale.

Nick Martin's Orch provides a fine show-cutting service. Laza.

Mister Kelly's, Chi

Chicago, April 13.

Shecky Greene, Judy Curtis, Marty Rubenstein Trio; $2.50 cover.

It's seldom that an audience rates a review, but the house at Mister Kelly's for Shecky Green's opening show was one of those groups that merits special mention. It was a noisily rambunctious crew bent in having a raucous good time either because of or despite what happened on stage.

Unfortunately, most chose the latter despite the fact that Greene was in exceptionally good form and, per past performance, acquitted himself as one of the best of shoot-from-the-hip school of comics. Customers who tuned in on him were treated to a first rate show.

Greene was at his sharpshooting best in turning his comedic spotlight on the gamut of his experii ence from his Windy City boyhood to his experiences on the cafe boards. He intersperses his improvisations with a few gags and set pieces. But for the most part it's a sharply-etched hiur-long ramble through the life and times of Shecky Greene.

Opening the show is Judy Curtis, a former band singer with the Harry James orch. Unfortunately, Miss Curtis has not fully graduated from her days before the band. Where a clearly defined stage personality is not necessarily essential for a band thrush, it's imperative as a cafe single.

She's an attractive brunet with a pleasant mid-range voice that occasionally flats out in her upper range tries. Her biggest shortcoming at present is her repertoire, which is composed of an undistinguished array of pop tunes and standards which do little toward limning her stage character. Although some of these evergreens might have been molded into personalized tunes, her arrangements and handling fail to give them her personal stamp. Mor.

Hotel Astor, N.Y.

Carlton Productions presentation of "Naughty Marietta" with Marcia King, Danny Carroll, Lowell Harris, Rosemary Anoe, William K. Covington, William Memmott; staged by Brian Shaw; book adaptation, Alan James; lighting, Fred Allison; costumes, Tony Colecchio. Opened at Hotel Astor Dutch Coffee House, April 16, '64; $2.90 door admission; no minimum for food or beverages.

Anthony M. Rey is attempting to reestablish the Hotel Astor in live entertainment. With the N.Y. World's Fair bringing in a lot of extra occupancy, he's seeking a policy to create activity at the inn.

The current foray into entertainment, a condensation of Victor Herbert's "Naughty Marietta" is performed by five attractive and talented youngsters who are unfortunately handicapped in trying to lift the dated book and format into the modernity. It's a formidable task, especially in since they hew to the same story line as the original opus.

There is still a lot of attractive music in this operetta, which has been cut to an hour's running time. There has been some telescoping of characters and scenes, but still the libretto is too soggy to lope along with the players.

The comedy is by Danny Carroll who adds to his capers by playing several roles including a chorus of 50. He's a bright lad, eager to please and has a sense of comedy that elevates the show at times.

Marcia King has pleasant looks and a voice to watch. Rosemary Anoe, as the slave girl, brings a cultivated voice to the role. William K. Covington plays Capt. Dick in a heroic manner, and the heavy is by Lowell Harris who seems not to take his villainy too seriously.

The direction is by Brian Shaw, piano music is by William Memmot (the sole music), and the costuming by Tony Colecchio are plusses in the production.

The scene of this musical is in the hotel's little known basement Dutch Coffee Shop and starts following the dinner hour. There's no need to eat or drink during the show, since the admission is charged at the door. With a more successful vehicle the policy could create a lot of traffic to the hotel's underground. Jose.

Palmer House, Chi.

Chicago, April 15.

Jane Russell, Connie Haines & Beryl Davis, Ben Arden Orch; $2.50-$3 cover.

The teaming of Jane Russell, Connie Haines and Beryl Davis would seem to be a surefire booking for any club. They are all names in their own right, and they can and do deliver a firstrate show. Neveretheless, they opened to an only moderately-filled house in the class Empire Room.

Best guess as to why the trio is not breaking it up in the Windy City was put forth by a jaded savant of the nitery press corps on opening night: "They've overworked the wholesome bit."

It's true that the story of their getting together at a church benefit has been well-played in the national press and by the local gazettes. And it is also true that Chi is a convention town and that conventioneers are traditionally more interested in high spirits than they are in the spiritual.

Ironically, the threesome is anything but ethereal. Miss Russell, although gowned up to her neck, retains her sexy essence—religioso tunes and WAIF benefits to the contrary. Miss Davis is a tall, shapely dish with classically handsome English features, and Miss Haines has a diminutive, bouncy attractiveness.

Musically, the group is fine, and their act is well-honed and polished. They move about the floor well and have a knack for involving the audience in the show.

Miss Haines does an excellent job with "I Believe," Miss Davis is topnotch in her handling of "Foggy Day" and "Make Someone Happy" and Miss Russell displays firstrate showmanship in "Mack the Knife" and "Gonna Build a Mountain." In trio, they score with a "Joy" medley, a superb arrangement of "Vaya Con Dios" and a rocking version of "Jericho."

Drummer-conductor Sid Balkin rates a nod for keeping the show lively, and Ben Arden's house orch deserves credit for showing the trio off at its best. Mor.

Desert Inn, Las Vegas

Las Vegas, April 14.

Phil Harris, Caterina Valente, Jubilee Four, Rola & Rolan, Donn Arden Dancers, Girls (20), Boys (6), Carlton Hayes Orch (17); produced by Frank Sennes; presented by Wilbur Clark; choreography, Donn Arden; musical arrangements, Jim Harbert; costumes, Bill Campbell and Madame Berthe; stage direction, Jim Hawthorne; $5 minimum.

Not only does Phil Harris have the best all around show he's yet presented here—he introduces Caterina Valente, the most exciting personality to warm up the Strip since Mitzi Gaynor erupted here several seasons back.

Harris hits a new peak, abetted by a stirring Donn Arden production number called "Jubilee Americana" which presents 20 chorines in the Ziegfeld manner. The dolls introduce Harris, who neatly segues into a "Hello, Dollys" acknowledgement which is refreshingly done.

In the Harris tradition, he does "That's What I Like About the South," "Old Man Time," and with the rich-sounding Jubilee Four does such numbers as "Old Master Painter," "Sleepy Time Down South" and "Old Time Religion."

Balancing team of Rola & Rolan get gasps from the time they enter from the wings on top of the other—head to head. Hand to head, foot to head, and head to head balances look even more frightening when the duo performs on a rocking plank atop a rolling cylinder.

Miss Valente is an attractive young singer with unbelievable range, and unique, crystal-clear tonal quality blending into memorable styling. With a happy, animated personality, she tells of her Italian-French-Swiss-German background and "musical arrangements by an Irishman."

She's a charmer putting dramatic facial expressions into each song delivery. She clicks with such serious numbers as "Falling In Love With Love" and "The Party's Over"; she gets laughs with an original German version of "Mack The Knife," an up tempo "Blue Moon," and a cartoon attack on "A Mean Old Fly."

First-nighters gave Miss Valente consistent applause, with most mitting going to her famed "Malaguena" and "The Breeze and I." Her turn is a tough one to follow, but vet showman Harris does it gracefully. The Carlton Hayes orch (17) backs with aplomb, fronted by Buddy Cole.

This bill, presented by Wilbur Clark, in until May 12 when Danny Kaye returns. Duke.

Mark Twain Riverboat Restaurant, N.Y.

Stan Rubin & His Riverboat Ramblers (6), featuring the Tiger Town Five; The Banjo Boys (5), featuring Roger Sprung; no cover or minimum.

Only the most blase New Yorker would call the changes owner Jan Mitchell has made in his Empire State Building Longchamps Restaurant "just another remodeling job." The change is so complete that nothing of the Longchamps image remains.

The Mark Twain Riverboat, which opened Thursday (16), is still, basically, a restaurant, but offers dancing and interim musical entertainment. The plush look throughout is less authentic Mississippian than the beautiful handiwork of a Broadway stage designer, and with good reason.

Oliver Smith was evidently given a free hand by Mitchell and he has created a posh film-set version of a highly romantic era. From the main (or street) floor's river-steamer dining salon atmosphere to the even fancier lower-level dancing and dining area, it's a world of columns covered with carpetbagging, ships' figureheads, deep carpets, miles of snow-white table linen and waiters garbed as Gaylord Ravenal-types (albeit, a bit showy in all-red coats and vests).

The larger downstairs room is divided into sections called the San Francisco Room, the New Orleans Room, the Innocents Abroad Room and the Hartford Room.

Stan Rubin & His Riverboat Ramblers provide dance music, which is only occasionally Dixieland in tempo. The pattern is closer to cocktail music, with an occasional Latino-tempoed item and "one Dixieland blast per set."

Group is outgrowth of Rubin's Tiger Town Five which also works in occasional jazz items. Featured vocalist is John Amoroso. Alternating with band are The Banjo Boys, led by Roger Sprung. Group starts at the cocktail hour, then alternates with Ramblers, who come on at 8 p.m. It also provides whole sows on Mondays.

The atmosphere, despite the decor, is completely informal and should attract both nostalgic oldtimers and swinging youngsters. Maitre d' George Fillos presides at the ropes of this fanciful variation on life on the Mississippi. Robe.

Nugget, Sparks, Nev.

Fred Waring & His Pennsylvanians (33), Rudy Cardenas, George Arnold Singers & Dancers (17), Foster Edwards Orch (10); $2 minimum, second show.

In this debut outing at John Ascuaga's Nugget, Fred Waring notes his band and the Pennsylvanians have been playing and singing "for pleasure" for 47 years, and his show is proof of the notation. It's a most pleasurable session although a bit too much on the formal concert side and too long by Nevada nitery standards. Judicious editing would result in no loss of entertainment values.

Tagged the "Magic of Music," Waring makes full use of his 18 musicians and a mixed chorus of nine males and six femmes to cover all musical areas: folk, spirituals, love songs, dance tunes, evergreens, marches. His music men and singers are highly proficient in all segments.

The arrangements, both instrumental and choral, are also impressive. Opening theme is, natch, "I Hear Music," followed by a set of folk stuff including "Mr. Frog A Courtin' He Did Go," "A Poor Wayfarin' Stranger" and "Battle of Jericho." Among the love songs are "Love Is Where You Find It" and "Love Here Is My Heart."

In the classic section, Betty Ann McCall is featured playing Liszt's "Second Hungarian Rhapsody" on the Cordovox, an electronic accordion that can be made to sound like an organ. Many of the vocalists are featured in solo spots—and many show outstanding individual talent.

Rudy Cardenas is unerring, and flashy, in juggling balls, clubs, metal cups, and top hats. Most of his routines demand the ultimate in timing, and he proves the master. His is an act perfect for many situations.

Opening production pulls many titles from "Music Man," with Jim Ingram and Joyce Von ably handling the vocal chores. Sets are inventive, and use is made of a revolving section in the center of the stage. Bertha, the Nugget's elephant under the direction of trainer Jenda Smaha, is featured doing a Charleston and in an acro number with male partner, wherein she steps on the raised end of a teeter board, sending partner into a high back flip.

Sergio Franchi, Myron Cohen dotted for April 23. Long.

The Gold Bug, N.Y.

J. J. Johnson Quartet, Jayce Parker Trio; $2.50 minimum.

The Greenwich Village nitery scene can be as family-oriented as the carnival world.

Boniface at the new Gold Bug is young Bob Santopietro, a jazz buff. But the point here is that he's the son of Frank Santopietro, whose name for years adorned Frank's Tropical Bar and who is the brother of Louis Santopietro, host for years to the Village "in group" via his downstairs beer and steak ($1) grotto on Sheridan Square (this fine and cheap snug gave way to the building mania a few years back and Louis's is now on 8th Street).

The Gold Bug is on West Third Street, at a site once occupied by Bill Bertolotti's restaurant and run by the Santopietros. Anyhow, as a jazz joint (which in itself is class for the strip that used to have all the girlie-show tourist traps, but which now mainly has tourist-trap coffee houses), The Gold Bug is long, plush and decorated in hot reds, but featuring cool music.

Son of Frank has shown good taste with his initial bill. For vet trombonist J. J. Johnson can blow mellow show ballads with great warmth and style and handle driving modern jazz items like Max Roach's "Blues Waltz." Leader gets solid support from Harold Maberin's piano, Frank Gant's drums and Arthur Harper's bass.

Rounding out the bill with melodic 88 jazz is Jayce Parker and her rhythm combo. Groups are on an 18-night stand. Bill.

Decor Clicks in New Rm. Of Edgewater Beach, Chi, But Show's Disappointing

Chicago, April 14.

The Edgewater Beach is one of Chicago's old line prestige hotels, and although it hit its top stride in the '20s and '30s it still retains an air of merchandiseable class. In its salad days it received considerable national and local renown for its Marine Dining Room and adjoining Beach Walk, both of which were de rigueur family and prom institutions.

In the '40s the Marine Dining Room fell out of favor and in the early '50s was replaced by the Polynesian Village. The bamboo decor made a brief splash in the heyday of the South Seas eateries and then began to taper off in popularity.

The room has now reverted to its more formal oy yesteryear and has taken the name Marine Room, dropping part of the old title in deference to tradition.

Designer Sander Davis has wrought a handsome room, replacing the dark old Polynesian Village with a stately, light and airy dining spa. Color scheme is a quietly resplendent combination of white, cream, blue and gold.

Main floor seats 700 (in modern high-backed chairs), and a curtained-off balcony can add 300 more. Little has been changed in the stage area, but elimination of the sight and sound dead spots in the old room are a decided improvement in the place as a show spot.

In light of the considerable expense involved in dressing up the room, it is curious why g.m. Ken White chose this show to preem the spot. Perhaps talent consultant Merriel Abbott is to be faulted for picking this motley ABC package, but it's certainly not a choice destined to get the room off to a proper start.

Bob Newkirk is an okay singer, but any impact that he might have parlayed was dulled by two opening acts that left the preem crowd in a torpor. The Maldonado Dancers, composed of three males and two buxom femmes, have a surface gloss and hardness all out of keeping with what one would expect in the new layout, and femme ventriloquist Sandra is an amiable if uninspired club date act.

Newkirk has a fine set of pipes that have earned him a steady berth on the Don McNeil Breakfast Club radio show. However, he has a tense and uneasy stage demeanor that, although it may never affect his radio career, will have to be softened for the clubs.

Withal, he is a capable balladeer, and can lend a high-voltage touch to such numbers as "I Believe In You," "If Ever I Would Leave You" and "Maria."

If the Maldonado Dancers, as the first act ever to play the room, represent the tone of future bookings, then the Marine Room's talent policy would seem to be in for some re-thinking. Their terp style is a mixture of early-George Raft and late-Peter Gunn, and the costuming of the femme members is uninspired.

Sandra (Mason) unaccountably starts her turn off with a pseudo-jazz rendition of "Mack The Knife." Her byplay with her dummy is loaded with such vintage vent corn as humming and whistling at the same time and repeated references to the difficulty of pronouncing the letter "b" without moving one's lips. She does the latter very well.

While it's easier to second-guess than it is to predict, the Edgewater Beach would seem to merit an appraisal of the image that the Marine Room would like to project. At present the decor and the talent just don't blend. Mor.

Rat Fink Room, N. Y.

(FOLLOWUP)

Johnny Johnson, marking a quasi-"comeback," is the new added attraction at Jackie Kannon's Rat Fink Room, the zaniest nitery in New York. While some of Kannon's quips are not for the kiddies—as a matter of fact he doesn't have to resort to the neo-Lenny Bruce vocabulary because he is fundamentally a compelling comedian with his other brash asides, iconoclastic nuances on the passing scene and doggerels—the b.o. attests to his general acceptance.

The boite's ribald "art" sets the motif and Kannon could refrain from overaccentuation.

Wisely he interlards his mirthful marathon monolog with guest-bookings, and Johnson, to self-guitar accompaniment, uncorks a pleasant medley of past and current clicks. With some he has been uniquely identified. His salute to Jule Styne's impressive pot-pourri dates from a "B" filmusical, "Sweater Girl," in which Johnson starred, but he chooses to eschew some of the more distinguished musicomedy and other songs with which he has been associated. He's the perennial juvenile type and for a time (a) essayed Wall St. and (b) an east side steakery, which still bears his name although he's no longer connected.

With Kannon's capable Nick and Phil at the door they are hospitable greeters. Situated on top of The Roundtable, citadel of bellydancer, the site of the old Versailles is one of the few cabaret clicks in town; in fact it's a two-bistro parlay. Abel.

Edgewater Beach, Chi.

Bob Newkirk, Maldonado, Dancers, Sandra, Claire Perreau Orch; $2-$3 cover charge.

Bon Soir, N.Y.

Felicia Sanders, Marc London, Enid Mosier & Alfonso; $5 minimum.

Although the "Spring Show" consists of acts that have played here frequently enough to be familiar, the faithful gathered in sufficient numbers Tuesday (14) to bring smiles to the management's faces. What the Bon Soir really needs, however, is a bit more room and air per patron and a shorter routine for all three acts.

Felicia Sanders played this lower level cabaret a few months ago but her reception must have made drop-in patrons believe she was returning after an absence of years. An adroit singer she can wrap up a ballad in gossamer and send it, seemingly, to each individual in the room.

There's a Piaf-ish quality about her delivery and styling. But her personality is her own, with plenty of reason for her eight-week booking in evidence.

Whether Miss Sanders is crooning Kurt Weill's "Speak Low" or making a big thing out of "No More Trumpets," each patron's ears and eyes get a treat. Her excellent pianist, supported by two house musicians, is her composer-husband Irving Josephs.

Opening show are Enid Mosier and Alfonso. The young femme is an old hand here whether she's singing alone, with a steel-band or with her current partner.

The pair get away quick with Cole Porter's "Jupiter Forbid," turn "Playmates" into something out of Polly Adler, then segue into a samba-ish "Love For Sale." Alfonso, who also bangs a mean bongo, blends beautifully with Miss Mosier on vocals. Their closer, a revival tune, "Going Down Jordan," makes a good bow-in for the next act.

Comedian Marc London's tendency to dwell too long on one subject is his only drawback. The opening audience didn't catch some of his excellent throwaway lines but got most of his message. His longest item, a takeoff on "This Was the Week That Was," is funny but could stand plenty cutting. Robe.

Blackstone, Chi

Chicago, April 16.

Toni Carroll, Frank York Orch; $2-$2.50 cover.

Toni Carroll has proved a winner in her previous engagements at the posh little Cafe Bonaparte and her current stand looks to keep her record intact.

A voluptuous brunet, she has both the physical accoutrements and joi de vivre required to part the expense account set from their credit cards. She's a first rate lure for the traveling businessmen and conventioners who are the backbone of this room's trade.

Miss Carroll has updated her turn to the extent of adding "Hello Dolly", but for the most part it is the same act that's been successful here before. Among her numbers that score with the tablers is a bright rendition of "Ciao Ciao Bambino" in Italian, an offbeat arrangement of "You Can't Take That Away From Me" and "You Gotta Have Heart". She's also effective with her ringsider-participation r&r number, "I Want You To Know" and with a ballad medley encore. Mor.

Sahara, Las Vegas

Las Vegas, April 14.

Victor Borge, Leonid Hambro, Moro-Landis Dancers (16), Louis Basil Orch (12); produced by Stan Irwin; $5 minimum.

Victor Borge, always a mighty magnet for the Congo Room, is up to his old tricks—and the old tricks are still as funny as ever. He kids just about everything in sight, including himself and the audience, and of course he reserves his most serious kidding for serious music. Even those who may be frustrated by Borge's mere dabbling with the classics will admit that his approach couldn't be funnier.

On this trip, Borge again has another superb pianist with him—Leonid Hambro—and with twin pianos they offer some of the few serious moments in an act spearheaded by the star's distinctive comedy dialog and distinctively irreverent piano piddling. Hambro, of course, gets his share of irreverence.

Borge updates his delightful Danish-accented patter with remarks about the new Moro-Landis production number, a fine miniature musicale saluting the American Indian, which features the 16 "Most American Girls In The World," one of whom gets burned at the stake. (At its conclusion, Borge says, "That's called 'What's cooking?'" "Tell your friends," he says, "if they want to see this opening number they'd better come in within 15 days—because we lose a girl every night."

Louis Basil's orch (12) provides excellent framework. This Stan Irwin production is in until May 12 when Bill Dana and The Mills Bros. open. Duke.

King's Club, Dallas

Dallas, April 14.

Jerry Van Dyke, Lynda Freeman, Raul Arrambide, King's Club Trio; private club, no cover or minimum.

Jerry Van Dyke has come up steadily in four years, since he was tagged under New Acts in 1960 at this midtown privatery. Talented comic, opening his third stint here Monday (13) before an SRO crowd, scores easily with his new routines, throwaway one-liners and surefire holdovers.

Loaded with original material, but still with no set format, Van Dyke now has assurance and flawless timing as he gets lotsa mileage from his offerings. Opening with a vocal, "Got a Lot of Living to Do," he follows with yarns before a banjo solo, "Bill Bailey," to good returns.

Highlight of the boff 35-minute stint is still his hilarious lip-sync of the first "Lone Ranger" radio sketch, now a classic. He's a savvy showman now, after tv exposure on the Judy Garland Show and brother Dick Van Dyke's show.

Between shows femcee Lynda Freeman thrushes nicely, and Raul Arrambide table strolls with guitar, offering Spanish songs. House trio provides top showbacking and fills the floor with terpers.

Van Dyke plays two weeks, with Ullett & Hendra due April 27 for a fortnight. Bark.

Blues Bar, Paris

Paris, April 14.

Hazel Scott, Mae Mercer, Curtis Jones, Michel Sardaby; $2.40 minimum.

First floor sit-down room in the three-tiered Grandes Severines, which has a cabaret and dancing in the basement and a Russo restaurant with music on ground level, is still a popular spot for locals and visiting Yanks.

Hazel Scott, in fine fettle, does solid piano work and has an ability to improvise with the mood of the clientele. She also can do yeoman work on standard ballads in the husky pipe department. This is one of her first Paris stints in some time. She should roll up an extended engagement here.

Mae Mercer, the room's statuesque boniface, also gives out blues and r&b numbers with a fervor and feeling that make the boite monicker a correct tag. She develops intense tones, mood and emotion with her laments.

Curtis Jones does an acceptable 88 filler and song work while Michel Sardaby lends good interim pianoing and accompaniment. Price is right for the offerings even if it has gone up from its original $1.25 minimum mainly to clear out some of the younger set who had a tendency to squat all nigh' at previous prices. Mosk.

New Acts

SHERRY BRITTON
Songs
30 Mins.
Living Room, N.Y.

Sherry Britton, who has plied the burley wheels and was a fave on 52d Street in its heyday, is now making a major bid in the cafes. She recalls her genesis lovingly. The background of Minsky and Leon & Eddie's has given her a solid foundation that should make her a good commercial single in the niteries. She also has a legit background, having played Adelaide in "Guys & Dolls" on the summer circuits. This is another facet of her more recent growth.

Miss Britton retains much of the looks that many drooled over. She wears her hair long and the decolletage low, and her gown has that expensive bespangled look. Songwise, Miss Britton comes off well. Some of her early numbers are not too fortuitous, but her special material including the "work songs of her craft," are the highlights of her turn. Included in a medley, in which she fondles a guitar, is a tune such as "I've Been Working on the Runway," and a few others that reestablish her as a refugee from the Republic Theatre. She has an excellent personality and a projection that indicates everything is in good, if not too clean, fun. Jose.

WAYNE STORM
Songs
18 Mins.
Blue Angel, N. Y.

Wayne Storm is a vigorous singer of folk tunes. Montana-bred entertainer has a good voice and a sense of interpretation along with a meaningful guitar background by himself and another by Bob Wild. Storm's tunes have style and sincerity as well strong projection. Although he comes on the folk scene at a rather late date, there is still room for his vigorous chants.

Singer has a wide catalog and a commercial quality. He seems to sing to please himself and not the cultists of the authentic or the ethnic. Most of his tunes are of the American scene, and a few of them are designed for general consumption. He's the kind of singer who strives to entertain rather than educate. Jose.

GODFREY CAMBRIDGE
Comedy
30 Mins.
Blue Angel, N. Y.

Godfrey Cambridge is the type of Negro comedian who probably will arouse controversy. He's of the new breed commenting on today's turn of events. However, he's also the type who recites a joke or two on himself and his people. He makes humorous comment on both sides of the fence and much of it's funny, some of it is bitter. He rates a rostrum in many kinds of niteries.

Cambridge discourses on the current scene in both the entertainment and political worlds. Some of his lines have unusual impact such as his observation on the "stall-in" that the last time he got some gas for his car, the Negro attendant called him Uncle Tom. His lines are up to the minute in this repect. However, there is a tinge of bitterness in his piece about the film director who gets a Negro performer to enact a role that is personally demeaning to him as a Negro. It's a piece too uncomfortable for cafe consumption. Jose.

KATHY WOODRUFF
Songs
15 Mins.
Blue Angel, N. Y.

Kathy Woodruff is a pleasant girl who has a polished turn. She's a singer of charm and simplicity with many interesting melodic excursions. What's more, she has a personable delivery that seems eligible for many kinds of situations.

Miss Woodruff, pleasingly coiffed and coutured, however, seems loath to take chances on anything out of well beaten grooves. It seems to be one drawback in what is otherwise a promising singer and a good bet for many fields, including legit musicals. Jose.

TESSIE O'SHEA
Songs, Comedy
65 Mins.
Embers, N.Y.

The American cafe debut of vet British comedienne Tessie O'Shea is notable for many reasons. It's a chance to see how an experienced music hall hand operates and a reason for a different kind of nitery trade.

The nitery ops seem to be relying increasingly on the angles. Straight presentations of year-in-and-out attractions seem to attract the same people, but less of them as time goes on. The current experiment by the Embers, "The 12 O'Clock Theatre," wherein a personality from a legit musical field does a cafe stint, seems to be a good start in bringing in those who do not ordinarily patronize night clubs.

The start of the midnight legit policy has been entrusted to Miss O'Shea, late of the ill-fated "Girl Who Came to Supper." "Two-Ton" Tessie, who uses her corpulence as a prop, seems to have hit it right with the cafe set. She's a fresh note in this bistro which has as her partners in entertainment, Dizzy Gillespie Orch and the Mike Longo Trio jazz practitioners, which makes for an extremely odd combination. The Embers' attempt is at least an appeal to the late set to reestablish niteries as a rival to the Late Show.

The British comedienne sets an old music hall mood. Indeed her tunes from the British stages and barrooms are the distinctive points of her turn. There's a freshness and vigor in her work. She's not hemmed in by the comparatively small stage, even with her huge bulk. She trips and traipses about as though she had as much room as at the Palladium. But the cafe gives her a more intimate dimension; she chats with the customers, and shares a joke or two with them.

Miss O'Shea tops her turn with such tunes as "Saturday Night at the Rose & Crown" "Cuddle in the Clover" and others that Britons have grown up with. She also throws in a Welsh folk tune to give her one of her most tender moments, and should she ever want to work the Catskills she auditioned with "Yiddishe Mamma." There was an ovation for her efforts. Jose.

JOAN MEYERS
Songs
30 Mins.
Caucus Club, Detroit

There is more promise than fulfillment in the present status of youthful Joan Meyers. She is a diamond in the rough but if the right polishing is applied and "takes" this young lady could make it big.

She has a good voice but what is more important, it is a voice with a distinctive tonal quality. Her pitch is low and the sounds she emits are emotion-laden.

Miss Meyers is singing folk songs now, but an excursion into "Let Me Go Lover" reveals a voice and a style that could launch its owner on a career much broader than folk singing provides. With her low, emotioned-filled voice, she's a natural blues singer.

As is, Miss Meyers is a run-of-the-hills folk singer. She runs through "Nobody Wants a Baby When a Real Man Can Be Found," "Evening of the Roses," "Hey, Nellie, Nellie," etc. Such offerings seem incongruous in the swank and presumably meant-to-be sophisticated Back Room of the Caucus Club.

Miss Meyers was dressed in a severely plain black dress that did nothing for her except to cover her. Her severe hair styling was of no help to her appearance, either. But she has good features and possibly a figure that could be turned into assets.

AMI ROUSELLE
Songs
Blue Angel Lounge, N. Y.

Ami Rouselle is an accomplished singer who has settled down in the Blue Angel's Lounge as an entr'acte entertainment. The Negro singer takes in a wide latitude. She can soprano in the tradition of the cultivated chirper and she can tear off rhythmic numbers.

Miss Rouselle, who gives herself a strong piano accompaniment as well, seems to be able to handle herself in most any situation. The Angel's lounge sometimes has enough traffic to create a considerable amount of distraction. She takes these handicaps in stride, keeps the attention of the customers perched at the bar or at the tables and manages to get applause for her efforts. She can work herself into a pleasant diversion in this situation. Jose.

GINO TONETTI
Songs
20 Mins.
Living Room, N.Y.

Gino Tonetti is a handsome and personable newcomer to the cafes. He has a heavy Italianate air that translates itself into a generally romantic mien in this intimerfe. Tonetti has a Continental flair and sound that should appeal to the distaff trade.

An added plus in his favor is the fact that he sings forthrightly. There is generally a straight delivery and little of the note bending that used to be the forte of the romantic singers. His songbag includes a lot of the European faves. He gives the impression of having learned of amour in Paris and Rome. He concentrates on these languages, but his songs on the English idiom generally leave no doubt as to the meaning of the Continental chansons.

Tonetti should do well in cafes and his Valentinoesque looks should interest film producers as well. Jose.

House Review

Palladium, London

London, April 17.

Lena Horne, The Bachelors, Des O'Connor, The Monarchs, Arthur Worsley, The Bel Caron Trio, The Del Rey Bros., Bill Finch, Bill Ternent Orch; presented by Leslie A. Macdonnell and Bernard Delfont; staged by Jack Matthews; $2.80 top.

That this nation has not completely lost sight of great performers in the current fad for loud rock 'n' rolling is revealed in the way London has received Lena Horne. At the start of a four-and-a-half week billtopping stint in Britain's premiere vaude showcase, she was admittedly apprehensive about returning (after 12 years) to a land in the grip of Beatlemania.

Miss Horne's appearance, however, proves that there is still a market here for superb artistry. An SRO Palladium audience dug her every inch of the way, and the earlier plaudits for The Bachelors was considerably topped by the applause for Miss Horne's electric act.

Her adroit selection of songs, through which she never gets into the same groove twice, provides an excellent showcase for her skill in living the mood of a number and projecting it with physical and vocal intensity.

Superb are numbers like "I've Grown Accustomed To Your Face," "I Concentrate On You," "A Guy Called Joe" and others. Her wit, charm, sincerity and humility, along with her ability as a performer, make Miss Horne's 15-number songalong a memorable experience.

Bachelors' presentation is a brave try to break away from the "routine" of local groups and, with polish, it will pay off fully. Meantime, their strongly pronounced Irish accents lend a lot of kick to their arrangements of "Charmaine," "Diane" and "I Believe," among others, for which they are noted.

Des O'Conner, handling emcee chores, works some old gags which he gets away with — but only just. More successful are The Monarchs, a versatile harmonica playing trio whose real passion is for vocal and instrumental gaggery. Vent Arthur Worsley does fine work in his spot with his dummy, Charlie Brown, seemingly so alive that Worsley himself appears the more wooden of the two.

Highly gymnastic body-throwing act of the two-man-one-femme Bal Caron Trio has some breath-holding highlights and they earn their applause. From America, juggler Bill Finch does some neat and faultless stick twirling. But show openers the juggling Del Ray Trio need to correct one or two fumble-prone items to score 100%. Watt.

CURRENT BILLS

WEEK OF APRIL 22

NEW YORK CITY

MUSIC HALL—Rockettes, Corps de Ballet, Raymond Paige Symphony Orc.

AUSTRALIA

MELBOURNE (Tivoli)—Jackie Warner, Evelyn Page, Katherine & Karen Kessey, Yvonne Barrett, Joan Stuart, Angela O'Toole, Barbara Young, Lesley Secombe, Janet Dearness, Joan Morrow, Sue Menlove.
SYDNEY (Tivoli)—Penny Nicholls, Bob Andrews, The D'Angolys, Two Pirates, Balcombes, Eddie Mendoza, Eric Whitley, Jeff Hudson, Harry Currie, Keith Leggett, Jackie Griffiths, Maureen Wilson, Wendy Faulkener.

SCOTLAND

EDINBURGH PALLADIUM — Calum Kennedy, Will Starr, Sammy Short.
GLASGOW METROPOLE—Clark & Murray, Joe Gordon Four, Alexander Brothers, Dennis Clancy, Ivy Carey, Danny Regan, Alan Beale, Betty Melville, Vy Day, Arthur Spink, George Rex, Moxon Girls.
GLASGOW PAVILION—Jimmy Victory, Bob & Jack Young, Eileen Keegan, John Mulvaney, Three Bells, Moxon Girls.

Cabaret Bills

NEW YORK CITY

APARTMENT — Melodye Condos, Charles De Forest.
BASIN ST. EAST—Pat Collins.
BITTER END—Joan Tolliver, Jim, Jake & Joan.
BON SOIR—Felicia Sanders, Three Flames.
BLUE ANGEL — Godfrey Cambridge, Kathy Woodruff, Wayne Storm.
CAFE AU GO GO — Lenny Bruce, Hendra & Ulett, Shawn Phillips.
CHARDAS—Bela Babal Orc., Elemar Horvath, Tibor Rakossy, Dick Marta, Janos Hozzsu, Kato Fenyas.
CHATEAU MADRID—Los Chavales de Espana, Emilio Reyes Orc., Carbia Orc.
COPACABANA—Los Cincos Latinos, Jan Murray, Pat Woodell, Eddie Albert, Joseph Mele Orc.
CRYSTAL ROOM—Joe Mooney.
EMBERS—Joey Bushkin, Lenore Paxton.
GRINZING — Kalman Banyak, Henry Butz.
HAWAIIAN ROOM—Teiko Yannagi, Keolu Beamer, Auletta Orc.
FIVE SPOT—Sonny Rollins & Co.
HOTEL ASTOR—Eddie Lane Orc.
HOTEL AMERICANA — Peggy Lee, Lee Evans Orc.
HOTEL NEW YORKER—Sylvia Barry, Milt Saunders Orc.
HOTEL PARK SHERATON — Irving Fields 3.
HOTEL PLAZA — McGuire Sis., Emil Coleman Orc., Mark Monte Orc. Plaza-9 Room: Julius Monk, Gerry Matthews, Jamie Ross, Nagle Jackson, Ruth Buzzi, Barbara Cason, Delphi Harrington, Richard Blair, Jan Templeton, Wm. Ray, Robert Colston.
HOTEL ST. REGIS—Peter Duchin Orc, Nancy Manning, Quintero Orc, Walter Kay, Jani Sarkozi.
HOTEL SAVOY-HILTON—Arturo Arturos Orc.
HOTEL SHERRY-NETHERLAND — Juli Christman.
HOTEL WALDORF-ASTORIA — Patti Page, Emery Davis Orc., Horace Diaz Orc.
INTERNATIONAL—"Vive Les Girls," Mike Durso Orc.
LATIN QUARTER—Kaye Sisters, Rolly & Arry, Jack Le Cayen, Marion Conrad, Jeanne Michelle, Jo Lombardo Orc., Sammy Bidner Orc.
LIBORIO—Celia Cruz, Pancho Cardenas Orc., Candido.
LIVING ROOM—Sherry Britton, Gino Tonetti, David Fisher, Bob Ferro Orc.
NO. 1 FIFTH AVENUE—Hankinson & De Maio, Stan Freeman, Teresa Celli.
RAT FINK ROOM — Jackie Kannon, Johnny Johnston, Tobi Townes.
RED GARTER—G-String Strugglers.
RED ONION—Banjokers.
SAHBRA—"Hora Hootenanny" Menasha Baharav Orc., Gavri Dcrs., Margolit Ankory, Batsheva Baron & Ezra Zahavi, Leo Fuld.
SNIFFEN COURT INN—Renee Taylor, Joe Randi, Pepi Moreale 3.
SQUARE EAST—"Wrecking Ball."
TEEN HAVEN—Madisons, 5 Fashions, Soul Bros.
THE MOST—Geordie Hormel.
TOWN & COUNTRY — Jack Carter, Ned Harvey's Orc., Rod Rodriguez Rhythms.
UPSTAIRS & DOWNSTAIRS—"In This Corner," Bil Brown, Virgil Curry, Marian Mercer, Carol Morley.
VIENNESE LANTERN—Maria Carillo, Lillian Cavell, Ernest Schoen Orc.
VILLAGE GATE—Nina Simone, Stratus Near East Ensemble, Jorge Morel.
VILLAGE BARN—Jess Long, Jeanie Allen, Gene Allen, Barn Stompers, Lou Harold Orc.
VILLAGE VANGUARD—Bill Evans.
WESTCHESTER TOWN HOUSE—"Life Begins at Minskys."

CHICAGO

THE BELFRY—"Noises In The Theatre," June Ericson, Haskell Gordon, Ann Hilton, Ross Lashbrook, Bert Vallencourt.
BLUE ANGEL—"Calypso Nights" Lord Carlton, Sami Coe & Anita, Georgia Carroll, Lord Montego, Lord Smiley, Al D'Lacy Orc.
CONRAD HILTON — "Ladies First" Lucho Navarro, Wells & Four Fays, Manuel Del Toro, Marie Langenbein, Ernie McClean & Caroline Paul, Boulevar-Dears (5), Boulevar-Dons (5), Jimmy Palmer Orc.
HAPPY MEDIUM—Three Cheers For The Tired Business Man. Downstage Room—Rolf Harris.
HOTEL CONTINENTAL—JoAnn Val, Franz Benteler Orc.
DEL PRADO HOTEL—"Hits of Broadway" revue.
DRAKE HOTEL—Joe E. Lewis, Jimmy Blade Orc.
EDGEWATER BEACH—Bob Newkirk, Maldonado Dancers, Sandra, Claire Perreau Orc.
LE BISTRO—Pat Galleo & The Highlads, Connie Milano Trio.
LONDON HOUSE—Billy Maxted's Manhattan Jazz Band.
MISTER KELLY'S — Shecky Greene, Judy Curtis, John Frigo Trio, Marty Rubenstein Trio.
OLD TOWN NORTH—Addis & Crofutt.
PALMER HOUSE—Jane Russell, Connie Haines & Beryl Davis, Ben Arden Orc.
PLAYBOY—Bobby Byron, Berle Williams, Nick Noble, Toy Petty, Judie Thor-Danielle Dravor.
SECOND CITY—"Inside The Outsider" Ann Elder, Sally Hart, Gene Kadish, Dave Steinberg, Omar Shapli, Bill Mathieu.
SHERATON BLACKSTONE—Toni Carroll, Frank York Orc.

LOS ANGELES

COCOANUT GROVE — Tony Bennett, Enzo Stuarti.
CRESCENDO—Henny Youngman, Mary Ford, Frank Fanelli.
DINO'S—Betsy Duncan, Jack Elton, Steve LaFever.
ICE HOUSE—Shaggy Gorillas, Stewart Clay, Pat & Victoria.
INTERLUDE—Tani Jones.
MELODY ROOM—Jack Costanzo Quartet, Jacqueline Fontaine.
MOCAMBO BROS. — Simmy Bow, Kay Starr.
STATLER HOTEL—George Liberace.
TOWN HOUSE—Red Nichols & Five Pennies.
TROUBADOR—Hoyt Axton, Freddie Neile.
YE LITTLE CLUB—Ondine, Mike Dees.

LAS VEGAS

CASTAWAYS — "Bottoms Up," Redd Foxx, Sun Spots, Bobby Stevenson Orc.
DESERT INN—Phil Harris, Caterina Valente, Donn Arden Dancers, Jubilee Four, Rola and Rolan, Carlton Hayes Orc. Lounge: Davis and Reese, Mafalda Trio, Lilting Strings.
DUNES—Frederic Apcar's "Casino de Paris," starring Line Renaud. Lounge: "Vive Les Girls," Patti Carlson, Mickey Turner and Margo, Sasha Semenoff Strings. Sultan's Table: Arturo Romero Strings, Jose Mario, Al Nichols.
FLAMINGO—Juliet Prowse, Smothers Bros., Harry Blackstone Jr., Russ Black Orc. Lounge: Della Reese, Frank Sinatra Jr., Helen Forrest, Charlie Shavers, Tommy Dorsey Orc., Nita Cruz, Bob Sims.
FREMONT—Jets, Jody and Misfits, Ray Smith Group, Paul Landon.
GOLDEN NUGGET—Judy Lynn, Suzi Arden Show, Jay Chevalier, Kenny Vernon Trio.
HACIENDA—"Les Poupees de Paris." Lounge: Johnny Olenn, Ink Spots, Kay Houston.
MINT — "Hong Kong Scandals," Pat Moreno's "Artists and Models of '64."
NEVADA—Peter Anthony, Royal Tahitians.
NEW FRONTIER—Turner and Smith's "Voila Les Femmes," with Dick Weston. Lounge: Bobby Wick and Ray Brand in "Fantasy on Ice," Clara Ward Singers, Dick Rice Orc.
RIVIERA—Kay Starr, Louis Armstrong, Louis Armstrong, Riviera Dancers, Jack Cathcart Orc. Lounge: Johnny Desmond, Jack Ross, Betty Ayres' Sparkling Strings, Marty Heim Trio.
SAHARA — Victor Borge, Leonid Hambro, Moro-Landis Dancers, Louis Basil Orc. Lounge: Louis Prima, Gian Malone, Sam Butera, Witnesses, Characters, Senators, Peter & Hank.
SANDS—Jerry Lewis, Step Bros., Copa Girls, Antonio Morelli Orc. Lounge: Martin Denny, Johnny Prophet, Vido Musso, Dave Burton, Ernie Stewart.
SHOWBOAT—Demarco and Day, Singers Three, Rusty Isabel, Johnny Paul.
STARDUST — "Lido de Paris," Eddie O'Neal Orc. Lounge: Four Aces, Bernard Bros., Esquivel.
TALLYHO—Gerry Gerardo.
THUNDERBIRD—Peter L. Marshall in "Anything Goes," with Eileen Rodgers, Irving Benson, Benn O. Baker, Nat Brandwynne Orc. Lounge: Larry Steele's Smart Affairs Revue, Big Beats, Jackie Paris and Anne Marie Moss, The De-Fuentes.
TROPICANA—"Folies Bergere," starring George Matson, Ray Sinatra Orc. Lounge: Perez Prado, Denis and Rogers, Al DePaulis Four, Dubonnet Trio.

RENO-TAHOE

GOLDEN—Flapper Follies with Vespia Brothers, Elsa & Waldo, Vega Maddux, Don Staiton, Golden Girls, John Carleton Orc.
HAROLDS — Trini Lopez, Johnny O'Brien, Don Conn Orc.
HARRAH'S (Reno) — DeCastro Sisters, Nick Lucas, Judy Lynn, Joe King & Zaniacs, Red Coty.
HARRAH'S (Reno)—Good Time Singers, Brothers Castro, Big Tiny Little, Eddie DeSantis, Red Coty.
HARVEY'S (Tahoe)—Ray Anthony & Double Bookends, Country Gentlemen, Town Pipers, Diamonds, Johnny Hamlin Orc., Elegant IV, Orrin Tucker Orc., Ron Rose.
HOLIDAY—Matys Bros., Esquires, Margaret Ann & Ernie Mariani Trio, Charles Gould's Satin Strings.
MAPES—Deedy & Bill, One Plus One, Joe Karnes.
NEVADA LODGE (Tahoe)—Sawyer Sis, Max Daffner Trio.
NUGGET (Sparks)—Fred Waring Show, Rudy Cardenas, George Arnold Singers & Dancers, Foster Edwards Orc.
RIVERSIDE—Arthur Walsh, Riverside Varieties, Carlton MacBeth Orc.

MIAMI-MIAMI BEACH

AMERICANA—"Ecstasy on Ice," Bobby Short 3.
CARILLON—"Oui Oui Paree" Lynda Gloria, Arnaut Bros., Steve Danik, Les Stevens, Line (12), Jacques Donnet Orc., Bill Jordan & Lee Coby, Sammy Morris, McCormick's Trio.
CASTAWAYS—Gospel Singers, Tony Foster, Joe Nero & Dixiecrats, Kirby Campbell, Wreckettes.
DEAUVILLE — Sam Donohus, Pupi Campo, Les Rhode Orc.
DIPLOMAT—Buddy Hackett, Neil Sedaka, Dick Haymes Jr., George Foster, Van Smith Orc.
CORAL BEACH—Steve Alaimo, Bobby Hackett 4, Mal Malkin Orc., Chester Nennett Dancers, Bea Kalmus.
EDEN ROC — Escobar Orc., Monroe Kasse Orc., Johnny Nash Four.
FONTAINEBLEAU—Len Dawson Orc., Gonzalo Barr Orc., Chero Del Prado Orc., Pat Galo, Hi Lads, Ziggy Lane.
LE BISTRO—Louis Jordan Five.
MURRAY FRANKLIN'S — Murray Franklin, Roy Sedley, Harvey Bell, Guy Rennie.
PLAY ROOM—Dakota Staton, Mickey Gentile 3, Eddie Sack 3.
THUNDERBIRD—Richie Bros., Berj Vaughn 4, Jimmy Holmes, Phyllis Branch.
TONY'S FISH MARKET—Milt Trenier, Remarkable Rubin, Arabian Nights Revue, Dorothy Donegan.

Pearl Bailey's 150G Suit

Los Angeles, April 21.

Pearl Bailey is suing the Flamingo Hotel, Las Vegas, for $150,000 damages in action filed in Superior Court here.

Singer claims she cut her foot on glass while performing at Vegas hostelry last March.

Rosenfeld Forms Ticket Club in L.A.; Already Active in N.Y., Hub, Philly, Chi

Jerome Rosenfeld, already involved with theatre clubs in Boston, Philadelphia, New York and Chicago, is expanding such activities to Los Angeles. He's opening a National Theatre Club there, and announced it last Sunday (19) with a three-quarter page ad in the Los Angeles Times.

The total membership of the four clubs already in operation comes to around 65,000, Rosenfeld says. He hopes the L. A. operation will swell the total to about 100,000. The first of the Rosenfeld operations was the Show of the Month Club in Boston, which he organized in 1956. In 1960, he tied up with Wanamaker's department store in Philadelphia for another local outfit.

In partnership with Columbia Artists Management Inc., he also formed National Theatre Clubs Inc., in 1962. The latter organization subsequently established theatre clubs with Macy's department store in New York and Marshall Field's in Chicago.

The L. A. venture, like the Boston venture, will be an independent enterprise. Incidentally, Rosenfeld is president of NTC and Herbert Fox, a vice-president of CAMI, a concert management-booking agency, is veepee of NTC.

Dorathi Bock Pierre, a legit pressagent, is directing Coast operations for Rosenfeld, who's also represented on all the ventures by Rita Fucillo. The theatre clubs offer shows at boxoffice prices or discounts to its members, who are not obligated to make any purchases. There is a $5 annual membership fee allowing for the purchase of two tickets per offering. The clubs get a commission on sales from the theatres and productions on a sharing basis, in addition to the membership fee.

Rosenfeld says the clubs in Boston and New York offer members about 40-60 shows during a 12-

(Continued on page 145)

Refurbished Cincy Shubert Primed For Year-Round Operation

Cincinnati, April 21.

A remodeling of the 2,028-seat Shubert Theatre, scheduled for completion by September, envisions full-year operation of two-week engagements in this city. So disclosed Shubert Lawrence Jr., president of Select Theatres Corp., during an inspection visit of his local properties last week.

The 43-year-old Shubert here has been operating about 15 weeks a season. It adjoins the 1,200-seat Cox Theatre, which has been dark for years, and will likely be razed for use as a parking garage.

Lawrence let it be known that Cincy would be expected to support the theatre.

He was accompanied by company execs Howard Teichmann, public relations; Alvin Cooperman, booking chief; Norman Light, general manager; Bernard Freidman, comptroller and construction consultant; Abe Baranoff, assistant to Cooperman, and Fred Olssom, trouble shooter.

Dublin Festival Council May Buy Queen's Theatre

Dublin, April 21.

When the Queen's Theatre is abandoned by the Abbey Theatre company on its move to the new Abbey Theatre the former house may be purchased by the Dublin Theatre Festival Council. The Abbey group is not likely to move before the spring of 1965, and then the building will return to ownership of the J. Arthur Rank group, which formerly operated it as a vaude house. The Abbey company moved in after a fire destroyed the old Abbey Theatre in 1951.

Brendan Smith, Dublin Theatre Festival director, is concerned for the future of theatre buildings in Dublin. The Olympia has already been sold and is closed, but he has been assured by the new owners that it will be available for the Theatre Fest this year. Its fate thereafter is likely to be decided this month.

'Take Her' Season Opener For Columbus Showtent

Columbus, April 21.

The Playhouse-on-the-Green, a tent theatre in suburban Worthington, begins its 10th season with a two-week run of "Take Her, She's Mine." Sallie Jones Sexton is the producer.

Other scheduled shows are "A Thousand Clowns," June 29; "The Pursuit of Happiness," July 6; "Night of the Iguana," July 13; "Reunion in Vienna," July 20; "The Hostage," July 27; "Enter Laughing," Aug. 3; "You Can't Take It With You," Aug. 10; "The Captain's Paradise," Aug. 17 and as the season finale, a two-week run of either "Grand Hotel" or "The Women," Aug. 24.

Stanton May Be 2d Balto Legiter

Baltimore, April 21.

Trans-Lux Corp. decision to have its Hippodrome converted to a legitimate theatre for live touring productions, has invited imitation. Morris Mechanic, who owned Ford's, Baltimore only legitimate house in Charles Center, is now working on plans to convert the Stanton Theatre to legit pending the new one.

Leonard McLaughlin, last operator of Ford's, since razed and an auto park has notified New York booking agents that the Stanton will be available for bookings next season. There will be 2,800 seating capacity for musicals and 1,700 for non-tuners.

"We suggest," McLaughlin wrote the agents, "that you keep this beatutiful theatre in mind when laying out your routes for the coming season."

He also gave some pertinent information: "Theatre has large marble panelled lobby and interior foyer with staircase on both sides leading to a furnished lounge and to mezzazine floor and balconies." He also included measurements of stage, orchestra pit and mentioned Kimball organ.

"We would like you to come to Baltimore to inspect the house," he added. Stanton currently a film situation, was a legitimate stand when first built as the Academy of Music. Conversion calls for alterations.

Hippodrome was built in 1914 and employed vaudeville-film policy until 1949. It seats 1,705 and was redecorated and given a new marquee last year before opening of "Cleopatra."

Local sources say Trans-Lux is going ahead with plans to convert. Thugh seventh largest city in America, Baltimore has never been able to support more than one legitimate house.

Zoya Leporska Gives Pro Touch to Suburban Show

Zoya Leporska, a dancer, choreographer and actress with Broadway and other credits, is giving a professional touch to a community theatrical venture in Harrison, N.Y. She's currently choreographing "Pajama Game" for local presentation by the Harrison Players for three nights starting tomorrow (Thurs.). Miss Leporska recently returned to the U.S. after five months in Europe, during which time she danced, acted and choreographed.

"Panama" is the third production for the Harrison Players, formed in December, 1962, by Leslie Ogden, an insurance man who's backed Broadway shows and is also a financial supporter of the New Dramatists Committee. The two prior offerings were "Ten Little Indians" and "High Button Shoes," the latter also choreographed by Miss Leporska, who's paid for working with the group.

Ogden says that production costs for this operation run about $3,700 for musicals and around $1,500 for a straight play. Shows are presented in the local highschool auditorium, which seats 800. Tickets are priced at $2.50 each.

Critic Turns Target

Lancaster, Pa., April 21.

Joseph T. Kingston, music-drama critic of Daily Intelligencer Journal (a.m.), appeared as narrator with Lancaster Symphony Orchestra for the Aaron Copland "A Lincoln Portrait."

Kingston has reviewed—frequently unfavorably—performances of Conductor Louis Vyner's 90-piece orchestra since 1947. Orchestra plays six concerts a year in 1,836-seat McCaskey Auditorium.

Abbey Actors Nix Strike on Eve Of European Tour

Dublin, April 21.

Abbeyites lifted a strike threat on Wednesday (15), three days befor company planed to London to present Sean O'Casey's "The Plough and the Stars" and "Shadow of a Gunman." Trip is part of celebrations for 400th anniversary of Shakespeare's birth at Aldwych Theatre, London. O'Casey gave special permission to Abbeyite to present plays, breaking his long-standing ban on professional staging of his pieces by Abbey.

Strike notice was served by Irish Actors' Equity to become effective Saturday (18) following non-acceptance by management of an award by the Labor Court (which handles Irish industrial disputes) last October. Court heard arguments in favor of wage hikes for Abbeyites in closed session.

The pay position, as reported by Irish Equity, was that the top salary as of last September was $48 a week. Players also want extended vacation period (they now get four weeks) and improvement in conditions of service. No written wage structure with National Theatre Company Limited, owners of state-aided Abbey, exists for actors.

Strike was called off when both sides agreed to accept rulling of an independent chairman on all questions in dispute. Dr. C. S. Andrews, prexy of Irish railway system, was nominated to arbitrate. He's a well-known first-nighter here. Conciliation moves will take place on return of Abbeyites from London and Paris.

Map 'A Case of Libel' For Road; Then Britain As 'Innately American'

A road company of "A Case of Libel" is earmarked for a fall-winter tour next season, to be followed by engagements in Britain. The Broadway production of the Henry Denker adaptation of Louis Nizer's memoirs, "My Life in Court," is currently in its 29th week at the Longacre Theatre, N.Y.

Producers Roger L. Stevens and Joel Schenker intend getting the touring presentation underway Oct. 1 in Rochester. Extended stops in Los Angeles, San Francisco and Chicago are scheduled to follow with the production then moving overseas in April for a London booking. Schenker feels the drama should be presented in England with a U.S. cast because it's "strictly an American play and cannot be faithfully done with any but American players." That statement obviously doesn't apply to the role of the Scottish officer who serves as a witness for the plaintiff in the courtroom drama.

Van Heflin, Larry Gates and Paul McGrath are currently co-starring in the play.

GERTRUDE THE APPLE FOLLOWS GREENSPAN

Gertrude (Apple) Appelbaum has succeeded Sara Greenspan as business manager of the Theatre Guild. Miss Greenspan retired recently after a lengthy stretch in that post.

Miss Appelbaum has been associated with various legit managements during her theatrical career. She is better known as Apple and has one of that fruit as her signature.

Figure Support for Arts Dubious With Redneck-Ruled House of Reps

Worsley Ill, Moves From Drama to TV Criticism

London, April 21.

T. C. Worsley, drama critic for the Financial Times of London, has resigned because of a chronic respiratory ailment, and has switched to the post of television critic for the daily.

He will be succeeded in the legit assignment by B. A. Young, who substituted in the spot during Worsley's recent round-the-world cruise. He has been at various times a drama and literary critic and assistant editor of Punch, the humor magazine. Young has also been substituting for Worsley as London drama reviewer for the N. Y. Times (Ed.).

Marsh Group Gets Pabst, Milwaukee

Milwaukee, April 21.

The common council has approved unamimous recommendation made by its buildings-grounds committee to lease the Pabst Theatre to a group headed by Roger K. Marsh, Milwaukee businessman. Others bidding for the lease were the Pabst Theatre Management Co. Inc., the present leaseholder, and Melody Top Theatre Ltd., Chicago and Milwaukee, operators of tunetents.

Marsh offered $12,600 annual rent for two years, with an option to renew for a year after two years. present lease is $12,000. Marsh has prdouced musicals at the Pabst and Swan Theatres. Associated with him are T. J. Bartolotta, who will be Marsh's general manager, and Mr. and Mrs. Ray Mitchell, veteran ticket agency operators.

Marsh said he would provide 10 dates each for the Milwaukee and Chicago symphony orchestras, four dates for the local Florentine Opera Co., seven roadshows of six nights each, four local productions of 12 dates each, plus 10 dates for other local productions.

Richard Cutler, attorney for the Marsh group, said the other bidders were businessmen. He described Marsh as a "theatrical angel" willing to contribute to local theatre.

Lloyd Jacobson, attorney for the Pabst Theatre Management group, said the organization had saved the Pabst from financial straits. He described Marsh's plans for producing local shows as "a treacherous business."

Elmer Regner, repping Melody Top, said his firm was in show biz to make money, and would do so if it had the Pabst lease by engaging top stars and a professional company.

The city bought the foundering Pabst several years ago, and had planned to replace it with a parking structure. However, civic hullabaloo over destruction of Milwaukee's last legit house, especially in view of endless delays in starting a new civic music hall, resulted in the leasing arrangement.

Stratford (Ont.) Fest Co. A Hit at Chichester, Engl.

Chichester, Eng., April 21.

The Chichester Festival Theatre is playing host to the Stratford (Ont.) Shakespearean Festival Co. for a three-week engagement of three plays in repertory. The productions, which drew virtually unanimous raves from the London critics, are "Love's Labor's Lost," "Le Bourgeois Gentilhomme" and "Timon of Athens." They opened here on successive nights last week.

The Chichester fest was inspired by the Ontario venture and the theatre is modeled after the one in Canada. It's one of the very few arena or thrust stages in England and has aroused much talk. Most of the London critics have especially praised Michael Langham's skillful use of the stage, suggesting that it offers a lesson for British directors. Langham directed "Love's" and "Timon." The Moliere comedy was staged by Jean Gascon.

Washington, April 21.

A House of Representatives subcommittee has taken a look at proposals for Federal aid to the arts. A string of show biz witnesses turned out to give their pitch for the bill of Rep. Frank Thompson (D-N.J.) to establish a National Arts Foundation to dole out up to $10,000,000 annually to the arts. Legislation would also give Congressional backing to the White House Arts Council established last summer by an executive order of the late President Kennedy.

Similar legislation passed the Senate in a breeze last fall and Rep. Thompson gauged its chances in the House as "50-50."

In the past the House has never been sympathetic to arts legislation, even without coin, and its rural-dominated leadership has been able to quash such measures.

In contrast to the earlier Senate hearings, television was not so unmercifully clouted. In fact Actors Equity rep Jack Golodner averred tv has stimulated interest in the arts with folks, stimulated by the good acting on tv, wishing to see the same on local stages.

The problem, he told a House Education and Labor subcommittee, is the continually diminishing output which results in a "tragic waste" of talent.

Also hitting the "decline" theme was Theatre Guild exec director Warren Caro. He averred the "times are ripe" for initiating this "parsimonious" portion of Federal coin noting the billions spent on defense and science.

Somewhat ironically, the subcommittee was meeting in the room of the Armed Services Committee which doles about $50,000,-

(Continued on page 148)

Irish Equity Restricts Entry to Full-Timers; Hit National TV Policy

Dublin, April 21.

Irish Actors' Equity will tighten restrictions on the entry of new members. That was decided at the annual general metting. The new rule is that union membership shall be limited to persons who intend to make the entertainment business their profession.

An Equity tribunal will rule on applications but a board of appeal will have power to override its decisions. The move will end the current admission setup, under which many part-time players not entirely dependent on the theatre have become members.

Edward Golden, re-elected union president for another year, said that the actor's pay should be related as nearly as possible to the number of people entertained by his performance. He asserted that through the medium of live tv through synchronous satellites, 200,000,000 people could see the opening night performance at the new Abbey Theatre.

Telefis Eireann (Irish tv) was slugged by Equity secretary Dermot Doolan, who said that an average week's entertainment schedule gave employment to members for only two hours a week, while American programs occupy about 21 hours. An appeal to Gunnar Ruggheimer, program chief, brought the reply that many of Ireland's top actors are outside the country and it is sometimes necessary to import leads or abandon projects.

Leland Hayward Options 'Croque,' Parisian Comedy

Paris, April 21.

Broadway producer Leland Hayward has acquired the English language rights to "Croque-Monsieur," a comedy by Marcel Mithois. The play, currently at the Theatre Saint Georges, stars Jacqueline Maillan as a predatory widow on the prowl for a rich husband to succeed her late millionaire spouse.

An established cabaret and stage comedienne, the actress gives a broad performance, including frequent ad-libs and frank playing to the audience. The play's title is the name of a mythical man-eating bird.

Shows on Broadway

Baby Want a Kiss

Actors Studio Theatre presentation of comedy in two acts, by James Costigan. Staged by Frank Corsaro; scenery and costumes, Peter Harvey; lighting, David Hays. Features Paul Newman, Joanne Woodward, James Costigan. Opened April 19, '64, at the Little Theatre, N.Y.; $6.90 top weeknights, $7.50 Friday-Saturday nights.

Edward ..... James Costigan
Mavis ..... Joanne Woodward
Emil ..... Paul Newman

Suppose Charles Addams were to rewrite "Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf?" with the emphasis on comedy and as a satire of egomaniac Hollywood stars? It might be something like "Baby Want a Kiss," which the Actors Studio brought to the Little Theatre last Sunday night (19) with Paul Newman and Joanne Woodward as the exotic screen luminaries. The show must be something of a lark for the cast, and have interest for audiences willing to accept the unusual.

James Costigan is the author and plays the third character in this contrived and liberally borrowed comedy about a celebrated Hollywood couple who drop in at the country home of their bachelor friend of years before. During an approximately two-hour span without physical action, the amusingly sardonic but repetitious conversation takes various tones, from outright laughs to macabre drama.

The meaning is never clarified. Are the visitors monsters in handsome human form, or are they perhaps merely uninhibited egocentrics entertaining themselves with the sort of elaborate practical joke for which Hollywood is noted? Like so much in this baffling but sporadically engrossing play, the answer to that key question is hidden by ambiguities and apparent incogruities. In any case, "Baby Want a Kiss" is a theatrically challenging show, though perhaps rather special for general audiences.

The slightly fuddy-duddy short story writer whom the screen idols visit is reasonably normal, if slightly vulnerable to psychological suggestion, notably in regard to a parlor game involving dreams. The two callers are way, way out, however—and either insane, with an urge toward violence, or just extravegantly imaginative pranksters taking time out to make elaborate fun of an old acquaintance and incidentally lampoon themselves.

During their stay, while they wait for dinner to be ready, they gobble the snacks, smoke the cigarets and guzzle the drinks they say they never touch,meanwhile revealing themselves as virtual paranoics. She is obviously a nymphomaniac and he a satyr with a dread of homosexuality. Both are narcistic hypocrites who mouth the fashionable shibboleths of pholosophy, art, religion, politics, love and so on, and describe their supposedly dream marriage as a nightmare of mutual jealousy, suspicion and hatred.

When they leave, after excoriating their host and then blithely passing it off as good-natured sham, there's still no positive indication how much of it all has been truth and how much fiction, or even what it means. It appears, however, that the playwright is presenting them on the level, with imitative traces of such familiar dramatic stylists as Edward Abee, Samuel Becket and Piraudello, among others, besides airing many ideas of his own about the contemporary world.

Under Frank Corsaro's emphatic, somewhat unvaried but occasionally inventive direction, the performance has progressive force, if a tendency toward montony. Both Newman and Miss Woodward give plausible, expressive portrayals, and their appreciation of the biting edge of the comments about Hollywood and its never-neverland social-professional world is shared with the audience.

Miss Woodward's role offers a bit more scope for differences in shading, especially in its outbursts of shrewishness, but Newman's characterization as the psychopathic liar also offers effectively eerie comment. As the understandably aghast host, Costigan adequately expresses a blend of amusement disbelief and occasional revulsion. Peter Harvey has designed the properly atmospheric cottage livin room setting and appropriate clothes, and David Hays has provided effective lighting.

"Baby Want a Kiss," which takes its name from a moronic dance based on a recording for training parakeets, adds up to a respectable venture for the Actors Studio and the noted acting couple. It should get good audience comment, despite its esoteric quality and, with its seemingly reasonable operating hookup, should do business on the Newman-Woodward names. It's a questionable bet for pictures, but is a prospective vehicle for stock.

Hobe.

Cafe Crown

Philip Rose & Swanlee presentation of musical comedy in two acts (12 scenes; 18 numbers), with book by Hy Kraft, music by Albert Hague and lyrics by Marty Brill, based on the Hy Frank play of the same title. Staged by Jerome Eskow; choreography, Ronald Field; scenery and lighting, Sam Leve; costumes, Ruth Morley; orchestrations, Hershy Kay; dance music, Albert Hague; vocal arrangements and musical direction, Gershon Kingsley. Stars Sam Levene, Theodore Bikel, Tommy Rall; features Brenda Lewis, Martin Wolfson, Monte Amundsen, Alan Alda, Wood Romoff, Michael Vale, Val Avery, Robert Penn, Roy Stuart, Ted Thurston, Francine Beers, Edwin Bruce, Renee Orin, Norman Shelly, Joe Ross. Opened April 17, '64; $8.60 top weeknights, $9.60 Friday-Saturday nights.

Dr. Irving Gilbert ..... Alan Alda
Mr. Morris ..... Ted Thurston
Nathan The Waiter ..... Norman Shelly
Mme. Cole ..... Brenda Lewis
Bloom The Fiddler ..... Joe Ross
Women ..... Shirley Leinwand, Fay Reed
Mr. Edelman ..... Keith Kaldenberg
Mrs. Edelman ..... Ann Marisse
Rubin ..... Robert Penn
Beck ..... Roy Stuart
Kaplan ..... Val Avery
Mrs. Perlman ..... Francine Beers
Mr. Toplitz ..... Martin Wolfson
Mendel Polan ..... Wood Romoff
Ida Polan ..... Renee Orin
Hymie The Busboy ..... Sam Levene
Norma Roberts ..... Monte Amundsen
David Cole ..... Tommy Rall
Lipsky ..... Michael Vale
Petty Officer ..... Val Avery
Ship's Captain ..... John Anania
Sarah ..... Betty Aberlin
Samuel Cole ..... Theodore Bikel
Burton ..... Edwin Bruce

Singers: Marilyn Murphy, Bonnie Brody, Betty Aberlin, Fay Reed, Ann Marisse, Shirley Leinwand, Stephanie Winters, John Wheeler, Ken Richards.

Dancers: Geri Spinner, Betty Rosebrock, Bonnie Walker, Cheryl Kilgren, Patsi King, Luigi Gasparanetti, Ean Benjamin, Robert Avian, Keith Stewart, Terry Violino.

Numbers: "You're a Stranger in This Neighborhood," "What's the Matter with Buffalo?" "All Those Years," "Au Revoir Poland—Hello New York," "Make the Most of Spring," "So Long as It Isn't Shakespeare," "A Lifetime of Love," "I'm Gonna Move," "A Mother's Heart," "On This Wedding Day," "What's Gonna Be Tomorrow," "A Man Must Have Something to Live For," "That's the Life for Me," "A Lifetime of Love" (reprise), "King Lear" Ballet, "Magical Things in Life," "That's the Life for Me" (reprise), "A Man Must Have Something to Live For" (reprise).

One of the big numbers—not good, but big— in "Cafe Crown," which opened last Friday night (17) at the Martin Beck Theatre, is a "King Lear" ballet, done straight. Since the new show is supposed to be a musical comedy, the number is utterly incongruous and typical of the evening. "Cafe Crown" is so bad that it recalls such memorable musical clinkers as "Buttrio Square." It's worse than the recent "Anyone Can Whistle," though not as pretentious.

The "King Lear" ballet is presented as a rehearsal of a show-within-a-show, but it's patently nutty, as the drama of which it's a purported element is not supposed to be a ballet or even a pantomime. Under the circumstances, it's no wonder that the advance scuttlebutt in Shubert Alley was that "Cafe Crown" had already posted a closing notice for its second night, last Saturday (18), prior to the opening.

The musical is based on the 1941-42 comedy of the same title by Hy Kraft, and the playwright has done the book adaptation, with tunes by Albert Hague and lyrics by Marty Brill (any relation to the identically-named Notre Dame football star of the 1920's?). They're all inept, and Jerome Eskow's all-thumbs staging accentuates the faults. There's not a memorable song, and except for the singing and dancing of third-starred Tommy Rall, the evening tends to be an embarrassment.

Sam Levene is top-starred as Hymie, the eccentric and supposedly loveable busboy in a lower Second Ave. restaurant representing the old Cafe Royale of the heyday of the Yiddish theatre. Theodore Bikel is second-starred as the celebrated Yiddish actor-director, presumably a freely-drawn portrait of the late Jacob P. Adler.

Both stars give the impression of taking it easy, which is understandable under the circumstances. Curiously, however, Levene makes more of his songs and actually seems to have a better singing style than Bikel, who's a noted folksinger. Bikel, in fact, apparently has little voice without microphone assistance, and since he's not an authoritative or compelling actor, he's lost as the flamboyant personality of the story.

Rall, formerly known primarily as a dancer but in recent seasons also impressing as a singer, does well enough as the great man's independent-minded actor-son, while the usually-vibrant Brenda Lewis, and Alan Alda, Monte Amundsen and Martin Wolfson make an evident try at animating secondary roles.

Ronald Field's choreography is energetic but mostly pointless, Sam Leve's settings of the restaurant interior and the streetcorner outside are reasonably effective but the shipboard and theatre interiors suffer from the same blatant lack of consistent approach that makes the musical as a whole so silly.

"Cafe Crown" is a conglomorate botch of the sort that afflicts Broadway from time to time, and invariably defies explanation.

Hobe.

(Closed last Saturday night (18) after three performances.)

Original Play

Comedy by H.S. Kraft, staged by Elia Kazan, setting by Boris Aronson, produced by Carly Wharton & Martin Gabel. Opened Jan. 23, '42, at the Cort Theatre, N.Y.; played 141 performances.

Customer ..... Mervin Williams
Rubin ..... Jed Cogut
Sam ..... Jay Adler
Kaplan ..... Alfred White
Mendel Polan ..... Daniel Ocko
Jacobson ..... Frank Gould
Mrs. Perlman ..... Paula Miller
Hymie ..... San Jaffe
Looie ..... Lou Polan
Walter ..... Whitner Bissell
Beggar ..... Solen Burry
Toplitz ..... Eduard Franz
Lester Freed ..... Sam Wanamaker
Norma Cole ..... Mary Mason
Ida Polan ..... Mitzi Hajos
David Cole ..... Morris Carnovsky
George Burton ..... George Petrie
Lipsky ..... Robert Leonard
Anna Cole ..... Margaret Waller
Florist ..... Michael Gorrin
Messenger Boy ..... Tom Jordan

Show Abroad

Every Child's Garden of Revue!

(2nd EDITION)

Melbourne, April 11.

Union Theatre Repertory Co. presentation of an intimate revue by Barbara Angell, David Sale, Paul Eddey, Robert Walker, Billy Barnes and Anthony Cameron. Staged by Barbara Angell. Features Barbara Angell, Paul Eddey, Marion Becroft, Paul Karo. Pianist: Pauline Pidgeon. Opened April 10, '64, at the Russell Street Theatre, Melbourne; $1.80 top.

This supper revue, which opened at the Arts Theatre in January, has gone into its second edition and now is being presented by the Union Theatre Repertory group Friday and Saturday nights at 11:15 p.m. The show runs 75 minutes and comprises 25 items.

Although about 70% of the material is the same, the revue looses much of its intimacy and polish by being presented in a larger theatre on a larger stage. Three of the original cast of four remain, but unfortunately Paul Eddey is a poor substitute for David Sale who lifted the previous edition.

Marion Becroff now has too little to do and, good though she is, there is too much of Barbara Angell, who has also done the staging and written much of the material.

A notable item is an uncredited bit showing a maiden in medieval dress and enormous train slowly walking across the stage to the strains of "Camelot" music, with the train still sweeping the stage once she has exited. She finally returns, holding its end.

New items also cover Aussie strikes (currently in the news) and the banning of Mary McCarthy's novel, "The Group," which is still arousing controversy in local press. Neither skit is particularly good.

Stan.

Scheduled B'way Preems

Blues for Mr. Charlie, ANTA (4-23-64).
Porgy and Bess, Center (5-6-64).
Sunday Man, Morosco (5-12-64).
Royal Shakespeare, State (5-18-64).
White House, Miller's (5-19-64).
My Fair Lady, Center (5-20-64).
Roar Like a Dove, Booth (5-21-64).
Fade Out-Fade In, Hellinger (5-26-64).
Hamlet, Delacorte (6-10-64).
King and I, State (7-6-64).
Othello, Delacorte (7-8-64).
Electra, Delacorte (8-5-64).
Merry Widow, State (8-17-64).
Golden Boy, Majestic (9-28-64).
Ben Franklin, Lunt-Font. (wk. 10-12-64).

Shows Out of Town

Fade Out—Fade In

New Haven, April 21.

Lester Osterman & Jule Styne presentation of musical comedy in prolog and two acts (21 scenes, 15 numbers), with book and lyrics by Betty Comden and Adolph Green, music by Jule Styne. Staged by George Abbott; choreography and musical staging, Ernest Flatt; settings and lighting, William and Jean Eckart; costumes, Donald Brooks; musical direction, Coin Romoff; vocal arrangements, Buster Davis; orchestrations, Ralph Burns and Ray Ellis; dance music arrangements, Richard De Benedictis. Stars Carol Burnett; features Jack Cassidy, Dick Patterson, Tina Louise, Mitchell Jason, Reuben Singer, Virginia Payne, Tiger Haynes, Aileen Poe, Dan Resin, Don Crichton, Frank Tweddell, Lou Jacobi. Opened April 20, '64, at the Shubert Theatre, New Haven; $7 top.

Prof. Sproket ..... Dan Resin
Groom ..... Don Crichton
Norman Nadir ..... Stephen Elmore
Lionel Z. Governor ..... Lou Jacobi
Hope Springfield ..... Carol Burnett
Autograph kids ..... Roger Allen Raby, Carolsue Shaer, Patricia Sigris
Pops ..... Frank Tweddell
Helga Sixtrees ..... Judy Cassmore
Publicity man ..... Bob Neukum
Photographer ..... Richard Frisch
Byron Prong ..... Jack Cassidy
Henry ..... John Dorrin
Billy Vespers ..... Glenn Kezer
Rex ..... Darrell J. Askey
Chauffeur ..... William Louther
Girl ..... Trish Dwelley
Toby Dawn ..... Wendy Taylor
Cowboy extras ..... Stephen Elmore, Fred Cline
Gangster extra ..... Gene Varrone
Ralph Governor ..... Mitchell Jason
Rudolf Governor ..... Dick Patterson
George Governor ..... Howard Kahl
Frank Governor ..... John Dorrin
Harold Governor ..... Gene Varrone
Arnold Governor ..... Stephen Elmore
Waiters ..... Fred Cline, Richard Frisch, Roger Allan Raby
Publicity men ..... Sean Allan, Darrell J. Askey
Convicts ..... Gene Kelton, William Louther, Ed Pfeiffer, James VonWeiss
Girl ..... Jodi Perselle
Myra May Melrose ..... Virginia Payne
Costume designer ..... James VonWeiss
Seamstress ..... Diane Arnold
Girls ..... Diane Ede, Betty Kent
Miss Mallory ..... Jo Tract
Custer Corkley ..... Dan Resin
Photographer ..... Sean Allan
Max Welch ..... Richard Frisch
Lou Williams ..... Tiger Haynes
Dolly Dailey ..... Aileen Poe
Dr. Anton Trauig ..... Reuben Singer
Gloria Currie ..... Tina Louise
Mme. Barrymore ..... Penny Egelston

Singers: Sean Allan, Jackie Alloway, Darrell J Askey, Fred Cline, John Dorrin, Trish Dwelley, Stephen Elmore, Richard Frisch, Howard Kahl, Carolyn Kemp, Betty Kent, Glenn Kezer, Mari Nettum, Bob Keukum, Roger Allan Raby, Jo Tract, Gene Varrone.

Dancers: Don Crichton, Virginia Allen, Diane Arnold, Judy Cassmore, Diana Ede, Ernie Horvath, Gene Kelton, William Louther, Charlene Mehl, Judy Newman, Jodi Perselle, Ed Pfeiffer, Carolsue Shaer, Patricia Sigris, Roy Smith, Bill Stanton, Wendy Taylor, James VonWeiss.

Lead Dancer: Don Crichton.

Numbers: "They're At the Post," "I Can't Go Back," "It's Good to Be Back," "Fear," "Fade Out-Fade In," "I'm with You," "My Fortune Is My Face," "What Is This Thing I've Got?," "Lila Tremaine," "Go Home Train," "Forbidden Fruit," "You Mustn't Be Discouraged," "The Dangerous Age," "L. Z. In Quest of His Youth," "The Fiddler and the Fighter."

George Abbott's staging has occasionally plucked chestnuts from preparatory fires and brought them to Broadway as hits, so it is reasonable to assume that he can do likewise with "Fade Out-Fade In," despite its antiquated book, a literary chestnut, indeed.

This dated tale of the usherette who crashes Hollywood by mistake, hits cloud seven, gets a brushoff, and ends up as a star, meanwhile snaring romantically the nephew of the studio boss, requires special attention. It's only when the presentation ignores the book, per se, that it hits its high spots.

Carol Burnett is top cast and she does well, except when they hand her pedestrian material. She sings, emotes, gags and dances, her best effort coming in a Shirley Temple routine.

Jack Cassidy and Lou Jacobi share supporting credit, the former as an on-the-make film star and the latter as a blustering producer. Tina Louise makes her attractive presence felt, and Mitchell Jason, Dick Patterson, Tiger Haynes and Reuben Singer are other featured players who do well.

The score seems pleasant, rather than impressive, with at least two possible solid acceptance ditties, the title song and "I'm With You." The lyrics are better than average, hitting a good comedy vein in a "Fear" ensemble, and novelty wordage in "Forbidden Fruit."

Two dance spectacles feature the choreography division, one a colorful violin routine and the other a handsome dream sequence. There is also a lively jockey number. All are staged by Ernest Platt.

William and Jean Eckart have devised a turntable within a turntable that provides interesting scene shifting for colorful settings. The Donald Brooks costumes add to the overall flash.

Abbott has brought the production to a typically competent premiere status. There is considerable polishing yet to be accomplished, but it is in that particular department that the veteran stager shines.

Bone.

The Comedy of Errors

Washington, April 14.

Bonard Productions & Donald Seawell, by arrangement with the Royal Shakespeare Theatre of Stratford-Upon-Avon, presentation of revival of comedy by William Shakespeare. Staged by Clifford Williams; settings, John Wyckham and Clifford Williams; costumes, Anthony Powell; music, Peter Wishart. Opened April 13, '64, at the National Theatre, Washington; $6.95 top.

Solinus ..... Michael Murray
Aegeon ..... Tony Church
Antipholus Twins ..... Ian Richardson, Alec MacCowen
Dromio Twins ..... Clifford Rose, Barry MacGregor
Balthazar ..... Michael Burrell
Angelo ..... Ken Wynne
Merchants ..... Ian Lindsay, John Harwood
Pinch ..... Michael Williams
Officer ..... John Church
Messenger ..... Peter Blythe
Gaoler ..... Brian Osborne
Aemilia ..... Pauline Jameson
Adriana ..... Diana Rigg
Luciana ..... Julie Christie
Luce ..... Caroline Maud
Courtezan ..... Elizabeth Spriggs

Others: Trevor Bowen, John Cobner, Ian Lindsay, Peter Tory, John Church, Michael Jenkinson, Lyn Pinkney, Philippa Urquhart, Jennifer Clulow, Wyn Jones, Leslie Southwick.

There were all the expected jokes ahead of time about picking a play titled "The Comedy of Errors" for presentation in Washington as the Royal Shakespeare Co. flew in after a swing through eastern Europe to open an American tour. As staged by Clifford Williams, the piece is a rowdy romp, good for heartier laughs than any of the obvious gags about its title.

The opening night performance, sponsored by Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson and members of the President's cabinet, was a dazzling affair, with virtually every celebrity in town except the President himself in the audience. A British Embassy party hosted by the Ambassador followed the performance.

This revival is spirited production of one of Shakespeare's first and shortest plays, and those who have, fretted over its selection as the alternate for "King Lear" for the opening of the U.S. tour of the great Shakespearean company can relax. The young cast has the play, seldom produced in this country, well in hand, and Williams has infused it with a rhythm which makes it take flight in high humor.

There is old fashioned slapstick as the conjuror sets about trying to put the double whammy on young Antipholus, and engaging pantomine sketches have been inserted here and there by Williams, presumably to lengthen the play. Quite a few of the lines are still funny by themselves, particularly when they have the enthusiasm of this cast behind them.

Ian Richardson and Alec McCowen as the long-separated twins, and Clifford Rose and Barry MacGregor as their twin servants, are all young and vigorous and practically gymnasts on the stage in all the racing about that goes on. In just about the oldest theatrical roles of mistaken identity, they may not look alike, but they are convincing in the contagious rumpus.

Michael Williams is hilarious in the brief comic part of pinch, a confused old fellow who keeps falling over his coattails while trying to perform acts of magic. The costumes by Anthony Powell, imaginative and ridiculous, add greatly to the merriment and the illusion of the Shakespearean farce.

Elizabeth Spriggs, as a lady of the evening with feathers instead of hair (Powell's work again), is a delight. The two leading ladies, Diana Rigg and Julie Christie, are fine in serious roles, while almost everyone else is being funny. Tony Church, Michael Murray, Ken Wynne and Pauline Jameson are other members of the cast adding materially to the success of the production.

The set consists of merely three platforms, on successive levels. There is no scenery, but a skillful use of lighting, colorful costumes and great rushing around wouldn't leave much time to notice it anyway.

"Comedy of Errors" may not be one of Shakespeare's best plays, but an exciting production of it is an enjoyable evening.

Carp.

B'way Better; 'Spirits' Record 68G, Burton-'Hamlet' 69½G, NRT $19,241, 'Crown,' 'Foxy,' 'Sponono' Drop 850G

Business generally improved on Broadway last week. The current stanza looks bullish, with the American Newspaper Publishers Assn. convention in New York regarded as a key contributing factor. Whether the World's Fair, opening today (Wed.), is adding to the upbeat condition is moot.

Among the hot entries last week, sellouts included, were "Any Wednesday," "Barefoot in the Park," "The Deputy," "Funny Girl," "Hamlet," "Hello, Dolly," "High Spirits," "Never Too Late," the Lincoln Center repertory and "Baby Want a Kiss," the latter playing eight previews.

There were three casualties last Saturday (18) with the combined loss figured in the area of $850,000. The shows were "Cafe Crown," "Foxy" and "Sponono." The "High Spirits" gross represented a record take for the Alvin. "Baby Want a Kiss," opened officialy last Sunday night (19) and "Blues for Mister Charlie," the only other preem scheduled for this session, debuts tomorrow night (Thurs.).

Estimates for Last Week

Keys: C (Comedy), D (Drama), CD (Comedy-Drama), R (Revue), MC (Musical-Comedy), MD (Musical-Drama), O (Opera), OP (Operetta), Rep. (Repertory), DR (Dramatic Reading).

Other parenthetic designations refer, respectively, to weeks played, number of performances through last Saturday, top prices (where two prices are given, the higher is for Friday-Saturday nights and the lower for weeknights), number of seats, capacity gross and stars. Price includes 10% Federal and 5% repealed City tax (diverted to an industry-wide pension and welfare fund), but grosses are net: i.e., exclusive of taxes.

Asterisk denotes show had cut-rate tickets in circulation.

Grosses normally have been reduced by commissions where theatre parties are mentioned.

Any Wednesday, Music Box (C) (9th wk; 71 p) ($6.90-$7.50; 1,010; $40,000) (Sandy Dennis, Don Porter). Previous week, $40,297.

Last week, $40,118.

Barefoot in the Park, Biltmore (C) (26th wk; 203 p) ($6.90-$7.50; 994; $38,692) (Elizabeth Ashley, Robert Redword, Mildred Natwick, Kurt Kasznar). Previous week, $38,912.

Last week, $38,797.

Beyond the Fringe, Golden (R) (78th wk; 619 p) ($7.50; 799; $34,874). Previous week, $12,316.

Last week, $12,487.

Case of Libel, Longacre (D) (29th wk; 218 p) ($6.90-$7.50; 1,101; $40,986) (Van Heflin, Paul McGrath, Larry Gates). Previous week, $13,197.

Last week, $14,647.

Deputy, Atkinson (D) (8th wk; 61 p) ($6.90-$7.50; 1,088; $43,246) (Emlyn Williams, Jeremy Brett). Previous week, $43,154 with some small parties.

Last week, $42,860 with parties.

Dylan, Plymouth (D) (14th wk; 105 p) ($6.90-$7.50; 1,084; $48,369) (Alec Guinness). Previous week, $39,961.

Last week, $38,942.

Funny Girl, Winter Garden (MC) (4th wk; 28 p) ($9.60; 1,442; $74,516) (Barbra Streisand, Sydney Chaplin). Previous week, $71,949 with parties.

Last week, $72,274 with parties.

Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum, Hellinger (MC) (102d wk; 813 p) ($8.60-$9.40; 1,572; $84,000) (Dick Shawn). Previous week, $32,886.

Last week, $32,913.

Hamlet, Lunt-Fontanne (D) (2d wk; 12 p) ($8.80-$9.90; 1,478; $73,062). Previous week, $55,678 for four performances with parties and two previews.

Last week, $69,696 with parties.

Hello, Dolly, St. James (MC) (14th wk; 108 p) ($9.60; 1,609; $71,331) (Carol Channing). Previous week, $71,539.

Last week, $71,290.

Here's Love, Shubert (MC) (29th wk; 226 p) ($9.60; 1,453; $67,923). Previous week, $34,800.

Last week, $34,976.

High Spirits, Alvin (MC) (2d wk; 15 p) ($9.60; 1,334; $69,549) (Beatrice Lillie, Tammy Grimes, Edward Woodward). Previous week, $65,903 for seven performances with parties and one preview.

Last week, house record, $68,001 with parties.

How to Succeed in Business Without Really Trying, 46th St. (MC) (132d wk; 1,047 p) ($9.60; 1,342; $66,615). Previous week, $51,581.

Last week, $51,719.

Mary, Mary, Hayes (C) (163d wk; 1,298 p) ($6.90-$7.50; 1,164; $43,380) (Mindy Carson, Murray Hamilton, Tom Helmore). Previous week, $13,832.

Last week, $16,109.

National Repertory Theatre, Belasco (Rep) (2d wk; 16 p) ($4.95-$7.50; 1,008; $34,051). Previous week, $11,819 for eight performances of "The Seagull" and "The Crucible."

Last week, $19,241 for same repertory.

Never Too Late, Playhouse (C) (73d wk; 581 p) ($6.90- $7.50; 994; $37,000) (Paul Ford, Maureen O'Sullivan, Orson Bean). Previous week, $31,497. Martha Scott joins the cast next Monday night (27) as Miss O'Sullivan's successor.

Last week, $32,089.

Nobody Loves an Albatross, Lyceum, (C) (18th wk; 140 p) ($6.90-$7.50; 995; $33,000) (Robert Preston). Previous week, $22,284.

Last week, $22,127.

Oliver, Imperial (MD) (67th wk; 535 p) ($8.60-$9.30; 1,450; $71,977) (Clive Revill, Georgia Brown). Previous week, $40,687.

Last week, $42,283.

110 in the Shade, Broadhurst (MC) (26th wk; 202 p) ($8.80-$9.40; 1,186; $58,000) (Robert Horton, Inga Swenson, Stephen Douglass). Previous week, $41,239.

Last week, $41,724.

What Makes Sammy Run? 54th St. (MC) (8th wk; 60 p) ($8.80-$9.40; 1,271; $68,128) (Steve Lawrence, Sally Ann Howes, Robert Alda). Previous week, $54,373 with two parties.

Last week, $53,342.

Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf? Rose (D) (80th wk; 632 p) ($6.90-$7.50; 1,162; $40,485) (Mercedes McCambridge, Donald Davis, Ben Piazza) (matinee company Haila Stoddard, Henderson Forsythe, Bill Berger). Previous week, $13,231.

Last week, $13,811.

MISCELLANEOUS

Lincoln Center Repertory Theatre, ANTA Washington Square (Rep) (13th wk; 100 p) ($6-$6.50; 1,158; $46,500). Previous week, $40,067 with subscription for eight performances of "After the Fall," "But for Whom Charlie" and "Marco Millions."

Last week, $43,366 for same repertory.

West Side Story, City Center (MD) (2d wk; 15 p) ($4.95; 2,935; $91,000). Previous week, $45,104 for seven performances and one preview.

Last week, $51,532.

CLOSED LAST WEEK

Cafe Crown, Beck (MC) 1st wk; 3 p) ($8.60-$9.60; 1,280; $63,000) (Sam Levene, Theodore Bikel, Tommy Rall). Previous week, $21,839 for eight previews at the Beck.

Opened last Friday night (17) to unanimous pans (Chapman, News; Harris, World-Telegram; Kerr, Herald Tribune; McClain, Journal-American; Taubman, Times; Watts, Post).

Last week, $30,429 for three performances and five previews. Closed Saturday (18) at an estimated loss of, at least, its entire $350,000 investment.

Foxy, Ziegfeld (MC) (9th wk; 72 p) ($8.80-$9.40; 1,628; $78,305) (Bert Lahr, Larry Blyden). Previous week, $25,952.

Last week, $26,099. Closed Saturday (18) at an estimated loss of $345,000 on a $420,000 investment (20% overcall included).

Sponono, Cort (D) (3d wk; 20 p) ($6.90-$7.50; 1,100; $41,482). Previous week, $7,667.

Last week, $9,146. Closed Saturday (18) at an estimated loss of, at least, its entire $143,750 investment (15% overcall included).

OPENING THIS WEEK

Baby Want a Kiss, Little (C) ($6.90-$7.50; 603; $26,600). Previous week, $23,882 for eight previews at the Little.

Actors Studio Theatre presentation of play by James Costigan; opened last Sunday night (19) to a unanimous thumb-down (Chapman, News; Harris, World-Telegram; Kerr, Herald Tribune; McClain, Journal-American; Taubman, Times; Watts, Post).

Last week, $25,339 for eight previews at the Little.

Blues for Mr. Charlie, ANTA (D) ($4.80; 1,180; $38,856).

Actors Studio Theatre presentation of play by James Baldwin; opens tomorrow night (Thurs.).

Last week, $11,807 for five previews at the ANTA.

OTHER THEATRES

Ambassador, Barrymore, Booth, Broadway, Hudson, Majestic, Miller's, Morsoco, O'Neill, Royale.

Martin-Blankenship Set Musical 'Alice' Off-B'way

Richard L. Martin and Joseph Blankenship are producing "Alice With Kisses" for a May 7 opening at the 41st Street Theatre, N. Y. The musical, based on "Alice in Wonderland," has book and lyrics by Blankenship who'll also serve as director and choreographer. Blankenship had a hand in providing the score as well, along with Sammy Fields and Nevett Bartow.

Martin, in overall charge of the production, was formerly executive director of Music Mountain, a performing arts center, in northern New Jersey.

Ticket Clubs

Continued from page 143

month period. In Philly and Chicago the yearly total runs from about 25-30, he figures. Those totals include concert offerings and hardticket films, as well as legit presentations. Clubs members are also given the opportunity to purchase tickets in advance of mail orders and boxoffice sale.

According to Rosenfeld, about five or six mailings are sent out annually to club members. Each of these, he says, lists around a dozen entries for which tickets are available. The tickets cover all sections of the theatre, and there's also a guarantee providing for refunds of the membership fee.

The ad placed in last Sunday's L. A. Times did not list any shows. Its purpose was to introduce the club, which is to become operative late in the summer or early next fall.

Off-Broadway Shows

(Figures denote opening dates)

Amorous Flea, York (2-17-64).
Billygoat Eddie, Writers (4-20-64).
Blacks, St. Marks (5-4-61)
Blood Knot, Cricket (3-2-64).
Boys Syracuse, Theatre 4 (4-15-63).
Cindy, Gate (3-19-64).
Diary Madmen, Gram. Arts (4-16-64).
Double-bill, Cherry Lane (4-21-62).
Fantasticks, Sullivan St (5-3-60).
Immoralist, Bouwerie Lane (11-7-63).
In White America, Sher Sq. (10-21-63)
Life is a Dream, Astor Pl. (3-19-64).
Marietta, Hotel Astor (4-16-64).
Repertory, Phoenix (3-4-64).
Six Characters, Martinique (3-8-63)
Streets of N. Y., Majdman (10-29-63)
Trojan Woman, Circle in Sq. (12-23-63).
Trumpets Lord, 1 Sheridan Sq. (12-21-63).

SCHEDULED OPENINGS

Arms & the Man, East End (4-27-64).
Doubletalk, de Lys (5-4-64).
Grossman-Corners, Actors (5-5-64).
Alice With Kisses, 41st St. (5-7-64).
What Goes On, New Bowery (5-10-64).
Home-Soffly, Provincetown (5-11-64).
Awakening Spring, Pocket (5-13-64).
Place Chance, Stage 73 (5-14-64).
Knack, New Theatre (5-20-64).

CLOSED

Triple-bill, Cherry Lane (3-24-64); "Play" and "Two Executioners," two of the three one-acters, closed last Sunday (19), the former after 121 performances and the latter after 32 performances. "Dutchman," the other play, continues with "American Dream" which was revived at the house last night (Tues.).
Caretaker, Players (1-30-63); closed last Sunday (19) after 94 performances.
Little Eyolf, Actors (3-16-64); closed April 14 after 33 performances.
Pinter Play, Midway (11-26-62); closed April 12 after 578 performances.
Dream Swallows, Jan Hus (4-14-64). closed April 14 after one performance.
Salad Mad Cafe, Masque (3-31-64); closed April 12 after 16 performances.

Road OK; 'Camelot' $55,634, Philly; 'Me' $55,410, Det.; 'Enter' $31,427, L.A.; Royal Shakespeare Co. $22,598, D.C.

Business was generally okay on the road last week. There were no startling grossers, and only "Camelot," "How to Succeed in Business Without Really Trying" and "Little Me" topped the $50,000 mark. The sole newcomer, the Royal Shakespeare Theatre, started its U. S. tour slowly in Washington with a full stanza of "Comedy of Errors." The troupe is playing time in the capitol will be split equally this week between "Errors" and "King Lear."

The current week's addition to the road list is the Broadway-bound "Fade Out-Fade In," which opened in New Haven last Monday night (20). There were two closings last Saturday night (18), "Stop the World—I Want to Get Off" in Philadelphia and "A Thousand Clowns" in St. Louis.

Estimates for Last Week

Parenthetic designations for out-of-town shows are the same as for Broadway, except that hyphenated T with show classification includes tryout. RS indicates road show and BT indicates bus-and-truck production. Also, prices on touring shows include 10% Federal tax and local tax, if any, but as on Broadway grosses are net; i.e. exclusive of taxes. Engagements are for single week unless otherwise noted.

Where subscription is mentioned, the gross is the net after the deductions of commissions. Grosses for split weeks are projected when shows play guaranteed dates.

BOSTON

Luther, Shubert (D-RS) (1st wk) ($5.40-$6; 1,727; $54,403) (John Heffernan). Previous week, $37,722 with Theatre Guild-American Theatre Society subscription, National, Washington.

Opened here April 13 to unanimous approval (Forsythe, Traveler; Guidry, Monitor; Hughes, Herald; Kelly, Globe; Norton, Record American).

Last week, $24,605 with TG-ATS subscription.

CHICAGO

How to Succeed in Business Without Really Trying, Shubert (MC-RS) (23d wk) ($5.95-$6.95; 2,100; $74,000). Previous week, $52,739.

Last week, $50,272.

CINCINNATI

Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf? Shubert (D-RS) ($4.55-$5.10; 2,028; $60,495) (Nancy Kelly, Shepperd Strudwick) (matinee company—Michael Myers, Kendall Clark). Previous week, $35,169, Studebaker, Chicago.

Last week, $30,872 with TG-ATS subscription.

DETROIT

Little Me, Fisher (MC-RS) (4th wk) ($5.70-$6.50; 2,081; $75,000) (Sid Caesar). Previous week, $50,529 with Fisher Playgoer subscription.

Last week, $55,410 with Fisher Playgoer subscription.

INDIANAPOLIS

How to Succeed in Business Without Really Trying, Murat (MC-RS-3rd Co.) (2d wk). Previous week, $28,998.

Last week, $34,493.

LOS ANGELES

Enter Laughing, Biltmore (C-RS) (2d wk) ($5.50-$6; 1,636; $55,000) (Yvonne de Carlo, Alan Mowbray, Irving Jacobson, Alan Arkin). Previous week, $24,802 for seven performances with TG-ATS subscription.

Last week, $31,427 with TG-ATS subscription.

MONTREAL

Man for All Seasons, Capitol (D-RS) (William Roderick, Bruce Gordon, Albert Dekker). Previous week, $47,997 with TG-ATS and O'Keefe subscription, O'Keefe, Toronto.

Last week, $11,597.

PHILADELPHIA

Camelot, Shubert (MC-RS) (4th wk) ($6.60-$7.50; 1,907; $70,000) (Anne Jeffreys, George Wallace, Arthur Treacher, Robert Peterson). Previous week, $63,066.

Last week, $55,634.

Stop the World—I Want to Get Off, Forrest (MC-RS) ($6.60-$7.50; 1,760; $65,000) (Kenneth Nelson, Joan Eastman). Previous week, $28,062 with twofers, Shubert, Boston.

Last week, $22,811. Ended tour here Saturday (18).

ST. LOUIS

Thousand Clowns, American (C-RS) ($5.50; 1,863; $50,000) (Dane Clark, Margaret O'Brien). Previous week, $16,210 with TG-ATS subscription, Pabst, Milwaukee.

Last week, $20,072 with TG-ATS subscription. Ended tour here last Saturday (18).

ST. PAUL

Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum, Auditorium (MC-RS) ($5.95-$6.50; 2,697; $89,000) (Jerry Lester, Edward Everett Horton, Paul Hartman, Arnold Stang). Previous week, $65,316 with TG-ATS subscription, Orpheum, Minneapolis.

Last week, $36,855 with TG-ATS subscription. Boxoffice bopped by blizzard.

WASHINGTON

Royal Shakespeare Theatre, National (Rep-RS) (1st wk). ($6.95; 1,673; $61,217).

Last week, $22,598 for first week of British troupe's pre-New York tour with "Comedy of Errors," the stanza's only bill, opening April 13 to one favorable review (MacArthur, Star) and two negative notices (Coe, Post; Donnelly, News).

UNREPORTED

(Included below are productions with guaranteed dates for which grosses cannot be accurately figured.)

Boys From Syracuse (MC-BT), split-week.

Camelot (MC-BT) (Biff McGuire, Jeanne Carson, Melville Cooper), split-week.

Hollow Crown (DR-BT), split-week.

In One Bed (and Out the Other) (C-RS) (Jules Munshin, Greta Thyssen), Hanna, Cleveland.

Pajama Tops (C-RS) (June Wilkinson, Richard Vath), split-week.

Touring Shows

(Figures cover April 20-May 2)

Boys From Syracuse (bus-truck)—American, St. L. (April 20-25); split-week (April 27-May 2).
Camelot—Shubert, Philly (April 20-May 2).
Camelot (bus-truck)—Civic, N. O. (April 20-May 2).
Enter Laughing—Biltmore, L. A. (April 20-25); Geary, S. F. (April 27-May 2).
Fade Out-Fade In (tryout)—Shubert, New Haven (April 20-25); Colonial, Boston (April 29-May 2).
Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum (2d Co.)—Pabst, Milwaukee (April 20-25); American, St. L. (April 27-May 2).
Hollow Crown (bus-truck)—Split week (April 20-25, closes).
How to Succeed in Business Without Really Trying (3d Co.)—Shubert, Chi (April 20-May 2).
How to Succeed in Business Without Really Trying (3d Co.)—Brown, L'ville (April 20-25); Nixon, Pitt. (April 27- May 2).
In One Bed (and Out the Other) — Hanna, Cleve. (April 20-25); Shubert, Det. April 27-May 2).
Little Me—Curran, S. F. (April 20-May 2).
Luther—Shubert, Boston (April 20-25); Bushnell, Hartford (April 27-28); Shubert, New Haven (April 29-May 2).
Man for All Seasons — Fisher, Det. (April 20-May 2).
Pajama Tops—Music Hall, K. C. (April-21-25); Arcadia, Wichita (April 27-May 1); Veterans Auditorium, Des Moines (May 2).
Roar Like a Dove (tryout)—Wilbur, Boston (May 1-2).
Royal Shakespeare Theatre—National, Wash. (April 20-25); Shubert, Boston (April 27-May 2).
Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf? (2d Co.)—Playhouse, Wilmington (April 20-25); National, Wash. (April 27-May 2).

Australian Shows

(Week Ending April 18)

ADELAIDE
Fledermaus, Her Majesty's.

MELBOURNE
Antigone, Emerald Hill.
Barefoot in Park, Princess.
Camelot, Her Majesty's.
Don't Tell Father, St. Martin's.
Love Rides Rails, Russell St.
Philippine Dancers, Comedy.
Stop the World, Tivoli.

SYDNEY
Black Theatre Prague, Royal.
Boeing-Boeing, Palace.
Do You Know Milky Way, Independent.
Henry V, Tent.
How to Succeed, Her Majesty's.
Importance Being Earnest, Old Tote.
Importance Being Oscar, Old Tote.
Minstrels, Tivoli.
Physicists, Ensemble.

CASTING NEWS

Following are available parts in upcoming Broadway, off-Broadway, and touring shows, as well as ballet, films, industrial and television shows. All information has been obtained directly by the VARIETY Casting Department by telephone calls, and has been rechecked as of noon yesterday (Tues.).

The available roles will be repeated weekly until filled, and additions to the list will be made only when information is secured from responsible parties. The intention is to service performers with leads provided by the managements of the shows involved rather than to run a wild goose marathon. (This information is published without charge).

Parenthetical designations are as follows: (C) Comedy, (D) Drama, (MC) Musical Comedy, (MD) Musical Drama, (R) Revue, (Rep) Repertory, (DR) Dramatic Reading, (DB) Double Bill.

Legit

BROADWAY

"Ben Franklin in Paris" (MC). (c/o Casting Consultants, 22 W. 24th St., N. Y.). Available parts: femme lead, 30-35, must sing and do French accent; male, 19, likeable, must sing and dance; femme, 19, French, must sing and dance. Accepting photos and resumes through agents only, c/o above address.

OFF-BROADWAY

"The Streets of New York" (M). Producers, Gene Dingenary & Jane Gilliland (416 W. 42d St., N.Y.). All roles open. Equity only. Legit voices required. Mail photos & resumes c/o above address. Do not phone or visit.

"This Was Burlesque" (R) Audition every Wednesday at 5 p.m. for tall femme dancers, experienced in modern, tap & ballet, at the Casino East Theatre (12th St., and Second Ave., N. Y.).

STOCK

BALTIMORE, MD.

Center Stage. Producers, William Bushnell and Edward Golden (45 W. Preston St., Baltimore, Md.). This Equity resident company is accepting photos and resumes c/o above address for a 35-week season beginning in Mid-Sept. thru mid-May.

CANAL, FULTON, OHIO

Canal Fulton Arena. Producer, David Fulford (60 W. 45th St., N.Y.). Accepting photos and resumes for Equity resident company and apprentices, all types, musical and dramatic, c/o above address. Star system is used here. 16-week season begins June 4.

CHARLOTTE, N.C.

Charlotte Summer Theatre. Auditions April 30 for singers: Equity men at 2 p.m. and femmes at 4 p.m. Open call singers May 1: men at 2 p.m. and femmes at 4 p.m.—all at the Variety Arts Studio (225 W. 46th St., N.Y.).

EPHRATA, PA.

Ephrata Star Playhouse. Producer-director, John Cameron (c/o P.O. Box 334, Ephrata, Pa.). Accepting photos & resumes from dramatic & musical performers for Equity resident company, also jobbers & apprentices, c/o above address.

LAKE LUZERNE, N.Y.

Lake Luzerne Playhouse. Producer, George Patrick (316 W. 78th St., N.Y.). Available parts: lead male, lead femme, apprentices, for this Equity resident company. Mail photos and resumes c/o above address.

SULLIVAN, ILL.

Summer of Musicals. Producer, Guy S. Little Jr. Box 155, Sullivan, Ill. Accepting photos and resumes from musical and dramatic performers for Equity resident company. Also applicants for paid apprenticeships, c/o above address.

WILLIAMSTOWN, MASS.

Williamstown Summer Theatre. Producer, Nikos Psacharopoulos (c/o School of Drama, Yale University, New Haven, Conn.). Accepting photos and resumes for a resident Equity company of twelve and a non-Equity company of six. All types will be considered. Appointments will be scheduled from photos and resumes received; mail to producer at above address. Do not phone or visit.

TOURING

"The Irregular Verb To Love" (C). Myrna Loy stars. All other roles open. Mail photos & resumes to McAloney Productions (853 7th Ave., N.Y.). Do not phone or visit.

Television

"Camera Three" (educational-dramatic series). Producer, CBS (524 W. 57th St., N. Y.; JU 6-6000); casting director, Paula Hindlin. Accepting photos and resumes of general male and female dramatic talent, c/o above address. No duplicates.

"Lamp Unto My Feet" (religious-dramatic series). Producer, CBS (524 W. 57th St., N. Y.; JU 6-6000); casting director, Paula Hindlin. Accepting photos and resumes of general male and female dramatic talent, c/o above address. No duplicates.

Miscellaneous

"The Magic Flute." This one-hour version of the Opera will be presented throughout the summer at the N.Y. World's Fair. Agma-open tenor and bass voices only, should contact Mr. Friedberg at Sacramento 2-3220 daily from 9 a.m.-5 p.m. for audition appointment.

"The Merry Widow" (M). Auditions for dancers only: Equity femmes April 30 at 10:00 a.m. and open call femmes at 2 p.m. Equity men May 1 at 10:00 a.m. and open call men at 2 p.m.—all at the New York State Theatre (62d St. and Columbus Ave., N.Y.). Report to the stage entrance.

Ballet

Radio City Music Hall Ballet. Director, Marc Platt (c/o Radio City Music Hall, Rockefeller Center, N.Y.) Open call auditions for femme ballet dancers will be held Tuesdays at 3 p.m. at the Music Hall stage entrance (55 W. 50th St., N.Y.).

Hooliganism

Continued from page 1

of 1,000 "mods" and "rockers" descending on the town on motorcycles and motor scooters, hell bent on raising cain as they did at Clacton (which led to 90 arrests).

The Clacton fracas was also closely followed by arrests for wild behaviour at the "Mod Ball" arranged by Rediffusion in conjunction with the Variety Club of Great Britain and held at the mammoth Wembley Pool.

Other instances where theatres have barred pop concerts in view of the damage caused by the teen audiences are becoming more frequent.

'New Forces in Theatre' TV Confab Airs Same Old Gripes and Panaceas

By JESSE GROSS

Howard Taubman, drama critic of the N.Y. Times, has been accused by some tradesters of giving the Broadway theatre a bad name. Their criticism, in general, is that his reviews and special pieces for the paper's Sunday theatre section have frequently contained derogatory references to the "commercial" aspects of Broadway production.

This tack was apparent in some of his remarks as one of six participants in a discussion of the theatre on WNEW-TV last Sunday night (19) from 10 p.m. to 11:30 p.m. Shortly after the session began he made his position clear with an observation about the "normal, shabby, superficial stuff that the theatre gives us in New York." In contrast, his enthusiasm about theatres in Poland, which he had visited, was overwhelming. "A mindless evening on the town" was another phrase he used in referring to Broadway.

The 90-minute "Under Discussion" program had as its topic, "New Forces in Theatre." Playwright Edward Albee, another one of the panelists, stated at the outset that the subject was vague. As it turned out, he was correct. The topic seemed to constantly disappear in a rehash of cliche arguments over the state of the theatre.

Not so foggy, though, were the plugs for the Lincoln Center Repertory Theatre, helped along by moderator Harold Clurman, executive consultant to the repertory operation, and the venture's co-director, Elia Kazan, one of the panelists. Also involved in the table discussion were actors Richard Burton and Robert Preston, both adding personality and practical viewpoints to the proceedings.

The tendency of Taubman and others on the program to knock Broadway was disconserting. Although Albee was on the panel, nobody emphasized that his controversial "Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf?" was produced on Broadway and that, besides being successful and establishing him as a major playwright, it has also earned lush royalties.

The "commercial" Broadway theatre also provides the N.Y. Times with substantial advertising revenue as well as material for extensive news, feature and critical coverage and, thereby, circulation. Kazan and Clurman, too, have had a part in some of its commercial successes.

A contributing factor to the present state of the theatre, according to Taubman, is "too damn much affluence." High ticket prices, government support of repertory companies, the Actors Studio and off-Broadway were among the standard subjects mentioned during the confab.

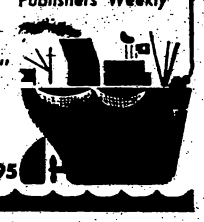
Albee, who first gained recognition on the basement and belfry circuit with his one-act plays, initially expressed the belief that off-Broadway was ruining itself with poorly produced shows and vanity presentations. He modified that position later, however. Preston, commenting on the calibre of scripts he gets to read, said that it saddens him to think that so many of them are going to be produced and lose money.

Clurman believes there's an audience for good plays, but that it has to be organized. Preston's view on that subject was that legit, like a ball club, needs fans and they have to be brought back into the theatre. How to do so was not explored, however, except for Taubman's suggestion that what's needed is good theatre.

The discussion portion of the program didn't get underway until about eight minutes after the stanza's start what with commercials and identification of the participants. There was also an anachronism in that the show was taped last Friday (17) and Taubman referred to the upcoming Saturday closing on Broadway of "Sponono," which had already folded as of the program's Sunday telecast.

"Wacky hilarious journeys on board the fictional s.s. Flying Wind..."*

There You Are, But Where Are You?



A Novel by ROBERT F. MIRVISH

"MIRVISH IS WONDERFUL!"

at concocting funny episodes that get even funnier as they develop. He is a master of the running gag. Very entertaining.

*Publishers' Weekly

...Down to Earth Pleasure!" —Bert Lahr Star of "Foxy"

DUTTON $3.95

BILLY DE WOLFE

2nd Year Co-Starring in

"HOW TO SUCCEED IN BUSINESS WITHOUT REALLY TRYING"

Shaftesbury Theatre

London W.C.2, England

GAMBIT

an international drama quarterly

"This a work of importance—I would go further and say major importance. I can think of so many things the play could have been: harrowing, nervewracking, horrifying. It is none of these . . . Constructed in a way which reveals a master craftsman, it is laced with a true, deep, beautiful humor . ."

Harold Bemberg
B. B. C.

THE WINDOWS OF HEAVEN a dark comedy

by SHIMON WINCELBERG

(Based on "A Cat in the Ghetto" by Rachmil Bryks) is featured in the 'New American Drama' issue of GAMBIT, 67 Cookridge Dr., Leeds 17, England. $1.25 sample copy. $4.50 yr.

ART WALLACE

Height	5' 8"
Weight	250
Age	28
Type	Good

I act . . . And I sing . . . and I even dance a little . . . That's what I do for a living . . . Because I like it.

If you missed me in Talent '64, I can be seen in the leading role, B. G. Bigelow, in ELT's production of "Flahooley," April 25 thru May 3.

By the way, I'm no longer with the Ruth Webb Agency, so you can contact me at LO 4-3250 . . . If you want to . . .

his name is fletcher,

JACK FLETCHER!

"... INGENIOUS ..." New York Times

"... IMPECCABLE ..." Newsday

"... A DELIGHT ..." New York Post

"... SPLENDID ..." New York Journal-American

"... A BOON TO THE PROCEEDINGS ..." New Yorker

"... WONDERFULLY COMIC ..." UPI

Currently

"THE AMOROUS FLEA"

YORK THEATRE

New York

— Television —

"ONCE UPON A MATTRESS"

as THE WIZARD with

CAROL BURNETT, June 3rd

CBS-TV

Exclusive Management

MICHAEL HARTIG

105 West 55th St., New York 19, N. Y.

PLaza 7-2224

Concert Reviews

Marc Blitzstein Memorial

(Philharmonica Hall, N.Y.)

A group called The Friends of Marc Blitzstein, and reading from Albee (Edward) to Wyler (William), presented a memorial concert Sunday (19) with a collection of concert and legit artists that no impresario could have afforded on a purely commercial basis. It's to speed a Marco Blitzstein Musical Theatre Award, an annual grant to a composer, lyricist or librettist.

The three-part program consisted of excerpts from the works of the composer who was murdered last January in Martinique. "Regina," his musical version of Lillian Hellman's "The Little Foxes," made up the opening segment. Major scenes, with a connective narration written and spoken by Miss Hellman, were sung by Phyllis Curtin Elizabeth Carron, Lee Venora, Carol Brice, Joshua Hecht, George Irving, Emile Renan and Andrew Freirson. Orchestra and chorus were conducted by Julius Rudel of N.Y. City Opera. Outstanding were Carol Brice's "Blues" and Phyllis Curtin's "Away."

Rounding out opening half were first performances of three songs from works in progress at time of Blitzstein's death. Most effective was Jose Ferrer's "How I Met My New Grandfather" from a short opera, "Idiots First," which conductor Leonard Bernstein reported he would orchestrate and present next season. Anita Ellis sang "Then" from another short work, "The Magic Barrel," on which Bernstein said very little work had been completed.

The greatest tragedy, again reported Bernstein, was that the major work Blitzstein has been working on, his opera "Sacco and Vanzetti," a Ford Foundation commission which the Metropolitan Opera had requested, has disappeared. It was known, he said, that the composer had completed a great deal of the opera but the only finished piece available was an aria, "With A Woman To Be," which Met tenor Luigi Alva proceeded to sing. Hershy Kay did the orchestration for the three songs, with Bernstein conducting.

Second half of the long program—a concert version of "The Cradle Will Rock"—was presented in the manner of the original production. Bernstein directed from an upright piano on which he also played the only accompaniment. Preceding the presentation, a tape of Blitzstein's voice was played describing the conditions under which the 1937 performance had been given. Staging by Howard Da Silva was bare and stylized and in keeping with the original. Besides Da Silva, other original cast members on hand were Hiram Sherman and Will Geer. Also in the cast were Barbara Harris, Seth Riggs, William Hickey, Arnold Weinstein, Jack Harrold, Michael Wager, Adolph Green, Heywood Hale Broun, Joshua Hecht, Betty Comden, Charles Nelson Reilly, Phyllis Newman, Timmy Everett, Robert Heller, Marlene Kleinman, Lee Cass, Micki Grant and Leonard Bernstein. Unlike Blitzstein, who contributed eight parts to the original, Bernstein stuck to two—a police clerk and a reporter.

The sold out audience was possibly a less dedicated group than the one that paraded to the theatre in 1937 but their enthusiastic response to both composer and artists built to a rousing and standing ovation at conert's end.

Robe.

Bernstein's Kaddish

(Philharmonic, N. Y.)

Although the program included excellent performances of Brahms' "Tragic Overture" and his "Symphony No. 3," the piece de resistance at Lincoln Center last week was Leonard Bernstein conducting the N.Y. Philharmonic in his own "Symhpony No. 3: Kaddish."

The massive work, requiring an augmented orchestra, was presented for its first N.Y. performances at three evenings, two afternoon concerts. Soloists included Felicia Montealegre (Mrs. B.) as narrator, Jennie Tourel, mezzo-soprano, the Camerata Singers directed by Abraham Kaplan and the Columbus Boychoir, directed by Donald Bryant.

The symphony, in three movements, is based on the traditional Jewish Kaddish or prayer chanted for the dead. However, Bernstein bypassed this interpretation, which has grown through folklore, to base his music on an earlier meaning, "in praise of God." His stormy, unsettled themes will not be everyone's idea of God-like music but his lyrics, more often than not an argument with God, as well as in His praise, are packed with irony and wit as well as spiritual reaffirmation. His speaker has the audacity to ask the Creator whether he is sorry that He created man in His own image. Bernstein's arguments are packed with contemporary allusions—"man, free to play with his new-found fire"—and irreverance—"rueing the folly of your two footed handiwork." Overall, the monumental work could be described as both a protest and an affirmation of faith.

Robe.

Off-Broadway Review

A Dream of Swallows

Fryer, Carr & Harris, Inc., with John Herman, presentation of a drama by Paul Zindel. Staged by Michael Simone; settings and lighting, Boyd Dumrose; original music, Bob Harris; lyrics, Frank Reardon. Stars Nancy R. Pollock. Opened April 14, '64, at the Jan Hus House, N.Y.C.; $4.00 top weeknights, $4.50 weekends.

Cast: Nancy R. Pollock, Humphrey Davis, Kate Harrington, Eugene R. Wood, Sally Schermerhorn, Robert Berdeen, Charlotte Jones.

In "A Dream of Swallows," playwright Paul Zindel presents an assortment of lonely people who allow their hopes to blind them to reality. As the title indicates, he equates the characters with birds who fly too high, then fall to earth abruptly.

Once or twice, Zindel comes up with a line or a bit of action that touchingly conveys the plight of the unhappy people on stage. For the most part, however, the play is tedious and wordy, full of pretentious dialog and tiresome symbolism.

The leading role, well played under the circumstances by Nancy R. Pollack, is a spinster whose home is a refuge for misfits. Living with her are a senile old man who thinks he has invented the can-opener and the umbrella and is working on a "dream machine"; an older woman who refuses to believe that her daughter died 11 years earlier, and a young girl who dreams of love but can't accept it.

When a heavy-drinking actor, employed as a clown in a local carnival, comes to the house, the spinster marries him, permits him to take her money and sell her house. None of this is believable, but the most incredible character of all is a totally evil woman, sister of the actor, played by Charlotte Jones. She is so thoroughly wicked that it's ludicrous.

Eugene R. Wood, Kate Harrington and Sally Schermerhorn do what they can with the supporting roles, but Humphrey Davis and Miss Jones make bad parts worse by performing too broadly. Bob Harris' original music is suitably moody and Boyd Dumrose's set is excellent. But "Dream of Swallows" is a painful evening.

Kenn.

LONDON SHOWS

(Figures denote opening dates)

Boeing-Boeing, Apollo (2-20-63).
Caligula, Phoenix (4-6-64).
Difference of Opinion, Garrick (11-21-63).
Diplomats, Westminster (12-31-63)
Fielding's Hall, Prince Charles (2-27-63).
Funny Thing Happened, Strand (10-3-63).
Half a Sixpence, Cambridge (3-21-63).
Hang Head Down, Comedy (3-19-64).
Hedda Gabler, St. Martin's (2-12-64).
How to Succeed, Shaftesbury (3-28-63).
Kayf Up West, Royal, East (3-10-64).
Lovely War, Wyndham's (3-19-63).
Mexican Fiesta, Drury Lane (3-30-64).
Macbeth, Mermaid (4-22-64).
Minstrels, Vic. Palace (5-25-62).
Mother's Boy, Globe (3-19-64).
Mousetrap, Ambassador (11-25-52).
No Strings, Her Majesty's (12-30-63).
Oliver, New (6-30-60).
One for the Pot, Whitehall (8-2-61).
Pickwick, Saville (7-4-63).
Poor Bitos, Duke of York's (1-6-64).
Reluctant Peer, Duchess (1-15-64).
Repertory, Aldwych (12-15-60)
Repertory, National Theatre (10-22-63).
Round Piccadilly, Prince Wales (3-28-64).
Schoolmistress, Savoy. (4-8-64).
Seagull, Queen's (3-12-64).
Severed Head, Criterion (6-27-63).
Six of One, Adelphi (9-26-63).
Sound of Music, Palace (3-18-61).
Subtoplans, New Arts (4-14-64).
Wait a Minim, Fortune (4-9-64).
Who's Afraid Woolf, Piccadilly (2-6-64).
Wings of Dove, Haymarket (12-3-63).

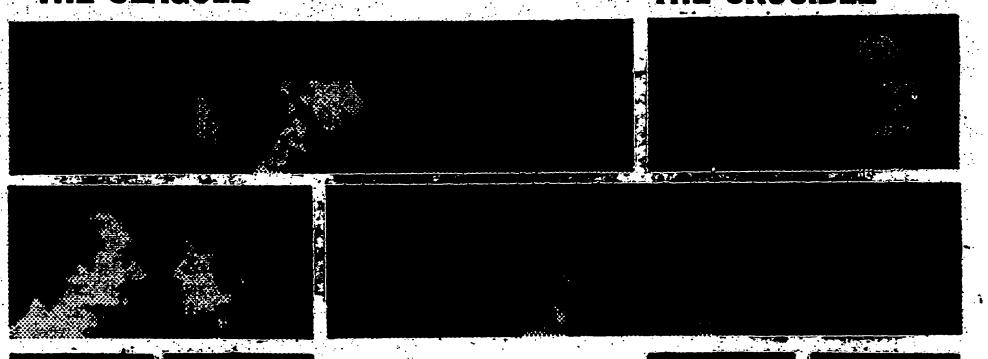
CLOSED

Royal Commission Revue, Mermaid (3-11-64); closed last Saturday (18) after a limited season of 67 performances.

SCHEDULED OPENINGS

Macbeth, Mermaid (4-22-64).
Amber for Anna, Vaudeville (4-28-64).
She Loves Me, Lyric (4-29-64).
The Claimant (4-30-64).

"DON'T MISS EITHER. THIS COMPANY HAS BROUGHT NEW DISTINCTION TO THE 1963-64 THEATER SEASON." —Nadel, World Telegram and Sun



"Once in a long while something in the theater reminds us that acting is or can be—a transcendent art. In order for this to happen, there must be an impeccable play, plus a cast of individual and ensemble mastery. Anton Chekhov's 'The Seagull' is such a play — substantial and spacious—to invite the full range of the actor's skill. And the National Repertory has brought such a cast to the Belasco Theater, in a production both delicate and powerful.
—Nadel, World Telegram and Sun

"'The Seagull' was given a moving, perceptive performance. The play shows no age because it is deep and strong and compassionate. Last evening was a glorious one." —Chapman, News

"The best production of Mr. Chekhov's introspective excursion as we are apt to see in our time. The members of the company are first class and the mountings are excellent."
—McClain, Journal-American

"After 50 years in the theater, Eva Le Gallienne's gallantry in serving it is undiminished."
—Taubman, Times

ANTA PRESENTS
THE NATIONAL REPERTORY THEATRE
ANTON CHEKHOV'S
THE SEAGULL
ARTHUR MILLER'S
THE CRUCIBLE

EVA LeGALLIENNE
FARLEY GRANGER
DENHOLM ELLIOTT
ANNE MEACHAM

LIMITED ENGAGEMENT
ENDS MAY 2nd

"A highly charged performance. Arthur Miller's play retains the fury of its intensity and its pride in the inviolability of man's dignity and honor. Watching it in the taut revival by the National Repertory Theater, one was impressed anew by the fervor of Mr. Miller's convictions and the force with which he dramatized them." —Taubman, Times

"The National Repertory Theater has brought us a brilliant revival of 'The Crucible' that is undoubtedly the finest production of the Arthur Miller play that we have had here to date. A stark and driving drama that touches the heart as it fascinates the mind—a beautiful piece of theater that seethes with passion, sparks with dramatic tensions and glows with simple humanity."
—Crist, Herald Tribune

"The engagement between stage and onlooker is powerful, complete. If you've never seen it, now is the moment to see it; and if you have seen it, now may well be the moment to see it afresh, with new appreciation."
—Tallmer, Post

"The play tears you apart. This is the way 'The Crucible' must be done." —Nadel, World Telegram and Sun

BELASCO THEATRE 111 W. 44 Street, New York City • JU 6-7950

"SUPERB REPERTORY. AN EXCEPTIONALLY FINE COMPANY."
—McClain, Journal-American

N.Y. World's Fair

Continued from page 1

ever, that this has become a country on wheels since the 1939 World's Fair. In fact, the present Entertainment Area ("midway" is still a dirty word) is now severed by a highway where none existed before. Incidentally, while the pop entertainments are just as accessible, via a pedestrian overpass, the feeling among the showmen is that this sector already is one of isolation or, at least, partition from the other areas—International, Federal, State and Industrial.

On the subject of last-minute maintenance, the ganders by VARIETY men auditioning press previews and/or getting the general "feel" of the Fair before its opening have all been punctuated by blatant goldbricking. Workers taking snoozes or literally laying down on the job were observed in the mornings, long before any lunchtime break. And the "coffee breaks" seemed without beginning or end—the kiddies were making like a marathon picnic. Workers as sneak thieves were also giving unionism a bad name.

Among the positive intraoperational forethoughts were the Bill Donoghue pubrelations organization staging a dry-run last Thursday (16) morning for press, photographers, radio, tv and newsreels in Singer Bowl, site of today's dedication ceremonies headed by President Johnson, along with President Truman, Gov. Rockefeller, Mayor Wagner and other dignitaries.

A scientifically plotted split-second protocol schedule was also well laid out.

Pickets

CORE alone didn't test the Pinkertons' patience with some preview picketing over the weekend. Members of the Theatrical Chauffers & Helpers Local picketed the three major television networks for allegedly using their own staffers for "theatrical trucking" and that said staffers were not members of the union. Thomas O'Donnell, president of Local 817 of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, emphasized that the pickets did not seek to stop other employees from going to work; that it was just a jurisdictional scrape with ABC, CBS and NBC.

In effect, the definace of the insurgent groups within CORE (the stall-in and other UnFair procedures are deplored by the national Congress Of Racial Equality) has achieved some effect with certain VIP and other groups and individuals who will now "stay away" from the Fair's opening day ceremonies and the general excitement attendant to a premiere of this character. Some of the socialite femmes along with other distinguished citizens have frankly confessed open fear or tacit lack of desire to "get needlessly tangled up."

Past fortnight saw a stepped-up series of charity previews, executive brass and nationalistic pavilions' galas.

20th-Fox's "What a Way to Go!" on Wednesday night, May. 13, in the Better Living Center, may be the first World's Fair movie preem. Picture opens the next day at the Criterion and Sutton, in Manhattan.

The 'In' Filling Stations

The real "in" thing at the Fair again will be the posh executive suites (invitation only for non-industry tycoons) of which there are quite a few already.

General Motors and Ford staged a tandem goodwiller for some 1,400 members of the American Newspaper Publishers Assn., in convention at the Waldorf-Astoria, by shuttling a fleet of private buses from the hotel to the Fairgrounds for Sunday lunch and previews, with beaucoup groceries and booze at the GM (brunch) and excellent Restaurant Associates-style afternoon "tea" (vintage champagne and liqueurs, also tea and coffee for the literal-minded) in the Ford Pavilion. Joe Baum's outfit caters the Ford executive suite but otherwise there is no potable-edible service.

None the less, the Restaurant Associates (Forum, Four Seasons, La Fonda del Sol, Tower Suite etc.) has one of the classiest public restaurants with an ultra crew specially trained for the Indonesian and the Gas Industries Pavilions. Latter, too, has one of those inner circle privateries but also of the largest and roomiest public restaurants. Indonesia has a big league imported show of dancing girls, native Indian instrumentalists and specialty artists.

Same is true of the Spanish Pavilion and the Japanese and African Pavilions, among others.

As with the 1939 N.Y. World's Fair, several posh filling stations will emerge although, in this instance, there appears to be little room for newcomers and upstarts, referring of course to what happened at the French, Italian and Belgian Pavilions whose imported staffers — notably Henri Soule, among them—eventually invaded and significantly added to the Gotham gastronomic scene.

Rooms

As the manpower corps has pyramided the Flushing Meadows invasion, be they the undergraduates or the foreigners just brought in or brought over as waiters, guides, receptionists, greeters, etc. it's become a field day for the Long Island, Queens, Flushing, Jamaica and contiguous rooming-houses, motels, "extra room" boarding facilities with private families. Until many of them get settled, they've been paying moteliers top daily fees, but the far-sighted pavilions, through their local consulates and/or embassies, were able to sign up rooms or take leaseholds on groups of apartments in Lefrak City and kindred nearby housing developments. Each, in turn, has its neighborhood bowling alley, bar and hamburger havens which, already, seem to be benefiting from the strictly permanent (for the duration) personnel, as against the transient day tourists.

As a side-bar, the "Folies Bergere" show, due end-May at the Broadway Theatre, in Manhattan, has been sending out scouts for two-in-a-room facilities for their choristers, most of them first-time-in-America visitors.

On another tangent, despite the "hold the line" assurances on hotel-motel rentals, it is a wide-open secret among big business hosts in Manhattan that certain "room wholesalers" are the ones to be dealt with. They have blocs of rooms sewed up for availability for airlines, industrialists, VIP exhibitors and kindred executives.

George Jessel will emcee and produce variety shows for the Cavalcade of Custom Cars, a late entry to the list of exhibitors at the lavish Transportation & Travel Pavilion at the N.Y. World's Fair.

Jessel will supervise all entertainment, live and on film, for Bob George of World Wide Productions, the leading exponent of this type of show since 1948.

Tony Curtis, Mickey Rooney, Stan Kenton and James Melton are some of the celebrities Jessel expects to bring to the T&T Pavilion during the first year of the Fair.

The Pinkertons still don't know where is what, in the main, but they try to be helpful. Courtesy is obviously Bob Moses' No. 1 commandment to them, and anybody else, but one wonders wha' hoppens as the masses move in and the temperatures rise—ditto the limits to one's patience.

Inside joke with the intra-Fair set, about the Pinkertons, is calling them "Hertz rent-a-cops."

WELLS RICHARDSON

RICHARDSON as YVES LE TROUHADEC, professor of geography at the SORBONNE in Paris?—A classic farce-comedy feature role from the repertory of the COMEDIE FRANCAISE? Fantastic!

But the French CONSUL GENERAL to New York went backstage to present his congratulations on opening night and later sent two former Governors to see the show. By a happy coincidence, RICHARDSON was featured in DONOGOO and his picture was on the program. The excitement was intense and West 13th Street has never been the same since!

HEDGEROW THEATRE
MOYLAN, PENNSYLVANIA
For rent now through Summer Season —Fully equipped—170 capacity. For information write:
C. D. CHRISTMAN
422 S. 20th St., Philadelphia, Pa.

Ladybird's Station

Continued from page 1

legal authority to require such information. The company's Washinton attorney Eugene Burke refused to comment on the Commission's latest action.

The order came in a letter averring Capital was a party to a petition filed to FCC by TV Cable Co. of Austin Inc. and that the request was within FCC's authority.

Failure to submit the information may result in Capital's appearances and pleadings stricken from the record, FCC warned.

TV Cable's petition seeks a waiver of FCC rules and permission to bring network programs from distant cities in Austin before they are carried by KTBC.

As KTBC carries programs from all three webs, it results in numerous net shows being taped and aired later. TV Cable would like to bring these programs in immediately to its Austin subscribers, rather than wait out the FCC-prescribed 15-day embargo.

TV Cable, a microwave operator, must have an FCC license. In contrast Capital Cable, a wired system, does not need a license.

KTBC, owned by Mrs. Johnson and her two daughters, has been placed in an irrevocable trust for the duration of President Johnson's Federal service.

Support for Arts

Continued from page 143

000 annually without a flicker of doubt.

A number of symphony and music union reps were also in attendance calling attention to their dire fiscal situations.

An interesting aside came when Record Industries Assn. of America exec secretary Henry Brief pointed out that his medium was left out of the legislation "apparently through an inadvertant oversight."

He said disks were certainly an art form worthy of Federal aid and appealed they be put into the bill.

EXPERIENCED ACTORS-ACTRESSES AGE 20-45
AUDITIONS—MID-MAY
Send Application and Biography To MONTREAL INTERNATIONAL THEATRE
c/o The Producer, Box V3605, Variety, 154 W. 46th St., New York 10036

Asides and Ad-Libs

Peter Randall, managing director of the St. Martin's Theatre company of Melbourne, was in New York last week to see the Broadway shows and shop for the rights to plays for his stock group. He left Sunday for London and then goes to Paris, Rome, Greece, Israel and Pakistan. During his trip he is negotiating for foreign productions of "Breakfast with Julia," a Burton Graham farce that has been his Australian theatre's most popular production.

Former legit actress Helen Brooks, now a resident of Geneva, was in New York last week with her art-dealer husband, James Waterman Wise, to visit relatives and see Broadway shows. The Wises will move in June to the south of France . . . Gordon Morris, who recently produced "Sanctity," by Robert Head, at the Fourth St. Theatre, Minneapolis, denies a statement in a VARIETY report from there, to the effect that newspaper reviews of the drama were a factor in the decision not to reactivate the project after the house was closed because of a building violation. He claims the actors had other commitments.

Joseph Cates, will be associated with West End producer Peter Bridge in the Broadway presentation the latter's London success, "Stephen D" . . . Volume One of "The Plays of Strindbergs," translated by Michael Meyer, will be published April 30 by Random House (clothbound, $5.95). It includes "The Father," "Miss Julie," "Creditors," "The Stronger," "Playing with Fire," "Erik the Fourteenth," "Storm" and "The Ghost Sonata."

"I think 'After the Fall' is fine and I believe it will get better as Arthur Miller continues to work on it. It has caused a great deal of comment. Together with 'The Deputy,' it has brought the theatre back into the life of the city—which is what we were after."—Elia Kazan, film and legit director, as quoted by Bob Thomas in the N.Y. Post . . ."Critics give much too little credit to comedies. Comedies almost never win awards, such as are given to dramas."—Ronald Alexander, author of "Nobody Loves an Albatross," as quoted by Richard F. Shepard in the N.Y. Times.

Legit Bits

Elliot Martin, currently represented on Broadway as coproducer of "Never Too Late" and "Nobody Loves an Albatross," was guest lecturer yesterday (Tues.) at the Univ. of Denver, of which he's an aulmnus.

Jerome Robbins, who supervised the production of "Funny Girl" as his latest Broadway effort, celebrated his 20th anniversary as a choreographer last Saturday (18). It was on that date in 1944 that "Fancy Free," opened in Manhattan at the Metropolitan Opera House.

John Dutra, who's standby for Don Porter in the Broadway production of "Any Wednesday," has been bicycling between the Music Box Theatre, where the play is berthed, and the World's Fair, where he's been rehearsing his assignment as narrator for the Dupont "Wonderful World of Chemistry" show.

Howard Lindsay is to be guest speaker next Friday (24) at the annual Edgar Allan Poe Awards Dinner which the Mystery Writers of America Inc. will hold at the Hotel Astor, N.Y.

With its 1,296th performance at the Helen Hayes Theatre last Friday night (17), "Mary, Mary" became the eighth longest running play in Broadway history.

Muriel Resnik, author of the Broadway click, "Any Wednesday," returned last Monday (20) from a brief visit to Bermuda with her photographer-husband, Wallace Litwin, who was there on assignment for Town and Country mag. Howard Erskine, coproducer of "Wednesday," and his actress-wife, Lucy Prentis, are also doing the Bermuda bit for two weeks.

Frederick Brisson, who has several plays earmarked for future Broadway production, in addition to his activities as a film producer, returned to New York last week after a fortnight's overseas visit.

"Billygoat Eddie," which opened off-Broadway last Monday night (20), underwent a change of directors while in rehearsal with Lawrence Kornfeld succeeding Sherwood Arthur.

Michael Dewell, coproducer of the National Repertory Theatre, is to speak next Saturday (25) on "Today's Theatres: Yesterday's or Tomorrow's" at the U.S. Institute of Theatre Technology meeting at the Barbizon Plaza, N.Y.

Michael Alpert, who's been on Broadway producer Alexander H. Cohen's staff as press associate, will be pressagent again this summer for the Bucks County Playhouse, New Hope, Pa., which will open its 25th season May 2 with Genevieve in "The Play's the Thing" as the first of 10 productions, each to run a fortnight.

As part of their series, "From the Classics to the Contemporaries," Leslie Barrett and Diana Barth will present a special program in honor of the 400th anniversary of Shakespeare's birth at the Donnell Library, N.Y., tonight (Wed.). The program, which will have Dorothy Sands as guest performer, will include sonnets and scenes from Shakespeare's plays.

America's Greatest Exotic Dancing Star

Adele Latour
'Anatomy Award Winner '64'
OPEN FOR LIMITED ENGAGEMENTS
For Engagements in Theatres, Supper Clubs and Fairs
Contact
KAPLAN AGENCY, INC.
Suite 804, Palace Theatre Bldg.
1564 Broadway, New York, N. Y.
PLaza 7-7247

FOR THEATRICAL HAULING in LOS ANGELES
CONTACT GEORGE CONANT
ATLANTIC TRANSFER CO.
OUR NEW ADDRESS & PHONE IS
10053 INTERNATIONAL ROAD
LOS ANGELES 45, CALIFORNIA
PHONE: 776-1870

THEATRE STUDIO AND OFFICES
For sub-lease. Fully equipped. Seats 60. Ideal location, New York City. $450.00 mo. Security, refs.
BOX 549, P. O. RADIO CITY STA. NEW YORK 10019

FOR LEASE
THEATRE-BY-THE-SEA
Matunuck, R. I. Seats 550. Unusually large stage. $5000 yr., including inn, restaurant, bar.
MRS. CLIVE L. DUVAL
4815 Buchanan St.
McLean, Va.

Broadway

Peggy Wood receiving an honorary degree at Hamilton College's June 7 commencement exercises.

Sunday midnight bash by Arlene and Keefe Brasselle in honor of the christening of their first-born daughter, Rosana Maria.

Mike Stern, "the mayor of Via Veneto," in from his Rome home with galleyproofs of his autobiog, "An American In Rome," for Geis publication in June.

It's the 45th anni for Frances and Phil ("Broadway" and other plays) Dunning on April 26. Per usual, they will celebrate it quietly at their Westport digs.

Drama critic John Gassner moderating a special conference on "A Challenge to the American Playwright" May 8-9 at the Univ. of North Carolina Institute of Outdoor Drama.

Three one-act plays by Beth Brown and Lawrence Johnson are scheduled for production at the Powell Community House Theatre in Harlem's 138th St., directed by Horace J. Porter.

John Effrat, "Talent '64" producer and commissioner of the Broadway Show League, set as stage coordinator for Newspaper Guild's 30th anni "Page One Ball" April 24 at the N. Y. Hilton.

Songsmith-borscht circuit conferencier Harry Tobias completing his "Borscht Belt Book," in collaboration with Ralph Hancock, and back to Wentworth Hall, Jackson, N.H., for third summer as entertainment director.

The uncooperative rains washed out Cantinflas' vidpix shooting schedule at the N.Y. World's Fairgrounds early next week but as soon as the weather turned for the better he completed his stint and returned to Mexico City.

Mrs. A. J. (Carrie) Balaban, widow of the late managing director of the now defunct Roxy Theatre, back to Switzerland next week to attend the graduation of her grandson, Danny Balaban Couture, from the International School.

Kenneth N. Whitlock, producer-actor member of the Prospect Park Summer Theatre Committee received Brooklyn Jr. Chamber of Commerce's distinguished service award last Wed. (15). Guests included Dina Merrill, Margot Moser, Ossie Davis and Joseph Papp.

Iris (Mrs. Ferris) Hartman back to Paris after attending the funeral of her vaudevillian-father Frank Burt. Ferris (better known as Ted) Hartman is the ex-Broadway p.a. now columnizing from his Paris base for the Frisco Chronicle and other papers. He's the younger brother of dancer Paul Hartman.

Tom Curtiss quickies back to the Cannes Film Festival early next week following 10 days' visit on personal business, seeing shows, etc., and huddling with Coward-McCann on the George Jean Nathan biography which the N. Y. Herald Tribune (Paris edition) entertainment editor has just about completed.

Ira D. Beck, ex-Columbia Pictures (Venezuela) and ex-UA-TV (Mexico City), now v.p. of the Mexico Section of the International Advertising Assn., is currently in New York to pitch for the 16th annual World Congress to be held in Mexico City in 1966. The Waldorf in June is the '64 site and Paris in '65 has been scheduled for the p.r.-admen's organization.

Waldorf toppers Frank G. Wangeman, Thomas J. Kane and Fio Dell Agnese cohosted a pre-Fair champagne party Monday night "to meet Jingabo, 'The Dog Who Lives At The Waldorf,'" which is fictionalized canine caper by James Brough which Little, Brown is publishing. It's based on the real-life saga of literary agent Rosalind (Mrs. Carlton) Cole who lives with her dog at the Waldorf.

Brandeis' Univ.'s 8th annual Creative Arts Awards dinner at the Waldorf May 26, chairmaned by Louis Kronenberger and to be presented by Leonard Bernstein, will honor Vladimir Nabokov and Richard Yates in fiction; Carl Ruggles and Don Martino, music; David Smith and Peter Agostini, sculpture; Cheryl Crawford and Jack Richardson in theatre. The notable achievement award goes to R. Buckminster Fuller.

The Gallery of Modern Art, at Columbus Circle, better known as the Huntington Hartford Museum, will be the scene April 28 of a $75-$50-$25-$15 charity bash for the Manfred Sakel Foundation. Pre-Raphael art, the HH collection, the sculpture of Antoine Bourdette and dedication of the Aeolian Skinner pipe organ will be part of the fete, at which some of Leonard Sillman's "New Faces" and alumni will also entertainment at the champagne party.

Col. Serge Obolensky, vet hotelier, now heads a public relations outfit bearing his name, with publisher-son Ivan Obolensky as veepee. He's back headquartered at the Hotel St. Regis of which he was onetime managing director when Vincent Astor, his brother-in-law, who built it, was the owner. Latter's estate since sold it to Mexico hotelier Cesar Balsa. Obolensky has Boston's Newsome & Co. as associates and vet p.r. Edward L. Bernays as consultant.

Paris

By Gene Moskowitz
(80 Ave Neuilly; SAB. 0712)

Francis Poulenc's "Dialogues Des CaCrmelites" a hit reprise at the state-run Opera-Comique.

Title change of Alain Delon starrer from "La Mort D'Un Loup" (Death of a Wolf) to "L'Insoumis" (The Unvanquished).

Modern Jazz Quartet getting out the jazz buffs for a successful one night concert at the big Theatre Des Champs Elysees this week.

Theatre of Nations, now on till July 10, had more than 835,000 spectators during its previous 10 seasons and this one is beginning well.

Author Jean Giono penning a script and will produce it with director Jacques Poitrenaud. It is about a boy and a dog.

Jeanne Moreau and Jean-Paul Belmondo teamed for their third pic via "Eel Under a Rock," a situlation comedy about a couple finding it hard to get a divorce.

In and out these days are Mamie Van Doren, Gene Barry, Elsa Martinelli, Yank singer Dionne Warwick, U.S. singing trio Peter, Paul & Mary, Joe Losey and others.

Top rock singer Johnny Hallyday fined $150 for hitting a 16-year old boy who booed his fiancee Sylvie Vartan, also a pop rock singer, at an appearance at the Olympia vauder.

Former U.S. vaude and nitery dancer - singer Mary McCord Thrasher, won a suit against a woman who charged her with causing an accident when pigeons she was feeding annoyed the woman who tried to kick them and bruised herself. Mrs. Thrasher felt the court understood her love for animals.

Las Vegas

By Forrest Duke
(Dudley 4-4141)

Jim Nabors visiting Kay Starr at Riviera.

Wendell Corey vacationing at the Dunes.

Milt Feiber, one of the original "Barbary Coast Boys," now at Esquire Lounge piano bar.

Johnny Desmond, starring in Riviera lounge, introduced Linda Boyd and Debbie Butler as part of his act.

Jackie Paris and Anne Marie Moss, current in T'bird lounge, inked for a summer session at Basin Street East.

Gene Baylos will work back-to-back with new edition of Frederic Apcar's "Vive Les Girls!" set for Dunes lounge May 20.

Yolanda White, 13, a click with her songs at the Flamingo, where she, Mickey Rooney, and Bobby Van subbed for the ailing Mitzi Gaynor.

Philadelphia

By Jerry Gaghan
(319 N. 18th St.; Locust 4-4848)

British songstress Dinah Lee in town, visiting friends.

Murray Roman, comic turned impressario, bringing Lenny Bruce into the Academy of Music (May 2).

The Piccoli Marionettes set to play the Anchorage, East River Drive spot, for a four day stand (24).

Nick Ryan, formerly of Drexelbrook, operating the Cynwyd Lounge in association with Carl H. Bender.

N. W. Ayer staffer Robert Lassen, and Joseph Oberman, city planning consultant, have formed the University City Film Guild to present pic classics.

London

(HYde Park 4561/2/3)

Brian Epstein and his press aide Tony Barrow off to New York at the end of the month.

Opening of Itinerama's first British mobile theatre, originally set for last Friday (17) postponed for a week.

Paramount managing director Russell Hadley hosted a lunch for the critics after the press screening of "Seven Days in May."

Carl Foreman returned from his two months' lecture trip to Israel at the weekend and immediately planed out to the Coast on a quickie visit.

Jessie Matthews, who last appeared in cabaret in 1932, opened a season at the Society on Monday (20). She is currently starring in a BBC radio series.

Freddie Carpenter off to Australia this week to stage "Never Too Late" and "Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum" for J. C. Williamson Theatres.

Appointment of Anthony B. Bray to the board of Columbia Pictures was announced last week by Mo Rothman. He has been secretary of the company since 1960.

Audrey Jeans, now playing a cabaret date at Hatchetts in Piccadilly, will be featured in the new Palladium revue, "Startime," in which Frankie Vaughan and Cilla Black top the cast.

The Duke of Edinburgh will be guest of honor at a special Variety Club luncheon on July 4. An earlier lunch, planned for March 10, was cancelled because of Court mourning for the late King of Greece.

Sir Winston Churchill was given a private screening of Jack Le Vien's "The Finest Hours," based on the British statesman's memoirs of the Second World War. Pic has a royal world preem at the Festival Hall next Wednesday (29).

Chicago

(DElaware 7-4^84)

Bernie Baker is handling production stage manager chores for the Ann Arbor (Mich.) drama fest this week.

Sun-Times drama critic Glenn Syse and her husband Norman, a WBBM Radio newsman, are touring England.

Foote, Cone & Belding public relations veep Al Weisman on a three week holiday in Spain, with spouse Annie.

Summer theatre impresario Herb Rogers in from San Francisco to set up Tenthouse in Highland Park for a June opening.

Balaban & Katz held a "beefcake" contest in front of the Roosevelt Theatre on Friday (17) to bally "Muscle Beach Party" which opened the same day there.

The 1964 Music Show exposition, slated for June 28-July 2 at McCormick Place, is adding an additional 6.000 square feet of display space for a last-minute rush of exhibitors.

The ice shows at the Boulevard Room in the Conrad Hilton hotel are being rescheduled so that the second show starts at midnight during May and June to accommodate the post-prom crowd.

Coast publicist (ex of Chi) Sam Hoenigberg back in the Windy City to steer Bob Newhard through a batch of public appearances. Newhart is also taping some lead-ins for WDHF, the FM station in which he has an interest.

B'way Jr.

By Walter Winchell

Dodgers Pressbox, L. A.: The Dodgers (and Angels) press chiefs assigned VARIETY's roving cub to the desq usually occupied by The Tidings, a religious blatt, until The N. Y. Journal-American masthead arrives.

Hi, there! Your Eminence Francis (Cardinal) Spellman and Archbishop F. J. Sheen. Please rush me a Yomilka!

L. A. Her-Exam's new sports ed (Mel. Durslag, lands in Satevepost and other nat'l mags regularly) suffered a collector's item typo. Reminiscing about ex-Dodgers star Jackie Robinson, Mel said Jackie resigned from national pastime to become veep at Chock Full O'Nuts. But a playful linotyper didn't jot it down that way. (Haw!)

Kay Stevens stars for steenth time at Slate Bros. Funny frail.

Frank Fanelli (he has a Lanza pair of pipes) is Crescendo clik. Henny Youngman heads the zingy bill with Mary Ford (formerly Les Paul and Mary Ford) and her brother and sister.

Enzo Stuarti (a lahntzman from Rome) paid his respects last night along with Vince Edwards (Dr. Ben Casey), another Italo from Brooklyn.

AP's man in Hollywood, James Bacon, home from hospital. "First time," he sighed (with a worried look), "I've ever been in one." Waiting result of tests.

F. Sinatra, Sr., informed by this FS. Jr. kidnap-trial observer, that U. S. Judge William G. East, had a new stereo (and was an FS fan), rushed every album he's made to His Honor at Portland, Ore.

Roberta Sherwood's app at our birthday poddy (flang by L. A. opposition newspeople) got her booked at Cocogrove in Oct. Ambassador mgr.

Fred Hayman (carrying Triffic Torch) joined her long list of swooners.

P. Salinger rushed from Demo. rally at Pasadena (Sateve) to Friars, where Roberta was second femme the famed club honored. Soph. Tucker was first.

Pierre got big hand at Dodgers' opener. Guest of Wm. Morris Agency execs. If ex-White House press potentate isn't elected Senator from Cal., he could pinch-hit for Berle, Kaye, Carter, et al at Vegas, etc. Salinger's sallies at rallies for first 5 minutes are bellyhowls.

Dorothy Malone's "Peyton Place" tv series (20th) almost sold out to sponsors. One more and she gets signed.

Marusia's Peppermint West twist spot is twistier than anything back east.

A gal named Louis Louis and the Deke and his Deacons Band blow the roof off the joint every night.

Tony Bennett current Grove hit. Isn't he everywhere?

Freddy Martin's Grove crew does the Santa Monica hit during hot spell. Ambass. hotel promoted him to booker of all shows. His son is Capitol's man for Beatle platters. Ex-Newsweek staffer.

Oscarcamedy Awards event best we've witnessed. Santa Monica Civic Aud easier to reach (no traffic snarls) than when event was staged at Pantages Theatre, H'wood. Only unhappy incident at dignified affair: Howard Ballew (easygoing guy fotog for Herald-Exam) was punched around by officious Keystone-type copper and flung into paddywagon. All news media here hope to return the compliment one day.

Sheriff Peter Pitchess (ex-FBIgent) promised probe of involved deputies, who belted out several reporters, radio-tv staffers and cameramen assigned to cover dispossess of ex-Marine hero. He used shotgun-threat for many weeks against Pitchess sleuths. Two of whom romanced for two weeks as "former Marines, who wanted to help him," etc. After highest court voted against him (and for eviction) they arrested him. But not until he knocked both cold.

"Bud" Lewis (70), Mr. Big at Her-Exam, in hosp. Maj. Surj. Most popular ed in town.

WW's new tv series (planned and stalled by 20th) may wind up at Lew Wasserman's Universal City. Busiest studio in Girlsville. Big "meet" yesterday.

Logic'd: Wasserman: "Why do it for Fox-Movietone's 93 million ft. of history? Universal Newsreel has 193 million!"

If deal closed we'll invite artful authors Mal Wald and Jesse Sandler ("Some Naked City" and other tv pets) from 20th to write our series based on "Inside Stories I Never Made Public."

Loud laugh in Her-Exam city-room when One-Guess moaned: "Wotinell's that ass't m.e. trying to do to my col'm?"

"He's trying," shouted a staffer, "to make some sense out of it!"

Dayton

By Brainard Platt
(AX 3-6224)

Virginia Wing is finishing the second week of a two-week engagement at Annarino's.

Victor Borge in for a concert at Memorial hall and the Four Saints headlined a show at Colonel White high school.

The Coronado's & Rico at Suttmiller's, replacing the ailing Helen Traubel who concelled out here for the second time.

Brother Dave Gardner did a one-nighter at Memorial hall, and Peter Nero returns to the same theatre for a single concert.

Hollywood

Dr. Lee E. Siegel named medical director of 20th-Fox Studios.

Norman Jewison back from Paris testing for Universal's "Art of Love."

Anna Maria Alberghetti returns to Harrah's, Tahoe, Sept. 24 for three frames.

Ronald Stein completed title song for Gurney production, "It's Warm, Ma Cherie."

Joe Vleck becomes field relations director of National General Corp.'s pub-ad dept.

Virginia Martindale named casting director for Don Fedderson's "My Three Sons" teleseries.

Peter Duryea, 24-year-old son of Dan Duryea, makes his feature film bow with father in U's "Taggart."

George Weiss-Joe Sherman songwriting team inked non-exclusive disk pact with Colpix Records.

Bob Sinclair, comptroller of Don Fedderson Productions, in Queen of Angels Hospital with slight stroke suffered Friday (17).

Len Weinrib replaced Louis Quinn in "Kiss Me, Kate" Civic Light Opera engagement which opened Monday at Philharmonic.

Wendell Niles Jr., son of vet radio-tv announcer, veepee in charge of new Beverly Hills office of Vincent Andrews Inc., biz management.

Charles Maguire, associate producer on Robert Wise' 20th-Fox production, "The Sand Pebbles," on month tour of Far East to scout locations and complete production arrangements.

The memorial foundation, recently-established in honor of the late theatrical attorney, Robert Rockmore, is giving its first $1,000 grant to the Concert Artists Guild for its "outstanding work in supporting young artists."

The San Francisco firm of Freeman & Gossage Inc., which was in the advertising news last week because of its resignation of the American Petrofina (Dallas) account, has as one of its partners Howard L. Gossage, husband of actress Sally Kemp Gossage (daughter of late bandleader Hal Kemp) who's appearing off-Broadway in the English version of "Life Is a Dream."

Rome

By Robert F. Hawkins
(Sardegna, 43; Tel. 479316)

Olga Chart set up talentry office off Via Veneto.

Catherin Spaak off to Coast for visit and pic talks.

Silvie Vartan, French songstress, in town for recording sesh.

Sidney Lazard, whose been here some weeks, officially named Bureau Chief for ABC News.

William McAndrew, exec veep for NBC News, here for talks with NBC Mediterranean topper Irving Levine.

Lee Kamern poured for new bride, Silvia, in his Via Cassia home, with most of Rome's pic top brass present.

Charlie Beal wound stint on Via Veneto Carpano Tavern, switched to new Burgundy Room at Hotel Savoy.

Rome authorities setting up $250 song contest open this year to items in foreign language, to be heard in Rome summer festival, July 18-20.

"Marriage, Italian Style" sneaked in some opening shots at Naples Agnano race track during running of National Championship. Marcello Mastroianni in front of camera, Vittorio De Sica behind.

Boston

By Guy Livingston
(508 Little Bldg.; LI 2-5095)

Walter Lippman delivers commencement address at B.U.

Bob Abrams redoing the Black Angus near Wilbur for shows.

Colonial Theatre manager Saul Kaplan's brother, Abe, on sick list.

Bookings for Donnelly Memorial Theatre are being accepted tentatively for next fall.

Ben Sack did the radio q. & a. bit with Heywood Vincent on WNAC discussing the motion picture exhibition biz.

Stan and Mel Davis, Davis Film Distribs, guested on Mike Erlich's WMEX show discussing foreign art films.

Betty Field playing Amanda Wingate in the Charles Playhouse production of Tennessee Williams' "Glass Menagerie."

RCA Building's Debut

Continued from page 2

pies the first six floors on a 35-year lease.

"Sunset Blvd. then ran only to Cahuenga, a short block west, and a little streetcar tottered out from downtown Los Angeles and turned north on Cahuenga over Cahuenga Pass to the Valley," Muller reflected in rekindling early childhood memories.

"My father had horses and cows and we pastured them where Hollywood Blvd. and Vine Street now meet. There was a little wood-burner train running once a day on Santa Monica Blvd., from downtown to Santa Monica. The town gave Santa Monica Blvd. its name, and I remember we got a thrill watching this pass when my brother and I would go down to see it."

The area belonged to families prominent in early Los Angeles history, such as the Tafts, the Bakers, Gowers and Harper. H. J. Whitley was another resident, who later became a big Hollywood subdivider and brought the carline out Hollywood Blvd. and built the old Hollywood Hotel. He put in such streets as Whitley Ave., Wilcox, Cherokee, Las Palmas and other north-south avenues, and Whitley Heights, which once was peopled by such early film names as J. Warren Kerrigan, Robert G. Vignola, the director, John Roche and many others, was named for him.

Muller pere operated his butcher shop until 1912, and the following year his two sons each put in $1,000 and opened a hay and grain business on the site, where today RCA now has three recording studios, two of them the company's largest in the U.S.

"In two years we made $30,000," Muller recalls. 'We put it in the bank and enlisted in the Air Corps in 1915, where we remained for three years."

Out of uniform, Frank and his brother started the service station in 1920 directly opposite the old butchershop and their own former hay-and-grain business, which the father tore down after they went into service and built a number of stores. Various structures occupied the site until Muller last summer razed all buildings and started constuction of the new RCA Bldg., which has its own parking area, both on a terrace above two of the 25-foot-recording studios and extending entirely around the building, and on three closed levels at the rear.

Building is only a long stone's throw from where Hollywood had its beginning as a motion picture centre. Jesse L. Lasky, Cecil B. DeMille and Samuel Goldwyn made the first Hollywood feature "The Squawman," starring Dustin Farnum, in 1913 at their studio on Vine Street, in the block where the former NBC studios — and where RCA headquartered until it moved April 1 to its new building —stands at Vine and Sunset. The studio — originally known as the Jesse L. Lasky Feature Play Co., later to become Famous Players-Lasky and finally Paramount before this major moved to its present location—frequently patronized the two Muller brothers' hay-and-grain biz. Later, when Muller Bros. service station was in operation the studio's stars made it their automobile headquarters.

"That's where we made our money," Muller reminisces. "They all came to us, Fatty Arbuckle, Wally Reid, Gloria Swanson, Tommy Meighan, Buster Collier, Pola Negri, Valentino, every star and player on the Famous lot. We were the first car wash in the U.S. —now there are more than 10,000 —and from association with show business we made showmanship pay off. Once when a circus was in town we had half a dozen elephants go through our wash, and received all sorts of publicity. When business was going good, we had colored boys on skates going from car to car wiping windshields and windows.

"There was a time when 100 men started to picket us for one of the unions. We served them refreshments, hired Florentine Gardens girls in scanty attire to pass along with trays of beer and sandwiches. We had signs made— 'Please drive carefully—we love our pickets.' When it got cold, we put up a tent which we named Picket Heaven, and had plenty of sandwiches and other refreshments.

"You should have seen the newspaper space we got, all over the country. Even the Christian Science Monitor gave us a half-page of text and pictures. They said it was a new slant on friendliness instead of hatred, at what the pickets were trying to do. We doubled our business, in the six months we were picketed. The pickets were very friendly, and when trucks delivering gas came in, driven by union men who otherwise wouldn't have crossed a picket line, the pickets conveniently ducked out so there wouldn't be a picket line to cross."

Valentino, Muller remembers, spent almost as much time on the Muller Bros. lot, which embraced an entire block, as he did at the studio down the street. "He'd put on coveralls and do his own grease work on a Fiat he'd picked up cheap. Tom Mix, too, liked to tinker around his cars, and so did Gary Cooper, who then was just starting his career."

Site of the Muller Bros. block was to have been part of a huge building complex when Muller sold it several years ago, but coin wasn't forthcoming as planned by the new owners and it evenutally was taken over by Pacific Drive-In Theatres, which opened the domed Cinerama Theatre last November with Stanley Kramer's "Mad, Mad, Mad, Mad World." Balance of property, extending southward to De Longpre Ave., from the theatre west of Ivar, and east to Morningside Ct., is devoted entirely to parking.

With plans already in the thinking stage for the arena to become a multi-block complex, Beverly Hills financier Howard Ahmenson is planning a high-rise complex on site of the old NBC station at Sunset and Vine, the new RCA Bldg. may be regarded as the flagship of the project. RCA spent months in equipping structure with the latest Dynagroove equipment, which will make the three studios among the most modern in the world.

Two of the studios, tastefully decorated in fawn and white, are three stories high, 75 feet in length and 50 feet wide. The third, considerably smaller, is around 18 feet in heighth, 30 feet long and 27 feet wide. Each has a booth with appropriate equipment and seats for viewers.

The upper three floors are devoted to office space, where such departments as Coast a.&r.; custom sales; publicity; magnetic tape, sales and engineering are quartered. John K. West, staff veepee of western distribution and commercial relations, also makes his headquarters here.

On the technical side, there are two mastering and editing rooms, one test room, electronic shop and master tape storage room. Additionally, various other RCA operations include the broadcast and commerical products; electronic data processing; tube sales.

Veit Harlan

Continued from page 2

wouldn't look good" to be seen with the director. Strangely enough, many Jewish people shook hands with him.

Harlan somehow qualified as "scapegoat." A Berlin paper ended its obituary with "many should stand ashamed at his grave." (The novel from which the film "Jew Suess" was derived was not anti-Semitic, it should be recalled.)

Harlan himself once told this writer: "I have no intention to whitewash myself. I have done wrong in many respects. I also understand the Jewish people. They have a right to hate me: If I were a Jew, I would do the same. But one thing I want to clear, no matter if people believe me or not, I have never, never personally been an anti-Semite."

Harlan declared then he could name lots of well-known persons who would confirm this. "You see, the court has cleared me," he said in 1957, "But apparently many people prefer believing what my opponents say. They would change their mind if they go deeper into my matter. But, of course, why should they?"

Of "Jew Suess" Harlan often asserted that he had no choice. His efforts to avoid the embarrassing assignment were aborted by the Nazi propoganda command. True, he knew that his career would come to an end in Hitler Germany had he given a man like Goebbels the brushoff. Cameraman Bruno Mondi who worked with Harlan said in later years: "I never met a director who understood his trade perfectly. The Nazis insisted on making Harlan their star director and Harlan gave in."

Harlan's "I have never been an anti-Semite" words can hardly be offered straight-faced to the former inmates of Dachau and Auschwitz. Yet Harlan stuck to this claim until his last day. Yet extended trial of such anti-Semitic charges against him did not prove them.

Harlan said: "I have got my acting training from Max Reinhardt who was a Jew. My first wife, Dora Gerson, was Jewish. I have never been a member of the Nazi Party or any of its organizations. When the court dedicated itself to my case, 85 witnesses showed up. The case went on for eight weeks and I had to testify up to eight hours a day. At this occasion, it became evident that I had never made any anti-Semitic remark. Also Jewish witnesses spoke in favor of me. A prominent actor such as Paul Henskels who has a Jewish wife and who also had to suffer under the Nazi regime, stood up for me."

Despite the fact that Harlan directed "Jew Suess" for Goebbels, he was never in good grace with the latter. Whenever he traveled with his wife, Kristina Soederbaum, a Swedish-born actress who appeared in all Harlan pix of the late 30s and early 40s, Goebbels kept one of their children as a hostage. Goebbels also said once to Harlan: "I can smash you like a bug on the wall."

Harlan admitted that he could have risked more in the early Forties, possibly also his life. But he put the question: "How many of my opponents today had the courage to resist the Hitler regime even to the extent I actually did? Many of the current German writers who now attack me were once deeply connected with the Nazi regime."

Kristina Soederbaum occasionally revealed that attacks stemming from the fact that she is the wife of Harlan were still continuing against her. In 1957, it was called an "open scandal" in the German press that she attended a theatrical performance of "Diary of Anne Frank" in Munich. On one occasion, someone spit in her face. Once she and her husband were invited for the opening of a picture, but this invitation turned out to be a trap and they were whistled out of the cinema. She said: "I would understand if these attacks came from Jewish people or other victims of the Nazi regime. It may sound strange but our biggest opponents today are Germans who actually liked it quite well under Hitler."

Harlan was born Sept. 22, 1899, in Berlin. His real name was Veit Stoss. His father, who called himself Walter Harlan, was a writer.

His second wife was Hilde Koerber, an actress, from whom he divorced in the thirties to marry young Kristina Soederbaum. Although Miss Koerber was deserted by Harlan, she kept calling her former husband's fate "unjust" in view of the circumstances. Both Hilde Koerber and Kristina Soederbaum gave birth to three children each by Harlan.

Brit. Films' Rock Beat

Continued from page 1

host of local popsters—Freddie & The Dreamers, The Bachelors, The Merseybeats, Peter & Gordon, among other, is expected to be ready for general release this summer.

Among the projected pix is another beat project from Harold Shampan, chieftain of Rank's music publishing subsidiary, Filmusic. Shampan's latest feature is to be called "It's All Go" and is set to roll in July with pop names like The Animals, The Zephyrs, Manfred Mann group, The Aces, The Showtimers and several others. Like Shampan's previous pop project, "Live It Up," his newie will be distributed by Rank.

Brian Epstein, manager of The Beatles and several other click waxers, makes his bow as film producer shortly with a project entitled "Ferry Across The Mersey" in which he will star Gerry Marsden and the Pacemakers, Epstein-managed diskers with a string of hits behind them. Ua is expected to distribute.

Upcoming from Grand National is a Ronald Kahn production, "Every Day's a Holiday," which features Mike Sarne, John Leyton, Freddie & The Dreamers, Baker Twins, among others. Maurice Wilson is executive producer.

Anglo-Amalgamated is preparing to make a color pic of "The Dave Clark Story," with the click London popster who has made it big on both sides of the Atlantic starring. Shooting, to be carried out mainly on location, is expected to start in October.

Among other local beat performers, who are currently being mentioned in connection with upcoming film deals (none of which are firm yet), are The Searchers (who appeared in "Saturday Night Out"), Billy J. Kramer (another Epstein property), Mark Wynter, Frank Ifield and The Rolling Stones.

Poitier's Oscar

Continued from page 1

booked solid for the next five weeks, in fact, and the post-Oscar engagements being played are running 400-500% of what the pic did pre-Oscar. All bookings are first-run, in some cases repeat bookings of playdates the pic had its first time around. This includes the south where prior exhibs are replaying it and others who showed resistance are booking.

The point seems to be that this year the "best actor" award was as good as "best picture" from a patron-drawing point of view. UA's "Tom Jones," which copped the best pic Oscar, of course is continuing its smash biz. But "Lilies," with the racial overtones of Poitier's victory and other aspects of the actor's winning, has been skyrocketing ahead of its past performances and now looks like a substantial winner for UA.

Another re-issue showing what Oscar can mean is "Hud," which Paramount has had in and out of circulation several times since it was first released. Patricia Neal and Melvyn Douglas won "best actress" and "best supporting actor" awards respectively and the pic also copped the "best black and white cinematography" nod. Paramount has 400 prints of the pic all working successfully throughout the country.

Embassy isn't ignoring its chances with "8½," the "best foreign pic" chosen by the Academy. It is playing around Gotham in 44 theatres currently and is also spread in key areas across the country. In Gotham, it is being paired with the 1963 foreign Oscar winner, "Divorce—Italian Style" for added Academy appeal.

Actor Tells Press Off

Sidney Poitier, who has always asked that he be judged on the basis of being an actor and not a Negro actor, made his strongest pitch on Monday (20) for recognition on accomplishment alone and not on the basis of race or color.

Mild flareup came at the office of New York's Mayor Robert F. Wagner who awarded him the Handel Medal described as the highest award the city can bestow in the cultural field. Last week's winner of the Academy Award for acting, following the ceremonies, was repeatedly questioned on civil rights. Poitier exploded with, "Why don't you ask me human questions? Why is it everything you guys ask refers to the Negroness of my life and not to my acting?"

After the flareup, Poitier told the reporters that he meant no offense and refused to answer any more queries.

Duchess' 'MFL' Pitch

Continued from page 1

even though the Criterion (hard-ticket) preem isn't until the fall.

Incidentally, Warners' Ben Kalmenson is selling "MFL" on "Cleopatra" terms—pork-on-the-barrel in advance. Charlie Moss is said to have laid the same $1,250,000 advance on the line for the Broadway run.

Probably no pic preem has been given the same socialite window-dressing. Philippe's honorary co-chairmen are the Duchess and Princess Grace of Monaco. Mrs. Winston F.C. Guest, Mrs. Herbert Scheftel and Mrs. William S. Paley are the general chairmen.

Besides the Will Rogers Hospital, the O'Donnell Memorial Research Laboratories at Saranac Lake, N.Y., will be cobeneficiary.

Literati

More on MacArthur

One footnote to the controversial "secret" interviews 10 years ago with the late General Douglas MacArthur, which got wide publicity and denied, has Bob Considine rushing a 50c paperback simply titled "General Douglas MacArthur" for immediate publication by Fawcett. Scripps-Howard's Jim Lucas was the other byliner who broke a sensational postmortem "secret" interview. Both got heated denials from military and governmental brass.

Meantime Life has announced it will publish the general's memoirs postmortem for which it had contracted McGraw-Hill later will put them out in book form. Edward Thompson, editor of Life, states MacArthur wrote his saga in longhand and it had been completed shortly before his death.

Oscar Levant's Tell-All

Composer-pianist-humorist Oscar Levant's personal saga has been contracted by Putnam's. He calls it "Duet for Three Heads" and will detail his experiences with psychiatry, neurosis and related themes along with a "memory book" reprise of intimate anecdota pertaining to names in the world of music, films, legit and broadcasting. It's primed for 1965 publication.

Another humorist, Art Buchwald, has signed a 10-year contract with Putnam's for five books within that period. Buchwald was long at World Pub Co.

Judy Ann Mason, daughter of Ridge Press prexy Jerry Mason, engaged to Frederic Underhill, due to graduate from Boston U. which the September bride-to-be also attended.

Luce Gives Himself A Cut

Henry R. Luce has stepped down as editor-in-chief of Time to take the title of editorial chairman. With his 16.2% stock interest he remains the controlling stockholder. To succeed him, he has named Hedley W. Donovan, managing editor of Fortune.

Other company publications are Time, Life, Sports Illustrated, House & Home, Architectural Forum.

CHATTER

April luncheon of the Publishers' Publicity Assn. has been postponed from the 9th to the 30th to accommodate two name guests, "Suzy Knickerbocker" (Arleen Mehle), the N.Y. Journal-American syndicated society columnist, and Chi Sun-Times columnist Irv Kupcinet, both of whom will speak on "placing publicity items in columns." McGraw-Hill's Sonia Levinthal is prez of the PPA.

Award Books (Universal Pub.) reviving "Nick Carter" series but in the new guise of America's No. 1 counter-espionage agent. He will be known as "Killmaster" in the "Axe" organization which reports only to the National Security Council, the Secretary of Defense and the President of the U.S. New series is primed as "America's answer to Ian Fleming's 'James Bond." "Run Spy, Run" is first of the series.

Gem Pub. Co., which bills itself as "the fun division of Jordan-Edwards," Upper Darby, Pa., has produced a new edition of "Cool Cards" (kookie slogans), as sequel to its bestselling "The Big Wigs." Joe Segel is editor of Gem Books.

Dorland Publishing Corp. chartered to conduct business in New York. Schwartz & Frohlich were filing attorneys at Albany.

Carlo Maria Flumiani of Gloucester, Mass., working on a biog of Amadeo Peter Giannini (1870-1949), the Bank of America topper who figured largely in pioneer Hollywood film financing.

"Bachelors' Apartment," by New York playwright Richard Reich, recently closed at the Teatro Nuevo Florida, Buenos Aires, after 320 performances. Production is scheduled for West End, London, by Tom Arnold.

$1600 CONTEST
for WRITERS
OF UNPUBLISHED MANUSCRIPTS
Send for contest rules and free Brochure on publishing your book. In case of tie, duplicate prizes awarded. Dept. VA
Pageant Press, 101 Fifth Ave. N. Y. 3

OBITUARIES

BEN HECHT

Ben Hecht, 70, newspaperman, dramatist, novelist and propagandist, died April 18 in his New York apartment of a thrombosis. Emergency oxygen treatment failed to revive him.

Hecht's writing credits were formidable, something like 65 screenplays, 20 stage plays, 25 novels and other books, short stories and magazine pieces numbering in the hundreds. His most memorable Broadway achievement was in collaboration with the late Charles MacArthur, the hit play of the Chicago criminal court, "The Front Page".

Marked by a flair for iconoclasm and an angry partisanship, Hecht's polemics for Israel made him at one point personna non grata in Great Britain. He had attempted in 1940 to do something about rescuing the Jews doomed to extermination by Hitler, a detail his wife recently recalled in connection with all the pros and cons as to whether the Jews themselves had done much to save themselves. This issue has arisen in the wake of the debate over Rolf Hochhuth's current play, "The Deputy".

Hecht was strictly a money writer and ran his film salary up to a reputed $6,000 a week on one contract. His work was uneven in quality, some of it obviously hurried though he spoke much of rewriting as the torment of writers. Gregarious and sardonic, Hecht proved also a fiercely parental sire of a young daughter, Jennie, whose launching as a child actress was marked by abrasive incidents in which papa played a dominant role.

From his start on the Chicago Journal in 1910 to his 1954 autobiography, "A Child Of The Century," and miscellaneous recent writings, Hecht was one of the vivid figures of his times, his quarrels and of show business. One of his explosive bombs was against Hollywood, circa 1940.

Hecht, in collaboration with NBC tv producer Ted Yates, had completed final revisions on a musical, "Chicago," for which he had also written the lyrics to Don Costa's score. Production rights have been acquired by scenic designer Sean Kenny and Coast tv-producer-publicist Judd Bernard. This was confirmed Sunday (19) by Mrs. Hecht who also said that Peter Brook had been set to direct. Tentative schedule is for next season with the tryout run start in Chicago. "Chicago" deals with 1920s and central character is based on slain racketeer Dion O'Banion.

George Jessel, an old friend of Hecht, interrupted his engagement at the Hilton, Dallas, to fly in and deliver the eulogy yesterday at the Synagogue and flew back in time for the night show.

His last public appearance, last Wednesday (15) at a Garden City (L.I.) book-and-author luncheon, was typically Hechtian. The writer was described by a fellow speaker as Hecht at "his prankish, Puckish best." His comments were longer and stronger than fellow lecturers Robert Downing and Jean Dalrymple. Reception was mixed, but no hasty exits were reported.

SAMUEL N. BURGER

Samuel N. Burger, 73, former foreign sales manager for Loew's International, died April 20 in New York. A nephew of Nicholas M. Schenck, he started in the film business in 1921 as a salesman for First National, switching to Paramount in 1923.

He joined the sales dept. of MGM in 1924, and with the exception of a couple of years remained with the company for the rest of his career. In 1927 Burger was made MGM eastern sales manager. Three years later he joined Loew's International as a special sales representative. He entered the Latin American department in 1940, and five years later was made regional director of Latin American sales. He was made general sales manager, Loew's International, in 1947.

Burger resigned from Loew's in 1957, and the next year joined 20th-Fox's sales dept. In 1960 he returned to Loew's on a special sales basis handling reissues for the Asian-African market.

Surviving are his wife, daughter and three sisters.

WILLIAM S. ZIMMERMAN

William S. Zimmerman, 49, Embassy Pictures v.p.-production supervisor, died April 14 at Mt. Sinai Hospital in New York. A Phi Beta Kappa man from New York U., he started his film career with Metro International in 1935, following his graduation.

Zimmerman started as a dialog title writer and became head of the title writing department at Metro in 1936. Three years later he was made head of Metro's New York production department. From 1942 to 1945 he served with the U.S. Army Signal Corps, during which time he specialized in cryptography and training film production. Following his discharge, he picked up his post again as MGM Gotham production head. In 1947 he was also named head of the company's eastern play and talent department.

He joined Embassy in June of 1963. His work for the company involved the development of story properties and the acquisition of same. He was also deeply involved in all production aspects of several pix under production by Embassy and supervised the English dubbing of foreign product, at which he was considered an expert.

His interests were wide including literature and Shakespeare. He was also a former tournament tennis champ. Surviving are his widow, two children, his mother and a sister.

In Loving Memory

BELLE BAKER

April 28, 1957

ROY CHANSLOR

Roy Chanslor, 64, former N. Y. newspaperman and author of more than 50 screenplays, died of a heart ailment in Encino, Cal., April 16. Prior to going to Hollywood in 1931 as a scripter, he worked with Ed Sullivan, then sports editor, on the Leader in N. Y., and after a stint in Washington, D. C., with the United Press, was a staffer on the N. Y. News, then the Post, where he was assistant literary editor.

A play, "Tabloid," which he wrote in collaboration with Harry Paynter while on the Post, attracted the attention of Hollywood and was responsible for his going to the Coast to write. His first assignment was "Shanghaied Love," for Columbia Pictures. Most of his writing was at Warner Bros., one of his top efforts here being Mervyn LeRoy's "Hi, Nellie," starring Paul Muni.

Turning to novel writing, Paramount produced his "Hazard," and Republic "Johnny Guitar," starring Joan Crawford. In later years he wrote for tv.

Surviving is his widow, Elaine.

HAROLD SCOTT

Harold Scott, 73, actor, died April 15 in London. He was playing a brief role in the Rex Harrison film, "The Yellow Rolls Royce," at the time of his death.

He made his first stage appearance in "The Merchant of Venice" at London's Court Theatre in 1919 and from then on was continuously active on stage, radio, tv and films. Two of his more recent stage appearances were as Professor Gay in dramatization of C. P. Snow's "The Affair" and "The Masters."

He also recently appeared for the BBC in the "Dixon of Dock Green" series and the "Martin Chuzzlewit" serial. His work ranged from Shakespeare to modern parts.

Scott was associated with Elsa Lanchester for seven years in "The Cave of Harmony" shows and also with "Late Joys" at the Player's. He had a role in "Pride and Prejudice" at the Music Box, N.Y., in 1935 and in "Murder at the Cathedral" at the Ritz, N.Y., in 1938.

JOHN MANUTI

John Manuti, 79, veteran longhair tuba player and father of Al Manuti, president of the Local 802, N.Y., American Federations of Musicians, died in New York April 18. He had worked at one time in the Metropolitan Opera orchestra and the N.Y. Philharmonic. During this time, he was an exec board member of Local 802.

He is survived by two sons, two daughters and one grandson.

ALFRED DIXON

Alfred Dixon, 53, who died recently, was a famed show biz unknown in that his "science of speech" was widely consulted by many famed names. Russel Crouse, who delivered the eulogy at a private service, and Dorothy Stickney, who read favorite selections, reviewed the Dixon diction contributions.

Dixon was involved in at least 300 Broadway productions and Hollywood films. He was frequently called upon to help performers who had lost their voices because of strain, to eliminate faulty speech habits, or to teach voice characterization, etc. He taught 58 dialects and accents. An American, Dixon tutored Julie Andrews, a Briton, on how to speak cockney in "My Fair Lady." A film clip in the Archives of the Museum of Modern Art has recorded this procedure.

Katherine Hepburn was taught a Russian accent, Vivien Leigh a Continental accent, Charles Boyer was helped in overcoming his French accent. Dixon's last picture assignment was with the filming of "The Cardinal."

Some of the players who worked with Dixon included Mary Martin, Noel Coward, Cornelia Otis Skinner, Rex Harrison, Rita Hayworth, Joseph Cotten, Anthony Quinn, Kirk Douglas, Audrey Hepburn.

Much of his time was devoted to the Alfred Dixon Speech Center on West 56th St., N.Y.C., a nonprofit organization which has the support of such alumni as Katharine Cornell, Mary Martin, Katherine Hepburn, Robert Ryan, Joseph Cotten and Bernard Baruch Jr.

His widow is carrying on his work.

DAVID H. ELTON

David H. Elton, 55, pioneer broadcaster and advertising agency executive, died April 17th in New York.

Elton began his career in Salt Lake City in the early 1930s as an announcer and station manager. He joined N.B.C. in San Francisco in 1934 and became well known to Pacific Coast audiences as the voice of the Standard Symphony and for his work with Meredith Willson.

In 1938, he produced the Eddie Cantor and Alan Young programs. In 1942 he joined Young & Rubicam as a producer, and later as a radio and television account executive on the Borden account. He left Y&R in 1960 to become an independent consultant.

Surviving are a son and daughter.

JOHN J. HRUBY

John J. Hruby, 76, former bandmaster, instructor and a member of a noted musical family, died in Cleveland April 7 after a long illness. Up to 1930 he was trumpeter in Cleveland Symphony Orchestra. He also directed his own pit orchestra for stock companies at Colonial and Alhambra theatres.

John J. was one of the sons of the late Frank Hruby, conductor of Great Western Band and orchestra at old Cleveland Opera House. He and his brother, Fred, founded Hruby Conservatory of Music, whose staff of teachers later included their brothers, Alois, Frank and Charles and sister, Mrs. Mayme Kolda.

Surviving are his wife, son, two daughters and a brother.

AGNESE ROY

Agnese Roy Schlesinger, 69, former prima ballerina of the Albertina Rasch Ballet, died April 14 in New York. She was known professionally as Agnese Roy.

She was premiere danseuse of the Rasch troupe during the 1920s. She was also an assistant to Mme. Rasch, who is the wife of composer Dimitri Tiomkin and the sister of Miss Roy's husband Ferdinand G. Schlesinger. In the 1930s Miss Roy assumed the direction of the Rasch studio in N.Y. and at the New York's World's Fair of 1939-40 she was the producer of the Merrie England and New Orleans shows.

Her husband survives.

EARLE HODGINS

Earle Hodgins, 65, stage and screen actor who during past 10 years appeared in virtually all the top teleseries, died of a heart attack April 14 in Hollywood. He also worked on radio over his career which spanned more than 35 years.

Hodgins last film was Paramount's "The Man Who Shot Liberty Valance"; his latest vidseries, Desilu's "Guestward Ho." Some of his other series included "Mr. Ed," "Death Valley Days," "Cheyenne," "Rawhide" and "Gunsmoke."

His wife and son Gordon, an actor, survive.

CHARLES DORAN

Charles Doran, 87, actor, died April 5 in Folkestone, Eng. He made his stage debut in 1899 and later appeared with such legit names as Henry Irving, Mrs. Pat Campbell and Oscar Asche.

He formed his own Shakespearean company in 1920 and toured for nine years playing all the Bard's leading male roles. Later he directed Shakespeare plays in India. His last appearances in the West End were in "A Song of Norway" and "A Winter's Tale."

HERBERT S. MARSHALL

H.S. (Bert) Marshall, 69, film executive, died suddenly April 14 at Leeds, Eng. He was Paramount's branch manager there. He worked for Hibberts mutual Film Service, which was absorbed by Wardour Films, which, in turn, became Associated British.

Marshall joined Paramount as a salesman in 1928 and became Leeds branch manager in 1946. Survived by wife and daughter.

DAVID BOGART

David Bogart, 81, veteran actor and singer and for many years a staff member of the TV and radio "Original Amateur Hour," died April 7 in New York.

Bogart appeared in numerous Broadway legit productions including, the original "Ben Hur." A baritone, he also sang in the Metropolitan Opera chorus, and appeared in Gilbert & Sullivan productions.

ARTHUR C. YOEMAN

Arthur C. Yoeman, artist-husband of Samuel Goldwyn's exec secretary, Peggy Vaugh, died of a heart attack April 14 in Hollywood.

He has done research work for Orson Welles, was a past member of Los Angeles City Art Commission and prexy for three years of California Painters & Sculptors Club.

GEORGE K. POKINI JR.

George K. (for Kahelehookahi) Pokini Jr., 47, longtime Hawaiian musician, died April 13 in Honolulu. He was featured bass player with the Royal Hawaiian hotel's Surf Room group and at one time had his own combo. Until last year, he had been with another group, the Seaside Boys.

His wife survives.

JOE BARNES

Joe Barnes, 59, magician and children's entertainer, died March 28 in Southend, Eng. He was a Punch man, marionetteer, magician and entertainer for children.

With his son he ran "Children's Corner" at Southend for years and was known professionally as Uncle Joe.

ORIE O. ROBERTSON

Orie O. Robertson, 83, early-day cowboy actor and stuntman who launched his theatrical career in 1908 with a Los Angeles opera company, died of cancer in Hollywood, April 14. He became a film actor in 1920.

Brother and two sisters survive.

CEDRIC BAILEY

Cedric Bailey, manager and booker, died April 11 in Manchester, Eng. He was an ex-Moss' Empires manager.

Bailey later was a booker with Paul England and finally was general manager of the Manchester clubs.

EDWARD LYONS

Edward (Teddy) Lyons, 69, ex-film executive, died April 10 in Hove, Eng. Until his retirement 15 months ago, he was an executive of the Rank Organization equipment and furnishing division.

He also was joint managing director of GB-Kalee.

Mrs. Rose (Max E.) Prager, 82 cofounder of the CPA firm of Prager & Fenton, died April 15, in Rockville Center, L.I. Her late husband was former treasurer of United Artists and was instrumental in establishing accounting systems and procedures in the motion picture industry. Prager & Fenton also represented personalities such as George M. Cohan, Al Jolson, Irving Berlin, Bing Crosby, Frank Sinatra, Artie Shaw, Johnny Mathis, Guy Lombardo, Kingston Trio, the Harry Fox (music Publishers' trustee) office, National Music Council, Warner Bros. music companies, Bourne, and also certifies the gold record awards of the Recording Industry Assn. of America.

James Tabner, father of John W. Tabner, legislative representative for the N. Y. State Broadcasters Assn., died April 18 at his home in Latham, N. Y.

MARRIAGES

Vicki Haserna to Joe Brown, Liverpool, Eng., Dec. 10, '63 (just revealed). Bride is a member of The Breakaways group; he's the star of The Bruvvers Group.

Rovena Cooper to Terrence Hardiman, Bristol, Eng., April 2. Both are in the Bristol Old Vic company.

Anne Avil to Jules Arbose, England, April 18. Bride is in Pye Records' publicity department; he's an American journalist.

Janet Scully to Howard Hodgkins, April 16, New York. She's with BBD&O agency; he's commentator on ABC-radio's "Flair Reports."

Valerie Reichman to Everett Aspinwall, Purchase, N. Y., April 18. Bride is former secretary to Ron Cochran in N.Y.; he's ABC-TV bureau chief in Chicago.

Barbara Velasco to Bob Piccirillo, Miami Beach, April 18. Bride is a singer; he's her accompanist-drummer.

Dolores Luthje to Joe Turnbull, April 11, Chicago. Groom is manager of the Michael Todd Theatre there.

Veronica Bravo to Gerald Widoff, New York, April 11. Bride is dancer on NBC's "Sing Along With Mitch."

BIRTHS

Mr. and Mrs. David Johnson, son, London, April 11. Mother is actress Jean Bayless.

Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Bricusse, son, London, April 10. Father is the composer; mother is actress Yvonne Romaine.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Grossberg, son, New York, April 15. Mother is Anita Zang, formerly assistant to David Susskind.

Mr. and Mrs. Russell Alquist, son, London, April 15. Father is an American songwriter; mother is Juliet Mills, actress-daughter of John Mills and sister of Hayley.

Mr. and Mrs. Michael Williams, daughter, London, April 9. Father is a writer; mother is actress Faynia Brandis.

Mr. and Mrs. David Kurtz, son, Philadelphia, April 4. Father is owner of WDVR (FM), that city.

Mr. and Mrs. Buz Kohan, twin boys, April 16. Father is on writing staff of the Perry Como telecasts.

Mr. and Mrs. Moose Charlap, daughter, April 14. Father is composer, mother a former member of the Perry Como TV family and recording star.

Mr. and Mrs. Mort Hock, son, April 12, New York. Father is United Artists ad manager.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Reichman, son, Dallas, April 15. Father is a bandleader; mother is a singer and tv actress.

Mr. and Mrs. Art Roberts, son, Chicago, April 14. Father is a WLS deejay there.

Mr. and Mrs. Dean Lewis, daughter, Columbus, O., April 9. Father is disk jockey at WBNS.

Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas Benton, daughter, New York, April 12. Father, a former off-Broadway producer, is now an exec with Time Inc.

Mr. and Mrs. Merv Bloch, daughter, New York, April 17. Father is a staffer in Paramount's ad-pub department.

HERE IS YOUR INDEX OF THE BIGGEST ENTERTAINMENT DISPLAY IN THE HISTORY OF MOTION PICTURES!!!

	Pages
THE CARPETBAGGERS	20-25
ZULU	26-27
WHERE LOVE HAS GONE	28-29
NEVADA SMITH	30-31
IMPERIAL WOMAN	32-33
SANDS OF KALAHARI	34-35
A HOUSE IS NOT A HOME	36-37
THE IDOL	38-39
ISABEL & BURTON	42-43
THE WAR HORSES	44-45
WILL ADAMS	46-47
THE ADVENTURERS	48-49
THE MINISTER AND THE CHOIR SINGER	50-51
TROPIC OF CANCER	52-53
THE EARTH SHOOK—THE SKY BURNED	54-55
THE OSCAR	56-57
MARRIAGE—ITALIAN STYLE	60-61
CASANOVA	62-63
YESTERDAY, TODAY, AND TOMORROW	66-67
THE EMPTY CANVAS	68-69
CONTEMPT	70-71
THE APE WOMAN	72-73
THREE PENNY OPERA	74-75
ONLY ONE NEW YORK	76
LIGHT FANTASTIC	77
THE ARCHANGELS	78
THE CONJUGAL BED	79
8½	80
THE EASY LIFE	81
LET'S TALK ABOUT WOMEN	82
CRAZY DESIRE	83
IL SUCCESSO	84
THE TRAMPLERS	85

EMBASSY puts the HOW in SHOWmanship!

FILMS | VIDEO | TV FILMS | RADIO | MUSIC | STAGE

APR 30 1964

VARIETY

PRICE 35¢

Published Weekly at 154 West 46th Street, New York, N. Y. 10036, by Variety, Inc. Annual subscription, $15. Single copies, 35 cents.
Second Class Postage Paid at New York, N.Y.
© COPYRIGHT, 1964, BY VARIETY, INC., ALL RIGHTS RESERVED
Vol. 234 No. 10 NEW YORK, WEDNESDAY, APRIL 29, 1964 192 PAGES

THOSE SKEPTICAL FILM YANKS

Negro's Shutout as Series Star

Negro talent, which has made strides on network tv, has yet to score a breakthrough in the form of star billing on any weekly network tv series.

In the Sidney Poitier Oscar year in motion pictures, no Negro performer has won a topline regular stint in any network series. There will be occasionally featured Negro performers next season, as this season. There also will be Negro talent spotlighted on network variety programs. Some Negro talent will have featured roles on a few episodes of regular series next season and continued employment as extras in a number of series.

The breakthrough in the form of star billing in a weekly prime time network tv series, though, has yet to occur. (For the record, there was one such show in past years, Nat King Cole in a weekly outing for NBC-TV, but which was subsequently dropped because sponsors wouldn't buy it.)

N. Y. Fair a R-r-really Big Show Despite Being Not Fully Ready

By JOE COHEN

The New York World's Fair looms as one of the great feats of show business. It's one of the top promotions in history, being an awesome feat of shill and shovel, wheel and deal, con and contact, and one of the most comprehensive compendiums of man's accomplishments to date.

Even in its rough state, being about 85% complete, the Fair shapes up as one of the top hits not only in the history of fairs, but as a tribute to big biz's tiptop show biz instincts. The Fair is so good it should be held over a third year. As it presently shapes up, the consortium of Robert Moses, Tom Deegan, et al. have a fiscal, cultural and educational winner.

The Fair, as it opened Wednes-

(Continued on page 178)

Theme Song

Suggested theme song for Robert Moses:

"This Is My First World's Fair, So Please Be Kind."

Some Ask Why Fair Didn't Defer Scheduled Preem

Should the New York World's Fair have opened last Wednesday (22)? A lot of exhibitors, even those who made the deadline, say no. In order to meet the date set by Fair officials, exhibitors say that they had to curtail services, spend a lot of extra money on overtime, hire extra help, and even change plans in order to facilitate construction.

Those that didn't make it, which includes approximately 15% of the fair, including the bulk of

(Continued on page 179)

Despite Ballyhoo, Some Hotels Concede Easing Out Permanent Guests

As originally spotlighted in VARIETY some weeks ago, that permanent guests were being eased out of certain hotels eyeing that more profitable transient business because of the N.Y. World's Fair influx, the Hotel Assn. of New York now concedes this is a problem "beyond our control." The New York City's Rent & Rehabilitation Administration explains that controls on hotel tenants apply only to those who have lived continuously in the same place since Dec. 2, 1949.

The hoteliers still propagate "close controls" on room rents

(Continued on page 191)

Carl Foreman Sparks Israeli Writers Guild

Tel Aviv, April 28.

The Israel Screen & Television Writers Guild was born here, amidst cheers and great excitement, as members of the screenwriters' course given here during the last two months by Carl Foreman surprised him and held the first membership meeting at his

(Continued on page 162)

WILL THEY EVER GO 'FESTIVAL'?

By GENE MOSKOWITZ

Cannes, April 28.

Robert Favre LeBret, director of the Cannes Film Festival, which begins tomorrow (29) and runs to May 14, feels that the array of films is better than last year. Perhaps no truly great ones. He remains disappointed with the still-ambivalent attitude toward festivals in general and Cannes in particular as displayed by the Americans.

Emphasizing that this is the 17th Cannes year, that Venice is going into its 25th, and various other festivals have achieved longevity and status, he inquires what does it take to impress the hard-faced gentry of the Manhattan home-offices?

LeBret regards as false criteria a separation of "festival" and "commercial" product. To him, any good film is a festival possibility and most truly moneymaking pix are definitely that. He insists that he knows of no case where a film's career was hurt by fest participation.

"The Friendly Persuasion" (Allied Artists) won a grand prize which helped its career in Europe. Ditto for "Marty" (UA), and last year's Italo "The Leopard" which did fine biz in France. He concedes that Cannes showing may not affect domestic U.S. playoff of U.S. pix but argues it helps in foreign

(Continued on page 29)

Film Fest Friends: Spain & Russia!

San Sebastian, April 28.

From Russia—with or without love—is the catchword at the San Sebastian International Film Festival this year. Newly-appointed fest director has invited Soviet participation at the Basque film gathering with features, stars and delegates.

Six years ago, a Moscovite film group sat on its haunches in Paris waiting for Spanish visas that never came. This time, Cuenca invite received advance approval from the minister of foreign affairs.

Film critic and historian for many years, Cuenca has blossomed

(Continued on page 24)

B'way Legit in B.O. Bulge From Invalid to Strongman Status

By JESSE GROSS

One Eye Enough

London, April 28.

How spoon-fed can the customers get?

Soho now boasts a strippery where the patrons do not even have to leave the bar to see the belles peel. The show is relayed on closed circuit television.

Broadway has been doing a Charles Atlas this season. It has progressed from a 90-lb. weakling last summer and fall to a bulging-muscle phase in the late winter and spring, as evidenced by the unusually large number of entries that have been playing to strong business during the latter periods.

Hot entries among the season's newcomers include such musicals as "Hello, Dolly," "Funny Girl" and "High Spirits"; such dramas as "The Deputy," "Dylan" and "Hamlet" and such comedies as "Any Wednesday" and "Barefoot In the Park." The Lincoln Center Repertory has also been playing to hefty subscription biz and shows like "Nobody Loves an Albatross," "110 In the Shade" and "What Makes Sammy Run?" have been doing well.

How the current Actors Studio Theatre productions of "Baby Want a Kiss" and "Blues for Mr. Charlie" will fare remains to be seen. There are also such potent holdovers as "How to Succeed in Business Without Really Trying" and "Never Too Late." Also, still doing okay in the holdover category are "Oliver" and "A Funny

(Continued on page 188)

Burton's 'Hamlet' Bestseller Album Before Release

Columbia Records, with "a sweaty haste that doth make the night joint-labour with the day" ("Hamlet," Act I, Scene 1), is rushing completion of its Richard Burton-"Hamlet" recording. Release date hoped for is today (Wed.).

The recording, made April 12, of the Alexander H. Cohen production was supervised by Columbia president Goddard Lieberson. The fast release is to take advantage of the unusually heavy publicity being given both the Shakespeare anniversary and the Burton "Hamlet." Cast worked with the same arrangement used for recording Broadway musicals, a week's pay for the day's recording.

Columbia has advance orders on the 4-record (8 sides) deluxe album exceeding 25,000. This makes it, even prior to release, the all-time bestselling drama album. Record to date, according to Lieberson, is held by Columbia's album of

(Continued on page 172)

Disney Chairs Senate Bid by George Murphy

Hollywood, April 28.

Fundraising, $50-a-plate banquet is being staged for George Murphy, who is seeking the Republican nomination as U. S. Senator from California. Date is May 5 in International Ballroom of the Beverly Hilton Hotel. Friends of George Murphy Dinner Committee, chaired by Walt Disney, has

(Continued on page 191)

Joey Adams Troupe 'By Far the Worst Cultural Exchange Tour': D. C.

Washington, April 28.

A State Dept. official told Congress that the Joey Adams troupe was "by far the worst" cultural exchange tour the U. S. has ever offered.

The panning was revealed in hearing testimony before a House Appropriations subcommittee which again took the cultural exchange program on another trip to the woodshed.

The chief paddler, as always, was subcommittee chairman Rep. John Rooney, the Democratic budget-cutter from Brooklyn. He was in a dither over the $541,464 chalked up by Jose Limon's dance group on a Far East Tour. His peeves extended to Limon's wife who received $250 per week on the tour. Limon pulled in $1,500 per.

But more surprising than Rooney's display of pique, a long-playing Capitol Hill attraction, was

(Continued on page 176)

INTERNATIONAL FILM ANNUAL

(Pages 29 to 144)

New York State Theater Opens 'Big'; Brave Albany Legislators Take Bow

By ROBERT J. LANDRY

An invitational blacktie audience saw the New York State Theater open last Thursday (23) as the second structure of Lincoln Center. It was the second night of the N. Y. World's Fair, and the two events were linked, though nine miles apart. Meanwhile the star of the evening was obviously architect Philip Johnson who took a bow from his box. The fact that there were boxes, and five tiers, and a proscenium arch, aisle-lights and a lovely front drapery was all part of the warmly beautiful charm of the $17,000,000, 2,700-seat structure.

If the devout cowards in the congregation were loathe to make the invidious comparison to the facing Philharmonic Hall, a reviewer cannot flinch. The State is instantly fascinating to those who like their theatrical edifices "theatery." It is not necessary to learn appreciation, as with the austerely handsome cloudchoked concert hall across the way.

As to the sight-lines on the upper and side portions of the State Theater's tiers (called rings), there are already whispers, so that, in the end, perhaps no building and no architect quite pleases everybody. Another small doubt centred briefly on the semi-unintelligibility of the "Carousel" lyrics when Joan Weldon sang but John Raitt seemed to prove the case for the acoustics. The New York City Ballet certainly looked lovely and lively in its brand-new home. It offered "Allegro Brillante" with Maria Tallchief and Andre Prokovsky and "Stars and Stripes with Jacques d'Amboise paired with the exquisite Patricia McBride, subbing for Melissa Hayden.

The latter ballet and Gov. Nelson Rockefeller's address were picked up by WCBS-TV locally for the 9-10 p.m. hour. For the video pickup the intense white lights and spots built-into the theatre for this purpose came into play. It is not

(Continued on page 184)

TOM CURTISS SHIFTS TO PARIS N.Y. TIMES

After 14 years as entertainment editor of the Paris edition of the N.Y. Herald Tribune, Thomas Quinn Curtis is shifting over to ditto of the NY. Times. He will continue to be based in Paris, which has long been his home.

Curtiss will cover drama and films, along with the nitery scene and the lively arts, as occasion warrants, both for the Continental edition and with additional outlet via the parent (U.S.) edition, published in New York.

Curtiss flew over to New York for a 10-day quickie powwow with the Times homeoffice brass. He returns to France via the Cannes Film Festival which tees off next week.

Move St. Patrick's Day?

Dublin, April 28.

Should St. Patrick's Day be shifted from March 17 to warmer weather?

Irishmen here actually discussed the move, but dropped the idea before putting it forward to a Commission now deciding on public holiday changes in Ireland.

Point was raised by hoteliers who want some holidays shifted to provide pegs for lengthening tourist season.

Fred Payne Dies at 77; Ran Paris Bar as Home To Bluebells 'n' Show Biz

By ABEL GREEN

Passing of British-born Fred Payne, owner of the famed Paris bar bearing his name at 14 rue Pigalle, at age 77, brings down the curtain on the last of the pioneer Yank and English saloonkeepers, dating from the Paris of the 1920s when it was the milieu of Hemingway, Fitzgerald and other expatriates and/or disciples of the "lost generation." With Harry's New York Bar, now carried on by son Andy McElhone, Payne's bar "on the hill" (Montmartre) was

(Continued on page 172)

London Cafe Op JohnMills Buys Perona's El Morocco

John Mills, owner of London's Les Ambassadeurs nitery, on Monday (27) bought El Morocco from Edwin Perona, son of late John Perona, founder of international society's one-time home away from home. Agreement, reached yesterday between Mills and Perona, will be finalized Friday (1). Sale price was not disclosed. Spot, which had never really hit its stride since the move from 154 E. 54th St. (now occupied by The Strollers), was rumored as having been on the block for some time with an asking price of $1,000,000.

Mills, a Polish-born British subject, says he'll be sole owner and will add one word to the name to make it "El Morocco International" to tie in operation with his London spots, Les Ambassadeurs and Le Circle. He said that he hoped to "restore El Morocco's former international reputation."

First director named for the new setup is comedian Bob Hope who says that he just happened to drop in at the club Monday night and was greeted by Mills, an old friend, with "I've just bought this place." Hope has not yet decided whether he'll be investing any money in the operation.

DALE STEVENS

Amusement Editor, Cincinnati Post and Times Star, says:

"It seems only yesterday that PAUL ANKA had the teenagers screaming in the aisles. Now, a fabulous international attraction, ANKA's wide appeal is matched only by his incredible professional polish as a performer.

"At only 22, ANKA is a veteran artist."

Don't Strip Till You're 21, New W. German Law Sez

Bonn, April 28.

It's no fair taking off your clothes in public unless you're 21 years old, a new regulation in the Federal Government of West Germany has just decreed.

The new law, slated to go into effect June 1, states that it's dangerous and immoral for anyone under that age to become a stripper in a West German nightclub.

To be a stripper, a beauty dancer, or a veil dancer, one now has to reach the full 21 years. Also "dancing partners, table partners and bar women" must be over 21, the regulation stipulates.

Recent incidents in West Germany revealed that girls as young as 14 were working in the clubs as drink pushers and strippers. New regulation will stop their employment for a few years.

Dagger-O-Type: Call Conclave Of Living Spies

Rome, April 28.

Rome producer-director Duilio Coletti, who's always had a weakness for the cloak-and-dagger aspects of wartime spying, and has illustrated them in many of his best-known pix, is organizing an unusual convention: an international gathering of known spies, to be held in Rome at a still-unset date.

Coletti claims to have acceptances from a large number (around 30) celebrated surviving operators, male and female, and from all parts of the world. Scope of meeting, among others, will be to see if talents of snoopers can for once be applied not to war but to serving peace—a theme which director frequently has spotlit in his films.

Not incidentally, Coletti is currently prepping pic, tentatively titled "Mademoiselle Docteur" which tells true story of how Germans were able to find out itinerary of ship on which Lord Kitchener found his death. Coletti also recently sold another wartime tale involving spying, "Operation Crossbow," to Carlo Ponti, who has pic on sked for Metro release.

BRITISH NASSAU HAIL TO POITIER

Hill & Knowlton, p.r. for the Bahamas Development Board, is making Oscarwinner Sidney Poitier's homecoming to Nassau a gala international press hoopla with top hotels combining to host the entire press from May 1-4.

The American Negro actor's family lives in Nassau and his homecoming will be a four-day event teeing off with motorcade through the city, press conferences, official governmental reception and a testimonial dinner. The Bahamas Ministry of Tourism is [illegible]d into the welcoming celebration.

The Croisette Crossroads

A little earlier this year but the 17th annual Cannes Film Festival again makes the Croisette a crossroads of global film buying and selling, with not a little wheeling-and-dealing but much less of the bikini&cheesecake nonsense which formerly punctuated the picture people's peccadilloes. With the years, as the picture business faced an array of crises at home and abroad, ranging from embargoes and quotas to television and other box-office inroads, the nonsense diminished.

Cote d'Azur is far from a completely gloomy environment in which to do business. There still are beaucoup interludes for diversions that differ sharply from the cinematic marts back home, no matter whose land, the French included. But despite the gamboling and gambling from St. Tropez to the far eastern reaches of Nice and Monte Carlo, the croisette that separates the Cannes plush hotelries from their (almost) private beaches has become an ever-increasing crossroads of cinemerchandizing.

But somehow the serious side of the picture business looms less serious in the Blue Coast aura of the Riviera in early May. The answer, for years now, is found in the world screens the ensuing summer, fall and winter as the Cannes Festival contenders (prizewinners or otherwise) achieve a certain boxoffice distinction unique unto itself. The glow spills over into the ensuing Berlin, Venice and lesser fests. The aftermath is found in cinemas around the globe for many months.

Milwaukee Preem for Dallas' Very Own 'Trial of Lee Harvey Oswald'

Milwaukee, April 28.

'The Trial of Lee Harvey Oswald," indie feature made by Falcon International Corp. of Dallas, opened its first U.S. run Wed. (22) at the Warner Theatre for first day take of $1,000. House reports that despite opposition of opening of baseball season and a tv spec on the N. Y. World's Fair, a record week of $10,000 is expected, compared with house's average weekly gross of $3,000.

Falcon partners Harold Hoffman and Larry Buchanan shot the modest-budgeter at Dallas' Southwest Film Center and on locations from their own script, with Buchanan directing. After completion of script in January, they shot during most of February and edited in early March. The black and

(Continued on page 22)

Not Subtle

Paris, April 28.

New high (or low) in criticism.

Writing about "Mademoiselle Moliere" in Figaro, critic A. B. said: "I will have to wait until tomorrow to discuss this show. To put it simply, I need a bit of time to restore myself after suffering through two hours of such monumental boredom." End of review.

Allen Churchill Tome A Lively Rogue's Gallery From U.S. Crime Annals

Allen Churchill's "A Pictorial History of American Crime" (1849-1929) (Holt, Rinehart & Winston; $6.95) is like a living newspaper of familiar crime annals. As he traverses criminal pathology from the 19th century into the 20th century, the more lurid and memorable the studies seem to become. Certainly there is greater audience identification with Fatty Arbuckle, Nicky Arnstein, Capone, Leopold & Loeb, William Desmond Taylor and Mary Miles Minter and Hall-Mills than Jesse James, Lizzie Borden et al.

It is to the credit of Churchill's graphic style that, as the dim memory recalls the sagas of Ponzi, Sacco-Vanzetti, Joseph B. Elwell, he makes the facts perk as he elucidates the causes and effects. Certainly with "Funny Girl" put-

(Continued on page 188)

POPE PAUL MAKES IT SIR LAWRENCE WELK

Hollywood, April 28.

Orchestra leader Lawrence Welk and choral director Roger Wagner have been named Knights Commander of St. Gregory by Pope Paul VI. Welk is believed to be first poptune orch leader ever named a Papal knight. He received honor for his "wholesome family entertainment" and works of charity.

Wagner, currently on State Dept.-sponsored overseas tour with his choral group, is also UCLA choral music director and heads music dept. of Marymount College. Order is same to which VARIETY's now Sir Frank Scully belongs.

4/29

VARIETY

Subscription Order Form

Enclosed find check for $.....

Please send VARIETY for ☐ One Year ☐ Two Years ☐ Three Years

To .....
(Please Print Name)

Street .....

City..... Zone.... State.....

Regular Subscription Rates

One Year—$15.00 Two Years—$28.00

Three Years—$39.00

Canada and Foreign—$1 Additional Per Year

VARIETY Inc.

154 West 46th Street New York, N. Y. 10036

VARIETY

Trade Mark Registered

FOUNDED 1905 by SIME SILVERMAN; Published Weekly by VARIETY, INC.

Syd Silverman, President
154 West 46th St., New York, N. Y. 10036 JUdson 2-2700
Hollywood, Calif. 90028
6404 Sunset Boulevard, HOllywood 9-1141
Washington, D. C. 20004
784 National Press Building, STerling 3-5445
Chicago, Ill. 60611
400 No. Michigan Ave., DElaware 7-4984

London, S.W.1
49 St. James's Street, Piccadilly, HYde Park 4561-2-3
SUBSCRIPTION Annual, $15; Foreign, $16; Single Copies, 35 Cents

ABEL GREEN, Editor

Volume 234 120 No. 10

INDEX

Bills	182	New Acts	182
Casting	188	Night Club Reviews	180
Chatter	190	Obituaries	191
Film Reviews	6	Pictures	3
House Reviews	176	Radio	145
Inside Music	173	Record Reviews	170
Inside Radio-TV	168	Television	145
International	29	Television Reviews	157
Legitimate	183	Tollvision	28
Literati	28	TV Film	148
Music	169	Vaudeville	174
		Wall Street	15

DAILY VARIETY
(Published in Hollywood by Daily Variety, Ltd.)
$20 a year, $25 Foreign.

AVANT-GARDE GOTHAM CORRAL

20th Countersues Liz & Dick For 'Contract-Breaching' Rome Conduct

Twentieth-Fox and 20th-Fox Productions Ltd. last week filed a $50,000,000 action in New York Federal Court against Elizabeth Taylor and husband Richard Burton for allegedly breaching their contracts during the filming of "Cleopatra." Suit also charges the pair with "depreciating" the commercial value of the film by their "conduct and deportment" during and subsequent to the making of the film.

(While neither Miss Taylor nor Burton would comment on the suit, their publicity rep, John Springer, termed it "ludicrous.".)

The 20th action follows by about four weeks a suit filed in Los Angeles by MCL Films, corporation formed by Miss Taylor and her former husband, Eddie Fisher, against 20th, seeking monies allegedly owned the star as her cut of the "Cleo" boxoffice. This suit also charged that 20th had failed to exercise "sound business judgment" in the distribution of "Cleo" and asked that a receiver be appointed to take charge of the film.

In the first of three causes of action in the 20th suit, the film company seeks $20,000,000 from Miss Taylor, charging that she breached her contract in the following manner:

"By failing to abide by and observe reasonable and customary directives, regulations and orders during production; by not reporting for work on time; by reporting for work in a condition which did not permit her to perform her services; by suffering herself by her own acts and fault to become disabled, incapacitated or unphotographable and unable to perform her services; by conspiring with and inducing others to breach their agreements; by suffering herself to be held up to scorn, ridicule and unfavorable publicity as a result of her conduct and deportment, during and after production and while film was being distributed, so as to become offensive to good taste and morals and to depreciate the commercial value of the film."

Burton, Too

The second cause of action is for $5,000,000 and is against Burton, with approximately the same charges levelled against him as against Miss Taylor.

The third cause of action, for $25,000,000, is against both Taylor and Burton. They are charged with "maliciously interfering" with 20th's business and property rights without justification by: holding themselves up to public scorn and ridicule; inducing each other to breach expressed and implied provisions of their respective contracts; by failing to perform required services with "due dilligence"; by conspiring and inducing others to breach their agreements.

Miss Taylor also is charged with "scandalous and irresponsible conduct" which hurt the distribution of "Cleopatra." Suit seeks to enjoin her from continuing to impugn the quality of the film.

Overtime, $1,115,000

Suit states that because Miss Taylor refused to work in the U.S. the film had to be made in Italy and Egypt. Her contract guaranteed her a salary of $750,000, against 10% of the gross. When her services were finally terminated, the star had received approximately $2,140,000 in connection with the film. In addition to her basic salary, this included a reported $1,115,000 in overtime pay and $275,000 in expenses. Burton reportedly received over $500,000 for his services.

As of Feb. 15 of this year, 20th reported that "Cleopatra" had earned gross boxoffice of $25,925,000 for net film rentals of $14,208,000. Miss Taylor's share of that gross would amount to approximately $2,517,500, according to the terms of the original agreement.

Italy's 61 Starts, '64

Rome, April 28.

Some 61 features have been started here to date this year, according to latest figures. This compares with 64 for same period last year.

Breakdown shows 11 starts in January, 1964 (14 in '63); 7 in February (19); 21 in March (21); and 22 in April (10).

20th's Profitable South African And Down Under Sites

Combined net earnings of 20th-Fox's theatre circuits in South Africa, Australia and New Zealand amounted to $1,405,000 in 1963, compared with $1,387,000 in 1962, according to details revealed in the company's annual report, mailed to stockholders over the weekend.

Most of the data in the annual report, including the company's $9,115,393 net income for 1963, had been revealed earlier. In his letter to stockholders in the report, prez Darryl F. Zanuck calls 1963 "a year of transition and progress." In addition to pix already released, now shooting or set for production in near future, Zanuck calls attention to the fact that 25 more films are set to be produced in 1964 and early 1965.

Current indications, says the prez, are that 20th-Fox Television will have 4-1/2 hours of programming on the air in the 1964-65 season, compared with no shows in the current season. He notes that ABC-TV has purchased "Peyton Place" and has "12 O'Clock High" and "Voyage to The Botton of The Sea" under consideration, that NBC-TV has tentatively included "Daniel Boone" on its sked, and that CBS-TV has taken "My Friend Flicka" for daytime net presentation.

Zanuck winds his remarks in the letter by saying that "the period of transition is now completed. We are now a young, vital and forward-looking organization in all areas: production, distribution and our subsidiaries. As I told you a year ago, I don't promise miracles. I do look forward to the future with genuine confidence."

Notes to the report's financial statements reveal that as of last Dec. 28, there were no stock options outstanding. Also, that during 1963, options covering 20,027 shares of common stock granted in prior years expired.

Report breaks down the 1963 film rental income of $96,866,860 as follows: $74,051,664 from features and short in theatrical release; $18,999,596 from features licensed to tv, and $3,815,600 from series produced specifically for tv. This compares with 1962 when the total of $90,201,567 was comprised of $71,575,251 from theatrical release, $8,320,949 from features licensed to tv, and $10,305,367 from series made specifically for tv.

The report does not breakdown film rental income between domestic and foreign earnings.

VIDEO SHARES CANNES FESTIVE SPOTLIGHT

Cannes, April 28.

The 7th International Television Film Festival started yesterday (27), two days before the regular Cannes Film Fest. This gave it some early prominence.

Run by the governmental Radio-diffusion-Television Francaise, the aim is to concentrate only on films made directly for tv, and primarily by private rather than national companies. Aim is to ease relations between films and tv.

MAKE-READY FOR FAR-OUT FILM

By VINCENT CANBY

Fifteen of America's younger and more iconoclastic novelists, playwrights and poets, and one standup philosopher (Godfrey Cambridge), have been pacted by producers George Foster and Bob Booker to contribute segments to their projected $750,000 New York indie pic, "Pardon Me, Sir, But Is My Eye Hurting Your Elbow?" Foster and Booker were part of the team which wrote Cadence's click "First Family" album, which Booker also coproduced.

As outlined in New York Monday (27), the film, which is to be shot at the Michael Myerberg Studios on Long Island, starting in October, will be an irreverent look at the various foibles of the contemporary American scene, with each of the 15 writers contributing a seg dealing with a matter closest to his own heart. Actually the writers have been pacted to writing-performing contracts — since it's the intention of Booker and Foster to put the various enfants terribles on screen, either in their own segs or by way of introducers.

Talent thus lined up for the pic includes: actor-author Godfrey Cambridge; Peter Cook, a member of the "Beyond the Fringe" group; Gregory Croso, poet; Lawrence Ferlinghetti, poet; Jack Gelber, playwright ("The Connection") and novelist; Allen Ginsberg, poet; Herbert Gold, novelist; Paul Krassner, editor of "The Realist"; Arthur Kopit, playwright ("Oh Dad, Poor Dad, Mama's Hung You in the Closet and I'm Feeling So Sad"); John Rechy, novelist ("City of Night"); Jack Richardson, playwright; Jean Shepherd, actor, author and radio personality; Terry Southern, novelist and screenwriter ("Dr. Strangelove"); Bert Stern, photographer and filmmaker ("Jazz On a Summer's Day"), and Arnold Weinstein, playwright ("Red Eye of Love").

Among the sketches will be "An unusual look at the racial issue" (Cambridge); "capital punishment" (Corso); and "contraception for fun and profit" (Krassner). Producers Foster and Booker will contribute the connective links between segs. Entire film is not expected to exceed 105 minutes in running time.

Compensation Disclosure In Proxy: Poe Gets 104G Plus % of Profits; Dick Zanuck, Studio Chief, $91,000

No Leash for Kids

Albany, April 28.

A bill which would have eliminated the requirement that children be accompanied to and from bowling alleys by parents or guardians has been vetoed by Gov. Rockefeller. Similar measures were nixed by the governor in 1961 and 1963.

Feeling of many New York exhibs, especially upstate, has been that growing popularity of bowling has adversely affected film going on the part of youngsters. Apparently some of those who opposed the above bill felt that it would only aggravate an already rough situation for exhibs.

Details of the employment contracts of 20th-Fox exec veepee Seymour Poe and production veepee Richard Zanuck are revealed in the 20th-Fox proxy statement now going out in connection with the upcoming May 19 annual meeting in New York.

Effective Aug. 22, 1963, Poe signed a five-year employment contract providing for an annual salary of $104,000. In addition it provides for fixed deferred compensation of $13,000 per year for 1964 and 1965 and $26,000 for each year of the remainder of the contract. There is also provision for contingent deferred compensation not to exceed $150,000 in respect to any one calendar year of "a sum equal to two percent of consolidated annual operating profits before income tax, payable in equal monthly installments over a period of 10 years commencing on termination of employment."

Company also carries a $500,000 life insurance policy on the exec veepee.

Richard Zanuck has a three-year contract, calling for annual salary of $91,000 the first year, and $104,000 per year for the second and third years, plus deferred compensation of $ 26,000 per year. Deferred portion of salary will be payed in equal weekly installments over a four-year period following termination of employment. Company has an option to extend his employment for three more years at annual compensation of $130,000, plus deferred compensation of $52,000 per year. 20th carries a $400,000 policy on Zanuck's life.

Fact that President D. F. Zanuck waived a new employment contract with the company last year, along with a raise in annual salary from $150,000 to $200,000, was reported in VARIETY early this year.

Proxy does reveal for first time that under the former agreement between 20th and Zanuck's DFZ Productions, which provided that the producer and 20th split profits of DFZ pix 50-50, Zanuck last year received from the company. $2,801,045 as his share of the profits of "Longest Day," on which rentals now exceed $28,584,000. When Zanuck became prez of 20th, the agreement with DFZ was terminated insofar as it related to all future productions.

For the year 1963, proxy statement shows that 20th officers received the following payments: Darryl Zanuck, $150,020; Poe, $92,575; Richard Zanuck, $78,375; chairman Spyros Skouras, $69,860; financial veep Donald Henderson, $71,760; consultant-director (and former exec veep) W. C. Michel, $57,070; and studio exec Fred Metzler, $38,938.

Including all of the above, all officers and directors as a group received $940,337.

Proxy statement contains a management recommendation to vote against a resolution, proposed by stockholder Evelyn Y. Davis, that the company be forbidden to make charitable, educational or other kinds of donations except to further directly the business interests of the company. Management says that last year it provided donations in the amount of $28,000 and present bylaws specify that they can be made for the direct or indirect benefit of the company, as management deems fit.

Management also advises holders to vote against a proposal for cumulative voting of directors, put forth by Lewis D. and John J. Gilbert.

All 1963 directors of the company are up for reelection, except Thomas A. Pappas.

Proxy statement shows that chairman Skouras now owns or controls 114,632 shares of 20th common, against 97,800 listed in the 1963 proxy statement.

40G of Carrots To Prod Sales Pace For Columbia Pix

Chicago, April 28.

In addition to setting release plans for the 15 features which Columbia will put into distribution between now and the end of the year, the company's five-day sales conference here last week also got the ad-pub-merchandising blueprints on 15 more pix which are now either shooting or in various stages of production.

At one of the closing sessions of the conference, Col veep-general sales manager Rube Jackter revealed that the company is prepared to distribute up to $40,000 in incentive awards to those domestic branches which exceed their sales quotas in the period from June 26 through the end of the year. The sales and billings drive marks Col's 40th anniversary and the $40,000 set aside for branch bonuses is being referred to—not altogether fliply—as the "Jackter Pot."

In addition to the films which

(Continued on page 24)

National Boxoffice Survey

Trade Holding Well; 'Panther' New Champ, 'World' 2d, 'Jones' 3d, 'Russia' 4th, 'Becket' 5th

Trade at firstruns in major cities covered by VARIETY is holding up well in current stanza. Some of newer pix are starting to take their place in standings as additional playdates are added. Return of several Academy winners on reissue is proving fruitful in a few keys.

"Pink Panther" (UA) (6th wk) is climbing into No. 1 spot this week. It was seventh last stanza. "It's a Mad World" (UA) (23d wk) is holding onto second position, same as a week ago. "Tom Jones," also from United Artists, is finishing third although in 22d week.

"From Russia With Love" (UA) (3d wk) is winding up fourth, first week out in distribution to any extent. It makes the fourth UA pic to rank among the top four winners currently. "Becket" (Par) (5th wk) is copping fifth place.

"Fall of Roman Empire," also from Paramount, is finishing sixth. It's the fourth week out in release. "Dr. Strangelove" (Col) (11th wk), long high among the top grossers, is slipping to seventh place as it nears the end of runs in some keys.

"Capt. Newman" (U) (7th wk), fifth last round, is taking eighth spot. "Yesterday, Today and Tomorrow" (Embassy) (3d wk) will be ninth. "Seven Days in May" (Par) (10th wk) is finishing 10th.

"Cleopatra" (20th) (44th wk) is sagging to 11th spot, being hurt by some slow to fair dates. "Advance To Rear" (MGM) (2d wk) rounds out the Top 12. "Lilies of Field" (UA), back on reissue; "Seven Faces of Dr. Lao" (MGM), "Hud" (Par), returned because of Oscaring; "South Pacific" (20th) (reissue) and "Silence" (Janus) are the runnerup films.

"Muscle Beach Party" (AI) shows high promise of the newcomers just getting around. "Act One" (WB), also new, is okay in Cincy but fair in Detroit. "The Servant" (Landau), another newie, is great in N.Y., torrid in Boston and big in Toronto.

"Best Man" (UA), also a new entrant, is lush in L.A., big in N.Y. and good in Philly. "The Carpetbaggers" (Par) still is boffo for third round in Denver, its initial playdate.

"Soldier in Rain" (AA) looks nice in Columbus. "How West Was Won" (MGM), wow in Minneapolis, looks big in Denver and smash in L.A.

Note: The number of weeks out in release for bigger and longrun pix are designated in such cases.

(Complete Boxoffice Reports on pages 8-9-10.)

Film Faces Fever Fans in B.A. and Rio

Anthony Perkins Details 'Menace' of Well-Intentioned Mobs—'At Airports You Sit and Drip Awaiting Cops'

By ROBERT B. FREDERICK

The last minute request of the State Dept. to members of the American delegation to the Buenos Aires Film Festival to make a good will "stop" in Brazil on the way home was a lucky accident that resulted in a diplomatic success beyond anyone's imagination. That is the stated opinion of Anthony Perkins, who was there.

Takeover in Brazil by elements known to be pro-American provided an opportunity for a quick display of American endorsement and approval. Someone suggested that the American film people who were then in Argentina and whose names and faces were familiar might be willing to make a short stop in Brazil enroute to the U.S.

"We were perfectly happy to do it (we being Janet Leigh, husband Bob Brandt, Karl Malden and Perkins) but I doubt that any of us knew what kind of reception we'd get," Perkins said.

The group was flown from Argentina on April 12 to Porto Alegre in southern Brazil. After visiting there and in Curitaba, they were the guests of the governor of the state of Parana on April 13 before going on to Rio.

"The last American film personality to visit Curitaba, which is not a small place, was Walter Pidgeon—in 1944," said Perkins. "You'd have thought that they had been getting ready ever since for the next one to show up. We arrived at night but there were many people waiting for us. We didn't know whether they'd be friendly or not, considering they'd just had a revolution, but when we stepped out of the plane it was Buenos Aires all over again."

The reception of the visiting Americans in Buenos Aires, and Perkins in particular, is already recorded history. Perkins admitted that the physical strain had been tremendous and, at times, even unpleasant. He added, however, that "anyone who is aware that he or she has become the catalyst for such an overpowering display of interest" could not help but be impressed by it and look back on it ultimately as a wonderful compliment.

The only criticism he would make of the event was a feeling that the potential for selling such an affair is so great that it is a mistake not to devote more time and effort to better planning. He believes that many wonderful opportunities were lost without getting the most out of them.

More selective use of visiting celebrities, and a better system of protecting them must be found.

Perkins rebelled one night and decided to go it alone. Wearing a sport shirt and old blue jeans, and thinking that no one would recognize him, he went down on the service elevator to the hotel basement (the hotel covers a city block). When he finally found a side door, he emerged on a street "as poorly lit as Central Park at midnight." In less than half a block he was passed by a car which screeched to a halt. Out jumped three or four people, fortunately, only seeking autographs and by the time Perkins had signed for them, all he wanted was to get back to the hotel.

Another uncomfortable drawback for the guest, said Perkins is having to sit in a closed car at an airport or waiting to go into a hotel or theatre. "It is a harrowing experience to find yourself in a car surrounded by hundreds of bodies as it becomes unbearably hot. The windows must be kept closed and the heat generated is unbelievable. Until the police clear a path there's nothing to do but sit and drip."

"Paula (Paula Prentiss) and I used to make bets on how far we could get if we just dashed madly out of the hotel elevator, across the lobby and into the street before we finally got stopped. We've even jumped into passing cars and asked the motorist to get us away."

Perkins, although now fluent in French spoke own lines in French "Une Ravissante Idiote" with Brigitte Bardot which showed at B.A., knows little Spanish. However, he said, there was no problem in conversing with either the Argentines or the Portuguese-speaking Brazilians. "They talked and we listened."

With two films still unreleased in the U.S. "Une Ravissante Idiote" and Ely Landau's "The Foolkillers," Perkins is currently engaged in reading both film and play scripts.

The best things in air travel are on TWA

Sparkling wine, a connoisseur's menu, and a fine first-run movie. What more could you ask for when you're going places? You get them all . . . at no extra charge . . . when you're a TWA First Class Royal Ambassador. In fact, only TWA treats you so royally on nonstop coast-to-coast and overseas flights to ten of Europe's favorite cities. Live it up next time you travel. Call your travel agent or Trans World Airlines.

Nationwide Worldwide depend on TWA

SAYS GIRL COUSIN COPS HIS CREDIT

Papers have been served actress Juleen Compton in a $1,000,000 damage suit brought against her and Nike Productions S.A. by Gardner Compton, a cousin, who charges that Miss Compton has refused to give him credit as director of the motion picture, "Stranded." In a story published in the March 11 issue of VARIETY, Miss Compton claimed the director credit for herself, making no mention of her cousin.

Compton charges that he was signed as director of the film in July, 1963, and that he was director during the production starting in August of that year. Last month, he says, the defendants refused to recognize his screen credit.

Suit, instituted in N.Y. Supreme Court, asks that the defendants be restrained from withholding his screen credit and required to list his name as director in the credits.

"Stranded" was made in Europe last year, principally in Greece, under the auspices of Nike Productions, S.A., a Swiss company.

N.Y. to L.A.

Stanley E. Dudelson
Harvey Jason
Boris Karloff
Groucho Marx
Carl Winston

L.A. to N.Y.

Lucille Ball
Ed Begley
Jim Boles
Norman Brokaw
Lionel Dante
Bob Finkel
Leo Jaffe
Stan Kamen
Jennings Lang
Mervyn LeRoy
Joseph E. Levine
Athena Lord
Eddie Mayehoff
Gary Morton
Tony Owen
Ruth Pologe
Otto Preminger
Donna Reed
William Self
Inger Stevens
Mike Stokey
Fred Zinnemann

Europe to U. S.

Peter Bartholomew
Joe Basile
George Blaug
Ray Bradley
Jean-Lux Godard
Ann Jellicoe
Arthur Lesser
David Levey
Liliane Montevecchi
Patachou
Nate Platt
George Reich
Guy Thayer

U.S. to Europe

Harry Beall
Joe Besch
Marion Billings
Irene Browne
Gil Cates
Tom Curtiss
Sammy Davis Jr.
S. Charles Einfeld
Keir Dullea
Edward Ettinger
Carl Foreman
Gene & Francesca
Claude Gersene
Rene Gersene
Paul Henreid
Mahalia Jackson
Melvin H. Jacobs
William Kaplan
Leonard Kramer
Robert I. Kronenberg
Joseph R. Lee
Leonard Lightstone
Gerry Le Grove
Anthony Mann
George Margolin
Norman Nadel
Claire Nichtern
Clem Perry
Walter Reade Jr.
Abe Schneider
Selig J. Seligman
Richard Steenberg
Glenna Syse
Saul J. Turell

Product Array at Cannes Fest

Cannes, April 28.

The following is the lineup for the fest which begins tomorrow (29).

UNITED STATES

(Official)

"The World of Henry Orient" (UA)
Directed by George Roy Hill. With Peter Sellers, Paula Prentiss, Merrie Spaeth. (Reviewed in VARIETY, March 18, 1964.)

(Invited)

"One Potato, Two Potato"
Directed by Larry Peerce. With Barbara Barrie, Bernie Hamilton.

ARGENTINA

(Official)

"Primero Yo" (Me First)
Directed by Fernando Ayala. With Alberto De Mendoza, Susana Freyre.

BRAZIL

(Official)

"Deus E O Diabo Na Terra Do Sol" (The Black God and Blonde Devil)
Directed by Glauber Rocha. With Yona Magalhaes, Ceraldo Del Rey, Othon Bastos.

(Invited)

"Vidas Secas" (Sterile Lives)
Directed by Nelson Pereira Dos Santos. With Atila Iorio, Maria Robeiro, I. Joffre. (Reviewed in VARIETY, Dec. 25, 1963.)

FRANCE

(Official)

"La Peau Douce" (The Soft Skin)
Directed by Francois Truffaut. With Jean Desailly, Francoise Dorleac, Nelly Benedetti.

(Invited)

"100,000 Dollars Au Soleil" (100,000 Dollars in the Sun)
Directed by Henri Verneuil. With Jean-Paul Belmondo, Lino Ventura, Reginald Kernan.

"Les Parapluies De Cherbourg" (Umbrellas of Cherbourg)
Directed by Jacques Demy. With Catherine Deneuve, Marc Michel, Nino Catelnuevo,, Anne Vernon. (Reviewed in VARIETY, Jan. 29, 1964.)

GREAT BRITAIN

(Official)

"The Pumpkin Eater"
Directed by Jack Clayton. With Anne Bancroft, James Mason, Peter Finch.

GREECE

(Official)

"Ta Kokkina Fanaria" (Red Lights)
Directed by Vassili Georgiades. With Jenny Karezi, Georges Foundas.

HUNGARY

(Official)

"Pacsirta" (The Lark)
Directed by Laszlo Ranody. With Antal Prager, Klari Tolnay, Anna Nagy.

INDIA

(Official)

"Mujhe Jeene Do" (Let Me Live)
Directed by Moni Battacharjee. With Sunil Dutt, Waheeda Rehman, Nirupa Roy.

JAPAN

(Official)

"Taiheiyo Hitoribotchi" (My Enemy the Sea)
Directed by Kon Schikawa. With Yujiro Ishihara. (Reviewed in VARIETY, Nov. 20, 1963.)

(Invited)

"Suna No Onna" (Woman in the Dunes)
Directed by Miroshi Teshigahara. With Eiji Okada, Kyoko Kishida.

ITALY

(Official)

"Sedotta Et Abbandonata" (Seduced and Abandoned)
Directed by Pietro Germi. With Stefania Sandrelli, Aldo Puglisi. (Reviewed in VARIETY, Feb. 12, 1964.)

(Invited)

"La Donne Scimia" (The Ape Woman)
Directed by Marco Ferreri. With Annie Giradot, Ugo Tognazzi.

SPAIN

(Official)

"La Nina De Luto" (Luto's Girl)
Directed by M. Summers. With Maria Jose Alfonso, Alfredo Landa.

WEST GERMANY

(Official)

"Die Tote Von Beverly Hills" (The Cadavre of Beverly Hills)
Directed by Michael Pleghar. With Heidelinde Weis, Wolfgang Neuss.

(Invited)

"The Visit"
Directed by Bernhardt Wicki. With Ingrid Bergman, Anthony Quinn.

SWEDEN

(Official)

"Kvarteret Korpen" (Raven Street)
Directed by Bo Widerberg. With Thommy Berggren, Keve Hjelm, Emy Storm.

CZECHOSLAVAKIA

(Official)

"First Cry"
Directed by Jaromil Jires.

POLAND

(Official)

"Pasazerka" (The Passenger)
Directed by Andrzej Munk. With Alekzandra Slaska, Anna Ciepoelewska. (Reviewed in VARIETY, Dec. 25, 1963.)

RUSSIA

(Official)

"Moscow Ballad"
Directed by Gueorgui Danelia. With Galina Polskikh, Alexei Loktiev, Nikito Mikalkov.

(Invited)

"The White Caravan"
Directed by Eldar Chenguelaia and Thomaz Meliava. With Ariadna Chenguelaia, Imet Kokhiani.

UAR (Egypt)

(Official)

"The Last Night"
Directed by Kamal El Sheikh. With Faten Hamama, Ahmed Mazhar.

Non-competing (1) Samuel Bronston's "Fall of the Roman Empire" (2) Jules Dassin's "Topkapi" (UA), (3) a documentary on the Skopie earthquake in Yugoslavia "Skopje '63, of M. Bulajec.

OVER-AWARDED HOLLYWOOD

'Sunshine Over Hollywood'

This was the caption on last week's N.Y. Daily News editorial, as follows:

"From the Motion Picture Assn. of America comes the news that the major U.S. movie companies are making more money than they've made in a long time.

"Revenues rose 5% last year over 1962, and were up 15% over last year in the first quarter of 1964.

"The aparent explanation: more good and more varied pictures than the industry was producing a few years ago.

"Congratulations to the movies on again confounding prophets who were predicting that tv would bury them. There was a time, too, when radio was going to bury the newspapers . . ."

This Year at Least Oscars Help Many Releases, Not Just One Wow

Chicago, April 28.

Chi nabe theatres broke boxoffice records all over town this week, and most of the theatre men attribute it to the fact that the Oscar awards were spread over so many pictures and not just concentrated on one blockbuster as often happens.

Returns from the first post-Award round show United Artists' "Tom Jones" hauling in a smash $300,000 at 20 nabe houses, as "Irma La Douce" (UA) and "Hud" (Paramount) second swing combination accounting for $100,000 in 20 situations, "8½" (Embassy) pulling a great $100,000 in 25 theatres, and reissued "South Pacific" (Magna-20th) nailing a sensational $130,000 in its first frame at 36 houses.

It's possible that the prime subrun circuit could keep up this $500,000 pace for the current round since UA is rushing "Lilies of the Field" into 45 spots this week.

"For business purposes," remarked one chain theatre op, "they couldn't have distributed the Oscars better." Film Rowers almost unanimously agree that the tallies for "Irma," "Hud," and "8½" were virtually "found money" from pictures that had already done exceedingly well on firstrun and first nabe outings.

Hero of the week as far as exhibs are concerned is Chi UA branch manager Harry Goldman, who plucked "Jones" from a hot 16-week run at the Todd Theatre in the Loop to rack up what is probably the biggest all time one-week gross for any film in the neighborhoods.

It was a calculated risk that paid off in spades. UA was almost assured of $300,000 to $400,000 for the next six months if "Jones" had continued at the Todd. With $300,000 already in the bag (on steep 70% nabe terms), the picture could well tally $500,000 to $600,000 in its first subrun, and that's without UA waiting for the cash. Considering the terms, it's a Windy City killing for United Artists and further proof that Chi outlying houses are in better shape than they have been in decades.

Add to "Tom Jones" and "Lilies of the Field" the continuing excellent grosses for "It's a Mad World" on hardticket at the McVickers and an opening weekend for "From Russia With Love" that has exceeded high expectations at the Woods and it all spells United Artists time in Chicago.

'Beat the Devil' Clicking 10 Years After Failure; Now With Royal Films

Hollywood, April 28.

Though the exact dimensions of "Beat the Devil's" comeback along the art house trail is difficult to ascertain at this juncture, indications are that spoof, which failed ten years ago despite critical acclaim, may be on the road to making fiscal amends at this late date.

Film, which was sold first time around as a gangster-adventure pic, is getting a strictly high-brow treatment as sophisticated satire this time out from the Art Theatre chain of 36 houses nationwide, as

(Continued on page 26)

Rosenthal Walks

Herbert I. Rosenthal, v.p. of MCA Inc. and president of MCA Artists Ltd., has tendered his resignation from MCA, effective immediately. Rosenthal has been an officer of the company for the past 23 years.

He said that he would disclose future plans at a later date. No explanations given, as characteristic at MCA.

Julian Berman Confers With His 20th Superiors Enroute to Paris Spot

Julian D. Berman is in New York from Tokyo where he was based as Far East manager for Columbia Pictures and is en route to Paris where he takes over as Continental and Middle East sales boss for 20th Century-Fox. Berman is remaining in New York for a week or more of powwows with Darryl F. Zanuck, Seymour Poe and David Raphel. He succeeds to the latter's spot; Raphel was brought into the homeoffice from Paris to supervise international sales.

Mrs. Berman (Olga) and their 15-year-old son will join him in Paris, via New York, in mid-June, awaiting the conclusion of the boy's prep school school semester. Figuring importantly in the return to the Continent, where Berman is no stranger in the film biz, were the family considerations, especially with a growing son and the difficulties attendant to Franco-American schooling in the Orient.

ARGUE NEED FOR OSCAR OVERHAUL

By THOMAS M. PRYOR

Holywood, April 28.

All intra-industry year-end achievement awards should be eliminated to give greater drama and impact to the Academy Awards, declares George Sidney, president of Screen Directors Guild of America.

This and other suggestions, which he believes would help to heighten public interest in the Oscars and also stimulate the boxoffice, were outlined in an interview by the man who this year served as producer of the presentation ceremony show. Speaking personally and in his capacity as DGA prexy, Sidney advocates elimination of awards by his own guild as well as by the Writers and Producers guilds, the sound and the film editors.

His proposal calls, however, for revamping of the Academy's voting procedure, except in the area of "best picture," and for broadening of its membership base. Sidney is critical of the current makeup of the Academy which eliminates some groups of production personnel, such as the assistant directors, "because their is no category for them," while others who are not active participants in the creative processes, such as pressagents, enjoy voting privileges.

Moreover, Sidney contends that voting in several highly technical areas of production is open to persons who are not qualified to render judgments. The only category that should be open to general voting, he asserts, is best picture. "Everyone is qualified to express his opinion as to what he thinks is the best picture," the director says. "But it takes an expert to really judge special effects and whether a director was merely shooting a good script or putting something on the screen in terms of visual interpretation and accent that wasn't in the script."

To Each Its Own

Under present Acad regulations, nominations in various categories are voted by members of the respective groups within the Academy. Actors nominate actors, etc. The only exception is, of course, "best picture" on which all can nominate. In the final balloting all Acad members who are qualified voters—associates and mem-

(Continued on page 24)

Farout Cafes, Ethnic Concerts, Off-Broadway Rate News Breaks As N.Y. Papers Ignore Film Biz

By EDDIE KALISH

New York daily newspapers, particularly the N.Y. Times, have been laying off reportage of the film biz lately and this drop in coverage has tout-masters displeased. They are especially bugged with the situation at the Times, where weekday film reportage has dropped to practically nothing, probably less space than other show biz segment.

Aside from the obvious loses to the companies in free space, execs are vexed because, they claim, they remain the largest advertisers of all on amusement pages. Although they realize there is nothing they can do about the imbalance, especially in the Times' case, the boys complain that "hard" industry news is being passed up which would be of interest to readers, forgetting for the moment the non use of handouts.

The Times, because of its international prestige, is of particular concern—and confusion. The paper has a four-man picture staff in New York as well as a man on the Coast. Pub execs are screaming because Hollywood coverage has done a fadeout and the situation is almost as bad in Gotham. The Coast will soon be getting a new man because Murray Schumach is coming east to work city side. Peter Bart, who has been writing the paper's ad column, will go to the Coast to cover the Hollywood beat.

Biggest beef with the Times is a charge that the paper "sneers" at picture material. Execs argue that it goes after all kinds of amusements news, even obscure nitery coverage, legit, ethnic concerts and all kinds of off-beat show biz interviews but ignores the film biz. Days can go by without anything about pix except reviews, while tv, for example, has a daily column and often other news as well. On Sunday, pix continue to get their full editorial page plus Bosley Crowther's column on the first page of the amusements section.

It wasn't too long ago that pub execs were gleeful with the Times situation. The daily was behaving almost like a trade paper in the film field, digging and writing. It still pursues this policy in tv. Since various exec switches and the creation of the cultural department at the paper, film coverage changed, however.

Film row lost a good friend when the Mirror folded. The paper used a lot of pix biz news as filler and shorts. Items were fairly easy to plant. The expanded Journal-American, however, relies on columnists to cover the beat and other papers like the Daily News (which has the largest circulation of all) don't do much with the film beat either. But it is the Times which draws the most fire. The Herald-Tribune at least tries, execs say, but the important Times seemingly couldn't care less.

Sydney's Film Fest

Sydney, April 28.

Sydney Film Festival's 11th year will open at the Union Theatre, located on the campus of the Sydney University, June 5 and run through to June 15. Fest's sponsors are lining up pix world-wide and anticipate a sellout over the 10 days' span at six dollars' admission.

Pix already lined up include "The Exiles," "Autumn Afternoon," "That Cat," with an anticipated 80 pix-features, cartoons and documentaries, arriving within the next two weeks.

Zimbalist Producing Co. Aims at Jules Verne Pix in Puerto Rico

Hollywood, April 28.

Producer Al Zimbalist has formed his own Zimbalist Co. here to embrace both production and distribution. Offers of the company include Byron Roberts, veep in charge of production; William Faris, veep in charge of operations; Arthur Hoerl, exec assistant to Zimbalist; Max Wilkinson, veep; William Stein, comptroller.

In addition to Zimbalist, Hoerl, Roberts and Faris, who'll be producing individual films, company has also lined up Charles Hannewalt, Jack Jacobs and Edward Bernds to produce various properties.

The company's picture sked of sci-fi and adventure films includes a group of 13 Jules Verne pix to be made in Puerto Rico. According to prez Zimbalist, company has an agreement with Technicolor for the latter to do all its film processing, both black-and-white and color, with several pix skedded to be shot in Technicolor's Technoscope process. Legit shows and tv series also are contemplated.

The company's domestic distribution will be handled through three key offices located in New York, Chicago and Los Angeles.

If Hollywood Gets An 'Eady Fund' Foreman Sees Foreigners Moving In

Producer-director-writer Carl Foreman, who has long advocated some sort of subsidy support for the U.S. motion picture industry, is "delighted" that at long last the subject is being talked about openly in this country. Too long, he feels, subsidy has been a dirty word in relation to Hollywood, or, at least, one that smacked perilously of socialism.

Producer's remarks were made in New York yesterday (Tues.) in reference to recent stories to the effect that the Motion Picture Assn. of America has recently been exploring the subsidy idea with major company execs and top Hollywood producers.

Not only does he think that a subsidy incentive would increase U.S. production in Hollywood, but it might also spur some foreign producers to come to work here. Also it would put Hollywood on a financial par with all the other film producing nations of the world, and would spur coproduction deals.

Although he is all for a subsidy here, Foreman says that should such a system be worked out, it would not necessarily bring him back to Hollywood from London, where he has been based in recent years. He denies that the British Eady benefits are responsible for his London residence, noting that his most recent pic, Columbia's "The Victors," did not qualify for any subsidy benefits. He makes the pix he wants, where he wants, and it so happens that recently all his properties have called for overseas lensing.

Made In Kenya

Right now, for example, his Indie Highroad Productions is prepping "Born Free," to be shot entirely in Kenya, on which he'll function only as exec producer, and "Young Churchill," to be shot in England, India and Africa, which he'll produce, direct and write. "Born Free" will be produced by Sam Jaffe and Paul Radin, directed by Tom McGowan and star Bill Travers and Virginia McKenna. Pic starts in July with a 32-week shooting sked anticipated.

Foreman, who has just wound a two-month stint in Israel, teaching and lecturing on screenwriting at Hebrew University, is returning to London now to write the script of "Young Churchill," which will be based on Churchill's "A Roving Commission" and "A World Crisis," taking the British leader up to World War I. He describes it as primarily an "adventure story," covering Churchill's career both as an Army officer and as a foreign correspondent.

This is the same property held by Paramount for a couple of years, but finally abandoned by them reportedly when they could not come up with a treatment which would receive Churchill's approval. "Luckily," says Foreman, "Churchill saw 'The Guns of Navarone' and liked it and trusts me." The former British Prime Minister did not ask for treatment and script approval when Foreman took over the project.

Foreman does not anticipate starting production on the Churchill pic for at least another year. He is starting the script now and won't think about casting till the script is finished. The mixed reviews on "Victors," his first directorial chore, has not dampened his enthusiasm as a director. Oddly, he says, few critics seemed to know that "The Victors" was his first job of direction.

While in Israel, Foreman helped organize the Israeli Screen and Television Writers Guild, of which he is now listed as honorary prez and founder. Only thing really wrong with his Israeli stay, he thinks, was that it was too short, but, since he is not independently wealthy, he has to get back to work. Producer left last night for London and "Young Churchill."

Alvin Cassel Rejoining Metro, Old Alma Mammy; Asia Beat From Manila

Alvin Cassel, who started in the film biz in 1946 with Metro, is rejoining the company as general manager of the Philippines and supervisor of Taiwan, Vietnam, Indonesia and Guam. He succeeds Barney Landau who transfers to Puerto Rico replacing Harry Bryman who in turn moves to Caracas.

Cassel will headquarter in Manila. He originally joined MGM serving in the West Indies and Manila until 1956 when he moved to Universal International as supervisor for the Far East, working for the company in Singapore and Japan.

Psyche 59

Dim, dense psychological meller. Oscarwinner Patricia Neal name will have to carry.

Hollywood, April 21.

Columbia Pictures release of Phillip Hazelton production. Stars Curt Jurgens, Patricia Neal, Samantha Eggar, Ian Bannen. Directed by Alexander Singer. Screenplay, Julian Halevy, from the novel by Francoise des Ligneris; camera, Walter Lassally; editor, Max Benedict; music, Kenneth V. Jones; assistant director, David Bracknell. Reviewed at the studio, April 21, '64. Running time, 94 MINS.

Eric Crawfird ..... Curt Jurgens
Alison ..... Patricia Neal
Robin ..... Samantha Eggar
Paul ..... Ian Bannen
Mrs. Crawford ..... Beatrix Lehmann
Madame Valadier ..... Elspeth March
Susan ..... Sandra Lee
Jean ..... Shelley Crowhurst

Presence of Academy Awardwinner Patricia Neal should help box-office prospects of "Psyche 59," and it's going to need all the help it can get. As a matter of fact, a synopsis should be provided each customer, to clarify what's going on in this Columbia release. The psychological melodrama that occurs on the screen is muddled, monotonous and opaque.

Four weirdos cavort mysteriously in Julian Halevy's contrived screenplay from the novel by Francoise des Ligneris. It's not always clear which character is to be despised, but there are times when all four seem to fall into that category. Pivotal figure in the bizarre tale is the psychosomatically blind wife (Miss Neal) of an industrialist (Curt Jurgens) who is trying to plug the gap in her memory that is responsible for her non-vision. She's the only one in the theatre who doesn't know. The audience easily deduces that she went "blind" when she caught hubby Jurgens in the sack with her baby sister (Samantha Eggar). It's a'so no surprise when she regains her sight upon finding them in the hay again, after which she feigns blindness long enough to convince herself they're sick, sick, sick.

Further compounding the deficiencies of Halevy's scenario are Alexander Singer's deliberately-paced, artsy-craftsy direction (too much technical razzle-dazzle at the expense of clarifying dramatic matters) and Max Benedict's careless editing, which evidently eliminates scenes even if they render subsequent events mighty peculiar. Walter Lassal'y has contributed some flashy photographic strokes. Sensitive sound by George Stephenson and Red Law, expressive art direction by John Stoll and a creepy score by Kenneth V. Jones are assets to the Troy-Schenck production, produced in England by Phillip Hazelton.

Miss Neal manages a persuasive portrayal of the blind woman. Jurgens is pretty sour and unpleasant as her roving mate. Samatha Eggar plays the vixen with spirit and oomph. Any excuse to get her into something flimsy and revealing seems to suffice, even when it's irrelevant—such as when she admires and narcissistically paws herself in front of a full-length mirror in scanty panties. at, whatever the epidermis-to-clothing ratio. Ian Bannen plays Fortunately, she's pleasant to look a "friend of the famliy" in love with Miss Eggar. Most of the time he just sulks and sulks around in the background. Beatrix Lehmann plays a fifth screwball—Miss Neal's astrologically-oriented grandmother.

The title apparently has something to do with the date at which the heroine went blind, although that's a guess. All it really accomplishes is to make the picture sound five years old. Tube

Pyro

Weak horror meller barely adequate for companion status on a shock program.

Hollywood, April 17.

American-International release of Sidney-W. Pink-Harry E. Eller production. Stars Barry Sullivan and Martha Hyer. Directed by Julio Coll. Screenplay by Louis De Los Arcos and Sidney W. Pink from a story by Pink. Produced by Pink and Richard C. Meyer; camera, Manuel Berenguer; editor, Margaret Ochoa; music, Jose Sola. Reviewed in Joe Shore's projection room, April 17, '64. Running time, 99 MINS.

There are several saleable elements in this Spanish-lensed Pink-Eller production for American International release. Among them the familiar names of Barry Sullivan and Martha Hyer, some attractive Panacolor photography and fire sequences which offer a good exploitation peg. Film, however, is so weighted with stilted dialog and plot absurdities that it emerges barely servicable for even the lesser half of a double bill, a position which it has been assigned to occupy with AIP's "Goliath and the Vampires."

Nearly half the picture is spent on Sullivan's extra-marital dabblings with Miss Hyer. He is an American engineer in Spain at work on a dam and she apparently just a resident Bad Apple. When Sullivan returns to the family fold Miss Hyer sets fire to his house. His wife and child die and he is horribly disfigured. Mummy-swathed in bandages, Sullivan flees the hospital swearing vengeance on his ex-mistress which he ultimately achieves, along the way having adopted a new identity and a slightly altered face (revealed a mask in denouement) though exhibiting none of the madness with which searching police insist he is afflicted until finale.

It is the sort of picture which with a less awkward script might have found a profitable niche on the horror circuit, but burdened as it is with inadvertently laugh-provoking dialog and only a modicum of the necessary horror-suspense, it falls far short of the mark. Julio Coll directed from a script by Louis De Los Arcos and Sidney W. Pink from a story by Pink.

Sullivan and Miss Hyer play it straight all the way, something which, particularly in the case of Sullivan, must have demanded all of their professional discipline. Sherry Moreland as Sullivan's wife is wooden and of the Spanish cast only Fernando Hilbeckas a friend of Sullivan's makes a positive impression. Make-up man Carmen Martin did a first rate job on Sullivan's chared face. Manuel Berenguer's camerawork is good. Fess.

Bande A Part
(Gang of Outsiders)
(FRENCH)

Paris, April 28.

Columbia Films release of Anouchka Films, Orsay production. Stars Anna Karina, Sami Frey, Claude Brasseur; features Louisa Colpeyn. Written and directed by Jean-Luc Godard from novel, "Fool's Gold," by D. and B. Hitchens. Camera, Raoul Coutard; editor, Agnes Guillemot. Previewed in Paris. Running time, 95 MINS.

Odile ..... Anna Karina
Franz ..... Sami Frey
Artur ..... Claude Brasseur
Aunt ..... Louisa Colpeyn

Ex-Waver Jean-Luc Godard still looms one of the most inventive and personal among the younger filmmakers in France today. So his pix are filled with personal gags, homages to past and present masters, and his own angles. If it sometimes makes them restricted to art and buff releases, they always have a sweep, and humor that have them also capable of more direct adhesion by art and selective, and even regular audiences.

This one seems his most accessible pic since his first one "Breathless" and his recent Brigitte Bardot starrer, "Contempt." Careful handling could have this a solid specialized item abroad on its general gusto. If unorthodox, Godard here avoids his usual jump cuts, free ellioses and prowling camera. It is made completely in exterior and real interiors. And the pic benefits from this in giving its rambling tale a cogency and realistic basis to its breezy carryings-on.

Two friends, Franz and Artur, meet a waif-like girl, Odile, in an English course they are taking. She lives with a relative in a house outside of Paris and there is a pile of money kept loosely in a wardrobe. It seems the money has never been declared. At any rate, she mentions it to the youths and they decide to steal it with her help.

The youths have a sketchy background if they manage to be able to own a car. Artur belongs to an underworld-type family of thieves while Franz's family is unclear. The girl, Odile, goes along with the holdup against her will. It ends in catastrophe when Artur's uncle, who wanted in on it, kills him when they try to do it without him. Artur manages to get him before dying.

Franz and Odile go off with some of the money to some distant land and new adventures with a sequel promised by the voice of Godard himself on the soundtrack. In fact, he makes several little speeches during the film on the comportment and outlooks of his characters.

There is neat observation about the antics of this strange trio. If seemingly outside of life, they do give an impression of yearning and wanting something that is unat-

(Continued on page 26)

The Bargee
(BRITISH—TECHNICOLOR)

Patchy comedy with sound local marquee bait; enlivened by Hugh Griffith, but fails to fulfill its promise.

London, April 28.

Warner-Pathe release of an Associated British presentation of a (W. A. Whittaker) Galton-Simpson production. Stars Harry H. Corbett, Hugh Griffith, Eric Sykes; features Julia Foster, Miriam Karlin, Ronnie Barker, Derek Nimmo, Eric Barker, Norman Bird. Directed by Duncan Wood. Original story and screenplay, Ray Galton & Alan Simpson; camera, Harry Waxman; editor, Richard Best; music, Frank Cordell. At Empire Theatre, London. Running time, 106 MINS.

Hemel ..... Harry H. Corbett
Joe ..... Hugh Griffith
The Mariner ..... Eric Sykes
Ronnie ..... Ronnie Barker
Christine ..... Julia Foster
Nellie ..... Miriam Karlin
Foreman ..... Eric Barker
Doctor Scott ..... Derek Nimmo
Waterways Supervisor ..... Norman Bird
Tomkins ..... Richard Briers
Policeman ..... Brian Wilde
Office Official ..... George A. Cooper
Girl in Office ..... Grazina Frame
Cynthia ..... Jo Rowbottom
Barman ..... Edwin Apps
Announcer ..... Godfrey Winn

Maybe this scrappy comedy suffers from an overdose of interbreeding. It is the first production of Ray Galton and Alan Simpson, tv scriot creators of BBC's prominent "Steptoe and Son" series. It is the first feature film directed by Duncan Wood, responsible for staging the "Steptoe and Son" episodes. And it stars Harry C. Corbett (Steptoe Jr.). Anyway, the Steptoe influence looms large and has thrown this yarn of a bargee off balance. With a refreshing new background of the British waterways, a capable cast and an acceptable enough yarn, it still fails to click, though it will provide spasmodic amusement for the easy-going.

Corbett plays a dyed-in-the-wool marriage-shy bargee who loves the life and particularly the freedom it gives him with the dames. He builds up a reputation as the "Casanova of the Canals." But on the screen evidence, this is merely the result of a few skirmishes with two or three riverside femmes. There is no motivation in his character and it is fair to assume that either the censor or the distributors have clipped out much of the incident that would have given weight to his amorous exploits. Woven into a string of motley situations is the fact that he is eventually lured out of bachelordum through getting the daughter of an irascible lock-keeper into the family way. It's a slim incident on which to hang a comedy which never makes up its mind whether to be farce or not.

There are a few intriguing glimpses into the way of life of the fast lying bargee clan. Harry Waxman's color photography adds greatly to the refreshing charm of the British countryside. Though, of course, the weather always seems to be good and the life of a bargee is thus shown to be rather more delectable than it probably is. Although some of the dialog is richly perky and a few of the situations prompt laughs in somewhat haphazard fashion the storyline is not strong enough and Wood's direction is too meandering.

It rests with the cast to give the screenplay of Galton and Simpson a much needed lift. And here the production team is well served. The pic mainly comes to life when Hugh Griffith dominates the screen with a riotously overplayed and gloriously hammed-up performance as the heroine's irascible dad. Eyes bulging, his dialog pumped to life by Griffith's own turn of phrase he gives a joyful performance of ire, cunning and boisterous boozy comedy. This performance does most to keep "The Bargee" afloat. Miriam Karlin also makes a brief, larger-than-life appearance as an irate barmaid who has been two-timed by Corbett. But, inexcusably, the character is allowed to disappear early in the proceedings.

With Steptoe-ish intonations, gestures and philosophy, Corbett can do little to shake off his tv image but fulfills the part of the "anti-hero" with vigor. His buddy, Ronnie Barker, is a tubby little character comedian, highly likable but not likely to become a star but should have a profitable future as a feature player.

On the distaff side, apart from Miss Karlin, there's nothing outstanding. Julia Foster is no more than adequate as a colorless heroine, though Jo Rowbottom and Grazina Frame contribute a brace of lively bits. Derek Nimmo makes sharp impact as a nervous young doctor. Nimmo has one fine scene with Griffith when he breaks the news to the father that his daughter is pregnant and Griffith vainly tries to make the young medico marry her. This is a choice piece of comedy.

Biggest calamity is the casting of Eric Sykes, a witty, eccentric comedian, as a nincompoop of a landlubber who is a river menace with his little cruiser. Sykes is, inevitably, the fall guy who lands in the river. Throughout the pic, he has to cope with a role which is badly written.

A brisker pace, a little less (or a little more) genuine slapstick and considerably more gaiety could have made "The Bargee" a far more tempting vehicle than it is. Rich.

Parias De La Gloire
(Pariahs of Glory)
(FRENCH-DYALISCOPE)

Paris, April 20.

Gaumont release of Paris-France Films, Films Marly, Oceeans Films, Sagittario Film production. Stars Curt Jurgens, Maurice Ronet, Folco Lulli; features Roland Lesaffre, Tiny Yong. Directed by Henri Decoin. Screenplay, Roger Delpay; camera, Frederic Larraya; editor, Juan Soler. At Ambassade, Paris. Running time, 95 MINS.

Lud ..... Curt Jurgens
Ferrier ..... Maurice Ronet
Borsky ..... Folco Lulli
Cook ..... Roland Lesaffre
Girl ..... Tiny Yong

French filmmakers do not make many pix on the Indo-Chinese and Algerian wars, but when they do, they do so gingerly. But this one is full of cliches, grandiloquence and pretentiousness, without even a helping leavening of well-done action sequences, to make this primarily a local bet.

A French outpost company awaits reinforcement in the jungle during the Indo-Chinese troubles. A plane with a German planter in it makes a forced landing nearby. It seems he was a German officer during the last World War and a Frenchman hates him immediately since his brother had been killed by a German officer.

Of course, it turns out to be him but under fire they help each other and die in each others' arms as the French officer gives the German back his war decoration that he had confiscated. A worthwhile theme about allaying war hatreds is smothered in conventional, forced histrionics and heroics.

Lacklustre direction does not help nor do ordinary production aspects. Curt Jurgens uses too many false mannerisms and overplays his role of the German. Maurice Ronet is listless as the French German-hater. Others are adequate. The few fighting scenes are only passable in their execution. Mosk.

Goliath and The Vampires
(ITALIAN-COLOR)

Musclebound action fantasy. All brawn, no brain.

Hollywood, April 22.

American International release of Paolo Moffa production. Stars Gordon Scott. Directed by Giacomo Gentilomo. Screenplay, Sergio Corbucci, Ducci Tezzari; camera (Colorscope), Alvaro Mancori; editor, Eraldo Da Roma. Reviewed at Iris Theatre, April 22, '64. Running time, 91 MINS.

Goliath ..... Gordon Scott
Astra ..... Gianna Maria Canale
Buono ..... Jacques Sernas
Julia ..... Leonora Ruffo
Magda ..... Annabella Incontrera

Even the most ardent devotees of these overstuffed, simpleminded muscle spasms from Italy figure to be disenchanted with this latest entry in that league. Ludicrously written and crudely executed, the American International release may, through hefty exploitation campaigning, rack up some rupees in early dates before word-of-mouth catches up with it.

Erstwhile "Tarzan" Gordon Scott is the new "Goliath." In this one, his brawny biceps are pitted against a superhuman, sanguinary fiend who is enslaving the populace of an ancient region by turning them into bloodless robots subjected to his will. Just when it looks as if the home team hasn't got a chance, the monster unaccountably makes the mistake of assuming Goliath's identity, providing the audience with the odd climactic spectacle of Gordon Scott fighting himself to the death.

Scott's historionics are about as subtle as a statement by Cassius Clay. Also prominently implicated in the dubbed Paolo Moffa production and Dino De Laurentiis presentation are Gianna Maria Canale as a villainess and Jacques Sernas as a kindly chemist. Tube.

A Place To Go
(BRITISH)

Well worn theme of London's East End family life. One or two handy performances, but minor appeal.

London, April 21.

British Lion-Bryanston release through BLC of a Bryanston presentation of a Michael Relph-Basil Dearden production. Stars Mike Sarne, Rita Tushingham, Bernard Lee. Features Doris Hare, Jerry Verno, David Andrews, William Marlowe, Roy Kinnear, Barbara Ferris, Norman Shelley. Produced by Michael Relph. Directed by Basil Dearden. Screenplay by Relph from Michael Fisher's novel; camera, Reginald Wyer; editor, John D. Guthridge; music, Charles Blackwell. Previewed April 15, '64 at Columbia Theatre, London. Running time, 86 MINS.

Matt ..... Bernard Lee
Catherine ..... Rita Tushingham
Ricky ..... Michael Sarne
Lil ..... Doris Hare
Betsy ..... Barbara Ferris
Jack Ellerman ..... John Slater
Jim ..... David Andrews
Charlie Batey ..... William Marlowe
Pug ..... Michael Wynne
Sally ..... Marjorie Lawrence
Bunting ..... Roy Kinnear
Magistrate ..... Norman Shelley
Nobby Knowles ..... Jerry Verno

The experienced team of Michael Relph and Basil Dearden might well have been expected to come across with a more lively, incisive treatment of even such a tired old theme as "A Place To Go." But it has defeated them, and despite one or two brisk directorial touches and a few dependable performances, they are left wallowing in cliches. "A Place To Go" has an apt title, for it is the sort of film that may pass away an hour and a half, providing a person has no place to go but the cinema.

Usually with a keen feeling for comment on social problems, this time Relph and Dearden have settled for treading unadventurously along a familiar route. The scene is Bethnal Green in London's East End, and here Dearden has captured some vivid atmosphere, ably supported by Reginald Wyer's crisp photography. But the plot is a ragbag of incidents that seem to have been used in so many similar films too often. A flick knife fight, young hero involved in crime with a petty local gang, sentimental mum not wanting to leave her surroundings, boozeups in the local taverns, tippling, independent dad, young married daughter and husband living at home with baby and desperately yearning for a place of their own, but not doing much about it, boys wrangling over birds, furtive under-the-canal love making. It's all there, but no imagination has been brought to bear to give the job a lift.

Dialog ranges from the corny to the breezy, via brusque sentimentality. Situations occur but do little to jog the plot along. The makers of this film have unsuccessfully tried to disguise the fact that they have no pertinent views or comment to make on their subject. They have relied on a workmanlike cast, and two or three engaging performances crop up. It introduces pop singer Mike Sarne, who as well as warbling a couple of numbers, has the leading juve role. His is a new face and fresh personality and, in time, experience may well provide the screen with a useful young thesp. Rita Tushingham brings her usual, perky, gamine-like quality to the role of his self-possessed girl friend. Lacking conventional good looks, Miss Tushingham has a sparkling offbeat personality and livens the screen whenever she appears. She will have to guard against getting typed in this kind of role, however, if her real potentiality is to be developed. Doris Hare and Bernard Lee, with the experience of seasoned troupers, ring every laugh and possible sob out of their chores, John Slater is a credible minor crook and William Marlowe occasionally shows a glimpse of subtle viciousness as a young hood. David Andrews and Barbara Ferris cope with thankless tasks as the newlyweds, and Jerry Verno, Norman Shelly and Roy Kinnear weigh in with dependable cameos.

The Relph-Dearden record is good enough to ride a complete flop in films, but it can be even more precarious to turn out a piece of comparative nothingness. Location shots, artwork and editing are all satisfactory and Charles Blackwell's theme song may prove a hit parade challenger. Lack of marque bait may not matter overmuch in Britain, where Miss Tushingham has a pull and Sarne a ready made adolescent pop following, but abroad its chances are edgy. Rich.

PRIEST-PRODUCER'S FEATURES

New York Sound Track

Phil Feldman, veep in charge of business affairs for Seven Arts, off to Europe . . The Legion of Decency has B-rated (morally objectionable in part for all) the new 7 Arts-Metro version of "Of Human Bondage." LOD says the film tends to compensate for "its weakness in credible character motivation by exaggerating the sensational aspects of its story development". . . AIP eastern pub director Ruth Pologe back home after a week of conferences on the Coast . . . George Ross is heading the special press unit on Ernie Pintoff's "Harvey Middleman, Fireman," now shooting here for Col release.

Columbia exec veep Leo Jaffe has returned to the homeoffice after two weeks of meetings with studio heads on the Coast . . . Yujiro Ishihara, a leading Japanese actor, has been signed for a key role in 20th's "Those Magnificent Men in Their Flying Machines". . . Casino Films has acquired seven new pix for release in German language here, including the German-made, Jayne Mansfield starrer, "Homesick for St. Paul."

David Picker at his UA desk after a holiday . . "House Is Not a Home" wound lensing last week . . . Robert Surtees set as chief cinematographer for Metro's Richard Chamberlain-Yvette Mimieux starrer "Joy in the Morning," due to roll May 11 . . . Ingrid Bergman's 24-year-old daughter, Pia Bergman Lindstrom, inked for "Marriage—Italian Style," now lensing in Naples.

Leonard Lightstone, Embassy exec v.p., left for Cannes last Monday (27) . . French film director Jean-Luc Godard in Gotham to make a documentary on "Women of New York" for the French tv web. Yank camera team of Albert and David Maysles is working with him . . . Allied Artists held a housewarming breakfast for its new fifth floor ad-pub offices in New York yesterday (Tues.) . . . Ivan Tors and Ian Player, chief game warden at the Umfolozi Game Reserve, Zululand, South Africa, touring the country for Metro's "Rhino."

Susan Oliver inked to play the wife of Hank Williams in Metro's biopic about the late country singer, which began lensing last week . . . Preston Pierce into "Young Fury" at Par . . . Metro perking in the Los Angeles area, with 10 pix set for multiples there during the next four months . . Isobel Lennart set to script "A Garden of Cucumbers" for Mirisch-UA . . . Harve Presnell cited as "most versatile new star" by the Federation of Motion Picture Council's American Clubwomen at their annual convention in Atlanta last week.

Francois ("The 400 Blows," "Jules and Jim") Trauffaut's newest film, "La Peau Douce," has acquired for U.S. release by Don Rugoff's newly-expanded Cinema V. Film, which is a French entry at the Cannes Fest, is expected to kickoff Cinema V's new release sked . . . Truffaut has been in the States for the last two weeks winding details on his upcoming Alfred Hitchcock book and plans on his projected film version of Ray Bradbury's "Fahrenheit 451," to be done here late this year or early next. He returns to France (and the Cannes Fest) this week . . . Another top French director, Jean-Luc Godard, in town to do a tv film on American women.

Why did it take four years for "The Grand Olympics," the highly praised Italo documentary feature about the 1960 Olympics, to reach this shore? Best answer seems to be that the original asking price ($250,000 to $300,000) seemed a little too rich for local distribs who felt that perhaps the 1960 Olympics, well covered by tv and the press, would be hard to sell at the theatrical boxoffice. Execs of Times Film, which opened the pic last week at the Guild, acquired it only about two months ago, feeling that its general cinematic excellence over-rode any loss of timeliness.

George Fenneman will narrate the featurette which Col producer Charles H. Schneer is making to spark the promotion on his "First Men in The Moon," now being filmed in London . . . Filmways' chairman Marty Ransohoff is one of the 11 young American millionaires profiled in Charles Sopkin's new Random House book, "Money Talks."

As Ransohoff remembers it, his love affair with the movies began when he was a kid: "We'd be driving through Times Square and my father would say, 'Look at the Camel sign where the smoke is coming out.' And I would say, 'Look at the Criterion.'"

Michael Mayer, IFIDA's exec director and general counsel since its Inception in 1959, has been given a new employment contract for the year starting May 1 . . And add Clem Perry's Altura Films to the list of IFIDA member companies . . . Robert Mitchum signed as one of the first stars for 20th's upcoming roadshow epic, "The Day Custer Fell."

Otto Preminger and "In Harm's Way" production staffers Loyal Griggs, Lyle Wheeler, Dan McCauley and Richard Mansfield back from a location hunting trip to Hawaii . . . Ralph Nelson and Fred Engel will make "To Scratch a Thief" for Metro, coproducing with Jacques Bar's Cipra Films and toplining Alain Delon. Duo has inked J. Paul Popkin as production supervisor for this project and others such as "The Seventh File," to be made for UA, and "The Pied Pipers," for Universal . . . "The Best Man" invited for an out-of-competition showing at Cannes.

Sam Robert, IATSE studio mechanics Local 52 pub director, laid up at home with a leg ailment . . . Lars McSorley, Paramount pub staffer, tripped in a subway station last week while escorting his son and wound up with a cracked rib . . . UA is sending some stills taken of Elke Somer during the filming of "Shot In the Dark" around to scribes with "do not publish" stamped on 'em. They are unprintable in the first place, just teasers for the boys.

James R. Velde, UA sales v.p., planed to the Coast over the weekend for a week of meetings with Los Angels Branch personnel . . . Cecelia Lousky inked for Metro's "36 Hours," marking her silver anni in Hollywood. Popular Library will publish George Seaton's screenplay . . . Roberto Gerardi set for Joe Levine-Carlo Ponti's "Marriage—Italian Style" . . . Variety Club of New York will honor the Catholic Actor's Guild and its prez Horace McMahon on the occasion of the unit's 50th anni, May 14 at the Astor Hotel, tickets going for $5.50

Lee Tracy back on the Coast after a few-week Gotham visit on behalf of "Best Man," in which he's one of the topliners . . . Bernice Dalton, mother of tv actor David Janssen, has a role in Hal Wallis' "Roustabout" . . . Joe Levine has set a deal with Albert Band of Marathon International Films of Rome for the production in Yugoslavia of a western tentatively titled "The Tramplers," to topline James Mitchum with filming to begin in August . . . with openings last week in Seattle and San Diego, "It's a Mad, Mad, Mad, Mad World" is now playing in 31 U.S.-Canada situations. Bristol, Conn., radio station WBIS is celebrating its 10th anni with a contest for listeners, the prizes for which are tickets to the May 25 evening performance of the Stanley Kramer pic.

Alfred Katz, UA foreign sales v.p., in Montevideo, Uruguay, for product confabs with company execs there . . . Metro has postponed until later this year the start of "The ABC Murders" at its London studio . . UA's "The World of Henry Orient," which last week completed a successful run at Radio City Music Hall, will open May 6 on a "premiere showcase" run in New York . . . producer Pandro S. Berman leaves for London today (Wed.) to scout locales for Metro's "The Venetian Affair" . . . Sophia Loren awarded Helsinki's Elokuva Aitte Key as "most popular actress in Finland" . . . producer Lewis Gilbert has checked in at Par to begin "No Bail For the Judge" . . . Lawrence Weingarten will make "Gabriela, Clove and Cinnamon" as his next for Metro.

Frances Farmer, former film star and now hosting a program on an Indianapolis television station "in which we talk about motion pictures" commented on "Today" over NBC-TV, last week, that she had visited Hollywood. The "big studios were almost empty . . . it looked like a ghost town." This was due to "television."

Latest spanking in print for the government re its restricted showings of USIA-made films ("only for showing abroad") is by John E. Fitzgerald, Our Sunday Visitor critic. It's part of an interview with George Stevens Jr. . . . Brazilian pic, "The Given Word" moves to the 8th St. Playhouse today (Wed.) for extended exclusive run . . . Universal touts letters from Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas and Oregon Senator Maurine B. Neuberger praising its "Island of the Blue Dolphins."

The Mo (Hannah) Rothmans heading for their second child; Nicole is now three.

Recalling "Tom Jones," "The Apartment" and "Irma La Douce" as in point, reader Jeffrey Barron of Chicago writes that an Oscar might well be given the "Beds Picture" of the year.

After Arthur Godfrey, on his CBS radio program tabbed Shirley Temple's 36th birthday, remarked that she appeared in successful motion pictures at the age of seven, and commented "Doesn't it make you feel a little bit old?" a Chicago guest observed, "She was the beneficiary of the Jackie Coogan Law. By the time Coogan, a child star, grew up, there was none of the fortune (he made) left."

Ingmar Bergman's recent film was part of a trial in Denmark against the British book "Fanny Hill," accused of obscenity. During the trial, jury read a novel, "Sangen om den roede rubin" (The Song Of The Red Ruby) by Norwegian author Agnar Mykle, previously subject to a similar trial in Norway. Then the Danish jury went to see Ingmar Bergman's "Tystnaden" (The Silence), shown in Denmark without any cuts. After this, the jury returned with their decision re "Fanny Hill," which was "not guilty."

Anthony Mann selected as U.S. juror at the Berlin Film Fest . . . Ely Landau has acquired "The Umbrellas of Cherbourg," musical pic which has been a hit in France and was recently shown out of competition at the Buenos Aires Film Fest, for U.S.-Canadian distribution. Indie has also acquired Howard Fast's novel, "Freedom Road" for filming . . . "Carpetbaggers" will make its New York bow July 1 or thereabouts, probably daydating the Paramount and Festival Theatres.

Joe Levine's Lincoln Arts Theatre, long in construction, may now be ready by late May and will possibly be inaugurated with the Vittorio Gassman starrer "Let's Talk About Love" (an Embassy release). Showman now looks to open "Threepenny Opera" late in August, probably at his Festival Theatre.

Samuel Goldwyn named recipient of the first Golden Door Awards established by the American Council for Nationalities Service to honor Americans of foreign birth who have made outstanding contributions to American life and culture. Award will be presented at

(Continued on page 18)

FATHER CORDERO A VET SHOWMAN

Rome, April 28.

San Paolo Films, company headed by a Catholic priest which controls 85-90% of the Italo 16m market, is branching out into film production in a big way. San Paolo is producing the only pic now shooting at Cinecitta here—"Saul and David"—and has plans for 11 more Biblical features, each budgeted at approximately $800,000.

Don Emilio Cordero, who has headed the company for the last 15 years, reports that San Paolo will make another feature next year, "Paulus."

San Paolo, under the Don Cordero aegis, has expanded to such a degree that it now handles 2,200 to 2,300 16m prints a year, and currently has between 320 and 350 titles in its catalog. Total varies constantly as most 16m rights are for periods of four or five years.

Company's current production, "Saul and David," actually was preceded on the San Paolo slate by "The Patriarchs," but that pic, completed last year, was purchased by Dino De Laurentiis, who reportedly feared it might take away from the public interest in his own upcoming version of "The Bible." According to one source, De Laurentiis paid $500,000 for the film which is said to have cost Don Cordero $350,000.

San Paolo's plans for the next 10 years don't stop at the Biblical series but are taking in tv shows as well. The company has quietly worked its way towards self-sufficiency by purchasing and refurbishing leftover armor and costumes from "Barabbas," "Cleopatra," and other recent specs, and by acquiring various kinds of technical equipment from other local firms in need of cash (San Paolo bylaws require that it deal only in cash). Outfit also plans to construct its own film studio on land it now owns near Ostia, on the seaside near Rome.

The "Saul and David" company, with British actor Norman Wooland in role of Saul, leaves here shortly for a seven-week location stint in Spain.

'New York Film Underground' Pops Up at Cannes Film Festival

Cannes, April 28.

From the looks of the many impressive "first" pix which were submitted to the Cannes Critics' Section this year, New York City "underground film movement" is well "above ground abroad." Unfortunately, however, only one such pic can be entered in the critics' competition from each country."

The critics' competition occupies eight days during the big Cannes fest, with screenings held each afternoon in a small projection room at the Festival Palace. Of the 32 pix submitted from 21 countries, for the comp, a group of French and foreign critics, working in Paris, chose seven films to compete. The last day of the competition is devoted to a film of some sort of special quality—this year, the U.S. feature documentary based on the Army-McCarthy hearings, "Point of Order."

The official feature choice from the U. S. is a mordant, modern fable about big city life "Goldstein," directed by Benjamin Manaster and Philiy Kaufman, which comes from not New York but Chicago. But Gotham filmmaker Adolfas Mekas did the editing.

Confusing Marquee

RKO last month sold its Regent on 7th Ave. and 116th St., New York, to the Corinthian Baptist Church, whose name now adorns the north and south sides of the marquee.

But the good parishioners forgot to change the tungsten billing on the front marquee which still spells out a double-feature: "Four From Texas" (Sinatra-Martin) and "Murderous Fiend," a chillerdiller.

Theatre Sues Rochester Solons for Confiscating Picture as 'Obscene'

Rochester, N.Y., April 24.

Operators of the Lyric Theatre here have started a $100,000 damage action against the City of Rochester as the result of obscene film charges by police. A show-cause order and a summons were served, naming as defendants the city corporation. counsel's office, Police Chief William M. Lombard and Inspector DiCroce and demanding return of the confiscated film, "Bell, Bare and Beautiful."

Contained in the legal papers which summarized arguments against illegal arrest and for loss of revenue, was the $100,000 claim for "monetary and punitive damages."

Eli Jackson and William Berger of Cincinnati, the theatre's coowners, declared the film in question was licensed by the N. Y. State Dept. of Education, and carried the State Regent's seal of approval.

Three reels of the film plus a quantity of allegedly indecent magazines and pictures were seized.

The pic, advertised as "adult" entertainment, showing nude women and men cavorting about, was reported by police to be attracting a number of youths.

'Purlie Victorious' Set in W. Africa

"Purlie Victorious," the filmization of Ossie Davis' racial satire, will be distributed in W. Africa late this summer. This is the first of what its producers hope will be several overseas distrib deals for the film which still has no distributor in the U.S.

Coproducer Milton Hammer has been in Europe for the past couple of weeks seeing to possible foreign distrib arrangements. He had to return to the States because of the illness and subsequent passing of his mother but will go back within the next few weeks to continue his dealings. The W. African distrib deal was arranged via the Motion Picture Export Assn. and will cover such countries as Nigeria, Ghana, Liberia and others. While across the pond he also initiated a deal for Britain, which is close to signing.

On the domestic side, Hammer is still trying to line up a distrib for the satire. His own company, which isn't in the film distribution business, has been handling some dates for the pic but it hasn't had any broad playoff. Hammer reports, however, that since the Sidney Poitier Oscar, he has gotten a few calls from distribs expressing renewed interest in handling the pic. He feels that the award to the Negro actor will probably help "Purlie," whether he continues to book it or can bring in a distrib.

His plan for the foreign market is to make outright sales on the film for territories. This is the nature of the deal worked out in England. When he returns to Europe, Hammer plans to visit several other countries with the print and initiative action. He's gotten some in quiries from France and elsewhere so far.

'CARDINAL' INTO 77; FIVE DAYS, $287,109

Columbia's "The Cardinal" racked up $287,109 in first five days of circuit run of 77 theatres in the N.Y. metropolitan area. Circuit break follows a four-week multiple "Cardinal" showcase presentation in the N.Y. area which attained a Columbia record of $1,003,107 with a total of 54 weeks of holdover time above initial bookings.

As of last week end the Otto Preminger production had totaled $1,734,793 in b.o. receipts in the N.Y. area, including the 15-week premiere engagement which grossed $444,577.

New Pix Perk Chi; 'Russia' Towering $38,000, 'Dr. Lao' Happy 22G, 'Muscle' Stout 15G, 'Panther' Fast 12G, 6th

Chicago, April 28.

"From Russia With Love" is bowing to a towering $38,000 in an otherwise generally quiet Windy City firstrun round. However, "Seven Faces of Dr. Lao" is garnering a socko $22,000 Oriental debut.

Monroe tandem of "Hell Fire Club" and "Love Makers" looms lovely in first frame. Balmoral Theatre, in its first week as firstrun arty house, shapes sharp with "Julie The Redhead."

"Muscle Beach Party" is notching a hefty second Roosevelt round. "Captain Newman" is posting a strong sixth week at the Chicago. "Ping Panther" shapes solid in State-Lake sixth. "The Silence" is strong at both the Loop and Carnegie in sixth.

"Seven Days in May" is bright in United Artists ninth session. "Dr. Strangelove" continues great in Esquire 10th round.

On hardticket, "Fall of Roman Empire" is rated fair in second Todd canto. "Becket" is nabbing a solid sixth Cinestage lap. "It's a Mad World" is lusty in McVickers 23d week.

Estimates for This Week

Balmoral, Demos) (512; 90-$1.80) —"Julie the Redhead" (Indie). Good $2,500. Last week, house was dark.

Carnegie (Brotman) (495; $1.25-$1.80)—"Silence" (Janus) (6th wk). Brisk $3,500. Last week, $3,900.

Chicago (B&K) (3,900; 90-$1.80) —"Captain Newman" (U) (6th wk). Sturdy $16,000. Last week, $15,000.

Cinema (Stern) (500; $1.50)— "To Bed Or Not To Bed" (Cont) (6th wk). Pale $2,000. Last week, $3,500.

Cinestage (Todd) (1,038; $1.75-$3.50)—"Becket" (Par) (6th wk). Solid $15,000. Last week, $17,000.

Esquire (H&E Balaban) (1,236; $1.25-$1.80) — "Dr. Strangelove" (Col) (10th wk). Nice $9,000. Last week, $12,000.

Loop (Brotman) (606; 90-$1.80)—

(Continued on page 10)

Key City Grosses

Estimated Total Gross
This Week $2,990,500
(Based on 24 cities and 288 theatres).
Last Year $2,789,800
(Based on 23 cities and 284 theatres, chiefly first runs including N. Y.)

'Advance' Mild 5G, Mpls.; 'West' 10G

Minneapolis, April 28.

Enlivening the local scene currently are many newcomers all along the line, even though none of them seems to shape as a big barnburner. Downtown arrivals include "Advance to Rear," "Flight From Ashiya," "Love On a Pillow" and "Shock Treatment" and "Surf Party," latter two on a twin bill. "Ashiya" is rated very disappointing at Orpheum. "Rear" looks mild at State.

However, there's a plentiful array of holdovers, two of which, "How West Was Won," in 60th week at Cooper, and "Tom Jones," in 10th stanza at World, continue to come through with remarkable grosses. Reissued "South Pacific" did well enough first week to warrant retention for a second. "Seven Days in May," approaching start of fourth month, still is big at Park.

Competish from the Twins American League baseball team now is tough for the showhouses, even though its brief initial home stand finished on the weekend.

Estimates for This Week

Academy (Mann) (1,050; $1.75-$2.65)—"Fall of Roman Empire" (Par) (2d wk). Okay $6,000. Last week, $10,000.

Avalon (Frank) (900; $1)—"Model Camera" (Indie) and "Fast and Sexy" (Indie). So-so $1,000. Last week, "Queens Wild" (Indie) and "Playgirl and War Minister" (Indie) (reissue) (2d wk), $1,100.

Campus (Mann) (600; $1)—"Great Chase" (Cont) and "Playgirl and War Minister" (Cont) (reissues). Fair $2,000. Last week, "Silence" (Janus) (2d wk), $2,000 at $1.25 scale.

Century (Par) (1,300; $1.50-$3.50)

(Continued on page 10)

'TERRORS' HOT $8,500, OMAHA: 'BECKET' HEP 5G

Omaha, April 28.

"Tom Jones" did a rousing $18,000 at three Ralph Blank chain houses after Oscar, and in 11th week at Admiral alone is still big. Chief and Skyview has "Comedy of Terrors" for a good total. "Becket" looms hep in fifth round at Cooper.

"Mad World" in fourth week at Indian Hills still is socko.

Estimates for This Week

Orpheum (Tri-States) (2,870; $1.25) — "Hud" (Par) (reissue). Nice $6,000. Last week, "Shock Treatment" (20th), $3,500.

Omaha (Tri - States) (2,066; $1.25)—"Pillow Talk" (U) and "Operation Petticoat" (U) (reissues). Mild $3,500. Last week, "Dark Purpose" (U), $2,500.

Cooper (Cooper) (687; $1.25)— "Becket" (Par) (5th wk). Hep $5,000 or near. Last week, $5,500.

State (Cooper) (752; $1.25)— "Night Must Fall" (MGM). Good $4,500. Last week, "Tiger Walks" (BV) (4th wk), $3,000.

Indian Hills (Cooper) (804; $2.25)—"Mad World" (UA) (4th wk). Big $12,000 or over. Last week, $14,000.

Admiral, Chief, Skyview (Ralph Blank) (1,000, 1,234, 1,122 cars; $1.50)—"Tom Jones" (UA) (11th wk). Strong $5,000 at Admiral alone. "Comedy of Terrors" (AI), at Chief and Skyview, good $8,500. Last week, "Tom Jones" at Admiral, Chief, Skyview, outstanding $18,000.

D.C. Uneven; 'Order' Big 8G; 'Panther' Boffo 12G; 'Jones' Torrid $19,000

Washington, April 28.

Trade is spotty this session with holdovers and longruns supplying most of punch. Initialing "Point of Order," at MacArthur Theatre, looms big. "Dr. Strangelove" looks boff in 10th at Dupont. "Yesterday, Today and Tomorrow" shapes sock in fourth at Embassy.

"Tom Jones" is hotsy in 18th at the Ontario. "Pink Panther" is rated socko in sixth at Keith's. "Lilies of Field" shapes sturdy in reissue at Palace. "Seven Days in May" and "Captain Newman" are okay at Trans-Lux and the Town.

Estimates for This Week

Ambassador-Metropolitan (SW) (1,480; 1,000; $1-$1.49) — "P.T. 109" (WB) (reissue). Fair $7,500 or near. Last week, "Global Affair" (MGM) and "Tamahine" (MGM), $6,200.

Apex (KB) (940; $1.25-$1.40)— "Silence" (Janus) (3d wk). Trim $5,000. Last week, $5,300.

Dupont (Mann) (400; $1.50-$2) —"Dr. Strangelove" (Col) (10th

(Continued on page 10)

Daylight Time Bops Philly Albeit 'Man' Good $9,000; 'Paris' Lean 9½G, 'Dr. Lao' Fat 12G; 'World' 12G, 19th

Philadelphia, April 28.

Usual slump with advent of Daylight Savings time is sloughing biz here currently. Suffering most seem to be the newcomers. However, "Best Man" shapes good at the Arcadia. "Empty Canvas" is barely good at Goldman while "Paris When It Sizzles" is rated tepid, also on opener, at Randolph.

"It's a Mad World" looms as strongest of longruns with a torrid showing in 19th session at Boyd. "Fall of Roman Empire," credited with $12,000 in third round at 1,450-seat Stanley, is described as firm.

Estimates for This Week

Arcadia (S&S) (623; $1.20-$1.80) —"Best Man" (UA). Good $9,000. Last week, "Night Must Fall" (MGM) (3d wk), $5,000.

Boyd (SW) (1,536; $2-$2.75)— "Mad World" (UA) (19th wk). Hot $12,000 or over. Last week, $11,000.

Bryn Mawr (Goldman) (630; $1.49)—"America, America" (WB) (7th wk). Lean $1,800. Last week, $3,100.

Fox (Milgram) (2,400; 95-$1.80) ——"Captain Newman" (U) (4th wk). Okay $9,000. Last week, $14,000.

Goldman (Goldman) (1,000; 95-$1.80) — "Empty Canvas" (Embassy). Good $9,000 or near. Last week, "Dark Purpose" (U), $7,000.

Lane (SW) (1,000; $1.49)— "Silence" (Janus) (4th wk). So-so $2,700. Last week, $3,500.

Midtown (Goldman) (1,200; 95-$2.50) — "Tom Jones" (UA) (9th wk). Potent $19,000. Last week, $22,000.

Randolph (Goldman) (2,200; 95-$1.80) — "Paris When It Sizzles" (Par). Tepid $9,500. Last week, "Dr. Strangelove" (Col) (9th wk), $6,000.

Stanley (SW) (1,450; $2.50-$2.75) —"Fall of Roman Empire" (Par) (3d wk). Firm $12,000. Last week, $12,300.

Stanton (SW) (1,483; 95-$1.80)— "Seven Faces of Dr. Lao" (MGM). Busy $12,000. Last week, "Shock Treatment" (20th) (2d wk), $6,000.

Studio (Goldberg) (383; 95-$1.80) —"Sin on Beach" (Indie) (2d wk). Hot $5,000. Last week, $7,000.

Trans-Lux (T-L) (500; 95-$2)— "Charade" (U) (18th wk). Nice $3,500. Last week, $3,800.

Yorktown (SW) (1,000; $1.49)— "8½" (Embassy) (reissue) (3d wk). Fair $2,800. Last week, $4,200.

World (Rugoff) (500; 95-$1.80)— "America, America" (WB) (7th wk). Quiet $2,200. Last week, $2,400.

Broadway Grosses

Estimated Total Gross
This Week $569,830
(Based on 36 theatres)
Last Year $590,400
(Based on 34 theatres)

'Act One' Fair 12G, Det.; 'World' 25G

Detroit, April 28.

Overall firstrun grosses will seek a lower level this week as weak newcomers fail to attract patrons. "Act One" is only fair at the Michigan. "Son of Captain Blood" shapes slow at the Palms, also on opener. "This Sporting Life" looks fairish at Grand Circus, on reissue.

"Tom Jones" still is smash in 11th session at Trans-Lux Krim. "It's a Mad World" continues great in 11th round at Music Hall. "Pink Panther" shapes big in fifth week at Adams.

Estimates for This Week

Fox (Downtown Fox Corp.) (5,041; $1.25-$1.49) — "Strangler" (AA) and "Secret Door" (AA) (2d wk). Mild $7,000. Last week, $12,500.

Michigan (United Detroit) (4,926; $1.25-$1.49)—"Act One" (WB) and "Indiscreet" (WB). Fair $12,000. Last week, "South Pacific" (20th) (reissue) (2d wk), $8,000.

Palms (UD) (2,995; $1.25-$1.49)— "Son of Captain Blood" (Par) and "Law of Lawless" (Par). Slow $7,500. Last week, "Greatest Show on Earth" (Par) and "Buccaneer" (Par) (reissues), $6,000.

Madison (UD) (1,408; $1.25-$1.49) —"Dr. Strangelove" (Col) (7th wk). Good $9,000. Last week, $10,000.

Grand Circus (UD) (1,400; $1.25-$1.49)—"This Sporting Life" (Cont) and "Lord of Flies" (Cont). Fair $7,000. Last week, "Psychomania" (Indie) and "Witch's Curse" (Indie), $5,000.

Adams (Community) (1,450; $1.23-$1.50)—"Pink Panther" (UA) (5th). Big $9,500. Last week, $10,000.

United Artists (UA) (1,667; $1.50-$2.50)—"Cleopatra" (20th) (44th wk). Slow $6,500. Last week, $6,400.

Music Hall (Beacon Enterprises) (1,213; $1.80-$3)—"It's a Mad World" (UA) (11th wk). Great $25,000. Last week, $24,700.

Mercury (Suburban Detroit) (1,468; $1-$1.80)—"Captain Newman" (UA) (5th wk). Down to fair $6,000. Last week, $6,400.

Trans-Lux Krim (Trans-Lux) (980; $1.25-$2)—"Tom Jones" (UA) (11th wk). Still great at $20,000. Last week, $22,000.

'SOLDIER' HEP $8,000, COL.; 'PARIS' GOOD 9G

Columbus, O., April 28.

Favorable business looms for new releases at the Ohio and Palace. "Paris When It Sizzles" looks good at the Ohio while "Soldier in Rain" at Palace is rated nice. "It's a Mad World" at the Grand shapes great in 11th week.

Estimates for This Week

Grand (RKO) (860; $1.50-$2.75) —"Mad World" (UA) (11th wk). Boffo $9,500. Last week, $9,800.

New Main (Yassenoff) and Beechwold (Academy-Neth) (1,100; 860; $1-$2)—"Cleopatra" (20th) (6th wk). Fair $6,500. Last week, $8,500.

Ohio (Loew) (3,079; 50-$1.50)— "Paris When It Sizzles" (Par). Good $9,000. Last week, "Captain Newman" (U), $6,300.

Palace (RKO) (2,845; 50-$1.50)— "Soldier in Rain" (AA) and "War is Hell" (AA). Nice $8,000 or near. Last week, "Tiger Walks" (BV) and "Cavalry Command" (Indie), $5,000.

L'ville Lags; 'Way' Dull $4,000; 'World' 6G, 18th

Louisville, April 28.

Firstruns are down a bit this week. Brightest prospect looks like the oldie "South Pacific," on reissue at the Mary Anderson, were good. "Global Affair" at the Penthouse, looks light. United Artists, with "One Man's Way" and "Yank in Vietnam" plus preview Saturday (25) night, is dull.

"Tom Jones," in 11th round at the Kentucky shapes nice. "Kissin' Cousins" at the Ohio is okay in second. "It's a Mad World," at Rialto, is doing nicely in 18th week.

Estimates for This Week

Kentucky (Switow) (900; 75-$1.25)—"Tom Jones" (UA) (11th wk). Looks nice $5,000, same as 10th week.

Mary Ann (People's) (1,100; 75-$1.25)—"South Pacific" (20th) (reissue). Opened strong over weekend, and should hit good $6,500. Last week, "PT-109" (WB) and "Palm Springs Weekend" (WB) (reissues) (2d wk), $4,000.

Ohio (Settos) (900; 75-$1.25)— "Kissin' Cousins" (MGM) (2d wk). Oke $5,500 after first week's $6,500.

Penthouse (Fourth Avenue) (1,100; 900: 75-$1.25)—"Global Affair" (MGM). Likely only dull $4,000 or near. Last week, "Love With Proper Stranger" (Par) (4th wk), $7,500.

Rialto (Fourth Avenue) (1,100; $1.50-$2.50)—"It's a Mad World" (UA) (18th wk). Good $6,000 or near after 17th hit $7,000.

United Artists (Fourth Avenue) 1,700; 75-$1.25)—"One Man's Way" (UA) and "Yank In Vietnam" (UA). Dull $4,000 or near.

'Muscle' Strong $7,000, Port.; 'Empire' 7½G, 2d

Portland, Ore., April 28.

Longruns are the heavyweights here this session. However, "Muscle Beach Party" shapes trim on opener at Fox while "Fall of Roman Empire" looks brisk in second at Music Box. "Tom Jones" is great in 11th round at Irvington. "It's a Mad World" shapes sockeroo in 19th session at Hollywood. "Cleopatra" is lusty in second week on popscale run at the Laurelhurst.

Estimates for This Week

Broadway (Parker) (1,890; $1-$1.50)—"Captain Newman" (U) and "One Man's Paris" (U) (6th wk). Sturdy $4,000. Last week, $3,900.

Cinema 21 (Foster) (648; $1.50) —"Easy Life" (Indie) (2d wk). So-so $2,000. Last week, $3,600.

Fine Arts (Foster) (421; $1.50)— "America, America" (WB) (m.o.) (2d wk), Okay $2,000. Last week, $2,600.

Fox (Evergreen) (1,600; $1-$1.49)—"Muscle Beach Party" (AI) and "Young Racers" (AI). Trim $7,000. Last week, "Dr. Strangelove" (Col) (4th wk), $5,900.

Hollywood (Evergreen) (1,188; $1.49-$2.75)—"It's a Mad World" (UA) (19th wk). Sockeroo $9,000. Last week, $9,300.

Irvington (Smith) (650; $1.50)— "Tom Jones" (UA) (11th wk). Great $10,000. Last week, $10,500.

Laurelhurst (Cruikshank) (700; $1.50)—"Cleopatra" (20th) (2d wk). At pop prices. Loud $6,200. Last week, $6,600.

Music Box (Hamrick) (640; $1.50-$3)—"Fall of Roman Empire" (Par) (2d wk). Brisk $7,500 or near. Last week, $8,000.

Orpheum (Evergreen) (1,536; $1-$1.49)—"Hud" (Par) and "Lilies of Field" (UA) (reissues) (2d wk). Tall $8,000 or close. Last week, $7,600.

Paramount (Port-Par) (3,006; $1-$1.50)—"Night Must Fall" (MGM) and "Murder At Gallop" (MGM). Drab $3,000. Last week, "Voodoo Village" (Indie) and "Girls of Night" (Indie), $2,100.

'Russia' Smash $15,000 to Pace Cincy; 'Empire' 9G; 'World' Wham 12G, 19th

Cincinnati, April 28.

"From Russia With Love" rates gallant in first week at the flagship Albee in bid to dominate Cincy's film front currently and wrest longtime lead held by hardticketers. It is rated socko. Firstruns in general are showing no pain in face of increasing outdoor lures. First home stand of Cincy Reds is regarded as helpful to downtown traffic but not for nabes.

"Fall of Roman Empire" looks okay in second session at Grand. "Mad World" holds boffo in 19th session at Capitol. "Tom Jones" retains favor in 11th round at Times. "Act One" bids so-so in opener at the Palace. "Lilies of the Field" is flexing Oscar laurels at Keith's.

Estimates for This Week

Albee (RKO) (3,100; $1.25-$1.50) —"From Russia With Love" (UA). Socko $15,000 or over. Last week, "Night Must Fall" (MGM) (2d wk), $6,500.

Capitol (SW - Cinerama) (1,329; $1.25-$2.75) — "Mad World" (UA) (19th wk). Boff $12,000. Last week, $12,500.

Esquire (Cin-T-Co) (500; $1.25)— "Dr. Strangelove" (Col) (subrun) (2d wk). Strong $1,800 after $2,500 opener. Daydating with Hyde Park.

Grand (RKO) (1,396; $1.75)— "Fall of Roman Empire" (Par) (2d wk). Okay $9,000. Last week, $10,500.

Guild (Kilgore) (272; $1.25)— "Mondo Cane" (Indie) (reissue) (2d wk). Swell $1,500 after $2,000 for first.

Hyde Park (Cin-T-Co) (700; $1.25) —"Dr. Strangelove" (Col) (subrun) (2d wk). Potent $1,600. Last week, $1,800.

Keith's (1,500; $1.25-$1.50)— "Lilies of Field" (UA) (subrun). Good $6,500. Last week, "A Tiger Walks" (UA), $6,000.

Palace (RKO) (2,600; $1.25-$1.50) —"Act One" (WB). No complaint at $6,500. Last week, "Seven Faces of Dr. Lao" (MGM) (4th wk), $5,500.

Plaza (Fine Arts) (600; $1.25)— "Love Makers" (Indie). Slow $1,000.

Times (Mid-States) (660; $1.25-$1.50)—"Tom Jones" (UA) (11th wk). Still plenty plush at $11,000. Last week, $12,000.

Twin Drive-In (Cin-T-Co) (800 cars each side; $1)—West: "Crawling Hand" (Indie) and "Slime People" (Indie). Fair $5,000. Last week, "Frigid Life" (Indie), $9,000. East: "The Cardinal" (Col) (subrun) and "Skydivers" (Indie). Light $4,000. Last week, "Man's Favorite Sport" (U) and "Caretaker" (UA), $4,500.

Valley (Cin-T-Co) (1,275; $1.50) —"South Pacific" (20th) (reissue) (2d wk). Nice $6,000. Last week, $8,000.

L.A. Biz Potent; 'Rear' Okay $16,000; 'Hud' Socko 45G, 'Today' Bright 18G, 'Panther' Lively 13G, 'Becket' $17,600

Los Angeles, April 28.

First runs here continue to show staunch returns, with Oscar winners potently effective as past strong holdovers continue their winning ways. Pair of newcomers are not too exciting. "Advance To Rear," however, is rated okay in three theatres for initial week. "Goliath and Vampires" is fair $11,000 or over for two houses on opener.

Among regular holdovers, "Hud" is getting sock biz paired with "Lilies of Field," in second week, three spots, and with "America, America," in one location, also second. Combo looks $31,000 or better. Looped for same frame in three others houses with "Capt. Newman" and "L-Shaped Room," a nice $14,000 looms for "Hud."

"Yesterday, Today and Tomorrow" shapes big $18,000 or near in sixth round at Embassy. "Pink Panther" looks lofty $13,000 or close for sixth Hollywood Par week. "South Pacific" on reissue still is solid in fourth at Egyptian.

"Mad World" and "Becket" are among standout hardticketers.

Estimates for This Week

Baldwin, Four Star, Village, Warren's (State-UATC-FWC-Metropolitan) (1,800; 868; 1,535; 1,757; $1-$2) — "Lilies of Field" (UA) (2d wk) and "Hud." (Par) (reissues) (Baldwin, Village, Warren's) (M.O.) "America, America" (WB) (reissue) (Four Star) (2d wk). Sock $31,000 or over. Last week, Baldwin with Orpheum, Pix, Wiltern, "Soldier in Rain" (AA), "Cry of Battle" (AA) $21,600. Four Star, Warren's, "Lilies of Field," (UA) "America, America" (WB) $18,400. Village with El Rey, Hillstreet, Hollywood, "Hud" "L-Shaped Room" (Col) (reissue), $26,700.

Beverly (State) (1,150; $1.49-$2.40) — "Dr. Strangelove" (Col) (10th wk). Smart $11,00. Last week, $12,200.

Chinese (FWC) (1,408; $1.49-$2.40) — "Seven Days in May" (Par) (8th wk). Busy $12,000. Last week, $14,000.

Cinerama (Pac) (915; $1.49-$3.50) —"Mad World" (UA) (25th wk). Hot $27,000. Last week, $26,000.

Crest (State) (750; $1.25)—"Captain Newman" (U) and "Brass Bottle" (U) (3d wk). Okay $3,000. Last week, with Los Angeles, Loyola, $12,700.

Egyptian (UATC) (1,392; $1.55)—"South Pacific" (20th) (reissue) (4th wk). Lively $10,000. Last week, $10,900.

El Rey, Hollywood, Loyola (FWC)

(Continued on page 10)

'Muscle' Virile $8,000, Buff.; 'Jones' 9G, 12th

Buffalo, April 28.

Some fresh screen fare here currently but most of it is disappointing. However, "Muscle Beach Party" is rated good on opener at Paramount' "Shock Treatment" is slow at Center while "Dark Purpose" looms dull at the Buffalo. "Tom Jones" continues potent in two small houses in 12th session.

Estimates for This Week

Buffalo (Loew) ($3,500; $1-$1.49) —"Dark Purpose" (U) and "Young and Willing" (U). Soft $5,000. Last week, "Flight from Ashiya" (UA) and "Wild Guitar" (Indie), $5,300.

Center (AB-PT) (2,500; $1-$1.49) —"Shock Treatment" (20th) and "Surf Party" (20th). Mild $4,500. Last week, "Dr. Strangelov" (Col) (3d wk), $6,000.

Century (UATC) (2,700; $1-$1.49) —"Hud" (Par) and "Lillies of Field" ,UA) (reissues) (2d wk). Wow. $10,000. Last week, $18,000.

Paramount (AB-PT) (3,000; $1-$1.49)—"Muscle Beach Party" (AI). Good $8,000 or over. Last week, "Mr. Limpet" (WB), $6,000.

Teck (Loew) (1,200; $1.25-$2.50) —"Mad World" (UA) (5th wk). Okay $6,800. Last week, $7,500.

Cinema (Martina) (450; $1-$1.49) —"Tom Jones (UA) (12th). Potent $4,000. Last week, $4,500.

Amherst (Dipson) (1,000; $1-$1.49)—"Tom Jones" (UA) (12th wk). Strong $5,000 or better. Last week, $6,000.

Granada (Schine) (1,000; $1-$1.50)—"Captain Newman" (U) (6th wk). Slow $3,000 or less. Last week, $3,500.

Estimates Are Net

Film gross estimates as reported herewith from the various key cities, are net; i.e., without usual tax. Distributors share on net take, when playing percentage, hence the estimated figures are net income.

The parenthetic admission prices, however, as indicated, include U. S. amusement tax.

'Becket' Wow 20G, Denver; 'West' 11G

Denver, April 28.

Outstanding newcomer here this stanza is "Becket," which shapes mighty on preem round at the RKO International. "Goliath and Vampire" looks stout on opener at the Denver. "Carpetbaggers" still is smash in third stanza at Paramount. "How West Was Won" is rated sharp in 58th week at the Cooper.

Estimates for This Week

Aladdin (Fox) (900; $1.45) — "Dr. Strangelove" (Col) (8th wk). Neat $4,000. Last week, $4,500.

Centre (Fox) (1,270; $1.25-$1.45) — "Sunday in New York" (MGM) (2d wk). Fine $9,000. Last week, $11,500.

Cooper (Cooper) (814; $1.65-$2.50)—"How West Was Won" (MGM) (58th wk). Sharp $11,000. Last week, $9,850.

Denham (Indie) (800; $1.45-$2.50) —"Fall of Roman Empire" (Par) (3d wk). Okay $6,500. Last week, $7,000.

Denver (Fox) (2,430; $1.25)—"Goliath and Vampire" (AI) and "Circus of Horrors" (AI). Stout $13,000 or near. Last week, "Soldier in Rain" (AA), $12,500.

Esquire (Fox) (600; $1.45)—"Cleopatra" (20th) (3d wk). Nice $3,000 on popscale. Last week, $3,500.

Paramount (Wolfberg) (2,100; $1.25-$1.45) — "Carpetbaggers" (Par) (3d wk). Boffo $17,000. Last week, $27,000.

RKO International 70 (1,530; $1.25-$2.50)—"Becket" (Par). Wow $20,000 or close. Last week, "Paris When It Sizzles" (Par) (4th wk), $4,000.

Towne (Indie) (600; $1.25-$1.45) —"Tom Jones" (UA) (10th wk). Fine $5,000. Last week, $5,500.

Crest (Wolfberg) (700; $1.25-$1.45)—"Tom Jones" (10th wk). Big $6,000. Last week, $6,500.

Vogue (Art Theatre Guild) (450; $1.25)—"High and Low" (Toho). Okay $1,500. Last week, "Macbeth" (Indie), $1,400.

'Today' Mighty $12,000, Toronto; 'Panther' 15G

Toronto, April 28.

Despite Stanley Cup hockey playoffs, blamed for a drop in attendance, biz at many houses continues sturdy this stanza. "Pink Panther" is rated nice on opener at Carlton while "One Man's Way" looks stout on initial frame at Fairlawn. "Yesterday, Today and Tomorrow" shapes socko for first at the Towne. "Becket" looms wow in fifth round at Eglinton. "Night Must Fall" is okay at the Hollywood.

Estimates for This Week

Carlton (Rank) (2,158; $1.25-$1.75) — "Pink Panther" (UA). Lofty $15,000. Last week, "It's a Mad World" (UA), $8,000.

Coronet, Danforth, Humber (Rank) (799; 1,328; 1,203; $1-$1.50) —"Lawrence of Arabia" (Col) (3d wk). Fine $22,000. Last week, $30,000.

Fairlawn (Rank) (1,165; $1-$1.50) —"One Man's Way" (UA). Sturdy $9,000. Last week, "Dr. Strangelove" (Col), $6,000.

Hyland (Rank) (1,357; $1-$1.50) —"Tom Jones" (UA) (18th wk). Sock $20,000. Last week, $23,000.

International (Taylor) (557; $1-$1.50)—"Servant" (IFD). Big $6,000. Last week, "Purple Noon" (Indie), $2,200.

Loew's (Loew) (1,639; $1-$1.50)—"Capt. Newman" (U) (5th wk). Lusty $8,500. Last week, $10,500.

Towne (Taylor) (693; $1-$1.50)—"Yesterday, Today and To-morrow" (IFD). Sock $12,000. Last week, "Family Diary" (Indie), $3,700.

Uptown (Loew) (2,245; $1-$1.50) —"Macbeth" (7 Arts). Big $13,000. Last week, "Why Bother to Knock," (Indie), $8,200.

Yorkdale Cinema (Taylor) (450; $1-$1.50) — "America, America" (WB) (6th wk). Trim $3,000. Last week, $3,500.

Eglinton (FP) (950; $1-$1.50)—"Becket" (Par) (5th wk). Looks wow $15,000 or close. Last week, $16,000.

Hollywood (FP) (1,080; $1-$1.50) "Night Must Fall" (MGM). Okay $9,500. Last week, "Love With Proper Stranger" (Par), also at 760-seat Yorkdale, $11,000.

Imperial, Yorkdale, Golden Mile (FP) (3,206; 760; 1,004; $1-$1.50)—"Third Secret" (20th). Fair $21,000.

University (FP) (1,344; $1-$1.50) —"Fall of Roman Empire" (Par) (5th wk). Cool $9,000 or near after $10,000 last week.

'Russia' Rousing $14,000, St. Louis

St. Louis, April 28.

Big noise of newcomers here this stanza is "From Russia With Love," which shapes nifty on opener at State. "Capt. Newman" is rated nice in third round at Fox while "It's a Mad World" looks lofty in 10th session at Martin Cinerama.

"Tom Jones" looms neat in ninth week at Loew's Mid-City. "South Pacific" shapes strong in third round at Ambassador.

Estimates for This Week

Ambassador (Arthur) (2,970; 90-$1.25)—"South Pacific" (20th) (reissue) (3d wk). Okay $6,000. Last week, $7,000.

Apollo Art (Grace) (700; 90-$1.25)—"Macbeth" (Indie) (2d wk). Fine $3,000. Last week, $4,000.

Esquire (Jablonow-Komm) (1,800; 90-$1.25)—"Cleopatra" (20th) (7th wk). Good $6,000 or near. Last week, $7,000.

Fox (Arthur) (5,000; 90-$1.25)—"Captain Newman" (U) (3d wk). Fine $11,000. Last week, $13,000.

Loew's Mid-City (Loew) (1,160; 60-90)—"Tom Jones" (UA) (9th wk). Neat $14,000 or near. Last week, $12,000.

State (Loew) (3,600; 60-90)—"From Russia With Love" (UA). Rousing $14,000 or over. Last week, "Night Must Fall" (MGM) (3d wk), $7,000.

Martin Cinerama (Martin) 913; $1.30-$2.50) — "It's Mad World"

(Continued on page 10)

Fair Soars, B'way Dips But 'Panther' Big 165G, 'Ashiya' OK 16G, 'Russia' Hot 19G, 'World' 27½G, 'Becket' 27G

Effects of the initial weekend at the World's Fair, with bright, crisp weather, were definitely adverse to Broadway firstrun business. Result is that the current session at the firstruns is very spotty despite some new bills. Deluxers weathered the opening day of the Fair in easy fashion because the rainy day kept many from attending the Flushing Meadows show.

Big news is the opening week of "Pink Panther" at the Music Hall. With a new stageshow, this film looks to garner a big $165,000 on initial stanza. Night biz was especially strong, indicating that the Hall, per usual, was getting a full share of outoftowner trade, mostly here for the Fair. "Panther" is holding, natch! Other new pic on Broadway, "Flight From Ashiya" is barely okay $16,000 or less at the Palace.

"From Russia With Love" held with a socko $19,000 or close in third round at the Astor, and goes a fourth. "Fall of Roman Empire" looks like nice $20,000 in fifth session at the DeMille.

"It's a Mad World" climbed to a great $27,500 in 23d round at the Warner, aided a bit by an extra matinee on Saturday. Also on hardticket, "Becket" looks to wind its seventh session with a socko $27,000 at the State.

"Dr. Strangelove" held with fine $24,000 in 13th week, daydating the Victoria and Baronet. "Best Man" wound its third session with sharp $18,000, daydating the 34th Street East and Coronet. "The Cardinal" wound its fifth and final stanza with fair $15,000 or near, "The Windjammer" moving in today (Wed.).

Estimates for This Week

Astor (City Inv.) (1,094; $1.25-$2) —"From Russia With Love" (UA) (4th wk). Third session ended last night (Tues.) was socko $19,000 or close after $25,500 for second. Also playing Showcase, but doesn't appear to be hurting this deluxer.

Cinerama (Loew) (1,552; $1.50-$2.50)—"Windjammer" (Cinerama). Opens today (Wes.). Last week, "Cardinal" (Col) (subrun) (5th wk), was fair $15,000 or close after $19,500 for fourth.

Criterion (Moss) (1,520; $1.50-$2.50)—"Seven Days in May" (Par) (11th wk). The 10th round finished yesterday (Tues.) was good $14,000 or near after $15,000 for ninth. Daydating with Sutton. Also on Showcase.

DeMille (Reade) (1,463; $1.50-$3.50)—"Fall of Roman Empire" (Par) (5th wk). This stanza winding up tomorrow (Thurs.) looks like good $20,000 after $21,700 for fourth. Stays on, naturally.

Embassy (Guild Enterprises) (500; $1.50-$2.50)—"Mistress for Summer" (Indie) (subrun) (2d wk). First week completed yesterday (Tues.) was big $10,000 or close, after nearly four weeks at the Guild.

Forum (Norel) (813; $1.25-$1.80) —"False Shame" (Embassy) (3d wk). This week finishing tomorrow (Thurs.) looks like hotsy $9,500 afterr $15,000 for second.

Palace (RKO) (1,642; $1.25-$2)—"Flight from Ashiya" (UA) (2d wk). Initial stanza ended yesterday (Tues.) was okay $16,000 or less. Playing Showcase is proving no help at this house.

Paramount (AB-PT) (3,665; $1-$2)—"Horror of Party Beach (20th) —and "Curse of Living Corpse" (20th). Opens today (Wed.). Last week, "Paris When It Sizzles" (Par) (3d wk), was fair $16,000 or close.

Radio City Music Hall (Rockefellers) (6,200; 99-$2.85)—"Pink Panther" (UA) and new stageshow. First session finishing today (Wed.) is heading for big $165,000 or over. Holds, natch! In ahead, "World Henry Orient" (UA) and Easter stageshow (5th wk), was $112,000, for a great extended-run.

Rivoli (UAT) (1,545; $2.50-$5.50) —"Cleopatra" (20th) (47th wk). The 46th week completed yesterday (Tues.) was okay $17,000 or close after $18,000 for 45th round.

Rialto (Brandt) (600; $1.25-$2.50) —"Silence" (Janus) (13th wk). The 12th week ended Sunday (26) was big $8,500, and looks to stay indef. at present gait.

State (Loew) (1,850; $1.50-$3.50) —"Becket" (Par) (7th wk). This stanza winding up today (Wed.) looks like great $27,800 after $29,000 for sixth week. Continues indefinitely.

Victoria (City Inv.) (1,003; $1.25-$2)—"Dr. Strangelove" (Col) (14th wk). The 13th week ended yesterday (Tues.) was fancy $14,000 or near after $15,000 for 12th round. Went on Showcase last Wednesday (22), but this not seem to be hurting run here.

Warner (SW) (1,504; $2.50-$4.80) —"It's a Mad World" (UA) (24th wk). The 23d week completed Saturday (25) was smash $27,500 after $24,500 for 22d session. The past week included three matinees on Saturday.

First-Run Arties

Baronet (Reade) (430; $1.25-$2)—"Dr. Strangelove" (Col) (14th wk). The 13th round completed yesterday (Tues.) was solid $10,000 or near after $14,000 for 12th week. Also on Showcase starting a week ago, and this obviously cut in.

Bookman (Rugoff Th.) (590; $1.50-$2)—"Of Stars and Men" (Brandon). Opened yesterday (Tues.). In ahead, "Lilies of Field" (UA) and "L-Shaped Room" (Col) (subruns), solid $8,500 for six days.

Carnegie Hall Cinema (F&A) (330; $1.50-$2)—"Dimka" (Artkino) (6th wk). This week ending tomorrow (Thurs.) is heading for big $7,000 after $7,500 for fifth round.

Cinema One (Rugoff Th.) (700; $1.50-$2)—"Tom Jones" (UA) (30th wk). The 29th session finished Sunday (26) was smash $22,670 after $20,300 for 28th week.

Cinema Two (Rugoff Th.) (300; $1.50-$2) — "Cool World" (Indie) (2d wk). First week ended Sunday (26) was fancy $7,860.

Coronet (Reade) (590; $1.50-$2) —"Best Man" (UA) (4th wk). Third week ended Sunday (26) was excellent $11,000 after $11,500 for second. Daydating with 34th St. East.

Festival (Embassy) (546; $2-$2.50)—"Yesterday, Today and Tomorrow" (Embassy) (7th wk). Sixth frame ended Monday (27) was lusty $14,500 in six days after $18,000 for fifth week. Daydating with Tower East.

Fifth Ave. Cinema (Rugoff Th.) (250; $1.25-$2) — "The Silence" (Janus). Opens today (Wed.) on subsequent-run.

Fine Arts (Davis) (468; $1.80-$2) —"Don't Tempt Devil" (UMPO). Opened Monday (27). In ahead, "La Bonne Soupe" (20th) (6th wk-8-days), was good $6,500 after $7,000 for fifth week.

Guild (Guild) (450; $1-$1.75)—"Grand Olympics" (Times) (2d wk).

(Continued on page 10)

This Week's N.Y. Showcases

PRIMARY FIRSTRUN SHOWCASES

"Flight From Ashiya" (UA)—$95,009 for 5 days, first week, 22 spots.

RKO Palace, 86th Street; Skouras Academy, Riviera (Manhattan); RKO Fordham, Skouras Pelham (Bronx); RKO Albee, Albemarle, Marlboro, Ridgewood (Brooklyn); Skouras Midway, RKO Alden, Skouras Astoria (Queens); Skouras Calderone, Valley Stream, Squire; Central, Skouras Westbury Drive-In (Nassau); RKO New Rochelle, Colony (Westchester).

"From Russia With Love" (UA) — $138,329 for 5 days, third week, 21 spots.

Astor, RKO 58th St., Coliseum, Skouras Riverside (Manhattan); RKO Castle Hill, Skouras Valentine (Bronx); RKO Kenmore, Dyker, Madison, Fabian's Fox (Brooklyn); RKO Keith's Flushing, Strand, Skouras Forest Hills, Merrick (Queens); RKO White Plains, Skouras Bronxville, Elmsford Drive-In (Westchester); Skouras Rivoli, Playhouse, Cove, Westbury Drive-In, Bel Air, Wantagh.

WEEK'S SECONDARY SHOWCASES

"Tom Jones" (UA)—$133,157 in 5 days, third week, 15 spots. (Figure does not include Cinema One, which was $22,672 for 29th week).

Astor, Seaview (Brooklyn); Ascot, Earl (Bronx); Bay Terrace, Continental (Queens); Cinema, Plaza, York (Suffolk); Rye Ridge, Town (Westchester); Lynbrook, Manhasset, Bar Harbour, Salisbury (Nassau).

"Seven Days in May" (Par)—$172,500 in second week, 22 spots.

Criterion, Sutton (Manhattan); American, Luxor (Bronx); Kings, Avalon, Metropolitan (Brooklyn); Valencia, Prospect, Trylon (Queens); Green Acres, Plainview, Grove, Town, (Nassau); Bay Shore, Patchogue, Shore, Smithton, All-Weather Drive-In (Suffolk); St. George (Staten Island); New Rochelle, White Plains, Park Hill (Westchester).

"Dr. Strangelove" (Col)—$271,334 in 5 days, first week, 24 spots.

Victoria, Baronet (Manhattan); Brandt's Yonkers, Loew's Mt. Vernon, Plaza (Westchester); Duffield, Century's Kingsway, Loew's Oriental, Century's Rialto (Brooklyn); St. George S.I.; Elmwood, Century's Meadows, Queens (Queens); Loew's Paradise (Bronx); Bayshore, Century's Huntington, Patchogue (Suffolk); Adams, Newark; Loew's Jersey City; Bethpage, Century's Fantasy, Glen Cove, Merrick; Century's Roosevelt Field.

'Panther' Lusty 13G, Hub; 'World' Big 27G; 'Cardinal' 21G; 'Jones' 25G

Boston, April 28.

Biz continued mild here currently despite school vacation which upped only some moppet fare. "A Tiger Walks" turned in a fair first week at the giant Music Hall. "It's a Mad World" took a big upward jump because of the vacationers in its 24th round at the Boston. Only opening was "Flight From Ashiya," fair at Mayflower and day-dating in suburban theatres.

"Advance to Rear" is just okay at Orpheum in second; likewise "Seven Faces of Dr. Lao" at Paramount. "Wuthering Heights," back on reissue, looks great in second at Cinema, Kenmore Square. "Dr. Strangelove" is still sock in fifth session at Astor. "Tom Jones" forged way ahead to smash total in 19th round at the Beacon Hill.

Estimates for This Week

Astor (B&Q) (1,117; 90-$1.80)—"Dr. Strangelove" (Col) (5th wk). Sock $16,000. Last week, $17,500.

Beacon Hill (Sack) (900; $1-$1.80)—"Tom Jones" (UA) (19th wk). Bigger than previous week, wow $25,000. Last week, $18,000.

Boston (Beacon Ent.) (1,354; $1.20-$3.95)—"Mad World" (UA) (24th wk). The 23d session ended Monday (27) was torrid $27,000. Last week, $24,000, over hopes.

Capri (Sack) (900; $1-$1.80)—"Servant" (Landau) (subrun) (5th wk). Sizzling $6,500. Last week, $6,400.

Center (E. M. Loew) (1,250; 90-$1.25)—"Muscle Beach Party" (AI) and "Starfighters" (Indie) (2d wk). Fine $7,500. Last week, $9,000.

Cinema, Kenmore Square (Indie) (320; $1.50-$1.90)—"Wuthering Heights" (Cont) (reissue) (2d wk). Wow $6,400. Last week, $6,000, way over estimate.

Exeter (Indie) (1,276; 90-$1.49)—"Murder She Said" (Indie) and "Best Years of My Life" (Indie) (reissues). Opened Saturday (25). Last week, "Tiara Tahiti" (Zenith) (3d wk), mild $2,400.

Gary (Sack) (1,277; $1.25-$1.80)—"Pink Panther" (UA) (6th wk). Big $13,000. Last week, $12,000.

Mayflower (ATC) (689; 90-$1.50)—"Flight From Ashiya" (UA) and "Eyes of Annie Jones" (20th). Fair $5,000 or close. Last week, Kissin' Cousins" (MGM) and "Dime With Halo" (MGM), $7,000.

Memorial (RKO) (3,000; 90-$1.80)—"Captain Newman" (U) and "Dream Maker" (U) (6th wk). Sixth week began Friday (24). Fifth was nice $10,000.

Music Hall (Sack) (4,400; 90-$1.80)—"Tiger Walks" (BV) (2d wk). Second week opened Monday (27). Opener was fair $14,000.

Orpheum (Loew) (2,900; 90-$1.80)—"Advance to Rear" (MGM) (2d wk). Okay $8,000 or near. Last week, $9,000.

Paramount (NET) (2,357; 90-$1.80)—"Seven Faces of Dr. Lao" (MGM) and "Girls at Sea" (Indie) (2d wk). Oke $8,000. Last week, $13,000.

Pilgrim (ATC) (1,909; 75-$1.25)—"Day of Stripper" (Indie) and "Girls of Night" (Indie) (2d wk). Good $6,000. Last week, $7,000.

Park Square Cinema (Indie) (300; $1.80)—"Connection" (Indie) (2d wk). Okay $2,800. Last week, $3,000.

Paris Cinema (Indie) (608; $1.75)—"America, America" (WB) (8th wk). Oke $3,000. Last week, $3,500.

Saxon (Sack) (1,100; $2-$3.90)—"Cardinal" (Col) (19th wk). Sock $21,000. Last week, $18,000.

State (Trans-Lux) (730; $1-$1.50)—"Paris After Midnight" (Indie) and "Sun Place" (Indie). Good $8,000. Last week, $9,000.

West End Cinema (E. M. Loew) (500; 75-$1.50)—"War of Buttons" (Bronston) (2d wk). Good $2,800. Last week, $3,000.

LOS ANGELES

(Continued from page 9)

(856; 856; 1,298; $1.25-$1.49)—"Hud" (Par) (reissue) (2d wk, El Rey, Hollywood; 1st wk, Loyola) and "L-Shaped Room" (Col) (reissue) (El Rey, Hollywood), "Captain Newman" (U) (Loyola) (3d wk). Nice $14,000.

Fine Arts (FWC) (631; $1.50-$2)—"Best Man" (UA) (2d wk). Lush $9,000. Last week, $10,000.

Fox Wilshire (FWC) (1,990; $2-$2.40)—"Yesterday, Today, Tomorrow" (Emb) (6th wk). Big $18,000 or near. Last week, $19,000.

Hillstreet, Iris (Metropolitan-FWC) (2,752; 825; $1-$1.49)—"Goliath and Vampires" (AI) and "Pyro" (AI). Fair $11,000 or over. Last week, Iris with Lido, "8½" (Emb), "V.I.P.'s" (MGM) (reissues), $8,100.

Hollywood Paramount (State) (1,468; $2.40)—"Pink Panther" (UA) (6th wk). Smart $13,000 or close. Last week, $14,500.

Lido (FWC) (876; $1.25-$2)—"8½" (Emb) (reissue) (2d wk) and "To Bed Or Not To Bed" (Ster) (5th wk). Hefty $4,000.

Los Angeles (Metropolitan) (2,049; $1-$1.25)—"Under Capricorn" (Indie) and "Some Came Running" (MGM) (reissues). Slender $4,500.

Music Hall (Ros) (720; $2-$2.40)—"Cardinal" (Col) (2d wk). Good $4,300. Last week, $4,700.

Orpheum, Pix, Wiltern (Metropolitan-Prin-SW) (2,213; 756; 2,344; $1-$1.49)—"Advance to Rear" (MGM) and various second feature pix. Okay $16,000 or near.

Pantages (RKO) (1,512; $2.50-$5.50)—"Cleopatra" (20th) (45th wk). Lofty $21,500. Last week, $21,200.

Picfair, Vogue (State-FWC) (750; 810; $1.25-$2)—"Tom Jones" (UA) (18th wk). Solid $14,500. Last week, $16,300.

Warner Beverly (SW) (1,316; $1.65-$3.50)—"Becket" (Par) (6th wk). Firm $17,600. Last week, $17,800.

Warner Hollywood (SW) (1,291; $1.25-$2.80)—"How West Was Won" (MGM) (62d wk). Wow $25,000. Last week, $25,600.

'Act One' Fast $12,000 In Frisco; 'Canvas' Big 15G; 'World' 32G, 18th

San Francisco, April 28.

"It's a Mad World," helped by conventioneers here, increased its take this session to a wow total despite being in 18th round at Orpheum. "The Empty Canvas," one of few newcomers, is rated lusty at Warfield for opener with fair at ozoner.

"Pink Panther" still is great in current (6th) week at Coronet. "Act One," another newie, is rated big for initial round at St. Francis. "Tom Jones" still was smash in 19th United Artists stanza.

Estimates for This Week

Alexandria (Un. Calif.) (1,444; $3-$4)—"Cleopatra" (20th) (44th wk). Big $10,500. Last week, $11,000.

Bridge (Schwartz) (500; $1.50-$1.75)—"Hallelujah the Hills" (Stone). Fair $2,000.

Clay (Ros) (360; $1.75)—"Dr. Strangelove" (Col) (10th wk). Solid $3,300. Last week, $3,600.

Coronet (Un. Cailf.) (1,250; $2-$2.50)—"Pink Panther" (UA) (6th wk). Great $11,000. Last week, $11,500.

El Rancho Drive-In (Affil.) (925 cars; $1.25 person). "Empty Canvas" (Embassy). Fair $3,000.

Golden Gate (RKO) (2,850; $1.25-$1.50)—"Captain Newman" (U) (5th wk). Fair $3,900. Last week, $4,300.

Metro (Un. Calif.) (1,000; $2-$2.50)—"The Silence" (Svenska) (10th wk). Big $2,800. Last week, $3,000.

Orpheum (Cinedome) (1,439; $1.50-$3.50)—"It's a Mad World" (UA) (18th wk). Wow $32,000 or over. Last week, $30,000.

Paramount (Par) (2,646; $1.50-$1.75)—"Advance To Rear" (MGM) 2d wk). Fair $9,000. Last week, $13,000.

Presidio (Art Th. Guild) (750; $1.25-$1.50)—"Lorna" (Eve). Good $4,000.

St. Francis (Par) (1,400; $2)—"Act One" (WB). Big $12,000. Last week, "Sunday in New York" (MGM), $7,500.

Stage Door (A-R) (444; $1.75-$2)—"Dr. Strangelove" (Col) (10th wk). Hep $4,800. Last week, $5,000.

United Artists (No. Cst.) (1,148; $2-$2.40)—"Tom Jones" (UA) (19th wk). Smash $12,500 or near. Last week, $14,000.

Vogue (S. F. Thtrs.) (365; $2-$2.25)—"My Enemy, Sea" (Ishihara) (2d wk). Fast $3,800. Last week, $4,500.

Warfield (FWC) (2,656; $1.25-$1.50)—"Empty Canvas" (Embassy). Lusty $12,000. Last week, reissues.

CHICAGO

(Continued from page 8)

"Silence" (Janus) (6th wk). Bright $6,000. Last week, $6,800.

McVickers (Beacon) (1,100; $2.20-$3.80)—"It's Mad World" (UA) (23d wk). Socko $20,000. Last week, $24,500.

Monroe (Jovan) (1,000; 65-90)—"Hell Fire Club" (Indie) and "Love Makers" (Indie). Good $5,500. Last week, "Devil and 10 Commandments" (Indie) and "Assault" (Indie) (reissue), $4,500.

Oriental (Indie) (3,400; 90-$1.80)—"Seven Faces of Dr. Lao" (MGM). Nifty $22,000. Last week, "One Man's Way" (UA) (2d wk), $11,000.

Roosevelt (B&K) (1,400; 90-$1.80)—"Muscle Beach Party" (AI) (2d wk). Fast $15,000. Last week, $18,500.

State-Lake (B&K) (2,400; 90-$1.80)—"Pink Panther" (UA) (6th wk). Smart $12,000. Last week, $14,000.

Surf (H&E Balaban) (664; $1.50-$1.80)—"Point of Order" (Indie) (2d wk). Slick $3,200. Last week, $5,000.

Todd (Todd) (1,089; $1.75-$3.50)—"Fall of Roman Empire" (Par) (2d wk). Fair $14,000. Last week, $22,000.

Town (Teitel) (640; $1.25-$1.80)—"Monkey in Winter" (Indie) and "Counterfeiters of Paris" (Indie) (reissue). Lean $2,000. Last week, "Trial and Error" (Indie) and "Wrong Arm Law" (Indie) (reissues), $3,000.

United Artists (B&K) (1,700; 90-$1.80)—"Seven Days in May" (Par) (9th wk). Neat $9,000. Last week, $12,000.

Woods (Essaness) (1,200; 90-$1.80)—"From Russia With Love" Wham $38,000. Last week, "Night Must Fall" (MGM) (3d wk), $10,000.

World (Teitel) (608; 90-$1.80)—"The Doll" (Indie) (3d wk) and "Young Love" (Indie) (1st wk). Fine $4,500. Last week, $5,000.

MINNEAPOLIS

(Continued from page 8)

—"Cleopatra" (20th) (44th wk). Little variance now week to week. Mild $4,000. Last week, $3,000.

Cooper (CF) (905; $1.25-$2.50)—"How West Was Won" (MGM) (65th wk). Astonishing $10,000. Last week, $14,500.

Gopher (Berger) (1,000; $1-$1.25)—"Love on Pillow" (Royal). Modest $4,000. Last week, "Strangler" (AA), $3,000.

Lyric (Par) (1,000; $1-$1.25)—"Shock Treatment" (20th) and "Surf Party" (20th). Moderate $3,000. Last week, "One Man's Way" (UA), $5,000.

Mann (Mann) (1,000; $1.25-$1.50)—"South Pacific" (20th) (reissue) (2d wk). Excellent $7,000. Last week, $8,000.

Orpheum (Mann) (2,800; $1-$1.25)—"Flight From Ashiya" (UA). Drab $6,000. Last week, "Monsters" (Indie), $9,000.

Park (Mann) (1,000; $1.50)—"Seven Days to May" (Par) (11th wk). Big $3,500. Last week, $4,000.

State (Par) (2,200; $1-$1.25)—"Advance to Rear" (20th). Mild $5,000. or near. Last week, "Muscle Beach Party" (AI) (2d wk), $5,000.

Suburban World (Mann) (800; $1.25)—"My Life to Live" (Union). Satisfactory $2,500. Last week, "Silence" (Janus) (2d wk), $2,000.

World (Mann) (400; $1.25-$1.50)—"Tom Jones" (UA) (10th wk). Wham $9,000. Last week, $10,000.

ST. LOUIS

(Continued from page 9)

(UA) (10th wk). Nice $13,000. Last week, $14,000.

Pageant (Arthur) (1,000; 90-$1.25)—"To Bed or Not to Bed" (Cont). Good $3,000. Last week, "Act One" (WB), $3,000.

Paris Art (Chernoff) (800; $1)—"Affair of Skin" (Indie). Average $1,100. Last week, "Maid for Murder" (Indie) and "Just Once More" (Indie), $1,200.

St. Louis (Arthur) (3,800; 75-90)—"Hud" (Par) and "Rose Tattoo" (Par) reissue) (2d wk). Modest $6,000. Last week, $10,000.

Shady Oak (Arthur) (760; 90-$1.25)—"Dr. Strangelove" (Col) (7th wk). Okay $1,200. Last week, $1,000.

Ralph Nelson to direct "Scratch a Thief," starring Alain Delon, for producer Jacques Bar in France starting in August-September, with Metro to release.

Tornado Threats Hit K.C. But 'Rear' Fancy $25,000; 'Empire' Hearty 15G

Kansas City, April 28.

Day-and-date firstrun bookings incorporating drive-ins and hardtops are beginning to hit summer stride here, although height of tornado season is here, and Wednesday night (22) was a virtual loss to theatres here as whole area was under tornado warning. Weather situation put damper on benefit preem of "Fall of Roman Empire" at Capri, though the house was sold out. "Act One" looms mild at Paramount on opener while "Advance to Rear" is riding behind a heavy tv and newspaper advertising figures to score strongly.

"Flight From Ashiya," a day-and-dater like "Advance," also should sink or swim depending on the weather. Holdovers include "Strangelove" at Brookside, "Newman" at Uptown and Granada, "Seven Days in May" at Roxy and "South Pacific" at Plaza.

Estimates for This Week

Brookside (Fox Midwest-Nat. Gen.) (800; $1.50)—"Dr. Strangelove" (Col) (6th wk). Good $3,000. Last week, $3,500.

Capri (Durwood) (1,260; $1.80-$2.50)—"Fall of Roman Empire" (Par). Hearty $15,000. Last week, "Cleopatra" (20th) (23dwk-5 days), $10,000.

Crest, Riverside (Commonwealth) (900 cars each), Boulevard (Rosedale) (750 cars), Hiway 40 (General) (1,000 cars); Fairway (FMW) (700; $1.25), Englewood (Dickinson) (850; $1), Centre (Commonwealth) (508; $1.25)—"Flight From Ashiya" (UA) plus various second feature pix. Should hit good $12,000, with any kind of weather break. Last week, subruns.

Kimo (Dickinson) (504; $1.50-$2)—"Tom Jones" (UA) (10th wk). Still hitting smash $7,000 as house marks continue to fall. Last week, same.

Paramount (Blank-UP) (1,900; $1.25-$1.50)—"Act One" (WB) and "Dr. Crippen" (WB). Mild $6,500. Last week, "Hud" (Par) (reissue) and "Paris Pick-Up" (Par), $7,500.

Plaza (FMW) (1,630; $1.25-$1.50)—"South Pacific" (20th) (reissue) (2d wk). Good $7,000. Last week, $8,000.

Rockhill (Art Theatre Guild) (821; $1; $1.25)—"Silence" (Janus). Good $2.000. Last week, "Point of Order" (Indie), $1,600.

Roxy (Durwood) (664; 75-$1.50)—"Seven Days in May" (Par) (5th wk). Holding up well at good $4,500. Last week, $5,000.

63d St. (E&S) (1,500 cars); Heart (Noah & Wiles) (1,500 cars), Shawnee & Leawood (Dickinson) (1,000, 750 cars), Lake Park (Fulton) (1,000 cars), Hillcrest (Heath), 750 cars; Parkway Two (Durwood) (350; $1.50), Dickinson, Overland (Dickinson) (700 each; $1)—"Advance to Rear" (MGM) plus various second feature films. Fast $25,000 or close. Last week, subruns.

Uptown, Granada (FMW) (2,043; 1,219; $1.25-$1.50)—"Captain Newman" (U) and "To Kill a Mockingbird" (U) (reissue) (2d wk). Fairly good $8,000. Last week, $10,000.

WASHINGTON

(Continued from page 8)

wk). Hep $7,500. Last week, $8,000.

Embassy (Loew) (567; $1.25-$2)—"Yesterday, Today and Tomorrow" (Emb) (4th wk). Great $12,000 or over. Last week, $14,000.

Keith's (RKO) (1,838; $1-$1.49)—"Pink Panther" (UA) (6th wk). Boffo $12,000. Last week, $14,000.

MacArthur (KB) (900; $1.25-$1.40)—"Point of Order" (Cont). Big $8,000 or near.

Ontario (KB) (1,240; $1.50-$2)—"Tom Jones" (UA) (18th wk). Hotsy $19,000. Last week, $21,000.

Palace (Loew) (2,360; $1.25-$1.80)—"Lilies of Field" (UA) (reissue). Sturdy $10,500. Last week, "Night Must Fall" (MGM) (2d wk), $6,300.

Playhouse (TL) (459; $1.25-$1.80)—"America, America" (WB) (7th wk). Good $3,300. Last week, $3,500.

Plaza (TL) (278; $1.25-$1.80)—"Naked in Wind" (Indie). Warm $6,500. Last week, "Lorna" (Indie) (4th wk), $4,000.

Town (King) (800; $1.25-$1.80)—"Captain Newman" (U) (5th wk). Fine $7,000. Last week, $7,500.

Trans-Lux (TL) (598; $1.49-$2)—"Seven Days in May" (Par) (11th wk). Okay $5,500. Last week, $6,000.

Uptown (SW) (1,300; $1.65-$2.75)—"It's a Mad World" (UA) (10th wk). Boff $12,000. Last week, $12,600.

Warner (SW) (1,250; $1.50-$2.75)—"Fall of Roman Empire" (Par) (4th wk). Fair $9,000. Last week, $10,000.

BROADWAY

(Continued from page 9)

Initial session ended Monday (27) was great $12,000 or close.

Little Carnegie (Landau) (520; $1.25-$2)—"Servant" (Landau) (7th wk). Sixth stanza ended Sunday (26) was fancy $13,200 after $13,000 for fifth week.

Paris (Pathe Cinema) (568; $1.50-$2)—"Bandits of Orgosolo" (Indie) (3d wk). Second frame ended Sunday (26) was slow $12,000 after $13,100 for opener.

Plaza (Lopert) (525; $1.50-$2)—"Modern Times" (Indie) (reissue) (2d wk). This round winding up tomorrow (Thurs.) is heading for sock $14,000 or near after $17,000 for opener. This is the fourth Charles Chaplin pic to play here on a revival series.

Sutton (Rugoff Th.) (561; $1.50-$2)—"Seven Days in May" (Par) (11th wk). The 10th round ended yesterday (Tues.) was fine $6,100 after $7,700 in ninth week. Daydating with Criterion, and also on Showcase.

34th Street East (Reade) (456; $1.50-$2)—"Best Man" (UA) (4th wk). Third week ended Sunday (26) was good $7,000 after $9,400 for second stanza. Daydating with Coronet.

Toho Cinema (Toho) (299; $1.50-$2)—"Seven Samurai" (Toho) (subrun). Opens today (Wed.). In ahead, "Life of Oharu" (Toko), was light $3,900.

Tower East (Loew) (586; $1.50-$2)—"Yesterday, Today, Tomorrow" (Embassy) (7th wk). Sixth frame completed Monday (27) was socko $12,500 in six days after $14,800 for fifth. Daydates with Festival.

Trans-Lux East (T-L) ($1.25-$2)—"Third Secret" (20th). Opened yesterday (Tues.). In ahead, "Silence" (Janus) (12th wk-8 days), was okay $5,300 after $5,000 for 11th regular week. Has been daydating with Rialto.

Trans-Lux 52d St. (T-L) (540; $1.25-$2)—"Weekend" (Cinema). Opened Monday (27). In ahead, "Paris When It Sizzles" (Par) (3d wk-4½ days). okay $4,400 after $8,500 for second full week.

Trans-Lux 85th St. (T-L) (550; $1.25-$2)—"Psyche '59" (Col). Opens today (Wed.), daydating with 34th Street East. Last week, reissues.

World (Perfecto) (390; 90-$1.50) "Pyschomania" (Vic) and "Flamboyant Sex" (Ellis) (11th wk). This session winding tomorrow (Thurs.) is heading for great $8,500 after $7,500 for 10th week.

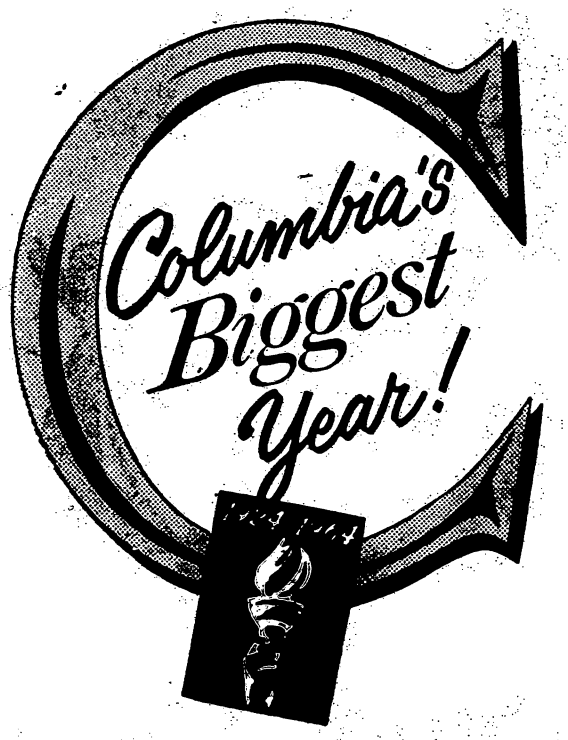
'Jones' Loud $10,000, Prov.; 'Doctor' $5,000

Providence, April 28.

Twelfth round of "Tom Jones" has the Elmwood way out in front here this session. Next closest is RKO Albee with "Pillow Talk" and "Operation Petticoat" on reissue, which is good. State's "7 Faces of Dr. Lao" looks lean. Third week of "Dr. Strangelove" shapes fine at Strand.

Estimates for This Week

Albee (RKO) (2,200; 90-$1.25)—"Pillow Talk" (U) and "Operation Petticoat" (U) (reissues). Good $6,500. Last week, "Brass Bottle" (U) and "He Rides Tall" (U), $5,500.



Elmwood (Snider) (2,260; $1-$1.75)—"Tom Jones" (UA) (12th wk). Snappy $10,000. Last week, $11,500.

Majestic (SW) (2,200; 90-$1.25)—"Student Prince" (MGM) and "Brigadoon" (MGM) (reissues). Okay $6,000 or less. Last week, "Tiger Walks" (BV), $5,000.

State (Loew) (3,200; 90-$1.25)—"7 Faces of Dr. Lao" (MGM). Slow $6,000. Last week, "Night Must Fall" (MGM) (2d wk), $2,000.

Strand (National Realty) (2,200; $1.25-$1.50)—"Dr. Strangelove" (Col) (3d wk). Nice $5,000. Second was $5,500.

COLUMBIA PICTURES
presents
A HANNA-BARBERA PRODUCTION
Hey There, It's Yogi Bear
IT'S GOING TO BE A SENSATIONAL SUMMER WITH AMERICA'S FAVORITE TV PERSONALITY STARRING IN HIS FIRST FULL-LENGTH MOTION PICTURE!
Hey There,
it's the exciting, song-filled, happy-go-delightful screen adventure for everyone... swingin' with fabulous songs!
"LIKE I LIKE YOU"
"VEN-E, VEN-O, VEN-A"
"WET YOUR WHISTLE"
"ST. LOUIE"
"HEY THERE, IT'S YOGI BEAR"
"ASH CAN PARADE"
AND "BEAR" IN MIND
"Hey There It's Yogi Bear" WILL BE BACKED BY COLUMBIA'S SUPER-SATURATION NATION-WIDE MERCHANDISING CAMPAIGN!
COLUMBIA PICTURES presents A HANNA-BARBERA PRODUCTION
"HEY THERE, IT'S YOGI BEAR" starring YOGI BEAR
Screenplay by JOSEPH BARBERA, WARREN FOSTER and WILLIAM HANNA Produced and Directed by WILLIAM HANNA and JOSEPH BARBERA
starring DAWS BUTLER as the voice of Yogi Bear co-starring DON MESSICK as the voices of Boo-Boo and Ranger Smith
YOGI COLOR
Hey There,
JOIN COLUMBIA'S YOGI BEAR SHOWMANSHIP BANDWAGON!
© Hanna-Barbera Productions Inc.

GET SET FOR COLUMBIA'S BIGGEST SUMMER
ENTERTAINMENT
LINE-UP!

LONG WILL YOU REMEMBER
THE MIGHTY
VIKING
ADVENTURES
OF

THE LONG SHIPS

COLUMBIA PICTURES PRESENTS ACADEMY AWARD WINNER
RICHARD WIDMARK / SIDNEY POITIER / RUSS TAMBLYN / ROSANNA SCHIAFFINO / OSCAR HOMOLKA
"THE LONG SHIPS" CO-STARRING Edward Judd / Lionel Jeffries / Beba Loncar / SCREENPLAY BY Berkely Mather and Beverley Cross
Based on the novel by Frans Bengtsson / Produced by Irving Allen / Directed by Jack Cardiff · A Warwick-Avala Production / TECHNICOLOR® / TECHNIRAMA®

America's Most Popular Cartoon Star in His First Feature-Length Film!

COLUMBIA PICTURES presents
A HANNA-BARBERA PRODUCTION

Hey There, It's Yogi Bear!

starring

YOGI BEAR

Screenplay by
JOSEPH BARBERA, WARREN FOSTER and WILLIAM HANNA • WILLIAM HANNA and JOSEPH BARBERA Produced and Directed by
starring DAWS BUTLER as the Voice of YOGI BEAR
Co-starring DON MESSICK as the Voices of BOO-BOO and RANGER SMITH • YOGI COLOR
Original Music & Lyrics by RAY GILBERT & DOUG GOODWIN • Music Score by MARTY PAICH

©HANNA-BARBERA PRODUCTIONS INC.

COLUMBIA PICTURES presents

JACK LEMMON · ROMY SCHNEIDER

GOOD NEIGHBOR SAM

co-starring DOROTHY PROVINE · MICHAEL CONNORS · EDWARD ANDREWS · LOUIS NYE and guest star EDWARD G. ROBINSON

Screenplay by JAMES FRITZELL, EVERETT GREENBAUM and DAVID SWIFT • Based on the novel by JACK FINNEY Produced and Directed by DAVID SWIFT • A DAVID SWIFT PRODUCTION • COLOR

COLUMBIA PICTURES
presents

THE NEW INTERNS

starring
MICHAEL CALLAN · DEAN JONES · TELLY SAVALAS · BARBARA EDEN · STEFANIE POWERS
KAY STEVENS · and INGER STEVENS as Nancy · introducing GEORGE SEGAL

Written by WILTON SCHILLER
Based upon characters from the novel "The Interns" by RICHARD FREDE
Produced by ROBERT COHN • Directed by JOHN RICH

ANNOUNCING A MAJOR MOTION PICTURE EVENT FOR EXHIBITORS AND MOVIE-GOERS EVERYWHERE!

THE BRIDGE ON THE RIVER KWAI

A SAM SPIEGEL PRODUCTION

A COLUMBIA PICTURES RELEASE

GOES INTO GENERAL RELEASE THIS SUMMER!

Winner of 27 International Awards...7 Academy Awards!

Not Easy Keeping Appeal Board On Censorship 'Out of Politics'

Chicago, April 28.

Pressure is building for Chicago's Mayor Richard J. Daley to replace at least one of the two resignees on the Motion Picture Appeal Board, the city's supreme court of film censorship.

The ordinance setting up the five-man Board requires that at least three members agree on decisions. Barely a month after attorney Thomas Mulroy's resignation (another member quit six months ago), the Board is split two to one on a decision with no compromise in sight.

The picture is "Europe In the Raw," a tour of the mother Continent's brothels. While the Board meetings are secret, it's probable, based on previous decisions, that child psychiatrist Dr. Ner Littner and Poetry mag editor Henry Rago voted for a permit, and Loyola Univ. Dean Mathew Schoenbaum was against it. While the latter is not considered a bluenose by the distribs, he is thought to be more conservative than the other two.

It has also been learned that Mulroy has sent a slate of nominees to Mayor Daley at Hizzoner's request. The present members of the Board are mildly piqued that they were not asked for suggestions or at least asked to scan Mulroy's submissions.

Mulroy's action suggests that the attorney will continue in an unofficial capacity as the mayor's liaison to the Board and vice versa. While the present members have confidence in Mulroy's fairness, they are wary that his new role, which is not in accordance with the ordinance, will make for an opening in Mayor Daley's hands-off policy.

Mulroy's continuing unofficial presence would doubtlessly endanger the Mayor's "no politics" pledge in regards to the Board. Daley set up the Board as completely autonomous, a move considered by most observers as intended to keep censorship activists off City Hall's back. If Daley now admits to a regular contact with the Board through Mulroy he will be more vulnerable to attack by pro- and anti-censorship forces.

The immunity to pressure on the Mayor in the current setup was clearly shown in the "Promises, Promises" case of a month ago. The Board passed the picture, and pro-censorship advocates mounted a brisk letter writing campaign to City Hall. Each of the correspondents received a form letter stating that the Board was autonomous by ordinance.

What was unsaid in the letter is that a protesting group has no recourse except to take the Board to court for a decision. While in most cities, citizens might induce the city's legal arm or the State's Attorney to test a censorship ruling, both of these offices are well controlled by Mayor Daley's efficient Democratic machine.

The pro-censorship organizations are getting increasingly grumpy about Mayor Daley's "so sue me" implication in the "Promises" case. Never much for court action on their own, they now feel that they are without legitimate means of protest at the local level. They would like the so-far-above-reproach Appeals Board to be a little more reproachable.

Distributors, meanwhile, are cooling their heels until the smoke clears. ("Europe In the Raw" was submitted just before Mulroy's resignation.) For the first time since its inception, the Board is without a backlog of pix.

NEED NEW CATEGORY FOR LIKES OF 'JONES'

Edmonton, Alta., April 28.

Alberta's provincial secretary, Ambrose Holowach, is studying the advisability of adopting an "all-adult" category to permit public showings of release such as United Artists "Tom Jones."

The privince now has two categories—family and adult—but the latter permits children accompanied by parents to view the films.

Holowach said in an interview the third category could be for persons over 18, but it would not necessarily be completely free of censorship.

ENRIQUE CARRERAS PIX FOR 2 FESTIVALS

Buenos Aires, April 28.

In an unusual move, the Argentine Film Institute has chosen two films by one director, Enrique Carreras, to represent Argentina at the upcoming San Sebastian and Berlin Film Fests.

Being sent to Berlin is his "Los Evadidos" (The Escapees), a tele based on a real-life jailbreak here in 1962. Going to Berlin is his "Un Viaje al Mas Alla" (A Voyage Far Beyond). At 39, Carreras has been directing films since he was 24, earning his first fame with lightweight comedies. Director scored impressively last year with "Los Viciosos" (The Vicious), a hardhitting drama about prostitution and drugs. The Film Institute, which annually bestows cash prizes on what it deems to be the year's best pix, awarded "The Vicious" second prize.

Religious Winners: France's 'Mort'; UK's 'Sporting'

Valladolid, April 28.

France and Britain shared the two major prizes at Valladolid's Film Week of Religious and Human Values. Jury awarded the Golden Labrador to the French "Mort, Ou Est ta Victoire"; (Death Where Is Thy Victory) and the Golden Sheaf of Whet for human values to the English feature, "This Sporting Life." City of Valladolid trophy, awarded to a contestant in either category, went to "Lilies of the Field" (UA).

Young Italian director Ermano Olmi, winner here in the past and strong contender with "I Fidanzati" (The Fiances) for the Golden Sheaf, received the small Golden Labrador for the best religious short—"700 Years of St. Anthony." Shorts jury entered "no contest" verdict for the little Golden Sheaf and San Gregorio laurels.

Spain outdistanced Mexico and Venezuela for the top Spanish-language film when the Institute of Spanish Culture jury vote went to "Tiempo de Amor" (Time for Love).

Though generally agreed the commercial industry produces few "religious" films, some delegates mentioned Columbia's "The Cardinal" and several others as qualified for presentation at Valladolid. All concurred that 'Lilies of the Field" and "Mort" constituted a short measure for the religious pix contest.

Wallis Mentally Casts Burton as Henry VIII And Liz as His Anne Boleyn

Hal Wallis has purchased the screen rights to Maxwell Anderson's "Anne of the Thousand Days," the story of the 1,000-day reign of Anne Boleyn and her relationship with Henry VIII. Elizabeth Taylor and Richard Burton are being sought to portray these characters, played in the original legit production by Joyce Redmond and Rex Harrison.

Wallis will begin pre-production work in May but doesn't plan to actually make the film until April, 1965. His present thinking is to produce the pic in England, as he did "Becket" which, incidentally, costars Burton with Peter O'Toole. No indications are available as to whether the Burtons will accept Wallis' offer.

Yorks and Jerseys Meet

A combined convention of the New York State and New Jersey Allied Theatres will be held August 3-6 at the Concord Hotel, Kiamesha Lake, N. Y.

William Infald, New Jersey president, and Sidney Cohen, N. Y. State president, will co-chair the gathering.

Flee With the Pelf

Detroit, April 28.

Two gunmen fled with more than $12,000 in cash receipts after holding up the manager of the Miracle Mile Drive-In, in suburban Bloomfield Township, and the concessions manager. The bandits fled across fields next to the drive-in.

Money was in bags about to be deposited at a bank in the adjacent shopping center.

Williams, Nizer Argue Philly's Viking Appeal

By MIKE MOSETTIG

Washington, April 28.

Two of the nation's most potent legal guns—Edward Bennett Williams and Louis Nizer—argued a case before the Supreme Court Monday (27) which could virtually affect the future of the motion picture industry.

Williams was the protagonist for a Philadelphia theatre owner trying to toss out the "split" system of film distribution on grounds it violates antitrust laws.

Nizer, representing the seven major distributors, pressed the case that the split system is legal and necessary to keep motion picture houses in business.

The case was brought to the high court by the Viking Theatre Corp., which operates the Viking in Philadelphia. Viking's attempts to bring antitrust and damage charges against the distribs and the William Goldman Theatres, Stanley Warner Theatres and Fox Theatre Corp. were rebuffed by two lower courts.

Williams pegged his case to the assertion that the split system between the distributors and the three major chains was "nothing more than a thinly veiled device" to circumvent the high court's landmark rulings in 1948 against pooling arrangements between distributors and exhibitors.

Under the agreement Stanley Warner and Goldman allegedly agreed not to compete for first-run films but drew up a list dividing the product for their six houses. Fox, which operates one house, allegedly took 20th Century-Fox Films and agreed not to compete for pictures from other distributors. Williams averred the system had the same effect as pooling by eliminating competition, allocating product, and by affecting prices.

Unreeling a long set of statistics, which Nizer later matched with his own figures, Williams tried to show how Viking was both cut out of bidding for top grossing films and forced to pay higher rentals on pictures.

Williams also hit out at an agreement between Goldman Theatres and former Paramount distribution president Alfred Schwalberg. Under the plan, Paramount allegedly agreed it would not submit pictures to other bidders after negotiating with Goldman. This was labelled an "invidious refinement" of the split system by Williams.

Nizer defended the split system as an alternative to the demise of many small houses. In fact it is a "beneficent" practice if all exhibitors can negotiate bids with distributors as Viking had a chance to do, he continued.

He termed the Schwalberg agreement "perfectly legal and reasonable."

Williams' analogy to the outlawed pooling system was rebutted by Nizer as "false." Splits neither constitute an allocation of product nor eliminate competition, he said. Viking has even benefitted from the arrangement, he averred. Except for Justices Potter Stewart and Byron White, the bench was relatively uninquisitive during the arguments. But Justice White made one inquiry which somewhat surprised court veterans. He asked Stanley Warner and Goldman lawyer Morris Wolf how the case should be handled should the high court rule the split system illegal. Taken aback, Wolf said he could not conceive such a ruling.

Wolf averred the splits were legal and arranged "above board" long before Viking owner Harry Sley, a Philadelphia parking garage and realestate exec, decided to go into the exhibition business.

Good Will Squad for Film Trade Hits Oil Burg In Cow Country

Denver, April 28.

The loosely formed organization of film men and exhibitors who have been doing public relations in bringing the story of motion pictures to smaller cities in this exchange area, are about to embark on another safari.

Casper, Wyo., is the point of contact this time, and if the flood of press notices and radio and tv breaks there runs true to form, that oil center in cow country will be alert to what's going on in the film biz. On previous trips to other cities served out of the Denver exchanges, the group, different in personnel each time, but composed of both film men and exhibitors, converge on a city and hold a series of radio, tv and press interviews along with a press luncheon and not only forthcoming films are introduced but open forums are held, with questions and answers about pictures and the film business the general public is interested in, but seldom is brought to its attention in person by people in the business.

The idea was started a couple of years ago when several local film men and exhibitors were discussing ways and means of bringing show biz closer to the people in the distant towns. This informal approach was hit upon and seemed to work splendidly. Now every few months a different group gets together and hightail it to some burg for a day of selling motion pictures to the public.

John Dobson, local branch manager of United Artists, who was in the original group will attend the Casper meeting. Others are Chick Lloyd of American International, George Fisher of MGM, Joe Kaitz of Warner Bros., Mark Sheridan of 20th Century, Bill Pereguine of Paramount and Bruce Marshall of Columbia. Exhibitors are Dick O'Rear, Doug Lightner and M. B. Smith of Commonwealth Theatres.

NAT KALM'S PR SHOP, LAS VEGAS AS HQ

Nat Kahn, of New York, Hollywood, Florida and Cuba antecedents has formed his own public relations firm, with headquarters here. He will also operate offices in New York and Beverly Hills.

Former staffer on VARIETY, Kahn will specialize in show business accounts in addition to industrial enterprises. He has handled realty and home-development public relations in Florida, the Greater New York milk industry and Jackie Gleason Enterprises, in addition to resort hotels in Havana, Florida and Las Vegas.

Kahn was correspondent in Cuba for the American Broadcasting Co. and covered the Castro revolution and the events that followed, 1959-60.

Closer to Closing On Italy's Film Industry Law

Rome, April 28.

Groundwork to the vital new Italian film aid law appears to have been laid in number of recent joint industry meetings indicated by Italian Entertainment Minister Achille Corona, though another month will probably pass before the new setup becomes official.

There have been no official handouts regarding the new legislation which replaces that expiring June 30, but the usually informed grapevine has been gathering rumors.

There now seems to be general agreement on the film aid part of the law, which is expected to take the previous tax rebate form, though a percentage point may be shaved off the amount returned to the industry on accrued admission taxes. As before, a certain control of "minimum quality standards" will obtain, though basically, tax rebate will be automatic.

Major changes would instead come in the touchy newsreel and short subject sectors of the industry, in which a yearly or semi-yearly "prize" system may replace the previous percentage break accorded the short-reelers.

In a lengthy interview accorded Rome's leading daily "Il Messaggero," Minister Corona also made some fairly optimistic statements regarding the industry future.

The recent meetings, the Minister said, had been fruitful, as had been the discussions that animated them. Corona also termed "out of place" recent accusations that a "State Cinema" was being organized, adding that "the previous legislation will certainly not be revolutionized." Instead, he said the future accent would be on quality on production and artistic levels.

Without specifically making a commitment, Corona hinted in his local interview at an eventual abolition of film censorship, compensated, however, by appropriate guarantees. Corona termed administrative censorship as "limiting" to freedom of expression as well as "scarcely effective."

Corona wound his thoughts to "Il Messaggero" with the hope that the new law or laws would not merely be documents, but would provide a common meeting ground —the Entertainment Ministry—for the Administrators on the one hand and artists and technicians of the entertainment field on the other.

Stashower Vice Burk

Arthur L. Stashower has been appointed exec assistant to United Artists Coast operations v.p. Robert F. Blumofe, effective May 25. He succeeds Arnold D. Burk who is moving to New York as exec assistant to prez Arthur B. Krim.

Blumofe's new assistant has been associated with the law firm of Kaplan, Livingston, Goodwin and Berkowitz for the past seven years.

Velde of UA Completing Tightened Control of N.Y. HQ Over the Hinterlands

James R. Velde, United Artists sales v.p., has completed the last of the moves in the realignment program he began a couple of months ago on his sales force, the major factor in which was the bringing of New York, Los Angeles and Chicago all under the direct supervision of the homeoffice.

The new divisional arrangement sets up the southern district, under division manager Gene Jacobs, to include Atlanta, Charlotte, Dallas, Jacksonville, New Orleans and Kansas City. The eastern and Canadian division, under Eugene Tunick, now includes Boston, New Haven, Cincinnati, Detroit, Philadelphia, Washington and all Canadian branches. Carl Olson, western district manager, now supervises Denver, Des Moines, Minneapolis, Salt Lake City, San Francisco and Seattle.

The newly-created central division, headed by Al Glaubinger, consists of Buffalo, Cleveland, Pittsburgh, Indianapolis, St. Louis and Milwaukee. In other developments, Morris Weinstein, Detroit branch manager has been named new metropolitan New York branch boss, under metropolitan manager John Turner. Robert Friedman, branch manager in Buffalo since 1962, has been named Philadelphia branch boss.

GOLDWYN'S 70 FILMS TO HOLLYWOOD MUSEUM

Hollywood, April 28.

Samuel Goldwyn has donated his entire library of some 70 films, to the Hollywood Museum. Included are such silents as "Stella Dallas," "The Dark Angel," "Night of Love" and other Ronald Colman-Vilma Banky costarrers: and "The Winning of Barbara Worth," in which Gary Cooper got his first notable break.

Sound films include "Bulldog Drummond," producer's first talkie; "Arrowsmith," "Dodsworth," "Raffles," "Whuthering Heights," "Best Years of Our Lives," "The Little Foxes" and "Porgy and Bess."

Amusement Stock Quotations

Week Ended Tues. (28)

N. Y. Stock Exchange

1964 High	1964 Low		*Weekly Vol. in 100s	Weekly High	Weekly Low	Tues. Close	Net Change for wk.
16⅞	13	ABC Vending	227	16¼	15⅛	15¾	— ½
40⅛	28½	Am Br-Par Th	167	37¾	36	36¼	— ½
18⅛	14⅝	Ampex	353	16⅝	15⅝	15⅞	— ⅝
47¾	36½	CBS	787	47¾	45⅛	46¼	—1⅛
18½	12⅜	Chris Craft	427	17⅞	15¼	16	—1
24⅝	21⅛	Col Pix	102	22⅝	21½	21¾	— ¾
49½	38⅜	Disney	299	48⅜	44⅛	45¾	—2⅜
131¾	114⅝	Eastman Kdk.	244	129⅝	127¾	128½	+ ⅛
8	5⅜	EMI	1893	8	7⅛	7⅝	+ ½
28¼	21⅜	General Tire	690	25⅜	23½	24¼	— ⅝
14⅝	12⅝	Glen Alden	136	13⅞	13⅜	13⅝	— ⅛
79⅝	64	Litton Ind.	524	68⅜	66⅝	67½
24¾	17½	Loew's Th.	65	21¾	20⅛	20¼	—1
60⅝	52⅜	MCA Inc.	124	54	52¾	52¾	—1¼
34⅛	27½	Metromedia	205	33½	31⅜	31¾	—1⅜
35½	28¾	MGM	275	34⅜	32¼	32¾	—1½
10⅛	8¾	Nat G'l Corp.	206	9¼	8¾	8⅞	— ¼
22⅞	20⅛	Outlet	†2031	21¾	20½	20½	..
62⅝	54⅛	Paramount	147	58⅛	55¼	56¾	—1
183½	145¼	Polaroid	298	163¾	156	156¾	—4
39¼	32¼	RCA	3745	34⅜	32¼	33½	— ⅝
9⅛	7¾	Republic	‡64	8⅞	8⅝	8⅞	+ ¼
15½	14⅞	Rep., pfd.	6	15¼	15⅛	15⅛	— ⅛
29½	24½	Stanley War.	61	28¼	26⅛	26½	—1¼
44½	38	Storer	85	43⅜	42¼	43¼	+ ¼
29¾	22⅝	Taft Bdcst.	47	27¾	26½	27	— ¾
27¼	21⅝	20th-Fox	249	23⅛	21¾	22	—1
30⅜	18½	United Artists	645	30⅜	28½	29	— ½
15¼	11¾	Warner Bros.	230	14½	13⅞	14¼	— ⅛
87⅛	73⅛	Zenith	523	79⅞	75¾	77¼	—2⅜

American Stock Exchange

3	2¼	Allied Artists	37	2⅝	2¼	2⅜
12¼	9⅜	BalM'nt GAC	24	10½	10	10⅛	— ¼
8	5⅛	Cam-P'kway	20	6	5⅝	5⅝	— ¼
27⅜	20	Cap. Cit. Bdc.	76	26½	24⅜	25	—1
13½	10	Cinerama Inc.	558	10⅜	9⅝	10⅛	— ⅛
8	6⅝	Desilu Prods.	21	7⅝	7¼	7⅜	+ ⅛
9⅛	7½	Filmways	48	8½	8⅛	8½
11¾	9⅛	Movielab	21	11	9⅝	11	+1⅜
12¾	8⅝	MPO Vid.	21	9⅛	8⅞	9	..
3	2⅝	Reeves Bdcst.	20	3	2¾	2¾	— ¼
4¾	2⅜	Reeves Ind	257	4⅜	3⅝	4	— ¼
17	14¼	Rollins Bdcst.	46	17⅜	16⅝	17⅛	+ ½
23	18½	Screen Gems	28	22⅜	21¾	22¼	+ ½
20¾	15½	Technicolor	492	17½	15½	16	—1⅜
7¼	4¾	Teleprm'ter	31	6½	6⅜	6⅜	— ⅛
1	11/16	Tele-Indus.	22	¾	11/16	11/16	—1/16
15¼	10⅝	Trans-Lux	9	12¼	11¾	12⅛	+ ⅛

* Week Ended Mon. (27).
† Actual Volume.
‡ Ex-dividend.

(Courtesy of Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith, Inc.)

Over-the-Counter Securities

	Bid	Ask
Commonwealth Theatres of Puerto Rico	5	5¾	— ½
Four Star Television	4½	5½
Gen. Aniline & Film	365	388	+5
General Artists Corp.	6⅜	6⅞	— ⅜
General Cinema Corp.	10	11	— ½
Magna Pictures	1¾	2⅛	— ⅛
Medallion Pictures	16⅝	17⅞	— ⅛
Pickwick International	4¼	4¾	— ⅛
Premier Albums	4½	5¼	— ⅜
Rust Craft Greeting Cards	12¾	13⅞	— ⅛
Seven Arts Productions	12½	13½	—1¼
U.A. Theatres	8¼	9½	— ¼
Universal Pictures	66	70
Walter Reade-Sterling Inc.	2⅜	2¾
Wometco Enterprises	35	37⅜
Wrather Corp.	3½	4

(Source: National Assn. of Securities Dealers Inc.)

Minima For Workers in N.Y. State

Now $1.15 an Hour, Due For $1.25 — But Unions Seek $1.50 and Escalating to $2

Albany, April 28.

Further agitation for an increase in the New York State minimum wage, now fixed at $1.15 hourly and slated to become $1.25, effective Oct. 15, will not down.

Although several bills providing for a hike to $1.50 or more were introduced at the recent session of the legislature, none passed. One, the Curran-March measure providing that the State Industrial Commissioner should not administer or enforce the state minimum wage law in any city with a department, board or officer having the responsibility for the protection of laborers, mechanics and workmen which on or before April 1, 1965 enacted a local law or ordinance establishing a minimum scale in excess of the State's, won overwhelming Assembly approval, was Committee. Its sponsors. Assemblyman Paul J. Curran, of Manhattan, and Senator John J. Marchi, of Staten Island, are Republicans.

The 2,000,000-member State Federation of Labor AFL-CIO in a letter (5) to Governor Nelson A. Rockefeller, recommended among proposals which he should include on the calendar of the special legislative session, April 15, "raising the state-wide minimum to $1.50 an hour, now, and gradually to $2 an hour." An alternative: "at least enabling cities to increase the minimum for their areas above that authorized state-wide."

New York City, which in 1963 adopted a local ordinance upping the minimum rate within its borders to a figure above the state level—only to have the ordinance invalidated by a 4-3 Court of Appeals decision——since unsuccessfully sought legislative authorization to vote an increase.

Major Newsreel Library Inc. has been authorized to print and publish libraries or inventories of newsreels, with offices in New York. Capital stock consists of 200 shares, no par value. Netter, Netter, Dowd, Fox & Rosoff, attorneys.

ZELTNER CHIEF OF UIEC

Union of Exhibs Changes By-Laws At Geneva

Geneva, April 28.

Edouard Zeltner is the new head of the International Union of Film Exhibitors Associations (UIEC). Zeltner was designated to head the international organization at a recent meeting held here in Geneva.

Several modifications in Union bylaws were voted at the assembly, which was made up of members from Italy, W. Germany, Austria, Belgium, France, Holland, Portugal, Switzerland, Spain, and Great Britain. Among others, presidential mandate was extended over two years, while number of vice-prexies was dropped to one, currently held by Spain's Villa Cardona. M. Trichet is acting secretary and M. Brochard Treasurer of grouping.

Committee discussed various common problems, and hit two principal targets: excessive taxation and television competition, asking for the elimination of the first and fair competition vs. the latter.

Shares Up as UA Rainbow Glows

United Artists closed last week on the N.Y. Stock Exchange at 29-3/8 and now seems likely to reach or top company's all-time high of 30-3/8. Action is being stimulated by the anticipation of UA chief execs Robert Benjamin and Arthur Krim, voiced two weeks ago in a letter to stockholders, that 1964 would be a record year for the company.

Talk is heard that the stock may go to 35 by mid-May. This should be coincident with Krim's "progress report," postponed this year from its usual January delivery.

This year's report will come just weeks before the annual stockholders meeting. It will also coincide with the mailing of the company's annual report for 1963 which will show the first loss, already reported, in the 13-year Benjamin-Krim reign. Actually the prez will have a lot more progress to report in May than he would have had at the first of the year when the company was just building momentum on its push toward recovery, a drive which produced a record first quarter in 1964.

The progress report is being awaited with some interest this year. Unlike an annual meeting where the press must remain silent (unless there's a stockholder in the group), the report is a press conference at which questions are asked of the execs. There are several such queries just waiting for a public interrogation such as the Mirisch relationship with UA and its future, more info on the expensive "Greatest Story Ever Told" and other such items which have been somewhat clouded in recent months.

Additionally, Krim is expected to have some revelations to make and to give a very upbeat appraisal of the company and its future. All of this should build to a satisfying annual meeting in June. For months now, UA has been pushing its public relations efforts full tilt, heading in to the big event. There has been a carefully-planned schedule of production announcements and a variety of other efforts. Now that the bad news about '63 is out, along with the upbeat first quarter report, the next step will be the progress report. Meanwhile, the UA stock is moving along steadily.

Rebuilds Atlantic City Surf for O'Seas Pix

Atlantic City, April 28.

Charles Tannenbaum, owner of the Surf Theatre, destroyed by fire last November, will rebuild house as a first-run art operation. Local architect Roy Anderson is designing new theatre, to be called the Charles. Building's undamaged front will be enlarged and remodeled. Tannenbaum believes this will be the first new theatre built here since 1941.

Exhibition policy will be first-run quality international films. Owner is son of late Samuel A. Tannenbaum, who operated the Palace, Lyric and Surf Theatres from 1932 until his death last year. Demolition work is now in progress.

Emotions Spill Into Rude Sarcasm At 'Discussion' of Tollvision

Hollywood, April 28.

Still another airing of the stale debate on feevee versus freevee occurred last week at a meeting of the Hollywood Press Club, with no new light being shed on the ancient subject. Except for some exceptionally bad manners and taste on the part of some in the audience who heckled anti-toll tv speakers, it was just another forum.

Taking part on behalf of pay tv were Robert F. MacLeod, marketing veepee for Subscription TV, and Screen Actors Guild prexy Dana Andrews, and paired against them were Mrs. Fred S. Teasley of the Citizens Committee for Free TV and State Radio-TV chairman of the California Federation of Womens' Clubs, and Frederick Dockweiler of the Citizens Committee for Free TV.

When Dockweiler spoke, and claimed that STV prexy Sylvester (Pat) Weaver had a salary of around $85,000 a year, and also said feevee prices would be high in order to pay other STV exec salaries as well, he was subjected to some loud heckling and rude remarks from the audience.

Dockweiler, astounded at the outburst, termed it "very rude," said if his hecklers didn't like his remarks, they could get out. Later, club prexy Dale Olson apologized for the behavior of the hecklers, and asked the members to give the speakers the courtesy of allowing them to talk.

Another dubious note was injection into the discussion by Jerry Conway, press agent for STV. Mrs. Teasley had lauded advertising-supported tv for its coverage of the assassination of President Kennedy. Conway sank to sarcasm, "Now that you've shed your tears over the Kennedy coverage . . ." This came during the q.-and-a. session, with Conway giving a speech castigating the anti-toll tv speakers rather than confining his remark to a question. In fact, most of the "questions" turned out to be long-winded speeches, and there was no effort from the chair to curtail them.

MacLeod tartly refused to give any details regarding STV's program plans, in answer to a question pointing out the firm's start date is not far off—July 1. He said program content matter would be revealed "when we choose to release it; at our convenience." He then blamed the current hearing before the Public Utilities Commission whereby Pacific Telephone seeks an okay to construct lines for STV on the delay.

Mrs. Teasley denied that there was any connection between her Citizens group and film exhibitors who have formed a "Crusade" against tv group. She denied Willian Ross of the tout firm repping the exhibs handles her group's publicity. Ross, who was present, said he is a director of the Citizens' Committee, in answer to a question, said he "doesn't report to the theatre owners." However, SAG p.r. director Buck Harris, who had asked the question, later revealed documents purporting to show Ross reports to the exhib group.

Dockweiler said he was not a rep of the exhibs or tv, or of any vested interest, that he was against STV because of the manner in which it obtained legal sanction in this state, asserting he felt it should be okayed by the FCC. Asked why it was legal for theatres to carry events closed circuit, but not via pay tv in homes, he replied "that's something for the lawyers to argue out."

Jack Dales, national exec secretary of SAG, argued the feevee company has a right to bring pay tv into the homes, and asked Mrs. Teasley: "Theatre owners have a monopoly on theatre tv. Would the women's clubs go as far as to seek outlaw theatres?" She replied that it wasn't the same thing, because theatres do not present tv events as a daily thing, that they use it only occasionally for something like a sports event. Dales then asked her if she didn't feel the theatre owners with a "monopoly" at the b.o. were a threat to free tv, and she replied she did not.

John W. Lehners, business agent of IATSE film editors local 776, demanded to know why the public wasn't represented at the meeting, pointing out the pros and cons were being debated without the most interested party—the public—being represented. He also challenged Mrs. Teasley's "right" to speak on behalf of all members of the women's club she reps.

Columbia Foreign Shifts; Stein Back to Venezuela, Jack Jackter Far East

With the Far East sales spot open, because of Julian D. Berman leaving Columbia Pictures for a European sales berth (see separate story), Col's international topper Mo Rothman has made possible the return of Alexander Stein to Caracas, not only in charge of Venezuela but as supervisor of the Caribbean and Central American territory. Jack Jacketer, incumbent in Venezuela, takes over in Tokyo as Far East sales supervisor.

Stein, who is married to a Venezuelan girl, had been in Paris as an exec under Marion F. Jordan, Columbia's European and Middle East sales topper, in charge of northern European territory but yenned to return to Caracas because of Mrs. Stein's family ties. They have four children. He will supervise the Caribbean Area, including Guatemala, Costa Rica, San Salvador, Puerto Rico, Panama, Santo Domingo, Jamaica, British Honduras, Netherlands Antilles and French Antilles from his Venezuelan base.

Jackter, who is kin to Col's domestic sales topper Rube Jackter, takes command in the Orient on May 1.

Michener's Novel A Revived Project

Filmization of James Michener's "Hawaii" is back among the likely realities of the future with the signing last week of George Roy Hill to direct the project which Walter Mirisch will produce. Production is now slated to begin next spring (1965).

The picture will be budgeted in the area of $10,000,000. This was the top figure established by United Artists, which will distribute, when the project was in the hands of Fred Zinnemann, who has since departed. The problem with the original conception, apparently, was that the pic couldn't be brought in under that stipulation.

No scriptwriter has been signed to prepare the screenplay for the new concept. Both Dan Taradash and Dalton Trumbo had worked on previous versions. Whether any of their original work will be retained in the new version isn't clear. The way the project is being planned now, it will be made entirely in Hawaii, both interiors and exteriors. Emmett Emerson, production manager for Pan Arts, the indie film producing company of which Hill is a partner, will be production manager for "Hawaii" and has been scouting the area. One of the early notions of making two pix of the property is scrapped.

Pan Arts, incidentally, will have some participation in "Hawaii," although the details aren't being spelled out. Clear, however, is that Hill isn't working just as an individual. His affiliation with Pan Arts, in which he's partnered with producer Jerry Hellman, is a factor. So far, billing on the picture reads "a George Roy Hill-Walter Mirisch production." Hill also has a non-exclusive multi-pic pact with the Mirisches, with one pic yet to be made. His work on "Hawaii" has been described as a "special loan-out arrangement with Pan Arts."

Meanwhile, the director also owes a pic to UA under another deal. Chances are that he may fulfill this committment between now and the "Hawaii" start, although the property he'll work on isn't set. There is also the possibility that he may direct a play on Broadway between now and then. Pan Arts apparently owns a suitable property, as yet undisclosed, and he might stage this.

The BOUNCIEST MOVIE of the Summer Backed by a MOLLY PALOOZA of a CAMPAIGN!

NATIONAL ADVERTISING

Full color ads in Life, Look, Good Housekeeping, Town & Country, Harper's Bazaar

WORLD PREMIERE

A "Molly-palooza" of a world premiere will be held in Denver early in June.

ED SULLIVAN SHOW

Harve Presnell will make a live appearance; and a scene from the film will also be shown.

NEW YORK WORLD'S FAIR

"Molly Brown" trailer being shown as part of the Kodak Exhibit for four weeks beginning April 22, and the "Molly Brown" set will be on display at the Hollywood Pavilion.

NATIONAL MAGAZINES

Cover stories, photo layouts and features will begin running in all major periodicals beginning in May.

TV TRAILER

Specially produced and in Color to capture all of the vitality—the warmth—the heart of "Molly Brown." This trailer, with modification, is also going to be available as a theatrical teaser trailer.

PAPERBACK BOOK

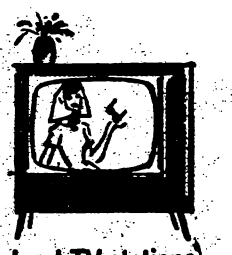
To be released in May with extensive point-of-sale promotion by publisher.

SOUND TRACK ALBUM

MGM Records planning extensive record promotion and disc jockey tie-ins on the music from "Molly Brown."

COLUMN PUBLICITY

The breaks are mounting in all nationally syndicated columns. By June, "Molly Brown" will be a household word to column readers.



NATIONAL TOURS BY "MOLLY BROWN" STARS

Debbie Reynolds, Harve Presnell, Ed Begley scheduled for personal appearances and interviews in key cities.
Starting with the Denver premiere, these star tours will be timed to coincide with local openings.

FASHIONS

"Molly Brown" is the big color for fall and the keynote to the most ambitious fashion promotion ever conceived for a motion picture. Fashions inspired by the film include coats by Cuddlecoat, hats by John Frederics, hosiery by Kayser-Roth, dresses by Mr. Gee and jewelry by Coro. In the weeks to come, you will see numerous fashion layouts in major national magazines.

SPECIAL TV FASHION FEATURE on "Molly Brown" costumes is now being serviced to local TV stations. Running time 5 minutes.

SHEET MUSIC

Frank Music will conduct a national and point-of-sale promotion campaign on behalf of the Meredith Willson score.

the Unsinkable MOLLY BROWN

METRO-GOLDWYN MAYER presents A LAWRENCE WEINGARTEN PRODUCTION starring

DEBBIE REYNOLDS * HARVE PRESNELL

CO-STARRING

ED BEGLEY * JACK KRUSCHEN * HERMIONE BADDELEY

BASED ON THE MUSICAL PLAY MUSIC AND LYRICS BY MEREDITH WILLSON · BOOK BY RICHARD MORRIS · CHOREOGRAPHY BY PETER GENNARO · SCREEN PLAY BY HELEN DEUTSCH · ASSOCIATE PRODUCER ROGER EDENS · DIRECTED BY CHARLES WALTERS

PANAVISION® & METROCOLOR

M-G-M is on the MOVE!

Loew's Theatres Streamlining Circuit as 3-Year Program to Drop Marginal Houses Nears Completion

Strategy started three years ago by Loew's Theatres to shed a number of secondary situations will be completed by the end of this summer. According to Arthur M. Tolchin, assistant to president Laurence Tisch, the program was aimed at those houses which the circuit convinced itself would not be worth the effort and money involved if included in the massive revitalization plan the circuit had initiated.

Theatres closed during the past three months, for example were the Esquire, Toledo, Ohio; the Olympia, Broadway at 107th; the Inwood, upper Manhattan; the Cameo, Brooklyn and the Boulevard, Bronx. There will be others, reminded Tolchin, although individual instances have not been decided, just as there will be future construction.

Reduced to a marginal operating basis, the houses, for a variety of reasons, had ceased to be good investments. Some were in downgraded areas which had hit a slump when the area had changed from residential to industrial. A mixture of rented, leased, fee-owned and other operations, about half the theatres were located in the N. Y. metropolitan area, the others scattered among the rest of the circuit's national situations.

Other Loew's execs, including exec v.p. Bernard Myerson, national ad director-v.p. Ernest Emerling and pub director Ted Arnow, share Arnow's contention that no residents of any area have been deprived by the closing of a theatre. Through Loew's continuing program of improving houses, the circuit is in a better position to serve larger areas that frequently encompass neighborhoods formerly served by one of the closed theatres.

"As a result," he said, "this will leave us with a nucleus of really fine theatres. Our remodeling and renovation program, which has cost us about $3,000,000 to date, has been very busy. It is now about 80% completed and should be wound up within the next six months.

"We've got the best chain in the country — the best maintenance, the best projection, the best service, one of the finest operations in the film exhibition field."

With the freedom provided by the disposal of the older houses the streamlined circuit may soon plan construction of some new theatres in carefully selected spots. A fairly recent user of the showcase system of presentation, Loew's is not yet committing itself as to its merits. "We have not fully determined how we feel about it," said Tolchin. "But with or without showcase, we're going to continue to forge ahead."

'Molly Brown' Preem For Denver (Her Home Burg)

"The Unsinkable Molly Brown" will have her world preem June 11 in Denver at the Denham Theatre. Colorado's governor John A. Love will host the event. The affair will be a black-tie situation for the benefit of the Metropolitan Assn. for Retarded Children.

Discussion of the preem and other items related to "Molly" were the principal order of business this past weekend (25-26) at the Plaza Hotel, N.Y., where Metro field press reps, homeoffice pub staffers and studio reps were gathered. The meetings were designed to launch the nationwide campaign for the pic, said to be one of the largest ever mapped by the company.

Ad-pub-exploitation exec director Dan Terrell hosted the sessions, along with his assistant, Emery Austin and exploitation director Andy Sullivan. Immediately following the meetings, Dave McGrath, Earl Wingard and Eddie Hubbell, special advance men for the pic, left on nationwide tours which will continue well into May.

Tornado, Foe of B.O.

Kansas City, April 28.

Wayward tornadic winds on all sides of Kansas City (where the U.S. Weather Bureau's severe weather headquarters is situated) have blown down four drive-in screen towers in the past few days. Three went down Monday night (20), Chief at Topeka, Kans., owned by Dickinson circuit; Hillcrest at Ottawa, Kans., owned by Mr. and Mrs. William Bancroft, and the "Lucky 13" at Boliver, Mo., owned by Mrs. W. O. Woodie.

A few days before, the Dude Ranch Drive-In at Maryville, Mo., lost its screen, whereupon owner C. E. "Doc" Cook and his son Jim put on the attraction board: "See You Later . . Our Screen Is Gone With the Wind." All the screens will be replaced as soon as possible, the owners said.

A Busier United Artists Slides Silently Beyond 45th Founders Day

United Artists passed its 45th anni on April 17. Although it did so in complete silence, a check of the company's production schedule reveals that UA is presently undergoing the most active picture making period in all of those 45 years, with 16 pix either in production or editing. Another three are slated to start filming early this summer.

Interesting in this array is the fact that, of the six films presently being lensed, four are filming abroad and two in the U.S. Of the 10 being edited at present, seven were made overseas and only two in the States. Of the three to be made this summer, one will film on foreign soil and the other two Stateside. That's two-to-one in favor of overseas production.

But regardless of where they were made or are being filmed, the pix represent a hefty inventory for the company, probably the most extensive it has enjoyed. The collective also accounts for a sizeable investment. As a result, a major sales drive has been underway, pegged to another uncelebrated company event—the 13th anni of the Benjamin-Krim administration which took place a while back. This is the "Lucky 13" drive, honoring Arnold Picker, UA's exec vice prez. Although not much is made of this push outside the company, it is a concentrated effort within the UA sales force with quarterly prizes for especially zealous salesmen and other incentives.

The hefty production array includes "Kiss Me, Stupid," "How to Murder Your Wife," "Goldfinger," "One Way Pendulum," "The Train" and the Beatles' "Hard Day's Night" in production. Editing are "Greatest Story Ever Told," "Satan Bug," "Invitation to a Gunfighter," "Woman of Straw," "633 Squadron," "Shot In the Dark," "Topkapi," "Dubious Patriots," "The Seventh Dawn" and "Mr. Moses." Also, completed and awaiting summer release, is "For Those Who Think Young." Set for production this summer are "Hallelujah Train," "A Rage To Live" and "I'll Take Sweden."

Beyond this, UA has a busy production sked already plotted to extend far into 1966. It is the most active period the company has had. As for 1964, UA got off to a record fiscal first quarter, rebounding from a loss for 1963, the first in the present administration's 13 years. With all factors considered, the company seems headed for a record second half and possibly its best year ever. It is certainly not lacking in inventory, whatever happens.

Bill Blatty, who authored "John Goldfarb, Please Come Home," Steve Parker production starring Shirley MacLaine for 20th-Fox release, set by producer to write two original vehicles for femme star with Far East backdrop.

ANGRY AT ATTORNEYS

Monte Lee Sues His Own After 'Grimm' Title Defeat

Los Angeles, April 28.

Monte Lee is asking $6,000,000 damages in Superior Court action against two attorneys who repped him in a suit against Metro and Cinerama over use of the words "Wonderful" or "Wonderful World" in connection with Lee's release of a German-made pic, "Grimm's Fairy Tales."

Named as codefendants are Edward Mosk and Norman Rudman, whom he charges with malpractice in one of six causes in the complaint, for which he asks $1,000,000 on each count. Suit hinges primarily around attorneys allegedly having improperly handled Lee's suit.

Metro and Cinerama were granted a permanent injunction last Feb. 13 restraining Lee's use of the title "Wonderful World of the Grimm Brothers" or "Wonderful World" in advertising or promotion.

Films for Teens Goal of Partners

Hollywood, April 28.

Joseph M. Schenck Enterprises, headed by Bernard Schwartz, has partnered with producer Bert I. Gordon and Teenage Fair Inc., headed by Al Burton, Bart Ross and Frank Danzig, to make a group of film and television projects aimed directly at the teenage market.

Partners are now working on three features in this field, among them a picture tentatively tagged "Miss Teen U.S.A.," or "How to Win A Beauty Contest." Teen-Age Fair Inc. annually holds a "Miss Teen U.S.A." contest.

New association will function with Gordon as producer of all pix under the Schenck Enterprises production co. banner, with Schwartz handling employment contracts and financing in pre-production deals or prior to distribution deals. Burton and his partners will provide youth research on basis of their three-year presentation of the Teen Fairs aimed at developing projects with immediate appeal to the teen-age market.

Company provides similar youth research for numerous national industrial companies with products aimed at the youth dollar. Burton said they gross "in excess of $1,000,000 a year on Teen-Age Fairs."

Schwartz pointed to the arrangement as an opportunity to select new young talent, noting Teen-Age Fair Inc. retains first call on talents of contest winners. Some of these, drawn from 46 finalists from 50 states, will be used in the upcoming pictures.

All films to be made will be done in Hollywood on budgets under $500,000. Production on first is aimed for summer.

Teen-Age Fairs are skedded for the Minnesota and Illinois state fairs. Attendance at the March 20-29 Fair at the Palladium here was 241,000, Burton said. Third annual Fair here is on Easter week. Ross-Danzig produced seven KTTV specials during the fair.

How They Talk & Dress Bothers Decency Legion

The Roman Catholic Legion of Decency has given an A-IV rating (morally unobjectionable for adults, with reservations) to Walter Reade-Sterling's "Black Like Me" and a B rating (morally objectionable in part for all) to 20th-Fox's "What A Way To Go."

Re "Black Like Me," the Legion cautions that "the realistic use . . . of vulgarity and crudity in dialog may prove shocking to sensitive viewers."

Concerning the 20th pic, the Legion declares it is "unacceptable" because "much of the costuming of the central character appears to have been chosen primarily for the purpose of stimulating prurient interest." The Legion adds: "High artistic purpose does not justify flagrant exhibitionism—even if only to ridicule it."

New York Soundtrack

Continued from page 7

a dinner in his honor at Waldorf-Astoria May 21. Nicholas D. Biddle is dinner's chairman.

Henry George Greene, of New York, was consulting architect of the auxiliary Saenger-Orleans Theatre being built on the balcony of the Saenger Theatre, N.O. Incidentally, Mrs. Irma Lea, bookkeeper, and Mrs. Diana Rothschmitt, in the film buying office, both Paramount Gulf Theatres employees in New Orleans, will split the $100 prize for a new name for the piggyback theatre. Each submitted the same name unbeknownst to another.

More casting at Universal-British character actor Hedley Mattingly into Panama and Frank's "Strange Bedfellows." He'll play Gina Lollobrigida's lawyer . . . Tony Young and Dan Duryea, together in 'He Rides Tall," also teamed for Gordon Kay's "Taggart." Also repeating from "Tall" are writer Bob Williams and director R. G. Springsteen.

Columbia homeoffice execs received word from their man in Lebanon that the censors there have okayed Col's rock-'n'-roll pic, "Just for Fun," with just one stipulation—that all the musical numbers be cut out. Seeing as how the film is 90% twist footage, the Col people expect the Lebanese version of the film to resemble Stanley Kubrick's trailer on "Dr. Strangelove."

Clem Perry, now reactivating his indie distribbery, Altura Films, leaves for Cannes Fest at the end of the week. He'll also visit Paris, to conclude negotiations for the acquisition of two pix, and London. Most recently, Perry was with Metro . . . Lillian Eidel, who was Girl Friday to former 20th-Fox veep Charles Einfeld for many years, is now working for Ely Landau . . ."I Campagni," the Italo pic which walked off with the best pic and other top awards at the recently concluded Buenos Aires Fest, will be released here next month by Walter Reade-Sterling as "The Organizer." Marcello Mastroianni stars.

Principal photography on 20th's "Those Magnificent Men in Their Flying Machines" starts May 19 in London. Second unit work gets underway one week earlier . . . Maria Van Slyke, who has held a number of top pub posts with the majors, has been named publicity director for Matthews, the chain of women's shops with outlets in Beverly Hills, Palm Springs, Chicago and New York. She'll divide her time between N.Y. and L.A.

Director Shirley Clarke is apparently more than a little burned that she was not credited when the Oscar was given out to the feature-length doc, "Robert Frost—A Lover's Quarrel With The World." Robert Hughes accepted the award sans mention of Shirley, whose pub reps here say that credits should have read: "directed by Shirley Clarke, additional footage by Robert Hughes."

Walter Reade Jr. and Saul J. Turell, chairman and prez, respectively, of Walter Reade-Sterling, will both be attending the Cannes Fest. Their feature-length documentary, "Point of Order," will be screened for the critics, while their Italo acquisition, "Seduced and Abandoned," will be Italy's official entry in the principal Cannes competition. Additionally, R-S will be offering 15 of its pix for international sale outside the fest . . . Col reports that boxoffice gross on "Dr. Strangelove" topped the $4,000,000 mark at firstrun situations in 100 domestic markets in just 11 weeks of release.

Twentieth-Fox has exercised its first option on producer David Weisbart's long-term contract for another year. Weisbart has two pix now shooting—"Goodbye, Charlie" and "Rio Conchos"—and "The Pleasure Seekers" due to start next month . . . Col International veep Mo Rothman back at his New York desk after a 10-day biz trip to London and Paris . . . Jud Kinberg and John Kohn, now producing William Wyler's "The Collector" for Col, have been signed for another pic—yet to be revealed—for the company . . . AIP's eastern publicity director Ruth Pologe on the Coast this week.

Peter Sellers, now recovering on the Coast from his heart attack, will rest until early next year when he'll play Fagin in the film version of Lional Bart's musical, "Oliver." Pic will be made for Columbia by Brookfield Productions, a partnership of Sellers and John Bryan . . . The New York Variety Club will honor the Catholic Actors Guild on its 50th anni and its prez, Horace McMahon, at luncheon here May 14 . . . John and Faith Hubley's animated feature, "Of Stars and Men," will have its U.S. commercial preem at the Beekman here April 29. Tom Brandon is distrib.

Italo novelist Alberto Moravia will discuss the art of the Italian film in a lecture at the Metropolitan Museum here the evening of May 5 . . . Tanya Lopert, daughter of United Artists veep Ilya Lopert, has just completed a role in the new French pic, "Chasse a L'Homme," directed by Eddard Molinaro . . . Author-publicist Irving Drutman off for London tomorrow (Thurs.) for an extended stay to work on various magazine assignments . . . William Morris Agency here currently agenting the sale of U.S. rights to following four French pix: "Sweet and Sour," "The Animals," "To Die in Madrid" and "Adorable Liar."

"Harvey Middleman, Fireman," first feature-length, live-action film by Ernie Pintoff, will be released by Columbia. Pintoff, who received an Oscar last week for his animated short, "The Critic," earlier made a live-action featurette, "The Shoes." "Harvey" went into production here Monday (20) . . . Add Lilia Skala to the passenger list for Stanley Kramer's "Ship of Fools" . . . Max Wieberg, trailer producer-writer for National Screen Service, off to the Cannes Fest, plus side visits to London, Paris and Rome.

Producer Martin Ransohoff has acquired screen rights to "Ice Station Zebra," suspense novel by Alistair MacLean, author of "Guns of Navarone." Pic is tentatively set for production next spring with locations to be done in the Arctic. No distrib has yet been set, though Ransohoff has commitments with Metro, Col and UA . . . Col veep Robert S. Ferguson named chairman of the entertainment subdivision of the 1964 Greater New York Red Cross fund-raising campaign.

Lawrence J. Quirk, nephew of the late fan mag enterpriser, James R. Quirk, now holds editorships of Screen Stars, Movie World and other works of Martin Goodman's Magazine Management Co. . . . Former editor of Movie World, Dorothy Gallagher, is back to freelance routine . . . One of the homes crushed by earthquake in Anchorage, Alaska was owned by Lowell Thomas Jr. who was absent on the Arctic ice cap at time with photographer Ted Spiegel.

Pete Levathes, remembered from 20th Century-Fox, is now a top shot at Maxon ad agency in Manhattan. His latest activity is using daytime television to sell Gillette Blades to the husbands through the wives.

Publicist Mike Beck has established a fund in memory of William F. Blowitz, who died in New York after being struck down by a car. Fund goes to Roosevelt Hospital where Blowitz was taken for treatment, because of its excellent care of Blowitz . . . Jerry Hellman expects to put Arnold Schulman's original screenplay about the lives of a couple of cuties employed at the United Nations into production this August with locations in New York. It is still a tossup, however, whether it will headquarter in Gotham or on the Coast . . . Ted Lehman and Richard DiPalo into Par's "Roustabout" . . . Jonathan Winters cast in Metro's "The Loved One" . . . Joe Levine and Carlo Ponti's "Marriage—Italian Style" has started production in Naples starring Marcello Mastroianni and Sophia Loren, under Vittorio De Sica's direction.

The peripatetic Joe Levine was on a bicycle again this past weekend; quickied to Boston and thence to Hollywood to see a rough cut of "A House Is Not A Home" and got back yesterday. (Tues.).

Fox West Coast Circuit Assumes Role as Plaintiff Under Antitrust

San Francisco, April 28.

Fox West Coast Theatres Corp. has filed a motion in U. S. District Court here for permission to file a cross-complaint against Syufy Enterprises and Winchester Drive-In Theatre, alleging that Snufy Winchester, with other exhibitors, combined and conspired to destroy FWC's new Bayshore Drive-In at San Jose, by denying it access to firstrun films.

Also named as co-conspirators, but not as defendants, were United California Theatres, El Rancho Drive-In Theatre and the Tropicair Drive-In Company. Cross-complaint will allege Syufy, Winchester, United, El Rancho and Tropicair "acquired all the first class or substantially all the first class feature motion pictures from all motion picture distributoss for their respective drivein theatres in the San Jose competitive area at minimum and non-competitive film rentals." It claimed that the other area driveins, including the Bayshore were stuck with leftovers at same or higher film rentals.

Motion will be argued May 15 here. The court will determine then whether it should be filed as a cross-complaint or a separate complaint. Fox West Coast is seeking judgment of $600,000, being three-fold damages sustained by it. The Bayshore, a 1,055-car drivein constructed at cost of $700,000, opened last May.

This is believed first time that Fox West Coast Theatres has filed a treble damage suit as a plaintiff in a conspiracy case. They're repped by Harry B. Swerdlow of Swerdlow, Glikbarg and Berkowitz.

Shirley Jones is Tony Randall's romantic interest in Universal's "Fluffy," now shooting with Earl Bellamy directing.

Home Burg Encores Neal

Knoxville, April 28.

Following her Oscar win last week, Patricia Neal returns to her native Knoxville via "Hud." It's booked for the main street Bijou, a Wilby-Kincey house. Will go as long as business justifies, per William Coury, manager.

Picture started on April 16, three days after Miss Neal won as "Best Actress" in the Academy vote. She herself is in England at moment awaiting the birth of a child.

DOUBLING SPREADS

Some Dismay as Ozoners Adopt Two-Film Policy

Minneapolis, April 28.

As far as local four-wall theatres are concerned Minneapolis always has been a single feature town and still is. And the same goes for the adjoining Twin City, St. Paul, twin billing being infrequent for all but a few of its conventional houses in the late subsequent-run slots.

However, there's now some consternation in Twin City exhibitor circles because the 14 Minneapolis-St. Paul drivein theatres, at the very outset of their present season, have gone to dual features even though there's much opposition to the policy in the ozoners' own ranks.

It all started when a couple of the outdoor theatres under the same ownership launched the twin billings as a regular policy. All the other ozoners now have fallen in line despite the fact they're opposed. It's a matter of "self protection," they explain.

Because of summer daylight saving time, which necessitates a late at night start for their shows, owners of the outdoor theatres are saying that dual features seem particularly a poor policy.

British Union Opposes Techni Plan to Gain Control Brit. Plant

London.

A bid to stop the parent Technicolor corporation in the U. S. from gaining control of the British plant is being made by the Assn. of Cinematograph, Television and Allied Technicians. The union has asked the Treasury to suspend approval to the deal until stockholders and staff have been consulted and consideration given to their views.

Over the weekend, the union declared its strong opposition to the acceptance of the offer by Technicolor of America to purchase the shares owned by British stockholders. The American company, it states, already owns 50½% of the issued capital of the British company and, therefore, has effective control. The offer, if accepted, would mean that the largest film processing plant in the country, with over 1,000 employees, would become entirely American-owned, as also would a smaller company owned by Technicolor, Henderson Film Laboratories.

According to ACTT, neither stockholders nor staff had been consulted. The staff was strongly opposed to the deal, as also appeared to be a number of shareholders. The union did not accept as valid the reasons given for the necessity of the purchase, and noted that the Italian laboratory was not being similarly taken over.

Technicolor, the union declares, is a profitable company and the profits partly derived from processing British films and from the skill of British employees are now to pass to foreign hands. ACTT organizes the bulk of the staff and has sole trade union negotiating rights. In its view, the traditions of British collective bargaining would be in jeopardy if the purchase was completed. And despite assurances from the management, the staff was uneasy and fearful for the future. The union urges British shareholders to refuse to sell their holdings.

Metro Clings to Old Religion Of Daily Press Front Line Promotion for Feature Sell

Metro is planning an expansion of its direct-from-New York publicity service to newspapers around the country. This at a time when several other companies are trimming their newsprint service to favor more tv planting. The Metro move is based on a couple of quite successful experiences with news print lately and the company's belief in the continuing value of the medium as a primary sales tool.

The company currently services some 425 dailies direct, every day almost. There are 725 papers throughout the country with circulations over 10,000 and Metro now plans to service all of them direct from New York, possibly not as frequently as the original 425, but whenever the company has something of particular interest or can dream up some "exclusive in your area" copy.

In addition to the 425 papers now serviced out of New York, Metro also directly feeds some 300 columnists around the country once or twice a week and then there's the daily service to trades and N.Y. dailies and service to some weeklies. In all, the company will be directly feeding some 1,000 papers by the next couple of weeks.

This does not mean an end to the field press rep system the company and others use. Nor does it mean elimination of the wire services from coverage. Metro will continue to circulate its field men with general material. But the sepcial interest stuff will go straight from Gotham to the publications in the field, the reps following up in a coordinated effort. Wire services will continue to be planted as well, for even broader coverage not possible by direct mail or even, in some cases, via fieldmen.

This expanded press feed is the result of a couple of campaigns recently which the company considered to have worked out very effectively, using the direct mail approach, followed by the field reps. One such was for "Mail Order Bride" for which Metro covered some 1,000 papers direct from Gotham with a variety of material. The pickup was very rewarding and led to the conclusion that such an effort can produce solid results, possibly more substantial than is generally thought in these days of growing tv activity.

Not that Metro ignores tv and radio. Its campaign for the upcoming "Unsinkable Molly Brown" has a strong ad program for both outlets and there is a pub drive skedded for the media as well. But the feeling is that print is still a very valuable sales tool and not one to be eased up on. The direct-from-Gotham approach, although probably more costly, has a strong and effective place in the pub scheme of things, the company feels, hence the expanded activity.

Upward Goes Techni

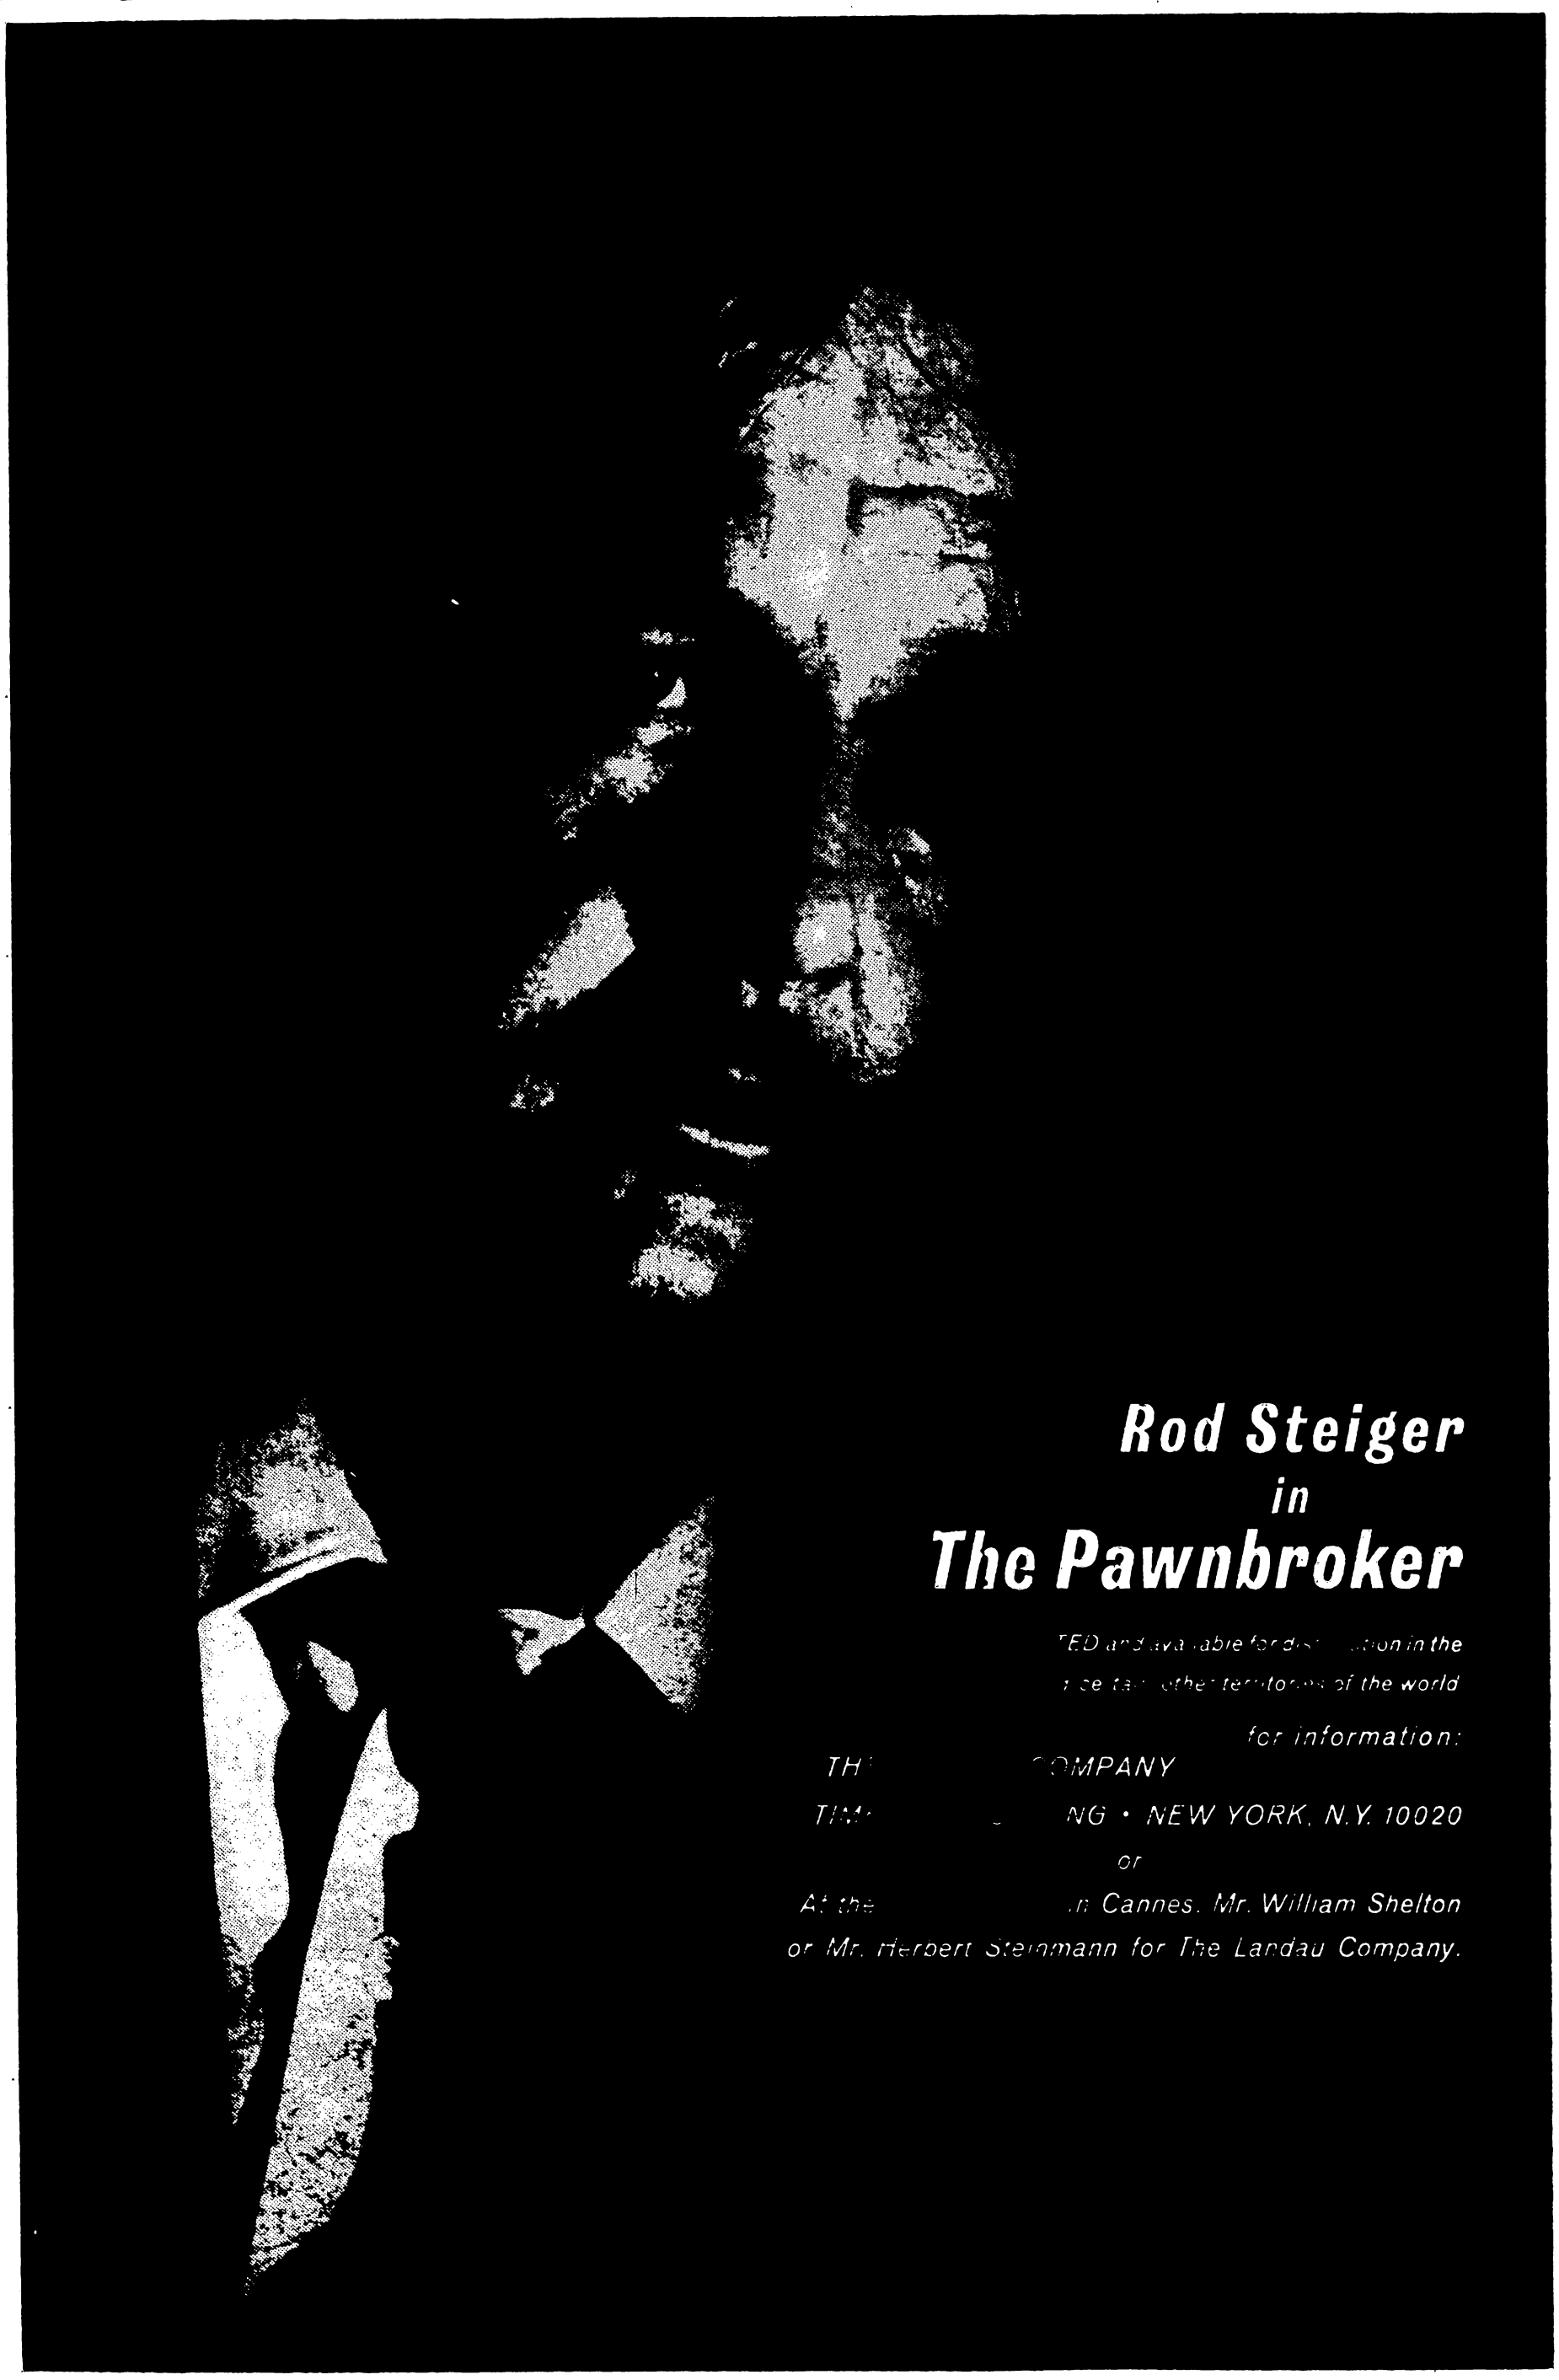
Technicolor Inc., tilted its earnings up slightly for first quarter of 1964, profits for company and its wholly owned subsids hitting $969,587 against $913,265 for corresponding periad last year, board chairman-chief executive officer Patrick Frawley has reported.

New take was equivalent to 34c per share on 2,886,445 shares outstanding as compared with 32c per share on 2,840,980 shares last year. Consolidated net sales for '64 first quarter amounted to $21,204,424 as against $19,476,006 for same period in 1963.

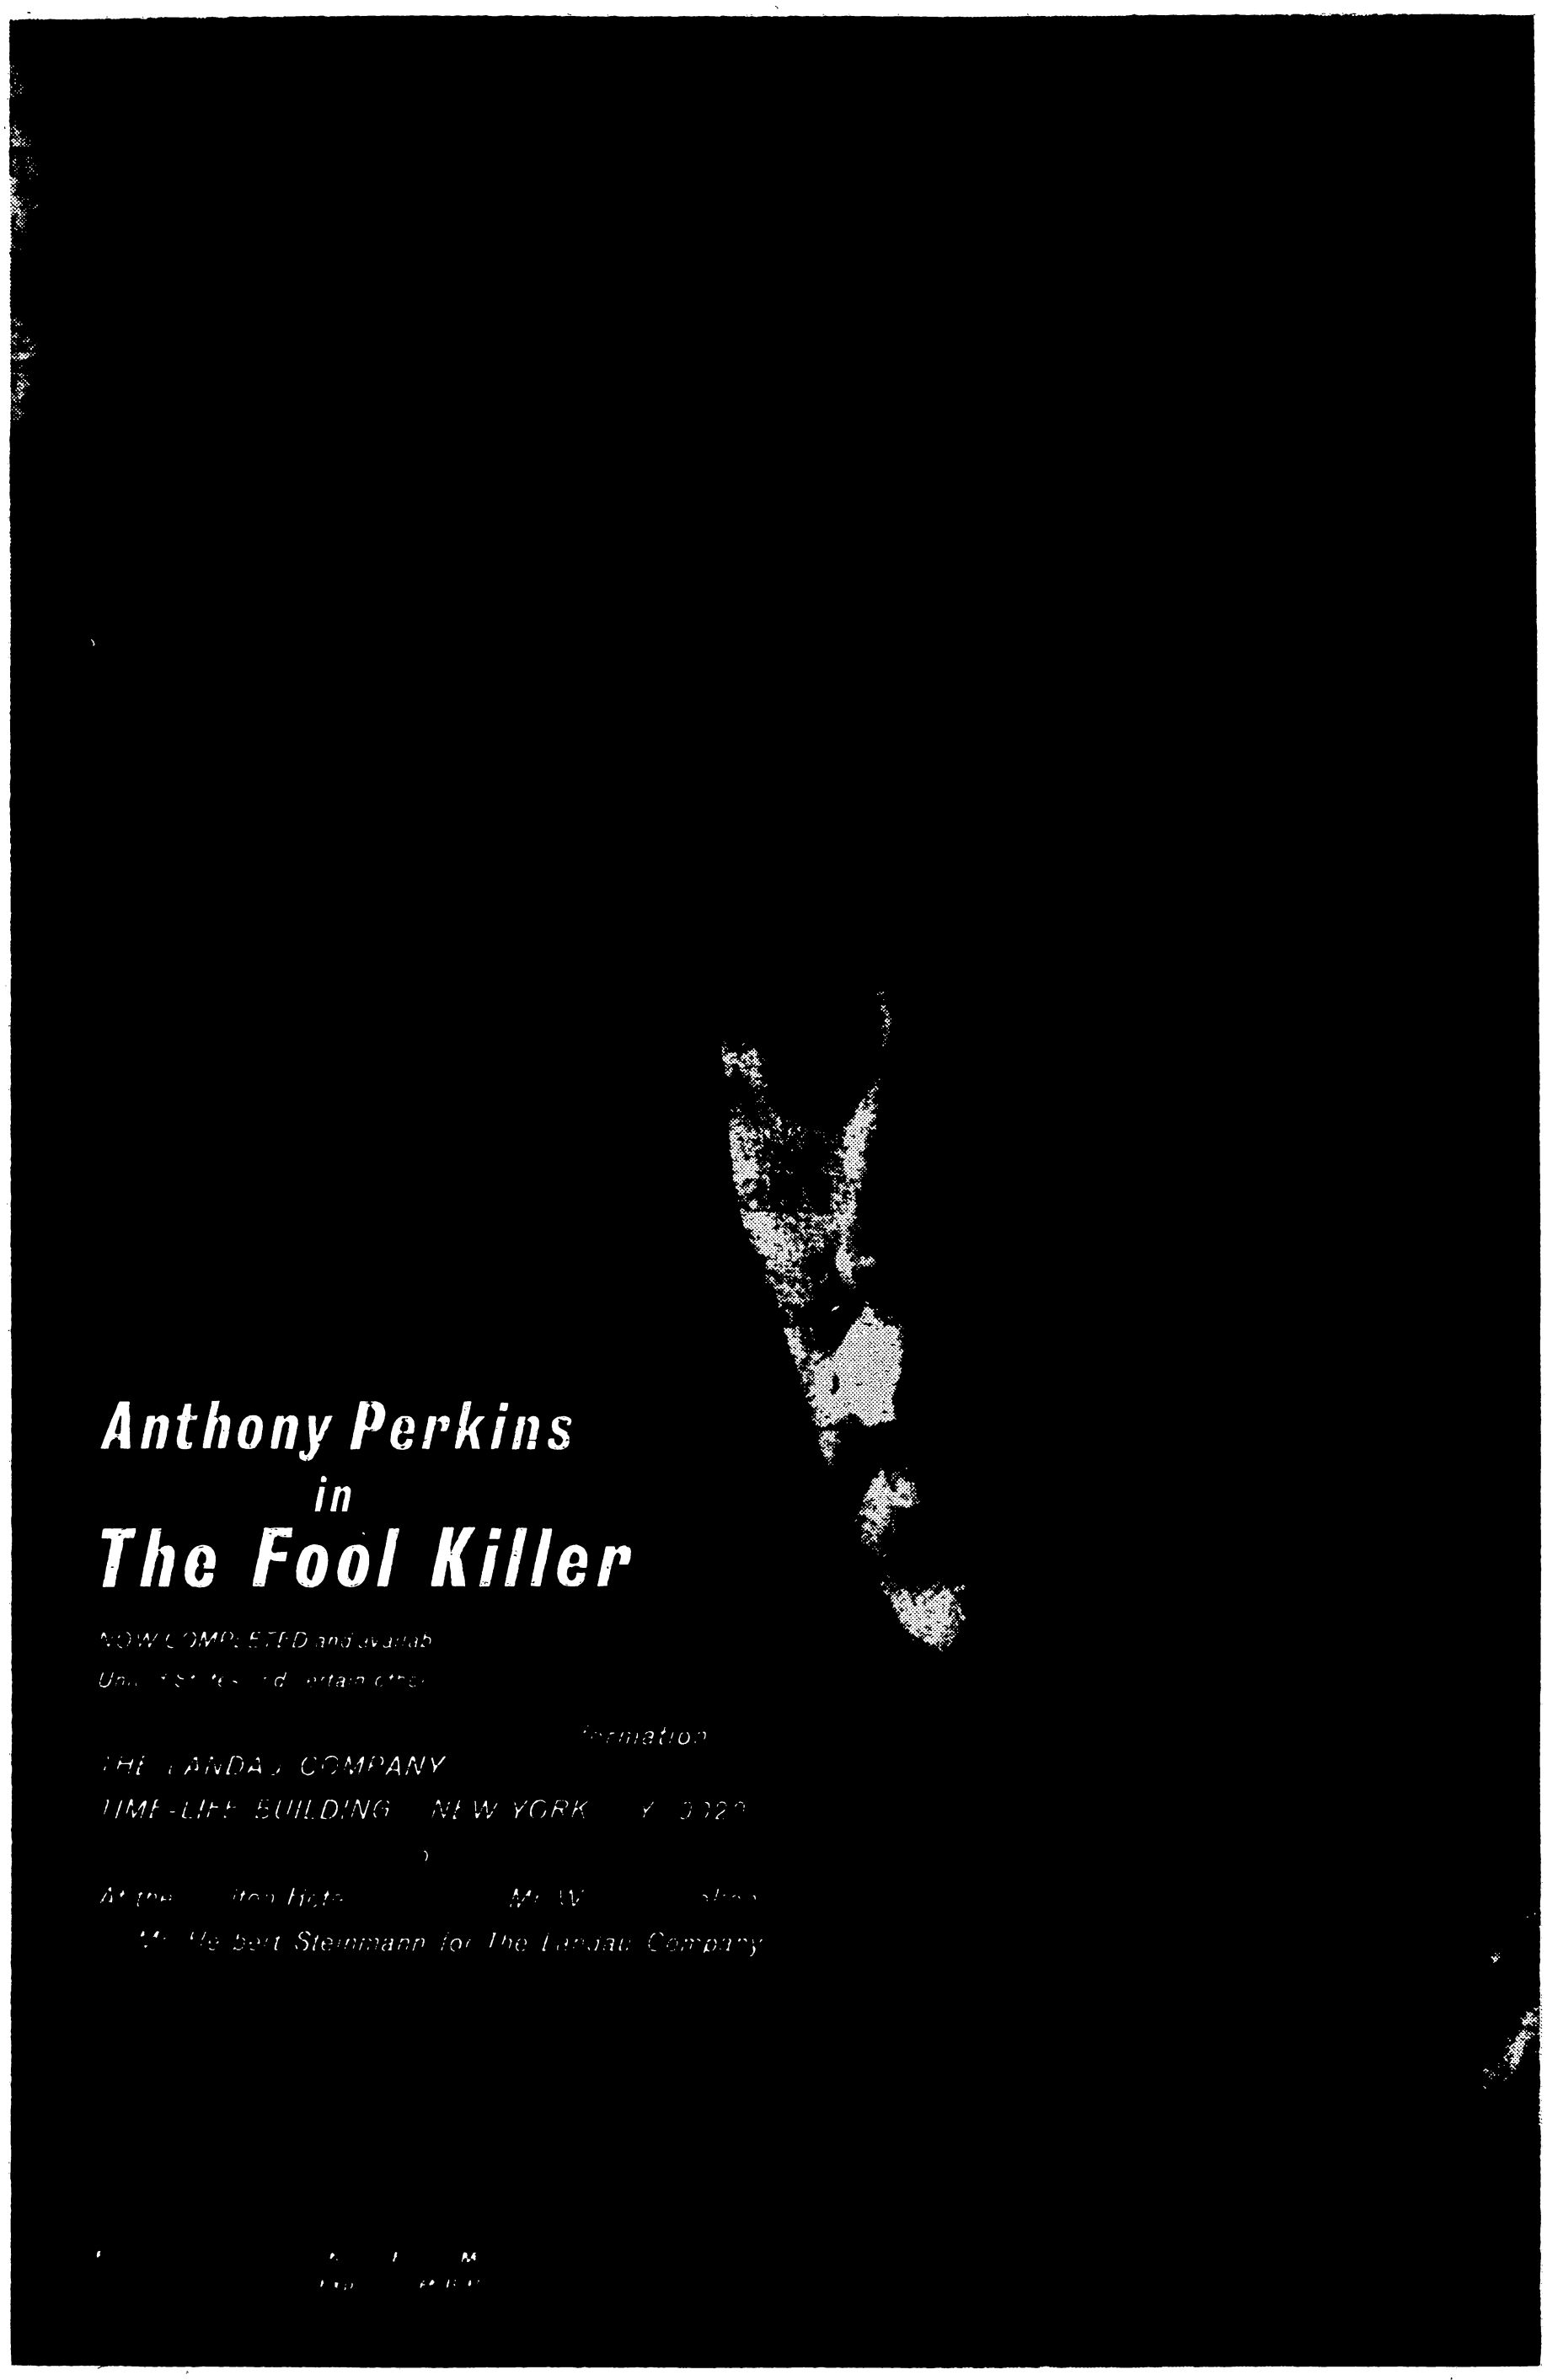
Frawley also reported that directorate had declared a regular quarterly dividend of 12½ cents per share, payable April 29, 1964 to stockholders of record at close of biz April 8.

Paul Wendkos formed Voyager Productions and optioned Richard Yates novel, "Revolution Road," as initialer under new banner.

MARK LAWRENCE



COMPOSER:
DAVID & LISA



ADVERTISING CONSULTANT:
LORD OF THE FLIES

CO-PRODUCER:
with Allen-Hodgdon
TRUFFAUT'S upcoming FARENHEIT 451

contact:

MARK-L ENTERPRISES, INC. • 501 MADISON AVENUE, NEW YORK 10022 • TELEPHONES PL 9-1780 or HA 1-2253-54 • CABLES: DROPSHADOW, N.Y.

Rod Steiger
in
The Pawnbroker
TED and available for dis tion in the ree fair other territories of the world for information:
TH COMPANY
TIM NG • NEW YORK, N.Y. 10020 or
At the in Cannes, Mr. William Shelton or Mr. Herbert Steinmann for The Landau Company.

Anthony Perkins
in
The Fool Killer
NOW COMPLETED and available
THE LANDAU COMPANY
TIME-LIFE BUILDING NEW YORK
Photo by Bert Stern for The Landau Company

Bids SEC Sanction Debentures For National General Expansion

Washington, April 28.

National General Corp. sought Securities and Exchange approval for registration of $13,412,940 of 5% subordinated debentures and warrants to purchase 894,194 shares of common stock. The issue is tied to a deal with a Los Angeles savings and loan association headed by National prexy Eugene Klein.

The debentures will fall due in 1984. Also 894,196 shares will be issuable when the warrants are exercised.

National General proposed to offer the securities in units of $15 principal amount of debentures and a detachable 10 year warrant enabling the buyer to purchase one share of common stock for $15 in exchange for one share of guarantee stock of Columbia Savings and Loan Assn.

Similarly a deal has been worked out for Columbia shareholders to exchange up to 150,000 shares of their stock for National General units at a reduced $14 per. Kleiner, Bell & Co. will swing this transaction simultaneously with the initialing of the warrant exchange offer.

Prospectus said holders of 38.52% of Columbia stock, including Klein, have agreed to the exchange offer. Klein is Columbia Board chairman.

SEC said National General in addition to indebtedness and preferred stock has 3,592,523 common shares outstanding.

WOMETCO'S EARNINGS UP 35% TO $710,904

Miami, April 28.

Wometco Enterprises registered a 35% increase in net income after taxes and a 33% increase in per share earnings for the quarter ending March 21, 1964. The earnings after taxes for the combined film exhibition - tv - vending-soft drink bottling and amusement entity were $710,904 for the quarter, as compared to $524,647 for same period in 1963. Per share earnings amounted to 40c, compared to last year's 30c for the quarter. Earnings per share have been adjusted for the 20% stock dividend last December.

Quarter figures include operations of Coca-Cola bottling works in Nashville and Plattsburgh, N.Y., acquired last fall.

Wometco operates motion picture houses in So. Florida; tv stations in Miami, the Asheville-Greenville-Spartanburg region of the Carolinas, Bellingham, Wash., Jacksonville; bottling works in Nashville, Plattsburgh, Dickson and Columbia, Tenn., the Bahamas; the Miami Seaquarium; vending operations in Southern and Central Florida, Jacksonville, Georgia, So. Carolina, Panama Canal Zone and Republic of Panama and the Bahamas.

1st Mobile C'rama Premieres in UK

London, April 28.

Cinerama's first Mobile Theatre had its premiere Monday (27) at the Athletic Grounds, Richmond. It will remain there for two weeks. It is the first of 50 mobile houses planned globally by Cinerama.

There are 11 permanent Cinerama theatres in the British Isles, with several more skedded to open this year, but many areas remain where Cinerama films can't be seen unless they're taken to the people, thus the portables.

The Richmond, a 1,216-seat theatre, will cover the South Coast of England. Next year two more will tour the East Coast of England and Scotland with a final target of five for Great Britain, to include coverage of Wales and Ireland.

Next spring two mobile theatres will start operating in France, three in Germany, four in Italy, three in Spain and Portugal and one each in Austria and Switzerland. They will supplement the "regular" Cinerama houses already in existence in those countries. The worldwide target by 1965 will be 50 mobile theatres.

The theatre which opened at Richmond is 128 feet in diameter and made of plastic-treated canvas. The 103 feet wide by 37 feet high screen is the largest in the British Isles.

Joseph von Sternberg's autobiography, "Guide to a Labyrinth," out via Macmillan this year.

EARLY BLOSSOMING OF 1964 FOR PARAMOUNT

Paramount has passed one of the most successful winter and early spring periods in its history and is looking to an "unusually strong" summer, general sales manager Charles Boasberg told a sales meeting in Philadelphia last week. The session inaugurated a trio of sales huddles throughout the U.S. and Canada.

The sales chief cited the fact that the company has eight pix for release through August, plus widened playoff during summer months of the company's two roadshow pix, "Fall of the Roman Empire" and "Becket." Of the eight, Boasberg listed "Carpetbaggers" as the headliner of the program, which includes such as "Lady In a Cage," "Robinson Crusoe On Mars," Jerry Lewis' annual summer effort "The Patsy" and "Son of Captain Blood," in which Sean Flynn recreates father Erroll's original Blood role. He also toasted "Circus World," which Cinerama will distribute first, with Par handling 35m subsequent playoff.

Contributing to the solid winter-spring period were "Seven Days In May," "Love With the Proper Stranger," reissues of "Hud" and the two roadshows, he said. The combination of this solid start and the projected hefty summer, should put Par in one of its strongest earnings from product positions in some time.

Herman G. Weinberg did English titles for "The Organizer," Italian prize-winner at the recent Argentine festival.

'Beatles' Trouble With Six Houses On 'Ashiya' Pact

The six RKO houses playing United Artists' "Flight From Ashiya" during its current "premiere showcase" run are doing so without the Beatles' shortie "The Beatles Come to Town," which the remaining 15 Skouras, Randforce and other theatres are doubling with. It is understood that RKO refused the Beatles pic because UA's terms were too high. Latter could not be ascertained.

"Ashiya" opened last Wednesday (22) on "showcase" to blistering reviews and unimpressive business. UA had, of course, wanted to get the seven-and-a-half-minute Beatles pic played off on the whole 21-theatre break but RKO nixed it. In the film, the British mopheads warble two of their big discIicks and, presumably, there is some draw there for the teens. What, if any, effect is being registered by the item is hard to guage.

The five RKO houses which are doing without the Beatles are the Palace (on Broadway), the 86th Street, the Fordham, Albee, and New Rochelle.

Meanwhile, UA just completed a full feature starring the wailers. It's called "Hard Day's Night" and will be a summer release. This pic is to be followed by other Beatles features. These pix will doubtless be issued on "showcase" multiples and RKO figures strongly in UA's "showcase" bookings. No terms have yet been projected by UA for "Night," with which it expects to mop up.

'Lee Oswald' Pic

Continued from page 2

white feature runs 100 minutes and, says Hoffman, had 30 speaking roles and used between 100-200 extras.

"Trial" has no connections with the reported footage of the Ruby trial and ignores that occurrence. It is, according to Hoffman, "a recreation of a trial just as though Oswald was still alive." Acting as a consultant and technical advisor was Dallas attorney Charles W. Tessmer who appears in an epilogue to relate what he and the producers believed would have happened.

"We did not seek releases from the people involved," said Hoffman, "because we are familiar enough with the techniques of court room dramas to know what we can and cannot say." Both of previous features made by Falcon International, "Free, White and 21" and "Under Age," had courtroom settings. Although both these films were acquired by American International, the partners chose to handle premiere showing of 'Trial" themselves. They are currentlv negotiating with various distributors and expect to sign with one soon.

In the film they used 23 witnesses and enter a plea of "not guilty" and another of "not guilty by reason of insanity," showing what they believe the audience would see if they were actual jurors.

The film contains no newsreel footages nor is the slaying of President Kennedy depicted. Cuts away from the courtroom were for purposes of pictorially elaborating on the testimony of witnesses. Hoffman believes that his film is in the public interest. "It has information that 99% of the people are unaware of and we introduce a radio tape which has Oswald's actual voice on it." National release will be in May.

WE SALUTE WITH PRIDE a trio of Academy Award winners—producer-director TONY RICHARDSON ~ screenwriter

JOHN OSBORNE ~ composer JOHN ADDISON who, with a distinguished cast ~ and an outstanding group of technicians made TOM JONES  ~ the most highly acclaimed motion picture ~ of the year.

For having selected our organization to work with their fine staff in a joint effort on the national publicity campaign for this superb film, we extend our sincere appreciation to ~ UNITED ARTISTS.

MSEIG

McFADDEN, STRAUSS, EDDY, IRWIN & GOODMAN

NEW WEST COAST OFFICES: 1017 North La Cienega Boulevard, Los Angeles, California 90069, OLympia 7-4330

East Coast offices: 165 West 46 Street, New York, New York 10036, CIrcle 6-4180, Palm Springs, London, Rome, Paris

SPECIAL OFFER
TELEPHONE ANSWERING SERVICE
$2 PER WEEK
Mon. thru Fri.
JU 2-6730
minimum four weeks
ALFA TELEPHONE ANSWERING SERVICE

SHOWMEN IN EVERY MAJOR CAPITAL OF THE WORLD ARE JOINING IN THE GLOBAL SALUTE TO THE 20th ANNIVERSARY OF D-DAY

JUNE 6, 1964

BY BOOKING THE INTERNATIONALLY ACCLAIMED HIT

SPECIAL EVENTS!.. PARADES!.. WORLD WIDE VETERAN COOPERATION!
...GALA TRIBUTE AND SPECIAL INVITATIONAL SHOWING AT THE NEW YORK WORLD'S FAIR KICK OFF THE INTERNATIONAL CELEBRATION!

United Artists Chicago Commander Says Allied States Sees Goblins

Chicago, April 28.

Harry Goldman, UA's branch manager here, takes exception to a recent statement by Jack Clark, prexy of Allied Theatres of Illinois, that limited-theatre subruns are causing a backup of product by tying up the prime nabe houses with extended runs.

"The proof is in the pudding," Goldman asserts. "Despite the fact that 'Tom Jones' is one of the biggest neighborhood grossers of all times, movie patrons will have a wider selection of pictures during its run than at any time previously."

He points out that during the second week of "Jones," the nabe situations have a choice of "Lilies of the Field," "A Tiger Walks," the second outlying swing of "Yum Yum Tree," and an "action" tandem of "Son of Captain Blood" and "Law of the Lawless." The following week also brings in "The Victors" and "Kissin' Cousins."

Goldman also puts the quietus to an allegation that the admittedly steep terms (70%) for "Jones" were making "collection agents" out of the houses that played it. "Again, it's all done in black and white," says Goldman. "The first week shows that most of the houses that played it are netting—I repeat netting—more than an average of their weekly grosses for the year. To be more specific, the bigger houses netted between $5,000 to $8,000 in the first week of 'Tom Jones' and they don't ordinarily gross that much."

The Windy City UA chief, earliest and most successful practitioner of the limited-theatre subruns, opines that this distribution method is being inaccurately termed "showcasing." "Showcasing is a New York technique that has come to mean a bypass of a Main Stem firstrun to go right into the neighborhoods," he explains. "It hasn't been done on a firstrun basis to any great extent in Chicago. We, that is United Artists, have been using a zoning method on first subruns wherein all houses within certain areas are free to bid on a picture."

Hope & Gloria DeHaven Visit Correctorium

Cincinnati, April 28.

Bob Hope hobnobbed Saturday (25) for the first time with boys in upper teens at the House of Hope, an honor home for them, affording opportunity for correction in homelike surroundings.

The comic, accompanied by singer Gloria DeHaven, paid the visit between afternoon and night engagements at the Cincinnati Charity Horse Show in Cincy Gardens. Attendance was ahead of previous years.

The home, an idea of Juvenile Court Judge Benjamin S. Schwartz with support of outsiders, was dedicated last fall. Said Hope: "It means a lot of kids will go straight for having been there. If I had that kind of help I might never have met Crosby."

Hope and Miss DeHaven flew here from a onenighter in North Carolina.

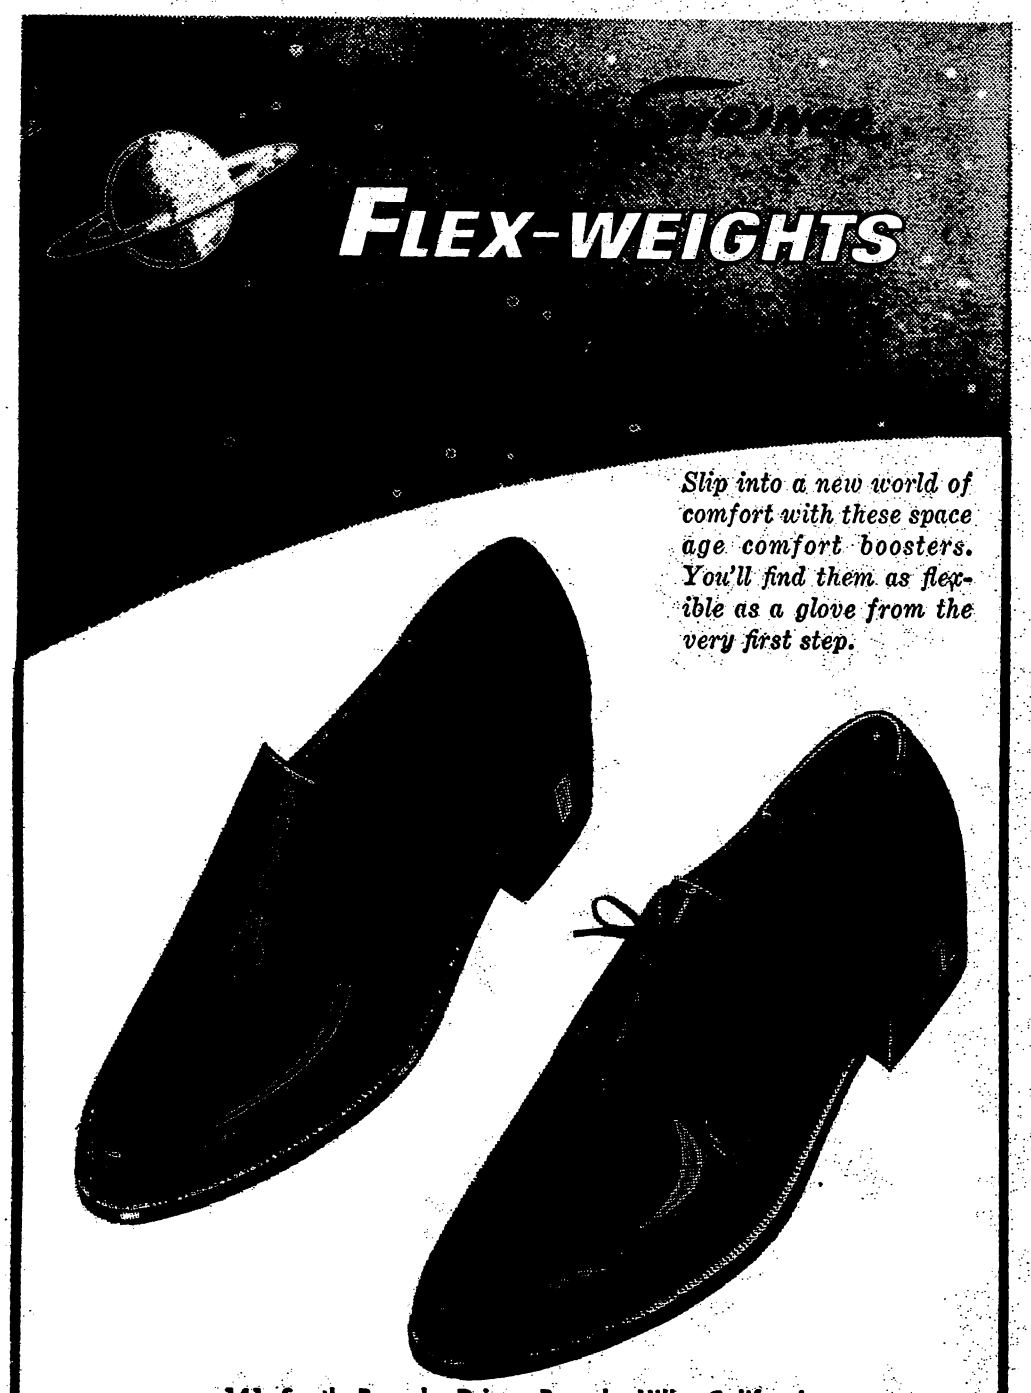
"With so many presidential candidates flying around," said Hope," "it's difficult to get a seat on a plane."

SUES CITY OF ROCHESTER

Owners Aver Wrongful Nab at Lyric For Nudie

Rochester, N.Y., April 28.

Operators of the Lyric Theatre here have slapped a $100,000 damage action against the city of Rochester as a result of obscenity charges brought earlier by the police. Action follows the arrest last week of Lyric manager Aaron Harry Cooper on the grounds that he was showing an obscene film, "Bell, Bare and Beautiful," a nudie pic, at the theatre.



Police seized three reels of the film, along with alegedly indecent magazines and pictures. Cooper was released on $250 bail.

Suit against the city, brought by Eli Jackson and Wililam Berger, of Cincinnati, listed as coowners of the theatre, charges the city with illegal arrest and loss of revenue. They asserted their constitutional rights had been violated and that under the law the film was not obscene since it has a New York State exhibition license.

Legion Class A-1 Not Necessarily 'Commended'

Although the National Legion of Decency has rated 70 films as Class A-I so far this year, only four of them carry the group's "Recommended" stamp. Three of the four are Disney features—"The Incredible Journey," "Sword in the Stone" and "Thomasina." The other is Universal's "Island of the Blue Dolphins."

For some unexplained reason, Paramount's "Who's Minding The Store?" is given the A-I accolade but carries a footnote that the classification "applies only to prints shown in the U.S."

141 South Beverly Drive, Beverly Hills, California
6355 Hollywood Boulevard, Hollywood, California
West Seventh Street in Statler Hotel, Los Angeles, California

Other Stores Located:

Boston — New York — Philadelphia — Cleveland — Detroit — Minneapolis — Chicago — St. Louis — Fort Wayne — Omaha — Joliet — Birmingham, Mich. — Seattle — San Francisco

Please consult your telephone directory for addresses.

Over-Awarded Hollywood

Continued from page 5

bers at large don't have voting franchise—can vote in all categories.

Under the proposed Sidney plan, the Academy would, for example, accept as its official entries achievement nominations voted by the memberships of the directors and writers guilds as well as other craft groups and limit final balloting to such persons who are specially qualified in those areas. This, he says, would represent a true jury of peers and give more significance to these awards. Again everyone would get a crack at deciding the best pic.

Since the Academy pretends to be representative of the industry—and does not function on a limited jury basis as does the French Academy, for instance—Sidney insists that "certain people should not be excluded from the Academy." He says that the voting of awards by DGA and Writers Guild are more representative because the entire memberships, and this includes assistants in the case of directors, get a chance to vote.

2,600 Now Vote

The Academy now has some 2,600 members but it isn't open to all who should qualify, Sidney says. To become a candidate for Academy membership one must be sponsored by two members of the branch involved and then pass muster with the board of governors.

Sidney suggests that if his plan were adopted, the various individual groups making nominations need not do away with their annual banquets. Those occasions should become affairs which would honor the nominees.

The whole purpose of his proposal, Sidney emphasizes, is not to find fault with the Academy but to eliminate weaknesses and to increase anticipation over the Oscar winners. For several years the director and best picture Oscars have become a virtual anticlimax. This is especially the case in the director category where for 12 consecutive years the winner of the top DGA award also has captured the Oscar. The Producers Guild also has taken much of the surprise out of the best picture winner, making its decision known in advance of the Acad envelope opening ceremony.

Sidney argues that there would be much greater excitement if the Academy contention went right down to the finish wire without any previous mittipping. Jokingly he commented, "now if only we could get the New York Film Critics to withhold their awards it would be even more exciting."

As for the show itself and the criticism that the absence of several top contenders—Britain's "Tom Jones" contingent—stirred up, Sidney had these observations:

Travel Costs

The presentation should be taken out of the Santa Monica Auditorium and staged in a television studio, for then it would be possible to utilize various techniques to make the presentation pictorially more interesting. He takes the stand that essentially Oscar must not lose its news quality, but that in proper surroundings it can take on better visual qualities. Sidney says, for instance, that he would like to have three connecting tv stages at his disposal; one to be used for a cocktail reception, the second for the actual televising of the awards, and the third for the banquet.

While disappointed that all nominees were not present this year, and have not been in past years, Sidney says part of the fault lies with the Academy. "The Academy doesn't pay travel or hotel expenses, such as the various film festivals do for invited guests. It is an expensive proposition for an individual who might go home empty handed. We know that four out of five aren't going to win any prize. In the case of the 'Tom Jones' people, it would have cost each nominee up to $3,000."

Sidney is not prepared to state categorically at this point that the Academy should bear this expense because of the number of persons that could be involved, but he does say that the Academy and the industry should put their heads together.

He also believes, and most strongly, that the whole character of the show is cheapened by tv commercials, that many stars and other important pixmakers avoid the annual shindig because "they don't want to be used in this manner to sell soap or toothpaste. "He contends that the Oscar show should be sponsored by exhibs and channeled into theatres via closed-circuit large screen video to a paying audience. He is certain the Academy would gross more that way, then could afford to invite its nominees firstcabin from anywhere in the world, if need be.

Moreover, he says, "we would be giving the Oscar back to the industry, we would be helping to create business for theatres instead of killing it, and whatever profit the Academy realized could be channeled into the motion picture relief fund or used for some beneficial purpose, such as the pension fund, for all who are part of the industry."

Columbia Carrots

Continued from page 3

Col already has announced for release in 1964, the company has the following in various stages of production for release later:

Richard Brooks' "Lord Jim," starring Peter O'Toole and James Mason; William Wyler's "The Collector," with Terrence Stamp and Samantha Eggar; Jerry Bresler's "Major Dundee," starring Charlton Heston and Richard Harris; Bresler's "Love Has Many Faces," starring Lana Turner and Cliff Robertson; Arthur Penn's "Mickey One," with Warren Beatty; Charles Schneer's "First Men in the Moon"; Ernie Pintoff's "Harvey Middleman, Fireman," and Jack Le Vien's "The Finest Hours."

Also slated to go into production in the coming months are Stanley Kramer's "Ship of Fools," with a cast including Vivien Leigh and Simone Signoret; Sam Spiegel's "The Chase"; Pakula-Mulligan's "Inside Daisy Clover"; Mark Robson's "The Centurions"; "The Gay Place," produced by Irving Ravetch; Richard Quine's "Synanon," and James Woolf's "King Rat."

Spain & Russia

Continued from page 1

into a fest showman. Aside from his major drive for outstanding film product for fest screens, he plans to give San Sebastian a gala Spanish touch with top toreros like El Cordobes and Paco Camino, folk shows and a big splash of distinct native color.

U.S.A. is backing Cuenca with outsized entries. Already lined up are Hal Wallis' "Becket" (Par) to inaugurate the Twelfth annual event, "Cheyenne Autumn" (?) and Elia Kazan's "America, America" (WB) with Samuel Bronston's "Circus World" (Par) set to ring down the closing curtain at the Teatro Victoria Eugenia. Nickolas Ray will represent Yank interests on the jury panel.

Argentina is sending "La Boda" (The Wedding) and "Octavo Infierno" (Eighth Hell). Other countries to confirm participation are France, Italy, Germany, Colombia, Poland, Czechoslovakia and Japan. Mexico and Britain will join the list soon.

New York's largest specialists in motion picture & TV insurance
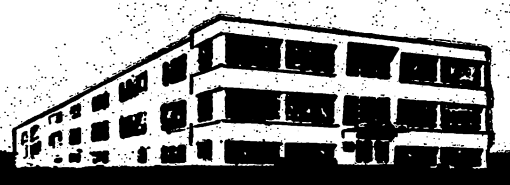
(cast, film, weather, liability, cameras, props, plagiarism...)
WINKLER ASSOCIATES, LTD.
120 W. 57 St., New York 19, Circle 7-3366

New York Theatres



RADIO CITY MUSIC HALL
Rockefeller Center • PL 7-3100
DAVID NIVEN • PETER SELLERS
ROBERT WAGNER • CAPUCINE
in "THE PINK PANTHER"
and with CLAUDIA CARDINALE As The Princess
ON THE GREAT STAGE "FANTASY and FUN"

WE ARE PROUD TO BE THE EXCLUSIVE DISTRIBUTOR IN CANADA FOR

JOSEPH LEVINE

EMBASSY PICTURES CORP.

International Film Distributors LIMITED

TORONTO · MONTREAL · WINNIPEG · CALGARY · VANCOUVER · SAINT JOHN

N. A. TAYLOR PRESIDENT • DAVID GRIESDORF EXEC. VICE-PRESIDENT • H. S. MANDELL SECRETARY-TREASURER • JACK BERNSTEIN VICE-PRESIDENT & GENERAL MANAGER

Sunday Schools Look 'Em Over: Sex Too-Too in All Amusements

Brainerd, Minn., April 28.

"Certain" movies and "some" television shows, along with plenty of current literature, were denounced at the Minnesota Sunday School Convention here "for militating against wholesome sexual expression."

The Rev. Lawrence Gudmestad, Minneapolis director of the chaplaincy division of Lutheran Social Service, told the meeting that the church needs to recognize that American culture contains many of the aspects giving rise to the aforegoing.

At the same time, he emphasized that "while sex education is primarily home responsibility, the church must help build healthy, positive attitudes toward sex and its functions."

"There is a sacred aspect to sex inasmuch as it's an expression of God's creative genius," the Rev. Gudmestad said. "Silence at this point suggests there is something unwholesome about the subject. To engage exclusively in condemnation of sex does little to create healthy attitudes.

"Many parents do not realize that sex instruction begins at the time of birth. Other parents give only the 'facts of life' without providing a positive setting in which these facts can be assimilated. As a result, our youth glean most of their information from the wrong sources, including even movies and television.

"Our churches should provide opportunity for parents to hear presentations and to learn from an open discussion in order that they can deal more effectively with this responsibility.

"Our churches need to provide study sessions for teenagers and youthful adults who are contemplating marriage. These sessions would enjoy the benefits of being conducted in a Christian atmosphere."

In Minnesota the Lutheran church has the largest membership of any of the religions and its attitudes carry much weight.

JAMES H. RICHARDSON RISES TO PAR DIRECTOR

James H. Richardson, Paramount treasurer and chief financial officer, has been elected to the company's board of directors. He fills the vacancy created by the death of Earl I. McClintock.

Richardson has been Par treasurer since 1953 and is also a director of Famous Players Canadian Corp. and other Par affils. He was associated with the accounting firm of Price, Waterhouse & Co. before joining Paramount.

Fox of Denver Acquires 48 Acres on Highway

Las Cruces, N.M., April 28.

A parcel of 48 acres of land, fronting on U.S. Highway 70 east of Las Cruces, has been purchased by Fox-Intermountain Theatres of Denver as "a potential commercial development," it was learned here this week. Purchase price is unknown.

Chain operates three pix houses here.

Lehman in London For Look at 'Va. Woolf' And Scripting Pic Version

London.

Edward Lehman, who is to write and produce "Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf?" for Warner Bros., failed in his first attempt to gander the production here with Arthur Hill and Uta Hagen. The power blackout snafued the show. He caught it the next evening and later met the press to discuss his plans for filming the Edward Albee play.

Fact that the screen rights of "Woolf" were not immediately snapped up when the play was first produced underscored Lehman's comments that "it must be one of the most unfilmable subjects possible." But, though he could see the many snags, it presented him with a keener challenge, Lehman opined.

"Already people are telling me what I ought to do with the characters and what I can't do. Some say that it should be played out in the restricted area of one or two rooms—I think that's crazy. Others insist that I must expand the action. But there's no law that says I must or must not do this or that."

There is no immediate hurry to get a finished script since the pic cannot be shown in the U.S. till 1965 and in Britain until the year after. Lehman favors sticking to the main four characters but has an open mind as to whether he will go in for so-called marquee bait. "After all," he says, "how many stars are there who really sell tickets these days?"

Lehman said that he had been on the brink of turning producer several times but had always backed away from the project. "I would not contemplate merely being a producer, I wouldn't know where to start. It is different producing when one has written the script. Luckily, my first film, 'Executive Suite,' was a success so I have always been in the position of having some say in the making of other films. In fact, I have always been climbing on producers' and players' backs. Now, as producer, I only have my own back to climb on, because Jack Warner is leaving the project to me."

CO-OP ADVERTISERS SPENT $306,372

Detroit, April 28.

The cooperative advertising group of motion picture exhibitors formed here eight years ago by 20 suburban indoor houses and 11 drive-ins, spent $306,372.30 in 1963 on some 70 programs. The group, "Metropolitan Exhibitors of Detroit," is directed by a committee composed of Alden W. Smith, Co-operative Theatres exec v.p., William M. Wetsman, Wisper & Wetsman Circuit, Adolph and Irving Goldberg, Community Theatres and Allied Theatres of Michigan president Milton H. London.

Funds are collected and disbursed and activities coordinated by the Michigan Allied office with advertising under the direction of Robert Solomon of the Solomon-Sayles Ad Agency. The amount spent in 1963, in cooperation with the film companies, was in addition to individual houses' ad budgets, and was double that spent in 1962. The lion's share, 50% went to newspapers. Individual program expenditures varied from $640 to $13,000, depending on the attraction's potential. A combination of newspaper ads with radio was used in 24 campaigns; newspapers with tv in 12; newspaper display ads only in 21. Only one campaign used exclusively tv.

Rod Taylor plans title role in "Young Cassidy," Sextant Films production which John Ford will direct for Metro at company's London studios in July.

Film Reviews

Continued from page 6

Bande A Part

tainable. The holdup is one way to it. They play at cowboys in mock games, do a dance in a cafe together. They tell little tales and finally get down to the partly successful holdup.

Anna Karina has a fragile, wide-eyed appearance as the girl which fit the part. Besides this, she brings a dramatic intensity that keeps her from slipping into sentimentality. She can even sing a song on a subway, comment on the sadness around her and her deep compassion, without having it seem wrong.

Sami Frey is intense and brooding as Franz while Claude Brasseur has an animal aggressiveness as the little hoodlum who has sparks of decency and warmth and finally dies in the heroic manner of many of his film gangster, heroes. Godard obviously admires the silent and 1930's Yank action pix and comedies. Hence, he manages to capture the freewheeling human simplicity of those days and still seem modern and fresh.

Excellent lensing also is an asset. Godard shows he is a complete filmic creator in being able to mark each scene with visual authority, movement and interest. However, this penchant also sometimes makes his films too private and repetitious for general public acceptance. Thus, it calls for tactful handling. Made for $100,000, Columbia should have an okay value out of it with the right placement.

Its telling points are its inventive pace and observation and its refusal to make concessions. Accepted on its own terms by more discerning audiences, this has comedic and dramatic potency. It could also conceivably pay off if patrons are primed for it.

Mosk.

Gladiators 7

(SPANISH-ITALIAN—C'SCOPE—COLOR)

Heavyhanded period action meller for male-oriented, hit-and-run exploitation mill.

Hollywood, April 20.

Metro release of Cleto Fontini-Italo Zingarelli production. Directed by Pedro Lazaga. Screenplay, Sandro Continenza, Bruno Corbucci, Alberto De Martino, Giovanni Grimaldi; camera (Eastman), Adalberto Albertini, Eloy Mella; editor, Otello Colangeli; music, Marcello Giobini. Reviewed at the studio, April 20, '64. Running time, 92 MINS.

Darius	Richard Harrison
Aglaia	Loredana Nusciak
Panurgus	Livio Lorenzon
Hiarba	Gerard Tichy
Milon	Edoardo Toniolo
Xeno	Joseph Marco
Flaccus	Barta Barry
Vargas	Tony Zamperla
Lucia	Franca Badeschi
Livius	Enrique Avila
Macrobius	Antohio Molino
Mados	Antonio Rubio
Ismere	Emila Wolkowics

Hard-sell exploitation of action and sex elements, together with saturation bookings, should help to get the mostest for Metro out of this import, which is handicapped by lack of cast names recognizable to Yank audiences.

For even in these overstuffed, quasi-historical, post-dubbed extravaganzas in which the Italians specialize, there is a limit to heroic indestructibility beyond which audience concern evaporates and the necessary element of suspense dwindles to zero. This saturation point is reached in "Gladiators 7," a Spanish-Italian coproduction filmed in Rome and Madrid.

Four writers toiled on the cliche-riddled screenplay of the Cleto Fontini-Italo Zingarelli production, a mutual enterprise of Rome's Film Columbus SPA and Madrid's Atenea Films. Setting of the story is Sparta of first century A.D., a so-called "democracy," but actually under the yoke of Rome and governed by native tyrants. Film describes the successful effort of a patriot Spartan (Richard Harrison) to overthrow one of these tyrants, a chore in which he is aided by a handful of gladiators. Even Clark Kent wouldn't have a chance against these seven gladiators. It would be safe to estimate that 100 assorted Romans and Spartans are slain in hand-to-hand combat by this tiny band. Yet there they are at the ending——a happy, intact septet. Not even a bloody nose.

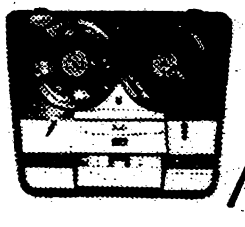
The acting is stiff and mechanical, and the dubbing doesn't help histrionic matters any. Chief roles are essayed without distinction by Harrison, Gerard Tichy and Loredana Nusciak. Director Pedro Lazaga has engineered several vigorous action sequences (a bull-ring bout between a bull and a bare-handed gladiator, though shop-worn, is the best action passage), but otherwise his guidance is erratic in tempo and dramatically heavyhanded. Camerawork is energetic but the editing is crude and abrupt. Other production contributions are adequate. Tube.

'Beat the Devil'

Continued from page 5

well as from other arty outlets. In N.Y. film attracted $30,900 through wickets during six week run at the 5th Ave. Cinema, before moving to another site, the 55th St. Playhouse. Pic is in fourth week at the Cinema in Hollywood with aggregate gross of about $12,000. Figures for other dates are not immediately obtainable with film playing mostly small houses in the hinterlands which are not included in VARIETY's weekly film gross perusals.

"Devil" was produced by Britain's Romulus films with Humphery Bogart's Santana Films, with John Huston directing from script by Truman Capote. In addition to Bogart, film stars Jennifer Jones, Gina Lollobrigida, Robert Morley and Peter Lorre. United Artists originally released but relinquished rights in 1957 at which time Bogart's company took over ownership. Subsequently Royal Films, Columbia's art house wing bought out the late actor's interest and is now distributing.



Re-release success of film, variously laid to increased market for the more adult pic, new sales approach and the country's purported "Bogie" craze, has Mel Avidon of Crest Films (company dealing pic in 13 western states) contemplating trying film in a city-wide saturation booking in L.A. and other locales if gambit proved successful.

"My tapes have to meet the broadcast standards of the leading FM stations around the country. My Norelco '401' gives me tapes that not only meet or exceed these standards, but on playback on the '401' I defy any listener to tell the difference between my live broadcasts and my taped ones!

"My Norelco has been on the firing line five nights a week, month after month, year after year, and has required less maintenance than any other recorder I've ever used.

"Although the '401' was primarily designed for the operating convenience and for the pocketbook of the home user, in my book it has proved itself as a thoroughly professional recording instrument."

The Norelco Continental '401' 100% transistorized • 4-speed • 4-track stereo/mono, record/playback • completely self-contained with dual preamps, dual amplifier, matched speakers and stereo dynamic microphone . . . See it at your hi-fi dealer's—or write to Dept. W-4, North American Philips Company, Inc., High Fidelity Products Division, 100 East 42nd Street, New York, New York 10017

Norelco

BROCK PETERS

ACTOR-SINGER

FILMS IN '63

To Kill a Mockingbird

L-Shaped Room

Heavens Above

"Outstanding" . . . VARIETY.
"Brilliant"...Washington Daily News.
"Superb" . . . N.Y. Herald Tribune.
"Superb" . . . Phila. Inquirer.
Etc., Etc.

Currently Filming '64 Releases:
THE PAWNBROKER
MAJOR DUNDEE
Mgt.: JO BASIL KING
CI 6-3796

Hear . . .
Hollywood
Commentator
DICK STROUT
ON Over
800 STATIONS
IN AMERICA

JAKE TRUSSELL'S
AFTER HOURS POETRY:

Written from a background of experiences as a combination amusements columnist, jazz disc jockey, sportswriter, radio commentator-sportscaster, managing editor, band leader, and Associated Press correspondent. Nothing else in the world like it. For your copy send $1.00 to Jake Trussell, P. O. Box 951, Kingsville, Texas.

Take another bow for your sound track, Mr. Milton

We congratulate Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's sound department and its director, Franklin Milton, on the Oscar-winning sound track for the Cinerama production, "How the West Was Won".

The six-track master sound was recorded on SCOTCH® BRAND Magnetic Film. This magnetic film was used by M-G-M because of its outstanding quality and uniformity, and has been used in such other outstanding productions as "Around the World in 80 Days" and "Mutiny On the Bounty."

Help yourself to more bows next year, Mr. Milton.

Magnetic Products Division 3M

"SCOTCH" IS A REG. TM OF 3M CO., ST. PAUL, MINN. 55119

Britain's Five Tracks to Tollvision

Under Post Office Sanction a Big Testing Of a New Kind of Popular Entertainment Confronts Film Biz

By ANTHONY HAVELOCK-ALLAN
(British Home Entertainment)

London.

The Film Industry in the United Kingdom and in the United States, both, knows that the great overall decline in attendances at cinemas, which has taken place since the peak years immediately after the war, is not due to any lowering of the sum of money available in the average family budget for entertainment. This amount has gone steadily upwards and would seem likely to continue to do so. The decline has been due to the emergence of other forms of entertainment and in particular to television which is, in reality, a miniature motion picture theatre in the home.

The basic pattern of entertainment on television follows the pattern first inaugurated by the film, that is to say on any given evening or afternoon the programme offered by tv will certainly contain the following "Cinema" elements —of their video equivalents—newsreel, documentary, second feature and main feature. Of course, a number of programmes which are special to television. Quiz lectures, news analysis have come into being. The big drawing programmes are in the main those that in other times were the big attractions in the cinema, sometimes of course with a slight difference of emphasis. Comedy and drama series drawing the same kind of audience are paralleled by the short films of Chaplin or "The Perils of Pauline" drawn in the early days of the cinema, and the comedies of Abbott and Costello and Laurel and Hardy. The point is the obvious one, that television is moving pictures on a screen in the home.

It is equally obvious, that one of television's chief attractions is that it is always available, that to look at it involves the minimum of effort and inconvenience. It enables the viewer to ignore the weather conditions, etc. which are to be encountered outside the home. But I am convinced that it is because it is convenient and not because it has the appearance of being "for free" that television has gained the large audience it has gained. It is a significant point that films, and particularly good films, are on the whole as big an audience attracter on television as any other kind of programme offered. All Pay Television seeks to do is to complete the logic of the pattern by placing a box office in the home.

Instaiable

One unique feature of television in the entertainment field is the rate at which it "devours" material to the extent that the resources of either a State owned television service or a commercially operated one are hard put to it to maintain a high level of programme quality throughout the hours of broadcasting, and indeed to attempt to do this, even assuming that the talent to create such a programme is available, is becoming progressively more and more expensive. It is, I think, an accepted fact that the most costly television programme that the most richly endowed television network in the world can afford to offer to the public can and does cost about the equivalent in motion picture terms of a very low budget film. Yet such a programme may well be seen at a single performance by more customers than the most successful film could expect to be seen by on the widest release within the relevant territory.

The existence of a box office in the home will enable films with budgets from two to ten times the size of the cost of the most expensive television programme to be made and if there were such a box office in every home where there was television the amount of films that could be made for television would be limited only by the amount of worthwhile stories and the number of makers of good entertainment that could be found in the world. Clearly to give an estimate of how many films the Pay Television could absorb in the early stages of operation, and on what budget such films would have to be made is dependent upon the number of Pay Television sets available at the commencement of the operation of the service and on the rate of growth. It would depend also on the earning potential of the film outside the country of origin or any other forms of distribution overseas. We would expect within the period of the next three years in which tollvision with a real expansion dynamic will come into operation in this country and in the United States and also probably in one or more European countries, that within a very short space of time Pay Television could absorb at least 52 films a year on average film budgets, comparable to low budget black and white first feature films. This could be greatly and rapidly expanded if only the exhibition side of the industry would accept the view that in the long run the development of Pay Television is in the interests of every section of the Film Industry.

I would like to express a purely personal view which is that since Pay-See means the introduction of a box office into the home, I would like to see some form of "integration" take place between the box office, the home, and the box office and the cinema. The job of the Film Industry is to give the public entertainment which we believe, I think rightly, still remains the finest entertainment in the world. Surely therefore it is logical that the Industry should be able to say to each member of the public or potential customer "You have the choice every night of going out to one of our comfortable renovated up to date large screen cinema theatres at which (we ought to be able to say) you can be sure of parking space, you can be sure of a seat and you can be sure of a meal if you want one. or you can see what the Film Industry has to offer in your own home through your Pay Television channels." In this way it is my belief we will not only increase the audience in the cinemas but regain the audience that has learned to stay at home, and gain an entirely new audience from among those who are for one reason or another unable to visit the cinema.

TOLVISION LTD. FOR PROTECTIVE DIVERSITY

London, April 28.

Tolvision, one of the five companies which has been awarded a franchise to participate in the pay-tv three-year trial, scheduled to start towards the end of the year, has started to diversify its interests before it gets off the ground with its main objective.

Taking the view that there will be capital investment in its pay-tv trial of between $6,000,000 and $8,000,000, which has to be protected, the company is branching out into the relay and rental field. Two new associate companies are being formed to undertake the diversified activities. Both fields are considered to be highly profitable, and the activities would continue if, at the end of the three-year term, Tolvision received a license to operate on a permanent basis.

Meantime, the company is placing an order for 100,000 coin-in-slot boxes, which will involve a capital expenditure of around $5,000,000. They hope to be able to put them all into operation during the trial run.

Take Freedom Spec

Albuquerque, April 28.

Albuquerque NAACP chapter will co-sponsor the nationwide closed circuit telecast of the Freedom Spectacular skedded May 14, it was reported here by a local chapter official last week.

Telecast will be staged here at 6,000-seat Civic Auditorium, site of most such events locally.

Bill Hanna & Joe Barbera, who just completed "Hey, There, It's Yogi Bear" animated feature for Columbia Pictures, talking new multiple pix slate with Col under which cartoonery would make both animated and live-action features.

Publishing Stocks

(As of April 28, closing)

Allyn & Bacon (OC)	19
American Book (AS)	37¼
Amer. Book Strat (AS)	4¾
Amer. Heritage (OC)	7
Book of Month (N.Y.)	17¾
Conde Nast (N.Y.)	13
Cowles (OC)	14⅛
Crowell Collier (N.Y.)	22
Curtis Pub. (N.Y.)	12⅛
Esquire Inc. (AS)	8½
Ginn & Co. (N.Y.)	31½
Grolier (OC)	45
Grossett & Dunlap (OC)	12¼
Harcourt Brace (N.Y.)	39
Hayden Pub. (OC)	3
Hearst (OC)	28
Holt R & W (N.Y.)	23¾
LA Times-Mirror (OC)	36
Macfadden Bartel (AS)	6⅝
McCall (N.Y.)	27½
McGraw-Hill (N.Y.)	36¼
Meredith Pub. Co.	27¾
Nat'l Per. Pub. (OC)	13⅜
New Yorker (OC)	121
Pocket Books (OC)	4⅞
Popular Library (OC)	20⅝
Prentice Hall (AS)	25½
Random House (N.Y.)	11½
Scott Foresman (OC)	27⅝
H. W. Sams (OC)	33
Time Inc. (OC)	39½
Universal Pub (OC)	5¼
Western Pub. Co. (OC)	24¼

OC—Over the Counter.
NY—N.Y. Stock Exchange.
AS—American Stock Exchange.
(Supplied by Bache & Co.)

Cable Conks Out, Hockey Maniacs Yell for Money

Detroit, April 28.

A riot nearly errupted when theatre-tv equipment failed when the sixth game of the Detroit-Toronto Stanley Cup championship playoffs went into sudden-death overtime. Fans threatened to set fire to the 5,000-seat Michigan Theatre before they were calmed by being promised their money back.

Woodrow R. Praught, United Detroit Theatres prexy, said the sound and picture went out as the game went into overtime and came back during the postmortem discussion of the winning goal.

Patrons who had paid $3.50 and $3, were told to mail in their ticket stubs for refunds. Earlier about 350 customers received their money back when they left after the first and second periods because they were dissatisfied with picture quality.

HARLING TO HENRY: RE FCC AND TOLL

Philip Harling, chairman of the Joint Committee Against Pay TV, made the following statement in answer to E. William Henry, Federal Communications Commission chairman, proposing government regulation of pay TV, by air or by cable.

"Implications raised should be thoroughly studied before approving or disapproving the policy of the Commission. However, it must be remembered that the temporary license granted Phonevision in Hartford was experimental in nature.

"FCC laid down certain ground rules under which the experiment was to be conducted, based on testimony of applicants concerning programming it would offer to the paying public. To date, the overwhelming majority of the promises have not been fulfilled."

He suggested to Henry that before any declaration of policy is made concerning pay tv being regulated on the aid and cable by the FCC, it would be necessary to determine whether the Hartford experiment, which was to last three years, was or was not in the public interest."

Harling also said that this was the sole function and issue before the FCC which was supposed to hold another hearing at the end of the three-year test to obtain information necessary to make a permanent ruling. He believes that any attempt to regulate pay TV would be premature until this issue is decided.

Literati

Gervasi's 'Rockefeller'

Vet Hearst correspondent Frank Gervasi's "The Real (Nelson Rockefeller" is due off the Atheneum press May 15. He is also speech consultant to the Governor, and until two years ago was Rome and Middle East rep for the Motion Picture Assn. of America.

Gervasi was long head of Hearst's bureau in the Italian capital but now makes his home in Manhattan. He is working on several other book assignments, with lecturing in between.

World Wide Press is syndicating "The Real Rockefeller" to several hundred papers in advance of its May 15 publication by Atheneum.

More Mergers

Now Time-Life is reportedly dickering for book publishing acquisitions. This is on the heels of CBS' negotiations for publishing houses.

At least three w.k. firms have been mentioned in connection with the network's avowed purpose to "expand its communications sights" into publishing.

Crestwood Publishing Co. Inc. of New York, has merged Headline Publications Inc. and Feature Publications Inc., both also New York companies. Benjamin B. Winston was the attorney filing the certificates at Albany.

Another Gag-Title Book

The Lindy's show biz bunch will probably be the best market for "Are You Sure You're Kosher?" one of those kingsize paperbacks with gag titles mated to familiar film faces and movie stills. Martin Gross and Ted Sennett are the authors and Paul S. Eriksson publishes at $1.

While the humor is borsch circuit-tinged it's sufficiently broad for general consumption and contains a good percentage of laughs.
Abel.

Good Film Bet

"The Enchantress" by Guy Bolton (Doubleday; $4.95), is lightweight fiction by the prolific dramatist-librettist. Continental intrigue is tapped by Bolton, whose central character is a ravishing French actress who becomes a sort of contemporary Mata Hari.

Author's experienced sense of character and attention to accuracy in types and locales lends authenticity to his yarn, which is fine film fodder. Rodo.

N.Y. Post's Feather

As of this week, "Life With Feather," the syndicated music column by composer-critic Leonard Feather, has its first New York outlet. It will appear regularly in the weekend edition of the N. Y. Post.

Launched in 1961 the column now appears in such papers as the Los Angeles Valley Times, Las Vegas Sun, Seattle Post-Intelligencer and Minneapolis Tribune.

Ashbel Green's New Post

Ashbel Green, long a senior editor at Prentice-Hall, is the new managing editor at Knopf, succeeding Bernard Shir-Cliff.

Latter has gone over to Ballantine Books as executive editor.

Dee-Seeing With Duke

A humorous new guidebook on Washington, with Patty Duke and members of her tv show's cast as the central characters, will soon be off Ace Books' paperback presses. It is written by Frances Spatz Leighton, D. C. correspondent for the Sunday supplement, "This Week," and author of eight previous books.

Because of the Patty Duke tie-in, ABC and United Artists have programmed a big promotional drive for the softcover sightsee through the national capital.

Arizona Journal Expires

The Arizona Journal in Phoenix, launched Feb. 14, 1962, as a morning daily, ceased publication April 22. Publisher Robert Morrison said the Journal Corp., founded with about 11,000 stockholders, was dead but he intends to start a successor soon.

Founded as the nation's first metropolitan daily to use the offset printing method, the paper was in financial trouble almost from the beginning. It suspended publication Jan. 24, 1963, but resumed the following Aug. 21 under a new corporate org which pledged to redeem shares held by all stockholders.

Journal's competitors in the daily field are the morning Arizona Republic and afternoon Phoenix Gazette, both owned by Eugene C. Pulliam, and the Evening American, an afternoon tabloid published by Evan Mecham, a Glendale, Ariz., auto dealer and former state senator.

Harry Golden's Statistic

Humorist-author Harry Golden, whose new World Pub book, "Mr. Kennedy and the Negroes," is a switch from his "Only In America," "5c Plain" and kindred books, in ballyhooing his new book told an audience that it cost Uncle Sam $406,508 to integrate James H. Meredith in the Univ. of Mississippi.

Returning to the scenes of his youth in Manhattan's lower east side, the editor-publisher of the Carolina Israelite, told the overflow attendance at the Isidor Straus Auditorium in the settlement house known as the Educational Alliance, that the late President was dedicated to achieve improved civil rights for American Negroes.

CHATTER

Sanford T. Sandy) Beldon, pub-relations director for P. F. Collier, subsidiary of Crowell-Collier Pub. Co., has joined Grant Advertising as an executive, attached to the agency's New York office. Beldon was pub-ad director for Fawcett World Library and previously with Prentice-Hall.

Gordon Irving, Auld Lang Syne's Gord. correspondent of VARIETY in Scotland, penned illustrated article "Evening Newspapers of the Air," on BBC and ITV news-magazines, for May issue of prestige Scot illustrated monthly, The Scottish Field.

Fay Beneduce, formerly with Poise, Ingenue, Redbook and McCall's, has joined Teen Magazine as merchandising and promotion director, with Janice Leslie as assistant.

Patricia Beresford, last p.r. at Bobbs-Merrill, is now ditto at Grossman Publishers which just brought out Warren Leslie's "Dallas, Public and Private." (Miss) Jerry Quigg succeeded Mrs. Beresford at B-M.

Stuart Keate, Victoria Times publisher and onetime Time staffer in New York (later Montreal bureau chief for Life and Time), was elected president of Canadian Press (AP equivlaent) last week. He succeeds A. F. Mercier of Le Soleil and l'Evenement, Quebec, who becomes honorary president, with St. Clair Balfour of Winnipeg Tribune and R. A. Gray of Windsor Star as v.p.'s.

James Gould Cozzens' first book in seven years, "Children and Others" (Harcourt, Brace & World) is the August selection by Book-of-the-Month. It comprises 17 short stories, most of them dealing with a boy or young man at school; four of these never before published.

Gerard E. Sherry, managing editor of the Georgia Bulletin, has been nominated for the Catholic Press Assn.'s award for "distinguished contribution to Catholic journalism." Sherry was among two other laymen and three priests nominated for this annual honor. Winner will be announced at annual Catholic Press convention May 26-29 in Pittsburgh.

Seymour Lawrence, ex-Atlantic Monthly and Atlantic Monthly Press, now a veepee and member of the executive committee of Knopf, a subsid of Random House. While at Harvard, where he was editor-publisher of its literary magazine, Wake, he got into the business end of publishing as college rep for D. Van Nostrand.

Time Inc., offices in New York, has increased its capital stock from $2,700,000 to $8,100,000. Papers to this effect were filed at Albany by Cravath, Swaine & Moore. Recording fee was $2,700.

Ellery Mann's Rudder mag added an amusement section with Leonard Sternberg as editor; and a nitery-restaurant department, headed by Lynne Rogers Taylor.

City-Life Publishing Co. Inc., has been formed to conduct a publishing and printing business in New York.

YANKS SNUB OWN FEST, TOO

Independent Film Importers & Distributors (Of America)

Below, the officers and member companies of the New York-based trade association of U.S. showmen interested in foreign films. The key word, of course, is "Independent," to distinguish this group from the "Major" companies, which also increasingly handle films made outside the United States.

ORGANIZATION

Governing Committee: Jean Goldwurm, Daniel Frankel, Irving Wormser
Secretary: Munio Podhorzer
Treasurer: Peter P. Horner
Special Counsel: Felix Bilgrey
Executive Director: Michael F. Mayer
Address: 165 West 46th St., New York 36

MEMBER COMPANIES

Angel Productions Inc.
Meyer Ackerman, Orestes Trucco
Arias Maritime Cinema Service
Henry R. Arias
Atlantic Pictures Corp.
George Roth
Bon Ami Film Distributing Corp.
Jackson E. Dube
Brandon Films Inc.
Tom Brandon
Joseph Burstyn Inc.
Miss Fae Miske
Casino Films Inc.
Munio Podhorzer, Nathan Podhorzer
Continental Distributing Inc.
Walter Reade Jr., Irving Wormser
Ellis Films Inc.
Jack Ellis
Embassy Pictures Corp.
Joseph E. Levine, Leonard Lightstone
Films Around the World Inc.
Irvin Shapiro, Harold Wiesenthal
Fleetwood Films
Myron Bresnick, Martin Bresnick
Gordon Films Inc.
Richard Gordon
Governor Films Inc.
David Emanuel
Janus Films
Cy Harvey, Ira Michaels
K. Gordon Murray Productions Inc.
K. Gordon Murray
Kanawha Films Ltd.
Archer King, Paul Peralta-Ramos
Kay-Em Films
Maurice Kesten
Lion International Films Inc.
Gary Dartnell
Lionex Films Inc.
Elio Romano, Charlotte Sernaker
Arthur Mayer
William Mishkin
Pathe Contemporary Films Inc.
Duncan MacGregor, Leon Dratfield, Ben Siegel
Premier Pictures Co.
Sam Lake
President Films Inc.
Joseph Green
Seneca International Ltd.
William Kronick
Showcorporation
Frederick Schneier, Robert Manby
Times Film Corp.
Jean Goldwurm, Felix Bilgrey
Trans Lux Distributing Corp.
Richard Brandt
Union Film Distributors Inc.
Peter Horner, Phil Levine
Zenith International Film Corp.
Daniel Frankel

Those Skeptical Film Yanks

Continued from page 1

sales, placement and general prestige.

Ingmar Bergman (Sweden) and Michelangelo Antonioni (Italy) were helped at the boxoffice via Cannes while Spain's Luis Bunuel was "rediscovered" here. Only two top award takers at Cannes not benefitted (clearly) were the French "Such a Long Absence" and the Brazilian "The Given Word."

LeBret could not envision a festival without American participation. Yet the New Yorkers continue skeptical. Per example, Elia Kazan's "America, America" (WB), though thought a natural fest item drew deadpan reaction from Warners who saw no advantage in making it available. Lebret would not want a pic that had hit most countries but "America" has only played Britain and U.S. till now. He was also refused "The Carpetbaggers" (Par).

LeBret disposes of myths that it costs great sums of money to get a film invited to Cannes outside the official one, or that Italy and France play footsies about prizes, or that prizes are ever promised. He insists that the jury is completely international and uncommitted, with six foreigners to five French members.

America's lateness in disclosing its film, and the withholding of many desired features, led to the invite of an American indie made outside Hollywood and entirely independently, namely "One Potato, Two Potato," of Larry Peerce.

Yanks have usually had three to four features here, Italy and France ditto. But this year France and Italy have two each while the U.S. has two with the possibility of two non-competing items to open and close the fest. Samuel Bronston's made-in-Spain "Fall of the Roman Empire" definitely opens the fest. If international in cast, it still has a Yank director and is being handled stateside by Paramount and superficially is an American pic. Jules Dassin's "Topkapi" (UA) will probably wind the fest, also out of the running. Backed by UA with a worldwide cast, it is still mainly an American item.

LeBret feels the two will not be hurt by either press or public reaction. He recalls such other non-competers as "Ben-Hur" (MG), "Exodus" (UA) and "Around the World in 80 Days" (UA) which all were aided by festival exposure.

So LeBret would like the U.S. official selection group in Hollywood to make choices earlier and leave him free for invitations of his own.

Einfelds to Cannes

Mae and Charlie Einfeld flew in from Paris, where they are living indefinitely at their favorite Elysee-Matignon Hotel, because of the death of Mrs. Einfeld's 90-year-old mother, and flew right back to Cannes for the film festival.

Vet film executive, who is working on an independent production project since his retirement from 20th-Fox as veepee, plans residing in Europe until the fall, both for reasons of pleasure and business.

SAN FRANCISCO A BUMPY PATH

By IRVING M. LEVIN
(Director, San Francisco International Film Festival)

San Francisco.

As we (plural) prepare for the eighth San Francisco International Film Festival this is a good time to open the can of beans presented to us last Nov. 20 by the esteemed Robert B. Frederick, then of the Hollywood, now of the New York film staff of VARIETY. Here were some of his provocative points:

(1.) That the San Francisco Festival is a one-man show that might better be called "Levin's Levee."

(2.) That the festival has outgrown the Metro Theater, where it has been held for seven years.

(3.) That the Festival was operating without official recognition by the Federation of International Film Producers' Assns.

(4.) That we have had three different publicists in the last three years.

(5.) That we are understaffed and what staff we have is not particularly experienced in foreign films and that "This may be a major reason why efforts appear to be aimed at community rather than national interests."

I am in agreement with many of the points made. Frederick is certainly more knowledgeable than a good many other reporters who covered the Festival from one angle or another. So, this is not a rebuttal but an attempt to illuminate some of the dark problems that seem inevitable in any such enterprise. I'm taking them in reverse order:

Our San Francisco International Film Festival has not only "aimed" at national interest, year in and year out, but at international interest as well. Aiming and hitting the mark are, however, two different things and when you aim at a moving target, you know what often happens.

For example: there were 27 film critics and correspondents at the last Festival—from the U.S.A. and abroad. If that is not both national and international, I do not know the meaning of the words.

Blame Gene Autry

The VARIETY analysis correctly complains that press facilities were poor last year and warns correspondents that they had better "be accompanied by a typewriter" and hasten to "locate nearest post-office and telegraph office." Yet he fails to comment on a fact he made special notice of in his article: that our headquarters were shifted at the last moment owing to the fact that Gene Autry, the new owner of the Mark Hopkins "couldn't have been more disinterested." Sad, but true. And that's how the press headquarters we have always had every year got shot out from under us in 1963. It is not likely to happen again—I hope.

We invite participation of American and international producing companies—and it took us seven years to get one major American film—Carl Foreman's "The Victors." This was scarcely

(Continued an page 33)

VARIETY BOXOFFICE 'ESTIMATES'

Film showmen of Europe, and especially of Italy, manifest constant curiosity to understand how grosses are estimated by VARIETY, how theatre and distributor divide the money, and how theatre "overhead" is figured. This European zest for data on the U.S. boxoffice relates of course, to the great increase in foreign films playing off here.

The VARIETY grosses, published for over 40 years, constitute nearly the only source of information on the U.S. boxoffice available to foreign producers. Hence, they are known to be avid readers not only of the city-by-city reports but of the "National" summary of them in every issue, also of the monthly reprise, which typically appears in the first issue of the following month.

VARIETY covers 25-odd film markets, checks 300-odd theatres. This comprises a representative "sampling" by the criteria of commercial projection on averages. However the system is fallible and no denial of that fact has ever been made. There are formidable difficulties in cross-checking, and for this reason VARIETY sometimes drops certain houses or managements.

In general, downtown firstrun situations are included, though recently in the metropolitan New York market, as somewhat in Los Angeles, an attempt has been made to project the multiple firstruns which include neighborhood, suburban and exurban sites united in "Showcase." The downtown firstruns are no longer as all-vital as was once true. In New York City, particularly, foreign product tends to play East Side houses, formerly classified as "neighborhood" stands.

An estimate of the business at any given theatre represents the gross admissions, less the ticket tax of 10%.

Within this gross sum, three fiscal factors are hidden: (1) the theatre "overhead" which is deducted first (2) the distributor's agreed share, which is figured according to the terms of the contract and (3) the remainder which is the theatre's profit.

The VARIETY estimates are just that, estimates of the gross revenues, less the ticket tax, but otherwise do not reflect the division of the admissions between theatre and distributor, after "overhead" is subtracted before computation.

Every film playing under a negotiated contract is carrying some agreed portion of the advertising and promotional expenses, as well as the fixed overhead of the theatre. In the instance of, say, the Radio City Music Hall, which presents a large orchestra and a stage show, overhead charges include musicians, chorus, vaudeville acts, stagehands and so on.

The unknown circumstances pervading a given engagement may thus vary greatly. The importance and prestige of the film, and/or the theatre, are the X-factors.

The reader of the VARIETY grosses is advised to take note of the market-age of the picture, the capacity of the house it is playing, the scale of admissions. In any one city there may be brand-new releases alongside releases long out. The reports undertake to differentiate by the use of adjectives to characterize and estimate, in the light of all the relative factors, as good, fair or poor.

The 25-city sample used is reasonably representive of the United States and Canada, though admittedly the Southern states secrecy creates a noticeable gap of representation there. Films do not, of course, begin their runs simultaneously from place to place. In consequence a sleeper hit like, say, "Tom Jones" (UA), may be slow to show its full boxoffice sweep. But in a matter of weeks such unusual cases usually are reflected.

Every effort is made to cross-check estimates. The annual compilation of top grossers and the all-time top grossers are also revised from year to year in the light of improved information. Only pictures grossing $1,000,000 or more are included in the yearly tally; only those having grossed over $4,000,000 rate the all-time tally.

As regards the admittedly ticklish enterprise of estimating business, against the false propaganda of unabashed liars in some instances, it is fondly hoped that this publication steers a course of sanity.

Point to Stress: Canada Is 'Rural'

By GERALD PRATLEY

Toronto.

The foreign film producer looking at the map of North America sees Canada as a country larger than the USA. He will be unrealistic to gauge his expectations or fix his prices accordingly.

The reason is simple. There are 180,000,000 people in the US. There are only some 19,000,000 in Canada.

"Unlike the Americans" said N. A. Taylor, "we haven't the large centres of population here—which is where you make the money with foreign pictures. We are more rural than urban and considering all the circumstances it is remarkable we see as many foreign films as we do."

Nat Taylor is Canada's largest independent distributor and theatre owner. His interests are complex and include film production, studios and television stations and other forms of diversification now popular with industries. No man in this country is more familiar with foreign films or has done as much to bring them into Canada for distribution and exhibition.

Through his Independent Film Distributors which he formed in 1945 he acts as distributor for the films of Joseph E. Levine, Walter Reade-Sterling and Janus. He also takes certain films from Associated British and British Lion. In Canada however, British films are not considered "foreign," except perhaps in certain parts of Quebec where of course, French films are not considered foreign either.

The market for foreign films in Canada may be divided loosely into three parts:

(1) Quebec, which shows most films made in France as a matter of course. The Province of Quebec is France's best overseas market, and more than ever before, British and American films are shown in dubbed-into-French ver-

(Continued on page 32)

The International Film Scene

Austria	114	Holland	138	Philippines	131
Argentina	137	Hungary	105	Poland	105
Australia	132	Hong Kong	131	Russia	103
Bulgaria	111	Italy	81	Singapore	131
Chile	178	India	131	South Africa	136
Denmark	126	Ireland	58	Spain	120
Finland	126	Israel	136	Sweden	126
France	60	Lebanon	137	Switzerland	136
Germany	112	Mexico	139	Turkey	137
Great Britain	34	New Zealand	132	United Arab Republic	137
Greece	136	Norway	127	United States	105
				Yugoslavia	105

Foreign Rentals In U.S.

By VINCENT CANBY

Earnings of foreign language films in the U.S. and Canadian market —which in 1962 declined from the 1961 record high—again moved forward last year to establish a new, alltime record for the 1963 calendar year.

Results are revealed in VARIETY's annual survey of foreign film biz as reported by the major U.S. distributors and 38 independents who cover the domestic market.

Excluding for the moment British features, which are becoming increasingly hard to define because of so many close Anglo-American production partnerships, the VARIETY survey finds that last year 728 foreign language films (in both subtitled and English-dubbed versions) earned total domestic U.S. rentals of $31,887,000. This compares with $25,400,177 in 1962 and $28,058,145 in 1961.

Spearheading 1963's substantial increase was the spectacular advance in earnings registered by Italian-made product. Last year, Italo pix accounted for domestic U.S. earnings of $17,233,000, almost double the 1962 total of $8,884,862. But, lest the fiscally troubled Italo filmmakers think that U.S. distribs have been happily fiddling while Rome burned, it should be pointed out that:

Approximately $12,500,000 of the 1963 Italo total was earned by big budget pix ("Barabbas," "Sodom and Gomorrah," "The Leopard," etc.) in which U.S. companies had heavy production investments (and none of which was conspicuously successful in terms of that initial investment), or by spear-and-sandal epics, usually purchased outright.

It's estimated that all the "artier" Italo pix—"8½," "Mondo Cane," "Divorce, Italian-Style," to name the three most successful—earned no more than $4,000,000 of the Italo total. Thus, while it's true that good artie pix can make more money than ever Stateside, the really big dough is brought in by the mass appeal Biblical and/or action epics.

When British pix, including those made-in-Britain, U.S. major company films which qualify for Eady money, are added to the overall 1963 record, the VARIETY survey shows that 805 offshore films earned total domestic U.S. rentals of $69,342,000 last year. This compares with totals of $49,427,611 in 1962 and $69,024,745 in 1961.

British Climb

Earnings on British playoff in the U.S. in 1963 reached $37,455,000, compared with $24,027,434 the year before, but no less than $33,143,000 of this total was accounted for by product which was handled by the American major companies and whose financial roots originated in the U.S. The extent to which this kind of product swells the British total can be seen from the fact that just four films—"Lawrence of Arabia," "The V.I.P.'s," "The Castaways" and "Tom Jones" (just starting release) — earned an aggregate of no less than $18,700,000.

One of the more disturbing (to some elements of the U.S. film industry, anyway) facts to emerge from VARIETY's survey is the extent to which the distribution of offshore product in the U.S. is now dominated by the major companies, to the detriment of the independent distributors. Of the 1963 total U.S. earnings on foreign films, the majors collected $53,265,000 and the indies $16,077,000. That indie total is down sharply from the $22,085,991 they earned in 1962 and illustrates once again that "them that has, gits."

With the exception of Joe Levine's Embassy Pictures and Walter Reade Jr.'s Reade-Sterling, few indies have the financial resources with which to compete for the big money films. (And, of course, within indie ranks, there are few distribs who can compete with Levine and Reade.)

But French Off

One of the sharper earnings declines last year was that registered by French films, whose domestic U.S. rentals dipped to $4,567,000 from a high of $6,424,139 in 1962. There were no French blockbusters in 1963 to compare with the kind of biz done the year before by the Joe Levine-exploited documentary (and Oscar winner), "The Sky Above—The Mud Below." In fact, not one French pic topped the $1,000,000-mark in earnings in 1962.

A country-by-country analysis of foreign film earnings in the U.S. in 1963 follows. It should be stressed that all figures represent gross film rentals, that is, distributors' share of boxoffice receipts:

Great Britain: Of the $37,455,000 earned by British pix in the U.S. domestic market last year, $33,143,000 was brought in by 29 major company releases—"Lawrence of Arabia," "The V.I.P.'s," "The Castaways," "Dr. No," "Call Me Bwana," and the like. The independent distribs released 48 pix to earn $4,312,000, whereas in 1962 they earned $5,646,434. Among indie releases, there were a number of neat-but-not-gaudy earners—"The L-Shaped Room" (which Columbia eventually took over from its artie subsid), "Lord of The Flies," "This Sporting Life," "Heavens Above" (the only Peter Sellers comedy import to figure at all), "Carry On, Teacher" (plus reruns on the perennial "Carry On, Nurse"). Also Guinness, whose comedies used to be a b.o. trend all to themselves, last year was totally enwrapped by "Lawrence of Arabia." The full "Tom Jones" impact will be felt in next year's survey.

Italy: Of total Italo earnings of $17,233,000, it's estimated that $9,977,000 was earned by 13 Biblical and/or spear-and-sandal epics, ranging from the sublime ("Barabbas," $2,850,000) to the ridiculous ("My Son, The Hero," whose gross is a United Artists' secret), with such pix as "Sodom and Gomorrah," "Duel of The Titans," "The Slave," etc. in between. Embassy Pictures dominated the indie field via "8½," "Women of The World," and "Divorce, Italian-Style." Times Film also had a $1,000,000-plus type film in its "Mondo Cane," which Times deserved after having gotten stung, boxoffice-wise, by the flop of Michelangelo Antonioni's "The Eclipse." Although their total rentals helped to push up the major companies' share of the Italo earnings, "The Condemned of Altona" and "The Leopard," both released by 20th-Fox, were b.o. disappointments. Italo language market for unsubtitled pix continued to shrink in 1963, down to $57,000 from $73,000 in 1962.

France: 1963 was a year of disappointment all round for distributors of French pix in the U.S. market. The highly praised (and Oscar-winning) "Sundays and Cybele" never picked up the b.o. steam anticipated and did not even crack the half-million dollar mark. Another hopeful entry which failed to pull was "The Suitor." Also conspicuous by its absence was the Brigitte Bardot boxoffice allure, with her "A Very Private Affair" doing only so-so biz and her "Love on A Pillow," released very late in the year, not promising any better. "Lafayette." France's big budget, 70m historical spec, opened in N.Y. for the 1963 Easter biz, but attracted only modest biz. Pic, however, has gotten a lot of circuit showings.

Mexico: The Mexican total of $3,330,000 was almost entirely earned by 87 pix distributed exclusively to the Spanish language houses in New York, the southwest and far west by Azteca and Columbia. That biz is estimated to be up slightly over 1962.

Japan: Rentals on Japanese pix took a sharp jump to $2,359,000 from $1,694,611 in 1962, largely because of a highly exploitable "duel of the titans," Japanese-style: "King Kong vs. Gadzilla," which took in a reported $1,100,000 in the action market. The rest of the Japanese coin was repped principally by product showing in Japanese language houses in Hawaii and the U.S. west coast. There were no notable earners among the Japanese pix in artie release, though both "Yojimbo" and "The Island" were very respectfully received by the reviewers. The Toho Co.'s opening of its own Broadway showcase, the Toho Cinema, in January, 1963, has been a fine p.r. move but it does not yet appear to have stimulated any special b.o. acceptance for Japanese features outside the language houses. However, largely as the result of the Toho Cinema's exposure of Akira Kurosawa's "High and Low," at the end of the year, pic was picked up for national distribution by Reade-Sterling.

Spain: The increase in rentals on Spanish (from Spain) pix in 1963 —up to $1,400,000 from $964,000 in 1962—was largely the result of the performance (only fair) of two action-costumers released by the major companies and which together earned about $1,100,000. The rest of the coin was earned by pix sent out to the Spanish language houses.

Greece: All but a little over $100,000 of the Greek total of $964,000 earned last year was brought in Jules Dassin's big-budget "Phaedra" and Michael Cacoyannis' "Elektra." Rentals on pix aimed at the Greek language trade climbed slightly to approximately $100,000 in

(Continued on page 32)

Foreign Rentals In U.S. by Flags

[1963 Estimates]

The following chart is a country-by-country breakdown on the estimated U.S.-Canadian rentals earned by product originating abroad in 1963. (Comparable figures for 1962 appear in parentheses). The totals include rentals on those features either wholly or partially financed by Americans if (1) they are foreign language productions, and/or (2) qualify as "local" productions under the laws of the countries of origin.

ORIGIN	NO. OF PIX		RENTALS
Britain	77	(122)	$37,455,000	($24,027,434)
Italy	93	(89)	17,233,000	(8,884,862)
France	91	(97)	4,567,000	(6,424,139)
Mexico *	88	(101)	3,330,000	(3,235,000)
Japan	156	(176)	2,359,000	(1,694,611)
Spain	13	(24)	1,400,000	(964,000)
Greece	83	(38)	964,000	(895,565)
Germany *	55	(63)	483,000	(1,020,000)
Sweden	22	(17)	451,000	(519,000)
Argentina *	15	(9)	380,000	(113,000)
Russia	98	(89)	354,000	(384,000)
Philippines	2	(..)	150,000	(.....)
India	6	(4)	70,000	(75,000)
Yugoslavia	2	(..)	65,000	(.....)
Poland	2	(4)	43,000	(17,000)
Denmark	2	(5)	38,000	(1,119,000)
Czechoslovakia	...	(2)	.....	(55,000)
Total	805	(840)	$69,342,000	($49,427,611)

Eliminating the rentals on British films, the biggest earners of which were U.S. major company releases qualifying for Eady money, a total of 728 foreign language pix (including those dubbed for U.S. market as well as subtitled) earned $31,887,000 in 1963. This compares with 1962 when 718 language pix earned $25,400,177.

Films tabulated were released by 38 independent and 11 "major" distributors. For the purpose of this survey, American International Pictures, as well as Azteca, a principal distributor (along with Columbia) of Spanish language product in the U.S., are considered to be major distributors.

* The bulk (50% or more) of this revenue was earned by unsubtitled product shown in special foreign language theatres catering to ethnic groups.

Majors Vs. Indies Share In U.S.

[Of Foreign Product Rentals]

Table below breaks down the share of foreign film rentals earned in the U.S. and Canada in 1963 between the major companies and independent distributors. Number of films is shown in parentheses.

Origin	Majors' Share Of Estimated Rentals		Indies' Share Of Estimated Rentals
Britain	$33,143,000	(29)	$ 4,312,000	(48)
Italy	12,452,000	(21)	4,781,000	(72)
France	1,285,000	(11)	3,282,000	(80)
Mexico	3,300,000	(87)	30,000	(1)
Japan	1,115,000	(2)	1,244,000	(154)
Spain	1,400,000	(13)	.....
Greece	155,000	(2)	964,000	(83)
Germany	.....		328,000	(53)
Sweden	.....		451,000	(22)
Argentina	250,000	(12)	130,000	(3)
Russia	.....		354,000	(98)
Philippines	100,000	(1)	50,000	(1)
India	.....		70,000	(6)
Yugoslavia	65,000	(2)	.....
Denmark	.....		38,000	(2)
Poland	.....		43,000	(2)
Total	$53,265,000	(180)	$16,077,000	(625)

The $16,007,000 earned by the independents in 1963 compares with $22,085,991 earned by the indies in 1962. Thus, while the market for foreign films in the U.S. continues to expand, the independents' share of that market is declining and the majors' share is increasing. For example, practically all of the big jump in Italo revenues last year was accounted for by the major company releases (from $4,880,000 in 1962 to $12,452,000), against the small indie increase (from $,004,862 to $4,781,000 in 1963).

For the purpose of this survey, the following companies are classified as major distributors: American International, Aztecs, Allied Artists, Columbia, Metro, Paramount, 20th-Fox, Universal, United Artists, Warners, Buena Vista.

Canada's Import Cinemas

Towne Cinema, Toronto.
International Cinema, Toronto.
Yorkdale Cinema, Toronto.
New Yorker Cinema, Toronto.
Place Ville Marie, Montreal.
Towne Cinema, Winnipeg.
Pace Cinema (16mm) Winnipeg.
Studio, Vancouver.
Fox, Victoria.
Little Elgin, Ottawa.
Cinema, Hamilton, Ont.
Elmwood, London, Ont.
Varscona, Edmonton.

'Art' Situations In Metropolitan New York Area

(Compiled By IFIDA)

MANHATTAN

Apollo
Alden
Alpine
Apollo
Art
Baronet
Beacon
Beekman
Bleecker St. Cinema
Carnegie Hall Cinema
Cameo Theatre
Casino
Charles Cinema I
Cinema II
Cinema Giglio
Cinema 181
Coronet
Eighth St. Playhouse
Embassy
Embassy 72nd Street
Essex
Festival
Fifth Avenue Cinema
Forum Theatre
55th Street Playhouse
Fine Arts
Gramercy
Greenwich
Guild
Eighth St. Playhouse
Brandt's 86th St.
Heights
Kips Bay
Little Carnegie
Midtown
Murray Hill
New Yorker
Normandie
Paris
Plaza
72nd St. Playhouse
68th St. Playhouse
Sutton Theatre
Symphony
Thalia
Thirty Fourth St. East
Toho Cinema
Tower East
Trans-Lux
Trans-Lux 52nd Street
Trans-Lux 85th Street
Waverley
World

THE BRONX

Allerton
Ascot
Bainbridge
Circle
Devon Globe
Lido Square
Valentine

BOROUGH OF KINGS—NYC

Astor
Beverly
Carroll
Claridge
College
DeLuxe
Elm
Fortway
Jewel
Kent
Marboro
Plaza
Rogers

(Continued on page 31)

Canadian Awards Set for May 8

Ottawa.

Comics Johnny Wayne and Frank Shuster will present 16th annual Canadian Film Awards May 8 at a dinner in Royal York Hotel, Toronto. Some 43 producers entered 149 films in 14 categories. Three one hour-long tv-films are entered, and four full-length theatre features—unlike last year, when there were none of either. Canadian Film Institute, Assn. of Motion Picture Producers of Canada and Screen Directors' Guild of Canada are tossing the shindig.

Full-lengths, all made in French and one also in English, are: "A Tour Prendre," now playing in New Yorker art house, Toronto (directed by Claude Jutra for Les Filmes Cassiopee/Orion, Montreal); "Trouble Fete," playing to packed houses at two Montreal theatres (directed by Pierre Patry for Co-operatio, Montreal); "Pour la Suite du Monde" (directed by Pierre Perrault and Michael Drault for National Film Board of Canada); and "Amanita Pestilans." Last was shot by same director—Rene Bonniere—with same cast in both languages for Crawley Films Ltd., Ottawa.

YANKEE PRUDES & FOREIGN FILMS

By ROBERT J. LANDRY

THE PARADOX

Film showmen of foreign nations ought never to overlook an essential reality, namely, that as regards censorship the United States of America is a paradoxical situation. America can be, and is, both unbelievably liberal and surprisingly narrow, at the same time. In many particulars of permission this is the most idea-receptive and unfrightened nation among the 120 nations on earth. It is unknown for the Federal government to suppress a motion picture, as is done in France, Italy, Spain, Mexico, and many another land. Although patriotic societies occassionally protest that American-made features belittle the brains and manners of American leadership there is no denial of domestic license or the right to export. Going further, it is proper to state that the United States, alone among great powers, allows its honor to be questioned on the screen. As for "grandeur," DeGaulle style, there is none. American grandeur shows in luxurious plumbing and backyard swimming pools. Certainly the general tendency in America on many sensitive political issues is to allow rather than curb. American films have given lessons in lynch law as far back as 1915 and "The Birth Of A Nation." Several films, not only "The Manchurian Candidate," dramatized the telescopic rifle as an instrument of assassination.

Other areas of permissiveness will readily recur to memory. The beating of teachers in schools? It's been shown. The abortion scandal? Often pictured. The harassment of the citizens and the corruption of the police by organized crime? It would take a catalog to list the titles of such films. Brutality in detail, indignities to innocent bystanders, murder of witnesses? These, too, are frankly photographed. American films even dare suggest treason in the Pentagon high command and idiocy in the fission laboratories, dare treat the bomb in terms of farce.

All of which suggests a vast range of liberality indeed. And yet there is the contradiction—and the paradox—of pockets of Victorian-like prudery all over the country. These focus a watch and ward zeal upon, above all, the undraped female form. It is hardly an exaggeration to state that for millions of Americans the possibilities of atomic warfare are less alarming than an unveiling of the apparatus of maternity.

* * *

SELF-POLICING

Meanwhile, nothing is more characteristic of business in America than the "code of ethics" administered by the "offending" medium following its announced reform. Baseball, broadcasting, horse-racing, boxing, films are just a few of the U. S. industries to invoke a system of self-policing. The Hollywood Production Code, administered by Geoffrey Shurlock, continues operative and respected despite rebels in its own producer membership and the neglect of the importers of foreign film to seek its seal.

* * *

LEGION OF DECENCY

Subsequent to the establishment of the Hollywood Production Code (in 1930) the Roman Catholic bishops of the United States set up (in 1933) a system of ratings, based on their moral values. These range from positive endorsement to outright condemnation, or "C" rating. A "C" rating has been, and continues, a commercial liability in that many circuits and individual theatres refuse to book such films. Hence producers are often in negotiation with the Legion to prune their footage to escape condemnation. The Legion has modified its harshness with understanding in late years, though its discontent is far from silenced.

Protestant denominations express themselves on film content now and then but do not "rate" releases. Among the Jews, the Anti-Defamation League has concerned itself chiefly with racial stereotyping in story as appearing on the screen. Actually the oldest extant body concerned with the evaluation of films is the National Board of Review, founded in 1909. It's a voluntary grouping of admirers of film as an art form. The Board's monthly, "Films In Review," prints criticisms among the toughest seen in the United States and is especially alert to "party line" propaganda from overseas.

* * *

CLASSIFICATION

There is much advocacy of legally-enforced "Classification" of films, so that children under 16 or 18 may be excluded from certain "adult" films. In general, U.S. distributors oppose all such legislation. They rely in part upon a voluntary service called "The Green Sheet." This gives capsule evaluations on the suitability of films for the young. Parent-teacher and other support for compulsory classification is premised on the plea that modern parents have no way to know, in advance, about the morals of films appearing in local theatres. "The Green Sheet" is financed as to printing and mailing costs by the Motion Picture Assn. of America but the evaluations themselves are made outside the industry by a complex of 10 civic organizations. The monthly distribution was recently jumped from 30,000 to 69,000 copies, sent to local bodies which, in turn, reproduce and circulate locally.

U.S. CUSTOMS

All film prints shipped in from foreign countries run, first off, a form of censorship known as U. S. Customs, as arm of the Treasury Dept. Intermittently, films have been denied entrance, or delayed, because customs inspectors have felt they were, or might be, "obscene." Due heed to this hazard should be given by exporters and importers.

* * *

THE NATURE OF EVIL

For multitudes of American citizens, foreign showmen will be well advised to remember, innate evil means one or two emphases, or trends, either seen or suspected in cinema. First and foremost, situations of intimacy or provocation calculated to arouse a "prurient interest." Sex feelings which are not romantically idealized are charged with corruption of home, family and growing youth—pretty much here as in Britain and Canada. After sex, the second obsessive American fear is of Communism, and anything suspected as tending to its advancement or prestige. Since (1) Sex and (2) Communism are commonplace preoccupations of many writers and directors of films in Rome and Paris this fact alone is partly responsible for a certain prejudice in America against "foreign" films. Curiously enough, and another paradox among many, the puritanical films from the Soviet Union are, like the famous American deodorant users, at least "half safe."

* * *

HIT AND RUN

Elsewhere in this present edition appears a check-list of the several states and municipalities which maintain censorship systems, of varying kinds. Censorship has suffered a number of defeats in the U. S. Supreme Court and is, as an official influence, notably subdued compared to the past. However, small town "busybody" elements have been active. There has been a good deal of what may be termed "hit and run" censorship by individual prosecuting attorneys, sheriffs, and so on. Just recently a county attorney in Lewiston, Maine frankly admitted he raided and closed a film called "Passion Holiday" solely on the strength of two telephone calls. The moral crackdowns of such local figures are, to say the least, arbitrary and without due process of law. The trouble is that too often the theatre owners decline battle, to save legal fees. It depends upon the racial and religious density in a given area. In a parish across the Hudson River from Manhattan a zealous priest literally hounded one theatre operator, making the latter's existence almost intolerable. It is this sort of managrial harassment which is frequently reported, with considerable evidence that like-minded clerics or laymen pass the word from town to town. Hit-and-run tactics were notorious in Ohio two or three years ago. VARIETY has published perhaps a dozen stories in recent years of theatres forced to change policy or sell under "blue-nose" pressure.

There can be no complaint in a democracy against community protest. This is a method of democracy. However, the private citizens who often organize campaigns are frequently unwilling to stand up and be named. Their practice is secretly to goad officials and police. They dote upon the spectacular raid, the turning out of the audience, the confiscation of the negative. Too often the victim, arrested and lodged in jail, is the manager, projectionist or even cashier. The theatre owner, like his foes, may love secrecy.

Admittedly, the semi-surreptitious warfare between private citizens and film showmen has not been adequately documented. Some facts will probably never be verified unless philanthropic foundations grant investigatory funds. The failure of theatres to fight back is all-important. In one Ohio town it looked like there might be a true test of hit-and-run vigilantism against the French film, "The Lovers." A counter-suit was filed and a dozen volunteer trouble-makers seemed for a time likely to face some return in embarrassment. However, in the end the theatrical interests had no stomach for the fight, and indeed there is something basically incongruous in courting ill will since all businesses covet the opposite. Still there are grounds for believing that private citizens have been guilty of slander and malice and incitement to unjustified raid and seizure without ever having to answer.

Historical note should perhaps be taken of "The Lovers," above-mentioned. In most respects a tepid domestic drama of a dull husband and his bored wife, its final quarter hour caused the trouble in U. S. by showing the wife and her lover sharing the same bathtub and, later, bed. It was the most unnerving spectacle seen in Ohio since D. W. Griffith's glorification of the Ku Klux Klan in 1915.

* * *

FILM UNDERGROUND

If the United States has a widely dispersed body of underground censors it is perhaps only a kind of poetic response that there has developed in New York City an underground group of independent film-makers dealing with subject matter far outside the usual boundaries of sanction. Whether this movement will prevail remains to be seen. Its philosopher-in-chief, Jonas Mekas of Greenwich Village, was arrested twice in March for exhibiting film dealing with homosexuality. Earlier, a New York-made feature, "The Connection," after attracting some notice at the Cannes Film Festival returned to bcome a cause celebre in a dispute involving the N. Y. State Board of Regents which sought to deny it a license because of the use on the soundtrack of a four-letter word for human excrement which is almost universally not used in American periodicals, though common in American novels.

Avant-garde production is hard to finance and harder to get commercially booked in America. Even so, something close to revolutionary advances in sophistication have occurred in the States since World War II. The popularity of foreign product is now extensive but some part of the fuel which keeps the censorship fires burning here is of overseas origin. However, against that, perhaps nothing stirs more raids and seizures of negatives than "nudies" made not in Europe but in the outskirts of Los Angeles.

Censorship In U.S.A.

BY STATES

New York—Louis M. Pesee, Director of Motion Picture Division Dept. of Education, Albany, N.Y.

All films, except newsreels, require a license.

Maryland—Norman Mason, chairman, State Board of Censors, Baltimore.

Prior license required. A Baltimore exhibitor has been systematically showing harmless films sans license, hoping to bring whole issue to adjudication.

Kansas—State Board of Review, Mrs. Hazel Runyan, Chairman, Kansas City, Kans.

Credo contains many provisos approximately those knocked out by legal challenge in other states. Sample: "Loose conduct between men and women will be eliminated, and, whenever possible, barroom scenes and social drinking."

Virginia—Division of Motion Picture Censorship, Mrs. Herbert B. Gregory, chairman.

Standards applied are somewhat vaguely and broadly defined. Censors are women, never of the Republican Party, since this is part of the "Solid South" that has voted Democratic, with occasional rebellions, since the Civil War.

Abolished State Censorships: Massachusetts (Sundays only), Pennsylvania, Florida and Ohio censorships have all been either declared unconstitutional under legal attack in the courts or have been re-written into the discard by the state legislature.

BY MUNICIPALITY

Atlanta: This Georgia metropolis clings to a modified scrutiny system, replacing earlier city censorship, which took the count. The former woman censor has since re-emerged as the "city reviewer." Considerable nuisance hazard inheres in the lady. Industry has been only partially defensive.

Birmingham: Chief of Police here was long likely to take his cue from decisions in Atlanta.

Lowell & Lynn, Mass.: These cities near Boston have been quiet of late as censor threats. Practice was to "preview" only films of advance noteriety.

Chicago—Much in-family feuding between police, the mayor's appeals board and the vigilant Catholic clergy. Where counter-attacked, the censorship quails before the time and expense of defending itself. (Some of nearby Illinois cities, notably Evanston, have shown zest for denial and deletion, but not virulent lately).

Denver—Mostly eyes le sexy hot product.

Detroit—Police assume responsibility. Not troublesome of late.

Memphis—Once notorious under long reign of nation's most avid male bluenose. Less ridiculous nowadays but still prone to denial of license. In Memphis, as in many Dixiecrat communities, some censorship has been aimed at removal of "favorable" treatment of Negroes, distasteful to those maintaining segregation philosophy.

Milwaukee—Wisconsin's biggest city has a citizens advisory board on films, but it lacks legal powers.

Pasadena—Rich and conservative city over the rosebushes from Los Angeles has never banned a film but has often asked for elimination of scenes and dialog.

Omaha—Mayor of the Nebraskan metropolis has censoring authority but its largely unexercised.

Portland, Ore.—In the northwest the former censor board faded away. Power lies with police. Not troublesome.

Seattle, Wash.: Inactive local censorship.

N.Y. Area Art Spots

Continued from page 30

Rugby
St. George Playhouse
Tuxedo
Wagner Theatre

QUEENS: NASSAU & SUFFOLK
(Long Island)

Alan, New Hyde Park
Argo, Elmont
Austin, New Gardens
Baldwin, Baldwin
Bar Harbor, Massapequa Park
Belair, Valley Stream
Bellerose, Bellerose
Bellmore, Bellmore
Bethpage, Bethpage
Bath View, Old Bethpage
Cambria, Cambria Heights
Center, Sunnyside
Central, Cedarhurst
Cinema, Manhasset
Cinemart, Forest Hills
Colony, Jackson Heights
Continental, Forest Hills
Deer Park, Deer Park
DeLuxe, Woodside
Drake, Rego Park
Earle, Jackson Heights
Fair, Jackson Heights
Fine Arts, Hempstead
Hampton Arts, Westhampton Beach
Hauppauge, Hauppauge
Herricks, Herricks
Hewlett, Hewlett
Hollis, Hollis
Islip, Islip
Larkfield, E. Northport
Lido, Long Beach
Little Neck, Little Neck
Malverne, Malverne
Manhasset, Manhasset
Mayfair, Commack
Mayfair, Flushing
Merrick, Merrick
Morton Village, Plainview
Oceanside, Oceanside
Old Country, Plainview
Olympia, Astoria
Parsons, Flushing
Pix, Far Rockaway
Playhouse, Bellmore
Polk, Jackson Heights
Roslyn, Roslyn
Salisbury, Westbury
Sands Point, Port Washington
Trylon, Forest Hills
Wantagh, Wantagh
Westbury, Westbury
Westhampton, West Hampton Beach
Empire, Port Richmond

WESTCHESTER & ROCKLAND COUNTIES
(N.Y.)

Hastings, Hastings-on-Hudson
Larchmont Playhouse, Larchmont
Parkway, Mt. Vernon
Town, New Rochelle
Central, Pearl River
Plaza, Scarsdale
Cinema 45, Spring Valley
Colony, White Plains
Pix, White Plains
Kent, Yonkers
Kimball, Yonkers
Park Hill, Yonkers

NEW JERSEY

Lyric, Asbury Park
Mayfair, Asbury Park
DeWitt, Bayonne
Center, Bloomfield
Queen Anne, Bogota
Park, Caldwell
Clifton, Clifton
Ormont, East Orange
Elmora, Elmora
Chancellor, Irvington
Art, Irvington
Strand, Lambertville
Claridge, Montclair
Little, Newark
Albany, New Brunswick
Grant Lee, Palisades
Mall, Paramus
Fine Arts, Passaic
Paramount, Plainfield
Garden, Princeton
Carlton, Red Bank
Community, Toms River
Brunswick, Trenton
Art Cinema, Union City
Union, Union City

Regrets European Sexsationalism; Parish & Peasant Pix No More

By MORRY ROTH

Chicago.

Yankee film theatre operators opinions on "art" product from overseas is varied. But one thesis may be of interest to the overseas showmen. It amounts to a complaint that the Europeans have moved too much toward psychosexualis and away from the early detailings of colorful, warmhearted village and native life which established the imports in American affection to start with. Memory lingers upon Raimu in "The Baker's Wife," many of the early Fernandel peasant comedies and the hearty hanky-panky of the Italian parishes.

One who espouses these regrets for content change in European product is Chuck Teitel, owner of two Chicago art houses (World, Town) and a distributor of foreign films (Teitel Films). The danger, according to him, is not so much that anyone will be corrupted but that sensation substitutes for well-crafted pictures. It was the latter that created the explosion of the foreign pix in this country.

"The European producers," he maintains, "who once created new tastes for American ticket buyers are now pandering. Now a well-made picture like 'Lazarillo' is obscured by the sex and violence of 'Mondo Cane,' 'Psyche 59,' 'The Good Soup' and 'Yesterday, Today and Tomorrow.' A film that handles sex and love with, say, the delicateness of 'A Summer To Remember' unfairly looks naive in the company of pictures that should list Kraft-Ebing in the credits."

If the trend continues, Teitel says, the quality imported picture sans venery and morbidity won't have a chance. For instance, where only ten years ago a "Tight Little Island" and other English Group Three pix or a "Captain's Paradise" created excitement in the art market, today they would barely make a ripple.

Nor does Teitel cotton to the explanation that hinterland audiences are getting more sophisticated. "Unaccountably," he asserts, "we associate sophistication only with sex. After 30 years of importing pictures we must certainly have an audience that is sophisticated about fine scripts, superior direction, good acting and brilliant camera work. Aren't the European producers betraying these people?

"The foreign film makers got a toe-hold in the U.S. market because Americans were tired of seeing Dick Powell in a straw hat and white suit dancing with Ruby Keeler and 50 female football cheerleaders in pleated skirts. Until recently European films were successful in the U.S. because they were different. Today they are only trying to outdo the U.S. product in nudity and the exploration of sexual aberrations."

The bread-and-butter and even the classic foreign films that broke the ice in the U.S. market wouldn't have a chance today, according to Teitel. Such post World War II smashes as "Open City," "Paisan," "Angelo" or the Raimu trilogy would be lost in the welter of lust and flesh now on the screen.

Teitel fears that even such a superior picture maker as Ingmar Bergman may be caught up in the sensationalism tide. He points out that "Winter Light," which Bergman considers his best film, was a b.o. flop, and that even such highly-acclaimed pictures as "The Devil's Eye," "The Magician" and "The Seventh Seal" did only moderate biz in the Midwest. Bergman's biggest hit of recent years hereabouts was "Virgin Spring," which Teitel thinks would have had tough going without the explicit rape scene. Now, "The Silence," with its nudity, nymphomania and homosexuality, looks to be Bergman's biggest money maker.

Teitel pegs the upturn in European sexsationalism and (according to him) the decline in foreign filmic art began about five years ago. "I began to notice that first-rate foreign films without a sex motif were not making it at the boxoffice," Teitel recalls. "It became obvious when a great picture like the French 'We Are All Murderers' virtually fell on its face. This also happened to 'The Would Be Gentleman' and the recent German treatment of the operetta 'Don Juan.' I would have had lines waiting for these pictures a decade-and-a-half ago."

If the European producers are going to compete with Hollywood only on the basis of sex and nudity, says Teitel, then they are in for trouble because Hollywood will beat them at their own game. The logical (or illogical) extension of this sort of competition is the stag film.

Metro Sets Pace In Italian Keys

Rome, April 28.

Metro has taken over the lead in key city boxoffice totals for Italo distribs, with Paramount and Universal closely following behind. General situation sees Yank pix clearly dominating the local mart with about 46.6% garnered to date this season. Dear-UA follows, with Ceiad (Columbia) next. Titanus comes in sixth position. Dear-Fox is No. 7, with Interfilm, Warners, Rank and DeLaurentiis next in order.

Pic leader is "Cleopatra" (20th), followed by "Lawrence of Arabia" (Col). Then comes "Yesterday, Today, Tomorrow" (Emb), "How West Was Won" (MGM), "Charade" (U), "55 Days at Peking" (AA), "I Mostri," Irma La Douce" (UA), "The Leopard" and "Four for Texas" (WB). DeLaurentiis holds a slim lead over Interfilm in the average-per-film race, with Universal figuring in third position.

Number of recent releases are showing strongly and look to go higher. Among these are "Seduced and Abandoned" (Vides), now No. 12; "The Prize" (MGM), "Seven Days in May" (Par), and others. Ingmar Bergman's controversial "Silence" has started off strongly in a few keys.

'Gallo,' Mex Film, Wins Milan Film Fair Prize

Milan, April 28.

Miguel Zacharias' Mexican pic, "Juana Gallo," this week was awarded the Trophy of Five Continents at ceremonies held at MIFED, the Milan Film Trade Fair which, together with BIC, sponsors the annual award. Prize is for most commercial film of the year in each of world's five continents. "Juana Gallo" stars Maria Felix, Jorge Mistral, Christian Martel and Ignazio Lopez Corso.

Also at MIFED this week, the International Film Bureau (BIC) held a session of its executive council, with Eitel Monaco, ANICA topper, presiding.

Canada—And Morals

Ottawa, April 28.

"Why are Ontario residents considered too sensitive for some films shown in Europe?" parliament was asked last week by Stephen Lewis, New Democratic Party member for Toronto suburb Scarboro.

In same debate, one Liberal member said Ontario Censorship Board was too strict in classifying films (as for everyone; for adults —non-compulsory; or restricted to those 18 and over) while another of the same party called it "too loose." Latter, who castigated the board for passing "sick, sexy, saucy and violent" films, took a sideswipe at Toronto Star (without naming it) for accepting sexy films ads while refusing all liquor ads.

Ontario film censors are generally considered the most liberal in Canada except Quebec (formerly the toughest) and possibly British Columbia. "Tom Jones," e.g., was passed uncut in Ontario, while Alberta and Saskatchewan have turned it down unless distrib agrees to cuts.

Canada Is 'Rural'

Continued from page 29

sions while showings of the original versions grow less in number.

(2) Films for ethnic groups: Greeks, Germans, Japanese, but mostly Italian. Distributors such as Bob and Lionel Lester bring in hundreds of Italian films of all kinds and ages for showing in Italian communities. The Ontario censor reports that for the second year running more Italian films came into Ontario than American productions. This total however, does not include the celebrated films which fall into the "specialized category," nor those which now might be classified as the "popular art" category such as "Yesterday, Today and Tomorrow." (3) These are the 'specialized' or art films which are bought at the festivals by American distributors who usually take Canadian and American rights, or which are the result of co-productions with American distributors such as Levine. In this group are usually found the "sword and sandal epics" too, which, when dubbed into English, are taken by the same distributors who off-set losses from art with profits from spectacles.

"The problem with foreign films in Canada" says Taylor, "is knowing where to play them. For the purely artistic film we have only 10 to 12 towns compared with over 200 in the US. We can depend on less than 5% of the American gross. Yet some foreign pictures like "Boccaccio," "Two Women" and "Divorce, Italian Style," will play everywhere in dubbed versions and do extremely well. We bring in titled and dubbed prints. We use the titled prints for the specialized cinemas and the dubbed prints for regular theatres. "8½" dubbed is doing good business in the most unexpected places. "Yesterday, Today and Tomorrow" will play everywhere too. But this type of film is not any longer a specialized picture but a commercial proposition. You can never tell, and sex plays a large part in attracting the public. The mass public doesn't like to read sub-titles and never will—perhaps they cannot read well or don't expect to read when they go to the flicks. It's only the hard core who want titles and they are so vocal we provide them. We're better off with dubbed prints but I believe in showing both versions and I believe in hearing the original actors' voices in important films.

"We service film societies and believe in getting them as many films as possible, but the amount of money they return is small compared to the costs which face us: print costs, import taxes and censorship fees in eight provinces. This applies to films we bring in for our specialized cinemas. Sometimes we never cover initial outlay. We lost money in Hamilton and London, but we succeeded in Vancouver and we've started well in Winnipeg. We get nothing from the Maritime provinces and censorship in Saskatchewan and Alberta makes it hardly worth while showing films there."

"The market in Canada (excluding Quebec and its French films) is on a percentage basis comparatively less than it is in the US" said Taylor. "Canada does not bear the same returns as the US. A big American picture will do from 5 to 10% of the American gross here, and due to block-booking, which we still have, the lesser pictures will sometimes do more than the bigger pictures. But you cannot expect these figures from foreign films. We've tried everything in smaller towns including one show a week and 16mm houses, but audiences remain so small it's a waste of money. I wouldn't be in business distributing foreign pictures were it not for my other interests. I might do it by having my office in my hat but even that would be risky. We keep trying and I wish producers would rid themselves of their inflated ideas of the potential returns they can expect from the Canadian market."

Lewis J. Rachmil will handle producer reins on Mirisch Corp.'s picturization of John O'Hara's "A Rage to Live," Suzanne Pleshette starrer to be directed by Walter Grauman.

CHILE'S MAIL ORDER PUBLICITY

By HANS EHRMANN

Santiago.

In Chile film publicity is strictly a mail order business and it has never been positively ascertained whether publicists actually have to know how to read and write. But there is no doubt whatsoever that scissors and glue form an indispensable part of their equipment.

Magic minds in New York or California work out slogans, design advertisements and figure out promotion stunts or tie-ups. Less magic minds translate these into Spanish and the result arrives through the mails as something known to the trade as a press book.

The publicist receives one of these for each film he handles and all he has to do is gaily snip and stick a little and his ads are all ready for the supposedly gullible Chilean consumer. He does not even have to know the facts of life, for the magic minds back in the U.S. already put all the sex that's fit to print into their little press books.

Original ideas are strictly taboo, but that does not prevent the publicists from having a foible or two of their own. One has become an expert at providing newsmen with requested stills only when their deadline is long past and gone; another felt for years that the proper place for stills was in his files and not in newspapers or magazines where they could often be placed for free. He became a picturesque little miser with a hoard of stills. Only when newsmen ganged up on him and threatened to write to his head office in New York, did he decide to become more generous. Another man, also at a major U.S. distributor, has found his job such a sinecure that he turns up at his desk for half an hour a day (barring rainy ones). Another once held a press show of a pic for his friends and forgot to invite the critics.

Original ideas are taboo No. 1. Next to this, you have what may well be described as the publicist's Golden Rule: never see a film you have to promote. This procedure is adhered to approximately 99% of the time.

There is however more than meets the eye in the placing of advertisements. This is a simple and straightforward matter as far as the Mercurio, Santiago's most powerful daily, is concerned. Other papers though, provide publicists with a 15% kickback on the cost of ads to attract the film dollar to their pages. They bill 100% of cost and then pay a 15% commission to the lucky publicist who thus makes a second income without any need for moonlighting.

Heads of distributing firms and theatre managers are well nigh unanimous when approached on the subject of publicists, that there aren't any here worth their salt. Films just seem to sell themselves on the face value of the stars involved. At the same time, the mentality of people around the world, though similar in many ways, also varies in others and it may well happen that an approach that will sell a picture in New York or Seattle, will not be quite as successful in Santiago or Montevideo. And every now and then, when a "different" film like Fellini "8½" comes along, neither publicist, nor distributor, nor exhibitor know how to handle it. They are just unable to find out what it is all about.

There is little doubt that film publicity in this country is in a sorry state. It is an 'open question whether it is much better anywhere else.

Foreign Rental In U.S.

Continued from page 30

1963, apparently as the result of several more theatre outlets in New York and the midwest.

Germany: German product, which earned $1,020,000 in 1962 largely because of a dubbed-in-English Romy Schneider pic released by Paramount ("Forever My Love"), had no comparable major company backing in 1963. As a result, earnings dipped to $483,000, with approximately $175,000 of that total accounted for by pix going to German language houses. Playoff of two major company releases added another $155,000 to the total, with the rest coming from an assortment of exploitation items. Just getting started at the yearend was the artie "Good Soldier Schweik."

Sweden: As far as Yank filmgoers are concerned anyway, Sweden continued to be a one-man (Ingmar Bergman) film industry in 1963, with the Bergman pix in distribution accounting for $411,000 of the $451,000 Swedish total. This was down from the 1962 total of $519,000, principally because the 1963's new Bergman release, "Winter Light," did not measure up at the boxoffice to 1962's "The Virgin Spring." Not covered by the survey, of course, is Bergman's latest pic, "The Silence," which looks to become the biggest Bergman money-earner ever in the U.S. Also not included in the survey because, like "Silence," it began release this year, is the exploitation-oriented "The Doll."

Argentina: Rentals on Argentine pix were up substantially in 1963 over 1962 as the result of an increased number of Argentine pix getting release in the Spanish language houses. Approximately $130,000 was earned by three pix aimed at the artie trade, Tad Danielewski's "No Exit," and two pix by Leopoldo Torre-Nilsson, "Summerskin" and "Hand in The Trap."

Russia: Approximately $150,000 of the Russ 1963 total of $354,000 was earned by the delightful artie, "My Name Is Ivan," with almost all of the rest contributed by the Artkino sked. Latter had an estimated 96 pix in active distribution.

Philippines: The Philippines, which did not figure at all in the 1962 survey, came up with two actioners, one handled by a major and one by an indie, for total rentals of $150,000 in 1963.

India: What Ingmar Bergman is to the Swedish industry—exportwise, so is Satyajit Ray to the Indian industry. Reruns on his "Pather Panchali" pix, plus first release of his "Music Room," accounted for all but a small portion of India's 1963 total of $70,000.

Yugoslavia: A handful of dates on the Yugoslav-made, Brod Crawford-starrer, "Square of Death," plus a small playoff on an earlier release, "Ninth Circle," accounted for the $65,000 estimated to have been earned by Yugoslav product in 1963.

Poland: Release toward's yearend of Roman Polanski's "Knife in The Water" was principally responsible for the Polish earnings in 1963, with substantially more additional coin anticipated for the pic in 1964. Artie item benefitted from fine reviews and spotlighting at the first annual Lincoln Center Film Fest in September.

Denmark: A couple of made-in-Denmark sci-fi and exploitation items swelled Danish earnings in 1962 to the abnormal total of $1,119,000, which figure dropped sharply to $38,000 in 1963. The last year's earnings principally rep first dates on "A Stranger Knocks," in Washington, D.C. and several spots on the Coast and in the midwest. Pic's distrib, Trans-Lux, is now battling a New York state obscenity ban against the pic and going slow on release of the pic elsewhere.

Royal Film Show Problems

FAR-FROM-CREAMY PRODUCT PRESENTED—ROYALTY NEVER OFFENDED BUT SOMETIMES PROFOUNDLY BORED—HELPS CHARITY AND DRESSMAKERS

By DICK RICHARDS

London.

The annual Royal Film Show is the British industry's big night out of the year, a sellout and a bonanza rubbernecking session for the onlookers outside the theatre. Still more important it raises plenty of money for the Cinematograph Trade Benevolent Fund. This year's function in February drew over $84,000 and the total take from the 18 shows that have been staged has been around the $1,500,000 mark.

Nevertheless, thanks to the tireless activities of the Variety Club, and many other charitable bodies, there is now a yearly rash of glittering charity preems. There are some who think that the Royal Film Show, instead of being preeminent, is in danger of being swamped in the crowd. For these preems attract the same audiences, the exhibitors, the socialites, the producing companies, the business tycoons who feel that buying ducats and taking space in the programs is a "must" that they scarcely dare duck.

Royalty Helpless

First, it must be remembered that the Royal Film Show is not a "Command Show," although it is often loosely referred to as such. Thus the Royal Family has no say in the entertainment that's placed before it. The responsibility is in the hands of a small committee, mainly of film toppers, and although theirs is a tough task there are constant annual bleats that their choice errs. For two or three years two representatives of the Critics' Circle Film Section were added to the cast, but this misfired. The hapless critics on at least two occasions were forced either to abstain from voting or to vote for a film which, though the best of a poor bunch, they had to pan in their own newspaper criticisms.

